LABOUR LEGISLATION EXISTING IN CANADA IN 1920.

INTRODUCTION.

This volume is the second consolidated report on labour legislation in Canada issued by the Department of Labour, and contains the text of the labour laws of the Dominion and the provinces as existing at the end of 1920. The basic volume was issued in 1915 and was followed in the four succeeding years by annual reports, each of them containing a summary as well as the text of the labour laws of the year. In order to preserve the continuity of the series it has been deemed advisable to include in the present report a summary of the legislation passed in 1920. A brief survey of the more important developments since 1915 has also been given.

The same method of arrangement has been followed as in the 1915 report, the material having been selected from the latest Revised Statutes, from the subsequent yearly volumes of statutes up to the end of 1920, and, in the case of Quebec, from the Civil Code and the Code of Civil Procedure. For Alberta it was necessary to use the Consolidated Ordinances of the Northwest Territories, 1898, and the annual volumes of Ordinances up to 1906, as no Revised Statutes of Alberta have been published since the establishment of that province in 1905. The laws are arranged according to the chapter numbers within each year. For convenience, however, amending Acts have been consolidated with the statutes which they amend, except in one or two instances where the form of the amendment rendered consolidation impracticable. The words "with amendment" or "with amendments" immediately after the chapter number direct attention to the consolidation and a reference to the amending Act follows each amended section.

The Quebec statutes differ somewhat in form from those of the other provinces. The Revised Statutes of 1909 contain articles numbered continuously from beginning to end, and most of the statutes enacted from 1909 to 1920 are in the form of additional articles to be inserted in the Revised Statutes even when the legislation relates to new subjects. These articles when reproduced in this volume have been assigned to their proper places in the Revised Statutes and a reference to the year of enactment has been placed after each new or amended article. In citing references throughout the report dates have been used rather than sessional numbers. Explanatory words or sentences inserted in the text by the Department are enclosed in square brackets. The forms and schedules annexed to various Acts have not been printed except in a few cases, such as the lists of factories within the scope of the Factories Acts, the schedules of industries and of industrial diseases under Workmen's Compensation Acts, and the prescribed forms for the reporting of accidents under these and other Acts.

Certain labour laws authorize the enactment by Order in Council or by departmental head of rules and regulations, chiefly for administrative purposes. It is impossible to include the text of such regulations in the present report, but footnotes indicate when any regulations have been issued. The regulations in force under the Quebec Mining and Factory Acts, however, correspond so closely to certain sections in the Mining and Factory Acts of other provinces that it was thought advisable to print these particular regulations in full.

Several statutes which appear in this volume contain sections providing for the coming into force of the Act on a day to be fixed by Order in Council. In those cases where the day has not been fixed the words "not yet in force" follow the chapter number of the statute, and if the Act in question is lengthy, a footnote to the same effect is placed at the end of the chapter.

In selecting the material for the present report the term labour legislation has on the whole been given a broad interpretation. The report does not, however, include laws which fall under the head of social rather than labour legislation, nor those which deal with professional classes, such as teachers, surveyors, etc., or with the civil service. Local, private and temporary laws have also been excluded.

The various municipal Acts in force in the provinces contain sections empowering municipal councils to pass by-laws on a variety of subjects, among which several are of labour interest. These sections, however, are merely permissive, and, since in many cases no by-laws have been issued, only the clauses relating to Sunday labour and to early closing are reproduced. Among the other subjects enumerated in these sections are the regulation of explosives, the safety of buildings, fire prevention, and the licensing of various classes of workmen.

The laws on the subject of apprenticeship may be divided into two classes—general and special provisions. The general provisions are included in this report. The special provisions authorize the placing out of immigrant children by societies formed for that purpose, of neglected children by Children's Aid Societies, and of juvenile offenders by the managers of industrial schools, Children's Aid Societies, or judges. These provisions are omitted as being of social rather than of labour interest, but, for the convenience of those interested in the social aspect of the subject, a reference list is appended:—

 Saskatchewan—Revised Statutes, 1920, c. 192, secs. 12, 24.

A third class of laws deserves mention here because, although not labour legislation in form, these laws have a bearing upon the question of workmen's compensation. These statutes, which are based on an English law of 1846, extend to the surviving dependants of a person whose death is caused by an injury, the right which an injured person has under the common law regarding the recovery of damages from the person whose negligence caused the injury.

These Fatal Accidents Acts are important in their application to cases arising from the death of workmen from injuries received in the course of their employment. Every province but Quebec has an Act of this type and all the statutes are the same in principle although they vary slightly in detail. The Acts provide that the amount recoverable in an action shall be such as the jury think proportional to the loss resulting from the accident to the parties for whose benefit the action is brought. The list of beneficiaries in every instance includes the wife, husband, parent or child of the deceased, and all the laws but two interpret "parent" as including father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, step-father and stepmother, and "child" as including son, daughter, grandson, granddaughter, step-son, and step-daughter. The New Brunswick law excludes step-parents and step-children. The Ontario statute, on the other hand, includes these and also a person who has adopted a child or who stood in loco parentis to the deceased and an adopted child or person to whom the deceased stood in loco parentis. The time within which an action must be brought is fixed at twelve months in all the Acts. A list of those statutes follows:—

LABOUR LEGISLATION.—1915-1920.

The five-year period just closed has been marked by a considerable amount of labour legislation, some of it opening up entirely new fields of legislative activity in accordance with general public sentiment in Canada and elsewhere, the remainder merely altering existing laws to meet changed conditions.

Of the former type is the Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, passed by the Federal Parliament in 1918. It provides for a national system of employment offices organized by the Department of Labour in co-operation with the provincial authorities. Under this scheme local offices have been opened in industrial centres which report daily to a provincial clearing-house, the latter in its turn keeping in constant touch with Federal headquarters, and a majority of the provinces have passed laws providing for the closing of private agencies. A national advisory committee, the Employment Service Council, composed of representatives of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, employers, labour, agriculture and returned soldiers has been appointed to supervise the administration of the entire organization.

Another enactment that marks the adoption of a new policy on the part of the Federal Government is the Technical Education Act of 1919, which authorizes the payment of money grants to the Provincial Governments on certain conditions for the promotion of technical education.

Laws providing for the establishment of minimum rates of wages for women were first enacted in Canada during this period and there are now seven provinces having legislation of this character. In several cases these laws deal with hours of labour and working conditions as well as wages.

The provision for allowances to indigent mothers made by a number of the provinces may be also mentioned as a development of interest to labour.

New laws relating to workmen's compensation have been passed in five of the provinces since 1915, all of them being similar to the Ontario Act of 1914, with a state board administering an accident fund made up exclusively of compulsory contributions from employers grouped in classes and assessed according to the hazard of the industry. The scope of these acts has been steadily widened and the amount of compensation has been everywhere increased. In 1918 the Federal Parliament enacted a law by which employees of the Federal Government who are injured and the dependants of those who are killed in the performance of their duties are entitled to the same compensation as an employee or the dependants of an employee of any person other than His Majesty would receive in similar circumstances under the law of the province in which the accident occurred.

The proceedings of the Royal Commission on Industrial Relations appointed in April, 1919, and of the National Industrial Conference which followed it in the same year, and of the Dominion-Provincial Commission on Uniformity of Labour Laws in April, 1920, have a direct bearing on labour legislation and therefore deserve mention here.

Early in 1919 the Labour Sub-Committee of the Reconstruction and Development Committee of the Dominion Government recommended the appointment of a Commission representing the public, employers and employees to inquire into industrial relations in Canada and suggest means of ensuring their permanent improvement. This Commission was appointed accordingly and in its report recommended that legislation be enacted to provide for a minimum wage for women, girls and unskilled workers, and for a maximum working day of eight hours and a weekly rest of at least twenty-four hours for all classes of employees. The Commission also recommended, inter alia, immediate inquiry by expert boards with a view to early legislation regarding state insurance against unemployment, invalidity and old age, and that suitable action be taken by the Government to help in the building of workers' homes and to establish a bureau for promoting industrial councils. Finally the Commission suggested that in order to secure concerted action by the provincial legislatures on these matters, a conference of representatives of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, employers and labour men should be held at Ottawa to consider the whole question of industrial relations and the unification and co-ordination of the labour laws of the Dominion and the Provinces.

The result of this suggestion was the National Industrial Conference, which adopted unanimously a number of resolutions endorsing the findings of the Royal Commission. One of these resolutions strongly urged the advantages of uniformity in provincial labour laws and proposed that the question be dealt with by a commission to which the Dominion and each of the provinces should appoint three members representing respectively the Government, employers and employees.

The Dominion and Provincial Governments agreed to this proposal and the Commission was appointed and examined the various laws on industrial disputes, workmen's compensation, minimum wages, inspection and regulation of mines and of factories, shops and office buildings, embodying in its report recommendations on these subjects. These may be briefly summarized.

With regard to workmen's compensation legislation, certain standard provisions were recommended including the adoption of state insurance, the whole burden of the accident fund being borne by the employers and the cost of administration by the Provincial Government in question; the extension of the scope of the Acts to cover as many industries as practicable and to include all public employees and all workmen in industries covered by the Acts; equal rights for employers and employees in regard to election to be brought under the Acts; the adoption of a uniform scale of compensation in case of injuries due to industrial accident or disease; a time limit for the filing of claims; the supplying of medical, surgical and hospital aid; and the supervision by the board of all measures for first-aid and for accident prevention.

With reference to minimum wages, the Commission recommended the creation in each province of a competent authority to establish minimum wages and fix hours of employment for women and girls, such hours not to exceed forty-eight per week except in the case of domestic and agricultural employees.

In the matter of factory employment, it was recommended that the minimum age for the employment of children be fixed at fourteen years for boys and fifteen years for girls; that hours of labour for women and young persons be limited to forty-eight hours per week or ten hours per day, including overtime, and that night work for these classes be prohibited; that existing laws relating to health and safety be made general so far as practicable and that all industrial establishments be subject to inspection.

The recommendations concerning mining laws were: that fourteen and sixteen years be fixed as the minimum age for boys working above and below ground respectively, and eighteen and twenty-one years as the minimum age for operators of power machinery for moving material and persons respectively; that the eight-hour day be adopted and also the semi-monthly payment of wages by cheque or in currency with a prohibition of such payment on premises licensed for the selling of intoxicating liquor and of the cashing of pay cheques in hotels or bars; that no deductions be made from wages except for powder, coal, oil, rent, and such doctors' and hospital fees as may be approved by the Workmen's Compensation Board, and for supplies necessary to the carrying on of the work, and that no employer be permitted to apply the wages of his employees to any debt without the written consent of such employees given individually or collectively; that legislation be enacted providing for miners' liens; that uniform standards be adopted regarding the appointment of boards of examiners and the conduct of examinations for certificates of competency, and also regarding qualifications and duties of inspectors, the ventilation of mines, the protection of the health of employees in mining camps, the holding of special investigations and the administration of first-aid and mine-rescue work.

With regard to laws governing industrial disputes, it was considered desirable that disputes in mines and public utilities and those affecting policemen and firemen should be dealt with exclusively by Federal legislation.

A survey of recent Canadian legislation of interest to labour would be incomplete without a reference to the application to Canada of the draft conventions of the International Labour conference held at Washington in October, 1919, pursuant to the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. The Canadian delegation at that Conference consisted of representatives of each of the provincial Governments as well as of the Dominion Government. This was deemed advisable in view of the fact that some of the items on the agenda related to matters which are within the jurisdiction of the provinces, and, owing to the federal character of the Canadian constitution, the provincial Governments do not come into direct contact with the International Labour Office.

It will be remembered that the results of the Conference were embodied in six draft conventions concerning (1) the limitation of hours of work in industrial undertakings, (2) the employment of women before and after child-birth, (3) the employment of women during the night, (4) the minimum age for employment of children in industrial establishments, (5) night work of young persons employed in industry, and (6) unemployment. There were also six recommendations concerning (1) the protection of women and children against lead poisoning, (2) unemployment, (3) reciprocity of treatment of foreign workers, (4) the prevention of anthrax, (5) the establishment of Government health services, and (6) the application of the Berne Convention of 1906 on the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

When the text of these draft conventions and recommendations was officially communicated to the Government of Canada the question of legislative jurisdiction as between the Dominion and the provinces came up for consideration and was referred to the Minister of Justice, whose finding was to the effect that the proposals of the draft conventions concerning hours of labour, the employment of women, young persons and children, and the recommendations concerning the protection of women and children against lead poisoning involve legislation that is competent to the Dominion Parliament with regard to Dominion works, but which otherwise the provincial legislatures have power to enact.

The Dominion Government is deemed to be the proper authority to give effect to the proposals for a national system of employment agencies contained in the draft convention regarding unemployment, and the Employment Offices Co-Ordination Act, 1918, can be largely utilized to this end.

The recommendation concerning unemployment proposes four different measures. The first, the suppression of private employment agencies, is, in the opinion of the Minister, competent to the provincial legislatures alone. The second measure, the regulation, by mutual agreement between countries, of recruitment of bodies of workers in one country for employment in another, can be carried out by reciprocal arrangements in relation to immigration made by Parliament, and it is thought that the Immigration Act, 1918, chapter 27, and the Alien Labour Act, R. S. C., chapter 97, may be found to confer upon the Governor-General in Council sufficient powers to permit the fulfilment of any such international agreement. The third measure is the establishment of a system of unemployment insurance, which, as a complement to the system of labour exchanges, falls within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament. The fourth proposal, to co-ordinate the execution of public works with a view to reserving it as far as possible for periods and districts affected by unemployment, is one to be dealt with by the Dominion and Provincial Governments separately unless a joint plan can be arrived at by agreement.

The Minister considers that the Dominion Parliament has power to deal with the recommendations concerning reciprocity of treatment of foreign workers and the prevention of anthrax. In the latter case the Quarantine Act, R. S. C., chapter 74, empowers the Governor in Council to make the necessary regulations.

With regard to the recommendation concerning the establishment of health services, the Minister of Justice is of the opinion that, provided health services and factory inspection are dealt with in the federal as contrasted with the provincial aspect, legislation to carry out this recommendation is within the competence of the Dominion Parliament, the provisions of the Department of Health Act empowering the Government to take the necessary measures.

The final recommendation deals with the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches on which subject the Parliament of Canada has already passed comprehensive legislation.

In June, 1920, a second meeting of the International Labour Conference was held at Genoa, for the purpose of considering matters relating to seamen. Four subjects appeared on the agenda: (1) Hours of labour and their effect on manning and accommodation, (2) Unemployment, including facilities for finding employment for seamen and insurance against unemployment, (3) Employment of children at sea, (4) Seamen's codes. Several subjects related to the agenda were also discussed, and as a result of the work of the conference, conventions were agreed to concerning: (1) Facilities for finding employment for seamen. (2) Minimum age of employment of children on board ship. (3) Unemployment indemnity in case of loss or foundering of ship. Recommendations were adopted regarding: (1) Hours of work on inland navigation. (2) Hours of work on board fishing vessels. (3) Unemployment insurance for seamen. (4) Establishment of national seamen's codes. Resolutions were also adopted for the instruction and guidance of the International Labour Office concerning: (1) Prevention and treatment of venereal disease in the mercantile marine. (2) Insurance against unemployment. (3) Special clauses in articles of agreement and seamen's codes. (4) Education of children or apprenticed seamen. The Conference discussed the following questions and resolved that they should come up for final decision at the next Conference: (1) Prohibition of the employment of any person under the age of eighteen as a trimmer or stoker. (2) Medical examination of children previous to their employment on board ship. (3) Education of children. The Conference also elected a joint committee of owners and seamen to advise the International Labour Office.

LABOUR LEGISLATION 1920.

GENERAL SUMMARY

The Dominion Parliament, the legislatures of all the Provinces and the Council of the Yukon held their regular sessions during 1920 and all save the last named enacted labour laws. The Saskatchewan session of 1919 which opened late in that year extended into 1920 and the labour legislation passed thereat is therefore included in this report in addition to that passed at the 1920 session.

An important measure of the year was the Workmen's Compensation Act of Manitoba, which established a system of state insurance, thus bringing that province into line with the majority of the other provinces of Canada. The growth of the movement towards a higher rate of compensation is shown in the amendments to a number of provincial laws.

Greater facilities for technical education were provided by new acts passed in Ontario and Saskatchewan, and a Director of Technical Education was appointed in Quebec.

Ontario and Nova Scotia were added to the list of provinces having minimum wage laws, and the scope of existing acts was extended in several cases. Other laws relating to women were principally concerned with hours of labour and the provision of allowances for indigent mothers. Measures affecting children dealt almost exclusively with compulsory school attendance.

With regard to factory legislation, the new Act passed by the New Brunswick Legislature is unique in that it places the administration of the law largely in the hands of the Workmen's Compensation Board. Other legislation in this field concerns chiefly the examination and licensing of stationary and hoisting engineers and elevator operators. Licensing of chauffeurs and moving-picture machine operators received attention in a number of provinces.

The Ontario Legislature passed a statute providing for a weekly day of rest for employees of fire departments. Other enactments regulating hours of labour dealt principally with the early closing of shops.

Important amendments were made to the Federal and Manitoba laws governing the settlement of industrial disputes.

The continued growth of the employment offices system is shown in an amendment extending the scope of the Dominion law and also in an Act passed by the Nova Scotia Legislature looking to the abolition of private offices.

The safety and welfare of seamen was the subject of legislation by the Federal Parliament.

PROVINCIAL DEPARTMENTS OF LABOUR

Chapter 56 of the Statutes of Saskatchewan, 1919-20, establishes a permanent Bureau of Labour in charge of a Commission responsible directly to a minister and the powers and duties of the old Bureau are transferred to the new one, together with the administration of the Minimum Wage Act.

WAGES

An amendment to the Wages Act of Ontario (chapter 42) exempts from attachment or seizure 70 per cent of any debt due a workman in respect of his wages, but the percentage may be increased or decreased at the discretion of the judge according to the circumstances of the case.

The Saskatchewan act of 1919 regarding exemption of wages from attachment was repealed, but the same provisions are contained in the new Attachment of Debts Act (chapter 82, 1919-20).

The Masters and Servants Act of Manitoba was amended (chapter 73) to increase the maximum amount recoverable in a suit for wages and also the maximum amount of wages which takes priority over other claims in case of a distress warrant against crops.

In British Columbia an amendment to the Semi-monthly Payment of Wages Act (chapter 98) directs that the wages of coal miners be paid at least as often as fortnightly and on a Saturday. A minor change in the day of payment was made in the Mines Act of Alberta (chapter 4, section 10).

The Quebec Legislature passed a law (chapter 57) providing that the money earned by each child who is an inmate of a reformatory or industrial school shall be applied to the cost of his maintenance, and the balance, if any, placed to his credit and paid to him when he leaves the institution. The new Companies Act (chapter 72) in this Province contains a section making directors of companies liable for six months' wages of employees.

An amendment (chapter 72, 1920) to the Mechanics' Lien Act of Saskatchewan provides that no claim for lien may be registered unless the amount exceeds $50, and restricts the costs recoverable in cases where the amount found to be due is less than $100.

The Woodmen's Lien Act (chapter 43) of New Brunswick was amended to add several classes to those entitled to liens.

HOURS OF LABOUR

In Ontario the Factory, Shop and Office Building Act (chapter 86) was amended to render early closing by-laws ineffective in so far as they apply to the sale of fresh fruit.

The Village Act of Saskatchewan (chapter 25, 1919-20) was consolidated and the section relating to early closing amended so that a by-law may specify the class or classes of shops to which it applies.

The clause of the Alberta Early Closing Act which required that all by-laws be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council was repealed (chapter 4, section 12).

The Nova Scotia law which governs hours of labour in Halifax shops was amended (chapter 88) to exempt hotels, refreshment rooms and similar places of business from the working of the Act. Any petition for an early closing ordinance may specify the day and time of closing and such petition must be signed by seventy-five per cent of the persons engaged in the class of trade to which the ordinance will apply.

The new minimum wage laws of Nova Scotia (chapter 11) and Alberta (chapter 40) provide for the regulation of hours of employment for women and minors, and the Saskatchewan Minimum Wage Act is amended to compel employers to keep a record of the working hours of their employees.

HOLIDAYS AND REST DAYS

In Manitoba sections were added (chapter 124) to the Shops Regulation Act to enable any municipal council to pass a by-law providing for a weekly half-holiday in any class or classes of shops during all or any part of the year.

An amendment (chapter 103) to the Weekly Half-Holiday Act of British Columbia provides that all shops to which the Act applies shall close on certain specified public holidays.

INSPECTION AND REGULATION OF FACTORIES.

The New Brunswick Legislature consolidated and amended (chapter 54) the law relating to factory workers, making several important changes. Many of the powers heretofore vested in the Lieutenant-Governor in Council are transferred to the Workmen's Compensation Board, which now has authority to make regulations, appoint inspectors and direct their work. The sections relating to sanitation as well as those dealing with the regulation of bakeries and other establishments handling food products have been omitted from the new Act, these subjects being fully covered by the Public Health Act of 1918. The appointment of one or more inspectors of steam boilers is provided for, applicants for the position being required to submit to a written examination.

The scope of the Saskatchewan factory law was extended (chapter 10, 1919-20) to include grain elevators for the purpose of those sections which deal with the storage of explosive and inflammable material and with the guarding and cleaning of dangerous machinery. The inspector is authorized to make examination by day or night of every building in which there is an elevator and to prohibit the use of any passenger elevator found to be unsafe. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council is empowered to make regulations respecting all hoisting appliances.

An amendment (chapter 86) to the Ontario Factory, Shop and Office Building Act prohibits the use of certain types of hoist in factories.

The Boilers Act of Alberta was amended (chapter 4, section 14) to exclude boilers of two horse-power and under from the operation of the Act, and also to permit the renewal of licenses without fee in certain cases.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act was amended (chapter 29) to provide that a single board of conciliation may deal with a dispute in which a number of employers or firms are acting together; or, in the opinion of the Minister of Labour, have interests in common. That section of the Act which forbade any action in the nature of a strike or lockout or any change in respect of wages and hours until the dispute had been finally dealt with by a board, was amended to require both parties to await the delivery to them of the board's report before altering their relations. The Minister, also, without waiting for an application from either party, may appoint a board of conciliation to deal with a dispute if a strike or lockout appears to him to be imminent. The clause relating to payment of witnesses is amended to provide a minimum allowance of four dollars per day.

The Manitoba Legislature added several sections (chapter 57) to the Industrial Conditions Act of 1919, recognizing the right of both employers and employees to organize for any lawful purpose and to bargain with each other individually or collectively. Any dispute between employers and any such organization of employees or its representatives as to the methods or terms of such bargaining is to be submitted to the Joint Council of Industry, which within five days must begin an investigation as prescribed by the Act and conduct it with all reasonable despatch, sending in a report within ten days after the completion of the work. Another amendment empowers the council to investigate any complaint that an agreement or arrangement between employers and employees injuriously affects the public. Schedule A, of the Act of 1919, containing some sections of the British Trades Disputes Act, is repealed, together with the section which empowered the Joint Council of Industry to bring its provisions into force.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN

The factory law of Saskatchewan was amended at both sessions of the Legislature with regard to the employment of women and children. Chapter 10, 1919-20, establishes an eight-hour day and a forty-eight-hour week for women and young persons and chapter 66, 1920, raises the minimum age for the employment of girls from fourteen to fifteen years.

The New Brunswick Factories Act as now consolidated (chapter 54) omits the clause of the old law which forbade the employment of children under fourteen years of age except in unusual circumstances and by written permission of an inspector. New sections, however, have been inserted, requiring employers to produce age certificates for all children in their employ who are under sixteen years of age, such certificates to be signed by a parent of the child. Penalties are provided for contravention of the law by employers or parents. This provision is in accordance with the School Attendance Act of 1906, which prohibits the employment of any child under sixteen years of age in cities or towns during school hours unless he holds a school certificate. The latter Act also forbids the employment of children under thirteen years of age under any circumstances.

Minor amendments regarding school attendance were made in several provinces, the British Columbia law now requiring all children between the ages of seven and fourteen years to attend school on every school day, and that of Saskatchewan stating that children who obtain certificates releasing them for household or similar duties must be over thirteen years of age and have attained a certain standard of education. In Manitoba the clause exempting children who have reached a certain grade is repealed. The newly consolidated Public School Act in Prince Edward Island contains the same provisions as the former Act concerning school attendance.

MINIMUM WAGES

During the year two provinces, Nova Scotia and Ontario, were added to the number of those having laws providing for the establishment of minimum wages for women.

The Nova Scotia act (chapter 11) makes provision for the appointment of a board of five members, two of whom shall be women, who are to receive such compensation for their services and expenses as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may determine. This Board is authorized to hold investigations and to issue orders fixing standards of minimum wages, and, where not inconsistent with the Factories Act, maximum hours and proper working conditions for female employees in factories and shops. The Act covers cities and towns in the first instance, but the Board may, at its discretion, extend its application to any part of the Province. The Board also has power to grant special licenses for the employment of physical defectives and apprentices at a wage less than that fixed for normal adult workers. This Act will come into force on a date to be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The Ontario act (chapter 87) differs on some points from that of Nova Scotia. The chairman of the Board is appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and the other members hold office for a fixed term only. Members are not paid for their services, but may receive a per diem allowance during attendance at meetings, etc. The authority of the Board does not extend to hours of labour or working conditions, but is limited to the investigation and establishment of wage-rates. The Board is empowered to call a conference equally representative of employers and employed in any class of employment, a disinterested person to act as chairman. This conference is to determine and recommend minimum wages for the class of employees under consideration. In case no agreement can be reached the Board may submit the question to the same or a new conference or may forthwith establish a minimum wage for that class of employment. The Act applies to all female workers in the province except farm labourers and domestic servants. A Board has been appointed under authority of this statute and has issued an order applicable to laundries, dye works and dry-cleaning establishments in the city of Toronto.

The Saskatchewan Minimum Wage Act was amended (chapter 78, 1919-20) to bring within its scope all hotels, restaurants and refreshment rooms, to give the Board authority to determine the number of apprentices that may be permitted in any shop or factory, and to compel employers to keep a register of the hours worked by employees.

The section of the Alberta Factories Act which provided for the appointment of a minimum wage commission in cities and towns having a population of over five thousand was replaced by a new one (chapter 40), empowering the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to appoint a committee representing equally employers and employees with a chairman nominated by the Attorney General. This Committee may make investigations and recommend minimum wages and maximum hours of labour for all persons under eighteen years of age and for all female persons employed in establishments covered by the Act. These recommendations may be put into effect by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. A Committee has been appointed under authority of this section.

Orders were issued during the year by the Minimum Wage Board of British Columbia, and in Saskatchewan existing orders were amended.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS

Although this subject is somewhat outside the field of labour legislation, the text of the various Acts providing for mothers' pensions has been given in this report as being of general interest to labour. New laws were passed by the Legislatures of British Columbia and Ontario and in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, amendments were made to the Acts already in force.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

The new Workmen's Compensation Act (chapter 159) passed by the Manitoba Legislature provides for a system of state insurance similar to that which had already been adopted by a majority of the other provinces. The maximum amount of compensation payable is raised from 55 per cent to 66-2/3 per cent of the average earnings of an injured workman, and the monthly pensions to dependants are also augmented. The Board is authorized to provide for medical, surgical and hospital aid and to require employers to maintain a first-aid service.

Numerous amendments were made to existing laws including an increase in the scale of compensation in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

In addition, the amendment to the Nova Scotia Act (chapter 42) makes minor changes in the provisions respecting notification of injury, alternative schemes for medical aid and liability of contractors and sub-contractors for assessments.

The New Brunswick amendment (chapter 12) provides for the furnishing of medical, hospital and skilled nursing services, the cost of which is to be paid from the accident fund, and authorizes the Board to direct the maintenance of first-aid appliances wherever necessary. In this Province an Order in Council passed during the year gives a list of industrial diseases, for which compensation is payable including several which are not compensable in any other province.

An amendment to the Quebec law (chapter 75) provides that whenever a municipal corporation undertakes or executes public works under conditions that would render a contractor liable under the Act, such corporation shall itself become liable.

Chapter 43 of the Ontario Statutes amends the provisions regarding medical aid to include the furnishing of necessary artificial members and apparatus.

In Saskatchewan Chapter 72, 1920, brings public employees within the scope of the Act.

Amendments (chapter 39) to the Alberta law include a provision that any employer whose industry is not within the scope of the Act, may, on application to the Workmen's Compensation Board, have his employees brought under the Act if the majority of them do not object and the Board approves. Wide powers are given to the Board regarding measures for the prevention of accidents and diseases. Provisions respecting assessments are also amended.

EXAMINATION AND LICENSING OF WORKMEN

An amendment to the Stationary and Hoisting Engineer's Act of Ontario (chapter 50) provides that the Board of Examiners appointed under the Act may consist of either three or five members instead of being restricted to three as formerly.

The new Factories Act (chapter 54) passed by the New Brunswick Legislature makes provision for the appointment of a Board of Examiners for stationary and hoisting engineers, members being required to have at least ten years' experience.

Chapter 70 of the Nova Scotia Statutes provides for the granting of special permits to competent persons to operate hoisting, compressor and fan engines.

In an amendment (chapter 54) to the law respecting the protection of public buildings against fire, the Quebec Legislature authorizes the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to appoint two or more examiners with special technical knowledge of electricity to examine applicants for electricians' licenses.

An amendment (chapter 36) to the Electricians' License Act of Manitoba forbids any person, other than a journeyman licensed under the Act, to perform any electrical work or install any electrical material or apparatus within the meaning of the Act.

Chapter 10 of the Statutes of Saskatchewan, 1919-20, amends the Factories Act to forbid persons under sixteen years of age to operate passenger elevators.

Minor amendments were made to the laws relating to chauffeurs in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, and Ontario. The new Motor Vehicles Act (chapter 62) in British Columbia contains the same provisions on this subject as are found in the old law.

EMPLOYMENT OFFICES

The Federal Parliament amended the Employment Offices Co-ordination Act (chapter 25) to empower the Minister of Labour to set aside from the grants made to any province which does not operate employment offices and does not propose to establish them, such an amount as seems desirable for the maintenance of employment offices, provided that the sum so allotted shall not exceed one-half the amount expended for the maintenance of such offices.

The only other enactment in this field is the Employment Agencies Act (chapter 13) passed by the Nova Scotia Legislature, which abolishes all private employment offices except such as may be exempted by proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

CIVIL RIGHTS OF EMPLOYEES

The Dominion Elections Act (chapter 46) contains the same provisions as the old law respecting time to be allowed employees for voting, and the prevention of undue influence. It also has a new section providing for advance polls for sailors, railway employees and commercial travellers.

An amendment (chapter 62) to the Ontario Railway Employees Voting Act requires that the council of any municipality on petition of twenty-five railway employees shall pass a by-law declaring the Act to apply to that municipality. The amending Act further permits advance polls to be held in connection with elections for the board of education or the board of public school trustees or in voting on by-laws.

The Manitoba Legislature added to the Elections Act (chapter 33) a section authorizing the holding of advance polls for employees.

Chapter 34, 1920, adds new sections to the City Act of Saskatchewan providing for the establishment of advance polls in municipal elections. Chapter 35, 1920, adds similar provisions to the Town Act.

The New Provincial Elections Act of British Columbia (chapter 27) contains the same provisions concerning voting by employees that were found in the statute which it replaces.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

The Federal Parliament repealed (chapter 20) that section of the Technical Education Act which forbade the taking into account of previous expenditure by any province on land, buildings and equipment when determining the grant payable to such province.

In Ontario new sections (chapter 102) were added to the Industrial Education Act and form Part II thereof. These authorize the establishment of schools for technical training, the cost to be paid out of funds appropriated by the Legislature or received from the Dominion Government under the provisions of the Federal Technical Education Act.

The Saskatchewan Legislature passed a new law (chapter 42, 1919-20) enabling boards of trustees in towns or high school districts to provide instruction in technical subjects. A vocational education committee on which the school board, employers of labour and employees are represented is to be appointed to assist in the establishment and management of any school or department organized under the Act.

The Quebec Legislature appointed (chapter 43) a Director of Technical Education.

An amendment (chapter 62) to the New Brunswick Act provides that local vocational committees shall submit to the authorities appointing them, at the commencement of each school year, an estimate of the amount of money required during that year. On approval of this budget the amount named therein is to be placed to the credit of the committee. Provision is also made for certain grants by the Province to local vocational committees.

IMMIGRATION

The only legislation under this head is an Order in Council (P. C. 2930) similar to that passed in 1919, requiring that all mechanics, artisans or labourers who wish to enter Canada shall possess at least $250 in addition to transportation to their destination. If an immigrant is accompanied by his family he must have transportation for them also, and, in addition, $125 for each member over eighteen years of age and $50 for each child between five and eighteen years. This regulation, which was made owing to the considerable amount of unemployment existing in Canada, was to remain in force from December 15, 1920, until March 31, 1921, but by P. C. 959, dated March 19, 1921, the period of its operation is extended indefinitely.

DIRECTOR OF COAL OPERATIONS

Chapter 42 of the Federal Statutes ratifies the various Orders in Council respecting the appointment, powers and duties of the Director of Coal Operations, and continues them in force until the next session of Parliament, unless repealed by the Governor General in Council; it also confirms the orders already issued by the Director.

SEAMEN

The Federal Parliament amended (chapter 38) those sections of the Canada Shipping Act which relate to the care of sick and distressed mariners. A minister of the Crown is to be appointed to administer this part of the Act and to him are transferred the powers and duties formerly vested in the Governor General in Council. He may also rent, equip and maintain hospitals and make regulations governing them. Another amendment to this Act (chapter 6) deals with steamboat inspection.

LABOUR LAWS OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA AS EXISTING DECEMBER 31st, 1920.

(In setting out the text of the federal and provincial statutes, precedence is given to the legislation of the Dominion, that of the provinces following, the provinces being arranged in geographical order, proceeding from East to West.)

DOMINION OF CANADA.

STATUTES OF 1894.

Labour Day.

Chapter 55.—1. Paragraph (26) of section seven of the Interpretation Act [which defines the expression "holiday" as used in the Acts of the Parliament of Canada], is hereby amended by inserting after the words "Dominion Day" in the seventh line, the words "the first Monday of September, to be designated 'Labour Day'".

2. Subsection two of section fourteen of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, [which gives a list of the days to be observed as legal holidays in matters relating to bills of exchange], is hereby amended, by adding to the days to be observed in the several provinces as legal holidays or non-judicial days, the first Monday in September to be designated "Labour Day".

REVISED STATUTES OF 1906.

Negligence of Employees on Government Canals.

Chapter 35.—26. Every one who is an officer or servant of, or a person employed by the Minister on any canal, and who wilfully or negligently violates any order or regulation of the Department, or any order in council, respecting the canal on which he is employed, and of which a copy has been delivered to him, or has been posted up or open to his inspection in some place where his work or duties, or any of them, are to be performed, if such violation causes injury to any property or to any person, or exposes any property or any person to the risk of injury, or renders such risk greater than it would have been but for such violation, although no actual injury occurs, is guilty of an indictable offence, and shall, according as the court before which the conviction is had considers the offence proved to be more or less grave, or the injury or risk of injury to person or property to be more or less great, be liable to a penalty not exceeding four hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or to both penalty and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

27. If such violation does not cause injury to any property or person, or expose any, property or person to the risk of injury, or make such risk greater than it would have been but for such violation, the officer, servant or other person guilty thereof shall incur a penalty, not exceeding the amount of thirty days' pay and not less than fifteen days' pay of the offender from the Department, in the discretion of the justice of the peace before whom the conviction is had; and such penalty shall be recoverable, with costs, before any one justice of the peace having jurisdiction where the offence has been committed or where the offender is found.

Government Railways—Definition of Terms.

Chapter 36.—2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires:—

- (a) 'Minister' means the Minister of Railways and Canals;
- (b) 'Deputy' means the Deputy of the Minister of Railways and Canals;
- (c) 'Secretary' means the Secretary of the Department of Railways and Canals;
- (d) 'Department' means the Department of Railways and Canals;
- (e) 'Superintendent' means the superintendent of the Government railway or railways of which he has, under the Minister, the charge and direction;
- (f) 'Engineer' means any engineer or person permanently or temporarily employed by the Minister to perform such work as is ordinarily performed by a civil engineer;
- (k) 'Highway' means any public road, street, lane or other public way or communication;
- (l) 'Railway' means any railway, and all property and works connected therewith, under the management and direction of the Department.

Government Railways—Application of Act.

Chapter 36.—4. This Act applies to all railways which are vested in His Majesty, and which are under the control and management of the Minister.

Government Railway Bridges, Tunnels, etc.

Chapter 36.—17. The span of the arch of any bridge erected for carrying the railway over or across any highway, shall be constructed and continually maintained at an open and clear breadth and space, under such arch, of not less than twenty feet, and of a height from the surface of such highway to the centre of such arch of not less than twelve feet; and the descent under any such bridge shall not exceed one foot in twenty feet.

19. Every bridge or other erection or structure or tunnel through or under which any railway to which this Act applies passes, shall, at all times be so maintained as to admit of an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight cars used on the railway and the bottom of the lower beams, members or portions of that part of such bridge, erection, structure or tunnel which is over the railway.

(2) The Minister, before using higher freight cars than those which admit of such open and clear headway of at least seven feet, shall, after having first obtained the consent of the municipality or of the owners of such bridge or other erection, structure or tunnel, raise every such bridge or other erection, structure or tunnel, and the approaches thereto, if necessary, so as to admit of such open and clear headway of at least seven feet: Provided that this section shall not apply to any bridge, erection, structure or tunnel existing before the first day of March, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, which is exempted by the Governor in Council.

20. Whenever a highway bridge or any other erection, or structure, or tunnel, is constructed over or on the line of a railway, or whenever it becomes necessary to reconstruct any highway bridge or other erection, or structure, or tunnel already built over or on the line of railway, or to make large repairs to the same, the lower beams, members or portions of the superstructure of any such tunnel, highway or overhead bridge, or of any other erection or structure over any railway, and the approaches thereto, shall be constructed or reconstructed at the cost of the Crown or of the municipality or other owner of the bridge, erection, structure, or tunnel, as the case may be, and shall at all times, be maintained at a sufficient height from the surface of the rails of the railway, to admit of an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight cars then used on the railway and the lower beams, members or portions of such bridge or other erection, or tunnel.

(2) After any such construction, reconstruction or large repairs, the Minister, before using higher freight cars than those used on the railway at the time of such construction, reconstruction, or large repairs, shall, after having first obtained the consent of the municipality, or of the owners of such highway bridge, or other erection or structure, or tunnel, raise the said tunnel or bridge, or other erection or structure, and the approaches thereto, if necessary, so as to admit, as aforesaid, of an open and clear headway of at least seven feet over the top of the highest freight cars, then about to be used on the railway.

Safety Provisions—Liability of Engineer for Negligence.

Chapter 36.—30. There shall be provided and used in and upon trains run for the conveyance of passengers, such apparatus and arrangements as best and most securely place and fix the seats or chairs in the cars or carriages, and as best afford good and sufficient means—

(a) of immediate communication between the conductors and the engine drivers of such trains while the trains are in motion; and,

(b) of applying, by the power of the steam engine, or otherwise, at the will of the engine driver or other person appointed to such duty, the brakes to the wheels of the locomotive or tender, or both, or of all or any of the cars or carriages composing the trains; and,

(c) of disconnecting the locomotive, tender and cars or carriages from each other by any such power or means.

36. Every locomotive engine shall be furnished with a bell of at least thirty pounds weight, and with a steam whistle.

37. The bell shall be rung or the whistle sounded at the distance of at least eighty rods from every place where the railway crosses any highway, and shall be kept ringing or be sounded, at short intervals, until the engine has crossed such highway.

(2) His Majesty shall be liable for all damages sustained by any person by reason of any neglect to comply with this provision.

(3) One-half of such damages shall be chargeable to and be deducted from any salary due to the engineer having charge of such engine, and neglecting to sound the whistle or ring the bell as aforesaid, or shall be recoverable from such engineer.

Government Railway Employees to wear Badges.

Chapter 36.—38. Every servant of the Minister employed on a passenger train, or at a station for passengers, shall wear, upon his hat or cap, a badge which shall indicate his office; and he shall not, without such badge, be entitled to demand or receive from any passenger any fare or ticket, or to exercise any of the powers of his office, or to interfere with any passenger or his baggage or property.

Transportation of Explosives.

Chapter 36.—[Sections 45 and 75, deal with the transportation of explosives.]

Governor in Council to make Regulations for Government Railways.

Chapter 36.—49. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, make such regulations as he deems necessary,—

(a) for the management, proper use and protection of all or any of the Government railways, including station houses, yards and other property in connection therewith;

(c) to be observed by the conductors, engine drivers and other officers and servants of the Minister, and by all companies and persons using such railways;

(d) relating to the construction of the carriages and other vehicles to be used in the trains on such railways.

50. The Governor in Council, may, by such regulations,—

(a) impose such fines, not exceeding in any one case four hundred dollars, for any violation of any such regulation, as he deems necessary for ensuring the observance of the same and the payment of the tolls and dues to be imposed as aforesaid; and,

(b) provide for the retention out of the salary of any officer, employee or servant of the Minister, of the amount of any forfeiture incurred by him for violation of any such regulation.

Government Railways to be Public Works.

Chapter 36.—55. All Government railways are and shall be public works of Canada.

Liability for Damage through Negligence of Government Railway Employees.

Chapter 36.—60. His Majesty shall not be relieved from liability by any notice, condition or declaration, in the event of any damage arising from any negligence, omission or default of any officer, employee or servant of the Minister; nor shall any officer, employee or servant be relieved from liability by any notice, condition or declaration, if the damage arises from his negligence or omission.

Limitation of Actions against Government Railway Employees.

Chapter 36.—63. No action shall be brought against any officer, employee or servant of the Minister for anything done by virtue of his office, service or employment, unless within three months after the act is committed, and upon one month's previous notice thereof in writing; and the action shall be tried in the county or judicial district where the cause of action arose.

Safety Provisions—Negligence of Government Railway Employees.

Chapter 36.—71. Every officer or agent of the Minister, and every conductor of a train, who directs or knowingly permits any baggage, freight, merchandise or lumber cars to be placed in rear of the passenger cars, is guilty of an indictable offence, and shall be punishable accordingly.

Intoxication of Government Railway Employees.

Chapter 36.—72. Every person who is intoxicated, while he is in charge of a locomotive engine, or acting as the conductor of a car or train of cars, is guilty of an indictable offence.

Contravention of Regulations by Government Railway Employees.

Chapter 36.—73. Every officer or servant of, and every person employed by the Minister on any railway under the control of the Minister, who wilfully or negligently violates any rule, order or regulation of the Department, or regulation of the Governor in Council, lawfully made or in force, respecting the railway on which he is employed, and of which a copy has been delivered to him, or has been posted up or open to his inspection in some place where his work or his duties, or any of them, are to be performed, is guilty of an indictable offence if such violation causes injury to any property or to any person, or exposes any property or any person to the risk of injury, or renders such risk greater than it would have been but for such violation, although no actual injury occurs.

(2) Such person shall, in the discretion of the court before which the conviction is had, and according as such court considers the offence proved to be more or less grave, or the injury or risk of injury to person or property to be more or less great, be punished by a fine not exceeding four hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding the term of five years, or by both fine and imprisonment.

74. If such violation does not cause injury to any property or person or expose any property or person to the risk of injury, or make such risk greater than it would have been but for such violation, the officer, servant or other person guilty thereof shall, in the discretion of the justice of the peace before whom the conviction is had, incur a penalty not exceeding the amount of thirty days' pay and not less than fifteen days' pay of the offender from the Department.

(2) Such penalty shall be recoverable, before any one justice of the peace having jurisdiction where the offence was committed, or where the offender is found.

Negligence of Employees on Public Works.

Chapter 39.—29. Every one who is an officer or servant of or a person employed by the Minister on any public work, and who wilfully or negligently violates any by-law, order or regulation of the Department, or any order in council lawfully made or in force respecting the public work on which he is employed, and of which a copy has been delivered to him, or has been posted up or open to his inspection in some place where his work or his duties, or any of them are to be performed, if such violation causes injury to any property or to any person, or exposes any property or any person to the risk of injury, or renders such risk greater than it would have been but for such violation, although no actual injury occurs, is guilty of an indictable offence, and shall, according as the court before which the conviction is had considers the offence proved to be more or less grave, or the injury or risk of injury to person or property to be more or less great, be liable to a penalty not exceeding four hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or to both penalty and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

30. If such violation does not cause injury to any property or person, or expose any property or person to the risk of injury, or make such risk greater than it would have been but for such violation, the officer, servant or other person guilty thereof shall incur a penalty, not exceeding the amount of thirty days' pay and not less than fifteen days' pay of the offender from the Department, in the discretion of the justice of the peace before whom the conviction is had; and such penalty shall be recoverable, with costs, before any one justice of the peace having jurisdiction where the offence has been committed or where the offender is found.

Earnings of Married Women—Northwest Territories.

Chapter 62.—26. All the wages and personal earnings of a married woman, and any acquisitions therefrom, and all proceeds or profits derived from any occupation or trade which she carries on separately from her husband, or from any literary, artistic, or scientific skill, and all investments of such wages, earnings, moneys or property, shall be free from the debts or dispositions of the husband, and shall be held and enjoyed by such married woman, and disposed of without her husband's consent, as fully as if she were a femme-sole.

(2) No order for protection shall be necessary in respect of any such earnings or acquisitions.

(3) The possession, whether actual or constructive, of the husband of any personal property of any married woman, shall not render the same liable for his debts.

30. A married woman may maintain an action in her own name for the recovery of any wages, earnings, money or property, declared by this Act or which is hereafter declared to be her separate property, and shall have, in her own name, the same remedies, both civil and criminal, against all persons whomsoever for the protection and security of such wages, earnings, money and property, and of any chattels or other her separate property, for her own use, as if such wages, earnings, money, chattels and property belonged to her as an unmarried woman.

Earnings of Married Women—Yukon Territory.

Chapter 63.—30. All the wages and personal earnings of a married woman, and any acquisitions therefrom, and all proceeds or profits derived from any occupation or trade which she carries on separately from her husband, or from any literary, artistic or scientific skill, and all investments of such wages, earnings, moneys or property, shall be free from the debts or dispositions of the husband, and shall be held and enjoyed by such married woman, and disposed of without her husband's consent, as fully as if she were a femme-sole.

(2) No order for protection shall be necessary in respect of any such earnings or acquisitions.

(3) The possession, whether actual or constructive, of the husband of any personal property of any married woman, shall not render the same liable for his debts.

34. A married woman may maintain an action in her own name for the recovery of any wages, earnings, money or property, declared by this Act or which is hereafter declared to be her separate property, and shall have, in her own name, the same remedies, both civil and criminal, against all persons whomsoever for the protection and security of such wages, earnings, money and property, and of any chattels or other her separate property, for her own use, as if such wages, earnings, money, chattels and property belonged to her as an unmarried woman.

Protection of Mine Employees in Yukon Territory.

Chapter 64.—15. The mining inspector may summarily order any mining works to be so carried on as not to interfere with or endanger the safety of the public or any employees of such mining works or any public work or highway, or any mining property, mineral claim, bed-rock drain or bed-rock flume; and any abandoned works may, by his order, be either filled up or guarded to his satisfaction.

(2) Any person affected by an order of the mining inspector under this section may, within ten days, appeal therefrom to the gold commissioner.

Liability of Directors of Companies for Employees' Wages.

[Chapter 79, Part one, empowers the Secretary of State to grant charters by letters patent to joint stock companies having objects or purposes to which the legislative authority of the Parliament of the Dominion extends, except the construction of railways, etc., the business of insurance, the business of a loan company and the business of banking and the issue of paper money. The liability of directors of companies incorporated under this Part for the wages of employees is set forth in section 85 as follows:—]

85. The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the clerks, labourers, servants and apprentices thereof, for all debts not exceeding six months' wages due for service performed for the company whilst they are such directors respectively; but no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company is sued therefor within one year after the debt becomes due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor unless an execution against the company in respect of such debt is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part.

(2) The amount unsatisfied on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs from the directors.

[Part two of the same Act applies to joint stock companies incorporated by special act of Parliament for purposes or objects to which the legislative authority of the Parliament of the Dominion extends, except companies for the construction or working of railways or for banking and the issue of paper money, or to any penny bank, or to any insurance company. The liability of directors incorporated under this Part for the wages of employees is set forth in section 166 as follows:—]

166. The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the labourers, servants, and apprentices thereof, for all debts, not exceeding one year's wages, due for services performed for the company whilst they are such directors respectively; Provided that no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company is sued therefor within one year after the debt became due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor unless an execution against the company at the suit of such labourer, servant or apprentice is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part.

(2) The amount unsatisfied on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs from the directors.

Employment of Labour—Government Printing and Stationery Offices.

Chapter 80.—17. The Superintendent of Printing may, with the approval of the King's Printer, employ such apprentices, journeymen, workmen, skilled hands or others as are necessary to perform the work of the establishment, and may remove the same.

(2) The provisions of the Civil Service Act shall not apply to the persons so employed by him.

18. All persons employed under the provisions of the last preceding section shall continue to be paid such rates of wages as they are now respectively receiving, and in accordance with weekly, fortnightly or monthly pay-rolls audited by the Accountant.

(2) No increase of any such rate of wages shall be made so as to raise the rate above that which is, at the time of such increase, paid for similar work in the cities of Montreal and Toronto.

27. The Superintendent of Stationery may, with the approval of the Minister, employ such persons skilled in the stationery business, apprentices, workmen and others as are necessary for the efficient working of the Stationery Office, and may remove the same.

(2) The provisions of the Civil Service Act shall not apply to the persons so employed by him.

28. All persons employed under the provisions of the last preceding section shall be paid in accordance with weekly, fortnightly or monthly pay-rolls audited by the Accountant.

31. The Minister may, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor in Council, make such regulations as he thinks fit respecting the discipline of the printing and stationery offices and of the persons employed therein, regulating their hours of attendance and rate of salary or wages, and the times and method of payment thereof, and such regulations shall be enforced by the King's Printer, the Superintendent of Printing and the Superintendent of Stationery; and by such regulations fines may be imposed upon such employees for non-attendance during working hours, or misconduct tending to prevent efficient work, or cause damage to Government property therein.

Employment of Immigrants Through Immigration Societies—Repayment of Advances.

Chapter 94.—16. The society may receive applications from persons desiring to obtain artisans, workmen, servants or labourers from the United Kingdom, or from any part of Europe, and may enter into any lawful contracts with such persons, including the obligation on the part of such persons, to employ the immigrants referred to on their arrival in Canada, in any manner, at any rate of wages, and for any period, under such penalty as damages for non-performance as stipulated in such contract, and may receive in advance all or any part of the money to be expended by the society, or may take security for the repayment of all or any part thereof to the society, by instalments or in one sum, as is agreed upon.

17. The secretary-treasurer shall forthwith transmit every such application, with the requisite information and details, to the immigration agent of the district, with the amount the society has undertaken to advance towards defraying the expenses to be incurred in complying with the application, in paying or partly paying the cost of the ocean passage and other necessary travelling expenses of the emigrants from their home in Europe to the place in Canada where they are required.

18. The immigration agent shall forthwith transmit every such application and the money received by reason thereof, to the proper immigration agent or sub-agent of Canada, in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, who shall thereupon, take the necessary steps for procuring and forwarding to the proper place in Canada, such immigrants as are stated in the application; and the immigration agent shall, from time to time, furnish the Minister with such information and details respecting such applications as the Minister requires.

19. If it is the intention of the society, or of the applicant, that the whole or part of the money advanced towards defraying the expenses of immigration, shall be repaid by the immigrant, either in one sum or by instalments, the immigration agent or sub-agent of Canada in Europe who makes the arrangements for the passage of the intending emigrant to Canada, shall take from such immigrant an instrument in writing binding him to repay such money to the society in Canada in one sum or by instalments, at certain periods, and with interest or without interest, according to the instruction given by the secretary-treasurer to the district immigration agent and communicated through the Minister to the immigration agent or sub-agent in Europe, and he shall witness the execution of such instrument.

20. If any sum of money has been advanced to the emigrant for like purposes, by any society, or institution or individual in the United Kingdom, such sum may, with the consent of such society, institution or individual, be included in the amount for which such instrument is given, and may be recovered by the Canadian society aforesaid, and being so recovered, shall be paid over without charge to the society, institution or individual by whom it was advanced, and the agent or sub-agent of immigration who witnesses the execution of the instrument shall give notice of the amount mentioned in the instrument to such society, institution or individual and to the Canadian society.

21. Any emigrant who might make such instrument as aforesaid, may, in like manner, execute an instrument, witnessed as above provided, binding himself or herself, in consideration of the sum advanced by the society therein named, to accept employment of the kind therein stated from any named person in the immigration district in which the society is formed, or with any person in such district whom the society designates to the immigrant on his arrival in such district, at a rate of wages to be named in the instrument, and for a term to be also therein named, and to serve such person faithfully in such employment during such term, and allow such person to deduct from his wages, at a period or periods to be designated in such instrument, such sum or sums as are also therein designated, and to pay the same to the society, on account of any money due by the immigrant to it.

22. Such instrument may be enforced by the society accordingly, by civil suit in any court of competent jurisdiction against the immigrant; and any refusal or neglect on the part of the immigrant to perform any of the other obligations undertaken by him in such instrument, shall be an offence cognizable before any one justice of the peace, and punishable on summary conviction by a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars and costs, and by imprisonment until such penalty and costs are paid, and the penalty, if paid, shall belong to the society, and be paid over to it by the convicting justice; but the payment of such penalty shall not prevent or affect any civil remedy of the society under such instrument.

Chinese Labour—Regulation of Immigration.

Chapter 95 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as the Chinese Immigration Act.

Interpretation.

2. In and for the purposes of this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'Chief Controller' means the chief officer who is charged, under the direction of the Minister to whom is assigned the administration of this Act, with the duty of carrying the provisions of this Act into effect and who shall have authority over officers of Customs and others appointed for the purpose or charged with the duty of assisting in carrying out the provisions of this Act;

(b) 'Controller' means any Customs or other officer at any seaport or frontier Customs Port duly appointed as such and charged with the duty of assisting in carrying the provisions of this Act into effect;

(c) 'Master' or 'conductor' means any person in command of or in charge of any vessel or vehicle;

(d) 'Chinese immigrant' means any person of Chinese origin (including any person whose father was of Chinese origin) entering Canada and not entitled to the privilege of exemption provided for by this Act;

(e) 'Vessel' means any sea-going craft of any kind or description capable of carrying passengers;

(f) 'Tonnage' means the gross tonnage according to the measurement fixed by the Merchant Shipping Acts of the Parliament of the United Kingdom;

(g) 'Vehicle' means any ferryboat, boat, railway car, cart, wagon, carriage, sleigh or other conveyance whatsoever, however, propelled or drawn;

(h) 'Minister' means the Minister of Trade and Commerce, or the member of His Majesty's Privy Council of Canada, charged with the administration of this Act, 1907-8, c. 14, s. 1.

3. Any woman of Chinese origin who is the wife of a person who is not of Chinese origin shall for the purpose of this Act be deemed to be of the same nationality as her husband, and the children of the said wife and husband shall be deemed to be of the same nationality as the father.

4. 'Merchant' as used in this Act, shall not include any merchant's clerk or other employee, mechanic, huckster, pedlar or person engaged in taking, drying or otherwise preserving fish for home consumption or exportation.

5. Except as otherwise required by the Quarantine Act, the landing of a person of Chinese origin from a vessel, wherever referred to in this Act, shall not be held to apply to the landing of such person on the wharf and the placing of him in a proper building, where he may remain until the provisions of this Act have been complied with and the controller has given his authority for his departure therefrom, or to the temporary landing of any Chinese sailor for the purpose of assisting in the lading or unloading of the vessel to which he belongs, or for the purpose of his transfer to another vessel, and such person or sailor, while in such building or while so employed or waiting such transfer, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be held to be on board the vessel by which he arrived.

Administration.

6. The Governor in Council may,—

(a) appoint one or more persons to carry the provisions of this Act into effect;

(b) assign any duty in connection therewith to any officer or person in the employ of the Government of Canada;

(c) define and prescribe the duties of such officer or person;

(d) fix the salary or remuneration to be allowed to such officer or person;

(e) engage and pay interpreters skilled in English and Chinese languages, at salaries aggregating not more than three thousand dollars a year;

(f) make regulations for the carrying out of this Act.

Tax and Exemptions.

7. Every person of Chinese origin, irrespective of allegiance, shall pay into the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada, on entering Canada, at the port or place of entry, a tax of five hundred dollars, except the following persons who shall be exempt from such payment, that is to say:—

(a) The members of the diplomatic corps, or other government representatives, their suites and their servants, and consuls and consular agents;

(b) The children born in Canada of parents of Chinese origin and who have left Canada for educational or other purposes, on substantiating their identity to the satisfaction of the controller at the port or place where they seek to enter on their return.

(c) (1) Merchants, their wives and minor children;

(2) The wives and minor children of clergymen;

(3) Tourists;

(4) Men of science;

(5) (Subject to such regulations as may from time to time be made by the Governor in Council) duly certified teachers;

(6) Clergymen;

(7) Students coming to Canada for the purpose of securing a higher education in any Canadian college or university or other educational institution approved by the Minister, who shall substantiate their status to the satisfaction of the controller, subject to the approval of the Minister, or who are bearers of certificates of identity, or other similar documents issued by the Government or by a recognized official or representative of the government whose subjects they are, specifying their occupation and their object in coming into Canada. 1907-8, c. 14, s. 2, as amended 1917, c. 7, s. 1 (1).

(2) Every such certificate or other document shall be in the English or French language, and shall be examined and endorsed (vise) by a British consul or charge d'affaires or other accredited representative of His Majesty, at the place where it is granted, or at the port or place of departure.

(3) Repealed 1917, c. 7, s. 1 (2).

(4) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, and subject to such regulations as are made for the purpose by the Governor in Council, any Chinese immigrant whose destination is a place in Canada other than the port or place at which he enters Canada, may pass through to his destination and pay the tax hereinbefore provided for only upon his reaching his destination. 1907-8, c. 14, s. 4.

7a. Any person admitted as exempt from the tax, and who ceases to belong to one of the exempt classes, shall be required to pay into the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada the tax of five hundred dollars, and, if the person refuses or fails to pay the tax, he shall be deported, at his own expense, if able to pay, and if not, at the expense of His Majesty. 1917, c. 7, s. 2.

7b. Whenever any officer appointed under this Act or under The Immigration Act has reason to believe that any person of Chinese origin is illegally in Canada, he may without a warrant apprehend such person, and, if such person is unable to prove to the satisfaction of the officer that he has been properly admitted into and is legally in Canada, the officer may detain such person in custody and charge him before a magistrate with being illegally in Canada, which charge shall be tried summarily by the magistrate, and the burden of proof of such person's right to be in Canada shall rest upon such person; and, if the magistrate decides that he is illegally in Canada, such person shall be deported, at his own expense if able to pay, and if not, at the expense of His Majesty. 1917, c. 7, s. 2.

8. The controller shall deliver to each Chinese immigrant who has been permitted to land or enter, and in respect of whom the tax has been paid, as hereinbefore provided, a certificate containing a description of such individual, the date of his arrival, the name of the port of his landing and an acknowledgment that the tax has been duly paid; and such certificate shall be prima facie evidence that the person presenting it has complied with the requirements of this Act; but such certificate may be contested by His Majesty or by any officer charged with the duty of carrying this Act into effect, if there is reason to doubt the validity or authenticity thereof, or of any statement therein contained; and such contestation shall be heard and determined in a summary manner by any judge of a superior court of any province of Canada where such certificate is produced.

Number of Immigrants Limited.

9. No vessel carrying Chinese immigrants to any port in Canada shall carry more than one such immigrant for every fifty tons of its tonnage.

10. No Chinese immigrant shall be allowed to land in or enter Canada coastwise or overland arriving in transit from any port or place in America from any vessel entering at such port or place, in excess of the number which would have been allowed to land from such vessel had it come direct to Canada.

The Landing of Chinese Immigrants.

11. No master of any vessel carrying Chinese immigrants shall land any person of Chinese origin, or permit any to land from such vessel, until a permit so to do, stating that the provisions of this Act have been complied with, has been granted to the master of such vessel by the controller.

12. No controller at any port shall grant a permit allowing Chinese immigrants to land until the quarantine officer has granted a bill of health, and has certified, after due examination, that no leprosy, or infectious, contagious, loathsome, or dangerous disease exists on board such vessel; and no permit to land shall be granted to any Chinese immigrant who is suffering from leprosy or from any infectious, contagious, loathsome or dangerous disease.

13. Every conductor or other person in charge of any railway train or car bringing Chinese immigrants into Canada shall be personally liable to His Majesty for the payment of the tax of five hundred dollars imposed by this Act in respect of any immigrant brought by or on such railway train or car, and shall, unless such persons are in transit through Canada, pay or cause to be paid to the controller the total amount of tax payable by Chinese immigrants so arriving by such railway train or car, and he shall not allow any such immigrants to disembark from such train or car until after such tax has been paid.

14. Every conductor or other person in charge of any railway train or car bringing Chinese immigrants into Canada shall, immediately on his arrival, deliver to the controller or other officer at the port or place of arrival a report containing a complete and accurate list of all persons of Chinese origin arriving by or being on board of the railway train or car of which he is in charge, and showing their names in full, the country and place of their birth, their occupation and last place of domicile; and he shall not allow any such immigrant to disembark from such train or car until after such report has been made.

15. Every master of any vessel bringing Chinese immigrants to any port or place in Canada shall be personally liable to his Majesty for the payment of the tax imposed by this Act in respect of any such immigrant carried by such vessel, and shall deliver to the controller, immediately on his arrival in port and before any of his Chinese crew or passengers disembark, a complete and accurate list of his crew and such passengers, showing their names in full, the country and place of their birth, and the occupation and last place of domicile of each such immigrant passengers.

Registration Upon Entry.

16. Every Chinese immigrant who enters Canada otherwise than by disembarking from any vessel or vehicle, shall forthwith make a statement and declaration of his entry to the controller or other proper officer at the nearest or most convenient port or place, and shall forthwith pay to such controller or officer the tax of five hundred dollars imposed by this Act; and, if the statement and declaration is made to an officer other than a controller authorized to keep a register, such officer shall report the fact and transmit the tax to the Chief Controller or to the nearest controller so authorized, and the controller shall make a record thereof in his register and issue the proper certificate of such registration in conformity with the provisions of this Act.

17. The Chief Controller, and such controllers as are by him authorized so to do, shall each keep a register of all persons to whom certificates of entry have been granted.

Prohibited Immigrants.

18. No controller or other officer charged with the duty of assisting in carrying the provisions of this Act into effect shall grant a permit allowing to land from any vessel, nor shall any conductor or other person in charge of any vehicle bring into Canada, either as an immigrant or as an exempt, or as in transit, any person of Chinese origin who is,—

- (a) a pauper or likely to become a public charge;
  - (b) an idiot or insane;
  - (c) suffering from any loathsome, infectious or contagious disease;
  - (d) a prostitute or living on the prostitution of others.
- (2) All such persons are prohibited from entering Canada.

Chinese in Transit.

19. Persons of Chinese origin may pass through Canada in transit, from one port or place out of Canada to another port or place out of Canada, without payment of the tax of five hundred dollars imposed by this Act: Provided that such passage is made in accordance with, and under such regulations as are made for the purpose by the Governor in Council.

Re-Entry.

20. Every person of Chinese origin who wishes to leave Canada with the declared intention of returning thereto, shall give written notice of such intention to the controller at the port or place whence he proposes to sail or depart, in which notice shall be stated the foreign port or place which such person wishes to visit, and the route he intends taking both going and returning. and such notice shall be accompanied by a fee of one dollar.

(2) The controller shall thereupon enter in a register to be kept for the purpose, the name, residence, occupation and description of the said person, and such other information regarding him as is deemed necessary under such regulations as are made for the purpose.

21. The person so registered shall be entitled on his return, if within twelve months of such registration, and on proof of his identity to the satisfaction of the controller, as to which the decision of the controller shall be final, to free entry as an exempt or to receive from the controller the amount of the tax, if any, paid by him on his return, but if he does not return to Canada within twelve months from the date of such registration, he shall, if returning after that date, be subject to the tax of five hundred dollars imposed by this Act in the same manner as in the case of a first arrival.

Penalties and Forfeitures.

22. The owner of any vessel carrying Chinese immigrants to any port in Canada shall incur a penalty of two hundred dollars for each Chinese immigrant therein carried in excess of one for every fifty tons of such vessel's tonnage.

23. The master of any vessel carrying Chinese immigrants shall incur a penalty of five hundred dollars if he lands or permits to land in Canada from such vessel any person of Chinese origin without the permit therefor required by this Act.

24. Every master or conductor of any vessel or vehicle who lands or allows to be landed off or from any vessel or vehicle any Chinese immigrant before the tax payable under this Act has been duly paid, or who wilfully makes any false statement respecting the number of persons on board his vessel or vehicle, shall, in addition, to the amount of the tax payable under the foregoing provisions of this Act, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars and not less than five hundred dollars for every such offence, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months; and such vessel or vehicle shall be forfeited to His Majesty, and shall be seized by an officer charged with the duty of carrying this Act into effect, and dealt with accordingly.

25. If any person of Chinese origin who is,—

- (a) a pauper or likely to become a public charge;
- (b) an idiot or insane;
- (c) suffering from any loathsome, infectious, or contagious disease; or,
- (d) a prostitute or living on the prostitution of others;

enters Canada, he or she shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months and shall in addition be liable to deportation, and the master, conductor or other person who knowingly lands or brings or assists or permits to land in Canada any such persons of Chinese origin, shall also be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

26. If any railway or other transportation company, having undertaken to transport through Canada any person of Chinese origin in transit, fails to comply with any regulations of the Governor in Council in that behalf, such company shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars.

27. Every person of Chinese origin who,—

(a) lands or attempts to land in Canada without payment of the tax payable under this Act; or—

(b) wilfully evades or attempts to evade any of the provisions of this Act as respects the payment of the tax by personating any other individual; or—

(c) wilfully makes use of or attempts to make use of any forged or fraudulent certificate or of a certificate issued to any other person for any purpose connected with this Act; is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months or to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or to both, and shall also be liable to deportation.

(2) Every person who wilfully aids and abets any such person of Chinese origin in any evasion or attempt at evasion of any of the provisions of this Act, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months or to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or to both. 1907-8, c. 14, s. 5.

27a. In any case where a person of Chinese origin is liable to deportation under the provisions of this Act, such person may upon the order of the Minister be apprehended without further warrant by any immigration agent or other government officer, and may, by force if necessary, be compelled to return to or be taken on board a vessel or railway car and to leave Canada.

(2) Every immigrant deported under this section shall be carried, by the same transportation company or companies which brought him into Canada, to the port from which he came to Canada, without receiving the usual payment for such carriage.

(3) In case he was brought into Canada by a railway company such company shall similarly convey him or secure his conveyance from the municipality or locality whence he is to be deported to the country whence he was brought.

(4) Every owner or master of a vessel and every railway company or person who refuses to take any such person on board such vessel or car shall incur a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars for each offence. Provided, however, that if the owner, master or crew of the vessel, or the officers and employees of the railway company, have not in any way aided or been parties to the violation of the law for which such person of Chinese origin is being deported they shall not be obliged to convey such person unless the company is paid the reasonable passage money or fare for the transportation of such person. 1907-8, c. 14, s. 6.

28. Every person who takes part in the organization of any sort of court or tribunal composed of Chinese persons, for the hearing and determination of any offence committed by a Chinese person, or in carrying on any such organization or who takes part in any of its proceedings, or who gives evidence before any such court or tribunal, or assists in carrying into effect any decision, decree, or order of any such court or tribunal, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve months, or to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or to both; but nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent Chinese persons from submitting any differences or disputes to arbitration, if such submission is not contrary to the laws in force in the province in which such submission is made.

29. Every person who molests, persecutes or hinders any officer or person appointed to carry the provisions of this Act into effect is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, or to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or to both.

30. Every person who violates any provisions of this Act for which no special punishment is herein provided, is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months.

Procedure.

31. All suits or actions for the recovery of taxes or penalties under this Act, and all prosecutions for contraventions of this Act which are not herein declared to be indictable offences shall be tried before one or more justices of the peace, or before the recorder, police magistrate or stipendiary magistrate having jurisdiction where the cause of action arose or where the offence was committed.

Appropriation of Revenues.

32. All taxes, pecuniary penalties, and revenues from other sources under this Act shall be paid into and form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada; but, subject to such conditions and regulations as are prescribed by order of the Governor in Council, one-half part of the net proceeds of all such taxes paid by Chinese immigrants on entering Canada, shall, at the end of every fiscal year, be paid out of such fund to the province wherein they were collected.

Industrial Disputes—Arbitration and Conciliation.

Chapter 96.—1. This Act may be cited as the Conciliation and Labour Act.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'Minister' means the member of His Majesty's Council for Canada to whom, for the time being, the Governor in Council may assign the carrying out of the provisions of this Act;

(b) 'Railway' means any railway whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, and whether under the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada or of the legislature of any province;

(c) 'Railway employer' means any company or government owning or operating wholly or to a lesser extent any railway operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, and whether under the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada or of the legislature of any province;

(d) 'Railway employees' means persons engaged to perform any work, or service in respect of any railway whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, and whether under the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada or of the legislature of any province;

(e) 'Difference' means any dispute, disagreement or dissension which in the opinion of the Minister may have caused or may cause a lockout or strike on a railway or which has interfered or may interfere with the proper and efficient transportation of mails, passengers or freight, or the safety of persons employed upon any car or train;

(f) 'Committee' means the committee of conciliation, mediation and investigation established under the provisions of this Act;

(g) 'Board' means any board of arbitrators established under the provisions of this Act;

(h) 'Conciliation board' means any body constituted for the purpose of settling disputes between employers other than any railway employer and workmen by conciliation or arbitration or any association or body authorized by an agreement in writing made between employers other than railway employers and workmen to deal with such disputes;

(i) 'Conciliator' means any person or persons appointed by the Minister to mediate between an employer of labour and his workmen;

(j) 'Lieutenant-Governor in council' means the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of the province of Quebec, of Nova Scotia, of New Brunswick, or of Prince Edward Island.

Trade Disputes.

3. Any conciliation board may apply to the Minister for registration.

(2) The application must be accompanied by copies of the constitution, by-laws and regulations of the conciliation board, with such other information as the Minister may reasonably require.

4. The Minister shall keep a register of conciliation boards, and enter therein with respect to each registered conciliation board, its name and principal office, and such other particulars as he thinks expedient; and any registered conciliation board shall be entitled to have its name removed from the register on sending to the Minister a written application to that effect.

(2) Every registered conciliation board shall furnish such returns, reports of its proceedings, and other documents as the Minister may reasonably require.

5. The Minister may, on being satisfied that a registered conciliation board has ceased to exist or to act, remove its name from the register.

6. Where a dispute exists or is apprehended between an employer or any class of employers and workmen, or between different classes of workmen, the Minister may, if he thinks fit, exercise all or any of the following powers, namely:—

(a) Inquire into the causes and circumstances of the dispute;

(b) Take such steps as to him seem expedient, for the purpose of enabling the parties to the dispute to meet together, by themselves or their representatives, under the presidency of a chairman mutually agreed upon or nominated by him, or by some other person or body, with a view to the amicable settlement of the dispute;

(c) On the application of employers or workmen interested, and after taking into consideration the existence and adequacy of means available for conciliation in the district or trade and the circumstances of the case, appoint a conciliator; and,

(d) On the application of both parties to the dispute, appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators.

(2) The conciliator shall inquire into the causes and circumstances of the dispute, by communication with the parties, and otherwise shall endeavour to bring about a settlement of the dispute, and shall report the proceedings to the Minister.

(3) If a settlement of the dispute is effected either by conciliation or by arbitration, a memorandum of the terms thereof shall be drawn up and signed by the parties or their representatives, and a copy thereof shall be delivered to and kept by the Minister.

7. It shall be the duty of the conciliator to promote conditions favourable to a settlement, by endeavouring to allay distrust, to remove causes of friction, to promote good feeling, to restore confidence, and to encourage the parties to come together and themselves effect a settlement, and also to promote agreements between employers and employees with a view to the submission of disputes to conciliation or arbitration before resorting to strikes or lockouts.

8. The conciliator or conciliation board may, when deemed advisable, invite others to assist them in the work of conciliation.

9. If, before a settlement is effected, and while the dispute is under the consideration of a conciliator or conciliation board, such conciliator or conciliation board is of opinion that some misunderstanding or disagreement appears to exist between the parties as to the causes or circumstances of the dispute, and, with a view to the removal of such misunderstanding or disagreement, desires an inquiry under oath into such causes and circumstances, and, in writing signed by such conciliator or the members of the conciliation board, as the case may be, communicates to the Minister such desire for inquiry, and if the parties to the dispute or their representatives in writing consent thereto, then, on his recommendation, the Governor in Council may appoint such conciliator or members of the conciliation board, or some other person or persons, a commissioner or commissioners, as the case may be, under the provisions of the Inquiries Act to conduct such inquiry, and, for that purpose, may confer upon him or them the powers which under the said Act may be conferred upon commissioners.

10. Proceedings before any conciliation board or arbitrators shall be conducted in accordance with the regulations of such conciliation board, or arbitrators, as the case may be, or as is agreed upon by the parties to the dispute.

11. If it appears to the Minister that in any district or trade adequate means do not exist for having disputes submitted to a conciliation board for the district or trade, he may appoint any person or persons to inquire into the conditions of the district or trade, and to confer with the employers and employed, and, if he thinks fit, with any local authority or body, as to the expediency of establishing a conciliation board for such district or trade.

Statistics

12. With a view to the dissemination of accurate statistical and other information relating to the conditions of labour, the Minister shall establish and have charge of a department of labour, which shall collect, digest, and publish in suitable form statistical and other information relating to the conditions of labour, shall institute and conduct inquiries into important industrial questions upon which adequate information may not at present be available, and issue at least once in every month a publication to be known as the "Labour Gazette," which shall contain information regarding conditions of the labour market and kindred subjects, and shall be distributed or procurable in accordance with terms and conditions in that behalf prescribed by the Minister.

Railway Disputes

13. Whenever a difference exists between any railway employer and railway employees, and it appears to the Minister that the parties thereto are unable satisfactorily to adjust the same, and that by reason of such difference remaining unadjusted a railway lockout or strike has been or is likely to be caused, or the regular and safe transportation of mails, passengers or freight has been or may be interrupted, or the safety of any person employed on a railway train or car has been or is likely to be endangered, the Minister may, either on the application of any party to the difference, or on the application of the corporation of any municipality directly affected by the difference, or of his own motion, cause inquiry to be made into the same and the cause thereof, and, for that purpose, may, under his hand and seal of office, establish a committee of conciliation, mediation and investigation to be composed of three persons to be named, one by the railway employer, and one by the railway employees, parties to the difference, and the third by the two so named, or by the parties to the difference in case they can agree.

(2) The Minister shall in writing notify each party to name a member of the committee stating in such notice a time, not being later than five days after the receipt of such notice, within which this is to be done.

(3) If either party within such time or any extension thereof that the Minister, on cause shown, may grant, refuses or fails to name a member of the committee, the Minister or the Lieutenant Governor in council, as the case may be, as hereinafter provided, may appoint one in the place of the party so refusing or in default, and if the members of the committee so chosen fail to elect a third member, the Minister, or the Lieutenant Governor in council, as the case may be, may make such selection.

14. It shall be the duty of the committee to endeavour by conciliation and mediation to assist in bringing about an amicable settlement of the difference to the satisfaction of both parties, and to report its proceedings to the Minister.

15. In case the conciliation committee, is unable to effect an amicable settlement by conciliation or mediation the Minister may refer the difference to arbitration.

(2) In such case a board of arbitrators shall be established by the Minister under his hand and seal of office, and shall consist of,—

(a) if acceptable to both parties, the committee; or,

(b) in case of objection by either party to its representative on the committee, or to the chairman of the committee, new representatives in place of the member or members of the committee objected to, appointed in like manner as the original members of the committee, and of such of the committee as against whom no objection has been so made.

16. If any member of such committee or board shall die, refuse, neglect or become incapable to act, a successor shall be appointed in like manner as is hereinbefore provided in respect of the original member of the committee or board, and the appointing authority shall endeavour to appoint only such person as shall not be reasonably objected to by either party.

(2) Before such appointment the name of the person proposed to be appointed shall be submitted to both parties to the difference, and there shall be afforded to each of them an opportunity, within such time as the Minister may fix, of making known to the appointing authority whether such proposed appointee is objected to.

17. In the event of the establishment of a committee of conciliation, mediation and investigation, or of a board of arbitrators to deal with any difference between the government of Canada, in respect of the Intercolonial Railway and the Prince Edward Island Railway, and any of its employees, the power to appoint conciliators or arbitrators which otherwise, in accordance with the foregoing provisions, might be exercisable by the Minister, shall be exercisable by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council whom the Minister shall for that purpose in each case of conciliation or arbitration in writing name.

18. The third member of the said committee or board shall be the chairman.

19. In case of arbitration pursuant to the provision hereinbefore contained, the findings and recommendations of the majority of the arbitrators shall be those of the board.

(2) In case of the absence of any one arbitrator from a meeting of the board, the other two arbitrators shall not proceed unless it is shown that the third arbitrator has been notified of the meeting in ample time to admit of his attendance.

20. Forthwith after the appointment of the board the chairman shall promptly convene the same, and the board shall, in such manner as it thinks advisable make thorough, careful and expeditious inquiry into all the facts and circumstances connected with the difference, and the cause thereof, and shall consider what would be reasonable and proper to be done by both or either of the parties with a view to put an end to the difference, and to prevent its recurrence, and shall, with all reasonable speed, make to the Minister a written report setting forth the various proceedings and steps taken by the board for the purpose of fully and correctly ascertaining all the facts and circumstances, and also setting forth said facts and circumstances, and its findings thereon, including the cause of the difference, and the board's recommendations, with a view to its removal, and the prevention of its recurrence.

21. The Minister shall forthwith cause the report to be filed in the office of the Department of Labour, and a copy thereof to be sent free of charge to each party to the difference, and to any municipal corporation as aforesaid, and to the representative of any newspaper published in Canada who may apply therefor.

(2) Any other person shall be entitled to a copy on payment of the actual cost thereof.

22. For the information of Parliament and the public the report shall without delay be published in the Labour Gazette, and be included in the annual report of the said Department to the Governor General.

23. For the purpose of such inquiry, the board shall have all the power of summoning before it any witnesses, and of requiring them to give evidence on oath, or on solemn affirmation, if they are persons entitled to affirm in civil matters, and produce such documents and things as the board deems requisite to the full investigation of the matters into which it is inquiring, and shall have the same powers to enforce the attendance of witnesses, and to compel them to give evidence as is vested in any court of record in civil cases; but no such witness shall be compelled to answer any question, by his answer to which he might render himself liable to a criminal prosecution.

24. On the application of any of the parties, or on its own motion, the board may issue summonses to such persons as the board may think necessary to give evidence in the case.

(2) Any witness summoned by the board shall be entitled to free transportation over any railway en route when proceeding to the place of meeting of the board, and thereafter returning to his home, and the board shall furnish to such witness a proper certificate evidencing his right to such free transportation.

25. The summons shall be in such form as the Minister shall prescribe, and may require such person to produce before the board any books, papers, or other documents in his possession or under his control, in any way relating to the proceedings.

26. All books, papers, and other documents, produced before the board, whether voluntarily or in pursuance to summons, may be inspected by the board, and also by such of the parties as the board allows; but the information obtained therefrom shall not be made public, and such parts of the books, papers, and documents as, in the opinion of the board, do not relate to the matter of issue, may be sealed up.

27. The Department of Labour shall,—

(a) pay to each member of a committee or board his actual travelling expenses, and also to each of them, other than the chairman, ten dollars per day for each day on which he shall attend a meeting of the committee or board, or be engaged in travelling from or to his home, being in Canada, for the purpose of attending or after having attended a meeting of the committee or board;

(b) pay to the chairman such sum as the Governor in Council deems reasonable; and,

(c) at its expense, provide the committee or board with a stenographer, secretary and any other clerical assistance that to the Minister may appear necessary for the efficient carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

28. The report of the committee and the report of the board shall be signed by such of the members as concur therein, and may also be signed by a dissenting member.

29. No counsel or solicitor shall be entitled to appear before the board except with the consent of all parties to the difference, and notwithstanding such consent, the board may, if it deems it advisable, decline to allow counsel or solicitors to appear before it.

(2) The parties to the difference may appear in person or by agents.

30. No court of the Dominion of Canada or of any province or territory shall have or possess any power or jurisdiction to recognize or enforce or to receive in evidence any report of any board of arbitrators or of any committee of conciliation, or any testimony or proceedings before either such board or committee as against any party or person, or for any purpose whatsoever, except in case of prosecution for perjury.

31. Where the difference, which is being inquired into, affects a class of employees, it shall not be necessary for them all to take part in the inquiry, but the class may be represented by a limited number chosen by a majority or by agents other than counsel or solicitors.

32. If, in any proceedings before the board, any person wilfully insults any member of the board, or wilfully interrupts the proceedings, or without good cause refuses to give evidence, or is guilty in any other manner of any unlawful contempt in the face of the board, it shall be lawful for any member of the board or constable to take the person offending into custody and remove him from the precincts of the board, and retain him in custody until the rising of the board.

33. It shall be in the discretion of the board to conduct its proceedings in public or in private.

Regulations.

34. The Minister may from time to time make, alter and amend regulations, as to the time within which any thing hereby authorized shall be done, and also as to any other matter or thing which appears to him necessary or advisable for the effectual working of the several provisions of this Act.

Report.

35. An annual report with respect to the matters transacted by the Minister under this Act shall be made by him to the Governor General, and shall be laid before Parliament within the first fifteen days of each session thereof.

Expenses.

36. The expenses incurred in the carrying out of this Act shall be defrayed out of the money provided for the purpose by Parliament.

Alien Labour Immigration—Contract Labour.

Chapter 97.—1. This Act may be cited as the Alien Labour Act.

2. It shall be unlawful for any person, company, partnership or corporation, in any manner to prepay the transportation or in any way to assist, encourage or solicit the importation or immigration of any alien or foreigner into Canada, under contract or agreement, parole or special, express or implied, made previous to the importation or immigration of such alien, or foreigner to perform labour or service of any kind in Canada.

3. For every violation of any of the provisions of the last preceding section, the person, partnership, company or corporation violating it by knowingly assisting, encouraging or soliciting the immigration or importation of any alien or foreigner into Canada to perform labour or service of any kind under contract or agreement, expressed or implied, parole or special, with such alien or foreigner, previous to such alien or foreigner becoming a resident in or a citizen of Canada, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, and not less than fifty dollars.

4. The sum so forfeited may, with the written consent of any judge of the court in which action is intended to be brought, be sued for and recovered as a debt by any person who first brings his action therefor in any court of competent jurisdiction in which debts of like amount are now recovered.

5. Such sum may also, with the written consent, to be obtained ex parte, of the Attorney General of the province in which the prosecution is had, or of a judge of a superior or county court, be recovered upon summary conviction before any judge of a county court, being a justice of the peace, or any judge of the sessions of superior or county court, being a justice of the peace, or any judge of the sessions of the peace, recorder, police magistrate, or stipendiary magistrate or any functionary, tribunal or person invested by the proper legislative authority with power to do alone such acts as are usually required to be done by two or more justices of the peace and, when recovered, shall be paid to the Minister of Finance.

6. Separate proceedings may be instituted for each alien or foreigner who is a party to such contract or agreement.

7. All contracts or agreements, express or implied, parole or special, made by and between any person, company, partnership or corporation and any alien or foreigner, to perform labour or service, or having reference to the performance of labour or service by any person in Canada, previous to the immigration or importation into Canada of the person whose labour or service is contracted for, shall be void and of no effect.

8. The master of any vessel who knowingly brings into Canada on such vessel and lands or permits to be landed, from any foreign port or place, any alien, labourer, mechanic or artisan who, previous to embarkation on such vessel, had entered into contract or agreement, parole or special, express or implied, to perform labour or service in Canada, shall be deemed guilty of an indictable offence and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars for each alien, labourer, mechanic or artisan so brought or landed, and may also be imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months.

9. Nothing in this Act shall be so construed as,—

(a) to prevent any citizen or subject of any foreign country, temporarily residing in Canada either in private or official capacity, from engaging, under contract or otherwise, persons not residents or citizens of Canada, to act as private secretaries, servants or domestics for such foreigner temporarily residing in Canada;

(b) to prevent any person, partnership, company or corporation from engaging under contract or agreement, skilled workmen, in foreign countries to perform labour in Canada in or upon any new industry not at present established in Canada: Provided that skilled labour for that purpose cannot be otherwise obtained;

(c) applying to professional actors, artists, lecturers or singers, or to persons employed strictly as personal or domestic servants; or,

(d) prohibiting any person from assisting any member of his family, or any relative, to migrate from any foreign country to Canada for the purpose of settlement in Canada.

10. The Attorney-General of Canada, in case he shall be satisfied that an immigrant has been allowed to land in Canada contrary to the prohibition of this Act, may cause such immigrant, within the period of one year after landing or entry, to be taken into custody and returned to the country whence he came, at the expense of the owner of the importing vessel, or, if he entered from an adjoining country, at the expense of the person, partnership, company or corporation assisting, encouraging or soliciting the importation or immigration of such immigrant under contract contrary to the provisions of this Act.

11. The Minister of Finance may pay to any informer who furnishes original information that the law has been violated such a share not exceeding fifty per centum of the penalties recovered as he deems reasonable and just, where it appears that the recovery was had in consequence of the information thus furnished.

12. It shall be deemed a violation of this Act for any person, partnership, company or corporation to assist or encourage the importation or immigration of any person who resides in, or is a citizen of, any foreign country to which this Act applies, by promise of employment through advertisements printed or published in such foreign country.

(2) Any such person coming to this country in consequence of such an advertisement shall be treated as coming under a contract as contemplated by this Act, and the penalties by this Act imposed shall be applicable in such case: Provided that this section shall not apply to skilled labour not obtainable in Canada, as hereinbefore specified.

13. This Act shall apply only to the importation or immigration of such persons as reside in or are citizens of such foreign countries as have enacted and retained in force, or as enact and retain in force laws or ordinances applying to Canada of a character similar to this Act.

14. Evidence of any such law or ordinance of a foreign country may be given by the production of a copy thereof purporting to be,—

(a) printed by the government printer or at the government printing office of such foreign country, or contained in a volume of laws or ordinances of such country purporting to be so printed; or,

(b) certified to be true by some officer of state of such foreign country who also certifies that he is the custodian of the original of such law or ordinance, in which case no proof shall be required of the handwriting or official position of the person so certifying.

15. Nothing in this Act shall affect the exercise of the powers of the Government of Canada or of any province in connection with the promotion of immigration.

Protection of Wages on Public and Subsidized Works and on Works by Chartered Companies.

Chapter 98.—1. This Act may be cited as the Wages Liability Act.

Public Works.

2. If any contractor with His Majesty, or any sub-contractor in the construction of any public work let under contract by His Majesty, makes default in the payment of the wages of any foreman, workman or labourer employed on such work, or in the payment of any sum due by him for the labour of any such foreman, workman or labourer, or of any team employed on such work, and if a claim therefor is filed in the office of the Minister entering into such contract on behalf of His Majesty, not later than two months after the same becomes due, and satisfactory proof thereof is furnished, His Majesty may pay such claim to the extent of the amount of all moneys or securities in the hands of His Majesty for securing the performance of the contract at the time of the filing of the said claim.

3. His Majesty may demand in writing that each contractor or sub-contractor shall, not later than the tenth day of each month, or at any other time within ten days after receiving such demand, file in the office of the said Minister a list showing the names, rates of wages, amounts paid and amounts due and unpaid for wages or labour done by every foreman, workman, labourer and team employed by him during the previous month, or up to the time of the service of such demand, and attested upon the oath or statutory declaration of such contractor or subcontractor, or his authorized agent.

4. Every contractor, or sub-contractor who, having received such demand, makes default in forwarding such list in accordance with the provisions of the last preceding section, shall incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than ten dollars, for every day during which such default continues.

(2) The amount of such penalty, within the said limits, shall be determined by the Minister under whom the work is being executed, and may be deducted out of the moneys in the hands of His Majesty, deposited by or owing to such contractor, and shall become vested in His Majesty.

Subsidized Works.

5. Whenever any subsidy, advance, loan or bonus of money is authorized by Parliament to be granted to any company or person towards the construction of any railway or other work, it shall, in the absence of special provision by Parliament to the contrary, be a condition of such grant that His Majesty may retain so much of such money as the Governor in Council thinks proper, to secure the payment of claims for wages of persons employed on such railway or work, either by such company or person or by any contractor or sub-contractor, or for sums due or to become due for labour of persons or teams so employed.

(2) If any such claim for wages, or for any such sum remains unpaid for thirty days after notice thereof has been served upon the Minister of Railways and Canals, or such other minister as is charged with the supervision of such railway or work, the Governor in Council may, on being satisfied that such claim is due and unpaid, direct that it be paid, together with all proper costs and charges in connection therewith, out of any moneys so retained.

Works by Chartered Companies.

6. Every company hereafter incorporated by, or receiving a renewal or extension of its charter from the Parliament of Canada for the construction of railways, canals, telegraph lines, and other works, shall, by virtue of accepting such incorporation, renewal or extension of charter, become and be liable for the payment of wages, for a period not exceeding three months, of every foreman, workman, labourer or team employed in the construction of any work in Canada done by or for the said company, whether directly under the company or through the intervention of any contractor or sub-contractor: Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed in any way to prejudice or affect the right of any such foreman, workman or labourer against any contractor or sub-contractor with whom he has contracted.

7. In case any such foreman, workman, or labourer is not paid his wages for himself or his team by any contractor or sub-contractor by whom he has been employed, a notice stating the name of the claimant and the amount of wages claimed, the rate of such wages, the nature and amount of work done, the time when, the place where, and the name of the contractor or sub-contractor, superintendent or foreman for whom such work was done, shall be served upon the company not later than two months after such wages are earned; and such notice shall be followed up by the commencement of a suit in a court of competent jurisdiction for the collection of such wages, within thirty days after the service of such notice; otherwise the liability mentioned in the last preceding section shall cease.

8. The notice mentioned in the last preceding section, and any summons, notice, order, or other process required to be served upon the company for the prosecution of such claim, may be served upon the president, vice-president, secretary, managing director, superintendent or engineer, or any recognized officer representing the company, or by leaving it with any adult person at the office or residence of any of them.

[See also chapter 48 of the Acts of 1907, p. 107 of this Report.]

Seamen—Conditions of Employment on Government Vessels.

Chapter 111.—1. This Act, may be cited as the Government Vessels Discipline Act.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'Commissioner' or 'police commissioner' means any commissioner of police appointed under the Dominion Police Act;

(b) 'Police constable' means any police constable appointed under the said Act;

(c) 'Master' excepting when used in connection with duties or requirements connected with the ship's book, includes any person, for the time being, lawfully in command or in charge of any government vessel, as the officer thereof highest in rank then on board.

Application.

3. Every vessel employed by the Government of Canada, either temporarily or permanently, shall be deemed to belong, while so employed, to the Government of Canada for the purposes of this Act.

Ship's Book.

4. The master of every vessel belonging to the Government of Canada shall cause every person engaged for service in such vessel, after having had this Act read to him, and before he enters upon the discharge of any duty on board of such vessel, to sign his name in the proper column or a book to be kept by the master for that purpose.

5. Such book shall contain a statement of the name of the vessel, the name of the master, and the year for which it is the ship's book of such vessel, and also statements to the effect, that—
(a) this Act was read to each person who has signed his name in the proper column before he signed his name thereto;

(b) each person who has so signed has thereby consented to submit himself to the provisions of this Act, and to conduct himself in an orderly, faithful, honest and sober manner, and to be at all times diligent in the discharge of his duty, and to be obedient to the lawful commands of the master of the said vessel for the time being and of others, his superior officers, whether on board, in boats, or on shore, in everything relating to the said vessel and the stores thereof, and to this Act;

(c) any embezzlement, or wilful or negligent destruction or loss of or injury to any part of the stores of the said vessel shall be made good out of the wages of the person guilty of the same; and,

(d) if such person has entered himself as qualified for a duty which he proves incompetent to perform, he may be discharged or his wages may be reduced at the discretion of the master.

6. Such book shall contain separate columns properly headed, intended to contain respectively,—

- (a) the names of the persons engaged, including officers;
- (b) the dates when engaged;
- (c) the capacity in which each person is to serve, with the relative rank of the officers, indicated by numbers;
- (d) the period during which each person is to serve;
- (e) the rate of wages at which each person is to be paid;
- (f) the names of the witnesses to each signature; and,
- (g) the dates of signatures.

7. The ship's book of every vessel belonging to the Government of Canada shall be conclusive evidence of the relative rank of every officer therein named.

(2) The signature of any officer as being in command or in charge of the vessel, and the fact that any such officer was at any particular time in command or in charge thereof, shall not be called in question except by the Crown.

8. The contents of the said book shall be read by the master or other officer of such vessel to each man about to ship on board thereof, and every person so signing any such book shall thenceforth be subject to this Act for and during the period of his engagement as therein mentioned.

Discipline.

9. Whenever any person subject to this Act commits any of the following offences, he shall be liable on conviction before a commissioner, or before any justice of the peace,—

(a) for desertion, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks with or without hard labour, and also to forfeit all or any part of the clothes and effects he leaves on board, and all or any part of the wages or emoluments which he has then earned;

(b) for neglecting or refusing without reasonable cause, to join his vessel, or to proceed on any voyage or cruise in his vessel, or for absence without leave at any time within twenty-four hours of the vessel's sailing from any port, or for absence at any time, without leave and without sufficient reason, from his vessel, or from his duty, not amounting to desertion, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks with or without hard labour, and also at the discretion of the commissioner, or justice, to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding the amount of ten days' pay;

(c) for quitting the vessel without leave after her arrival in port at the close of the season of navigation, and before she is placed in security, to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding ten days' pay;

(d) for wilful disobedience to any lawful command, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks, with or without hard labour, and, also, at the discretion of the commissioner or justice, to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding two days' pay;

(e) for continued wilful disobedience to lawful commands, or continued wilful neglect of duty, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks, with or without hard labour, and, also, at the discretion of the commissioner or justice, to forfeit for every twenty-four hours' continuance of such disobedience or neglect, a sum not exceeding two days' pay;

(f) for assaulting any master or officer of any Canadian Government vessel, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks, with or without hard labour;

(g) for combining with any other or others of the crew to disobey lawful commands, or to neglect duty, or to impede the navigation of the vessel, or the progress of the voyage, or the continuance of the cruise, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks, with or without hard labour;

(h) for wilfully damaging the vessel, or embezzling or wilfully damaging any of her stores, to forfeit out of his wages a sum equal in amount to the loss thereby sustained, and also, at the discretion of the commissioner or justice to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks, with or without hard labour.

10. Upon the commission of any of the offences enumerated in the last preceding section, an entry thereof shall be made in the log-book, and shall be signed by the master and also by one of the officers or one of the crew.

(2) The offender, if still in the vessel, shall, before the next subsequent arrival of the vessel at any port, or, if she is at the time in port, before her departure therefrom, be furnished with a copy of such entry, and have the same read over distinctly and audibly to him, and may thereupon make such reply thereto as he thinks fit.

(3) A statement that a copy of the said entry has been so furnished, and that the same has been so read over as aforesaid, and the reply, if any, made by the offender, shall likewise be entered and signed in manner aforesaid.

(4) In any subsequent legal proceeding, the entries hereinbefore required shall, if practicable, be produced and proved, and, in default of such production and proof, the commissioner or justice hearing the case may, in his discretion, refuse to receive evidence of the offence.

11. Whenever, either at the commencement or during the progress of any voyage or cruise, any person subject to this Act neglects or refuses to join, or deserts from, or refuses to proceed on any voyage or cruise in any vessel belonging to the Government of Canada in which he is duly engaged to serve, or is found otherwise absenting himself therefrom without leave, the master or any officer of such vessel may, in any place in Canada, with or without the assistance of the police constables, apprehend him without first procuring a warrant, and may in any case, and shall, when such person so requires, if practicable, convey him before a commissioner or before some justice of the peace to be dealt with according to law.

(2) The master or other officer may, if such person does not require himself to be conveyed before a commissioner or justice, or if he does so require, and such course is impracticable by reason of there being no commissioner or justice at or near the place where such person is apprehended, at once convey such person on board such vessel; or the master or other officer may, for the purpose of conveying such person before such commissioner or justice, detain him in custody for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours.

(3) Every police constable shall, when requested so to do, assist any master or officer of a vessel belonging to the Government in apprehending any person offending against the provisions of this Act.

(4) If any such apprehension appears to the commissioner or justice before whom the case is brought to have been made on improper or insufficient grounds, the master or officer who makes the same or causes the same to be made, shall incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars; but such penalty, if inflicted shall be a bar to any action for false imprisonment in respect of such apprehension.

12. Whenever a person subject to this Act is brought before any commissioner, or justice of the peace, on the ground of his having neglected or refused to join or proceed on any voyage or cruise in any vessel belonging to the Government of Canada, in which he is engaged to serve, or of having deserted or otherwise absented himself therefrom without leave, such commissioner or justice may, if the master or any officer thereof so requires, instead of committing the offender to prison, cause him to be conveyed on board for the purpose of proceeding on the voyage or cruise, or deliver him to the master or any officer of the vessel, to be by him so conveyed.

(2) The commissioner or justice may in such case order any costs and expenses properly incurred by or on behalf of the master, by reason of the offence, to be paid by the offender, and, if necessary, to be deducted from any wages which he has then earned, or which by virtue of his then existing engagement he may afterwards earn.

13. If any person subject to this Act is imprisoned on the ground of his having neglected or refused to join or to proceed in any voyage or cruise in any vessel belonging to the Government of Canada in which he is engaged to serve, or of his having deserted or otherwise absented himself therefrom without leave, or of his having committed any other breach of discipline, and, if during such imprisonment, and before his engagement is at an end, his services are required on board his vessel, any justice of the peace may, at the request of the master or of any officer thereof, cause such person to be conveyed on board his said vessel for the purpose of proceeding on the voyage or cruise, or to be delivered to the master or any officer of the same, to be by him so conveyed, notwithstanding that the term for which he was sentenced to imprisonment has not expired.

14. Whenever a question arises, whether the wages of any person subject to this Act are forfeited for desertion, it shall be sufficient for the person insisting on the forfeiture to show that,—

(a) such person was duly engaged in, or that he belonged to the vessel from which he is alleged to have deserted;

- (b) he quitted such vessel before the completion of the period of his engagement; and,
- (c) an entry of the desertion has been duly made in the log-book.
- (2) The desertion shall thereupon, as far as relates to any forfeiture of wages or emoluments under the provisions hereinbefore contained, be deemed to be proved, unless the person can produce a proper certificate of discharge, or can otherwise show to the satisfaction of the commissioner or justice of the peace hearing the case that he had sufficient reason for leaving his vessel.

15. Any justice of the peace for the county or district in which is situated the port where the vessel, on board of which any offence against the provisions of this Act has been committed, touches next after the time of the commission of the offence shall have jurisdiction over any such offence.

(2) Any sentence of imprisonment under this Act may be carried out in the common jail of such county or district.

Shipping—General Definitions.

Interpretation.

Chapter 113.—This Act may be cited as the Canada Shipping Act.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

- (a) 'Minister' means the Minister of Marine and Fisheries;
- (b) 'Master' includes every person except a pilot having command or charge of any ship;
- (c) 'Consular officer' includes consul general, consul and vice-consul, and any person for the time being discharging the duties of consul general, consul or vice-consul;
- (d) 'Ship' includes every description of vessel used in navigation not propelled by oars;
- (e) 'Ships belonging to His Majesty' includes ships the cost of which has been defrayed out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada, and ships described as the property of Canada by the one hundred and eighth section of The British North America Act, 1867;
- (f) 'Form' means a form in the schedule to this Act.

Seamen.

Chapter 113 with amendments—126. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

- (a) 'Provinces' means the provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia;
- (b) 'Canadian foreign sea-going ship' includes every ship registered in any of the provinces employed in trading or going by sea between some place or places in Canada and some place or places out of Canada;
- (c) 'Canadian home-trade ship' includes every ship registered in either of the provinces, employed in trading or going from any place or places in any of the provinces to any other place or places in any other of the provinces;
- (d) 'Seaman' includes every person employed or engaged in any capacity on board any ship, except masters, pilots, and apprentices duly indentured and registered;
- (e) 'Board of Trade' means the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council appointed for the consideration of matters relating to trade and foreign plantations;
- (f) 'Shipping master' means the officer appointed by the Governor in Council as superintendent of a shipping office and includes the chief officer of the Customs in any place where the Custom-house is the shipping office and no superintendent has been appointed by the Governor in Council.

Application.

127. This Part applies exclusively to the provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, and shall not, except as hereinafter specially provided, apply to ships belonging to His Majesty.

Shipping Offices and Shipping Masters.

128. The Governor in Council may establish a shipping office at each port in each of the provinces, where a Custom-house is situated, and, as he deems advisable, at any other ports in the province.

129. The Governor in Council may, subject to the provisions of this Part, appoint for any such shipping office a superintendent called a shipping master, who may appoint any necessary deputies, clerks and servants, and shall, subject to the provisions of this Part, have complete control over the same, and shall be responsible for every act done by such deputies, clerks or servants.

(2) In the province of British Columbia every shipping master may, with the approval of the Minister, appoint two deputy shipping masters, and not more, to assist masters of vessels in the securing of crews.

(3) All acts done by or before such deputies shall have the same effect as if done by or before such shipping masters.

130. No person who sells any spirituous liquors, and no tavern keeper or boarding-house keeper, shall be eligible for the situation of shipping master or deputy shipping master.

131. The Governor in Council may direct that at any place in any of the provinces in which no separate shipping office is established, the whole or any part of the business of the shipping office shall be conducted at the Custom-house; and thereupon the same shall be there conducted accordingly.

(2) In respect of such business, such Custom-house shall, for all purposes, be deemed to be a shipping office, and the chief officer of the Customs there, if no other shipping master has been appointed, shall, for all purposes, be a shipping master and be held to have been appointed as such within the meaning of this Part.

132. All business transacted at any shipping office in any of the provinces shall be under the immediate control and supervision of the Minister.

133. Every shipping master and every deputy, clerk and servant appointed as aforesaid shall, before entering upon his duties, give such security for the due performance thereof as the Minister requires.

134. If, in any case, the Minister has reason to believe that any person appointed by any shipping master does not properly discharge his duties, he may cause an investigation to be made and direct the dismissal or suspension of such person, and may provide for the temporary performance of his duties until another person is properly appointed in his place, or during his suspension, as the case may be.

135. Every shipping master, deputy, clerk and servant so appointed, shall, before entering upon his duties, take and subscribe, before any justice of the peace, an oath in the form following, that is to say :—

'I, A.B., do swear that I will faithfully perform the office and duty of shipping master (or deputy shipping master, or as the case may be) according to the true intent and meaning of Part III, of the Canada Shipping Act; that I will not, either directly or indirectly, personally, or by means of any other person or persons on my behalf, receive any fee, reward or gratuity by reason of any function of my office as shipping master (or deputy shipping master, or as the case may be), except such as are allowed to me under the said Part, and that I will act without partiality, favour or affection, and to the best of my knowledge. So help me God.'

136. Every shipping master shall,—

(a) afford facilities for engaging seamen, by keeping registers of the names of seamen who apply to him for engagement, and registers of all seamen shipped or discharged by him, which registers shall be open for public inspection;

(b) superintend and facilitate the engagement and discharge of seamen in manner herein-after mentioned ;

(c) provide means for securing the presence on board at the proper times of men who are engaged, when requested so to do; the expense of such service to be defrayed by the master, owner or agent of the ship requiring the presence of men on board ;

(d) facilitate the making of apprenticeships to the sea service ;

(e) perform such other duties relating to merchant seamen and merchant ships as are hereby, or are, under the powers herein contained, committed to him.

137. No person other than the shipping master or deputy shipping master shall hire, engage, supply or provide a seaman to be entered on board any ship, not being a Canadian home-trade ship, or a ship in the merchant service of any foreign country to which this Part, under the provisions thereof, does not apply.

138. No person shall employ any person other than a shipping master or deputy shipping master for the purpose of hiring, engaging, supplying or providing seamen to be entered on board any ship, not being a Canadian home-trade ship or a ship in the merchant service of a foreign country, to which this Part, under the provisions thereof, does not apply.

139. No owner, part owner, master, person in charge of any ship, ship's husband or consignee, shall knowingly receive or accept to be entered on board such ship, or permit to remain on board the same, any seaman who has been hired, engaged, supplied or provided to be entered on board thereof, contrary to the provisions of this Part, or who has been engaged or hired to be entered on board any other ship.

140. Every shipping master and deputy shipping master shall, before hiring, engaging, supplying or providing any seaman whom he has any reason to suspect of having deserted from his last ship in any of the provinces, within the then last six months, to be entered on board any ship, require such seaman to produce his certificate of discharge from his last ship, in any of the provinces, or other satisfactory proof that he was lawfully discharged from and lawfully quitted such last ship, in any of the provinces, and shall by all lawful means in his power prevent, so far as he can, the effecting before him of any engagement of a seaman whom he has any reason to suspect of having deserted from his last ship in any of the provinces.

141. Every shipping master or deputy shipping master shall be entitled to a fee of,—

(a) fifty cents on each engagement effected before him in any of the provinces under this Part, and,

(b) thirty cents on any discharge of a seaman effected before him in any of the said provinces.

(2) In the province of British Columbia every such shipping master and deputy shipping master may, until otherwise provided by the Governor in Council, take and receive from the master of any vessel any remuneration agreed upon between them, not exceeding ten dollars including the fee of fifty cents provided in paragraph (a) of subsection 1 of this section, for the hiring or supplying of any seaman by such shipping master or deputy shipping master, as the case may be, for such vessel. 1908, c. 65, s. 9.

(3) Any shipping master or the deputy, clerk or servant of any shipping master may refuse to proceed with any engagement or discharge unless the fee payable thereon is first paid.

142. Every owner or master of a ship engaging or discharging any seaman in a shipping office, or before a shipping master or a deputy shipping master in any of the provinces, shall pay to the shipping master or deputy shipping master the whole of the fees hereby made payable in respect of such engagement or discharge, and may, for the purpose of in part reimbursing himself, deduct and retain, in respect of each such engagement or discharge from the wages of all persons so engaged or discharged, a sum not exceeding one-half the amount so paid to the shipping master or deputy shipping master: Provided, that the sum which the owner or master of a ship engaging or discharging any seaman in a shipping office, in the province of British Columbia may deduct from the seaman's wages, shall not exceed, as to each such seaman, in the case of engagement, twenty-five cents, and, in case of discharge, fifteen cents.

143. Every shipping master appointed under this Part shall make, sign and transmit to the Minister on, or as soon as possible after the last day of June, and the last day of December in each year, a return of all the fees received by him and his deputy under this Part during the half year ending on such day.

144. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, dispense with the transaction before a shipping master or a deputy shipping master, or in a shipping office, of any matters required by this Part to be so transacted, and thereupon such matters shall, if otherwise duly transacted as required by law, be as valid as if transacted before a shipping master or deputy shipping master, or in a shipping office.

145. Every shipping master and deputy shipping master appointed under this Part, shall give all the assistance in his power towards carrying into effect the objects of the Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom passed in the session held in the twenty-second and twenty-third years of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and chaptered forty, intituled An Act for the Establishment of a Reserve Volunteer Force of Seamen and for the Government of the same, in such manner as the Board of Trade, at the instance of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty directs.

(2) Every such shipping master and deputy shipping master shall, for such purpose, have the power to call for such answers or information concerning reserve men from the masters of and other persons belonging to British merchant ships as are necessary or desirable in order to enable him to render such assistance as aforesaid, or to make any returns which the Board of Trade or the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty require.

Apprenticeships.

146. Every shipping master appointed under this Part shall, when applied to for the purpose, give to any person desirous of apprenticing a boy to the merchant service, and to every master or owner of a ship requiring an apprentice such assistance in that behalf as is in his power, and may receive from any person availing himself of such assistance, such fees as are determined in that behalf by the Minister.

147. The apprenticeship of any boy to the sea service in any of the provinces shall be by indenture between the apprentice and the master or owner of the ship requiring such apprentice.

148. Every person to whom any boy is bound as an apprentice shall, within seven days after the execution of the indenture, take or transmit the same to the shipping master nearest to the residence of the person to whom the boy is bound, and the said shipping master shall cause such indenture to be copied into a book to be kept in his office, which shall be open to public inspection free of any charge, and shall endorse on the indenture that it has been so recorded, and shall re-deliver the same to the master of the apprentice.

149. The shipping master shall be entitled to charge and receive the sum of one dollar for recording such indenture.

150. Whenever any such indenture is assigned or cancelled, or whenever any such apprentice dies or deserts, the master of the apprentice shall, within thirty days after such assignment, cancellation, death or desertion, if the same happens within Canada, or, if the same happens elsewhere, so soon afterwards as circumstances permit, notify the same to the said shipping master, to be recorded.

151. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship shall, before carrying any apprentice to sea from any place in any of the provinces, cause such apprentice to appear before the shipping master before whom the crew is engaged, and shall produce to him the indenture by which such apprentice is bound, and the assignment or assignments thereof, if any.

(2) The name of such apprentice, with the date of the indenture and of the assignments thereof, if any, and the name of the port or ports at which the same have been registered, shall be entered on the indenture.

Engagement of Seamen and Agreement.

152. The master of every Canadian home-trade ship of or above eighty tons registered tonnage shall enter into an agreement with every seaman whom he carries as one of his crew, in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

(2) Every such agreement shall be in form H or as near thereto as circumstances permit, and shall be dated at the time of the first signature thereof, signed by the master before any seaman signs the same, and shall contain as terms thereof particulars of,—

(a) the nature and, as far as practicable, the duration of the intended voyage or engagement ;

(b) the number and description of the crew, specifying how many are engaged as sailors;

(c) the time at which each seaman is to be on board or to begin work;

(d) the capacity in which each seaman is to serve;

(e) the amount of wages which each seaman is to receive;

(f) a scale of the provisions which are to be furnished to each seaman;

(g) any regulations provided by form M as to conduct on board, and as to fines, short allowance of provisions, or other lawful punishments for misconduct which the parties agree to adopt.

153. Every such agreement shall be so framed as to admit of stipulations, to be adopted at the will of the master and seaman in each case as to advance and allotment of wages, and may contain any other stipulations which are not contrary to law.

(2) Such agreement shall be made and signed either before a shipping master in the manner hereinafter directed with respect to Canadian foreign sea-going ships, or in presence of a respectable witness who shall attest each signature on such agreement.

154. Any seaman who has signed such agreement may, at the termination of the agreement, if the master thinks fit, be discharged before a shipping master in the manner herein directed with respect to Canadian foreign sea-going ships.

(2) At any period, during such engagement, and before its termination, the master may discharge any such seaman on payment of his wages and with his consent, if such discharge is made in the presence of and with the sanction of a duly appointed shipping master.

155. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship shall enter into an agreement with every seaman whom he carries to sea, from any port or place in any of the provinces as one of his crew.

(2) Every such agreement shall be in form H, or as near thereto as circumstances permit, and shall be dated at the time of the first signature thereof, signed by the master before any seaman signs the same, and shall contain the particulars required by this Part to be inserted as terms in the shipping agreement of a seaman carried as one of the crew of a Canadian home-trade ship.

(3) Such agreement shall be signed by the master and each seaman in the presence of a duly appointed shipping master; and such shipping master shall cause the agreement to be read over and explained to each seaman, or otherwise ascertain that each seaman understands the same before he signs it, and shall attest each signature.

156. In the case of substitutes engaged in any of the provinces in the place of seamen who have duly signed the agreement and whose services are lost by death, desertion or other unforeseen cause previously to the vessel putting to sea, the engagement shall, when practicable, be made before a shipping master appointed under this Part.

(2) Whenever such last mentioned engagement cannot be so made, the master shall before the ship puts to sea, if practicable, and, if not, as soon afterwards as possible, cause the agreement to be read over and explained to the seamen who have shipped as substitutes; and such seamen shall thereupon sign the same in the presence of a witness, who shall attest their signatures.

157. Except additions made, as in this Part directed for shipping substitutes or persons engaged subsequently to the first departure of the ship, every erasure, interlineation, or alteration in any such agreement with seamen, shall be inoperative, unless proved to have been made with the consent of all the persons interested therein by the written attestation of,—

(a) a shipping master, justice of the peace, Customs officer or other public functionary, if made in His Majesty's dominions; or,

(b) a British consular officer, or, where there is no such officer, two respectable British merchants, if made out of His Majesty's dominions.

158. A clause may be inserted in the agreement providing for the sale of the vessel during the voyage intended, and for the discharge of the crew in the event of such sale, and shall state the amount of wages to be paid to the seamen upon such sale.

159. In the case of ships registered in any of the provinces making short voyages from any port or place in any of the provinces by sea to ports and places out of Canada, averaging less than two months' duration, running agreements with the crew may be made to extend to two or more voyages, or for a specified time: Provided that no such agreement shall extend beyond six months from the date of such agreement, or the first arrival of the ship at her port of destination in any of the provinces after the termination of such agreement or the discharge of cargo consequent upon such arrival.

160. Every person who enters into such agreement, whether engaged upon the first commencement thereof or otherwise in any of the provinces, shall enter into and sign the same in the manner hereby required for other ships trading by sea to ports or places out of Canada.

(2) Every person engaged thereunder, if discharged in any of the provinces, shall be discharged in the manner required by this Part for the discharge of seamen belonging to other ships trading by sea to ports or places out of Canada.

161. Any seaman may bring forward evidence to prove the contents of any agreement under this Part, or otherwise to support his case, without producing or giving notice to produce the agreement or any copy thereof.

162. Any seaman who has signed an agreement under this Part and is afterwards discharged before the commencement of the voyage, or before one month's wages are earned, without fault on his part justifying such discharge and without his consent, shall be entitled to receive from the master or owner, in addition to any wages he has earned, due compensation for the damage thereby caused to him, not exceeding one month's wages, and may, on adducing such evidence as the court hearing the case deems satisfactory, of his having been so improperly discharged as aforesaid, recover such compensation as if it were wages duly earned.

163. In every contract of service, express or implied, between the owner of a ship and the master or any seaman thereof, and in every instrument whereby any person is bound to serve as an apprentice on board any ship, there shall be implied, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, an obligation on the owner of the ship, that the owner of the ship, and the master and every agent charged with the loading of the ship, or the preparing thereof for sea, or the sending thereof to sea, shall use all reasonable means to ensure the seaworthiness of the ship for the voyage at the time when the voyage commences, and to keep her in a seaworthy condition for the voyage during the same: Provided that nothing in this section shall subject the owner of a ship to any liability by reason of the ship being sent to sea in an unworthy state where, owing to special circumstances, the so sending thereof to sea is reasonable and justifiable.

164. The master of every ship shall furnish and pay for every blank form required by this Part to be used by him.

Advance Notes.

165. The ship's husband or the owner, part owner, master or person in charge of any Canadian foreign sea-going ship, or Canadian home-trade ship, shall not pay in advance, or give any note or acceptance in writing or otherwise in the nature of and purporting to be an advance note for any part of the wages of any seaman hired, engaged, supplied or provided to be entered on board the said ship, until after the ship's articles have been duly signed by the said seaman and by the master or owner of the said ship.

(2) Such note or acceptance may be made payable to the order of such seaman and shall be given only to the seaman himself.

(3) No such note or acceptance shall be made or be payable at any time sooner than five days after the final sailing of the ship with such seaman on board.

(4) All payments of wages contrary to the provisions of this section shall be null and void; and the amount thereof shall be recoverable by the seaman as if such payments had not been made or advanced.

Report of Changes in Crew.

166. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship of which the crew has been engaged before a shipping master in Canada shall, before finally leaving Canada, sign and send to the shipping master before whom the crew was engaged, a full and accurate statement of every change which takes place in his crew before finally leaving Canada.

(2) Such statement shall be admitted as evidence, subject to all just exceptions.

Production of Certificate of Competency.

167. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship over one hundred tons register, shall, on signing the agreement with his crew, produce to the shipping master before whom the same is signed, the certificates of competency or service, which the said master and his first mate or only mate, are required by law to possess.

(2) If the shipping master is the chief officer of Customs at the port, he shall not clear any such ship of over one hundred tons register without such certificates being first produced to him, and shall not clear any ship of any tonnage register until all the requirements of this Part have been complied with to his satisfaction.

Certificate from Shipping Master.

168. The shipping master, whenever he is not the chief officer of Customs at the port, in the case of any ship of any tonnage register, on all the requirements of this Part being complied to his satisfaction, and any such ship of over one hundred tons register, on the production of the said certificates in addition to complying with all the requirements of this Part to his satisfaction shall give the master of the ship a certificate to that effect or to the effect that the agreement is in his office partially signed, waiting an engagement of a portion of the crew, as the case may be.

169. No officer of customs shall clear any ship of any tonnage register without the production of the shipping master's certificate to the effect that all requirements of this Part have been complied with, or to the effect that the agreement is in his office partially signed waiting an engagement of a portion of the crew, as the case may be, and shall not clear any such ship of over one hundred tons register, without the production of such certificate, and the certificates of competency of service above mentioned.

(2) At any port at which the chief officer of Customs acts as shipping master, such officer of Customs shall not clear any ship outwards until all the requirements of this Part have been complied with to his satisfaction.

Allotment of Wages.

170. All stipulations for the allotment of any part of the wages of a seaman during his absence, which are made at the commencement of the voyage, shall be inserted in the agreement, and shall state the amounts and times of payments to be made.

(2) Allotment notes may be in form I.

171. Unless the seaman is shown to the satisfaction of the court, as provided in this Part, to have forfeited or ceased to be entitled to the wages out of which the allotment is to be paid, or, in case of the wife, that she has deserted her children or so misconducted herself as to be undeserving of support from her husband, the wife, or the father or mother, or the grandfather or grandmother, or any child or grandchild, or any brother or sister, of any seaman in whose favour an allotment note of part of the wages of such seaman is made, may sue for and recover the sums allotted by the note when and as the same are made payable, with costs, from the owner or any agent who has authorized the drawing of the note,—

(a) either in the summary manner in which seamen are, by this Part, enabled to sue for and recover wages not exceeding two hundred dollars; or,

(b) in any court in any of the provinces having jurisdiction to the amount, within the limits of whose jurisdiction such owner or agent has been served with process, or the agreement and allotment note or either of them were or was made if such owner or agent has been duly served with process in any place in any of the provinces within or without such limits.

172. In any such proceeding to recover the sums so allotted, it shall be sufficient for the claimant to prove that he or she is the person mentioned in the note, and that the note was given by the owner or by the master or some authorized agent.

173. The seaman shall be presumed to be duly earning his wages, unless the contrary is shown to the satisfaction of the court by,—

(a) the official statement of the change in the crew caused by his absence made and signed by the master, as by this Part is required; or

(b) a duly certified copy of some entry in the log-book to the effect that he has left the ship; or,

(c) a credible letter from the master of the ship to the same effect; or,

(d) such other evidence, of whatever description, as the court in its absolute discretion considers sufficient to show satisfactorily that the seaman has ceased to be entitled to the wages out of which the allotment is to be paid.

Discharge and Payment of Wages.

174. Except in cases where some competent court otherwise directs, all seamen discharged in any of the provinces from ships registered in any of the provinces other than Canadian home-trade ships, shall be discharged and receive their wages in the presence of the shipping master.

(2) In the case of Canadian home-trade ships seamen may, if the owner or master so desires, be discharged and receive their wages in like manner.

175. Every master shall, before paying off or discharging any seaman in any of the provinces from a ship registered in any of the said provinces, not being a Canadian home-trade ship of less than eighty tons, deliver to him, or if he is to be discharged before a shipping master, to such shipping master, a full and true account of his wages, in form J, and of all deductions to be made therefrom on any account whatsoever.

176. The master of any ship registered in any of the provinces other than a Canadian home-trade ship of less than eighty tons, shall, upon paying off or discharging any seaman in any of the provinces, sign and give to him a certificate of his discharge in form K, specifying the period of his service and the time and place of his discharge.

(2) Such master shall make and sign on such certificate a report of the conduct, character and qualifications of the persons discharged during the period he has been in his employment, or state thereon that he declines to give any opinion upon such particulars or upon any of them.

177. Every shipping master in Canada may hear and decide any question whatsoever between a master or owner of a ship registered in Canada and any of his crew, which both parties agree in writing to submit to him; and every award so made by him shall be binding on both parties, and shall, in any legal proceedings, which are taken in the matter before any court of justice in Canada, be deemed to be conclusive as to the rights of the parties.

(2) Any document purporting to be such submission or award shall be prima facie evidence thereof.

(3) Such shipping master may charge a fee not exceeding four dollars as remuneration therefor.

178. In any proceeding relating to the wages, claims or discharge of any seaman belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces carried on before any shipping master under the provisions of this Part, such shipping master may call upon the owner or his agent, or upon the master or mate or any other member of the crew, to produce any log-books, papers or other documents in their respective possession or power, relating to any matter in question in such proceedings, and may call before him and examine on oath on any such matter any of such persons then at or near the place.

Legal Rights to Wages.

179. In the case of ships registered in any of the provinces, the right to wages and provisions of a seaman engaged in any of the said provinces, shall be taken to commence either at the time at which he commences work, or at the time specified for his commencement of work or presence on board, whichever first happens.

180. No seaman engaged under this Part for any ship registered in any of the provinces shall, by any engagement made in any of the provinces, forfeit his lien upon the ship, or be deprived of any remedy for the recovery of his wages to which he would otherwise have been entitled.

(2) Every stipulation in any agreement made in any of the provinces inconsistent with any provision of this Part and every stipulation by which any seaman consents to abandon his right to wages in the case of the loss of the ship, or to abandon any right which he has or obtains in the nature of salvage, shall be wholly inoperative: Provided that this subsection shall not apply to the case of any stipulation made by the seamen belonging to any ship which, according to the terms of the agreement, is to be employed on salvage service, with respect to the remuneration to be paid to them for salvage services to be rendered by such ship to any other ship.

181. No right to wages of any seaman or apprentice on board of any ship registered in any of the provinces shall be dependent on the earning of freight.

(2) Every such seaman or apprentice who would be entitled to demand and recover any wages, if the ship in which he has served had earned freight, shall, subject to all other rules of law and conditions applicable to the case, be entitled to claim and recover the same, notwithstanding that freight has not been earned: Provided that, in all cases of wreck or loss of the ship, proof that he has not exerted himself to the utmost to save the ship, cargo and stores shall bar his claim.

182. If any seaman or apprentice to whom wages are due under the last preceding section dies before the same are paid, such wages shall be paid and applied in the manner in this Part specified, with regard to the wages of seamen who die during a voyage.

183. Whenever the services of any seaman belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, terminates before the period contemplated in the agreement by reason of the wreck or loss of the ship, or by reason of his being left on shore at any place abroad, under a certificate of his unfitness or inability to proceed on the voyage, granted as in this Part mentioned, such seaman shall be entitled to wages for the time of service prior to such termination as aforesaid, but not for any further period.

184. No seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces shall be entitled to wages for any period during which he unlawfully refuses or neglects to work when required, whether before or after the time fixed by the agreement for his beginning work, or, unless the court hearing the case otherwise directs, for any period during which he is lawfully imprisoned for any offence committed by him.

185. Whenever a seaman belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces is, by reason of illness, incapable of performing his duty, and it is proved that such illness has been caused by his own wilful act or default, he shall not be entitled to wages for the time during which he is, by reason of such illness, incapable of performing his duty.

186. Excepting cases in which the seaman by the agreement is paid by a share of the profits of the adventure, the master or owner of every ship registered in any of the provinces shall pay every seaman belonging to such ship his wages, if demanded, within three days after the delivery of the cargo, or five days after the seaman's discharge, whichever first happens.

Mode of recovering Wages.

187. Any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, or any person duly authorized on his behalf, may, whenever wages due to him to an amount not exceeding two hundred dollars over and above the costs of any proceeding for the recovery thereof becomes payable, sue for the same, in a summary manner before any judge of the Superior Court of the province of Quebec, any judge of the sessions of the peace, any judge of a county court, stipendiary magistrate, police magistrate, or any two justices of the peace acting in or near the place at which the service has terminated, or at which the seaman or apprentice has been discharged, or at which any master or owner or other person upon whom the claim is made is or resides.

(2) Such judge, magistrate or justices may, upon complaint on oath made to him or them by such seaman or apprentice, or on his behalf, summon such master or owner or other person to appear before him or them to answer such complaint.

188. Upon appearance of such master or owner, such judge magistrate or justices may examine upon oath the parties and their respective witnesses, touching the complaint and the amount of wages due, and may make such order for the payment of any wages found due as appears reasonable and just.

(2) If the master or owner does not appear, then, on due proof of such master or owner having been duly summoned, such judge, magistrate or justices may examine on oath the complainant and his witnesses, touching the complaint and amount of wages due and may make such order for the payment of any amount of wages found due as appears reasonable and just.

(3) Any order for the payment of wages made under the provisions of this section shall be final.

189. If such order is not obeyed within twenty-four hours next after the making thereof, such judge, magistrate or justices may issue a warrant to levy the amount of the wages awarded to be due by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the person on whom such order is made together with all the charges and expenses incurred by the seaman or apprentice in the making and hearing of the complaint and all costs, charges and expenses incurred by the distress and levy, and in the enforcement of the order.

(2) Any surplus, after the amount of the wages awarded and all such charges and expenses are deducted, shall be paid to the person on whom such order is made.

190. If sufficient distress cannot be found, such judge, magistrate or justices may cause the amount of such wages and expenses to be levied on the ship in respect of the service on board which the wages are claimed, or the tackle and apparel thereof.

(2) If such ship is not within the jurisdiction of such judge, magistrate or justices, then they may cause the person on whom the order for payment is made to be apprehended and committed under each such condemnation to the common gaol of the locality, or, if there is no gaol there, then to that which is nearest to the locality, for a term not exceeding three months and not less than one month.

191. No suit or proceedings for the recovery of wages under the sum of two hundred dollars shall be instituted by or on behalf of any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces in the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side, or in any superior court in any of the provinces, unless,—

(a) the owner of the ship is insolvent within the meaning of any Act respecting insolvency, for the time being in force in Canada; or

(b) the ship is under arrest or is sold by the authority of the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side, or any superior court; or

(c) any judge, magistrate or justices, acting under the authority of this Part, refer the case to be adjudged by such court; or,

(d) neither the owner nor the master is or resides within twenty miles of the place where the seaman or apprentice is discharged or put ashore.

192. If any suit for the recovery of a seaman's wages is instituted against any such ship or the master or owner thereof in the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side, or in any superior court in any of the provinces, and it appears to the court, in the course of such suit, that the plaintiff might have had as effectual a remedy for the recovery of his wages by complaint to a judge, magistrate or two justices of the peace under this Part, the judge shall certify to that effect, and thereupon no costs shall be awarded to the plaintiff.

193. No seaman belonging to any Canadian foreign seagoing ship who is engaged for a voyage or engagement which is to terminate in any of the provinces shall be entitled to sue in any court abroad for wages, unless he is discharged with such sanction as herein required, and with the written consent of the master, or proves such ill-usage on the part of the master, or by his authority, as to warrant reasonable apprehension of danger to the life of such seaman, if he remained on board.

(2) If any seaman, on his return to any of the provinces, proves that the master or owner has been guilty of any conduct or default which, but for this section, would have entitled the seaman to sue for wages before the termination of the voyage or engagement, he shall be entitled to recover in addition to his wages, such compensation, not exceeding eighty dollars, as the court hearing the case thinks reasonable.

194. Every master of a ship registered in any of the provinces shall, so far as the case permits, have the same rights, liens and remedies for the recovery of his wages, and for the recovery of disbursements properly made by him on account of the ship and for liabilities properly incurred by him on account of the ship, which, by this Part or by any law or custom, any seaman, not being a master, has for the recovery of his wages.

195. If, in any proceeding in any court possessing Admiralty jurisdiction in any of the provinces touching the claim of a master to wages or such disbursements and liabilities as aforesaid, any right of set-off or counter-claim is set up, such court may enter into and adjudicate upon all questions and settle all accounts then arising or outstanding and unsettled between the parties to the proceedings, and may direct payment of any balance which is found to be due.

Wages and Effects of deceased Seamen.

196. Whenever any seaman or apprentice belonging to or sent home in any Canadian foreign sea-going ship employed on a voyage which is to terminate in any of the provinces dies during such voyage, the master shall take charge of all money, clothes and effects which he leaves on board, and shall, if he considers it necessary in order to prevent contagion or disease, dispose of the clothes in such way as he thinks fit, and shall thereupon sign an entry in the log-book containing a statement,—

(a) of the amount of money and a description of the effects left by the deceased, and, if any effects were disposed of to prevent contagion or disease, a statement of such effects and the mode of disposing of them and the amount received for each article; and,

(b) of the amount due to the deceased as wages, and of the total amount of the deductions, if any, to be made therefrom; and shall cause such entry to be attested by a mate and by one of the crew.

197. The master shall, on arrival at any port in any of the provinces at which there is a shipping master, within three days after his arrival, deliver to such shipping master a full and true account of such effects, money and wages, with an account of any deductions made therefrom.

(2) No deductions claimed in such account shall be allowed unless verified by an entry in the log-book, and also by such other vouchers as are reasonably required by the shipping master to whom the account is rendered.

(3) Such shipping master shall furnish the Minister with a copy of such account within six days after receiving the same, and shall, subject to his directions, deliver such wages, effects and money to the legal representative of the deceased seaman or apprentice.

(4) If no such representative can be found, then such shipping master shall dispose of such effects, money and wages in such manner as the Minister directs.

198. If any master fails to take such charge of the money or other effects of any such seaman or apprentice dying during a voyage, or to make such entry thereof, or to procure such attestation to such entries, or to make such payment or delivery of any money, wages or effects of any such seaman or apprentice dying during a voyage, or to give such account in respect thereof as is by this Part in such cases required, he shall be accountable to the legal representative of such seaman or apprentice and shall pay and deliver the same accordingly.

(2) If any such money, wages or effects are not duly paid, delivered or accounted for by the master, the owner of the ship shall pay, deliver and account for the same, and such money and wages and the value of such effects shall be recoverable from him accordingly.

199. All money, wages and effects of any such seaman or apprentice dying during a voyage, shall be recoverable in the same court and by the same modes of proceeding by which seamen are, by this Part, enabled to recover wages due to them.

(2) Any shipping master who fails to report the receipt of such accounts, wages, money and effects to the Minister, or who fails to deliver or pay over such wages, money and effects as directed, shall be liable to be dismissed from his office.

200. Whenever any such seaman or apprentice dies in any of the provinces, and is, at the time of his death, entitled to claim from the master or owner of any such ship in which he has served any unpaid wages or effects, such master or owner shall pay and deliver or account for the same to the shipping master at the port where such seaman or apprentice was discharged or was to have been discharged, or to the Minister, or as the Minister directs.

201. In cases of wages or effects of deceased seamen and apprentices who belonged, at the time of their death, to ships registered in any of the provinces, received by any shipping master on behalf of the Government of Canada, to which no claim is substantiated within six years after the receipt thereof by such shipping master on behalf of the Government of Canada, it shall be in the absolute discretion of the Governor in Council, if any subsequent claim is made, either to allow or to refuse the same.

202. The Governor in Council may, subject to the provisions of this Part, from time to time, order and direct that any moneys arising from the unclaimed wages and effects of deceased seamen and apprentices, which, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, it is not necessary to detain for the purpose of satisfying claims, shall be paid to the Minister of Finance to form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

(2) Such moneys shall be applied as the Governor in Council directs.

Leaving Seamen Abroad.

203. Whenever any Canadian foreign sea-going ship is transferred or disposed of at any place out of His Majesty's dominions, and any seaman or apprentice belonging thereto does not, in the presence of some British consular officer, or, if there is no such consular officer there, in the presence of one or more respectable British merchants residing at the place and not interested in the said ship, signify his consent in writing to complete the voyage, if continued, and whenever the service of any seaman or apprentice belonging to any such ship terminates at any place out of His Majesty's dominions, the master shall give to each such seaman or apprentice a certificate of discharge and, in the case of any certificated-mate, whose certificate he has retained, shall return such certificate to him.

204. Such master shall also, besides paying the wages to which such seaman or apprentice is entitled,—

(a) either provide him with adequate employment on board some other British ship bound to the port in Canada or any other port in His Majesty's dominions at which he was originally shipped, or to such other port as is agreed upon by him; or,

(b) furnish the means of sending him back to such port, or provide him with a passage home, or deposit with such consular officer or such merchant or merchants as aforesaid, such a sum of money as is by such officer or merchants deemed sufficient to defray the expenses of his subsistence and passage home.

205. If the master refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of the last preceding section, such expenses, if defrayed by such consular officer or any other person, and the particulars of such payment, provision or deposit endorsed by him or them upon the agreement of the ship which the seaman or apprentice is leaving, shall, unless such seaman or apprentice has been guilty of barratry, be a charge upon the ship to which such seaman or apprentice belonged, and upon the owner for the time being thereof, and may be recovered with costs,—

(a) from such owner at the suit of the consular officer or other person defraying such expenses; or,

(b) if the same has been allowed to the consular officer out of the public moneys, as a debt due to His Majesty; by ordinary process of law, or in the manner in which seamen are hereby enabled to recover wages.

(2) Such expenses, if defrayed by the seaman or apprentice, shall be recoverable as wages due him.

206. Every master of a Canadian foreign sea-going ship, who leaves any seaman or apprentice on shore at any place out of Canada under a certificate of his unfitness or inability to proceed on the voyage, shall deliver to one of the functionaries aforesaid, or, in the absence of such functionaries, to the merchants by whom such certificate is signed, or, if there is but one respectable merchant resident at such place, to such merchant, a full and true account of the wages due to such seaman or apprentice, and shall pay the same in money whenever practicable so to do, or, if impracticable, by a bill drawn upon the owner.

(2) Such account, when delivered to the consular officer, shall be in duplicate.

(3) Whenever payment is made by bill drawn by the master, the owner of the ship shall be liable or pay the holder or endorsee thereof the amount for which the same is drawn.

(4) It shall not be necessary in any proceeding against the owner upon such bill to prove that the master had authority to draw the same.

(5) Any bill purporting to be drawn and endorsed in pursuance and as by this section required shall, if produced out of the custody of the Minister or of any shipping master, and any endorsement on any such bill purporting to be made in pursuance of this section and to be signed by one of the functionaries aforesaid shall be received in evidence, and such endorsement shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated.

207. (1) The Minister may, whenever he deems it necessary, pay, out of any moneys applicable to the relief of distressed seamen and appropriated by the Parliament of Canada for that purpose, such sums as he deems requisite for the temporary relief, in such manner as he deems advisable, of shipwrecked, destitute or otherwise distressed seamen not entitled to relief under any of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and may also, on the production of the bills of the disbursements with the proper vouchers and such other evidence as the Minister requires, pay out of such moneys any reasonable expenses incurred by the Board of Trade of the United Kingdom or by any officers of His Majesty in any British possession other than Canada or in any foreign country, on account of subsistence or transport back to Canada of any seamen or apprentices who have been domiciled in Canada for twelve months and who have been found in distress either on account of shipwreck or otherwise in any place out of Canada.

(2) Persons serving in ships registered in Canada shall for the purpose of this section be deemed to be domiciled in Canada while so serving. 1920, c. 38, s. 2.

208. If any seaman or apprentice belonging to any Canadian foreign sea-going ship is discharged or left behind at any place out of Canada, without full compliance on the part of the master with all the provisions in that behalf in this Part contained, and becomes distressed and is relieved under the provisions of this Part, all expenses incurred for his subsistence, necessary clothes, conveyance back to Canada, and burial in case he dies abroad before reaching Canada, shall be a charge upon the ship to which he belonged.

209. The Minister may, in the name, of His Majesty besides suing for any penalties which have been incurred, sue for and recover the said wages and expenses with costs, either from the master of such ship as aforesaid, or from the person who is owner thereof for the time being, in the same manner as other debts due to His Majesty, or in the same manner and by the same form and process in which wages due to the seamen would be recoverable by him.

(2) In any such proceeding, production of the account to be furnished as hereinbefore provided in such cases, together with proof of payment by the Board of Trade of the United Kingdom, or by the Government of Canada, of the charges incurred on account of any such seaman or apprentice, shall be sufficient evidence that he was relieved, conveyed home or buried, as the case may be, at the expense of the Government of the United Kingdom or of the Government of Canada.

Provisions, Health and Accommodation.

210. Any three or more of the crew of any ship registered in any of the provinces may complain to any officer in command of any of His Majesty's ships or any shipping master in Canada, that the provisions or water for the use of the crew are at any time of bad quality, unfit for use or deficient in quantity; and such officer may thereupon examine the said provisions or water, or cause them to be examined.

(2) If, on examination, such provisions or water are found to be of bad quality and unfit for use, or to be deficient in quantity, the person making such examination shall signify the same in writing to the master of the ship.

211. Upon every such examination, the officer making or directing the same shall enter a statement of the result of the examination in the log-book, and shall send a report thereof to the Minister.

(2) Such report, if produced out of the custody of the Minister or any officer of the Government, shall be received in evidence in any legal proceedings.

212. If the officer to whom any such complaint is made certifies in such statement that there was no reasonable ground for such complaint, each of the persons so complaining shall be liable to forfeit to the owner, out of his wages, a sum not exceeding one week's wages.

213. Whenever, during the voyage, the allowance of any of the provisions which any seaman has by his agreement stipulated for is reduced, or if it is shown that any of such provisions are or have during the voyage been bad in quality and unfit for use, the seaman shall receive, by way of compensation for such reduction or bad quality, according to the time of its continuance, in addition to and to be recoverable as wages,—

(a) if his allowance is reduced by any quantity not exceeding one-third of the quantity specified in the agreement an amount not exceeding eight cents a day; or,

(b) if his allowance is reduced by more than one-third of such quantity, sixteen cents a day; or,

(c) in respect of the bad quality of such provisions or of their unfitness for use, an amount not exceeding twenty-four cents a day;

Provided it is to the satisfaction of the court before which the case is tried, that any provisions the allowance of which has been reduced could not be procured or supplied in proper quantities, and that proper and equivalent substitutes were supplied in lieu thereof, the court shall take such circumstances into consideration, and shall modify or refuse compensation as the justice of the case requires.

(2) There shall be no allowance by way of compensation to any seaman,—

(a) where any such reduction is made in accordance with any regulation for reduction by way of punishment contained in the agreement; or,

(b) for any time during which such seaman wilfully and without sufficient cause refuses or neglects to perform his duty; or is lawfully under confinement for misconduct either on board or on shore.

214. Every master of a ship registered in any of the provinces shall keep on board proper weights and measures for the purpose of determining the quantities of the several provisions and articles served out, and shall allow the same to be used at the time of serving out such provisions and articles in the presence of a witness, whenever any dispute arises about such quantities.

Expenses in Case of Illness and Death.

215. If the master or any seaman or apprentice of any Canadian foreign sea-going ship,—

(a) receives any hurt or injury in the service of the ship to which he belongs, the expense of providing the necessary surgical and medical advice, with attendance and medicines, and of his subsistence until he is cured or dies, or is brought back to some port in the United Kingdom, if shipped in the United Kingdom, or to some port in Canada, if shipped in Canada, or in some other British possession, and of his conveyance to such port, and the expense of his burial; or

(b) is, on account of any illness, temporarily removed from his ship for the purpose of preventing infection or otherwise for the convenience of the ship, and subsequently returns to his duty, the expense of such removal and of providing the necessary advice with attendance and medicines and of his subsistence while away from his ship; shall be defrayed by the owner of such ship, without any deduction on that account from the wages of such master, seaman or apprentice.

(2) The expenses of all medicines and surgical and medical advice and attendance given to any master, seaman or apprentice of any Canadian foreign sea-going ship whilst on board his ship, shall be defrayed in like manner by the owner of such ship without any such deduction.

216. In all other cases, any reasonable expenses duly incurred by the owner for any seaman or apprentice in respect of any illness, or in respect of the burial of any seaman or apprentice who dies whilst on service, shall, if duly proved, be deducted from the wages of such seaman or apprentice.

217. If any such expenses in respect of the illness, injury or hurt of any seaman or apprentice belonging to any Canadian foreign sea-going ship as are to be borne by the owner are paid by any consular officer or any other person on behalf of His Majesty, or if any other expenses in respect of the illness, injury or hurt of any seaman or apprentice whose wages are not accounted for to such officer under the provisions hereinbefore contained in that behalf are so paid, such expenses shall be repaid to the officer or other person by the master of the ship.

(2) In case the same shall not be so repaid, the amount thereof, with costs, shall be a charge upon the ship, and be recoverable from the said master or from the owner of the ship, for the time being, as a debt due to His Majesty, by ordinary process of law, or in the manner provided in this Part for the recovery of seamen's wages.

(3) In any proceeding for the recovery thereof, the production of a certificate of the facts signed by such officer or other person, together with such vouchers as the case requires, shall be sufficient proof that such expenses were duly paid by such consular officer or other person.

Accommodation for Seamen and Apprentices on board Canadian Foreign Sea-going Ships.

218. Every place in any Canadian foreign sea-going ship occupied by seamen or apprentices and appropriated to their use shall have, for every such seaman or apprentice, a space of not less than seventy-two cubic feet, and of not less than twelve superficial feet, measured on the deck or floor of such place.

219. Every such place shall be such as to make the space aforesaid available for the proper accommodation of the men who are to occupy it, shall be securely constructed, properly lighted and ventilated, properly protected from weather and sea, and, as far as practicable, shall be properly shut off and protected from the effluvium caused by cargo or bilge water.

220. No such place shall be deemed to be such as to authorize a deduction from registered tonnage, under the provisions hereinafter contained, unless there is or are in the ship one or more properly constructed privy or privies for the use of the crew, which shall be of such number and of such construction as are approved by the surveyor hereinafter mentioned.

221. Every such place shall, whenever the ship is registered or re-registered, be inspected by one of the surveyors appointed by the Governor in Council under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, who shall, if satisfied that the same is in all respects such as is required by this Part, give to the collector of Customs a certificate to that effect, and thereupon such space shall be deducted from the registered tonnage.

222. No such deduction from tonnage shall be authorized unless there is permanently cut in a beam, and cut in or painted on or over the doorway or hatchway of every such place, with the words Certified to accommodate                      seamen, appropriately filled in, a figure or figures indicating the number of men which it is constructed to accommodate.

223. Every such place shall be kept free from stores or goods of any kind, which are not the personal property of the crew, in use during the voyage.

224. Upon any complaint concerning any such place, one of the surveyors appointed by the Governor in Council may inspect such place, and, if he finds that any of the provisions of this Part with respect to the same are not complied with, he shall report such non-compliance to the collector of Customs at the port where the ship is registered; and thereupon the registered tonnage shall be altered and the deduction aforesaid in respect of space disallowed, until it is certified by such surveyor, or by some other surveyor appointed by the Governor in Council, that the provisions of this Part in respect of such place are fully complied with.

225. If any such place in any such ship is not kept free from goods and stores, the master shall be deemed to be in fault, and shall, for every such failure to comply with the provisions of this Part regarding seamen's accommodation, pay to each seaman lodged in such place the sum of twenty-four cents a day for each day after complaint made to him by any two or more of such seamen during which any goods or stores, which are not the personal property of the crew, are stored or kept therein.

Power of Making Complaints.

226. If any seaman or apprentice whilst on board, in any of the provinces, any ship registered in any of the provinces states to the master that he desires to make a complaint to justice of the peace or naval officer in command of any of His Majesty's ships against the master or any of the crew, the master shall, if the ship is then at a place where there is a justice or any such officer as aforesaid, as soon as the service of the ship will permit, and, if the ship is not then at such a place, so soon after her arrival at such a place in any of the provinces as the service of the ship will permit, allow such seaman or apprentice to go ashore or send him ashore in proper custody, so that he may be enabled to make such complaint.

Inspection of Ships Ordered by Court.

227. Whenever, in any proceeding against any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces for desertion, or for neglecting or refusing to join or to proceed to sea or on any voyage in his ship, or for being absent from or quitting the same without leave, it is alleged by one-fourth the seamen belonging to such ship, or, if the number of men exceeds twenty, by at least five such seamen, that such ship is, by reason of unseaworthiness, overloading, improper loading, defective equipment, or for any other reason, not in a fit condition to proceed to sea on such voyage, or that the accommodation in such ship is insufficient, the court having cognizance of the case shall take such means as are in its power to satisfy itself concerning the truth or untruth of such allegation; and shall, for that purpose, receive the evidence of the person or persons making the same, and have power to summon any other witnesses whose evidence such court thinks it desirable to hear; and the court shall thereupon, if satisfied that the allegation is groundless, adjudicate accordingly, otherwise the court shall cause such ship to be surveyed.

228. No seaman or apprentice charged with desertion, or with quitting his ship without leave, shall have any right to apply for any such survey, unless, previously to his quitting his ship, he has complained to the master of the circumstances so alleged in justification.

229. For the purpose of such survey, the court may appoint and require any person having no interest in the ship, her freight or cargo whom the court deems competent to deal with the special circumstances of the case, to survey the ship, and to answer any question concerning her which the court thinks fit to put.

230. Such person shall survey the ship and make his report in writing to the court, including an answer to every question put to him by the court.

231. The court shall cause such report to be communicated to the parties, and, unless it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the opinions expressed in such report are erroneous, the court shall determine the questions before it in accordance with such opinions.

232. For the purpose of such survey, the person appointed to make the same may, in the execution of his duty, go on board the ship at any reasonable time, and may inspect the same or any part thereof, or any of the machinery, boats or other equipments, or cargo thereof, or any provisions or other articles on board thereof, the inspection of which appears to him to be requisite for the purpose of the inquiry he is required to make, and, if, for any reason, he considers it necessary so to do, may require the ship to be so dealt with that he may be able to inspect every part of the hull thereof, but shall not, in making such survey, unnecessarily detain or delay the ship from proceeding to sea or on her voyage.

233. The costs of the survey shall be determined by the court, and shall be paid by the master or owner of the ship, or by the recognized consignee or agent thereof, if such recognized consignee or agent has sufficient moneys in his hands received on account of such ship.

234. Every recognized consignee or agent of a ship, not being the owner or master of such ship, may, out of any moneys in his hands received on account of such ship, retain the amount of the costs so paid by him, together with any reasonable expenses he has incurred by reason of such payment and liability.

235. If it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the ship is in a fit condition to proceed to sea or on her voyage, or that the accommodation is sufficient, as the case may be, the costs of the survey may be deducted by the master or owner out of the wages due or to become due to the person or persons upon whose demand, or in consequence of whose allegation, the survey was made.

Protection of Seamen from Imposition.

236. No wages due or accruing to any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, shall be subject to attachment from any court; and every payment of wages to any such seaman or apprentice shall be valid in law, notwithstanding any previous sale or assignment of such wages or any attachment or encumbrance thereon.

237. No assignment or sale of such wages or of salvage made prior to the accruing thereof shall bind the person making the same.

(2) No power of attorney or authority for the receipt of any such wages or salvage shall be irrevocable.

238. No debt exceeding in amount one dollar incurred by any seaman belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, after he has engaged to serve, shall be recoverable until the service agreed for is concluded.

239. No debt exceeding the sum of one dollar, incurred by any seaman or apprentice shall be recoverable in any court or be pleadable by way of set-off by any keeper of a tavern, or house of public entertainment or lodging house.

240. The wearing apparel of any seaman or apprentice shall not be kept by any keeper of a tavern, house of public entertainment or lodging house, in pledge for any debt or expenses incurred to any greater amount than one dollar; and, on the payment or tender of such sum or of any less sum due, such wearing apparel shall be immediately given up, whatever is the amount due by such seaman or apprentice.

241. No person other than an owner, agent of an owner, or consignee of the ship or cargo, or a person in the employment of either of them, or an officer or person in His Majesty's service or employment, harbour master, deputy harbour master, health officer, Custom house officer, pilot, shipping master or deputy shipping master shall, without the permission or against the orders of the master or person in charge of such ship, go aboard of any merchant ship arriving or about to arrive from sea at the place of her destination before her actual arrival in dock, or at any quay or place of her discharge, or while she remains in port.

Change of Master.

242. If, during the progress of a voyage, the master of any Canadian foreign seagoing ship is superseded in any of the provinces, or, for any other reason, quits the ship and is succeeded in the command by some other person, he shall deliver to his successor the certificate of registry and the various documents relating to the navigation of the ship and to the crew thereof, which are in his custody.

(2) Such successor shall immediately, on assuming the command of the ship, enter in the log-book a list of the documents so delivered to him.

Log-book.

243. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship shall keep a log-book, and every entry to be made in such log-book shall be made as soon as possible after the occurrence to which it relates, and, if not made on the same date as the occurrence to which it relates, shall be made and dated so as to show the date of the occurrence, and of the entry respecting it.

(2) In no case shall any such entry therein, in respect of any occurrence happening previously to the arrival of the ship at her final port of discharge in any of the provinces, be made more than twenty-four hours after such arrival.

244. The master of such ship, whether he does or does not make in such log-book the entries usually made in ships' log-books, shall make or cause to be made therein entries of,—

- (a) every legal conviction of any member of his crew, and the punishment inflicted;
- (b) every offence committed by any member of his crew for which it is intended to prosecute, or to enforce a forfeiture, or to exact a fine, together with the statement concerning the reading over such entry and concerning the reply, if any, made to the charge;
- (c) Every offence for which punishment is inflicted on board, and the punishment inflicted;
- (d) the conduct, character and qualifications of each of his crew, or the fact that he declines to give an opinion on such particulars;
- (e) every case of illness or injury happening to any member of the crew, with the nature thereof, and the medical treatment adopted, if any;
- (f) every case of death happening on board and the cause thereof;
- (g) every birth happening on board, with the sex of the infant, and the names of the parents
- (h) every marriage which takes place on board, with the names and ages of the parties;
- (i) the name of every seaman and apprentice who ceases to be a member of the crew, otherwise than by death, with the place, time, manner and cause thereof;
- (j) the amount of wages due to any seaman who enters His Majesty's service during the voyage;
- (k) the wages due to any seaman or apprentice who dies during the voyage, and the gross amount of all deductions to be made therefrom;
- (l) the sale of the effects of any seaman or apprentice who dies during the voyage, including a statement of each article sold, and of the sum received for it;
- (m) every collision with any other ship, and the circumstances under which the same occurred.

245. Every entry required to be made in log-books shall be signed,—

- (a) in case of illness, injury or death, by the master and by the mate or some other member of the crew, and the surgeon or medical practitioner on board, if any;
- (b) in case of wages due to or of the sale of the effects of any seaman or apprentice who dies, by the master and by the mate and some other member of the crew;
- (c) in case of wages due any seaman who enters His Majesty's service, by the master and by the seaman or by the officer authorized to receive the seaman into such service; and,
- (d) in all other cases, by the master and the mate or some other member of the crew.

246. All entries made in any log-book, as hereinbefore directed, shall be received in evidence in any proceeding in any court of justice, subject to all just exceptions.

Inquiry into Causes of Death on Board.

247. Whenever any case of death happens on board any Canadian foreign sea-going ship, the shipping master shall, on the arrival of such ship at the port in any of the provinces where the crew is discharged, inquire into the cause of such death; and, if, in the course of such inquiry, it appears to him that any such death has been caused by violence or other improper means, he shall either report the matter to the Minister, or, if the emergency of the case so requires, shall take immediate steps for bringing the offender or offenders to justice.

Offences, Penalties and Forfeitures.

248. Every person who,—

(a) knowingly employs any person other than a shipping master or deputy shipping master for the purpose of hiring, engaging, supplying or providing seamen to be entered on board any ship, not being a Canadian home-trade ship or ship in the merchant service of a foreign country to which this Part by the provisions thereof does not as to hiring, engaging, supplying or providing seamen to be entered on board thereof, apply; or,

(b) not being a shipping master or deputy shipping master, hires, engages, supplies, or provides a seaman to be entered on board any such ship,— shall, notwithstanding several seamen are included in the same contract or several seamen are received or permitted to remain at the same time, for each and every seaman hired, engaged, supplied or provided to be entered on board such ship contrary to the provisions of this Part, incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars for each offence.

249. Every person, other than a shipping master or deputy shipping master, who exacts or receives from the master of any such ship, any sum of money as a reward for procuring, contrary to the provisions of this Part, a seaman to serve on board such ship, shall incur a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars and not less than twenty dollars.

250. Every shipping master or deputy shipping master, and every clerk or servant in any shipping office who demands or receives any remuneration, either directly or indirectly, for hiring or supplying any seaman for any ship, over and above the lawful fees payable under this Part, shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars, and shall also be liable to be dismissed from his office by the Governor in Council.

251. Every owner, part owner, master, person in charge of any ship, ship's husband or consignee, who knowingly receives or accepts to be entered on board such ship or permits to remain on board the same, any seaman who has been hired, engaged, supplied or provided to be entered on board thereof contrary to the provisions of this Part, or who has been engaged or hired to be entered on board any other ship, shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars for each offence, notwithstanding that several seamen are received or accepted to be entered on board such ship or are permitted to remain on board at the same time.

252. Every master or other person belonging to a British merchant ship, who, when duly called upon for the purpose of giving assistance by any shipping master or deputy shipping master appointed under this Part, omits or refuses to give any answer or information concerning reserve men towards carrying into effect the objects of the Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom, passed in the session held in the twenty-second and twenty-third years of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, chapter forty, which it is in his power to give, shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

253. (a) Every person to whom any boy is bound as an apprentice, who, within seven days after the execution of the indenture, fails to take or transmit such indenture to the shipping master nearest to the residence of the person to whom the boy is bound; or,

(b) The shipping master who fails to cause such indenture to be copied in a book kept in his office and open to public inspection free of any charge, or to indorse on the indenture that it has been so recorded, or to redeliver the same to the master of the apprentice, and,

(c) The master of any apprentice, whenever any such indenture is assigned or cancelled, or any such apprentice dies or deserts, who, within thirty days after such assignment, cancellation, death or desertion, if the same happens within Canada, or if the same happens elsewhere, so soon afterwards as circumstances permit, fails to notify the same to the said shipping master; shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

254. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship who, before carrying any apprentice to sea from any place in any of the provinces, fails to cause such apprentice to appear before the shipping master before whom the crew is engaged and to produce the indenture by which such apprentice is bound and the assignment or assignments thereof, if any, and to have the name of the apprentice with the date of the indenture and of the assignments thereof, if any, and the name of the port or ports at which the same has been registered, entered on the indenture, shall, for each offence, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

255. The master of every Canadian foreign sea-going ship of which the crew has been engaged before a shipping master in Canada who, before finally leaving Canada, fails to sign and send to the shipping master before whom the crew was engaged, a full and accurate statement of every change which takes place in his crew before finally leaving Canada, shall, for each offence, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

256. Every master of a ship registered in any of the provinces of over eighty tons register exclusively employed in trading between any port or place in any of the provinces and any port or place in any other of the provinces who carries any seaman to sea, apprentices excepted, without entering into an agreement with him in the form and manner, and at the place and time in such case required, shall, for each such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

257. If any ship of any tonnage register attempts to go from any port or to sea without complying with all the requirements of this Part, the master of such ship shall incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars.

258. Every person who fraudulently alters, assists in fraudulently altering, or procures to be fraudulently altered, or makes or assists in making, or procures to be made any false entry in, or delivers, assists in delivering or procures to be delivered, a false copy of any agreement made under this Part, is guilty of an indictable offence.

259. Every master who makes a wilfully false statement in any credible letter intended for use in any proceeding on an allotment note for the recovery of a seaman's wages, to the effect that a seaman has left his ship and has ceased to be entitled to the wages out of which any allotment is to be paid, shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars.

260. Any master, or owner or consignee of any ship registered in any of the provinces, other than a Canadian home-trade ship, who discharges any seaman belonging thereto, or, except in cases where some competent court otherwise directs, pays the wages of such seaman within any of the provinces otherwise than in the presence of a shipping master, shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

261. Every master who, before paying off or discharging any seaman in any of the provinces from a ship registered in any of the provinces, other than a Canadian home-trade ship of less than eighty tons, fails to deliver to such seaman, or, if such seaman is to be discharged before a shipping master, to such shipping master, a full and true account of his wages and of all deductions to be made therefrom, shall, for each offence, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

262. The master of any ship registered in any of the provinces, other than a Canadian home-trade ship of less than eighty tons, who, upon the discharge in any of the provinces of any seaman belonging to his ship, or upon payment of the wages of any such seaman, if he requires the same, fails to sign and deliver to such seaman a certificate of his discharge in form K, specifying the period of his service and the time and place of his discharge, with a report thereon of the conduct, character and qualifications of the person discharged, during the period he has been in his employment, or stating thereon that he declines to give any opinion upon such particulars or upon any of them, shall, for each such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

263. Every owner, agent, master, mate or other member of the crew, who, when called upon by the shipping master to produce any log-book, papers or other documents in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in any proceeding as to the wages, claims or discharge of any seaman belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, carried on before such shipping master under this Part, or to appear and give evidence, does not produce any such log-book, papers or other document, or does not appear and give evidence, shall, unless he shows a reasonable excuse for such default, incur for each such offence a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

264. If any master of a Canadian foreign sea-going ship fails to take charge of the money or other effects of any seaman or apprentice dying during a voyage which was to terminate in any of the provinces, or to make in the log-book the entry thereof, or to procure such attestation to such entries, or to make such payment or delivery of any money, wages or effects of any such seaman or apprentice dying during a voyage, or to give such account in respect thereof as in this Part respectively directed, he shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding treble the value of the money or effects not so accounted for, or, if such value is not ascertained, not exceeding two hundred dollars, and, if the owner of the ship fails to account for and pay the same, he shall, in addition to his liability for the said money and value, incur the same penalty.

265. Every master or other person belonging to any Canadian foreign sea-going ship, who wrongfully forces on shore and leaves behind, or otherwise wilfully and wrongfully leaves behind in any place on shore or at sea, in or out of His Majesty's dominions, any seaman or apprentice belonging to such ship before the return of the ship to Canada, or the completion of the voyage for which such person was engaged, is guilty of an indictable offence.

266. Every master of a Canadian foreign sea-going ship, who,—

(a) discharges any seaman or apprentice in any place situate in the United Kingdom or in any British possession other than Canada, without previously obtaining the sanction in writing of a public shipping master or other officer duly appointed by the Government in that behalf, or, in the absence of such functionary, of the chief officer of Customs resident at or near the place where the discharge takes place and without having such sanction endorsed on the agreement; or,

(b) discharges any seaman or apprentice at any place out of His Majesty's dominions without previously obtaining the sanction so endorsed as aforesaid of the British consular officer there, or, in his absence, of two respectable merchants resident there; or,

(c) leaves behind any seaman or apprentice at any place situate in the United Kingdom or in any British possession other than Canada, on any ground whatsoever, without previously obtaining a certificate in writing so endorsed as aforesaid from such officer or person as aforesaid, stating the fact and the cause thereof, whether such cause is unfitness or inability to proceed to sea, or desertion or disappearance; or,

(d) leaves behind any seaman or apprentice at any place out of His Majesty's dominions, on shore or at sea, on any ground whatsoever, without previously obtaining the certificate endorsed in the manner and to the effect last aforesaid of the British consular officer there, or in his absence, of two respectable merchants, if there are any at or near the place where the ship then is, is guilty of an indictable offence.

267. Upon the trial of any information, indictment or other proceeding against any person for discharging or leaving behind any seaman or apprentice contrary to the provisions of this Part, it shall lie upon such person either to produce the sanction or certificate hereby required by this Part in that behalf, or to prove that he had obtained the same previously to having discharged or left behind such seaman or apprentice, or that it was impracticable for him to obtain such sanction or certificate.

268. Every master of a Canadian foreign-sea going ship who refuses or neglects to deliver a full account of the wages due to any seaman or apprentice left on shore at any place out of Canada, under a certificate of his unfitness or inability to proceed on the voyage, and to pay the amount thereof in money or by bill as by this Part required, shall, for every such offence or default, be liable, in addition to the payment of the wages, to a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

(2) Every such master who delivers a false account of such wages shall, for every such offence, be liable, in addition to the payment of wages, to a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars.

269. Every master of any ship registered in any of the provinces who, upon it being signified to him by any officer in command of any of His Majesty's ships, or any shipping master in Canada, on any examination made in that behalf, that the provisions or water for the use of the crew are of bad quality, unfit for use or deficient in quantity, does not thereupon provide other provisions or water or, in case of deficiency, procure the requisite quantity of any such provisions or water, or uses any provisions or water which have been signified as aforesaid to be of bad quality and unfit for use, shall, in every such case, incur a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars.

270. Every master of a ship registered in any of the provinces who fails to keep on board proper weights and measures for the purpose of determining the quantities of the several provisions and articles served out, or to allow the same to be used at the time of serving out such provisions and articles, in the presence of a witness, whenever any dispute arises about such quantities, shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

271. If, in any respect except as aforesaid, the provisions of this Part relating to accommodation for seaman and apprentices on board Canadian foreign sea-going ships are not observed with respect to any place in any such ship, the owner shall be deemed to be in fault, and shall, for every failure to comply with such provisions, incur a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars.

272. Every master of any ship registered in any of the provinces who, upon statement to him made by any seaman or apprentice whilst on board such ship, in any of the provinces that he desires to make complaint to a justice of the peace, or naval officer in command of any of His Majesty's ships, against such master or any of the crew, fails,—

(a) if the ship is then at a place where there is any such justice or any such officer as aforesaid, as soon as the service of the ship will permit; or,

(b) if the ship is not then at such a place, so soon after her first arrival at such a place in any of the provinces as the service of the ship will permit; to allow such seaman or apprentice to go ashore or send him ashore in proper custody, so that he may be enabled to make such complaint, shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

273. Every person who demands and receives of and from any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces payment in respect of his board or lodging in the house of such person for a longer period than such seaman or apprentice has actually resided and boarded therein, shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

274. Every person who receives or takes into his possession or under his control any moneys, documents or effects of any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, and does not return the same, or pay the value thereof when required so to do by such seaman or apprentice, after deducting therefrom what is justly due and owing in respect of the board and lodging of such seaman or apprentice, or who absconds therewith, shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars over and above the amount or value of such moneys, documents or effects, after such deductions as aforesaid, to be forthwith paid to such seaman.

279. Every person who being on board any ship at any time after her arrival from sea at any port in any of the provinces, solicits any seaman to become a lodger at the house of any person letting lodgings for hire, or who takes from and out of such ship any chest, bedding or other effects of any seaman without the permission of the master or person in charge of such ship, shall, for every such offence, be liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment with hard labour for a term not exceeding ninety days and not less than sixty days.

280. Every master of any Canadian foreign sea-going ship who, during the progress of a voyage is superseded in any of the provinces, or, for any other reason, quits the ship, and is succeeded in the command by some other person, shall, if he fails to deliver to his successor the certificate of registry and the various documents relating to the navigation of the ship and to the crew thereof which are in his custody, incur a penalty not exceeding four hundred dollars.

281. The master of any Canadian foreign sea-going ship on which a log-book is not kept in the manner required by this Part, or in which, if kept, any entry in this Part directed to be made in such log-book is not made at the time and in the manner by this Part directed, shall, for each such offence, incur the specific penalty in this Part mentioned in respect thereof, and, where there is no specific penalty, a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

282. Every person who makes or procures to be made, or assists in making any entry in any log-book in respect of any occurrence happening previously to the arrival of the ship at the final port of discharge in any of the provinces more than twenty-four hours after such arrival shall, for each such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

283. Every person who wilfully destroys or mutilates or renders illegible any entry, or makes any false entry or omission in any such log-book, is guilty of an indictable offence.

284. The master or keeper of any tavern or house of public entertainment, or house of ill-fame or any other house who refuses or neglects to comply, within the time specified therein, with any order in writing of any justice of the peace, made under the authority of this Part, commanding him to furnish such justice of the peace with a correct list of every person lodged or harboured in his house, stating his name and surname as far as known to such master or keeper of such tavern or other house of public entertainment or house of ill-fame, how long he has lodged in the said house, and the name of the ship on board whereof he has declared himself to have arrived at the port or place, or, who knowingly delivers a false account of any such person, shall incur a penalty of forty dollars for each such offence.

285. Any person being in or having charge of any tavern, inn, ale-house, beer-house, seaman's boarding-house or other house or place of entertainment, house of ill-fame, shop or other place wherein liquors or refreshments are sold or reputed to be sold, whether legally or illegally, who refuses, or, after due demand, fails to admit into the same, or offers any obstruction to his admission thereto, any police officer or constable required under the provisions of this Part to give assistance to the master or any mate, or the owner, ship's husband or consignee of any ship in apprehending with or without a warrant any seaman or apprentice duly engaged to serve in such ship and neglecting or refusing to proceed to sea therein, or found otherwise absenting himself therefrom without leave, shall for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars and not less than ten dollars.

Discipline.

286. Every master of, or any seaman or apprentice belonging to, any ship registered in any of the provinces, who by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, does any act tending to the immediate loss, destruction or serious damage of such ship, or tending immediately to endanger the life or limb of any person belonging to or on board of such ship, or who, by wilful breach of duty, or by neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, refuses or omits to do any lawful act proper and requisite to be done by him for preserving such ship from immediate loss, destruction or serious damage, or for preserving any person belonging to or on board of such ship from immediate danger to life or limb is guilty of an indictable offence.

287. If a seaman or apprentice lawfully engaged or bound to any ship, registered in any of the provinces at the time of the offense, commits any of the following offences, he shall be liable, on summary conviction. 1907, c. 46, s. 1.

(a) for desertion, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve weeks and not less than eight weeks with hard labour, and also to forfeit all or any part of the clothes and effects he leaves on board, and all or any part of the wages or emoluments which he has then earned; and, if such desertion takes place abroad, at the discretion of the court, to forfeit all or any part of the wages or emoluments he earns in any other ship in which he is employed until his next return to any of the provinces, and to satisfy any excess of wages paid by the master or owner of the ship from which he deserts to any substitute engaged in his place at a higher rate of wages than the rate stipulated to be paid to him;

(b) for neglecting or refusing, without reasonable cause, to join his ship or to proceed to sea, or on any voyage in his ship, or for absence without leave at any time within twenty-four hours of the ship's sailing from any port either at the commencement or during the progress of any voyage, or for absence at any time without leave and without sufficient reason, from the ship or from his duty not amounting to desertion or not treated as such by the master, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding ten weeks and, not less than four weeks, with or without hard labour, and also, in the discretion of the court, to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding the amount of two days' pay, and, in addition for every twenty-four hours of absence, either a sum not exceeding six days' pay, or any expenses which have been properly incurred in hiring a substitute;

(c) for quitting the ship without leave after her arrival in her port of delivery, and before she is placed in security, to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding one month's pay;

(d) for wilful disobedience to any lawful command, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding four weeks and not less than two weeks, with or without hard labour; and also, in the discretion of the court, to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding two days' pay;

(e) for continued wilful disobedience to lawful commands or continued wilful neglect of duty, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve weeks and not less than four weeks, with or without hard labour; and also, at the discretion of the court, to forfeit for every twenty-four hours continuance of such disobedience or neglect, either a sum not exceeding six days' pay, or any expenses which have been properly incurred in hiring a substitute;

(f) for assaulting any master or mate, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve weeks and not less than six weeks, with hard labour;

(g) for combining with any other or others of the crew to disobey lawful commands, or to neglect duty, or to impede the navigation of the ship or the progress of the voyage, to imprisonment with hard labour for any term not exceeding twelve weeks and not less than six weeks;

(h) for wilfully damaging the ship or embezzling or wilfully damaging any of her stores or cargo, to forfeit out of his wages a sum equal in value to the loss thereby sustained, and also, at the discretion of the court, to imprisonment with hard labour for any term not exceeding twelve weeks and not less than six weeks;

(i) for any act of smuggling of which he is convicted and whereby loss or damage is occasioned to the master or owner, to pay to such master or owner such sum as is sufficient to reimburse the master or owner for such loss or damage; and to have the whole or a proportionate part of his wages retained in satisfaction or on account of such liability, without prejudice to any further remedy.

288. Upon the commission of any of the offences enumerated in the last preceding section, an entry thereof shall be made in the log-book, and shall be signed by the master and also by the mate or one of the crew.

(2) The offender, if he is still in the ship, shall, before the next subsequent arrival of the ship at any port, or, if she is at the time in port, before her departure therefrom either be furnished with a copy of such entry or have the same read over distinctly and audibly to him, and may thereupon make such reply thereto as he thinks fit and a statement that a copy of the said entry has been so furnished, or that the same has been so read over, and the reply, if any, made by the offender shall likewise be entered and signed in manner aforesaid.

(3) In any legal proceeding, such entries shall, if practicable, be produced or proved, and, in default of such production or proof, the court hearing the case may, in its discretion, refuse to receive evidence of the offence.

289. Every seafaring person whom the master of any Canadian foreign sea-going ship is, under the authority of any Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom or of any Act of the Parliament of Canada, compelled to take on board and convey, and every person who goes to sea in any such ship without the consent of the master or owner or other person entitled to give such consent shall, so long as he remains in such ship, be subject to the same laws and regulations for preserving discipline and to the same penalties and punishments for offences constituting or tending to a breach of discipline, to which he would be subject if he was a member of the crew and had signed the agreement.

290. Whenever, either at the commencement or during the progress of any voyage, any seaman or apprentice neglects or refuses to proceed to sea in any ship registered in any of the provinces in which he is duly engaged to serve, or is found otherwise absenting himself therefrom without leave, the master or any mate, or the owner, ship's husband or consignee may in any place in any of the provinces, with or without the assistance of the local police officers or constables, who shall give such assistance if required, arrest him without first procuring a warrant; and may thereupon, in any case, and shall, in case such seaman so requires, and it is practicable, convey him before some court capable of taking cognizance of the matter, to be dealt with according to law; and may for the purpose of conveying him before such court, detain him in custody for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours, or, if he does not so require, or if there is no such court at or near the place, at once convey him on board.

(2) If any such arrest appears to the court before which the case is brought to have been made on improper or insufficient grounds, the master, mate, owner, ship's husband, or consignee who makes the same or causes the same to be made shall incur a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars.

(3) Such penalty, if inflicted, shall be a bar to any action for false imprisonment in respect of such arrest.

291. Whenever any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces is brought before any court in any of the provinces, on the ground of his having neglected or refused to join or proceed to sea in any ship in which he is engaged to serve, or of having deserted or otherwise absented himself therefrom without leave, such court may, if the master or owner or his agents so requires, instead of committing the offender to prison, cause him to proceed on board for the purpose of proceeding on the voyage, or deliver him to the master or any mate of the ship or the owner or his agent, to be by him so conveyed, and may, in such case, order any costs and expenses properly incurred by or on behalf of the master or owner by reason of the offence, to be paid by the offender, and, if necessary, to be deducted from any wages which he has then earned, or which, by virtue of his then existing engagement, he may afterwards earn.

292. If any seaman or apprentice is imprisoned in any of the provinces on the ground of his having neglected or refused to join or to proceed to sea in any ship registered in any of the provinces in which he is engaged to serve, or his having deserted or otherwise absented himself without leave, or of his having committed any other breach of discipline, and, if, during such imprisonment and before his engagement is at an end, his services are required on board his ship, any justice may, at the request of the master or of the owner or his agent, cause such seaman or apprentice to be conveyed on board his said ship for the purpose of proceeding on the voyage, or to be delivered to the master or any mate of the ship, or to the owner or his agent, to be by him so conveyed, notwithstanding that the period for which he was sentenced to imprisonment has not terminated.

293. Whenever a question arises in any of the provinces whether the wages of any seaman or apprentice, belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces, are forfeited for desertion, it shall be sufficient for the person insisting on the forfeiture to show that such seaman or apprentice was duly engaged in or that he belonged to the ship from which he is alleged to have deserted, and that he quitted such ship, before the completion of the voyage or engagement, and that an entry of the desertion has been duly made in the log-book; and thereupon the desertion shall, so far as relates to any forfeiture of wages or emoluments under the provisions hereinbefore contained, be deemed to be proved, unless the seaman or apprentice can produce a proper certificate of discharge, or can show otherwise to the satisfaction of the court that he had sufficient reasons for leaving the ship.

294. Whenever, in any proceeding in any of the provinces relating to seamen's wages, it is shown that any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces has, in the course of the voyage, been convicted of any offence by any competent tribunal, and rightfully punished therefor by imprisonment or otherwise, the court hearing the case may direct a part of the wages due to such seaman or apprentice, not exceeding twelve dollars, to be applied in reimbursing any costs properly incurred by the master in procuring such conviction or punishment.

295. Whenever any seaman belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces contracts for wages by the voyage or by the run or by the share, and not by the month or other stated period of time, the amount of forfeiture to be incurred under this Part shall, in fixing the same, be taken to be an amount bearing the same proportion to the whole wages or share as a month or such other stated period of time, as the case may be, bears to the whole time spent in the voyage; and, if the whole time spent in the voyage does not exceed the period for which the pay is to be forfeited, the forfeiture shall extend to the whole wages or share.

296. All clothes, effects, wages and emoluments which, under this Part, are forfeited for desertion shall be applied in the first instance in or towards the reimbursement of the expenses occasioned by such desertion to the master or owner of the ship from which the desertion has taken place; and such wages or emoluments may, if earned subsequently to the desertion, be recovered by such master, or by the owner or his agent, in the same manner as the deserter might have recovered the same if they had not been forfeited; and in any legal proceeding relating to such wages the court may order the same to be paid accordingly, subject to such reimbursement.

(2) Such wages, when so recovered, shall be paid to the Minister of Finance, to form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

(3) In all cases of forfeiture of wages under this Part other than for desertion, the forfeiture shall, in the absence of any specific directions to the contrary, inure to the benefit of the master or owner by whom the wages are payable.

297. Any question concerning the forfeiture of or deductions from the wages of any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship registered in any of the provinces may be determined in any proceeding, in any of the provinces, lawfully instituted with respect to such wages, notwithstanding that the offence in respect of which such question arises, though hereby made punishable by imprisonment as well as by forfeiture, has not been made the subject of any criminal proceeding.

298. If any seaman, on or before being engaged in any of the provinces in any ship registered in any of the provinces wilfully and fraudulently makes a false statement of the name of his last ship or last alleged ship, or wilfully and fraudulently makes a false statement of his own name, he shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars; and such penalty may be deducted from any wages he earns by virtue of such engagement as aforesaid, and shall, subject to reimbursement of the loss and expenses, if any, occasioned by any previous desertion, be paid and applied in the same manner as other penalties payable under this Part.

299. Whenever any seaman belonging to any Canadian foreign sea-going ship commits an act of misconduct for which his agreement imposes a fine, and which it is intended to punish by enforcing such fine, an entry thereof shall be made in the log-book, and a copy of such entry shall be furnished, or the same shall be read over to the offender; and an entry of such reading over, and the reply, if any, made by the offender, shall be made in the manner and subject to the conditions specified in this Part with respect to the offences against discipline specified in and punishable under this Part.

300. The master or owner of every such ship shall, if the offender is discharged in Canada, and the offences and such entries in respect thereof as aforesaid are proved to the satisfaction of the shipping master before whom the offender is discharged, deduct such fine from the wages of the offender, and pay the same over to such shipping master; and if, before the final discharge in Canada of the crew of any such ship, any such offender has entered into any of His Majesty's ships, or has been discharged abroad, and the offence and such entries have been proved to the satisfaction of the officer in command of the ship into which he so enters, or of the consular officer, officer of Customs or other person by whose sanction he has been so discharged, and the fine has thereupon been deducted as aforesaid, and an entry of such deduction has then been made in the log-book, if any, and signed by such officer or other person, under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, then, on the return of the ship to Canada, pay over such fine to the shipping master before whom the crew is discharged.

(2) Every master or owner who neglects or refuses to pay over any such fine in manner aforesaid, shall, for each offence, incur a penalty not exceeding six times the amount of the fine retained by him.

(3) No act of misconduct for which any such fine has been inflicted and paid shall be otherwise punished under the provisions of this Part.

Enticing to Desert and Harbours Deserters.

301. Every person who, by any means whatsoever, persuades or attempts to persuade any seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship to neglect or refuse to join or to proceed to sea in or to desert from his ship, or to absent himself from his duty, shall be liable, for the first offence, to imprisonment with hard labour for a term not exceeding six months, and not less than three months; and for any subsequent offence, to imprisonment, with hard labour, for a term not exceeding twelve months and not less than six months.

302. Every person, who wilfully harbours or secretes any such seaman or apprentice, knowing or having reason to believe that such seaman or apprentice has deserted from or wilfully neglected or refused to join his ship shall be liable to imprisonment with hard labour for a term not exceeding six months and not less than three months, and, for any subsequent offence, for a term not exceeding twelve months and not less than six months.

Punishment of Stowaways.

303. Every person who secretes himself, and goes to sea in any ship registered in any of the provinces without the consent of either the owner, consignee or master, or of a mate, or of any other person in charge of such ship, or of any other person entitled to give such consent, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding four weeks.

Procedure.

304. No conviction for any offence shall be made in any summary proceeding under this Part, unless such proceeding is commenced,—

(a) within six months after the commission of the offence; or,

(b) if both or either of the parties to such proceeding are during such six months, out of the provinces, or not within the jurisdiction of any court capable of dealing with the case, then within two months after they both first shall be at one time within any of the provinces, or within such jurisdiction.

305. No order for the payment of money shall be made in any summary proceeding under this Part, unless such proceeding is commenced,—

- (a) within six months after the cause of complaint arises, or,
- (b) if both or either of the parties are, during such time, out of the provinces, then within six months after they both first shall be at one time within any of the said provinces.

306. Any judge of the Superior Court of the province of Quebec, judge of the sessions of the peace, judge of a county court, police magistrate or stipendiary magistrate shall, for the purposes of all proceedings under this Part, have all the powers of two justices of the peace under the Criminal Code, and may try and determine in a summary way all offences punishable under this Part, whether by fine, penalty or imprisonment, or by both fine or penalty and imprisonment.

- (2) Any two justices of the peace shall have the like jurisdiction.

307. All the provisions of Part XV of the Criminal Code respecting summary proceedings shall apply to and govern proceedings against any person for any offence under this Part.

308. In all cases of complaints made by or on behalf of any seaman under this Part, such seaman shall, in any case where he has been examined, receive such part of any penalty imposed as the judge, magistrate or justices before whom the case is heard adjudges him to receive for any moneys or effects which appear to have been deposited by him with any such offender as aforesaid.

309. All penalties imposed by this Part may be recovered with costs, and shall be paid over to the Minister of Finance to be disposed of as the Governor in Council directs, except such part of any penalty as a judge, magistrate or justices before whom the case is heard adjudges to any seaman.

- (2) Such penalties shall, in case of non-payment, be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels by warrant under the hand and seal of the convicting judge, magistrate or justices directed to a constable or other peace officer.

- (3) The overplus, if any, after deducting the penalty and costs of suit, together with the expenses of the distress and sale, shall be returned to the owner.

- (4) For want of sufficient distress, the offender shall be committed for a term not exceeding six months by warrant, under the hand and seal of the judge, magistrate or justices to the common gaol of the locality, or, if there is no common gaol there, then to that common gaol which is nearest to that locality.

310. There shall be no appeal from any conviction or order adjudged or made under this Part, for any offence against this Part; and no conviction under this Part shall be quashed for want of form.

311. No warrant of commitment under this Part shall be held void by reason of any defect therein, if it is therein alleged that the person has been convicted, and there is a good and valid conviction to sustain the same.

312. The proceedings upon any conviction or order shall not be stayed by reason of any application to remove such conviction or order to a superior court or of any notice of such application, unless the court or judge to whom the application is made or is to be made shall order such stay of proceedings upon special cause shown.

313. In case no judge, having jurisdiction in respect of writs of certiorari, is resident at or near the place where any conviction or order is made, a county court judge of the county or district wherein such place is situate, shall have power to hear and determine any application for a stay of proceedings upon such conviction or order.

314. Any justice of the peace at any port or place in any of the provinces, on complaint before him on oath that any seaman or apprentice in the sea service is concealed or secreted in any dwelling-house or out-house, or on board of any ship or elsewhere, shall grant a warrant under his hand and seal, addressed to a constable or constables there, commanding him or them to make diligent and immediate search, in or about such dwelling-house or out-house, or on board such ship, or in such other place or places as are specified in the warrant, and to bring before him every such seaman or apprentice found concealed, whether named in the warrant or not.

315. Any justice of the peace, at any port or place in any of the provinces, on information before him under oath that any seaman or other person has deserted, or is suspected of having deserted from any of His Majesty's ships or from any ship in the merchant service, and is lodged or harboured in any tavern or house of public entertainment, or in any house of ill-fame or in any other house, may issue an order in writing to the master or keeper of such tavern, house of public entertainment, house of ill-fame, or other house, commanding such such master or keeper to furnish him with a correct list of every such person, stating,—

- (a) his name and surname, as far as is known to such master or keeper of such tavern or other house of public entertainment or house of ill-fame;
- (b) how long he has lodged in the said house; and,
- (c) the name of the ship on board whereof he has declared himself to have arrived at the port or place.

316. Whenever the person giving such information on oath seeks to obtain such order against any person who is not a master or keeper of such tavern or house of public entertainment or house of ill-fame, such order shall not be given by any justice of the peace unless the person giving the information deposes on oath that he verily believes,—

- (a) that such person, not so being master or keeper of such tavern or house of entertainment or house of ill-fame, then harbours or conceals such deserter or person suspected of desertion; and,

(b) knows that the person who has so deserted is unlawfully and improperly absenting himself from his duty on board the vessel to which he belongs.

317. Every constable and officer, not being a paid policemen, employed in the execution of any warrant for the apprehension of, or in search of, or for the delivery of any person against whom a warrant is issued by virtue of the foregoing sections of this Part, may demand from the person at whose request such warrant was issued, a reasonable recompense for the time he has been employed, subject to be taxed by the justice of the peace who issued such warrant.

(2) In cases within the jurisdiction of the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side, such recompense shall be taxed according to the legal procedure of that court.

(3) On refusal of payment, such recompense shall be recoverable in a summary way by warrant of distress and sale of such person's goods and chattels, which warrant every such justice of the peace shall grant under his hand and seal, on proof of such refusal of payment.

318. In any proceeding before any court under this Part, if an application is made on behalf of the defendant or of the prosecutor, upon sufficient cause, to adjourn the case to a future day, the court, in its discretion, may receive and may cause to be reduced to writing the evidence of such witnesses for the defence or for the prosecution as are then present or can be produced, and may thereupon discharge such witnesses from further attendance, and may continue the case for the completion of the trial thereof to such further day as such court appoints for that purpose.

319. The examination of any seaman liable to be obliged to leave the province in which any offence against this Part is prosecuted, or of any witness sick, infirm or about to leave such province, may be taken de bene esse before any commissioner or other proper authority, in the like manner as depositions in civil cases are taken.

320. Any police officer or constable required under this Part to give assistance to the master or any mate, or the owner, ship's husband or consignee of any ship in apprehending, with or without a warrant, any seaman or apprentice duly engaged to serve in such ship and neglecting or refusing to proceed to sea therein, or found otherwise absenting himself therefrom without leave, may, at any time, enter into any tavern, inn, ale-house, beer-house, seaman's boarding-house or other house or place of entertainment, or into any shop or other place wherein liquors or refreshments are sold or reputed to be sold, whether legally or illegally, or into any house of ill-fame.

321. Nothing in this Part shall authorize or justify the execution of any warrant or process of justices of the peace within the jurisdiction of the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side in any of the provinces, unless such execution has been previously authorized by the judge or local judge of such court having jurisdiction within the province.

Foreign Ships.

322. The foregoing provisions of this Part relating to the shipping of seamen shall extend and apply to ships in the merchant service of every foreign country, and to all persons in relation to such ships in the same manner as the same extend and apply to ships in the British merchant service, and to similar persons in relation to such last-mentioned ships, unless there is something in the terms of some existing treaty between His Majesty and such foreign country to prevent the said provisions or any of them from so extending and applying.

323. In so far as is consistent with the provisions of any Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom in force in Canada, and with the terms of existing treaties between His Majesty and foreign powers respectively, and the rights, privileges and immunities secured to the consuls, vice-consuls, commercial and other duly accredited agents, subjects and citizens of such foreign powers respectively, the foregoing provisions of this Part relating to desertion of seamen and apprentices shall extend and apply to ships in the merchant service of foreign countries and to all persons in relation to such ships, in the same manner as the same extend and apply to ships in the British merchant service, and to similar persons in relation to such last-mentioned ships.

324. The oath of the master of any such foreign merchant ship, or of any officer or person employed on board thereof, or on board any other ship of the same country that, to the best of his belief and understanding, any seaman or other person is bound to serve on board such ship, according to the law of the country to which such ship belongs, or of the place where such seaman or other person was hired, shall be prima facie evidence that he is legally bound to serve on board such ship within the meaning of this Part, although he has not regularly entered into or signed articles of agreement, and is not bound by articles of indenture in the manner required by law with regard to seamen and others engaged or bound to serve on board British ships.

325. No judge, magistrate or justice of the peace shall,—

(a) entertain or act upon any complaint or information under this Part, by or against any person belonging to or connected with any such foreign merchant ship, who is not a subject of His Majesty; or,

(b) exercise jurisdiction under this Part over or at the instance of any such person; without the consent of both parties to such complaint or information, or the consent in writing of the consul, vice-consul, or commercial or other duly accredited agent of the country to which such ship belongs, unless the parties to such complaint or information are subjects or citizens of a country or countries by the terms of treaties in force between His Majesty's Government and the government or governments of which country or countries it is stipulated that the assistance of British courts and magistrates shall be granted to the subjects or citizens of such countries, or one of such parties is a subject or citizen of any such country, and the other is a subject of His Majesty.

Seamen on Inland Waters.

Sick and Distressed Mariners.

Interpretation.

Chapter 113 with amendment.—381. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Minister" means the Minister named by the Governor in Council to administer this Part ;—

(b) "Sick mariner" includes any person employed on board of any ship on which duty has been paid, as provided by this Act, who from sickness or accident is in need of medical or surgical assistance and treatment. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

Hospitals.

382. (1) The Minister may, with the approval of the Governor in Council, rent, and equip and maintain, premises for hospitals for the care and treatment of sick mariners, and may, with the consent of the persons having the control and management of any hospital, designate such hospital to be, during his pleasure, a hospital for the care and treatment of sick mariners, and contract with such persons for the care and treatment of sick mariners, and may discontinue the use of any such hospital for the purposes aforesaid.

(2) The Minister may make regulations for the government of any hospital for sick mariners, and may prescribe the duties and powers of the medical and other officers and employees of and in such hospitals, and of the port physicians and of all other officers required to perform any services in carrying out the provisions of this Part, or of any regulation made hereunder.

(3) All hospitals devoted exclusively to the reception, care and treatment of sick mariners shall be under the exclusive control and management of the Minister.

(4) Any shipwrecked, destitute or otherwise distressed seamen may, by authority from the Minister, be temporarily boarded and lodged and taken care of at any marine or seamen's hospital devoted exclusively to the reception, care and treatment of sick mariners. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

Duty on Ships.

383. (1) On and after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, there shall be levied and collected on every ship arriving in any port in the provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island or British Columbia (hereinafter called "the provinces"), a duty of two cents for every ton which such ship measures, registered tonnage, but in no case shall the duty payable by any ship be less than two dollars in any year.

(2) No ship otherwise liable to pay the duty shall be exempt from the payment of the said duty by reason of her voyage being one not requiring entry or clearance at the Custom House. If the ship does not require entry, the duty shall be paid immediately on her arrival.

(3) No ship engaged in the coasting trade of Canada and arriving at any port in any of the said provinces from any other port in the same province, or arriving at any port in the province of Quebec from any port in the province of Ontario, shall be subject to the payment of the said duty: Provided that no ship arriving at any port in Canada from any place out of Canada, and afterwards continuing her voyage to another port in Canada, shall be exempt from the payment of the said duty at the last mentioned port, unless she has paid it at the first mentioned or some other port on the same voyage.

(4) Such duty shall be payable on each ship each time she arrives in any such port but in no case shall it be oftener than three times during each calendar year, and shall be paid by the master or person in command of such ship, or by some person on his behalf, to the collector or other chief officer of the Customs at the port at which such ship is entered, and at the time of making such entry. Such entry shall contain on its face the tonnage of such ship.

(5) Except as in this Part mentioned, no entry shall be validly made, or have any legal effect whatsoever, unless the duty is so paid.

(6) No collector or other chief officer of the Customs shall grant a clearance to any ship on which such duty or any part thereof is due and unpaid.

(7) The Governor in Council may, if he sees fit, by proclamation published in the "Canada Gazette" on or before the first day of December, one thousand nine hundred and twenty, fix a later date than that hereinbefore mentioned, on and after which the said duty shall be levied and collected with regard to all or any class or classes of vessels which he may designate whose registered tonnage exceeds one hundred tons: Provided that every vessel, whether subject to the provisions of this subsection or not, shall be liable to pay the same duty as heretofore until the date fixed by this Act or by such proclamation as the case may be, on and after which she shall be liable to pay the duty imposed by this Act. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

384. The duty shall not be payable on ships employed exclusively in fishing, or arriving at a port in the provinces when on a fishing voyage, but the master or person in command of a ship registered in Canada used exclusively in fishing or to be employed on a fishing voyage may, if he so desires, pay the said duty of two cents for each registered ton before the said ship makes its first fishing voyage in any year, at the first port at which the ship receives any part of her outfit for the said voyage, and thereafter before each subsequent voyage during the year, but not exceeding three payments in all in any calendar year. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

385. Every collector or other chief officer of the Customs shall account for the sums received by him under this Act in such manner as the Minister may from time to time direct. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

Rights of Sick Mariners on Ships paying Duty.

386. (1) The master or person in command of any ship paying such duty may send to any hospital for sick mariners, at any hour of the day, and, in the case of accidents or emergency at any hour of the night, any sick mariner belonging to the ship. Such sick mariner so sent with a written recommendation from such master or person in command of such ship, endorsed as approved by the collector of the Customs of the port, or other officer appointed for the purpose by the Minister, shall be gratuitously received into such hospital, and receive therein such medical and surgical attendance and such other treatment as the case requires.

(2) At any port at which such duty is received, and at or for which there is no marine or seaman's hospital, or other hospital so designated and appointed as aforesaid, the collector or other chief officer of the Customs, upon being required so to do at any hour of the day, and, in case of accident or emergency, at any hour of the night, by the master or person in command of any ship which has paid such duty, shall make without delay the best provisions in his power for the medical and surgical assistance and treatment of every sick mariner belonging to such ship at the nearest public hospital if there is one at a convenient distance, and, if not, then at some public or private house.

(3) No sick mariner taken ill or injured outside of Canada, and arriving in any of the said provinces otherwise than in a ship to which he belongs, shall be entitled to the benefits conferred by this section.

(4) No sick mariner shall be entitled to the benefits conferred by this section for a period longer than one year without written authority from the Minister, and no sick mariner shall be entitled to treatment or care hereunder when suffering from permanent insanity.

(5) No sick mariners belonging to ships exempted from or not paying the duty levied under this Part shall be entitled to the rights or benefits of sick mariners under this Part. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

387. Every person entrusted with the expenditure of any moneys for the purposes of this Part shall account for the same in such manner, certified by such vouchers and attestation, as the Minister may direct. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

388. All expenditure made under the provisions of this Part shall be paid out of such moneys as Parliament may appropriate for the purpose. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

389. The Minister shall make an annual report and statement to the Governor General of the receipts and expenditures under this Part, which shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within the first fifteen days after the commencement of the session held next after the close of the fiscal year. 1920, c. 38, s. 1.

Pilotage—Licensing of Pilots—Apprentices, etc.

Chapter 113, with amendment.—[Sections 411–432, inclusive, define the limits of the pilotage districts of Quebec, Montreal, Halifax, and St. John, and designate the pilotage authorities for each of the said districts. Section 433 sets forth the general powers of pilotage authorities as follows:—]

433. Subject to the provisions of this Part, or of any Act for the time being in force in its pilotage district, every pilotage authority shall, within its district, have power, from time to time, by by-law confirmed by the Governor in Council, to,—

(a) determine the qualification in respect of age, time of service, skill, character and otherwise required of persons applying to be licensed as pilots;

(b) make regulations respecting the approval, licensing, management and maintenance of pilot boats, and respecting the distribution of the earnings of pilots and pilot boats, and to require that decked pilot boats be provided with life boats to be used in conveying pilots to and from ships, and also with such numbers of life preservers as such pilotage authority deems advisable;

(c) provide for aiding in the establishment of and participating in the profits of companies for the support of pilot boats;

(d) license pilots, and, except in the pilotage district of Quebec, apprentices, and, except in the pilotage districts of Quebec, Montreal, Halifax, and St. John, grant certificates to masters and mates to act as pilots, as hereinafter provided;

(e) fix the terms and conditions of granting licenses to pilots, and, except in the pilotage district of Quebec, apprentices, and, except in the pilotage districts of Quebec, Montreal, Halifax and St. John, the terms and conditions of granting such pilotage certificates, as are in this Part mentioned, to masters and mates, and the fees payable for such licenses and certificates and to regulate the number of pilots;

(f) make regulations for the government of the pilots, and the masters and mates, if any, holding certificates from such pilotage authority, and for ensuring their good conduct and constant attendance to and effectual performance of their duty on board and on shore, and for the government of apprentices, and, elsewhere than in the pilotage district of Quebec, regulating the number of apprentices;

(g) make rules for punishing any breach of such regulations by the withdrawal or suspension of the license or certificate of the person guilty of such breach;

(h) fix and alter the mode of remunerating the pilots licensed by such authority, and the amount and description of such remuneration, and the person or authority to whom the same shall be paid subject to the limitation respecting the pilotage district of Quebec in the next following section contained;

(i) provide for the compulsory retirement of pilots who have attained the age of sixty-five years, subject to the provisions of this Part for granting to such pilot a new license;

(j) provide for the compulsory retirement of licensed pilots who have not attained the age of sixty-five years, proved on oath before the pilotage authority to be incapacitated by mental or bodily infirmity or by habits of drunkenness;

(k) provide for the adjustment and decision of questions and disputes arising between masters of ships, pilots and others, respecting pilotage;

(l) establish, elsewhere than in the pilotage districts of Quebec and Montreal, either alone or in conjunction with any other pilotage authority or authorities, funds for the relief of superannuated or infirm licensed pilots, or of their wives, widows or children, and, in any pilotage district, to make any new regulations with respect to any funds for the time being applicable to such purposes or any of them, to determine the persons in the service of such pilotage authority by and upon whom and the amount, manner and time by and upon whom in and at which the contributions in support of such existing or future funds may be made or levied: Provided that no such contributions to any such fund shall be so made or levied by or upon any pilot to any amount exceeding seven per centum of his earnings;

(m) determine what persons, or class of persons, among the men in the service of such pilotage authority, their wives, widows or children, are or are not respectively entitled to participate in the benefits of such existing or future funds, and the terms and conditions upon which they are so entitled;

(n) repeal or alter any by-law made in exercise of the powers of this section, or touching any of the matters enumerated in this section in force, in and for its district, and to make a new by-law or by-laws in lieu thereof.

Returns by Pilotage Authorities.

441. Every pilotage authority shall, on or before the tenth day of January in every year, transmit to the Minister, in such form as he requires, pilotage returns containing particulars with regard to pilotage within its district, made up to the thirty-first day of December previous with regard to.—

(a) the name and age of every pilot, apprentice, master or mate licensed, certificated or authorized to act by such authority, and of every pilot or apprentice acting either mediately or immediately under such authority, whether so licensed or authorized, or not;

(b) the service for which each pilot, apprentice, master or mate is licensed or certificated;

(c) the rates of pilotage dues for the time being in force, including therein the amounts and description of all charges upon shipping made in respect of pilotage;

(d) the total amount received for pilotage dues, distinguishing the amounts received from British ships and from foreign ships, and the amount received in respect of different classes of ships paying different rates of pilotage dues for the time being in force, and the amounts received for the several classes of service rendered by pilots;

(e) the receipt and expenditure of all moneys received by or on behalf of such authority, in respect of pilots or pilotage; and,

(f) such other particulars as the Minister, from time to time, requires to be included in any such return.

Pilotage District of Quebec.

" 442. The number of pilots for the Pilotage District of Quebec shall not exceed one hundred and-twenty-five.

"443. Whenever the period of apprenticeship of any apprentice under the Quebec Pilotage Authority has been interrupted by sickness, involuntary absence or other legitimate cause, such apprentice, subject to such regulations as may be made by the Pilotage Authority, may be allowed to serve an additional period equal to the time lost by such interruption, and, if found otherwise qualified and entitled to a license as a pilot, he may be granted such license after he has completed a full period of service of seven years, including the said additional period."

444. Repealed 1916, c. 13, s. 1.

Licensing of Pilots.

445. Every pilot, on being licensed by any pilotage authority, shall receive a license containing his name and usual place of abode, a description of his person and a specification of the limits within which he is qualified to act, which may be in form Q.

(2) The collector of Customs at the principal port of the district within which any pilot is licensed to act, shall, on his request and without fee or reward, register the license of such pilot and add his name to the list posted up at the Custom house, and no pilot shall be entitled to act as such until his license is so registered.

446. Every licensed pilot who acts beyond the limits for which he is qualified by his license, shall be considered an unlicensed pilot.

447. Every licensed pilot shall, on receiving his license, be furnished with a copy of this Part and a copy of the tariff of dues and of the by-laws established within the districts for which he is licensed; and he shall produce such copies to the master of any ship or other person employing him, when required so to do.

448. Every pilot who has received a license from a duly constituted authority in that behalf, may retain the same, under and subject to the provisions of this Part, and shall, for the purposes of this Part, while so retaining the same, be a pilot licensed by the pilotage authority of the district to which his license extends.

Production of License.

449. Every licensed pilot shall, while acting in that capacity be provided with his license, and shall produce the same, whether requested to produce it or not, to every person by whom he is employed, or to whom he offers his services as pilot, at the time when he enters into the employment of, or offers his services to such person; and shall, at all times, produce his license at the request of every person by whom he is employed as pilot.

Forfeiture, Surrender or Withdrawal of License.

450. Every branch pilot or licensed pilot who passes two full and consecutive years without acting as a pilot, except in case of sickness, unavoidable absence or special permission from the pilotage authority of his district, shall forfeit his license.

451. Every licensed pilot suspended or deprived of his license or compelled to retire, shall produce or deliver up his license to the authority by whom he is so suspended or deprived or compelled to retire.

(2) On the death of any licensed pilot, the person into whose hands his license comes shall, without delay, deliver it to the pilotage authority of the pilotage district for which he was licensed.

452. Every licensed pilot shall, on his attaining the age of sixty-five years, produce and deliver up his license or branch to the pilotage authority of the district to which it extends, and such authority may grant him a new license for one year, and so from year to year.

453. The board of directors of the Quebec Pilots Corporation may make any agreement and compromise respecting the withdrawal of the license of any pilot for and below the said harbour, and the conditions of such withdrawal.

Limitation and Renewal of Licenses.

454. The pilotage authority of any district, except the pilotage districts of Quebec, Montreal and St. John, respectively, may, in its discretion,—

(a) limit the period during which any license to a pilot granted by it shall be in force to any term not less than two years from the date thereof;

(b) after the end of such period, renew such license for a further limited term not less than two years; and,

(c) cancel any license to a pilot granted before the first of March, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, and substitute for it a limited and renewable license.

(2) In such cases the form of the license shall be altered by inserting after the word 'capacity' in form Q, the words until the                      day of                      A.D.                      unless in the meantime this license is cancelled.

455. All pilots shall pay to the pilotage authority of the respective districts for which they are licensed, or as such authority directs, such fees upon such renewals as are, from time to time, fixed for that purpose by such authority with the consent of the Governor in Council; and such fees shall be applied in the manner prescribed by this Part.

List of Pilots.

456. Every pilotage authority shall, from time to time, and at least once in every year, prepare a list of the pilots holding licenses for their pilotage district, specifying the name and usual place of abode of every pilot holding such license, and the limits within which he is licensed to act; and shall transmit such list to the collector of Customs at the principal port within such district.

457. Every collector of Customs, to whom any such list is so transmitted, shall, immediately after the receipt thereof, cause the same to be posted up, and shall always keep the last received of such lists posted up at the Custom-house of the port.

License Register.

458. Each of the pilotage authorities of Quebec, Montreal, Halifax and St. John shall cause every pilot's license granted by it to be registered in a book to be kept for that purpose in the office of such pilotage authority; and every such book shall, at all times, during the usual office hours, be open to all persons for inspection without fee or reward.

Rights of Pilots.

459. Every pilot compelled to retire under the provisions of this Part on account of age or of mental or bodily infirmity, and every widow and child of a deceased pilot shall be entitled to such pension or assistance as the pilotage authority of the district in and for which such pilot was licensed deems it proper to grant to him or her out of the pilot fund of such district.

460. No pilot shall, without his consent, be taken to sea or beyond the limits for which he is licensed, in any ship whatsoever.

(2) Every pilot so taken shall be entitled to cabin passage, and over and above the pilotage dues otherwise payable to him, to the sum of two dollars per day, to be computed from, and inclusive of the day on which the ship passes the limit up to which he was engaged to pilot her, and up to and inclusive of, either the day of his being returned in the said ship to the place where he was taken on board, or, if he is discharged from the ship at a distance from such place, such day as will allow him sufficient time to return thereto.

(3) In such last mentioned case, he shall be entitled to his reasonable travelling expenses by cabin passage or first-class conveyance by land, as the case may be, over and above such pilotage dues and other sums.

461. If a licensed pilot is placed in quarantine, owing to his having been taken on board any ship, he shall be entitled to suitable board and accommodation, and, to the sum of three dollars per day over and above the pilotage dues payable to him from and inclusive of the day on which he is placed in quarantine up to and inclusive of the day on which he is discharged therefrom; and, if he is not discharged at the place where he was taken on board any ship, then up to and inclusive of such day as will allow him sufficient time to return to such place, in which case he shall be entitled to his reasonable travelling expenses over and above such pilotage dues and such other additional sums.

462. Any licensed pilot may quit a ship which he has undertaken to pilot as soon as such ship is finally anchored or moored after completion of her voyage or removal, as the case may be, or as soon as she passes out of the pilotage district to which his license extends, whichever first happens; whereupon the service for which he was hired shall be held to be performed.

Damages Caused by a Pilot.

463. A pilot deprived of his license, or suspended or condemned to pay a penalty for having caused damage to a ship shall not be entitled to any pilotage dues if the amount of such damage is equal to or exceeds that of such dues, or, if it is less, to more than the excess of the amount of such dues over that of such damage.

(2) The provisions of this section shall be deemed to be referred to in section twenty-six of the Act of the legislature of the late province of Canada, passed in the twenty-third year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria and chaptered one hundred and twenty-three, intituled An Act to incorporate the Pilots for and below the Harbour of Quebec.

Rights of Pilots in Pilotage Districts in Which the Payment of Pilotage Dues is Compulsory.

464. If any boat or ship having on board a licensed pilot leads any ship which has not a licensed pilot on board when such last mentioned ship cannot, from particular circumstances, be boarded, the pilot so leading such last mentioned ship shall be entitled to the full pilotage dues for the distance run, as if he had actually been on board and piloted such ship.

(2) Such pilot, while leading such last mentioned ship, shall keep his pilot flag flying, and such last mentioned ship shall, while being so led, show the ensign of such ship, at her fore.

465. Any person may, within any pilotage district for which he is not a licensed pilot, without subjecting himself or his employer to any penalty, pilot a ship,—

(a) when no licensed pilot for such district has offered to pilot such ship, or made a signal for that purpose, although the master of the ship has displayed and continued to display the signal for a pilot in this Part provided, whilst within the limits prescribed for that purpose;

(b) when a ship is in distress, or under circumstances making it necessary for the master to avail himself of the best assistance which can be found at the time.

(2) If such unlicensed pilot is not superseded as in the next following section provided, he shall be entitled to be paid full pilotage dues.

466. A licensed pilot may, in any such district, upon showing his proper signal and exhibiting his license, supersede an unlicensed pilot, but the master shall pay to such unlicensed pilot a sum in proportion to the distance run for his services, and deduct the same from the charge of the licensed pilot.

(2) In case of dispute, the pilotage authority of the district for which the licensed pilot is licensed, shall determine the proportionate sum to which each person is entitled.

467. If any master of a ship which is not an exempted ship removes such ship or causes such ship to be removed from one place to another within the harbour of Quebec, without the assistance of a licensed pilot for the pilotage district of Quebec, he shall pay to the Quebec Pilots Corporation the same pilotage dues as he would have been liable to pay if he had obtained the assistance of one of such licensed pilots.

(2) This provision shall not apply to the master of any ship actually proceeding to Montreal or elsewhere above the harbour of Quebec, in charge of a pilot for and above the harbour of Quebec.

Licensing of Masters and Mates.

[Sections 468-486 deal with the payment of pilotage dues. Sections 487-493 provide for the licensing of masters and mates under certain conditions to act as pilots upon specified ships and within defined limits.]

Pilot Funds.

[Sections 504-510 make provision for contribution by the pilots of the Quebec and Montreal Districts to Pilot Funds, which are to be applied in payment of superannuation allowances, or other relief for the benefit of licensed pilots incapacitated by age, infirmity or accident, and of the widows and children of licensed pilots.]

Investigations.

[Sections 515-531 provide for the investigation of charges against pilots and of inquiries in connection with any accident or damage which happens to or is caused by any vessel in charge of a pilot.]

Offences and Penalties.

532. Every licensed pilot who fails to produce copies of this Part and of the tariff of dues, and of the by-laws established within the districts for which he is licensed to the master of any ship or other person employing him, when required so to do, shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

533. Every licensed pilot who, while acting in that capacity, neglects or refuses to produce his license, at the time of his employment or the offering of his services, to any person by whom he is employed or to whom he offers his services, shall, whether requested to produce the license or not, for each such neglect or refusal, incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars, and shall be subject to suspension or dismissal by the pilotage authority by whom he is licensed.

534. Every licensed pilot suspended or deprived of his license, or compelled to retire, who fails without any reasonable cause, proof whereof shall lie on him, to produce or deliver up his license to the authority by whom he is so suspended, or deprived or compelled to retire, and any person into whose hands the license of such pilot shall on the death of such pilot, come, who without any reasonable cause, proof whereof shall lie on him, fails to deliver the same to the pilotage authority of the pilotage district for which such pilot was licensed, shall incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

(2) Any court of competent jurisdiction may, in addition to imposing such penalty, by summary order, direct such license to be forthwith delivered up to such authority.

535. If any person pilots a ship in any pilotage district for which he is not a licensed pilot, he shall be liable to a penalty of forty dollars except,—

(a) when no licensed pilot for such district has offered to pilot such ship, or made a signal for that purpose, although the master of the ship has displayed and continued to display the signal for a pilot in this Part provided, whilst within the limits prescribed for that purpose; or,

(b) when a ship is in distress, or under circumstances making it necessary for the master to avail himself of the best assistance which can be found at the time.

536. Every unlicensed pilot who continues in the charge of a ship in any district after a licensed pilot has offered, by showing his proper signal and exhibiting his license, to take charge of her, shall, for each offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month.

550. Every licensed pilot who, either within or without the district for which he is licensed,—

(a) commits any fraud or offence in respect to the revenues of Customs, or Inland Revenue, or the laws relating thereto; or

(b) is in any way directly or indirectly concerned in any corrupt practices relating to ships, their tackle, cargoes, crews or passengers, or to persons in distress at sea or by shipwreck, or to their moneys, goods or chattels; or,

(c) lends his license; or,

(d) acts as pilot whilst suspended; or,

(e) acts as pilot when in a state of intoxication; or,

(f) employs or causes to be employed, on behalf of any ship of which he has the charge, any steamboat, boat, anchor, cable, or other store, matter or thing, beyond what is necessary for the service of such ship, with the intent to enhance the expenses of pilotage for his own gain, or for the gain of any other person; or,

(g) refuses or delays, when not prevented by illness or other reasonable cause, to take charge of any ship within the limits of his license, upon the signal for a pilot being made by such ship, or upon being required so to do by the master, owner, agent or consignee thereof, or by any officer of the pilotage authority of the district for which such pilot is licensed, or by any principal officer of Customs, subject in the case of a pilot for and below the harbour of Quebec, to the laws relating to the Quebec Pilots Corporation; or,

(h) upon being so signalled or required, attempts to make any special bargain for salvage; or,

(i) unnecessarily cuts or slips, or causes to be cut or slipped any cable belonging to any ship; or,

(j) refuses, when requested by the master to conduct the ship on board of which he is into any port or place into which he is licensed to conduct the same, except on reasonable ground of danger to the ship; or,

(k) quits the ship which he has undertaken to pilot, before the service for which he was hired has been performed, without the consent of the master; shall, for each offence, in addition to any liability for damages, be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars, and suspension or dismissal by the pilotage authority of the district for which he is licensed.

551. Every person who procures, abets or connives at the commission of any of the offences mentioned in the last preceding section, shall, for each offence, in addition to any liability for damages, be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars, and, if he is a licensed pilot, to suspension or dismissal by the pilotage authority of the district for which he is licensed.

552. Every pilot who, when on board any ship for the purpose of piloting her, by breach or neglect of duty, or by reason of drunkenness, either,—

(a) does any act tending to the immediate loss, destruction or serious damage of such ship, or tending immediately to endanger the life or limb of any person on board such ship; or

(b) refuses or omits to do any lawful act proper and requisite to be done by him for preserving such ship from loss, destruction, or serious damage, or for preserving any person belonging to or on board of such ship from danger to life or limb, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months, with or without hard labour, and, if a licensed pilot, to suspension or dismissal by the pilotage authority of the district for which he is licensed.

553. A pilot shall be liable to suspension or dismissal by the pilotage authority of the district, for any of the offences mentioned in the last preceding section, upon such evidence as the said authority deems sufficient, and whether he has or has not been convicted of or indicted for such offence.

554. Whenever the pilotage authority of Quebec has power to dismiss or suspend a branch pilot for and below the harbour of Quebec, it may fine such pilot in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, if it deems it advisable so to do in lieu of dismissing or suspending him.

555. Every person who, by any misrepresentation of circumstances upon which the safety of a ship depends, or by using a license to which he is not entitled, becomes employed or endeavours to be employed to pilot such ship, or enables or endeavours to enable any other person to be so employed, or obtains or endeavours to obtain for himself or any other person the charge of such ship shall, in addition to any liability for damages, be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars, and, if a licensed pilot, to suspension or dismissal by the authority by whom he is licensed.

556. Every licensed pilot who demands or receives any sum in respect of pilotage services greater than the dues for the time being demandable by law, shall, for each offence, incur a penalty not exceeding forty dollars.

Cancellation and Suspension.

557. In addition to any provision in this Part contained for the cancellation or suspension of the license of any licensed pilot, any such license shall be subject to cancellation and suspension in the manner prescribed in that behalf by Part X. of this Act.

Appeals from Judgments rendered against Quebec District Pilots.

558. In the pilotage district of Quebec any pilot shall have the right to appeal to the Superior Court of the province of Quebec, from any judgment rendered against him by any tribunal or officer designated by the Minister under the authority of this Part for the trial of any offence; and, for the purposes of such appeal, he shall,—

- (a) give notice of such appeal to the Minister within fifteen days after such judgment;
- (b) give, to the satisfaction of the Superior Court or a judge thereof, good and sufficient security for the payment of the costs of the appeal; and,
- (c) proceed with such appeal at the next term of the court after the expiration of said fifteen days.

559. No judgement rendered against a pilot by any tribunal or officer so designated shall be executory before the expiry of fifteen days after the rendering thereof, and every appeal therefrom to the Superior Court shall suspend the execution thereof pending such appeal.

(2) In the case of a judgment ordering the suspension of a pilot, and confirmed on appeal, the time of suspension shall only date from the day the judgment is affirmed in appeal.

Limitation of Suits and Prosecutions.

564. No suit shall be brought or proceeding instituted for the recovery of any penalty or the infliction of any punishment for any offence against the provisions of this Part, or for any breach of any by-law made thereunder, or any by-law now in force, after six years from the date of the commission of such offence or breach.

Steamboat Inspection—Examination and Licensing of Engineers.

Chapter 113 with amendments.—565. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'Steamboat' includes any vessel used in navigation or afloat on navigable water and propelled wholly or in part by steam, or by any machinery or power other than sails or oars, and includes steam dredges and floating elevators;

(b) 'Owner' means the registered owner only;

(c) 'Boilers and machinery' includes the steam engine or engines, and every part thereof or thing connected therewith, employed in propelling the steamboat, and any donkey or pony engine used on board, and the boiler or boilers for supplying steam thereto, and the furnaces, chimneys, flues, safety and blow-off valves, gauges, braces, stays, pipes, steam pumps, and all other apparatus and things attached to or connected therewith or used with reference to any such engine or under the care of the engineer;

(d) 'Boiler' means a boiler of or intended for a steamboat, and includes boilers when the steamboat has more than one, and 'boilers' means boiler when the steamboat has only one;

(e) 'Hull and equipment' includes the hull and every part thereof, masts, sails and rigging when the steamboat carries them, life boats and other boats and the tackle and apparatus for lowering or hoisting them, the apparatus, other than steam fire engines, for preventing or extinguishing fires, anchors and cables, windlasses and capstans, fire buckets, compasses, axes, lanterns, and all other articles and things necessary for the navigation and safety of the steamboat and not under the care of the engineer;

(f) 'Hull' includes the equipment;

(g) 'Inspector' means a person appointed under the provisions of this Part to inspect the boilers and machinery or the hulls and equipment of steamboats;

(h) 'Certificate' means one of the duplicates or triplicates of the certificate given by the inspectors or inspector, as the case may be;

(i) 'Passenger' means any person carried on a steamboat other than the master and crew, the owner, his family and the servants connected with his household, and other than the guests of the owner of any steamboat used exclusively for pleasure, if such guests are carried on such steamboat without remuneration or any object of profit; and

(j) 'Passenger steamer' means any steamboat carrying passengers. 1908, c. 65, s. 12.

(k) 'Tug-boat' means a steamboat used exclusively for towing purposes;

(l) 'Freight boat' means steamboat carrying freight only;

(m) 'Vessel' means any barge, bateau, boat, scow or vessel carrying passengers, other than as steamboat;

(n) 'Voyage' includes 'passage' or 'trip';

(o) 'Remuneration' includes fuel and ships' stores of any kind or any other kind of payment or compensation;

(p) For the purpose of collecting the yearly duty in this Part imposed, 'year' means the calendar year, and, for the purpose of the inspection by this Part rendered imperative, 'year' means twelve calendar months from the date of the certificate of inspection;

(q) 'Night-time' shall, when used to specify the time during which lights shall be affixed to gang boards, include all that portion of the day extending from one-half hour after sunset till one-half hour before sunrise;

(r) 'Board' means the Board of Steamboat Inspection provided for by this Part.

Extent and Application of Part.

566. The provisions of this Part shall apply to,—

(a) steamboats belonging to His Majesty, only as regards the annual inspection of their boilers, machinery, and as regards their equipment as provided by the rules and regulations for the inspection of steamboats;

(b) steam dredges, floating elevators and vessels of like kind, only as regards the yearly rate or duty, the annual inspection of their boilers and machinery and the obligation to carry life buoys with the necessary line attachment as required by the rules for inspection of steamboats:

(c) steam yachts of not more than five tons gross tonnage and vessels propelled by gas, fluid, naphtha or electric motors, only as regards the obligation to carry a life preserver for each person on board and one life buoy, and to take the precautions against fire in this Part imposed;

(d) steam yachts over five tons gross tonnage, only as regards the yearly rate or duty the inspection of their boilers and machinery, the obligation to carry a life preserver for each person on board and one life buoy, and as regards the precautions against fire in this Part imposed.

(e) freight boats under one hundred and fifty tons gross tonnage, tug boats, and steamboats used exclusively for fishing purposes and under one hundred and fifty tons gross tonnage, only as regards the yearly rate or duty, the inspection of their boilers and machinery, the obligation to carry a life preserver for each person on board, and one life buoy, and a boat or raft as required by the rules for the inspection of steamboats, the obligation to have an engineer holding a certificate of competency, if the steamboat has an engine of over ten nominal horse-power if of the single cylinder type, and over twenty nominal horse-power if of the compound type, and as regards the precautions against fire in this Part imposed.

(2) Every steamboat mentioned in this section, other than vessels of not more than five; tons gross tonnage, shall, if it carries passengers, be subject to the provisions of this Part applicable to passenger steamboats. 1908, c. 65, s. 14.

567. (Repealed by 1908, c. 65, s. 14.)

568. (Repealed by 1908, c. 65, s. 14.)

569. The Governor in Council may direct that this Part, or certain provisions thereof shall apply, or shall not apply, to any steamboat or class of steamboats registered elsewhere than in Canada, and may fix a rate or duty to be paid for the inspection of such steamboat or class of steamboats.

570. When satisfactory evidence has been produced that no steamboat inspection fee or tax is levied on Canadian steam vessels trading to or from any country outside of Canada, the Governor in Council may direct that no steamboat inspection fee or tax be levied on steam vessels of such country going to and from Canada.

571. When satisfactory evidence has been produced that any country outside of Canada has steamboat inspection laws approximating the steamboat inspection law of Canada, and the steamboats of such country have unexpired certificates of inspection issued by the proper authorities of such country, the Governor in Council may direct that they shall be subject to no other inspection than may be necessary to satisfy the Canadian inspectors that the condition of the steamboat, her boilers, machinery and life-saving equipment are as stated in the current certificate of inspection of such steamboat: Provided that no such certificate of inspection shall be accepted as valid in Canada, except when held by steamboats of a country which has, by its law, accorded to the steamboats of Canada going to and from that country the same privilege as is hereby accorded to steamboats of that country.

Appointment and Qualification of Inspectors.

572. The Governor in Council shall, from time to time, appoint at such places as he deems advisable in Canada,—

(a) a person or persons competent to inspect the boilers and the machinery employed in steamboats and not interested in the manufacture of steam engines, boilers or other machinery belonging to steamboats, whose duty it shall be to make the inspection of steamboats in this Part prescribed and to give to the owner or master two of the triplicate certificates of such inspection; and

(b) a skilled person or persons competent to inspect the hulls and equipment of steamboats and not interested in the building or construction of hulls of steamboats or of any article or thing mentioned in this Part as required for the equipment of steamboats, or properly belonging to or connected with such equipment, according to the intent of this Part, whose duty it shall be to make such inspection and to give triplicate certificates of such inspection.

573. No person shall be appointed an inspector of boilers and machinery of steamboats unless he has passed a satisfactory examination before the Board of Steamboat Inspection, as to his knowledge and experience on the subject of boilers and machinery of steamboats, and the working thereof, nor unless he has received from the chairman of the Board a certificate in writing that he has satisfactorily passed such examination.

574. No person shall be appointed an inspector of the hulls and equipment of such vessels, unless he has passed a satisfactory examination as to his competency for the office, before the chairman, or, in case of his absence, a deputy chairman of the Board and two inspectors of hulls and equipment, or one or more experienced practical shipbuilders, nor unless he has received from the chairman of the Board a certificate in writing that he has satisfactorily passed such examination.

575. Every such inspector, before entering upon his duties as such, shall take and subscribe an oath before a judge of a court of record well, faithfully and impartially to execute the duties assigned to him by this Part, in the form or to the effect following:—

I, A. B., do solemnly swear that I will well, faithfully and impartially, to the best of my judgment, skill and understanding, execute the duties assigned to the office of inspector of boilers and machinery (or hulls and equipment, as the case may be) of steamboats, under Part VII. of the Canada Shipping Act. So help me God.

576. The oath taken by every inspector shall be forwarded forthwith by such judge to the Minister.

577. In the provinces of Manitoba, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and in the Northwest and Yukon Territories, the Minister may, when he sees fit, dispense with the appointment of an inspector of hulls and equipment, and, in such case, or, in case of a vacancy in the office of inspector in the said provinces, or territories, the Minister may assign the duties of such inspector to the inspector of boilers and machinery, or such other persons as he temporarily employs, who shall then, and so long as such order remains in force, have all the powers and perform all the duties hereby assigned to the inspector of hulls and equipment, under the like obligation and like penalties in case of default, and such person shall be called an acting inspector of hulls and equipment.

Regulations by the Governor in Council.

578. The Governor in Council may make rules and regulations,—

(a) for the testing of boilers and all matters connected with the construction and working thereof;

(b) for the inspection of safety valves and boiler cocks and all matters connected with the construction and working thereof;

(c) for the inspection of hulls and equipment of steamboats;

(d) respecting boats and life preservers, fire buckets, axes and lanterns and other life-saving appliances to be carried by steamboats or by other vessels mentioned in this Part;

(e) respecting the qualifications necessary to entitle a person to an engineer's certificate;

(f) requiring steamboats to carry chemical or other fire extinguishers, and prescribing the number of such fire extinguishers to be carried by steamboats of different sizes and classes, respectively;

(g) for the inspection of the machinery and equipment of steamboats propelled by gas, fluid, naphtha, electricity, or any other chemical, or any mechanical power, and, in the case of such vessels, for making such changes in forms S and T as he deems advisable;

(h) for the establishment of a scale of fees and the collection thereof, for examining plans of the hulls, boilers and machinery and equipment of steamboats; for the inspection of steamboats, their machinery and equipment, during construction, and for such like examinations or inspection in connection with the Steamboat Inspection Service.* 1920, c. 6, s. 1,

579. Such rules and regulations shall, after publication in the "Canada Gazette" have like force and effect as if they were in this Part enacted.

580. The Governor in Council may, at any time, order and direct that the provisions of this Part or of any rules or regulations made thereunder, in so far as such provisions extend to the carrying of boats and life-preservers, shall not, at any time or during any time specified in the order in council, apply to any ferry boat especially mentioned in such order.

581. The Governor in Council may order and direct that such provisions, as he deems advisable with respect to the carrying of boats and life-preservers on any ferry boat, shall be applicable to and shall during any time specified in the order in council be enforced in respect of any ferry boat specially mentioned in such order in council.

Board of Steamboat Inspection.

582. There shall be a board to be called the Board of Steamboat Inspection, to be composed of the inspectors and such other persons as the Minister may appoint.

(2) The Governor in Council may appoint any member of the Board chairman.

(3) Three of the members shall form a quorum, one of which shall be the chairman. 1913, c. 49, s. 3.

* Under the authority of this section, a number of important rules and regulations have been issued relating to life saving appliances for steamboats, precautions against fire, the inspection of boilers, machinery, hulls and equipment of steamboats, and the examination of engineers.

583. The chairman shall have the right to vote; and in the case of an equal division shall also have a casting vote, and shall also supervise the other inspectors.

584. The Minister may appoint one of the inspectors a deputy chairman, to act in the absence of the chairman, and such deputy shall exercise all the functions of the chairman.

585. The minutes or the proceedings of the Board shall be kept by such chairman or deputy chairman and a copy thereof, certified by him, shall be transmitted to the Minister.

586. The Board shall meet at such time and at such place as the Minister determines, and may make rules and regulations for their own conduct, for the uniform inspection of steamboats, for prescribing the duties of engineers, and for such other purposes as are necessary under this Part; and such rules and regulations shall not come into force until after they are approved by the Governor in Council.

Inspection.

587. The chairman of the Board may at any time inspect or examine the hull, equipment boiler or machinery of any steamboat, and, if he suspects any inspector of having neglected his duty in relation to such steamboat, or in any other respect, he may call a meeting of the Board to investigate the case, or may himself investigate it; and the result of such investigation shall be forthwith communicated, in writing, to the Minister.

(2) The chairman of the Board shall receive and examine all reports and accounts of inspectors, and report fully to the Minister upon all matters pertaining to his official duties, so as to ensure, as far as possible, a uniform and efficient administration of the inspection laws, rules and regulations.

588. The master or owner of every steamboat liable to inspection under this Part shall cause the boiler and machinery and the hull and equipment thereof, or the boiler and machinery alone, as the case may be, to be inspected at least once every year, and shall deliver one of the certificates thereof to the chief officer of Customs at the port where such inspection is made, or at which such steamboat arrives next after such inspection, when it has not been made in such port.

589. Every such certificate, unless sooner revoked, shall be good for a period of twelve months from the date thereof, or for such less period as is stated by the inspector in the certificate; and every steamboat running without such certificate on board shall be seized and detained by any chief officer of Customs or by any person thereunto directed in writing by the Minister.

590. In any case in which a steamboat requiring inspection is not ready for such inspection when the inspector is in the vicinity of such steamboat for the purpose of inspecting steamboats, or if, from any other cause, the inspector has to return to inspect such steamboat, the expenses incurred by the inspector in returning to inspect or to complete inspection of such steamboat, if the Minister determines that such expenses were incurred through the fault or default of the owner or manager of such steamboat, shall be paid by the owner, and, if not paid forthwith, the steamboat shall, subject to the directions of the Minister, be liable to be seized and detained until such expenses have been paid.

591. The master, owner or engineer of every steamboat, or the person in charge thereof, shall at the earliest opportunity after the occurrence of any event whereby the hull, or the machinery or boiler thereof, or any part of any or either of the same is in any material degree, injured, strained or weakened, report such occurrence, in writing, to the office of the inspector who issued the certificate. 1908, c. 65, s. 15.

592. Every inspector may, at all times, when inspecting, visiting or examining any boilers and machinery or the hull of any steamboat, ask of any or all of the owners, officers or engineers of such steamboat, or other person on board thereof and in charge or appearing to be in charge of such steamboat, or of the boiler or machinery thereof, such pertinent questions concerning the same, or concerning any accident that has happened thereto, as he thinks fit; and every such person shall fully and truly answer every such question so put to him.

(2) The inspector may require that the engine and machinery under inspection by him shall be put in motion.

593. Every inspector of steamboats shall demand of the owner or master of every steamboat which he inspects the production of the certificate of registry of such steamboat, and may require the production of the certificate of the master, mate or engineer, as the case may be, whenever the law requires these officers to possess certificates, and such owner or officer shall thereupon produce and exhibit the same to such inspector.

594. When the inspector finds it necessary to open up the hull of a vessel for the purpose of examining her condition, the expense thereby incurred shall be chargeable to the owner of such vessel.

595. Every inspector shall be carried free of expense on any steamboat which he desires to inspect while under way, and during such period as is necessary for such inspection, and for his return to the port at which he embarked on such steamboat for such purpose, or for his disembarkation at any port at which such steamboat touches on her voyage.

596. If the inspector of hulls and equipment who inspects any steamboat in the manner required by this Part, approves the hull and equipment of such steamboat, he shall make and sign, according to form S, a certificate in triplicate which he shall deliver to the inspector of boilers and machinery.

(2) The inspector of boilers and machinery, when he has inspected and approved the boilers and machinery of the steamboat, shall make and sign, in triplicate upon the same sheets of paper on which the certificate in triplicate of the inspector of hulls and machinery is written, a certificate according to form S.

(3) The inspector of boilers and machinery shall keep one of such triplicates, and shall deliver the two others to the owner or master of the steamboat.

(4) The owner or master of the steamboat shall deliver one of the triplicates to a chief officer of Customs aforesaid, and shall cause the other to be posted up, framed and protected by glass in some conspicuous part of the steamboat for the information of the public.

597. If the steamboat is one of which the boiler and machinery only are subject to inspection under this Part, the inspector of boilers and machinery shall sign a certificate in form T, in duplicate and deliver the duplicates to the master or owner of the steamboat, who shall deliver one to a chief officer of Customs and cause the other to be framed and protected by glass and posted up in some conspicuous part of the steamboat for the information of the public.

598. Every inspector of steamboats shall, whenever he visits and inspects any steamboat satisfy himself that such steamboat is properly furnished with lights and with means of making fog signals, in pursuance of the rules prescribed by Part XIV. of this Act, and is also provided with the proper certificated officers in charge as required by Parts II. and VII. respectively; and he shall refuse to grant any certificate with respect to any steamboat which he finds is not so provided.

(2) In the event of any change in the proper certificated officers following the issuing of a certificate of inspection to a steamer, the owner, managing owner or agent shall forthwith report in writing, by registered post, such change to the office of the inspector or inspectors who issued such certificate, with the name, grade, and number of the certificate held by the officer so appointed; and in the event of the owner, managing owner or agent not doing so, such vessel shall be deemed to be making a trip or voyage without a certificate of inspection. 1908, c. 65, s. 16.

599. An inspector or any person thereunto directed by the Minister may at any time go on board any steamboat, inspected under this Part and inspect the equipment thereof; and, if the equipment is not such as was approved by the inspector when he issued the certificate of inspection then current, the person making the inspection may seize and detain such steamboat until released by direction of the Minister.

600. Any matter in dispute arising under this Part between an inspector or the Board and the master or owner of any steamboat, and also any dispute between an inspector or the said Board and an engineer, may be referred by either party to the Minister, who shall finally decide the same.

601. Each inspector shall keep a register of the inspections and certificates made and granted by him in such form and with such particulars respecting them as the chairman of the Board, from time to time, directs, and shall furnish copies thereof, and shall also furnish any other information pertaining to the duties of his office to the chairman when required.

Pressure, Steam Gauge.

602. Whenever the engine of any steamboat is stopped for over five minutes, the engineer or the master or person in charge of such steamboat shall open the safety-valve, so as to keep the steam in the boiler below the pressure limited by the inspector's certificate.

603. There shall be, in a conspicuous and easily accessible place in each steamboat, a steam gauge properly constructed and open to the view of all passengers and others on board such steamboat, and showing at all times the true pressure of the steam in the boiler thereof.

604. The steam gauge required by this Part to be open to the view of all passengers and others on board any steamboat shall be that known as the "Bourdon Gauge," or shall be of such construction and shall be put in such place and position, as the inspector visiting, examining or inspecting such steamboat, from time to time, directs.

605. Each boiler of every steamboat shall be provided with a suitable water gauge capable of showing the water level within each boiler at all times; and all steamboats navigating in brackish or salt water, shall be provided with surface blowing-off valves, such as are commonly used on board sea-going steamboats.

Bilge pipes—Life-buoy.

606. Every passenger steamboat shall be provided with efficient means for relieving the bilges of water and in addition thereto, if having a condensing engine, shall be provided with a bilge injection valve and a pipe of suitable dimensions leading from the floor frames of the steamboat into the condenser of the engine.

(2) Such bilge injection pipe shall have a check non-return valve, if necessary.

607. Every steamboat registered in Canada, or to which this Part applies, shall carry in some convenient place where it can be easily got at for use in case of accident at least one life-buoy with a proper heaving line attached.

Precautions Against Fire and Accidents.

608. Suitable and safe provision shall be made throughout every steamboat to guard against danger from fire; and no combustible material, liable to take fire from heated iron or any other heat generated on board any steamboat in and about the boilers, pipes or machinery, shall be placed at less than six inches distance from such heated metal or other substance likely to cause ignition.

(2) When wood is so exposed to ignition, it shall, as an additional preventive, be shielded by tin being nailed on it in such manner as approved by the inspector.

(3) The funnel shall have a casing of metal or other incombustible material extending up through the decks from the boiler with a space of at least four inches between it and the funnel.

(4) If the structure of the steamboat is such, or the arrangement of the boiler or machinery is such, that the requirements aforesaid cannot, without serious inconvenience or sacrifice, be complied with, the inspector may allow deviations from the said requirements, if, in his judgment, it can be done with safety.

609. No coal oil which will not bear a test of three hundred degrees Fahrenheit without taking fire shall be used on any passenger steamboat: Provided that, where oil is used as fuel for the production of motive power on steamboats, oil which will bear a test of two hundred degrees Fahrenheit, without taking fire may be accepted if properly stored with safe and suitable provisions as to safety and to guard against fire and explosion from such oil to the satisfaction of the steamboat inspector.

610. Inflammable matter, when carried on any steamboat, shall invariably be stowed away as far as possible from the boiler, and from place where its ignition is possible.

(2) Metallic vessels or safes shall be provided and kept in some convenient place to receive cotton-waste, hemp and other inflammable substances, which are in use on board.

(3) No coal oil lamp shall be used between decks on any passenger steamboat in which any inflammable material is carried.

611. No fire or lighted lamp, candle or other artificial light by which fire may be communicated, shall be allowed in any stateroom of any passenger steamboat, or in the steerage thereof, unless in a locked and glazed lantern; and no lamps other than with metal bowls shall be used in freight holds or cargo decks.

612. Whenever electricity is used for lighting or other purposes on board of any steamboat, a certificate in writing shall be furnished by the master or owner from a competent electrical engineer, certifying that the workmanship and material are good and that proper precautions have been taken to guard against accidents from fire.

613. Every passenger steamboat shall have at least three double-acting forcing pumps with chambers at least four inches in diameter with a stroke of not less than six inches.

(2) Two of such forcing pumps shall be constructed so as to be worked by hand and, one so as to be worked by steam, if steam can be employed independently of and not worked by the main engine, otherwise, all three so as to be worked by hand, one of such forcing pumps shall be placed near the stern, one near the stem, and one amidship, each having a suitable well-fitted hose of at least two-thirds the length of the steamboat, with a suitable nozzle attached and kept at all times in perfect order, clear of freight or other obstructions, with hose coupled and ready for immediate use.

(3) Each pump and coupling shall be provided with a hose wrench chained to the pump; and each pump shall be supplied with water by a pipe connected therewith, passing through the side of the steamboat, so low as to be at all times in the water when the boat is afloat.

614. In passenger steamboats not exceeding two hundred tons gross, two of such pumps may be dispensed with; if over two hundred tons, but not exceeding five hundred tons gross, one of such hand pumps may be dispensed with; but in such cases the hose shall be of such length as to reach easily to every part of the steamboat; and in passenger steamboats where only one pump is used, such pump shall be placed as directed by the inspector.

615. In passenger steamboats under one hundred tons gross, one steam pump of suitable size, or if steam cannot be employed, one force pump of suitable size worked by hand, shall be sufficient.

616. In passenger steamboats not exceeding two hundred tons gross, requiring only one pump, such pump shall be placed aft, unless the space forward is kept free to admit of ready access to the pump and hose, in which case the pump may be placed forward.

617. All steam pumps shall be supplied with suitable bilge connection having proper rose or mud box attachments, and also a steam syphon, ejector or other suitable means with which to relieve the hold of water.

618. When it is found that a metal tube or tubes are fixed on any steamboat not less in diameter than the hose carried by such steamboat connected with a force pump or pumps and provided with suitable connections placed at not more than thirty feet from each other, or from either end of the steamboat, to which the hose carried by the steamboat can be readily attached, it shall not be necessary that the hose should be of greater length than will be sufficient to reach from some one of such connections to either end of the steamboat.

(2) Each connection shall be provided with a stop valve or stop cock with keys and hose wrenches properly secured or chained to each stop valve or stop cock or connection, so that one or more of such hose attachments may be used as may be required.

619. Every passenger steamboat of more than sixty tons registered tonnage shall be provided with a steam pony pump that may be used as a fire engine, to be worked independently of the main engine.

(2) Such steam pony pump shall be placed in a suitable place, near the engine room convenient to the control of the engineer; and in all cases, the pump hose shall be coupled to the pony and hand fire pumps, ready for immediate use in case of fire.

620. Every passenger steamboat carrying passengers on the main or lower deck, shall be provided with sufficient and convenient facilities for the escape of passengers to the upper deck, in case of fire or other accident endangering life.

621. Every steamboat shall be provided with wire tiller ropes, or iron rods or chains, correctly and properly laid with suitable rollers for the purpose of steering and navigating the vessel, and shall use wire bell-pulls for signalling the engineer from the pilot house, where bells are used, together with tubes of proper size so arranged as to transmit the sound of the engine bells to the pilot house, or other arrangement approved by the inspector to repeat back the signal. Amended, 1908, c. 65, s. 17.

Engineers' Examination and Certificate.

622. Any person who claims to be qualified to perform the duties of a first, second, third or fourth class engineer on a steamboat may apply for a certificate to the Minister, who, in such case, shall cause the Board, or an inspector or inspectors, to examine the applicant and the proofs that he produces in support of his application, and to report upon such examination and proofs.

623. Such examination may be upon oath which any inspector may administer, and if the Board is satisfied that the character, habits of life, knowledge and experience in the duties of an engineer of the applicant are such as to qualify him to be such engineer, the Minister, on the report of the Board, shall give him a certificate to that effect, specifying the grade for which he has been found qualified: Provided that no applicant, if not a British subject, shall be entitled to a certificate unless, in addition to the qualifications required by this Part, he has been domiciled in Canada for at least three years, and foreigners serving as engineers in ships registered in Canada shall be deemed to be domiciled in Canada while so serving.

624. If the report of the inspector or inspectors, certifying the fitness of an applicant, is made at the time when the Board is not sitting, it may be sent by such inspector or inspectors to the chairman, who, if he approves of it, shall submit it to the Minister, who may thereupon grant the applicant a certificate specifying the grade for which he has been found qualified; but, if the report of the said inspector or inspectors does not certify the fitness of said applicant, or is not approved by the chairman, the fee paid by such candidate shall not be returned to him, but he may be once more examined without payment of further fee.

625. Such certificate shall be on parchment and signed by the Minister and granted for life or during good conduct.

626. Any certificate as an engineer issued by the Board, and in force on the second day of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, may be delivered up by the holder thereof to the Minister, who may thereupon give to the holder a certificate on parchment, signed by the Minister.

627. For the first certificate to an engineer of any class, or for a certificate raising him to a higher class after re-examination, the applicant shall pay five dollars; and for every certificate granted on the delivery up, under the last preceding section of any certificate, the applicant shall pay one dollar.

(2) Such sums shall be paid to the Minister of Finance to form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

628. The certificate of any such engineer may be suspended or cancelled by the Minister upon proof of negligence, unskillfulness or drunkenness, or in consequence of the finding of a coroner's inquest, or for any other cause deemed sufficient by the Minister and certified as such by him.

629. No person shall act in the double capacity of engineer and master on any steamboat, and no person shall, except when the boiler is fired from the engine room, act as engineer and fireman on any steamboat having an engine of over seven nominal horse-power and required by law to carry a certificated engineer.

2. Subject to such regulations as may be made by the Minister, this section shall not apply to any passenger ship not exceeding sixty-five feet registered length propelled by an internal combustion engine, or by a steam engine with a flash boiler, or by electricity. 1916, c. 13, s. 2,

630. Whenever any engineer proves to the satisfaction of the Minister that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of any certificate required under this Part, the Minister may, upon such terms and conditions as he deems fit, cause a copy or duplicate of the original certificate to be made out and certified as aforesaid and to be delivered to such engineer. 1912 c. 51, s. 3.

631. Every engineer holding a certificate of competency, whether granted under this Part or under the Acts of the United Kingdom relating to merchant shipping, who is employed on any steamboat to which this Part applies, shall keep his certificate of competency posted up, framed and protected by glass, in some conspicuous place in or near the engine room of such steamboat.

Temporary Certificate

632. The Minister, upon the report of the inspector of boilers and machinery in whose district the steamboat is to run, may grant a temporary certificate to an applicant sufficiently qualified by his knowledge of steamboat machinery and his experience as engineer on a steamboat, authorizing him to act as engineer on a steamboat carrying passengers, having an engine of not more than four nominal horse-power of the single cylinder type, or fourteen nominal horse-power if of the compound type, which steamboat, and the limits within which he may act, shall be designated in the certificate.. 1908, c. 65, s. 18.

633. Such temporary certificate may be issued for a term not exceeding one year, but may be suspended or cancelled for cause by the Minister.

634. For every such temporary certificate the applicant shall pay the sum of two dollars, which shall be paid over to the Minister of Finance to form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Certificates for the British Possessions.

635. In any case where the Minister has power under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, to grant a certificate valid in Great Britain or elsewhere outside of Canada, the Minister may issue such certificates of competency as first-class or second-class engineer.

(2) Such certificates shall have the word "Canada" prominently marked on their face and back and shall be as nearly as possible similar in shape and form to corresponding certificates of competency for the foreign trade granted by the Board of Trade of the United Kingdom, under the said Act, and shall be prominently marked on their face "Valid in the United Kingdom or any British possession."

636. Such certificates shall be granted only on proof that the previous service at sea of the person applying for the same has been such as is required by the regulations for the time being in force in the United Kingdom with respect to certificates of like grade, and shall be subject to be suspended or cancelled by the Board of Trade for like offences or causes, and in like manner as certificates granted under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

(2) All the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and of any order of His Majesty in Council made thereunder shall apply to such certificates.

637. Every such certificate may also be suspended or cancelled by the Minister upon proof of negligence, unskilfulness or drunkenness, or in consequence of the finding of a coroner's inquest and also for any other cause deemed sufficient by the Minister and certified as such by him.

638. Certificates of competency as first or second-class engineers in sea-going ships, granted by the Board of Trade under any of the Acts of the United Kingdom relating to merchant shipping shall, while in force under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, be of the same force and effect in Canada as if granted under this Part: Provided that the Minister may order an investigation into the misconduct or incompetency of an engineer holding one of such certificates, to be held by one of the inspectors, and may, on the report of such inspector, cancel or suspend such certificate so far as Canada is concerned.

Classification of Engineers.

639. Engineers shall be classified according to the following grades:—

- First-class engineers;
- Second-class engineers;
- Third-class engineers;
- Fourth-class engineers;
- Engineers with temporary certificates.

640. A first-class engineer shall be qualified to take charge of any steamboat.

(2) A second-class engineer shall be qualified to take charge of any freight steamboat, or of any other steamboat, except a sea-going passenger steamboat of more than one hundred nominal horse-power.

(3) A third-class engineer shall not be qualified to take charge of any sea-going steamboat, but shall be qualified to take charge of,—

(a) any passenger steamboat of not more than thirty nominal horse-power, having single cylinder engines; or,

(b) any passenger steamboat of not more than forty-five nominal horse-power, having compound engines; or,

(c) any freight steamboat or tugboat of not more than seventy-five nominal horsepower.

Amended 1908, c. 65, s. 19.

(4) A fourth-class engineer may act in the capacity of assistant engineer on any steamboat except a sea-going passenger steamboat of more than one hundred nominal horse-power, but shall not act as chief engineer on any steamboat requiring under this Part engineers holding certificates.

640a. The Minister may issue certificates authorizing persons found qualified by the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection to take charge of the machinery of vessels propelled by internal combustion engines, or by steam engines with flash boilers, or by electricity, and may prescribe by regulations, a classification for such certificates, the qualifications necessary for obtaining the several classes respectively, the limits of the authority and power conferred by the several classes of certificates and the fees payable for such certificates, and may also provide for the examination of those desiring to obtain certificates.

(2.) The provisions of section 628 shall apply to the certificates granted under this section, 1916, c. 13, s. 3,

Employment of Certificated Engineers.

641. No person shall employ another as engineer, and no person shall serve as engineer on any passenger steamboat, of whatever tonnage, or on any freight boat of over one hundred and fifty tons gross tonnage, or on any steamboat having an engine of over ten nominal horse-power, if of the single cylinder type, or over twenty nominal horsepower, if of the compound type, unless the person employed or serving as engineer holds a certificate of competency granted under this Part, or under the Acts of the United Kingdom, for the grade in which he is to be employed, or for a higher grade: Provided that, if a steamboat leaves a port with a complement of engineers and, on her voyage, is deprived of their services, or of the services of any of them, without the consent, fault or collusion of the master, owner or any one interested in the steamboat, the deficiency may be temporarily supplied until the steamboat reaches her port of destination, unless in the meantime, engineers holding such certificates can be obtained. 1908, c. 65, s. 20.

642. No one who holds a certificate as engineer, or a temporary certificate to act as engineer, under the Steamboat Inspection Act or under this Part, shall transfer such certificate or temporary certificate to any other person; and no person shall accept or be a party to the transfer of any such certificate or temporary certificate.

Offences and Penalties.

656. Any master or owner of a steamboat liable to inspection under this Part who neglects to cause the boiler and machinery and the hull and equipment thereof, or the boilers and machinery alone, as the case may be, to be inspected at least once every year, or to deliver one of the certificates of inspection to the chief officer of Customs at the port where such inspection is made, or at which such steamboat arrives next after such inspection, when it has not been made in such port, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than one hundred dollars for every neglect to cause such inspection to be made and a certificate thereof to be delivered to the proper officer of Customs.

657. In case the master, owner or engineer of any steamboat, or any person in charge thereof, omits, at the earliest opportunity after the occurrence of any event whereby the hull, or the machinery or boiler thereof, or any part of any or either of the same is, in any material degree, injured, strained or weakened, to report such occurrence, in writing to the office of the inspector who issued the certificate, the master shall be deemed guilty of misconduct and the owner of the steamboat shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars and costs; and if the injury is in respect to the boiler, machinery or any part thereof, the engineer shall be deemed guilty of negligence. 1908, c. 65, s. 21.

658. Every owner, officer or engineer or other person on board of any steamboat and in charge or appearing to be in charge of such steamboat, or of the boiler or machinery thereof, who refuses to answer, or falsely answers any questions asked of him by any inspector at any time when inspecting, visiting or examining any boiler and machinery or the hull of any steamboat, when such questions are pertinent and relate to the boiler, machinery or hull, or to any accident that has happened thereto, or who prevents any such inspection, shall be liable to a penalty of fifty dollars.

659. The master, owner or person in charge for the time being of any steamboat which makes,

(a) any trip or voyage before the certificate of inspection required by this Part has been issued; or,

(b) any trip or voyage or any part thereof at any time or during any period not covered by such certificate; or,

(c) any trip or voyage or any part thereof, on any waters beyond the limits for which the certificate of inspection required by this Part is issued, shall for each such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars.

(2) If such penalty and the costs of conviction are not paid forthwith, the steamboat shall, subject to the directions of the Minister, be liable to be seized and sold by any officer of Customs or any other person thereto directed by the Minister; and the said penalty and the costs of conviction and the costs of such seizure and sale shall be paid out of the proceeds of such sale, and the surplus, if any, shall be paid over to the owner of the steamboat.

660. The owner of any steamboat inspected under this Part, the equipment whereof is at any time, after an inspection made by an inspector or any person thereunto directed by the Minister, not such as was approved by the inspector when he issued the certificate of inspection then current, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than fifty dollars and not more than one hundred dollars.

661. Any engineer, master or person in charge of a steamboat, who, when such steamboat is stopped for over five minutes, neglects to open the safety-valve, so as to keep steam in the boiler below the pressure limited by the inspector's certificate, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars.

662. Every master and engineer of any steamboat who, at any time, allows the pressure of steam to which the boiler of such steamboat is subjected, to exceed the pressure limited by her certificate, or who alters or conceals or otherwise deals with the steam gauge, so as to prevent the actual pressure of steam from being seen and ascertained by any passenger shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars for each offence.

663. Every master and engineer of a steamboat who alters or deals with the safety valves, or allows them to be altered or dealt with in any manner whereby a greater pressure of steam may be obtained on the boiler than the pressure allowed by the certificate of inspection issued to such steamboat shall be liable for each offence to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars.

664. Any owner or master of any steamboat who fails to comply with any of the provisions of this Part respecting the precautions to be taken throughout such steamboat to guard against danger from fire, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars.

665. Every engineer holding a certificate of competency whether granted under this Part or under the Acts of the United Kingdom relating to merchant shipping, employed on any steamboat to which this Part applies, who neglects to keep his certificate of competency posted up, framed and protected by glass, in some conspicuous place in or near the engine-room of such steamboat, shall be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars.

666. Except in the case of a steamboat leaving port with a complement of engineers, being thereafter deprived of the service or the services of any such engineers without the consent, fault or collusion of the master, owner or any one interested in the steamboat, every person who employs another as engineer, or any person who serves as an engineer on any passenger steamboat of whatever tonnage or on any freight boat of over one hundred and fifty tons gross tonnage, or on any steamboat having an engine of over ten nominal horse-power, if of the single cylinder type, or over twenty nominal horse-power, if of the compound type, unless the person employed or serving as engineer holds a certificate of competency granted under this Part, or under the Acts of the United Kingdom, for the grade in which he is to be employed, or for a higher grade, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars and costs; but no person holding any temporary certificate, and no person who employs him as holding such certificate, shall be liable to such penalty if he is acting on the vessel and within the limits specified in the said certificate. 1908, c. 65, s. 22.

667. Any person holding a certificate as engineer, or a temporary certificate to act as engineer, under the provisions of this Part, who transfers such certificate to any other person, and any person who accepts or is a party to the transfer of any such certificate, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, and shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding two months if such penalty is not paid forthwith.

668. Every person who knowingly removes, or causes to be removed or is a party to removing any steamboat or vessel which was running in violation of any of the provisions of this Part or of any order in council made thereunder, and seized or detained by any chief officer of Customs or other person thereunto directed in writing by the Minister, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

669. Any person who impedes, prevents, obstructs or resists any inspector or chief officer of Customs or other person thereunto appointed in writing by the Minister, in the performance of any duty under any of the provisions of this Part, or of any order in council made thereunder, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to both.

670. Every owner of a steamboat, who, after the Minister has ordered that such steamboat shall not be used or run until permitted by him, runs or uses such steamboat in violation of such order, shall incur a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, and such steamboat shall be liable to seizure by the chief officer of Customs at any port or place or by any person thereunto authorized by the Minister.

675. Every inspector who wilfully, or through any culpable neglect of duty, makes or confirms any false statement in any certificate under this Part, shall incur a penalty of two hundred dollars.

676. In every case in which a conviction has been secured against the owner, lessee or charterer of a steamboat for a violation of any of the provisions of this Part, and a money penalty imposed, such steamboat shall, if the penalty is not paid forthwith, be liable to be seized and, after such reasonable notice as the Minister may, in each case, prescribe, may be sold by any chief officer of Customs or any other person authorized for such purposes in writing by the Minister, and such chief officer or person may, by bill of sale, give the purchaser a valid title to such a steamboat free from any mortgage or other claim on the vessel which at the time of such sale may be in existence.

(2) Any surplus remaining from the proceeds of sale after paying the amount of the said penalty and the costs of conviction together with the costs of such seizure and sale shall be paid over to the owner of such steamboat, or the mortgagee, as the case may be.

677. Except when otherwise especially provided, the owner or master of any steamboat in Canada shall, for any violation in respect of such steamboat, on any one voyage or trip thereof, of any of the provisions of this Part, or of any order in council made thereunder, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars.

678. Any chief officer of Customs or any inspector may detain any steamboat in respect of which the provisions of this Part or any order in council made thereunder have not been fully complied with, or of which the boiler or machinery or the hull, by reason of any injury or other cause, have, in an inspector's opinion, become unsafe.

679. Whenever an inspector gives notice in writing to any chief officer of Customs that any of the provisions of this Part or any order in council made thereunder, have not been fully complied with in respect to any steamboat, such chief officer of Customs shall seize and detain such steamboat until he receives the certificate in writing of such inspector, to the effect that such provisions have been fully complied with in respect to such steamboat.

680. All penalties incurred under this Part may be recovered with costs in a summary manner under the provisions of Part XV. of the Criminal Code, in the name of His Majesty, by an inspector or any person aggrieved by any act, neglect or omission, or by any person named in writing for the purpose by the Minister.

(2) Any prosecution for any penalty under this Part may be brought before any judge of a county court, judge of the sessions of the peace, stipendiary or police magistrate, or two justices of the peace; and in default of immediate payment of any penalty, and costs, such judge, magistrate or justices may commit the offender to gaol for any term not exceeding three months, unless such penalty and costs are sooner paid.

681. All penalties recovered under this Part shall be paid to the Minister of Finance, and shall be by him placed to the credit of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada: Provided that the Governor in Council may, if he sees fit, authorize the payment of a portion of any such penalty to the informer, if he is not an inspector.

General.

682. Any information or complaint in respect of any offence against the provisions of this Part may be laid or made within twelve months of the time when the matter of the information or complaint arose.

684. The Minister may order an investigation to be made by any person or persons into the cause of any accident on any steamboat whether attended with loss of life or not.

(2) The person or persons so appointed may summon witnesses and compel their attendance before him or them by the same process as courts of justice, and may administer oaths and examine witnesses touching the cause of such accident and report thereon to the Minister.

685. The chairman of the Board shall, as often as the Minister may direct, furnish a report of the proceedings of the Board, and a return of all steamboats inspected, and of all penalties collected under this Part.

686. Each inspector shall make monthly returns to the chairman of the Board of all steamboats inspected by him, their tonnage and power, with general descriptions of their machinery and hulls, and a statement of the fees collected upon the same, and any other information which the Minister may direct.

687. The tonnage of every British steamship for the purpose of this Part, shall be the tonnage ascertained by the rules of measurement prescribed by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894; but, in the case of foreign steamships, the tonnage indicated by their national papers shall be the tonnage for the purpose of this Part.

Inspection of Ships—Hulls and Equipment.

Chapter 113.—688. In this Part unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'Inspector' means an inspector appointed under this Part by the Governor in Council to inspect the hulls and equipments of ships;

(b) 'Ship' or 'ships' includes tow-barges and every description of vessel used in navigation, not propelled by oars or wholly or partly by steam, and registered in Canada.

689. Except as therein otherwise provided, this Part shall not apply to ships,—

(a) belonging to His Majesty; or,

(b) classed in Lloyd's register of British and foreign shipping; or,

(c) classed in any other corporation or association for the survey and registry of ships approved by the Governor in Council.

(2) If any such ship ceases to be classed as aforesaid she shall be subject to this Part.

Inspector.

690. The Governor in Council may from time to time appoint any port warden, harbour master, inspector of hulls and equipment of steamboats or officers of the Department of Marine and Fisheries to inspect the hulls and equipment of ships.

(2) No person so appointed shall be interested in the building or construction of hulls of ships, or of any article or thing forming part of, or properly belonging to or connected with the equipment of a ship.

Regulations.

691. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, make rules and regulations for or relating to the inspection of ships for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in a seaworthy condition.

(2) Such inspection shall comprise the hull, and the masts, spars, sails, rigging, anchors, cables, chains, boats and other parts of the outfit or equipment.

Report to Inspector.

692. The master or owner of a ship, or the person in charge thereof, shall, at the earliest opportunity after the occurrence of any event whereby the hull, masts and spars or equipment or any part of the same is, in any material degree, injured, strained or weakened, report such occurrence to an inspector or the collector of Customs.

Powers of Inspector.

693. Every inspector may, for the purpose of inspecting, at any time go on board of any ship liable to inspection under this Part and inspect or examine the same and every part thereof, and the machinery, equipment and cargo, and may require the unloading or removal of any cargo, ballast or tackle, and may ask of any or all of the owners or officers of such ship, or other person on board thereof and in charge or appearing to be in charge thereof, such pertinent questions concerning the same, or concerning any accident that has happened thereto, as he thinks fit.

(2) Every such person shall fully and truly answer every such question so put to him.

694. Every inspector may, at any time visit any ship, whether registered in Canada or elsewhere, and whether propelled wholly or in part by steam, except ships belonging to His Majesty; and although any such ship is classed in Lloyds register of British and foreign shipping, or in any other corporation or association for the survey and register of ships approved by the Governor in Council, and inspect and examine the tackle, machinery or apparatus used for the loading or unloading thereof, and, if he considers such tackle, machinery or apparatus defective, so as to be dangerous to life, he shall report thereon to the Minister who may order that such tackle, machinery and apparatus shall not be used until permitted by the Minister.

695. Every inspector may demand of the owner or master or other person in charge of any ship which he is inspecting, the production of the certificate of registry of such ship, and such owner or master or person in charge shall thereupon produce and exhibit the same to such inspector.

696. If an inspector reports to the Minister in writing that he considers that any ship liable to inspection under this Part could not make a voyage or trip from any port or place in Canada without endangering life or property, stating the facts on which his report is based, the Minister may direct such ship to be detained, and the inspector may thereupon detain such ship and notify a chief officer of Customs at any port.

(2) No ship so detained shall go on any voyage or trip as aforesaid, or be used for the purposes of navigation, until permitted by the Minister.

Offences and Penalties.

697. Any master or owner of any ship detained under the provisions of the last preceding section, or other person, who takes or sends, or attempts to take or send, or is a party to taking or sending, or to attempting to take or send such ship on a voyage or trip from any port or place in Canada without the permission of the Minister, shall incur a penalty of two hundred dollars.

698. When a ship is found liable by a conviction for the penalty in the last preceding section mentioned, the Minister may direct any chief officer of Customs or any inspector to seize and sell such ship.

(2) Upon such order, if given to the chief officer of Customs, it shall be the duty of such chief officer of Customs to seize and sell such ship, in the same manner as goods are seized and sold for non-payment of Customs duties in Canada; and such chief officer of Customs shall account and pay over all moneys received from such sale to the Minister of Finance, to form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

(3) If such order is given to an inspector, the ship may be seized by such inspector, who shall have the same powers as a chief officer of Customs would have in like circumstances, and shall make to the Minister a report of his seizure, whereupon such report may be communicated by the Minister to the Minister of Customs, and like proceedings may be had for the forfeiture and sale of the vessel seized as if it had been duly seized by a chief officer of Customs.

699. If the master or owner of a ship, or the person in charge thereof, omits to report to an inspector, or to the collector of Customs, at the earliest opportunity, the occurrence of any event whereby the hull, masts and spars or equipment, or any part of same is in any material degree injured, strained or weakened, the owner of such ship shall incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and such ship shall be liable for such penalty.

700. Every owner or officer of a ship, or other person on board thereof and in charge or appearing to be in charge thereof, who refuses to answer or falsely answers any question asked of him by any inspector when inspecting or examining such ship or any part thereof, or the machinery, equipment or cargo thereof, when such questions are pertinent and relate to such ship or any part thereof, or the machinery, equipment or cargo thereof or to any accident that has happened thereto, or who prevents any such inspection or obstructs or impedes any inspector in making such inspection, or who, being in charge, refuses to render such inspector reasonable assistance in making such survey or examination, shall incur a penalty of two hundred dollars.

701. Any tackle, machinery or apparatus used in violation of any order made by the Minister under the authority of this Part, prohibiting the use of such tackle, machinery or apparatus until permitted by the Minister, shall be liable to forfeiture and seizure by the chief officer of Customs at any port, and may thereupon be sold in the same way and under like provision as goods liable to forfeiture for non-payment of Customs duties; and the owner of the ship, for the loading or unloading of which such tackle, machinery or apparatus is used in violation of such order, shall incur a penalty of one hundred dollars, and such ship shall be liable for such penalty.

702. Penalties under this Part may be recovered upon summary conviction.

(2) Any information or complaint in respect of any offence against the provisions of this Part may, whenever the prosecution, suit or proceeding is instituted under Part XV of the Criminal Code, be laid or made within twelve months of the time when the matter of the information or complaint arose.

Safety of Ships and Prevention of Accidents on Board.

Chapter 113.—703. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(h) 'steamer' includes any vessel registered in Canada, propelled wholly or in part by steam, and carrying passengers to or from any place or places in Canada, to or from any place or places out of Canada, not being in the United Kingdom, or between any place or places in Canada.

Application.

704. Nothing in this Part contained shall apply to ships belonging to His Majesty, nor to yachts used exclusively for pleasure or private use without hire or remuneration.

Survey of Ships.

705. If complaint is made to the Minister that any ship registered in Canada is, by reason of the defective condition of her hull or equipments, or by reason of her being over-loaded or improperly loaded, unfit to proceed to sea, or on any voyage on any waters within the limits of Canada, the Minister may cause such ship to be surveyed by a person appointed by him.

706. Every such complaint shall be in writing, and shall state the name and address of the complainant; and a copy of the complaint, including the name and address of the complainant, shall, before or during such survey, be given by the Minister to the master or to the owner or one of the owners of the ship.

707. The Minister may exact from the complainant, before such survey, if he thinks fit so to do, a deposit of money to defray the expenses of the survey, and to pay any loss which may be sustained by the owner on account of any detention, or such security for the payment of such expenses and loss as he deems sufficient.

708. If the person making such survey reports that the hull or equipments of such ship is or are in such a state, or that such ship is so loaded that she could not proceed to sea or on any such voyage, as the case may be, without serious danger to human life, the Minister may declare such ship to be unseaworthy, and thereupon any principal officer of Customs may detain such ship.

709. If, upon such survey, such ship is found to be seaworthy, the expenses of the survey shall be paid to the Minister by the person making the complaint, which payment shall not prejudice any right of suit or action against such complainant by any person aggrieved by the complaint, but, if such ship is found to be unseaworthy, the expenses of the survey shall be paid to the Minister by the owner of the ship.

710. Any shipowner who is dissatisfied with the decision of any person so appointed by the Minister may appeal to the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side for the district where such ship was surveyed; and such court may, if it thinks fit, appoint a competent person or competent persons to survey such ship anew.

(2) Upon any such appeal, such court may make such order as to the detention or discharge of the ship, as to the payment whether by the Crown or otherwise of any costs or damages occasioned by her detention, and as to the payment of the expenses of the original survey, and of the survey anew, as to such court seems just.

711. Any person so appointed either by the Minister or by the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side to survey a ship, may, in the execution of his duty, go on board such ship at all reasonable times and inspect the same or any part thereof, or any of the equipments, cargo or articles on board thereof, or the certificate of registry thereof; but shall not, in such inspection, unnecessarily detain or delay the ship in proceeding on her voyage; and, if such person considers it necessary so to do, he may require the ship to be so dealt with that he may be able to inspect every part of the hull thereof.

[Sections 713, 722 and 723 deal with the shipment of explosives, etc.]

Offences and Penalties.

718. Every person who hinders any person appointed under the authority of this Part to survey a ship, either by the Minister or by the Exchequer Court on its Admiralty side, from going on board such ship, or otherwise impedes him in the execution of his duty, shall for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

720. Every person on board a steamer, who without reasonable excuse, proof whereof shall lie on him, does or causes to be done, anything in such manner as to obstruct or injure any part of the machinery or tackle of the steamer, or to obstruct, impede or molest the crew, or any of them in the navigation or management of such steamer or otherwise in the execution of their duty on or about the steamer, shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

721. The master or other officer of any steamer, and all persons called by him to his assistance, may detain any offender against any of the provisions of the two sections last preceding, whose name and address are unknown to such master or officer, and may convey such offender with all convenient despatch before some justice or justices of the peace; and any offender so conveyed before such justice or justices under this section, shall be dealt with as if arrested, and brought before them on his or their warrant, under Part XV of the Criminal Code.

(2) Any justice of the peace shall have jurisdiction under the two last preceding sections, either in the place where the offence was committed, or, if committed while the steamer is under way, then in the place where it next stops.

Wrecks—Investigations into Shipping Casualties.

Chapter 113 with amendments.—732. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

- (a) 'Vessel' includes every description of vessel used in navigation;
- (f) 'Wreck' includes cargo, stores and tackle of any such vessel and of all parts of the vessel separated therefrom, and also the property of shipwrecked persons;
- (i) 'Inland waters' includes all the rivers, lakes and other navigable waters within Canada;
- (j) 'Coasts' includes the sea coast and the salt-water bays, gulfs and harbours on the sea coast;
- (k) 'Pilot' means any person not belonging to a ship who has the conduct thereof;
- (l) 'Certificate' includes license and branch license. 1908, c. 65, s. 26.

Superintendence.

733. The Minister shall, throughout Canada, have the general superintendence of all matters relating to wrecks and shipping casualties.

Shipping Casualties.

776. A shipping casualty shall be deemed to occur,—

- (a) whenever any ship is lost, abandoned, stranded or damaged in any of the inland waters of Canada or on or near the coasts of Canada, or on a voyage to a port in Canada;
- (b) whenever any ship causes loss or damage to any other ship in, on or near such inland waters or coasts;
- (c) whenever, by reason of any casualty happening to or on board of any ship in, on or near such inland waters or coasts, loss of life ensues;
- (d) whenever any such loss, abandonment, stranding, damage or casualty happens elsewhere, and any competent witness thereof arrives or is found at any place in Canada;
- (e) when any loss of life occurs by reason of any casualty happening to or on board any boat belonging to a fishing vessel or other vessel registered in Canada;
- (f) when any British ship is lost or supposed to have been lost, and any evidence is obtainable in Canada as to the circumstances under which she proceeded to sea or was last heard of.

Preliminary Inquiry.

777. The Minister may appoint a principal officer of Customs or any officer of the Government of Canada, or any person to make preliminary inquiries respecting such shipping casualties and may define the territorial jurisdiction of any such officer or person.

(2) If, upon a preliminary inquiry, the officer holding it is of opinion that any loss or damage or the stranding of any ship, or any loss of life has been caused by the wrongful act or default or by the incapacity of the pilot in charge, or that such pilot has been guilty of any gross act of misconduct or drunkenness, the license of such pilot may be suspended by such officer until a formal investigation under this Part has been held and a further decision rendered upon the case: Provided that the term of suspension shall not exceed a period of three days, unless the Minister notifies such pilot within that time that a formal investigation will be held.

778. Every such officer or person may for the purpose of holding such preliminary inquiry,—

- (a) go on board any vessel or wreck, and inspect it or any part thereof, or any of the machinery, boats, equipments, lading or articles on board thereof, the boarding or inspection of which appears to him to be requisite for the purpose of his inquiry, not unnecessarily detaining any such vessel from proceeding on any voyage;
- (b) enter and inspect any premises, the entry and inspection of which appear to him requisite for the purpose of the inquiry;
- (c) require by summons under his hand the attendance of all such persons as he thinks fit to call before him, and examine for such purpose, and require answers or returns to any inquiries he thinks fit to make;

(d) require and enforce the production of all books, papers, or documents which he considers important for such purpose;

(e) administer oaths, or, in lieu of requiring and administering an oath, require every person examined by him to make and subscribe a solemn affirmation or declaration of the truth of the statement made by him in his examination.

779. Every witness so summoned shall be allowed such expenses as would be allowed to any witness attending on subpoena to give evidence before any court of record in the province of Canada in which the preliminary inquiry is held.

(2) In case of any dispute as to the amount of such expenses, the dispute shall be referred by such officer or person to the nearest prothonotary, clerk, master, or other taxing officer of any court of record within the jurisdiction of which the attendance is required, who, on a request made to him for that purpose under the hand of such officer or person, shall ascertain and certify the proper amount of such expenses.

780. Upon the conclusion of any such inquiry, the officer or person who made it shall send to the Minister a report containing a full statement of the case, and of his opinion thereon, accompanied by such report or of extracts from the evidence and such observations as he thinks fit.

Formal Investigation.

781. The Minister may appoint any officer of the Government of Canada, or any judge of any court of record, or any local judge in admiralty of the Exchequer Court of Canada, or any stipendiary or police magistrate, to be a commissioner to hold formal investigations, or any formal investigation, and a commissioner shall for that purpose be a court. 1908, c. 65, s. 27.

(2) In any case arising before or after the passage of this Act, which the Minister considers to be of extreme gravity and special importance, he may appoint two or more fit persons to be commissioners to hold a formal investigation, and the commissioners so appointed shall, for that purpose, be a court, and such court shall, in addition to its judgment, make a full and detailed report to the Minister upon the circumstances of the case, and may make such recommendations as may in its opinion be proper in the premises. 1914, c. 49, s. 1.

782. A court so appointed is authorized to hold a formal investigation upon one being ordered by the Minister in the following cases:—

(a) a shipping casualty;

(b) where a master, mate, pilot, or engineer has been charged with incompetency, misconduct or default while serving on board any British ship on or near the coasts of Canada or in the course of a voyage to a port in Canada;

(c) where a master, mate, pilot, or engineer is charged with incompetency, misconduct or default while serving as an officer on board a British ship registered in Canada;

(d) where a master, mate, pilot or engineer is charged with incompetency, misconduct or default while serving on board a British ship found in Canada;

(e) where, in case of a collision, the master or certificated officer or pilot in charge of a vessel fails, without reasonable cause, to render to the other vessel, her master, crew and passengers, such assistance as is practicable and necessary to save them from any danger caused by the collision and to stay by the vessel until he has ascertained that she has no need of further assistance, and also to give to the master or person in charge of the other vessel the name of his own vessel and of the port to which he belongs and also the names of the ports from which he comes and to which he is bound;

(f) where the Minister has reason to believe that any master, mate, pilot or engineer is from any cause unfit or incapable to discharge his duties. 1908, c. 65, s. 28.

782a. It shall not be necessary to hold a preliminary investigation before a formal investigation is held. 1908, c. 65, s. 29.

783. The Minister may, at any time, appoint one or more assessors of nautical, engineering or other special skill or knowledge, for the purposes of assisting such courts in holding formal investigations into shipping casualties, and such appointments shall be in force for three years.

(2) An assessor shall, from time to time, be eligible for reappointment; and the Minister may, at any time, cancel the appointment of an assessor.

784. A court holding a formal investigation into a shipping casualty shall hold it with two or more assessors to be selected for that purpose by the Minister. Such assessors shall have nautical, engineering or special skill in the matter to be inquired into, and the court shall be the sole judge as to whether any assessor possesses the requisite skill. 1908, c. 65, s. 30.

785. (Repealed by 1908, c. 65, s. 31.)

786. Every commissioner and assessor, before entering upon his duties, shall take and subscribe the following oath:—

"I (A.B.) do swear (or solemnly affirm) that I will perform the duties of commissioner (or assessor) under the Canada Shipping Act, and that I will act faithfully in that capacity, without partiality, fear, favour or affection. So help me God." 1908, c. 65, s. 32.

787. Formal investigations shall be held in some town hall or county court-house, or public building, or in some other suitable place to be determined by the court.

788. Whenever a formal investigation is likely to involve a question as to cancelling or suspending the certificate of competency or service of any master, mate, pilot, or engineer, he shall be furnished with a copy of the report or statement of the case upon which the investigation has been ordered.

789. Such court shall have the power of summoning before it any person, and of requiring him to give evidence on oath, either orally or in writing, and to produce such documents and things as such court deems requisite to the full investigation of the matters into which it is appointed to examine.

790. Such court shall have the same power to enforce the attendance of witnesses and to compel them to give evidence as is vested in any court of justice in civil cases.

(2) The proceedings of such court shall be assimilated as far as possible to those of the ordinary courts of justice, with the like publicity.

791. Such court shall have all the powers conferred by section four hundred and seventy-eight of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, on any court authorized by the legislature of any British possession to make inquiries as to shipwrecks or other casualties affecting ships, or as to charges of incompetency or misconduct on the part of masters, mates, pilots or engineers of ships.

792. Every witness summoned under this Part before such court shall be allowed such expenses as would be allowed to any witness attending on subpoena to give evidence before any court of record in the province of Canada in which the formal investigation is held.

793. When the Minister, at the request of any person, orders a formal investigation, it shall be the duty of such person to render such assistance to the court as is in his power.

794. The court may make such order as it thinks fit respecting the costs of such investigation, or the rehearing thereof, or any part of such investigation or rehearing, and such order shall be enforced by the court as an order for costs under Part XV of the Criminal Code.

795. Every formal investigation shall be conducted in such manner that, if a charge is made against any person, such person shall have an opportunity of making a defence.

796. The court may at any time, either during or after a formal investigation, call upon any master, mate, pilot or engineer, to deliver his certificate to the court. 1908, c. 65, s. 33.

797. Where any formal investigation involves a question as to the cancelling or suspending of a certificate, the court shall, at the conclusion of the case or so soon afterwards as possible, state in open court the decision to which they have come with respect to the cancelling or suspending thereof.

(2) Where a formal investigation is held into a shipping casualty, each assessor shall either sign the report or state in writing his dissent therefrom and the reasons for that dissent.

798. The court shall, upon application being made therefor, furnish free of charge to any master, mate, pilot or engineer, whose certificate has been cancelled or suspended or to his agent, a copy of the judgment of the court. 1908, c. 65, s. 34.

799. The court shall in all cases send the judgment in the case, with the evidence, to the Minister, and if it determines to cancel or suspend any certificate, and the certificate has been delivered to the court, the certificate shall also be sent to the Minister. 1908, c. 65, s. 35.

800. The Minister shall, if such certificate,—

(a) has been issued by the Government of Canada, retain the same;

(b) has been issued by the Board of Trade, forward it, with the report and evidence to the Board of Trade; and,

(c) has been issued by any British possession other than Canada, send the same, together with a full report upon the case and a copy of the evidence, to the governor of such British possession.

801. The certificate of a master, mate, pilot, or engineer, may be cancelled or suspended by a court holding a formal investigation,—

(a) if the court finds that any loss, or damage, or the abandonment or stranding of any ship, or any loss of life has been caused by the wrongful act or default of such master, mate, pilot or engineer; or,

(b) if it finds that such master, mate, pilot or engineer is incompetent, or has been guilty of any gross act of misconduct, drunkenness or tyranny; or,

(c) if it finds that such master, mate, pilot, or engineer in a case of collision has failed to render the assistance or to give the information required by law in that behalf.

(2) In the case of a shipping casualty, the court shall not cancel or suspend a certificate unless one at least of the assessors concurs in the finding of the court.

(3) A certificate shall not be cancelled or suspended under this section unless the holder of the certificate has had an opportunity of making a defence. 1908, c. 65, s. 36.

Powers of the Minister.

802. The Minister may make general rules for the carrying into effect of the enactment relating to formal investigations or to the rehearing of any formal investigation, and, in particular, with respect to the appointment and summoning of assessors, the procedure, the parties the persons allowed to appear and the notice to the parties or to persons affected.

803. The Minister may suspend or cancel the Canadian certificate of any master, mate, pilot or engineer if it is shown that he has been convicted of an offence.

804. The Minister may, if he thinks that the justice of the case requires it, re-issue and return the Canadian certificate of a master, mate, pilot or engineer which has been cancelled or suspended, or shorten the time for which it is suspended, or grant in place thereof a certificate of the same or any lower grade.

805. In any case where a formal investigation has been held, the Minister may order the investigation to be reheard, either generally or as to any part thereof; and he shall so order,—

(a) if new and important evidence which could not be produced at the investigation has been discovered; or,

(b) if, for any other reason, there has been in his opinion ground for suspecting that a miscarriage of justice has occurred.

806. The Minister may order the case to be reheard by the court by which the case was heard in the first instance, or may appoint another commissioner and select the same or other assessors to rehear the case. 1908, c. 65, s. 37.

806a. There shall be no appeal from any decision of a court holding any formal investigation under this Act, except to the Minister for a rehearing under the provisions of section 806.

(2) No proceeding or judgment of a court in or upon any formal investigation shall be quashed or set aside for any want of form, nor shall any such proceeding or judgment be removed by certiorari or otherwise into any court; and no writ of prohibition shall issue to any court constituted under this Act in respect of any proceeding or judgment in or upon any formal investigation, nor shall such proceeding or judgment be subject to any review except by the Minister as aforesaid. 1908, c. 65, s. 38.

807. The Minister may, if in any case, he thinks fit so to do, pay the costs of any such formal investigation out of any sums voted by Parliament for the purpose of holding investigations into shipping casualties.

808. The provisions of this Part relating to the manner in which such certificates shall be dealt with shall, so far as they are applicable, extend to pilots' licenses which shall be subject to cancellation and suspension in the same manner as the certificate of a master, mate, or engineer, is subject to cancellation and suspension under this Part.

(2) The court may, instead of cancelling or suspending any such license, fine any licensed pilot in any sum not exceeding four hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, and may make order for the payment of such fine by instalments or otherwise, as it deems expedient.

(3) Any penalty incurred under this section may be recovered in the name of His Majesty in a summary manner with costs under the provisions of Part XV of the Criminal Code.

809. An investigation or inquiry shall not be held under Part VI into any matter which has once been the subject of an investigation or inquiry under this Part.

820. Every master, mate, pilot or engineer who fails to deliver his certificate to the court when so required, either during or after a formal investigation, shall incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars. 1908, c. 65, s. 39.

Procedure.

821. Every person charged under this Part with an indictable offence may be indicted and prosecuted, and the venue may be laid in any county or district.

822. In any indictment or prosecution under this Part, for any indictable offence in respect of wreck, it shall not be necessary to lay the property in any person, or to identify the alleged wreck as part of any particular vessel or wreck coming from any particular vessel, or as the property of any particular person.

823. Every penalty, forfeiture or punishment, for any offence against this Part not by this Part declared to be an indictable offence, may be imposed, adjudged and recovered on summary conviction before any two justices of the peace, or any magistrate having the powers of two justices of the peace, under Part XV of the Criminal Code.

Pensions for Employees.

Chapter 123.—1. This Act may be cited as the Pension Fund Societies Act.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires 'parent corporation' means the corporation any of whose officers establish or take proceedings to establish a pension fund society under the provisions of this Act.

3. The president, vice-president, general manager, assistant general manager, or person acting as such, cashier, assistant cashier and inspector of any corporation legally transacting business in Canada, under any Act of the Parliament of Canada, or any two of the said officers, with any other of the superior officers, may at any time establish a pension fund society in connection with the administration of such corporation, under the regulations and subject to the supervision and control hereinafter designated, and thereupon they and the employees of such corporation who join the said society and those who replace them from time to time, shall be and be designated as the pension fund society of the corporation; and under such name shall be and become a body corporate and politic.

4. Such of the said officers of any corporation as desire to establish a pension fund society under the provisions of this Act, may make and sign in duplicate a declaration in effect according to the schedule to this Act setting forth therein the names, residences and official positions of the said officers, the name of the parent corporation, the exact name adopted for such society and the place within Canada which is to be its chief place of business, and shall file such declaration in the office of the Secretary of State of Canada, and in the office of the registrar of deeds for the county or registration division within which the chief place of business of the society shall be situated; and the officers who make and sign such declaration shall be the provisional directors of the society, and shall hold office until their successors are appointed or elected.

5. Notice of the incorporation of such society shall also be given by publication in the "Canada Gazette" for four weeks and in such notice shall be given,—

- (a) the exact name adopted by such society;
- (b) the designation of the chief place of business of the society; and,
- (c) the name of the secretary thereof upon whom legal process may be served.

(2) Notice of any change in such place or in the person of the secretary shall also be given in a similar way.

6. The provisional directors shall have power to call the first meeting of the society and at such meeting directors may be elected and by-laws may be passed under the provisions of this Act; and upon the passage of such by-laws a copy thereof and subsequent copies of other by-laws in amendment thereof, in addition thereto or diminution thereof shall also be filed with the Secretary of State within two weeks from the passage thereof.

7. The affairs of the society shall be administered by a board of directors who shall be appointed or elected in such manner, in such number, with such qualifications, and for such period as are determined by the by-laws; but at the first meeting of the society to be held under this Act five directors shall be elected, subject to addition to such number if so sanctioned by the by-laws, and other officers may be appointed in such manner, with such remuneration, and under such provisions touching their powers and duties as are established by the by-laws.

(2) Each contributory to the funds of the society, including the parent corporation, shall have such right to vote at general meetings of the society, on such occasions, subject to such restrictions and on such conditions as are determined by the by-laws.

8. After its incorporation under this Act every pension fund society shall have the power by means of voluntary contribution or otherwise as its by-laws provide, to form a fund, and may invest, hold and administer the same and from out of the said fund may,—

(a) provide for the support and payment of pensions to officers and employees of the parent corporation incapacitated by age or infirmity; and,

(b) upon the death of such officers or employees, pay annuities or gratuities to their widows and minor children or other surviving relatives in such manner as by the by-laws may be specified.

9. Every such incorporated society shall have all corporate powers necessary for the purposes of this Act, and may make by-laws not contrary to law defining and regulating in the premises, and prescribing the mode of enforcement of all the rights, powers and duties of,—

- (a) the society;
  - (b) the individual members thereof;
  - (c) the officers and employees of the parent corporation;
  - (d) the widows and orphans or other surviving relatives of such officers and employees;
  - (e) the parent corporation.
- (2) Every such incorporated society may also make by-laws as aforesaid for,—
- (a) the formation and maintenance of the said pension fund;
  - (b) the management and distribution thereof generally;
  - (c) enforcing any penalty or forfeiture in the premises; and,
  - (d) the government and ordering of all business and affairs of the society.

(3) No such by-law shall have any force or effect unless the same has been sanctioned by the board of directors of the parent corporation.

10. All the powers, authority, rights, penalties and forfeitures whatsoever in the premises, whether of the society or of the individual members thereof, or of the officers and employees thereof, or of such widows and orphans and relatives, or of the parent corporation shall be such and such only and may be enforced in such mode and in such mode only, as by such by-laws shall be defined and limited.

11. All the revenues of the society, from whatever source derived, shall be devoted exclusively to the maintenance of the society and the furtherance of the objects aforesaid of the said fund and to no other purpose whatever.

12. The parent corporation may, and is hereby authorized to contribute annually or otherwise to the funds of the said society, by a vote of either its directors or its shareholders.

13. The interest of any member in the funds of the society shall not be transferable or assignable in any manner whatsoever by way of pledge, hypothecation, sale or security.

14. Every society formed under this Act shall at all times when thereunto required by the Governor in Council or by either House of Parliament make a full return of their property and of their receipts and expenditure for such period and with such details and other information as the Governor in Council or either House of Parliament requires.

Labour Organizations—Constitution, Registry, etc.

Chapter 125.—1. This Act may be cited as the Trade Unions Act.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, 'trade union' means such combination, whether temporary or permanent, for regulating the relations between workmen and masters, or for imposing restrictive conditions on the conduct of any trade or business, as would, but for this Act, have been deemed to be an unlawful combination by reason of some one or more of its purposes being in restraint of trade.

Application.

3. This Act shall not affect,—
- (a) any agreement between partners as to their own business;
  - (b) any agreement between an employer and those employed by him as to such employment;
  - (c) any agreement in consideration of the sale of the goodwill of a business, or of instruction in any profession, trade or handicraft.
4. Nothing in this Act shall enable any court to entertain any legal proceeding instituted with the object of directly enforcing or recovering damages for the breach of any agreement,—
- (a) between members of a trade union, as such, concerning the conditions on which any members for the time being of the trade union shall, or shall not, sell their goods, transact business, employ or be employed;
  - (b) for the payment by any person of any subscription or penalty to a trade union;
  - (c) for the application of the funds of a trade union,
    - (i) to provide benefits to members, or
    - (ii) to furnish contributions to any employer or workman, not a member of such trade union,
- in consideration of such employer or workman acting in conformity with the rules or resolutions of such trade union, or,
- (iii) to discharge any fine imposed upon any person by sentence of a court of justice;
  - (d) made between one trade union and another; or,
  - (e) bond to secure the performance of any of the above-mentioned agreements.
- (2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to constitute any of the agreements above mentioned unlawful.
5. No Act in force in Canada providing for the constitution and incorporation of charitable, benevolent or provident institutions, shall include or apply to trade unions and this Act shall not apply to any trade union not registered under this Act.

Constitution and Registry.

6. Any seven or more members of a trade union may, by subscribing their names to the rules of the union and otherwise complying with the provisions of this Act with respect to registry, register such trade union under this Act, but if any one of the purposes of such trade union is unlawful, such registration shall be void.

7. The Registrar-General of Canada shall be the Registrar under this Act.

8. With respect to the registry, under this Act, of trade unions, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(a) An application to register the trade union and printed copies of its rules, together with a list of the titles and names of its officers, shall be sent to the Registrar under this Act;

(b) The Registrar, upon being satisfied that the trade union has complied with the regulations respecting registry in force under this Act, shall register such trade union and such rules;

(c) No trade union shall be registered under a name identical with that under which any other trade union has been registered, or so nearly resembling such name as to be likely to deceive the members or the public.

(d) If a trade union which applies to be registered has been in operation for more than a year before the date of such application, there shall be delivered to the Registrar before the registry thereof, a general statement of the receipts, funds, effects and expenditure of such trade union, in the same form and showing the same particulars as if it was the annual general statement required, as hereinafter mentioned to be transmitted annually to the Registrar;

(e) The Registrar, upon registering such trade union, shall issue a certificate of registry, which certificate, unless it is proved to have been withdrawn or cancelled, shall be conclusive evidence that the regulations of this Act, with respect to registry, have been complied with.

9. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, make regulations respecting registry under this Act, and respecting the seal, if any, to be used for the purpose of such registry and the inspection of documents kept by the Registrar under this Act, and respecting the fees, if any, to be paid on registry, not exceeding the fees specified in the first schedule to this Act, and generally for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act as to registry of trade unions.*

10. With respect to the rules of a trade union registered under this Act, the following provisions shall have effect:—

(a) The rules shall contain provisions in respect to the several matters mentioned in the second schedule to this Act;

(b) A copy of the rules shall be delivered by the trade union to every person on demand, on payment of a sum not exceeding twenty-five cents.

11. Every trade union registered under this Act shall have a registered office, to which all communications and notices may be addressed.

12. Notice of the situation of such registered office and of any change therein, shall be given to the Registrar and recorded by him; and until such notice is given, the trade union shall not be deemed to have complied with the provisions of this Act.

* Regulations are in force under this section relative to the registry of trade unions and to alterations in the rules of any union. The regulations also prescribe the forms to be used by trade unions in applying for registration or in making the annual returns, required by the Act, respecting receipts and expenditures, alterations of rules, and changes of officers.

Annual Statement.

13. A general statement of the receipts, funds, effects and expenditure of every trade union registered under this Act shall be transmitted to the Registrar, before the first day of June in each year, and shall show fully the assets and liabilities at the date, and the receipts and expenditure of the trade union, during the year next preceding the date to which it is made out, and separately, the expenditure in respect of the several objects of the trade union, and such statement shall be prepared and made out to such date, in such form and shall comprise such particulars as the Registrar, from time to time, requires.

(2) Every member of and depositor in any such trade union shall be entitled to receive, on application to the secretary or treasurer of the trade union, a copy of such general statement, without making any payment for the same.

14. There shall be sent to the Registrar, together with such general statement, a copy of all new rules and of all alterations of rules, and a statement showing the changes of officers, made by the trade union during the year preceding the date up to which the general statement is made out, and a copy of the rules of the trade union as they exist at that date.

Respecting Property.

15. Any trade union registered under this Act may purchase, or take upon lease, in the names of the trustees for the time being of such trade union, any land not exceeding one acre, and may sell, exchange, mortgage or let the same; and no purchaser, assignee, mortgagee or tenant shall be bound to inquire whether the trustees have authority for any sale, exchange, mortgage or letting, and the receipt of the trustees shall be a discharge for the money arising therefrom; and for the purposes of this section, every branch of a trade union shall be considered a distinct union.

16. All real and personal property whatsoever belonging to any trade union registered under this Act shall be vested in the trustees for the time being of such trade union, appointed as provided by this Act, for the use and benefit of such trade union and the members thereof, and the real or personal property of any branch of a trade union shall be vested in the trustees of such branch and be under the control of such trustees, their respective executors or administrators, according to their respective claims or interests; and upon the death or removal of any such trustees the same shall vest in the succeeding trustees for the same estate and interest as the former trustees had therein, and subject to the same trusts, without any conveyance or assignment whatsoever, save and except in the case of Dominion stock, which shall be transferred into the names of such new trustees.

Procedure.

17. In all actions, suits or indictments or summary proceedings before any court of summary jurisdiction, touching or concerning any property of a trade union or branch, the same shall be stated to be the property of the persons for the time being holding the said office of trustee, in their proper names, as trustees of such trade union without any further description.

18. The trustees of any trade union registered under this Act, or any other officer of such trade union who is authorized so to do by the order thereof, may bring or defend, or cause to be brought or defended, any action, suit, prosecution or complaint, in any court of competent jurisdiction, touching or concerning the property, right or claim to property of the trade union and may, in all cases concerning the property, real or personal, of such trade union, sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, in any such court, in their proper names, without other description than the title of their office.

(2) No such action, suit, prosecution or complaint, shall be discontinued or abated by the death or removal from office of such persons or any of them, but the same shall be proceeded in, by or against their successor or successors, as if such death, resignation or removal had not taken place; and such successors shall pay and receive the like costs as if the action, suit, prosecution or complaint had been commenced in their names, for the benefit of, or to be reimbursed from the funds of such trade union.

(3) Any summons to any such trustee or other officer may be served by leaving the same at the registered office of the trade union.

Accounting.

19. A trustee of any trade union registered under this Act shall not be liable to make good any deficiency which arises or happens in the funds of such trade union; but such trustee shall be liable only for the moneys actually received by him on account of such trade union.

20. Every treasurer or other officer of a trade union registered under this Act shall, at such times as he is required by the rules of such trade union, or at any other time, when called upon by such trade union so to do, render to the trustees of the trade union, or to the members of such trade union, at a meeting thereof, a just and true account of all moneys received and paid by him since he last rendered a like account, and of the balance then remaining in his hands, and of all bonds or securities of such trade union.

21. The trustees shall cause such account to be audited by some fit and proper person or persons appointed by them; and such treasurer, if thereunto required, upon such account being audited, shall forthwith hand over to the trustees the balance which, on such audit, appears to be due by him, and shall also, if required, hand over to such trustees all securities and effects books, papers and property of such trade union in his hands or custody; and if he fails so to do, the said trustees may sue such treasurer, in any court of competent jurisdiction, for the balance appearing to have been due from him upon the last account rendered by him, and for all moneys since received by him on account of such trade union, and for the securities and effects, books, papers and property in his hands or custody, leaving him to set off in such action the sums, if any, which he has since paid on account of such trade union; and in such action the trustees shall be entitled to recover their full costs of suit, to be taxed as between solicitor and client.

Offences and Penalties.

22. If any officer, member, or other person who is, or represents himself to be a member of a trade union registered under this Act, or the nominee, executor, administrator or assignee of a member thereof, or any person whatsoever, by false representation or imposition, obtains possession of any moneys, securities, books, papers or effects of such trade union, or, having the same in his possession, wilfully withholds or fraudulently misapplies the same, or wilfully applies any part of the same to purposes other than those expressed or directed in the rules of such trade union, or any of them, the magistrate or justices having jurisdiction in cases of complaint for offences under this Act, for the place in which the registered office of the trade union is situate, may, by summary order, upon a complaint made by any person, on behalf of such trade union or by the Registrar, order such officer, member or other person, to deliver up all such moneys, securities, books, papers or other effects to the trade union, or to repay the amount of money paid improperly, and to pay, if such magistrate or justices think fit, a further sum of money not exceeding one hundred dollars, together with costs not exceeding five dollars; and in default of such delivery of effects or payment of such amount of money, or payment of such penalty and costs, as aforesaid, the said magistrate or justices may order the person so convicted to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding three months.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall prevent the trade union from proceeding by indictment against the said person; but no person shall be proceeded against by indictment if a conviction has been previously obtained for the same offence under the provisions of this Act.

23. If any trade union registered under this Act is in operation for seven days without having a registered office, to which all communications and notices may be addressed, such trade union and every officer thereof shall each incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which it is so in operation.

24. (a) Every trade union registered under this Act that fails to transmit to the Registrar, before the first day of June in each year, a general statement of its receipts, funds, effects and expenditure, showing fully the assets and liabilities at that date, and the receipts and expenditure of such trade union during the year next preceeding, and showing separately the expenditure in respect of the several objects of the trade union, prepared and made out to such date, and in such form, and comprising such particulars as the Registrar from time to time requires, together with a copy of all alterations of rules, and new rules and changes of officers made by the trade union, and a copy of the rules of the trade union as they exist at that date; and,

(b) Every officer of such trade union whose duty it is to transmit any such statement who fails so to do; shall each incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for each such offence.

(2) If the secretary or treasurer of any trade union so registered refuses or fails to furnish to any member thereof or depositor therein, upon application, a copy of such general statement, he shall, for each such offence, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars.

25. Every person who wilfully makes, or orders to be made, any false entry in or any omission from any such general statement, or in or from the return of such copies or rules or alterations of rules as hereinbefore required shall incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars for each offence.

26. Every person who, with intent to mislead or defraud, gives to any member of a trade union registered under this Act, or to any person intending or applying to become a member of such trade union, a copy of any rules or of any alterations or amendments of the same falsely pretending that the same are the existing rules of such trade union, or that there are no other rules of such trade union, or who, with the intent aforesaid, gives a copy of any rules of any trade union not registered under this Act to any person under the pretense that such rules are the rules of a trade union registered under this Act, is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both, in the discretion of the court.

Mode of Recovery.

27. All offences and penalties under this Act may be prosecuted and recovered by summary conviction.

28. Any complaint or information shall be brought, heard and determined before a stipendiary or police magistrate or other functionary having, by law, the powers of two justices of the peace, if the offence is committed in any city, town or place in which any such magistrate or functionary has jurisdiction; and if the offence is committed elsewhere, then before two justices of the peace.

29. The description of any offence against this Act in the words of this Act shall be sufficient in law.

30. Any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany the description of any offence charged under this Act, may be proved by the defendant, but need not be specified in the information; and if so specified and negatived in such information, no proof in relation to the matters specified and negatived shall be required on the part of the informant or prosecutor.

General.

31. No person who is a master or the father, son or brother of a master, in the particular trade or business in or in connection with which any offence under this Act is charged to have been committed, shall act as a magistrate or justice of the peace, in any case of complaint or information under this Act, or as a member of any court for hearing any appeal in any such case.

32. The purposes of any trade union shall not, by reason merely that they are in restraint of trade, be deemed to be unlawful, so as to render any member of such trade union liable to criminal prosecution for conspiracy or otherwise, or so as to render void or voidable any agreement or trust.

33. The Registrar-General of Canada shall lay before Parliament annual reports with respect to the matters transacted by him as Registrar under this Act and in pursuance thereof.

SCHEDULES.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Health of Employees on Public Works.

Chapter 135.—1. This Act may be cited as the Public Works Health Act.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, 'public work' or 'work' means and includes in addition to every public work of Canada, every railway, canal, bridge, telegraph and other work within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada.

3. For the preservation of health and the mitigation of disease amongst persons employed in the construction of public works the Governor General in Council may from time to time make regulations.

(a) as to the extent and character of the accommodation to be afforded by the houses, tents or other quarters occupied by the employees on the works;

(b) for the inspection of such houses, tents, or other quarters, and the cleansing, purifying and disinfecting thereof where necessary;

(c) as to the number of qualified medical men to be employed on the works;

(d) for the provisions of hospitals on the works and as to the number, location and character of such hospitals;

(e) for the isolation and care of persons suffering from contagious or infectious diseases;

(f) as to such other matters or things as he may deem best adapted to attain the objects of this Act.

(2) Such regulations may be either general or special and may apply generally to all public works or specially to one or more public works or class of public works named therein.<sup>1</sup>

4. The Governor in Council may, until Parliament otherwise provides, prescribe punishments, penalties and forfeitures for breach or non-observance of such regulations, and may also prescribe the procedure for enforcing the same: Provided that no punishment by way of imprisonment to be prescribed by the Governor in Council shall exceed three months, and that such punishments, penalties or forfeitures shall be prescribed in addition to any others to which under the criminal law the offender may be liable.

5. Any Orders in Council or regulations made under the authority of this Act shall be laid on the tables of both Houses of Parliament within fifteen days after the opening of the next following session of Parliament.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Liquidations.

Chapter 144.—70. Clerks or other persons in, or having been in the employment of the company, in or about its business or trade, shall be collocated in the dividend sheet by special privilege over other creditors, for any arrears of salary or wages due and unpaid to them at the time of the making of the winding-up order, not exceeding the arrears which have accrued to them during the three months next previous to the date of such order.

Peace Preservation on Public Works.

Chapter 146 with amendments.—142. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'This Part' means such section or sections thereof as are in force, by virtue of any proclamation, in the place with reference to which the Part is to be construed and applied;

(b) 'Commissioner' means a commissioner under this Part;

(c) 'Public work' includes any railway, canal, road, bridge, or other work of any kind, and any mining operation, constructed or carried on by the Government of Canada, or of any province of Canada, or by any municipal corporation, or by any incorporated company, or by private enterprise.

Proclamation.

143. The Governor in Council may, as often as occasion requires, declare, by proclamation, that upon and after a day therein named, this Part, or any section or sections thereof, shall be in force in any place in Canada in such proclamation designated, within the limits or in the vicinity whereof any public work is in course of construction, or in any place in the vicinity of any public work, within which he deems it necessary that this Part, or any section or sections thereof, should be in force; and this Part or any such section or sections thereof, shall, upon and after the day named in such proclamation, take effect within the place or places designated therein.

(2) The Governor in Council may, in like manner, from time to time, declare this Part or any section or sections thereof, to be no longer in force in any such place, and may again, from time to time, declare this Part, or any section or sections thereof, to be in force therein.

(3) No such proclamation shall have effect within the limits of any city.

(4) All courts, magistrates and justices shall take judicial notice of every such proclamation.

Weapons.

144. On or before the day named in such proclamation, every person employed on or about the public work to which the same relates, shall bring and deliver up, to some commissioner or officer appointed for the purposes of this Part, every weapon in his possession, and shall obtain from such commissioner or officer a receipt for the same.

145. Every weapon found in the possession of any person employed, as aforesaid, after the day named in any proclamation and within the limits designated in such proclamation, may be seized by any justice, commissioner, constable or other peace officer, and shall be forfeited to the use of His Majesty.

146. Every one employed upon or about any public work, within any place in which this Part is in force, who, upon or after the day named in such proclamation, keeps, or has in his possession or under his care or control within any such place, any weapon, is liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding four dollars, and not less than two dollars for every such weapon found in his possession or under his care or control.

147. Every one who, for the purpose of defeating the enforcement of this Part, receives or conceals, or aids in receiving or concealing, or procures to be received or concealed, within any place in which this Part is in force, any weapon, belonging to or in the custody of any person employed on or about any public work, is liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than forty dollars; and a moiety of such penalty shall belong to the informer and the other moiety to His Majesty, for the public uses of Canada.

148. Every person employed on any public work found carrying any weapon, within any place in which this Part is at the time in force, for purposes dangerous to the public peace, is guilty of an indictable offence.

149. Whenever this Part ceases to be in force within the place where any weapon has been delivered and detained in pursuance thereof, or whenever the owner or person lawfully entitled to any such weapon satisfies the commissioner that he is about to remove immediately from the limits within which this Part is at the time in force, the commissioner may deliver up to the owner or person authorized to receive the same, any such weapon, on production of the receipt given for it.

Intoxicating Liquor.

150. Upon and after the day named in such proclamation, and during such period as the proclamation remains in force, no person, shall at any place within the limits specified in the proclamation, sell, barter, or directly or indirectly, for any matter, thing, profit, or reward, exchange, supply, or dispose of, or shall give to any other person, any intoxicating liquor, or shall expose, keep or have in his possession any intoxicating liquor intended to be dealt with in any such way.

(2) The provisions of this section shall not extend to any person selling intoxicating liquor by wholesale and not retailing it, if the said person is a licensed distiller or brewer, nor shall they apply where liquor is supplied for bona fide medicinal purposes upon the prescription of a duly qualified medical practitioner. 1907, c. 9, s. 2.

151. Every one who, by himself, his clerk, servant, agent or other person, violates any of the provisions of section 150 is guilty of an offence against this Part and liable on summary conviction to a penalty of two hundred dollars and costs and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months; and, upon any subsequent conviction, to a penalty of three hundred dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both, and, in default of payment of such penalty, to imprisonment or to further imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months; and imprisonment in each case shall be either with or without hard labour. 1913, c. 13, s. 6.

152. Every clerk, servant, agent or other person who, being in the employment of, or on the premises of another person, violates or assists in violating any of the said provisions for the person in whose employment or on whose premises he is, shall be equally guilty with such person, and shall be liable to the punishment mentioned in the last preceding section.

153. Any payment or compensation, whether in money or securities for money, labour or property of any kind, for intoxicating liquor sold, bartered, exchanged, supplied or disposed of, contrary to the provisions aforesaid, shall be held to have been criminally received without consideration, and against law, equity and good conscience, and the amount or value thereof may be recovered from the receiver by the person making, paying, or furnishing such payment or compensation.

154. All sales, transfers, conveyances, liens, and securities of every kind, which either in whole or in part have been made or given for, or on account of, intoxicating liquor sold, bartered, exchanged, supplied or disposed of contrary to such provisions, shall be void against all persons, and no right shall be acquired thereby.

(2) No action of any kind shall be maintained, either in whole or in part, for or on account of intoxicating liquor sold, bartered, exchanged, supplied or disposed of, contrary to the said provisions.

Protection of Female Employees in Factories, etc.

Chapter 146 with amendment 213. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment,—

(b) who seduces or has illicit connection with any girl previously chaste and under the age of twenty-one years who is in his employment, or who, being in a common, but not necessarily similar, employment with him, is, in respect of her employment or work, under, or in any way subject to, his control or direction, or receives her wages or salary directly or indirectly from him. Proof that a girl has on previous occasions had illicit connection with the accused shall not be deemed to be evidence that she was not previously chaste. 1920, c. 43, s. 5.

Apprenticeship.

Chapter 146.—243. Every one who, as master or mistress, has contracted to provide necessary food, clothing or lodging for any servant or apprentice under the age of sixteen years is under a legal duty to provide the same, and is criminally responsible for omitting, without lawful excuse, to perform such duty, if the death of such servant or apprentice is caused, or if his life is endangered, or his health has been or is likely to be permanently injured, by such omission.

244. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to three years' imprisonment who, being bound to perform any duty specified in the three last preceding sections, without lawful excuse neglects or refuses to do so, unless the offence amounts to culpable homicide.

249. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to three years' imprisonment, who, being legally liable as master or mistress to provide for any apprentice or servant, unlawfully does, or causes to be done, any bodily harm to any such apprentice or servant so that the life of such apprentice or servant is endangered or the health of such apprentice or servant has been, or is likely to be, permanently injured.

Protection of Seamen—Unseaworthy Ships.

Chapter 146—288. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to five years' imprisonment who sends, or attempts to send, or is a party to sending, a ship registered in Canada to sea, or on a voyage on any of the inland waters of Canada or on a voyage from any port or place on the inland waters of Canada to any port or place on the inland waters of the United States, or on a voyage from any port or place on the inland waters of the United States to any port or place on the inland waters of Canada in such an unseaworthy state, by reason of overloading or underloading or improper loading, or by reason of being insufficiently manned, or from any other cause, that the life of any person is likely to be endangered thereby, unless he proves that he used all reasonable means to ensure her being sent to sea or on such voyage in a seaworthy state, or that her going to sea or on such voyage in such unseaworthy state was, under the circumstances, reasonable and justifiable.

[Section 289 states that any master of a ship registered in Canada who knowingly contravenes the provisions of the foregoing Section is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to five years' imprisonment.]

Theft by Employees.

Chapter 146.—359. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to fourteen years' imprisonment who,—

(a) being a clerk or servant, or being employed for the purpose or in the capacity of a clerk or servant, steals anything belonging to or in the possession of his master or employer; or,

(b) being a cashier, assistant cashier, manager, officer, clerk or servant of any bank, or savings bank, steals any bond, obligation, bill obligatory or of credit, or other bill or note, or any security for money or any money or effects of such bank, or lodged or deposited with any such bank; or,

(c) being employed in the service of His Majesty, or of the Government of Canada, or the government of any province of Canada, or of any municipality, steals anything in his possession by virtue of his employment.

378. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment who steals the ore of any metal, or any quartz, lapis calaminaris, manganese, or mundic, or any piece of gold, silver or other metal, or any wad, black cawk, or black lead, or any coal, or cannel coal, or any marble, stone or other mineral, from any mine, bed or vein thereof respectively.

(2) It is not an offence to take, for the purposes of exploration or scientific investigation, any specimen or specimens of any ore or mineral from any piece of ground uninclosed and not occupied or worked as a mine, quarry or digging.

388. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to five years' imprisonment who steals, to the value of two dollars, any woollen, linen, hempen or cotton yarn, or any goods or articles of silk, woollen, linen, cotton, alpaca or mohair, or of any one or more of such materials mixed with each other or mixed with any other material, while laid, placed or exposed, during any stage, process or progress of manufacture, in any building, field or other place.

Offences Resembling Theft.

389. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment when the offence is not within the last preceding section, who, having been entrusted with, for the purpose of manufacture or for a special purpose connected with manufacture, or employed to make, any felt or hat, or to prepare or work up any woollen, linen, fustian, cotton, iron, leather fur, hemp, flax or silk, or any such materials mixed with one another, or having been so entrusted as aforesaid, with any other article, materials, fabric or thing, or with any tools or apparatus for manufacturing the same, fraudently disposes of the same or any part thereof.

Labour Organizations—Exemption from Combine Laws.—Intimidation—Picketing.

Chapter 146.—496. A conspiracy in restraint of trade is an agreement between two or more persons to do or procure to be done any unlawful act in restraint of trade.

497. The purposes of a trade union are not, by reason merely that they are in restraint of trade, unlawful within the meaning of the last preceding section.

498. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding four thousand dollars and not less than two hundred dollars, or two years' imprisonment, or, if a corporation, is liable to a penalty not exceeding ten thousand dollars; and not less than one thousand dollars, who conspires, combines, agrees or arranges with any other person, or with any railway, steamship, steam boat or transportation company,—

(a) to unduly limit the facilities for transporting, producing, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing in any article or commodity which may be a subject of trade or commerce; or,

(b) to restrain or injure trade or commerce in relation to any such article or commodity; or,

(c) to unduly prevent, limit, or lessen the manufacture or production of such article or commodity, or to unreasonably enhance the price thereof; or,

(d) to unduly prevent or lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale, transportation or supply of any such article or commodity, or in the price of insurance upon person or property.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to combinations of workmen or employees for their own reasonable protection as such workmen or employees.

499. Every one is guilty of an offence punishable on indictment on summary conviction before two justices and liable on conviction to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars or to three months' imprisonment with or without hard labour, who,—

(a) wilfully breaks any contract made by him knowing, or having reasonable cause to believe, that the probable consequences of his so doing, either alone or in combination with others, will be to endanger human life, or to cause serious bodily injury, or to expose valuable property, whether real or personal, to destruction or serious injury; or,

(b) being bound, agreeing or assuming, under any contract made by him with any municipal corporation or authority, or with any company to supply any city or any other place, or any part thereof, with electric light, or power, gas or water, wilfully breaks such contract knowing or having reasonable cause to believe, that the probable consequences of his so doing, either alone or in combination with others, will be to deprive the inhabitants of that city or place, or part thereof, wholly or to a great extent, of their supply of power, light, gas or water; or,

(c) being bound, agreeing or assuming, under any contract made by him with a railway company, or with His Majesty, or any one on behalf of His Majesty, in connection with a government railway on which His Majesty's mails, or passengers or freight are carried, to carry His Majesty's mails, or to carry passengers or freight, wilfully breaks such contract knowing, or having reason to believe that the probable consequences of his so doing, either alone or in combination with others, will be to delay or prevent the running of any locomotive engine, or tender, or freight or passenger train or car, on the railway.

(4) It is not material whether any offence defined in this section is committed from malice conceived against the person, corporation, authority or company with which the contract is made or otherwise.

501. Every one is guilty of an offence punishable, at the option of the accused, on indictment or on summary conviction before two justices, and liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to three months' imprisonment with or without hard labour, who, wrongfully and without lawful authority, with a view to compel any other person to abstain from doing anything which he has a lawful right to do, or to do anything from which he has a lawful right to abstain,—

(a) uses violence to such other person, or his wife or children, or injures his property; or,

(b) intimidates such other person, or his wife or children, by threats of using violence to him, her or any of them, or of injuring his property; or,

(c) persistently follows such other person about from place to place; or,

(d) hides any tools, clothes or other property owned or used by such other person, or deprives him of, or hinders him in, the use thereof; or,

(e) with one or more other persons, follows such other person, in a disorderly manner, manner, in or through any street or road; or,

(f) besets or watches the house or other place where such other person resides or works or carries on business or happens to be.

502. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment who, in pursuance of any unlawful combination or conspiracy to raise the rate of wages, or of any unlawful combination or conspiracy respecting any trade, business or manufacture, or respecting any person concerned or employed therein, unlawfully assaults any person, or, in pursuance of any such combination or conspiracy, uses any violence or threat of violence to any person, with intent to hinder him from working or being employed at such trade, business or manufacture.

503. Every one is guilty of an offence punishable on indictment, or on summary conviction before two justices, and liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to three months' imprisonment with or without hard labour, who,—

(c) by force or threats of violence, or by any form of intimidation whatsoever, hinders or prevents, or attempts to hinder or prevent any seaman, stevedore, ship carpenter, ship labourer or other person employed to work at or on board, any ship or vessel, or to do any work connected with the loading or unloading thereof, from working at or exercising any lawful trade, business calling or occupation in or for which he is so employed or with intent so to hinder or prevent besets or watches such ship, vessel or employee; or,

(d) beats or uses any violence to, or makes any threat of violence against, any such person with intent to hinder or prevent him from working at or exercising such trade, business, calling or occupation or on account of his having worked at or exercised the same.

590. No prosecution shall be maintainable against any person for conspiracy in refusing to work with or for any employer or workman, or for doing any act or causing any act to be done for the purpose of a trade combination, unless such act is an offence punishable by statute.

Thefts by Employees—Evidence.

Chapter 146.—988. In any prosecution, proceeding or trial for stealing ores or minerals the possession, contrary to the provisions of any law in that behalf, of any smelted gold or silver, or any gold-bearing quartz, or any unsmelted or otherwise unmanufactured gold or silver, by any operator, workman, or labourer actively engaged in or on any mine, shall be prima facie evidence that the same has been stolen by him.

Prison Labour—Penitentiaries.

Chapter 147 with amendment.—18. The Superintendent [of Penitentiaries, whose appointment is provided for in this Act] shall, subject to the approval of the Minister, make rules and regulations for,—

(b) the establishment and carrying on of any work or industry at any penitentiary as may be thought desirable for the useful employment or training of the convicts, for the employment of the convicts therein, for the disposal of the products thereof, and as well for allowing, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed and payable in the manner and to such persons as may be designated by the regulations, remuneration for the labour of the convicts. 1918, c. 36, s. 3.

62. Imprisonment in a penitentiary shall be with hard labour, whether so directed in the sentence by which such imprisonment is adjudged or not.

(2) Every convict, except during sickness or other incapacity, shall be kept constantly at hard labour, of a kind determined by the warden, during at least ten hours, if possible, exclusive of hours for meals, of every day, except Sunday, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and such other days as the Governor General sets apart for days of fasting or thanksgiving, and such days as are designated in the rules made by the Inspectors in that behalf; but no convict shall be compelled to labour on any obligatory holidays of the religious denomination to which he adheres.

(3) The convicts may be employed in labour under the control of the Crown; but no labour shall be let out to any company or person.

Prison Labour—Ontario.

Chapter 148 with amendment.—12. Every one who is sentenced to imprisonment in any jail, or other public or reformatory prison, shall be subject to the provisions of the statutes relating to jail or prison, and to all rules and regulations lawfully made with respect thereto.

(2) Imprisonment in the Central Prison for the province of Ontario, in the Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory for females, and in any reformatory prison for females in the province of Quebec, shall be with hard labour, whether so directed in the sentence or not.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor of any province may, from time to time, make regulations for the purpose of preventing escapes and preserving discipline in the case of persons in any common jail or prison employed beyond the limits of such common jail or prison.

14. After such regulations are made, the Lieutenant Governor may, from time to time direct or authorize or sanction the employment upon any specific work or duty, beyond the limits of any common jail or prison, of any prisoner who is sentenced to be imprisoned with hard labour in such jail, for any offence against any law of Canada.

47. The Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, authorize, direct or sanction the employment upon any specific work or duty without or beyond the limits of the Ontario Reformatory or an Industrial Farm of any of the prisoners confined or sentenced to be imprisoned therein or transferred thereto, as herein provided.

2. All such prisoners shall, during such last mentioned employment, be subject to such rules, regulations and discipline as are approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in that behalf. 1916, c. 21, s. 3.

59.—2. The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time authorize, direct or sanction the employment upon any specific work or duty without or beyond the limits of the Reformatory or Industrial Farm of any female confined or sentenced to be imprisoned or transferred thereto as herein provided.

3. All such prisoners shall, during such last mentioned employment, be subject to such rules, regulations and discipline as are approved by the Lieutenant Governor in that behalf. 1916, c. 21, 54.

Prison Labour—Quebec.

Chapter 148.—87. Every sheriff or jailer in the province of Quebec, being thereunto authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor, or in such manner as any Act of the Legislature of the Province provides, and under such regulations as the Legislature makes or authorizes to be made in that behalf, may employ any male convict sentenced to hard labour in such prison, at hard labour outside the walls or precincts of the prison, and may exercise the same powers of restraint and discipline, and for preventing escape, while the convict is so outside of the walls or precincts, as if he was inside the same, and whether his labour is so employed directly by the Government of the Province or by any contractor to whom such labour is let or hired out by the Government or by any competent authority.

Sunday Labour.

Chapter 153.—1. This Act may be cited as the Lord's Day Act.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Lord's Day" means the period of time which begins at twelve o'clock on Saturday afternoon and ends at twelve o'clock on the following afternoon;

- (b) "Person" has the meaning which it has in the Criminal Code;
- (c) "Vessel" includes any kind of vessel or boat used for conveying passengers or freight by water;
- (d) "Railway" includes steam railway, electric railway, street railway and tramway;
- (e) "Performance" includes any game, match, sport, contest, exhibition or entertainment.
- (f) "Employer" includes every person to whose orders or directions any other person is by his employment bound to conform;
- (g) "Provincial Act" means the charter of any municipality, or any public Act of any province, whether passed before or since confederation.

3. Nothing herein shall prevent the operation on the Lord's Day for passenger traffic by any railway company incorporated by or subject to the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada of its railway where such operation is not otherwise prohibited.

(2) Nothing herein shall prevent the operation on the Lord's Day for passenger traffic of any railway subject to the legislative authority of any province, unless such railway is prohibited by provincial authority from so operating.

Commencement.

4. This Act shall come into force on the first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and seven.

6. Except in cases of emergency, it shall not be lawful for any person to require any employee engaged in any work of receiving, transmitting or delivering telegraph or telephone messages, or in the work of any industrial process, or in connection with transportation, to do on the Lord's Day the usual work of his ordinary calling, unless such employee is allowed during the next six days of such week, twenty-four consecutive hours without labour.

(2) This section shall not apply to any employee engaged in the work of any industrial process in which the regular day's labour of such employee is not of more than eight hours' duration.

Works of Necessity and Mercy Excepted.

12. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, any person may on the Lord's Day do any work of necessity or mercy, and for greater certainty, but not so as to restrict the ordinary meaning of the expression "work of necessity and mercy," it is hereby declared that it shall be deemed to include the following classes of work:—

- (a) Any necessary or customary work in connection with divine worship;
- (b) Work for the relief of sickness and suffering, including the sale of drugs, medicines and surgical appliances by retail;
- (c) Receiving, transmitting, or delivering telegraph or telephone messages;
- (d) Starting or maintaining fires, making repairs to furnaces and repairs in cases of emergency, and doing any other work, when such fires, repairs or work are essential to any industry or industrial process of such a continuous nature that it cannot be stopped without serious injury to such industry, or its product, or to the plant or property used in such process;
- (e) Starting or maintaining fires, and ventilating, pumping out and inspecting mines, when any such work is essential to the protection of property, life or health;
- (f) Any work without the doing of which on the Lord's Day, electric current, light, heat, cold air, water or gas cannot be continuously supplied for lawful purposes;
- (g) The conveying of travellers and work incidental thereto;
- (h) The continuance to their destination of trains and vessels in transit when the Lord's Day begins, and work incidental thereto;
- (i) Loading and unloading merchandise, at intermediate points, on or from passenger boats or passenger trains;
- (j) Keeping railway tracks clear of snow or ice, making repairs in cases of emergency, or doing any other work of a like incidental character necessary to keep the lines and tracks open on the Lord's Day;
- (k) Work before six o'clock in the forenoon and after eight o'clock in the afternoon of yard crews in handling cars in railway yards;
- (l) Loading, unloading and operating any ocean-going vessel which otherwise would be unduly delayed after her scheduled time of sailing, or any vessel which otherwise would be in imminent danger of being stopped by the closing of navigation; or loading or unloading before seven o'clock in the morning or after eight o'clock in the afternoon any grain, coal or ore carrying vessel after the fifteenth of September;
- (m) The caring for milk, cheese, and live animals, and the unloading of and caring for perishable products and live animals, arriving at any point during the Lord's Day;
- (n) The operation of any toll or drawbridge, or any ferry or boat authorized by competent authority to carry passengers on the Lord's Day;
- (o) The hiring of horses and carriages or small boats for the personal use of the hirer or his family for any purpose not prohibited by this Act;
- (p) Any unavoidable work after six o'clock in the afternoon of the Lord's Day, in the preparation of the regular Monday morning edition of a daily newspaper;
- (q) The conveying of His Majesty's mails and work incidental thereto;
- (r) The delivery of milk for domestic use, and the work of domestic servants and watchmen;

(s) The operation by any Canadian electric street railway company, whose line is inter-provincial or international, of its cars, for passenger traffic, on the Lord's Day, on any line or branch which is, on the day of the coming into force of this Act regularly so operated;

(t) Work done by any person in the public service of His Majesty while acting therein under any regulation or direction of any department of the Government;

(u) Any unavoidable work by fishermen after six o'clock in the afternoon of the Lord's Day, in the taking of fish;

(v) All operations connected with the making of maple sugar and maple syrup in the maple grove;

(w) Any unavoidable work on the Lord's Day to save property in cases of emergency, or where such property is in imminent danger of destruction or serious injury;

(x) Any work which the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, having regard to the object of this Act, and with the object of preventing undue delay, deems necessary to permit in connection with the freight traffic of any railway.

Offences and Penalties.

13. Any person who violates any of the provisions of this Act shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction, to a fine, not less than one dollar and not exceeding forty dollars, together with the cost of prosecution.

14. Every employer who authorizes or directs anything to be done in violation of any provision of this Act, shall for each offence be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars, in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law for the same offence.

15. Every corporation which authorizes, directs or permits its employees to carry on any part of the business of such corporation in violation of any of the provisions of this Act, shall be liable, on summary conviction before two justices of the peace, for the first offence, to a penalty not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars and not less than fifty dollars, and, for each subsequent offence, to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than one hundred dollars, in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law for the same offence.

Procedure.

16. Nothing herein shall be construed to repeal or in any way affect any provisions of any Act or law relating in any way to the observance of the Lord's Day in force in any province of Canada when this Act comes into force; and where any person violates any of the provisions of this Act, and such offence is also a violation of any other Act or law, the offender may be proceeded against either under the provisions of this Act or under the provisions of any other Act or law applicable to the offence charged.

17. No action or prosecution for a violation of this Act shall be commenced without the leave of the Attorney General for the province in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, nor after the expiration of sixty days from the time of the commission of the alleged offence.

STATUTES OF 1907.

Industrial Disputes—Investigation and Conciliation.

Chapter 20 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907.

Preliminary Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) "Minister" means the Minister of Labour;

(b) "Department" means the Department of Labour;

(c) "Employer" means any person, company or corporation employing ten or more persons and owning or operating any mining property, agency of transportation or communication, or public service utility, including, except as hereinafter provided, railways, whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, steamships, telegraph and telephone lines, gas, electric light, water and power works; or any number of such persons, companies or corporations acting together, or who in the opinion of the Minister have interests in common. Amended 1920, c. 29, s. 1;

(d) "Employee" means any person employed by an employer to do any skilled or unskilled manual or clerical work for hire or reward in any industry to which this Act applies;

(dd) A lockout or strike shall not, nor, where application for a Board is made within thirty days after the dismissal, shall any dismissal, cause any employee to cease to be an employee, or an employer to cease to be an employer, within the meaning and for the purposes of this Act. 1918. c. 27. s. 1.

(e) "Dispute" or "industrial dispute" means any dispute or difference between an employer and one or more of his employees, as to matters or things affecting or relating to work done or to be done by him or them, or as to the privileges, rights and duties of employers or employees (not involving any such violation thereof as constitutes an indictable offence); and, without limiting the general nature of the above definition, includes all matters relating to—

- (1) the wages allowance or other remuneration of employees, or the price paid or to be paid in respect of employment;
- (2) the hours of employment, sex, age, qualification or status of employees, and the mode, terms and conditions of employment;
- (3) the employment of children or any person or persons or class of persons, or the dismissal of or refusal to employ any particular person or persons or class of persons;
- (4) claims on the part of an employer or any employee as to whether and, if so, under what circumstances, preference of employment should or should not be given to one class over another of persons being or not being members of labour or other organizations, British subjects or aliens;
- (5) materials supplied and alleged to be bad, unfit or unsuitable, or damage alleged to have been done to work;
- (6) any established custom or usage, either generally or in the particular district affected;
- (7) the interpretation of an agreement or a clause thereof;
- (f) "Lockout" (without limiting the nature of its meaning) means a closing of a place of employment, or a suspension of work, or a refusal by an employer to continue to employ any number of his employees in consequence of a dispute, done with a view to compelling his employees, or to aid another employer in compelling his employees, to accept terms of employment;
- (g) "Strike" or "to go on strike" (without limiting the nature of its meaning) means the cessation of work by a body of employees acting in combination, or a concerted refusal or a refusal under a common understanding of any number of employees to continue to work for an employer, in consequence of a dispute, done as a means of compelling their employer, or to aid other employees in compelling their employer, to accept terms of employment;
- (h) "Board" means a Board of Conciliation and Investigation established under the provisions of this Act;
- (i) "Application" means an application for the appointment of a Board under the provisions of this Act;
- (j) "Registrar" means the Registrar of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation under this Act;
- (k) "Prescribed" means prescribed by this Act, or by any rules or regulations made thereunder;
- (l) "Trade union" or "union" means any organization of employees formed for the purpose of regulating relations between employers and employees.

Administration.

- 3. The Minister of Labour shall have the general administration of this Act.
- 4. The Governor in Council shall appoint a Registrar of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation, who shall have the powers and perform the duties prescribed.
- (2) The office of Registrar may be held either separately or in conjunction with any other office in the public service, and in the latter case the Registrar may, if the Governor in Council thinks fit, be appointed, not by name, but by reference to such other office, whereupon the person who for the time being holds such office, or performs its duties, shall by virtue thereof be the Registrar.

Boards of Conciliation and Investigation.—Constitution of Boards.

5. Wherever any dispute exists between an employer and any of his employees, and the parties thereto are unable to adjust it, either of the parties to the dispute may make application to the Minister for the appointment of a Board of Conciliation and Investigation, to which Board the dispute may be referred under the provisions of this Act: Provided, however, that, in the case of a dispute between a railway company and its employees, such dispute may be referred, for the purpose of conciliation and investigation, under the provisions concerning railway disputes in the Conciliation and Labour Act.

6. (1) Whenever, under this Act, an application is made in due form for the appointment of a Board of Conciliation and Investigation, the Minister shall, within fifteen days from the date at which the application is received, establish such Board under his hand and seal of office, if satisfied that the provisions of this Act apply.

(2) The decision of the Minister as to the granting or refusal of a Board shall be final, and when a Board is granted by the Minister, it shall be conclusively deemed to be authorized by and to be in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and no order shall be made or process or proceeding had or taken in any court to question the granting or refusal of a Board or to review, prohibit or restrain the establishment of such Board or the proceedings thereof. 1918, c. 27, s. 2

7. Every Board shall consist of three members who shall be appointed by the Minister.

(2) Of the three members of the Board one shall be appointed on the recommendation of the employer and one on the recommendation of the employees (the parties to the dispute), and the third on the recommendation of the members so chosen.

8. For the purposes of appointment of the members of the Board, the following provisions shall apply:—

(1) Each party to the dispute may, at the time of making application or within five days after being requested so to do, by the Minister, recommend the name of one person who is willing and ready to act as a member of the Board, and the Minister shall appoint such person a member of the Board.

(2) If either of the parties fails or neglects to duly make any recommendation within the said period, or such extension thereof as the Minister, on cause shown, grants, the Minister shall, as soon thereafter as possible, appoint a fit person to be a member of the Board; and such member shall be deemed to be appointed on the recommendation of the said party.

(3) The members chosen on the recommendation of the parties may, within five days after their appointment, recommend the name of one person who is willing and ready to act as a third member of the Board, and the Minister shall appoint such person a member of the Board.

(4) If the members chosen on the recommendation of the parties fail or neglect to duly make any recommendation within the said period, or such extension thereof as the Minister, on cause shown, grants, the Minister shall, as soon thereafter as possible, appoint a fit person to be a third member of the Board, and such member shall be deemed to be appointed on the recommendation of the two other members of the Board.

(5) The third member shall be the Chairman of the Board.

9. As soon as possible after the full Board has been appointed by the Minister, the Registrar shall notify the parties of the names of the members of the Board and the chairman thereof and such notification shall be final and conclusive for all purposes.

10. Every member of a Board shall hold office from the time of his appointment until the report of the Board is signed and transmitted to the Minister, and for the purposes of subsection two of section twenty-nine of this Act, from the time the Board is reconvened by the chairman until the report required under such section is transmitted to the Minister. Amended 1918, c. 27, s. 3.

11. No person shall act as a member of a Board who has any direct pecuniary interest in the issue of a dispute referred to such Board.

12. Every vacancy in the membership of a Board shall be supplied in the same manner as in the case of the original appointment of every person appointed.

13. Before entering upon the exercise of the functions of their office the members of a Board, including the chairman, shall make oath or affirmation before a justice of the peace or other person authorized to administer an oath or affirmation that they will faithfully and impartially perform the duties of their office, and also that, except in the discharge of their duties, they will not disclose to any person any of the evidence or other matter brought before the Board. Amended 1910, c. 29, s. 1.

14. The Department may provide the Board with a secretary stenographer, or such other clerical assistance as to the Minister appears necessary for the efficient carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

Procedure for Reference of Disputes to Boards.

15. For the purpose of determining the manner in which, and the persons by whom, an application for the appointment of a Board is to be made, the following provisions shall apply:—

(1) The application shall be made in writing in the prescribed form, and shall be in substance a request to the Minister to appoint a Board to which the existing dispute may be referred under the provisions of this Act.

(2) The application shall be accompanied by,—

(a) A statement setting forth—

(1) the parties to the dispute;

(2) the nature and cause of the dispute, including any claims or demands made by either party upon the other, to which exception is taken;

(3) an approximate estimate of the number of persons affected or likely to be affected by the dispute;

(4) the efforts by the parties themselves to adjust the dispute;

and—

(b) A statutory declaration setting forth that, failing an adjustment of the dispute or a reference thereof by the Minister to a Board, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the declarant a lockout or strike will be declared, and (except where the application is made by an employer in consequence of an intended change in wages or hours proposed by the said employer) that the necessary authority to declare such lockout or strike has been obtained; or, where a dispute directly affects employees in more than one province and such employees are members of a trade union having a general committee authorized to carry on negotiations in disputes between employers and employees and so recognized by the employer, a statutory declaration by the chairman or president and by the secretary of such committee setting forth that, failing an adjustment of the dispute or reference thereof by the Minister to a Board, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the declarants a strike will be declared, that the dispute has been the subject of negotiations between the committee and the employer, that all efforts to obtain a satisfactory settlement have failed, and that there is no reasonable hope of securing a settlement by further negotiations. 1910, c. 29, s. 2.

(3) The application may mention the name of a person who is willing and ready and desires to act as a member of the Board representing the party or parties making the application.

16. (1) The application and the declaration accompanying it shall be signed, if made—

(a) by an employer who is an individual, by the employer himself;

(b) by an employer which is a partnership, firm, or association, by a majority of the partners or members;

(c) by an employer which is an incorporated company or corporation, by some one of its duly authorized managers or by one or more of the principal executive officers;

(d) by employees who are members of a trade union, by two of its officers authorized in writing by a majority of the union members affected. If such authorization is obtained by a vote taken in whole or in part at a meeting such meeting shall be called on not less than three days' notice and the vote shall be by ballot. Where a dispute directly affects employees in more than one province and such employees are members of a trade union having a general committee authorized to carry on negotiations in disputes between employers and employees, and so recognized by the employer, may be signed by the chairman or president and by the secretary of the said committee;

(e) by employees some or all of whom are not members of a trade union, by two of their number authorized in writing by a majority of such employees. If such authorization is obtained in whole or in part by a vote at a meeting, such meeting shall be called on not less than three days' notice and the vote shall be by ballot.

(2) If more than one employer, or more than one trade union, or the employees of more than one employer, is or are interested, then and in such case the application and declaration shall be signed in the manner aforesaid by or on behalf of each employer or trade union or the employees of each employer so interested, or by or on behalf of a majority of such employers, or trades unions, or of such employees. 1920, c. 29, s. 2.

17. Every application for the appointment of a Board shall be transmitted by post by registered letter addressed to the Registrar of Boards of Conciliation and Investigation, Department of Labour, Ottawa, and the date of the receipt of such registered letter at the department shall be regarded as the date of the receipt of such application.

18. In every case where an application is made for the appointment of a Board, the party making application shall, at the time of transmitting it to the Registrar, also transmit by registered letter to the other party to the dispute, or by personal delivery, a copy of the application and of the accompanying statement and declaration.

19. Upon receipt by either party to a dispute of a copy of the application for the appointment of a Board such party shall, without delay, prepare a statement in reply to the application and transmit it by registered letter, or by personal delivery, to the Registrar and to the party making the application.

20. Copies of applications or statements in reply thereto, to be transmitted to the other party under any of the preceding sections where the other party is—

(1) an employer, an incorporated company or corporation, shall be sent to the manager or other principal executive officer of the company or corporation;

(2) an employer other than an incorporated company or corporation, shall be sent to the employer himself or to the employer in the name of the business or firm as commonly known;

(3) composed of employees, members of a trade union, shall be sent to the president and secretary of such union;

(4) composed of employees some or all of whom are not members of a trade union,—

(a) where some of the employees are members of a trade union, shall be sent to the president and secretary of the union as representing the employees belonging to the union; also

(b) where some of the employees are not members of a trade union and there are no persons authorized to represent such employees, shall be sent to ten of their number;

(c) Where, under paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of section 16, two persons have been authorized to make an application, shall be sent to such two persons. Amended 1920, c. 29, s. 3.

(2) When the other party comprises more than one employer and those employers are members of an association authorized to carry on negotiations in disputes between employers and employees, copies of applications or statements in reply shall be transmitted to the secretary or principal executive officer of such association; when no such association exists copies of the applications or statements in reply shall be transmitted to each employer individually, or by agreement, one employer may be designated by the individual employers concerned to receive copies of applications or statements in reply. 1920, c. 29, s. 3.

(3) When in any individual industry the other party comprises more than one trade union and the latter are grouped in a council or federation authorized to carry on negotiations between employers or employees, copies of applications or statements in reply shall be transmitted to the president or secretary of such council or federation; when no such council or federation exists, copies of applications or statements in reply shall be transmitted to the president or secretary of each individual union. 1920, c. 29, s. 3.

Functions, Powers and Procedure of Boards.

21. Any dispute may be referred to a Board by application in that behalf made in due form by any party thereto: provided that no dispute shall be the subject of reference to a Board under this Act in any case in which the employees affected by the dispute are fewer than ten.

22. Upon the appointment of the Board the Registrar shall forward to the chairman a copy of the application for the appointment of such Board, and of its accompanying statement and declaration, and of the statements in reply, and the Board shall forthwith proceed to deal with the matters referred to in these documents.

(2) Should it at any stage of the proceedings be made to appear to the Minister that it is necessary, in order to deal satisfactorily with the matters in dispute, that some other matter or matters involved in or incidental to those appearing in the application and statement in answer, if any, should also be referred to the Board, the Minister may under his hand and seal of office refer such matters to the Board accordingly. 1918, c. 27, s. 4.

23. In every case where a dispute is duly referred to a Board it shall be the duty of the Board to endeavour to bring about a settlement of the dispute, and to this end the Board shall, in such manner as it thinks fit, expeditiously and carefully inquire into the dispute, and all matters affecting the merits thereof and the right settlement thereof. In the course of such inquiry the Board may make all suggestions and do all such things as it deems right and proper for inducing the parties to come to a fair and amicable settlement of the dispute, and may adjourn the proceedings for any period the Board thinks reasonable to allow the parties to agree upon terms of settlement.

24. If a settlement of the dispute is arrived at by the parties during the course of its reference to the Board, a memorandum of the settlement shall be drawn up by the Board and signed by the parties, and shall, if the parties so agree, be binding as if made a recommendation by the Board under section 62 of this Act, and a copy thereof with a report upon the proceedings shall be forwarded to the Minister.

25. If a settlement of the dispute is not arrived at during the course of its reference to the Board, the Board shall make a full report thereon to the Minister, which report shall set forth the various proceedings and steps taken by the Board for the purpose of fully and carefully ascertaining all the facts and circumstances, and shall also set forth such facts and circumstances and its findings therefrom, including the cause of the dispute and the Board's recommendation for the settlement of the dispute according to the merits and substantial justice of the case.

26. The Board's recommendation shall deal with each item of the dispute and shall state in plain terms, and avoiding as far as possible all technicalities, what in the Board's opinion ought or ought not to be done by the respective parties concerned. Wherever it appears to the Board expedient so to do, its recommendation shall also state the period during which the proposed settlement should continue in force, and the date from which it should commence.

27. The Board's report and recommendation shall be made to the Minister in writing, and shall be signed by such of the members as concur therein, and shall be transmitted by the chairman by registered letter to the Registrar as soon as practicable after the reference of the dispute to the Board; and in the same manner a minority report may be made by any dissenting member of the Board.

28. Upon receipt of the Board's report the Minister shall forthwith cause the report to be filed in the office of the Registrar and a copy thereof to be sent free of charge to the parties to the dispute, and to the representative of any newspaper published in Canada who applies therefor, and the Minister may distribute copies of the report, and of any minority report, in such manner as to him seems most desirable as a means of securing a compliance with the Board's recommendation. The Registrar shall, upon application, supply certified copies for a prescribed fee, to persons other than those mentioned in this section.

29. For the information of Parliament and the public, the report and recommendations of the Board, and any minority report, shall, without delay, be published in the Labour Gazette, either verbatim or in summary form as the Minister may determine.

(2) Where any question arises as to the meaning or application of, or as to anything relating to or connected with,—

(a) any recommendation made by the Board, or,
(b) any settlement agreement drawn up by the Board under section twenty-four of this Act, the Minister, where he deems it expedient, may, on the application of either party or of his own motion, request from the chairman of the Board an expression of the Board's opinion upon such question, and the chairman shall upon receipt of such request reconvene the Board, and the Board shall, as soon as practicable, report to the Minister its opinion upon such question. 1918, c. 27, s. 5.

30. For the purpose of its inquiry the Board shall have all the powers of summoning before it, and enforcing the attendance of witnesses, of administering oaths, and of requiring witnesses to give evidence on oath or on solemn affirmation (if they are persons entitled to affirm in civil matters) and to produce such books, papers or other documents or things as the Board deems requisite to the full investigation of the matters into which it is inquiring, as is vested in any court of record in civil cases.

(2) Any member of the Board may administer an oath, and the Board may accept, admit and call for such evidence as in equity and good conscience it thinks fit, whether strictly legal evidence or not.

31. The summons shall be in the prescribed form and may require any person to produce before the Board any books, papers or other documents or things in his possession or under his control in any way relating to the proceedings.

32. All books, papers and other documents or things produced before the Board, whether voluntarily or in pursuance to summons, may be inspected by the Board, and also by such parties as the Board allows; but the information obtained therefrom shall not, except in so far as the Board deems it expedient, be made public, and such parts of the books, papers or other documents as in the opinion of the Board do not relate to the matter at issue may be sealed up.

33. Any party to the proceedings shall be competent and may be compelled to give evidence as a witness.

34. Every person who is summoned and duly attends as a witness shall be entitled to an allowance for expenses according to the scale for the time being in force with respect to witnesses in civil suits in the superior courts in the province where the inquiry is being conducted. With a minimum allowance of $4 per day. Amended 1920, c. 29, s. 4.

35. Where a reference has been made to the Board of a dispute between a railway company and its employees, any witness summoned by the Board in connection with the dispute shall be entitled to free transportation over any railway en route when proceeding to the place of meeting of the Board and thereafter returning to his home, and the Board shall furnish to such witness a proper certificate evidencing his right to such free transportation.

36. If any person who has been duly served with such summons and to whom at the same time payment or tender has been made of his reasonable travelling expenses according to the aforesaid scale, fails to duly attend or to duly produce any book, paper or other document or thing as required by his summons, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, unless he shows that there was good and sufficient cause for such failure.

37. If, in any proceedings before the Board, any person wilfully insults any member of the Board or wilfully interrupts the proceedings, or without good cause refuses to give evidence, or is guilty in any other manner of any wilful contempt in the face of the Board, any officer of the Board or any constable may take the person offending into custody and remove him from the precincts of the Board, to be detained in custody until the rising of the Board, and the person so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

38. The Board, or any member thereof, and, on being authorized in writing by the Board, any other person, may, without any other warrant than this Act, at any time, enter any building, mine, mine workings, ship, vessel, factory, workshop, place or premises of any kind, wherein, or in respect of which, any industry is carried on or any work is being or has been done or commenced, or any matter or thing is taking place or has taken place, which has been made the subject of a reference to the Board, and inspect and view any work, material, machinery, appliance or article therein, and interrogate any persons in or upon any such building, mine, mine working, ship, vessel, factory, workshop, place or premises as aforesaid, in respect of or in relation to any matter or thing hereinbefore mentioned, and any person who hinders or obstructs the Board or any such person authorized as aforesaid, in the exercise of any power conferred by this section, shall be guilty of an offence and be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

39. Any party to a reference may be represented before the Board by three or less than three persons designated for the purpose, or by counsel or solicitor where allowed as hereinafter provided.

40. Every party appearing by a representative shall be bound by the acts of such representative.

41. No counsel or solicitor shall be entitled to appear or be heard before the Board, except with the consent of the parties to the dispute, and notwithstanding such consent the Board may decline to allow counsel or solicitors to appear.

42. Persons other than British subjects shall not be allowed to act as members of a Board.

43. If, without good cause shown, any party to proceedings before the Board fails to attend or to be represented, the Board may proceed as if he had duly attended or had been represented.

44. The sittings of the Board shall be held at such time and place as are from time to time fixed by the chairman, after consultation with the other members of the Board, and the parties shall be notified by the chairman as to the time and place at which sittings are to be held: Provided that, so far as practicable, the Board shall sit in the locality within which the subject matter of the proceeding before it arose.

45. The proceedings of the Board shall be conducted in public; provided that at any such proceedings before it, the Board, on its own motion, or on the application of any of the parties, may direct that the proceedings shall be conducted in private and that all persons other than the parties, their representatives, the officers of the Board and the witnesses under examination shall withdraw.

46. The decision of a majority of the members present at a sitting of the Board shall be the decisions of the Board, and the findings and recommendations of the majority of its members shall be those of the Board.

47. The presence of the chairman and at least one other member of the Board shall be necessary to constitute a sitting of the Board.

48. In case of the absence of any one member from a meeting of the Board the other two members shall not proceed, unless it is shown that the third member has been notified of the meeting in ample time to admit of his attendance.

(2) If any member of a Board dies, or becomes incapacitated, or refuses or neglects to act, his successor shall be appointed in the manner provided with respect to the original member of the Board.

49. The Board may at any time dismiss any matter referred to it which it thinks frivolous or trivial.

50. The Board may, with the consent of the Minister, employ competent experts or assessors to examine the books or official reports of either party, and to advise it upon any technical or other matter material to the investigation, but shall not disclose such reports or the results of such inspection or examination under this section without the consent of both the parties to the dispute.

Remuneration and Expenses of Board.

51. The members of a Board shall be remunerated for their services as follows:—

(a) To members other than the chairman, an allowance of five dollars a day for a time not exceeding three days during which the members may be actually engaged in selecting a third member of the Board;

(b) To each member of the Board, including the chairman, an allowance at the rate of twenty dollars for each day's sitting of the Board and for each day necessarily engaged in travelling from or to his place of residence to attend or after attending a meeting of the Board. 1910, c. 29, s. 4.

52. No member of the Board shall accept in addition to his salary as a member of the Board any perquisite or gratuity of any kind, from any corporation, association, partnership or individual in any way interested in any matter or thing before or about to be brought before the Board in accordance with the provisions of this Act. The accepting of such perquisite or gratuity by any member of the Board shall be an offence and shall render such member liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

53. Each member of the Board will be entitled to his actual necessary travelling expenses for each day that he is engaged in travelling from or to his place of residence for the purpose of attending or after having attended a meeting of the Board.

54. All expenses of the Board, including expenses for transportation incurred by the members thereof or by persons under its order in making investigations under this Act, salaries of employees and agents, and fees and mileage to witnesses shall be allowed and paid upon the presentation of itemized vouchers therefor approved by the chairman of the Board, which vouchers shall be forwarded by the chairman to the Minister. The chairman shall also forward to the Minister a certified and detailed statement of the sittings of the Board, and of the members present at such sittings.

Duties of the Registrar.

55. It shall be the duty of the Registrar:—

(a) to receive and register, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, to deal with all applications by employers or employees for a reference of any dispute to a Board, and to at once bring to the Minister's attention every such application;

(b) to conduct such correspondence with the parties and members of Boards as may be necessary to constitute any Board as speedily as possible in accordance with the provisions of this Act;

(c) to receive and file all reports and recommendations of Boards, and conduct such correspondence and do such things as may assist in rendering effective the recommendations of the Boards, in accordance with the provisions of this Act;

(d) to keep a register in which shall be entered the particulars of all applications, references, reports and recommendations relating to the appointment of a Board, and its proceedings; and to safely keep all applications, statements, reports, recommendations and other documents relating to proceedings before the Board, and, when so required, transmit all or any of such to the Minister;

(e) to supply to any parties, on request, information as to this Act, or any regulations or proceedings thereunder, and also to furnish parties to a dispute and members of the Board with necessary blank forms, forms of summons or other papers or documents required in connection with the effective carrying out of the provisions of this Act;

(f) generally, to do all such things and take all such proceedings as may be required in the performance of his duties prescribed under this Act or any regulations thereunder.

Strikes and Lockouts Prior to and Pending a Reference to Board Illegal.

56. It shall be unlawful for any employer to declare or cause a lockout, or for any employee to go on strike, on account of any dispute prior to or during a reference of such dispute to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation under the provisions of this Act, or prior to or during a reference under the provisions concerning railway disputes in the Conciliation and Labour Act: Provided that nothing in this Act shall prohibit the suspension or discontinuance of any industry or of the working of any persons therein for any cause not constituting a lockout or strike: Provided also that, except where the parties have entered into an agreement under section 62 of this Act, nothing in this Act shall be held to restrain any employer from declaring a lockout, or any employee from going on strike in respect of any dispute which has been duly referred to a Board and which has been dealt with under section 24 or 25 of this Act, or in respect of any dispute which has been the subject of a reference under the provisions concerning railway disputes in the Conciliation and Labour Act.

57. Employers and employees shall give at least thirty days' notice of an intended change affecting conditions of employment with respect to wages or hours; and in the event of such intended change resulting in a dispute, until the dispute has been finally dealt with by a Board, and a copy of its report has been delivered through the Registrar to both the parties affected, neither of those parties shall alter the conditions of employment with respect to wages or hours, or on account of the dispute do or be concerned in doing, directly or indirectly, anything in the nature of a lockout or strike, or a suspension or discontinuance of employment or work, but the relation-

hip of employer and employee shall continue uninterrupted by the dispute, or anything arising out of the dispute; but if, in the opinion of the Board, either party uses this or any other provision of this Act for the purpose of unjustly maintaining a given condition of affairs through delay, and the Board so reports to the Minister, such party shall be guilty of an offence and liable to the same penalties as are imposed for a violation of the next preceding section. Amended 1910, c. 29, s. 5. 1920, c. 29, s. 5.

58. Any employer declaring or causing a lockout contrary to the provisions of this Act shall be liable to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars for each day or part of a day that such lockout exists.

59. Any employee who goes on strike contrary to the provisions of this Act shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, for each day or part of a day that such employee is on strike.

60. Any person who incites, encourages or aids in any manner any employer to declare or continue a lockout, or any employee to go or continue on strike contrary to the provisions of this Act, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars.

61. The procedure for enforcing penalties imposed or authorized to be imposed by this Act shall be that prescribed by Part XV of the Criminal Code relating to summary convictions.

Special Provisions.

62. Either party to a dispute which may be referred under this Act to a Board may agree in writing, at any time before or after the Board has made its report and recommendation, to be bound by the recommendation of the Board in the same manner as parties are bound upon an award made pursuant to a reference to arbitration on the order of a court of record; every agreement so to be bound made by one party shall be forwarded to the Registrar who shall communicate it to the other party, and if the other party agrees in like manner to be bound by the recommendation of the Board, then the recommendation shall be made a rule of the said court on the application of either party and shall be enforceable in like manner.

63. In the event of a dispute arising in any industry or trade other than such as may be included under the provisions of this Act, and such dispute threatens to result in a lockout or strike, or has actually resulted in a lockout or strike, either of the parties may agree in writing to allow such dispute to be referred to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation, to be constituted under the provisions of this Act.

(2) Every agreement to allow such reference shall be forwarded to the Registrar, who shall communicate it to the other party, and if such other party agrees in like manner to allow the dispute to be referred to a Board, the dispute may be so referred as if the industry or trade and the parties were included within the provisions of this Act.

(3) From the time that the parties have been notified in writing by the Registrar that in consequence of their mutual agreement to refer the dispute to a Board under the provisions of this Act, the Minister has decided to refer such dispute, the lockout or strike, if in existence, shall forthwith cease, and the provisions of this Act shall bind the parties.

63a. Where in any industry any strike or lockout has occurred or seems to the Minister to be imminent, and in the public interest or for any other reason it seems to the Minister expedient, the Minister, on the application of any municipality interested or of the mayor, reeve, or other head officer or acting head officer thereof, or of his own motion, may, without application of either of the parties to the dispute, strike, or lockout, whether it involves one or more employers or employees in the employ of one or more employers, constitute a Board of Conciliation and Investigation under this Act in respect of any dispute, or strike or lockout, or may in any such case, if it seems to him expedient, either with or without an application from any interested party, recommend to the Governor in Council the appointment of some person or persons as commissioner or commissioners under the provisions of the Inquiries Act to inquire into the dispute, strike or lockout, or into any matters or circumstances connected therewith. 1918, c. 27, s. 6. as amended 1920, c. 29, s. 6.

63b. The Minister, where he deems it expedient, may, either upon or without any application in that behalf, make or cause to be made any inquiries he thinks fit regarding industrial matters, and may cause such steps to be taken by his department and the officers thereof as seem calculated to secure industrial peace and to promote conditions favourable to settlement of disputes. 1918, c. 27, s. 6.

Miscellaneous.

64. No court of the Dominion of Canada, or of any province or territory thereof, shall have power or jurisdiction to recognize or enforce, or to receive in evidence any report of a Board or any testimony or proceedings before a Board, as against any person or for any purpose, except in the case of the prosecution of such person for perjury.

65. No proceeding under this Act shall be deemed invalid by reason of any defect of form or any technical irregularity.

66. The Minister shall determine the allowance or amounts to be paid to all persons other than the members of a Board, employed by the Government or any Board, including the registrar, secretaries, clerks, experts, stenographers or other persons performing any services under the provisions of this Act.

67. In case of prosecutions under this Act, whether a conviction is or is not obtained it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court before which any such prosecution takes place to briefly report the particulars of such prosecution to the Registrar within thirty days after it has been determined, and such clerk shall be entitled to a prescribed fee in payment of his services.

68. The Governor in Council may make regulations as to the time within which anything hereby authorized shall be done, and also as to any other matter or thing which appears to him necessary or advisable to the effectual working of the several provisions of this Act. All such regulations shall go into force on the day of the publication thereof in the "Canada Gazette," and they shall be laid before Parliament within fifteen days after such publication, or, if Parliament is not then in session, within fifteen days after the opening of the next session thereof.

69. All charges and expenses incurred by the Government in connection with the administration of this Act shall be defrayed out of such appropriations as are made by Parliament for that purpose.

70. An annual report with respect to the matters transacted by him under this Act shall be made by the Minister to the Governor General, and shall be laid before Parliament within the first fifteen days of each session thereof.

Pensions for Government Railway Employees.

Chapter 22 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as The Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund Act.

2. In this section and the following sections of the Act, unless the context otherwise requires.—

(a) "Association" means the Intercolonial Railway Employees' Relief and Insurance Association;

(b) "Board" means the Board created under this Act through which the fund is to be administered as provided in this Act;

(c) "Employee" means and includes any officer and employee of His Majesty employed upon and duly appointed to, the staff of the railway and giving his entire time to the service of the railway, to whom this Act applies, and includes any person employed by His Majesty upon the Government official cars;

(d) "Fund" means the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund established under this Act;

(e) "General Manager" means the person acting in the capacity of General Manager of the railway, or any person duly authorized to act for him. 1913, c. 26, s. 3;

(f) "Minister" means the Minister of Railways and Canals;

(g) "Railway" means and includes any railway subject to the Government Railways Act;

(h) "Service" means service as an employee, and, for the purposes of sections 12, 13 and 14 of this Act, includes service similar to that of an employee, rendered prior to the coming into force of this Act, upon any railway acquired by the Government.

3. A fund shall be established to be known as "The Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees' Provident Fund," for the purpose of providing life allowances to be paid to such persons as are entitled thereto under the provisions of this Act.

(2) The fund shall be created by means of contributions to be made from time to time as hereinafter provided by the employees and His Majesty.

4. His Majesty shall contribute annually to the fund, out of the gross earnings of the railway, an amount at least equal to the total monthly contributions by the employees, but not exceeding in any one year one hundred thousand dollars, in such sum or sums as the Governor in Council from time to time determines to be necessary for the maintenance of the fund.

5. Every employee shall contribute to the fund monthly one and one-half per cent of his regular monthly salary and wages, which percentage shall be deducted by the Minister each month out of the said salary and wages, and so long as he remains in the service he shall in like manner continue to contribute to the fund upon the said basis, or upon such other or new basis as is established as provided for in this Act; but, in order to provide for the payment of allowances to be provided under this Act to persons who become entitled thereto immediately or soon after the coming into force of this Act, the first monthly contribution by the employees shall be three per cent instead of one and one-half per cent.

6. The fund shall be vested in, and belong to, His Majesty, who shall allow interest thereon at the rate of three per cent per annum, which interest shall be added to, and form part of, the fund.

7. A Board shall be established, consisting of five persons, of whom one shall be the General Manager, who shall always, when present, be the chairman of and preside at all meetings of the Board, two shall be appointed from time to time by the Minister from among the chief officers of the railway (one of whom shall always act as chairman in the absence of the General manager), and the remaining two shall be elected annually by the employees contributing to the fund.

(2) The head office of the Board shall be at Moncton, in the province of New Brunswick, where all the meetings of the Board shall be held.

8. The Board may, subject to the approval of the Minister, and to the provisions of this Act, make rules and regulations for the following purposes:—

(a) The government of the Board, and the time when, and the manner in which, meetings of the Board shall be held;

(b) The time, place and manner of holding elections for those members of the Board to be elected by the employees, and the manner in which vacancies among them shall be filled;

(c) The eligibility of employees or persons to contribute to, or participate in the benefits of, the fund;

(d) The determination of the amount of the contribution to be made or the allowance to be received in any case by any employee;

(e) The times when, the manner in which, and all conditions under which such allowance shall be payable and payments made;

(f) The distribution and expenditure of the fund for the efficient operation thereof; and

(g) Generally for the proper and efficient carrying out of the objects of this Act;<sup>1</sup>

(2) The General Manager may, with the approval of the Minister, make rules and regulations fixing and determining the time, place and manner of holding the first election for those members of the Board to be elected by the employees for the first year of the existence of the Board.

9. The Board shall from time to time, and as often as the Minister requires, make written reports of its action to the Minister.

10. A secretary of the Board shall be appointed by the Governor in Council.

(2) The secretary shall be paid out of the fund such salary as the Minister, on the recommendation of the Board, determines.

(3) The secretary shall be subject to the Board, and shall obey all orders and directions of the Board touching his duties and the conduct of his office.

11. The fund shall be administered by the Minister through the Board in accordance with this Act and with the rules and regulations of the Board.

12. The following classes of persons shall, upon the recommendation of the Board and the approval of the Minister, but subject to this Act, and to the rules and regulations of the Board, upon being retired by the Minister from service, be entitled for the remainder of their lives to monthly allowances as provided for in this Act:—

Class A. Those who have attained the age of seventy years after being fifteen years in the service;

Class B. Those who, after being fifteen years in the service, become physically or mentally incapacitated from following their usual occupation in the service;

Class C. Those who have attained the age of sixty years after being fifteen years in the service, and request to be retired from the service;

Class D. Those who are permanently disabled from following their usual occupation in the service as a result of injuries received while on duty and actually at work in the service;

Class E. Those who, previous to the coming into force of this Act, entered the service at such an advanced age as to cause them to reach the age of seventy years before being fifteen years in the service; provided that on attaining the age of seventy years they have been at least ten years in the service.

13. The allowance to be paid under this Act shall be a monthly allowance of one and one-half per cent of the average monthly pay received by an employee for the eight years immediately preceding his retirement for each year of his service, and shall be paid monthly from the fund upon retirement for the remainder of his life.

(2) In ascertaining the average monthly pay received by an employee for the said eight years, if in any month the employee did not receive an amount equal to one-half of his then regular monthly salary or wage, such month and the amount received by him for such month shall not be included; and in the case of an employee in the service at the time of the coming into force of this Act whose salary or wage has been reduced for a period at the end of his service on account of inability from old age, or mental or physical infirmity to perform the duties required of him, the average monthly pay, in the discretion of the Board with the approval of the Minister, shall be reckoned for the eight years immediately preceding the date at which his salary or wage was so reduced.

(3) In no case shall the monthly allowance to any person be less than twenty dollars per month, or more than two-thirds of the said average monthly pay.

(4) The monthly allowance shall be payable from the first day of the month next succeeding the date of retirement under this Act, and thereafter shall become due and payable on the first day of each month.

14. For the purposes of this Act, service shall be reckoned from the date of entry into service to the date of retirement; provided that no period of service, rendered after the coming into force of this Act, and after an employee has attained the age of seventy years, shall be included in the computation: provided also that, if the service has not been continuous, for any reason, the period or periods during which the service has been interrupted and for which the employee has received no remuneration shall not be counted; provided further that a fraction of a month less than one-half shall not be counted, and that a fraction equal to or more than one-half shall be counted as one month.

<sup>1</sup>Rules and regulations respecting the various subjects enumerated in Section 8 have been made by the Board and approved by the Minister.

14a. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, when an employee who is a member of the executive of any recognized labour organization absents himself from his duties as such employee to attend:—

- (a) meetings of the said executive; or
- (b) meetings of the said executive with representatives of other similar organizations; or
- (c) meetings of the said executive with the representatives of any railway company;

if within fifteen days from the end of the month in which he so absented himself, he files with the comptroller of the railway, a certificate signed by the secretary of the said organization setting out:—

- (i) the name of the said organization, and that the employee is a member thereof in good standing;
- (ii) the office held by the employee in the said organization; and
- (iii) the length of time the employee acted as the authorized representative of the said organization; and if he pays to the said comptroller a sum equal to the amount which would have been deducted from his salary and appropriated to the fund if he had not so absented himself from his said duties,—

His Majesty shall contribute to the said fund the same amount as would have been payable if such employee had not absented himself during such time from his said duties, and thereafter such employee shall be entitled to the same benefits that he would have been entitled to if he had not so absented himself.

(2) In this section "comptroller" means the person acting in the capacity of comptroller of the railway or any person named by the general manager to act, for the time being, for the purposes of this section. 1913, c. 26, s. 2:

15. Every person entering the service after the coming into force of this Act, shall, although he contributes to the fund as provided by this Act, before being entitled to participate in any of the benefits to be derived therefrom, work at least six months in the service on probation, and at the end of such probationary period pass before a duly qualified medical practitioner a medical examination satisfactory to the Board and obtain from the general manager a certificate in writing that he considers him competent to perform the duties required of him. Upon any such person failing to pass such medical examination or to obtain such certificate he shall no longer be a contributor to the fund, and shall be refunded the whole amount of his contributions to the fund, without interest.

16. No person shall be entitled to an allowance under this Act on account of physical or mental incapacity, or permanent disability, unless he is first examined and his case is passed upon by the physician appointed by the Board, and unless his allowance is approved under this Act.

(2) The decision of the Board upon the report of the physician as to the employee's physical or mental capacity or permanent disablement shall be final.

(3) The cost and expense of such medical examination or any other medical examination required under this Act, or by the Board, shall be a charge against, and shall be paid out of the fund.

17. The following employees, notwithstanding anything in this Act, shall not participate in any of the benefits of the fund under this Act, nor be entitled to a refund of any portion of the contributions made by them to the fund, that is to say:—

- (a) Those, except as in this Act provided, who voluntarily retire from the service;

(b) Those who are discharged from the service on account of wilful default, misconduct, negligence in the performance of their duties, drunkenness, fraud or dishonesty, and are not reinstated. Amended, 1907-8, c. 37, s. 1.

(2) In the case of any employee discharged from the service on or after the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and seven, for or on account of having been engaged in partisan work in connection with any Dominion or provincial election, the Board, notwithstanding anything in this Act, may, with the approval of the Minister, pay out of the fund the whole of such employee's contribution to the fund, but without interest. 1913, c. 26, s. 1.

18. This Act shall not apply to any employee who is subject to the provisions of The Civil Service Superannuation Act, nor to any person entering the service after the coming into force of this Act, and after having attained the age of thirty-five years, if inexperienced in railway work, or of forty-five years, if experienced in railway work or professionally employed; and the question as to whether such person at the time of his entry is a person experienced or not in railway work, or professionally employed, shall be for the determination of the Minister on the report of the Board.

19. Employees who are discharged from the service, for any cause other than those mentioned in paragraph (b) of section 17, after they have been three or more years contributors to the fund, may be paid out of the fund the total amount of their contributions to the fund, but without interest and less the cost and expenses of medical examinations.

20. In the event of an employee who has been a contributor to the fund dying, while in the service, the Board, with the approval of the Minister, may pay out of the fund to the beneficiary named by the employee, or failing such beneficiary, to his widow, or if he should leave no widow, then to his child, or children, parent or other relative or relatives as, and in such proportions as, in its uncontrolled discretion, the Board with the approval of the Minister determines a sum, equal to ninety per cent of the total amount of such employee's contributions to the fund, but without interest.

21. Any person in receipt of a monthly allowance under this Act shall cease to be a regular member of the Association and shall thereby relinquish all claim to any sick or accident benefits from the Association; provided that he may, if he so desires, retain his membership in the Association in regard to the life insurance feature of the Association, in which case the Board may each month deduct and pay over to the Association out of his monthly allowance, the monthly death-levy due by him to the Association.

(2) No person shall be entitled to receive both a monthly allowance under this Act, and the total-disability allowance from the Association, but it shall be optional with him, at the time of his retirement, to designate which he shall receive.

22. Whenever it is determined by the Board or the Minister (a) that the monthly allowances to be paid under this Act create demands in excess of the contributions to the fund, or greater than the fund will provide for, or that the fund is not, or is not likely to be, sufficient to continue the payment of such allowances, or (b) that the monthly contributions to be paid by the employees under this Act are in excess of the requirements of the fund, and as often as any or either of such conditions arise, the Board may, with the approval of the Minister, and shall at the request of the Minister, with respect to (a), either increase the amount of the contribution by the employees, or create a new basis ratably reducing the monthly allowances so that the expense may be brought within the limit of the fund, and with respect to (b), decrease the amount of the monthly contributions to be paid by the employees, and the action of the Board in increasing or decreasing the contributions or establishing such new basis shall, upon being approved by the Minister, be conclusive and binding upon the employees.

(2) Notice of such increase or decrease or new basis shall be given in such manner as the Board prescribes, at least one month prior to the date fixed for the taking effect thereof.

23. The monthly allowance to which any person shall be entitled under this Act shall not be alienable or liable to attachment, levy or seizure by or under any legal process.

24. The acceptance of a monthly allowance by any person under this Act shall not debar him from engaging in any other business or occupation; provided that the Board, with the approval of the Minister, may, in the case of any recipient of a monthly allowance under the age of sixty years being wholly or partially so engaged, modify or reduce his allowance or deal with his case as it thinks fit; but should he re-enter the service his monthly allowance shall cease.

25. Except as in this Act expressly provided, nothing in this Act, and no action taken or payment made by virtue hereof, shall be construed as giving or deemed to give any person or employee any right to be retained in the service; or any right or claim to any allowance or refund; and the right is expressly reserved to the Minister to discharge at any time any employee when the interests of the railway in his judgment so require; without any liability on the part of His Majesty, or any officer acting under this Act, for any claim for or on account of any contribution, refund or allowance under this Act.

26. Nothing in this Act, and no action taken, thing done or payment made by virtue hereof shall relieve His Majesty from liability in the event of damage arising from the negligence omission or default of any officer, employee or servant of the Minister.

27. This Act shall come into force on the first day of April, 1907.

Protection of Wages on Eastern Division of National Transcontinental Railway.

Chapter 48.—1. Sections 2, 3 and 4 of The Wages Liability Act, chapter 98 of the Revised Statutes, 1906, shall apply to contractors and sub-contractors in the construction of the Eastern Division of the National Transcontinental Railway, or any part thereof, let under contract by the Commissioners, the Commissioners being substituted in the said sections, for the purposes of such application, for the Minister entering into contract or by whom the work under a contract is being executed.

[See also R. S. C. chapter 98, p. 35 of this Report.]

Fair Wages to Employees on Public Works.

[In March, 1900, a Fair Wages Resolution was passed by the House of Commons and on August 30, 1907, in order to make this resolution more effective, an Order in Council was passed which reads as follows:—]

The Governor General in Council to more effectively further the purpose of the Fair Wages Resolution of the House of Commons of Canada, of March, 1900, which reads as follows:—

"That it be resolved that all Government contracts should contain such conditions as will prevent abuses which may arise from the sub-letting of such contracts, and that every effort should be made to secure the payment of such wages as are generally accepted as current in each trade for competent workmen in the district where the work is carried out, and this House cordially concurs in such policy, and deems it the duty of the Government to take immediate steps to give effect thereto."

"It is hereby declared that the work to which the foregoing policy shall apply includes not only work undertaken by the Government itself, but also all work aided by grant of Dominion public funds,"— is pleased to Order and it is hereby ordered that hereafter all Government contracts to which said Resolution applies shall contain the following clauses:—

1. Contractors shall post in a conspicuous place on the public works under construction, the schedule of wages inserted in their contracts for the protection of the workmen employed.

2. Contractors shall keep a record of payments made to workmen in their employ. The books or documents containing such record shall be open for inspection by the Fair Wages Officers of the Government at any time it may be expedient to the Minister of Labour to have the same inspected.

STATUTES OF 1909.

Department of Labour.

Chapter 22.—1. This Act may be cited as The Labour Department Act.

2. There shall be a department of the Government of Canada which shall be called the Department of Labour, over which the Minister of Labour for the time being, appointed by the Governor General by Commission under the Great Seal, shall preside.

(2) The Minister of Labour shall hold office during pleasure, and shall have the management and direction of the department.

(3) The salary of the Minister of Labour shall be seven thousand dollars per annum.

3. The Governor in Council may also appoint an officer who shall be called the Deputy Minister of Labour, and such officers, clerks and servants as are requisite for the proper conduct of the business of the department, all of whom shall hold office during pleasure.

4. The Minister of Labour shall be charged with the administration of The Conciliation and Labour Act and The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, and with such other duties as may be assigned to him by the Governor in Council.

Bribery of Employees.

Chapter 33.—1. This Act may be cited as the Secret Commissions Act, 1909.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Consideration" includes valuable consideration of any kind;

(b) "Agent" means any person employed by or acting for another, and includes a person serving under the Crown or under any municipal or other corporation;

(c) "Principal" includes an employer.

3. Everyone is guilty of an offence and liable, upon conviction on indictment, to two years' imprisonment, or to a fine not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars, or to both, and, upon summary conviction, to imprisonment for six months, with or without hard labour, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to both, who,—

(a) being an agent, corruptly accepts or obtains or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain, from any person, for himself or for any other person any gift or consideration as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do, or for having after the passing of this Act done or forborne to do, any act relating to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person with relation to his principal's affairs or business; or,

(b) corruptly gives or agrees to give or offers any gift or consideration to any agent as an inducement or reward or consideration to such agent for doing or forbearing to do, or for having after the passing of this Act done or forborne to do, any act relating to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person with relation to his principal's affairs or business; or

(c) knowingly gives to any agent, or, being an agent knowingly uses with intent to deceive his principal, any receipt, account, or other document in respect of which the principal is interested, and which contains any statement which is false or erroneous or defective in any material particular, and which, to his knowledge, is intended to mislead the principal;

(d) every person who is a party or knowingly privy to any offence under this Act shall be guilty of such offence and shall be liable upon conviction to the punishment hereinbefore provided for by this section.

4. This Act shall be read as if its provisions formed part of The Criminal Code.

STATUTES OF 1910.

Alien Labour—Regulation of Immigration—Protection of Immigrant Labourers.

[Chapter 27, with amendments, regulates immigration into Canada. The provisions of this Chapter are for the most part, applicable to immigrants in general and the Act as a whole is, therefore, somewhat outside the field of labour legislation. Certain portions of it, however, are of special interest to labour. The sections in question provide for regulations as to monetary and other requirements from specified classes of immigrants, for protection of immigrants from misrepresentations of the state of the labour market in Canada, and for regulations respecting employment agencies. A list of certain prohibited classes is also given.]

3. No immigrant, passenger or other person, unless he is a Canadian citizen, or has Canadian domicile shall be permitted to land in Canada, or in case of having landed in or entered Canada shall be permitted to remain therein, who belongs to any of the following classes, hereinafter called "prohibited classes"—

(n) Persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the Government of Canada or of constituted law and authority, or who disbelieve in or are opposed to organized government, or who advocate the assassination of public officials, or who advocate or teach the unlawful destruction of property. 1919, c. 25, s. 3 (6);

(o) Persons who are members of or affiliated with any organization entertaining or teaching disbelief in or opposition to organized government, or advocating or teaching the duty, necessity, or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals or of officers generally, of the Government of Canada or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character, or advocating or teaching the unlawful destruction of property. 1919, c. 25, s. 3 (6).

37. Regulations made by the Governor in Council under this Act may provide as a condition to permission to land in Canada that immigrants and tourists shall possess in their own right money to a prescribed minimum amount, which amount may vary according to the race, occupation or destination of such immigrant or tourist, and otherwise according to the circumstances; and may also provide that all persons coming to Canada directly or indirectly from countries which issue passports or penal certificates to persons leaving such countries, shall produce such passports or penal certificates on demand of the immigration officer in charge before being allowed to land in Canada.<sup>1</sup>

38. The Governor in Council may, by proclamation or order whenever he deems it necessary or expedient,—

(a) prohibit the landing in Canada or at any specified port of entry in Canada of any immigrant who has come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which he is a native or naturalized citizen, and upon a through ticket purchased in that country, or prepaid in Canada;

(b) prohibit the landing in Canada of passengers brought to Canada by any transportation company which refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of this Act;

(c) prohibit or limit in number for a stated period or permanently the landing in Canada, or the landing at any specified port or ports of entry in Canada, of immigrants belonging to any nationality or race or of immigrants of any specified class or occupation, by reason of any economic, industrial or other condition temporarily existing in Canada or because such immigrants are deemed unsuitable having regard to the climatic, industrial, social, educational, labour or other conditions or requirements of Canada or because such immigrants are deemed undesirable owing to their peculiar customs, habits, modes of life and methods of holding property, and because of their probable inability to become readily assimilated or to assume the duties and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship within a reasonable time after their entry.<sup>2</sup> 1919, c. 25, s. 13.

41. (1) Every person who by word or act in Canada seeks to overthrow by force or violence the government of or constituted law and authority in the United Kingdom of Britain and Ireland, or Canada, or any of the provinces of Canada, or the government of any other of His Majesty's dominions, colonies, possessions or dependencies, or advocates the assassination of any official of any of the said governments or of any foreign government, or who in Canada defends or suggests the unlawful destruction of property or by word or act creates or attempts to create any riot or public destruction of property or by word or act creates or attempts to create any riot or public disorder in Canada, or who without lawful authority assumes any powers of government in Canada or in any part thereof, or who by common repute belongs to or is suspected of belonging to any secret society or organization which extorts money from or in any way attempts to control any resident of Canada by force or by threat of bodily harm, or by blackmail, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining or teaching disbelief in or opposition to organized government shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to belong to the prohibited or undesirable classes, and shall be liable to deportation in the manner provided by this Act, and it shall be the duty of any officer becoming cognizant thereof and of the clerk, secretary or other official of any municipality in Canada wherein any such person may be, forthwith to send a written complaint to the Minister, giving full particulars: Provided, that this section shall not apply to any person who is a British subject, either by reason of birth in Canada or by reason of naturalization in Canada.

(2) Proof that any person belonged to or was within the description of any of the prohibited or undesirable classes within the meaning of this section at any time since the fourth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and ten, shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to establish prima facie that he still belongs to such prohibited or undesirable class or classes. 1919, c. 26, s. 1.

<sup>1</sup> According to regulations issued under this section, any immigrant (other than an Asiatic) seeking to enter Canada at any time between May 1st and October 31st must have in his possession at least $25, and if such immigrant is the head of a family he must have $25 for each member of eighteen years or upwards, and $12.50 for each member between the ages of five and eighteen years. Any such immigrant seeking to enter at any other time of the year must have in his possession double the above amounts. Owing to employment conditions existing in Canada these regulations are now suspended indefinitely as regards immigrants of the mechanic, artisan or labourer classes who are required to possess, in addition to transportation to destination, the sum of $250, with $125 for each member of the family over eighteen years of age and $50 for each member between the ages of five and eighteen years. Another regulation establishes a monetary requirement of at least $200 for Asiatic immigrants other than those to whom special statutory regulations or treaty stipulations apply.

<sup>2</sup> Under the authority of this section, a regulation is in force prohibiting the landing in Canada of any immigrant who has come to the country otherwise than by continuous journey on a through ticket. Other orders in Council have been passed from time to time prohibiting the landing of any immigrant artisan or labourer, skilled or unskilled, at designated ports of entry in British Columbia between certain dates specified in the order. Hutterites, Mennonites and Doukhobors are denied right of entry into Canada, as are also immigrants who were alien enemies during the late war, unless they belong to those races which, as a result of the war, no longer owe allegiance to enemy countries.

55. Every person who causes or procures the publication or circulation, by advertisement or otherwise, in a country outside of Canada, of false representations as to the opportunities for employment in Canada, or as to the state of the labour market in Canada, intended or adapted to encourage or induce, or to deter or prevent, the immigration into Canada of persons resident in such outside country, or who does anything in Canada for the purpose of causing or procuring the communication to any resident of such country of any such representations which are thereafter so published, circulated or communicated, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and liable on summary conviction before two justices of the peace, to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

66. The Governor in Council may make such regulations and impose such penalties as are deemed expedient to safeguard the interests of immigrants seeking employment from any companies, firms, or persons carrying on the business of intelligence offices or employment of labour agencies at any place in Canada.<sup>1</sup>

79. All provisions of this Act not repugnant to the provisions of The Chinese Immigration Act shall apply as well to persons of Chinese origin as to other persons.

STATUTES OF 1914.

Protection of Fishermen.

Chapter 8.—63. No dory, flat, whaler or other boat whatsoever shall set out from any vessel engaged in deep-sea or bank fishing or be launched therefrom for the purpose of fishing with hooks and lines, trawls or other similar appliances, or with intent that the same shall be used in so fishing, or for the purpose of examining trawls, set lines or other similar appliances for fishing, unless there is placed in such boat, to be retained therein during the absence from such vessel, a mariner's compass, nor unless there is placed in such boat at least two quarts of drinking water and two pounds of solid food for each man of the crew of such boat.

(2) The owner of such vessel shall supply her at the commencement of her voyage with as many serviceable mariner's compasses as she carries boats, in addition to the vessel's compass, and also with the necessary utensils for holding water and with a serviceable fog-horn or trumpet.

(3) No collector or other customs officer shall grant a clearance to such vessel or allow her to go to sea unless the master thereof has a certificate from a fishery officer or other person authorized by the Minister to give such certificates that the vessel is properly equipped with a mariner's compass and suitable utensils for holding water for each boat carried by her and with a serviceable fog-horn or trumpet.

79. The owner of any vessel, who,—

(a) permits any dory, flat, whaler, or other boat whatsoever to set out from any vessel engaged in deep sea or bank fishing, or to be launched therefrom for the purpose of fishing with hooks and lines, trawls, or other similar appliances, or with intent that the same shall be used in so fishing, or for the purpose of examining trawls, set lines or other similar appliances for fishing without there being placed in such boat to be retained therein during absence from such vessel, a mariner's compass, and at least two quarts of drinking water and two pounds of solid food for each man of the crew of such boat; or,

(b) fails to supply any vessel by him so engaged in deep-sea or bank fishing, at the commencement of her voyage, with as many serviceable mariner's compasses as she carries boats, in addition to the vessel's compass and also with the necessary utensils for holding water and with a serviceable fog-horn or trumpet; shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable for each such offence to a penalty of not less than two hundred dollars and costs and not more than five hundred dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term of not less than six months and not exceeding twelve months, or both.

(2) The master of any such vessel from which a boat is launched or sets out in contravention of the provisions of this section shall also be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable therefor to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars and costs and not more than two hundred and fifty dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term not less than six months, or to both.

(3) The owner and master of any such vessel which goes to sea or attempts to go to sea without first obtaining and exhibiting to the collector or other proper customs officer a certificate from a fishery officer or other person authorized by the Minister to grant such certificates that the vessel is properly equipped with a mariner's compass and suitable utensils for holding water for each boat carried by her and with a serviceable fog-horn or trumpet, shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act and shall each be liable therefor to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars and costs and not more than two hundred dollars and costs or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

<sup>1</sup> Important regulations were issued under the authority of this section in May, 1913. Every employment agency having dealings with immigrants is required to obtain a license for the purpose from the Superintendent of Immigration, and to keep records respecting the immigrants doing business at the office. False representations concerning the condition of the labour market in Canada are forbidden, and the maximum fee chargeable by an agency for securing employment for an immigrant is fixed at $1. Provisions governing the engaging of immigrants for employers by agencies are also included in the regulations.

Use of White Phosphorus in Matches.

Chapter 12 with amendment—1. This Act may be cited as The White Phosphorus Matches Act.

2. In th Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Minister" means the Minister of Labour;

(b) "White phosphorus" means the substance usually known as white or yellow phosphorus;

(c) "Inspector" means any person authorized by regulation or appointed by the Minister to perform any duties under this Act or under any regulation made thereunder;

(d) "Regulation" means and includes any order or regulation made by the Governor in Council under the authority of this Act.

3. It shall not be lawful for any person to use white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

(2) The owner or operator of any factory in which the manufacture of matches is carried on shall allow any officer of the Department of Labour, authorized by the Minister, at any time to take therefrom for analysis sufficient samples of any material in use or mixed for use: Provided that the owner or operator may, at any time when the sample is taken, and on providing the necessary appliances, require the said officer to divide the samples so taken into two parts and to mark, seal and deliver to him one part.

4. It shall not be lawful to import into Canada matches made with white phosphorus, and matches so made shall be included amongst the goods enumerated and described in Schedule C to The Customs Tariff, 1907.

5. It shall not be lawful for any person to use, sell, or to offer or expose for sale, or to have in his possession for the purposes of sale, any matches made with white phosphorus.

6. Any person who is manufacturing or proposing to manufacture, matches by way of trade may present a petition to the Commissioner of Patents, praying for the grant of a compulsory license to use any process patented at the time of the passing of this Act for the manufacture of matches without white phosphorus.

(2) The Commissioner of Patents, after considering any representations that may be made by the patentee, or his legal representatives, or any person claiming an interest in the patent, may order the patentee or other interested party to grant a license to such petitioner on such terms as he may consider just: Provided that the Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, and shall on the request of any one of the parties to the proceedings, call in the aid of an assessor, specially qualified, and hear the case wholly or partially with his assistance.

(3) An order of the Commissioner of Patents directing the grant of license under this section shall, without prejudice to any other method of enforcement, operate as if it were embodied in a deed granting a license and made between the petitioner and patentee and such other persons claiming an interest in the patent as aforesaid.

7. The Governor in Council may make such orders and regulations, as to him seem necessary for the carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

(2) Such orders and regulations shall have the same force and effect as if embodied in this Act.

(3) Every such order or regulation shall be published in The Canada Gazette.

8. The certificate of an inspector shall, for the purposes of this Act, be prima facie evidence in all courts of justice and elsewhere of the matter certified.

9. Any inspector may, at any time, for the purpose of carrying into effect any of the provisions of this Act or any regulation made thereunder, enter any place or premises, or any steamship, vessel or boat, or any carriage, car, truck or other vehicle used or which the inspector or other person suspects is being used for the storage or carriage of matches made with white phosphorus, and may also open any package or store containing matches made with white phosphorus or which he suspects to contain such matches.

10. Every person who refuses to admit, or who obstructs or impedes an inspector, and every person who aids and assists him therein, shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and costs.

11. Every person who violates any provision of this Act, or of any regulation made thereunder, in respect of which no penalty is hereinbefore provided, shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and costs.

12. Every offence against this Act, or against any regulation, shall, for the purposes of proceedings under this Act, or of any such order or regulation, be deemed to have been committed, and every cause of complaint under this Act, or any such regulation, shall be deemed to have arisen either in the place in which it actually was committed or arose, or in any place in which the person charged or complained against happens to be.

13. This Act shall come into force on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, except section five thereof, which shall not come into force until the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen: Provided, however, that the provision in the said section forbidding the use of any matches made with white phosphorus shall not come into force until the first day of January, one thousand and nine hundred and seventeen. 1916, c. 4, s. 1.

[By section 2 of chapter 4 of the Acts of 1916 section 13 as redrawn shall be held to have come into force on, from and after the first day of January, 1916.]

Regulation of Importation, Manufacture, and Use of Explosives.

Chapter 31.—1. This Act may be cited as The Explosives Act.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—

- (a) "Department" means the Department of Mines;
- (b) "Minister" means the Minister or Acting Minister of Mines; or such Minister as the Governor in Council may designate to administer this Act;
- (c) "Authorized explosive" means any explosive the manufacture or importation of which has been authorized under this Act;
- (d) "Explosive" means gunpowder, blasting powder, nitroglycerine, gun cotton, dynamite, blasting gelatine, gelnite, fulminates of mercury, or other metals, coloured fires, and every other substance whether chemical compound or mechanical mixture, used or manufactured with a view to produce a violent effect by explosion, or a pyrotechnic effect, and includes fire works, fuses, rockets, percussion caps, detonators, cartridges, ammunition of all descriptions, fog and other signals, and every other adaption or preparation of an explosive as above defined;
- (e) "Factory" means and includes any building, structure or premises in which the manufacture, or any part of the process of manufacture of an explosive, is carried on, and any building or place where any ingredient of an explosive is stored during the process of manufacture;
- (f) "Inspector" means and includes the chief inspector of explosives, an inspector of explosives, a deputy inspector of explosives, and any other person who is directed by the Minister to inspect an explosive or explosive factory or magazine, or to hold an inquiry in connection with any accident caused by an explosive;
- (g) "Magazine" means and includes any building, storehouse, structure or place in which any explosive is kept or stored, other than at or in and for the use of a mine or quarry in a province in which provision is made by the law of such province for the efficient inspection of mines and quarries and explosives used in connection therewith; but does not include the place in which an authorized explosive is kept for the purposes of conveyance when the same is being conveyed or kept in accordance with the provisions of this Act, nor the structure or place in which it is kept for private use, and not for sale, an authorized explosive to an amount not exceeding that allowed by regulation under this Act, nor any store or warehouse containing authorized explosives to an amount not exceeding that allowed by regulation under this Act or authorized by any provincial or local authority;
- (h) "Operator" means any person who operates a factory for manufacturing explosives, or is the manager of or in charge of such factory, or who is the occupant of or uses a magazine for the storage of explosives;
- (i) "Regulations" means any regulations made by the Governor in Council under the authority of this Act;
- (j) "Safety cartridges" means cartridges for guns, rifles, pistols, revolvers and other small arms, of which the case can be extracted from the small arm after firing, and which are so closed as to prevent any explosion in one cartridge being communicated to other cartridges.

3. This Act shall not apply to the Department of Militia and Defence or the Department of the Naval Service.

Importation, Manufacture and Use.

4. Except as herein provided, no person shall have in his possession, or import, store, use or manufacture, whether wholly or in part, or sell, any explosive unless such explosive has been declared by the Minister to be an authorized explosive.

5. Nothing in this Act shall apply to the making of a small quantity of explosive for the purpose of chemical experiment, and not for practical use or sale.

6. Except in so far as may be permitted by regulations made under this Act, no person, except in licensed manufacturing factories, shall carry on any of the following processes, namely:—of dividing into its component parts, or otherwise breaking up or unmaking, any explosive; of making fit for use any damaged explosive; or of remaking, altering or repairing any explosive: Provided that this section shall not apply to the process of thawing explosives containing nitro-glycerine, if a proper apparatus or thawing-house is used in accordance with regulations made under this Act or any Provincial law.

Licenses and Permits.

7. The Minister may issue licenses for factories and magazines, and no one shall manufacture, either wholly or in part, or store explosives except in licensed factories and magazines.

(2) Notwithstanding any provisions contained, in this Act the Governor in Council upon the recommendation of the Minister, based upon a report in writing of the Deputy Minister, accompanied by certificates from the chief inspector and chief chemist of explosives approving of the nature of the components and of the final explosive product, may allow the inexplosive component parts of an authorized explosive from licensed factories and magazines to be assembled and blended at or near the point of use, and such place of blending shall not be deemed a factory or magazine within the meaning of this Act.

8. The Minister may issue permits for the importation of authorized explosives, and no one shall import any explosive into Canada, other than safety cartridges, without such permit: Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall prevent any explosive from being transported through Canada by railway in bond, if such transportation is made in a manner authorized by the Railway Act or any regulation or order made thereunder.

9. The Minister may, on application, and on payment of the prescribed fees, issue a special permit to import, for the purposes of chemical analysis or scientific research, an amount not exceeding two pounds of any explosive specified in such permit.

10. Applications for factory or magazine licenses shall be made in such form and manner as are prescribed by regulation, and the application shall be accompanied by,—

(a) a plan, drawn to scale, of the proposed factory or magazine and of the land on which such factory or magazine is situated, and also of the lands adjacent thereto on which buildings are erected, with the use to which such lands and buildings are now put. Such plan to have the exact distances between the several buildings marked thereon.

(b) a description of the situation, character and construction of all buildings and works connected with the factory or magazine, and the maximum amount of explosive to be kept in each building;

(c) a statement of the maximum number of persons to be employed in each building in the factory or magazine;

(d) any information or evidence which the Minister may require;

(e) in the case of an application for a factory license, a statement of the maximum amount of explosive, and of ingredients thereof wholly or partially mixed, to be allowed at any one time in any building, machine, or process of the manufacture, or within the distance from such buildings or machine, which is limited by regulation;

(f) a statement of the nature of the processes to be carried on in the factory and in each part thereof, and the place at which each process of the manufacture, and each description of work connected with the factory is to be carried on, and the places in the factory at which explosives and anything liable to spontaneous ignition, or inflammable or otherwise dangerous are to be kept.

11. The Minister may, on application and on payment of such fees as are prescribed by regulation, issue a permit to manufacture, for experimental or testing purposes only, and not for sale, any new explosive, upon such conditions and subject to such restrictions as are fixed by the Minister.

12. The owner or operator of a factory or magazine shall not make any material alteration or addition to a licensed factory or magazine, or rebuild any part thereof, until he has obtained a permit from the Minister; and before such permit may be granted he shall submit such plans and other information and evidence as the Minister may require.

13. A factory or magazine license shall not be affected by any change in the persons who own or operate the factory or magazine; but notice of such change with the address and calling of the new owner or operator shall be sent to the Minister by the former owner forthwith, and by the new owner within one month after such change, and in default thereof each such owner or operator shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars for each week during which such default continues, and if the occupier is not himself the owner he shall also be liable to the same penalty.

14. In the case of a factory now in operation or a magazine now in existence, no license shall be required until the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen: Provided, however, that if the owner or operator of such factory or magazine desires to make any material alteration in or addition to such factory or magazine, or to rebuild the same or any part thereof, he shall comply with the provisions of section 12 of this Act.

(2) The owner or operator of any such factory or magazine shall, within three months after the passing of this Act, make application to the Minister for a continuing certificate, stating in such application his name and address and the situation of the factory or magazine, and shall supply such particulars and information respecting the same as the Minister may require; and the applicant shall thereupon be granted a continuing certificate in such form as may be prescribed by the Minister, and such factory or magazine shall thereupon be deemed to be duly authorized to manufacture and store explosives.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this section, the Minister may require the owner or operator of any factory or magazine to stop using, or to use only under and subject to conditions to be specified by the Minister, any building, structure or premises which, from its situation or from the nature of the processes carried on therein, constitutes, in his opinion a special danger.

Inspectors.

15. The Governor in Council may appoint a chief inspector of explosives, one or more inspectors of explosives, one or more deputy inspectors of explosives, and one or more chemists of explosives.

16. An inspector may, at any time, visit and inspect any factory, magazine and premises where any explosive is being manufactured or stored, or where he has reason to suspect any explosive is being manufactured or stored, and may open and examine any package that he may there find, and the owner and operator of such factory, magazine and premises shall afford such inspector every facility to make such inspection full and complete, and shall supply the inspector with any information that he may require, other than information relating to the cost of manufacturing an explosive.

(2) An inspector may require the owner or operator of any factory or magazine, where any explosive is manufactured or stored, or any person employed in any such place, to give him such samples as he may require of any substance therein, whether in the state of raw material, material in course of manufacture, or manufactured material, which the inspector believes to be an explosive, or to be an ingredient from which an explosive may be manufactured.

(3) An inspector may, at any time, open or cause to be opened any package or store of material of whatsoever nature, which he believes to contain explosives or ingredients for the manufacture of explosives.

Inquiries into Accidents.

17. The Minister may direct an inquiry to be made whenever any accidental explosion of any explosive has occurred, or when any accident has been caused by an explosive, and the person authorized by the Minister to conduct such inquiry shall have all the powers and authority of a commissioner appointed under Part I of the Inquiries Act.

(2) This section shall not apply, however, where an accident has been caused by an explosion of an explosive occurring in any mine or quarry or metallurgical work in any province in which provision is made by the law of such province for a proper and thorough investigation and inquiry into the cause of such accident.

Regulations.

18. The Governor in Council may make regulations,—

(a) for classifying explosives, and for prescribing the composition, quality and character of explosives;

(b) prescribing the form and duration of licenses, permits and certificates issued under this Act, the terms and conditions upon which such licenses, permits and certificates shall be issued, and the fees to be paid therefor;

(c) for regulating the importation, packing and handling of explosives, and the transportation of explosives otherwise than by railway;

(d) for inquiries into the accidental explosion of explosives, and any accident caused by explosives;

(e) for the taking of samples of explosives required for examination and testing, and for the establishing of testing stations, and of the tests and other examinations to which explosives shall be subjected;

(f) prescribing the manner in which an explosive shall be tested and examined before it is declared to be an authorized explosive, and for determining to what examinations and tests authorized explosives shall be subject;

(g) to be observed by inspectors and other officers and employees charged with any duty under this Act, or under any regulations made thereunder;

(h) relating to the construction, and management and licensing of factories and magazines;

(i) for the safety of the public and of the employees at any factory or magazine, or any person engaged in the handling or packing of explosives, or the transportation of explosives otherwise than by railway;

(j) governing the establishment, location and maintenance of factories and magazines and the manufacture and storage of explosives;

(k) for blending the inexplusive components of an authorized explosive;

(l) limiting the amount of authorized explosives that may be kept in places other than licensed factories and magazines, and prescribing the manner in which it shall be handled and stored in such places;

(m) regarding the thawing of explosives;

(n) for the more effective carrying out of this Act.

(2) All regulations made under this Act shall be published in the "Canada Gazette," and upon being so published they shall have the same force as if they formed part of this Act.

Offences and Penalties.

19. Every person who fails to permit an inspector to enter upon any property, and to inspect, examine or make inquiries in pursuance of his duties, and every person who fails to comply with any order or direction of such inspector, in pursuance of the requirements of this Act or any regulation made thereunder, or who, in any manner whatsoever, obstructs such inspector in the execution of his duties under this Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both fine and imprisonment.

(2) Any owner or operator who takes exception to the ruling of an inspector before such ruling or before the penalty provided for in subsection 1 of this section is enforced as the case may be, may have the facts upon which such ruling is based submitted to the Minister for his consideration and decision.

20. Every person who enters without permission or lawful authority or otherwise trespasses upon any factory or magazine shall, for every offence, be liable to a penalty, not exceeding fifty dollars and costs, and may be forthwith removed from such factory or magazine by any constable or by any person employed at such factory or magazine.

21. Every person who commits any act which is likely to cause an explosion or fire in or about any factory or magazine, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and costs, or to imprisonment not exceeding six months, or to both such fine and imprisonment.

22. Every person who, by himself or his agent, has in his possession, sells, offers for sale or manufactures or imports any unauthorized explosive within the meaning of this Act, shall for a first offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or to both fine and imprisonment, and for each subsequent offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and costs and not less than fifty dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

23. Every person who violates any provision of this Act for which a penalty has not been provided, or any regulation made thereunder, shall, for the first offence, incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and costs, and for each subsequent offence a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and costs.

24. Any official employed under this Act who without due authority from the Department discloses any confidential information shall on summary conviction be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months and shall not thereafter be eligible for employment in the service of His Majesty.

25. Every penalty and forfeiture may be recovered in a summary manner under the provisions of Part XV of the Criminal Code.

26. Nothing in this Act shall relieve any person of the obligation to comply with the requirements of any license law, or other law or by-law of any province or municipality, lawfully enacted, with regard to the storage, handling, sale or other dealing with explosives, nor of any liability or penalty imposed by such law or by-law for any violation thereof.

Commencement of Act.

27. This Act shall come into force on a day to be fixed by proclamation of the Governor in Council.

Pilots and Apprentices in Pilotage District of Quebec—Powers of Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Chapter 48.—1. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries subject to the provisions of the Canada Shipping Act, shall have charge of the examination, licensing, control and management of the pilots and pilot apprentices, and the control and management of pilot schooners, boats and other vessels for the pilotage district of Quebec; of all questions respecting pilotage arising in connection with such district, and of the collection of pilotage dues in respect of such district; and all powers vested in the Corporation of Pilots for and below the harbour of Quebec, under the provisions of Part VI of the Canada Shipping Act,<sup>1</sup> with respect to such matters, are hereby transferred to and vested in the said Minister.

2. All the powers of the Corporation of Pilots for and below the harbour of Quebec with respect to the examination, management and control of pilots and pilot apprentices, and the control and management of pilot schooners, boats and other vessels, the collection of pilotage dues, and the management and control of pilotage, are hereby repealed.

3. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect any power now possessed by the said corporation in connection with the management and disposal of the pilot pension fund: Provided that any such power shall be exercised subject to such supervision as has been heretofore exercised by the Minister.

Workmen's Compensation.

Chapter 15 with amendment.—1. (1) An employee in the service of His Majesty who is injured and the dependants of any such employee who is killed, shall be entitled to the same compensation as the employee, or as the dependant of a deceased employee, of a person other than His Majesty would, under similar circumstances, be entitled to receive under the law of the province in which the accident occurred, and the liability for and the amount of such compensation shall be determined in the same manner and by the same Boards, officers or authority as that established by the law of the province for determining compensation in similar cases, or by such other Board, officers or authority or by such court as the Governor in Council shall from time to time direct.

(2) Any compensation awarded to any employee or the dependants of any deceased employee of His Majesty by any Board, officer or authority, or by any court, under the authority of this Act, shall be paid to such employee or dependant or to such person as the Board, officer, or authority or the court may direct, and the said Board, officer, authority and court shall have the same jurisdiction to award costs as in cases between private parties is conferred by the law of the province where the accident occurred.

(3) Any compensation or costs awarded hereunder may be paid by the Minister of Finance out of any unappropriated moneys in the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada; or the Minister of Finance may from time to time take such amount of money as may be authorized by the Governor in Council from the Consolidated Revenue Fund and deposit such money with the Board, officers, authority or court authorized by the law of any province to determine compensation cases, from which deposit such Board, officers, authority or court may pay any compensation and costs awarded under the provisions of this Act. In any province where the general administration expenses of maintaining such Board, officers or other authority or court are paid by the province or by contributions from employers, or by both, the Minister of Finance may pay out of any unappropriated money in the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada such portion of such expenses as is fair and reasonable and is authorized by the Governor in Council. 1919, c. 14, s. 1.

(4) Provided that no employee on the Canadian Government Railways who is an employee within the meaning of the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways Employees Provident Fund Act, and becomes permanently disabled from following his usual occupation in the service, as a result of injuries received while on duty and actually at work in the service, shall be entitled to receive compensation, under the provisions of this Act, for such injuries, unless he elects to accept prior or subsequent to the injuries such compensation in lieu of the allowance payable under the provisions of the Provident Fund Act, section twelve, Class D, and gives notice in writing of such election both to the management of the Railways and to the Provident Fund Board: Provided, however, that the dependants of any such employee who has been or is killed subsequently to the twenty-fourth day of May, 1918, and who has not elected to accept compensation under this Act as aforesaid, shall nevertheless be entitled to compensation under this Act as though such employee had so elected. 1919, c. 14, s. 1.

2. The Governor in Council may make regulations as to the title of the defendant and the effecting of service of process in proceedings under this Act.

Employment Offices.

Chapter 21 with amendment.—1. This Act may be cited as The Employment Offices Co-ordination Act.

2. In this Act and in any regulation made thereunder, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Minister" means the Minister of Labour;

(b) "Employment office" means an employment office, or any division of an employment office, operated by any provincial government, or any other employment office, or division of an employment office, approved by the Governor in Council, 1920, c. 25, s. 1.

(c) "Employer" includes a person seeking employees;

(d) "Employee" includes a person seeking employment.

3. The Minister is authorized and empowered,—

(a) to aid and encourage the organization and co-ordination of employment offices and to promote uniformity of methods among them;

(b) to establish one or more clearing houses for the interchange of information between employment offices concerning the transfer of labour and other matters;

(c) to compile and distribute information received from employment offices and from other sources, regarding prevailing conditions of employment.

(d) to require any person or firm to make a written return of such information as may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this Act or of any regulation made by authority of this Act, under penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than ten dollars, for each refusal or neglect to answer or wilfully false answer, 1920, c. 25, s. 2.

4. For the purposes of such organization and co-ordination, and subject to the conditions set forth in section 7, the following sums shall be appropriated and paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada during each fiscal year beginning with the fiscal year beginning the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, namely:—

During the fiscal year beginning the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and eighteen the sum of fifty thousand dollars;

During the fiscal year beginning the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars;

During each succeeding fiscal year the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

5. The moneys appropriated for each year shall be allotted and paid to the governments of the respective provinces in the proportion which their expenditure for the maintenance of employment offices bears to the total of the expenditures of all the provinces for such purposes, but in no case shall the allotment to any province exceed one half the amount expended for the maintenance of employment offices by such province.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in subsection one of this section, the Minister may in any year set aside from the moneys allotted to a province such sum as may seem desirable for the maintenance of employment offices, where none are operated by the provincial government, provided that, before any such employment office is assisted under this Act the Minister shall be satisfied that the provincial government concerned does not propose to establish employment offices in accordance with this Act within a reasonable time, and provided further that the sum so set aside shall be allotted to such employment offices, but in no case shall the allotment exceed one half of the amount expended for the maintenance of such offices, 1920, c. 25, s. 3.

6. The payments hereinbefore authorized shall, as to each province, be conditional upon agreement between the Minister and the government of the province as to the terms, conditions and purposes within the meaning of this Act upon and for which the payments are to be made and applied, and upon such agreement being approved by the Governor in Council.

7. In any agreement so made the following conditions respecting the operation of employment offices may be stated:—

(a) That the offices shall endeavour to fill situations in all trades and for both male and female employees;

(b) That the offices shall make such returns and submit to such inspection as the Minister may require.

8. Such officers shall be appointed as are required for carrying out the provisions of this Act, and for such inspection, examination and report as are necessary to ensure the expenditure of the moneys paid in accordance with the intention of this Act and the agreements and regulations made under its authority. Such appointments shall be made under the provisions of the laws relating to the civil service, and the salaries and expenses of such officers shall be paid out of the moneys appropriated by Parliament for that purpose.

9. The Minister shall annually lay before Parliament during the first ten days of the session, a report of all proceedings, under this Act for the last preceding fiscal year, which report shall contain a statement of the moneys expended, the purposes to which they have been applied and the work done by the several provinces in the earning of the subsidies paid or authorized to be paid.

10. The Minister may make any regulations not inconsistent with this Act which he may deem necessary or convenient for carrying this Act into effect, subject to the approval of the Governor in Council.

Labour Statistics.

[Chapter 43, The Statistics Act, establishes a Dominion Bureau of Statistics under the Minister of Trade and Commerce. Although the Act as a whole does not fall under the title of labour legislation, certain sections have a bearing on the collection of statistical data in the labour field. These sections read as follows:—]

3. There shall be a bureau under the Minister of Trade and Commerce, to be called the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the duties of which shall be to collect, abstract, compile and publish statistical information relative to the commercial, industrial, social, economic and general activities and condition of the people, to collaborate with all other departments of the Government in the compilation and publication of statistical records of administration according to the regulations, and to take the Census of the Dominion as hereinafter provided.

21. (1) The Dominion Statistician shall under the direction of the Minister, prepare a form for the collection of such data as may be, in his judgement, desirable for the proper presentation of industrial statistics, and the said form shall embody inquiries as to (1) the name of person, partnership or corporation; (2) kind of goods manufactured or business done; (3) capital invested; (4) principal stock or raw materials used, and total value thereof; (5) gross quantity and value of articles manufactured; (6) number of persons employed, distinguished as to sex, adults and children; (7) the power used or generated, (8) total wages and salaries paid; (9) number of days on which it was carried on; and (10) any other specified matter.

(2) The said schedule shall be sent by mail to the owner, operator or manager of each industrial concern with respect to which information is desired, and such owner, operator or manager, or any other person to whom this schedule or blank form is sent shall answer the inquiries thereon and return the same to the Bureau, properly certified as to its accuracy, not later than the time prescribed thereon, provided, however, that the Minister may, in his discretion, extend the time for returning the schedules, and provided that when deemed expedient, the Minister may employ agents or other persons for the collection of these statistics.

37. Every person who, without lawful excuse,—

(a) refuses or neglects to answer, or wilfully answers falsely, any question requisite for obtaining any information sought in respect of the objects of this Act or any regulation, or pertinent thereto, which has been asked of him by any person employed in the execution of any duty under this Act or any regulation; or shall, for every such refusal or neglect, or false answer or deception, be guilty of an offence and liable, upon summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than twenty dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months and not less than thirty days, or to both fine and imprisonment.

(b) refuses or neglects to furnish any information or to fill up to the best of his knowledge and belief any schedule or form which he has been required to fill up, and to return the same when and as required of him under this Act or any regulation, or wilfully gives false information or practises any other deception thereunder;

38. Every person who has the custody or charge of any provincial, municipal or other public records or documents, or of any records or documents of any corporation, from which information sought in respect of the objects of this Act or any regulation can be obtained, or which would aid in the completion or correction thereof, who wilfully or without lawful excuse refuses or neglects to grant access thereto to any census officer, commissioner, enumerator, agent or other person deputed for that purpose by the Dominion Statistician, and every person who wilfully hinders or seeks to prevent or obstruct such access, or otherwise in any way wilfully obstructs or seeks to obstruct any person employed in the execution of any duty under this Act or any regulation, is guilty of an offence and shall be liable, upon summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding three hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months and not less than one month, or to both fine and imprisonment.

STATUTES OF 1919.

Public Health.

Chapter 24.—1. This Act may be cited as The Department of Health Act.

2. There shall be a Department of the Government of Canada which shall be called "The Department of Health," over which a Minister of the Crown to be named by the Governor in Council shall preside.

4. The duties and powers of the Minister administering the Department of Health shall extend to and include all matters and questions relating to the promotion or preservation of the health of the people of Canada over which the Parliament of Canada has jurisdiction; and, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, particularly the following matters and subjects:—

(a) Co-operation with the provincial, territorial, and other health authorities with a view to the co-ordination of the efforts proposed or made for preserving and improving the public health, the conservation of child life and the promotion of child welfare;

(b) The establishment and maintenance of a national laboratory for public health and research work;

(c) The inspection and medical care of immigrants and seamen, and the administration of Marine Hospitals;

(d) The supervision, as regards the public health, of railways, boats, ships and all methods of transportation;

(e) The supervision of Federal public buildings and offices, with a view to conserving and promoting the health of the Civil Servants and other Government employees therein;

(g) The administration of the statutes mentioned in the Schedule to this Act, and of Acts amending the same, and also of all orders and regulations passed or made under any of the said Acts; and all the duties and powers of any Minister of the Crown under either of the said Acts or any of the said orders or regulations, are hereby transferred to and conferred upon the Minister of Health;

(h) Subject to the provisions of The Statistics Act, the collection, publication and distribution of information relating to the public health, improved sanitation and the social and industrial conditions affecting the health and lives of the people;

(i) Such other matters relating to health as may be referred to the Department by the Governor in Council.

5. The Governor in Council shall have power to make such regulations as may be necessary to give effect to and carry out the objects of this Act, and to impose penalties for any violation of such regulations.

7. Nothing in this Act or in any regulation made thereunder shall authorize the Minister or any officer of the Department to exercise any jurisdiction or control over any Provincial or Municipal Board of Health or other health authority operating under the laws of any province.

(Schedule omitted.)

Unlawful Associations.

Chapter 46.—1. The following sections are inserted immediately after section ninety-seven of the Criminal Code, chapter one hundred and forty-six of the Revised Statutes of Canada:—

97a. (1) Any association, organization, society or corporation, whose professed purpose or one of whose purposes is to bring about any governmental, industrial or economic change within Canada by use of force, violence or physical injury to person or property, or by threats of such injury, or which teaches, advocates, advises or defends the use of force, violence, terrorism, or physical injury to person or property, or threat of such injury, in order to accomplish such change, or for any other purpose, or which shall by any means prosecute or pursue such purpose or professed purpose, or shall so teach, advocate, advise or defend, shall be an unlawful association.

(2) Any property, real or personal, belonging or suspected to belong to an unlawful association, or held or suspected to be held by any person for or on behalf thereof may, without warrant, be seized or taken possession of by any person thereunto authorized by the Chief Commissioner of Dominion Police or by the Commissioner of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, and may thereupon be forfeited to His Majesty.

(3) Any person who acts or professes to act as an officer of any such unlawful association, and who shall sell, speak, write or publish anything as the representative or professed representative of any such unlawful association, or become and continue to be a member thereof, or wear, carry or cause to be displayed upon or about his person or elsewhere, any badge, insignia, emblem, banner, motto, pennant, card button or other device whatsoever indicating or intended to show or suggest that he is a member of or in anywise associated with any such unlawful association, or who shall contribute anything as dues or otherwise, to it or to any one for it, or who shall solicit subscriptions or contributions for it, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for not more than twenty years.

(4) In any prosecution under this section, if it be proved that the person charged has,—
 (a) attended meetings of an unlawful association; or,
 (b) spoken publicly in advocacy of an unlawful association; or,
 (c) distributed literature of an unlawful association by circulation through the Post Office mails of Canada, or otherwise; it shall be presumed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that he is a member of such unlawful association.

(5) Any owner, lessee, agent or superintendent of any building, room, premises or place, who knowingly permits therein any meeting of an unlawful association or any subsidiary association or branch or committee thereof, or any assemblage of persons who teach, advocate, advise or defend the use, without authority of the law, of force, violence or physical injury to person or property, or threats of such injury, shall be guilty of an offence under this section and shall be liable to a fine of not more than five thousand dollars or to imprisonment for not more than five years, or to both fine and imprisonment.

(6) If any judge of any superior or county court, police or stipendiary magistrate, or any justice of the peace, is satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable ground for suspecting that any contravention of this section has been or is about to be committed, he may issue a search warrant under his hand, authorizing any peace officer, police officer, or constable, with such assistance as he may require, to enter at any time any premises or place mentioned in the warrant, and to search such premises or place, and every person found therein, and to seize and carry away any books, periodicals, pamphlets, pictures, papers, circulars, cards, letters, writings, prints, handbills, posters, publications or documents which are found on or in such premises or place, or in the possession of any person therein at the time of such search, and the same, when so seized may be carried away and may be forfeited to His Majesty.

(7) Where, by this section, it is provided that any property may be forfeited to His Majesty, the forfeiture may be adjudged or declared by any judge of any superior or county court, or by any police or stipendiary magistrate, or any justice of the peace in a summary manner, and by the procedure provided by Part XV of this Act, in so far as applicable, or subject to such adaptations as may be necessary to meet the circumstances of the case.

97b. (1) Any person who prints, publishes, edits, issues, circulates, sells, or offers for sale or distribution any book, newspaper, periodical, pamphlet, picture, paper, circular, card, letter, writing, print, publication or document of any kind, in which is taught, advocated, advised or defended, or who shall in any manner teach, advocate, or advise or defend the use, without authority of law, of force, violence, terrorism, or physical injury to person or property, or threats of such injury, as a means of accomplishing any governmental, industrial or economic change, or otherwise, shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for not more than twenty years.

(2) Any person who circulates or attempts to circulate or distribute any book, newspaper, periodical pamphlet, picture, paper, circular, card, letter, writing, print, publication, or document of any kind, as described in this section by mailing the same or causing the same to be mailed or posted in any Post Office, letter box, or other mail receptacle in Canada, shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be liable to imprisonment for not more than twenty years.

(3) Any person who imports into Canada from any other country, or attempts to import by or through any means whatsoever, any book, newspaper, periodical, pamphlet, picture, paper, circular, card, letter, writing, print, publication or document of any kind as described in this section, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable to imprisonment for not more than twenty years.

(4) It shall be the duty of every person in the employment of His Majesty in respect of His Government of Canada, either in the Post Office Department, or in any other Department to seize and take possession of any book, newspaper, periodical, pamphlet, picture, paper, circular, card, letter, writing, print, publication or document, as mentioned in the last preceding section, upon discovery of the same in the Post Office mails of Canada or in or upon any station, wharf, yard, car, truck, motor or other vehicle, steamboat or other vessel upon which the same may be found and when so seized and taken, without delay to transmit the same, together with the envelopes, coverings and wrappings attached thereto, to the Chief Commissioner of Dominion Police, or to the Commissioner of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Employees' Pension Fund not Taxable.

Chapter 55.—[Section three of the Income War Tax Act is amended by adding thereto the following subsection:—]

(7) Any part of the remuneration of a taxpayer retained by his employer in connection with an employee's superannuation or pension fund or plan shall be allowed as an exemption or deduction from the income of the taxpayer for income tax purposes, and any payment to an employee out of such fund or plan shall be included as taxable income of the employee.

Railways—Definition of Terms.

Chapter 68, with amendment-2. In this Act, and in any special Act as hereinafter defined in so far as this Act applies, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(1) "Board" means the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada;

(2) "By-law," when referring to an act of the company, includes a resolution;

(4) "Company" includes a person, and where not otherwise stated or implied means "railway company," unless immediately preceded by "any," "every" or "all," in which case it means every kind of company which the context will permit of; and "railway company" or "company" when it means or includes "railway company,"—

(a) includes every such company and any person having authority to construct or operate a railway.

(11) "Highway" includes any public road, street, lane or other public way or communication;

(12) "Inspecting engineer" means an engineer who is directed by the Minister, or by the Board, to examine any railway or works, and includes two or more engineers, when two or more are so directed;

(17) "Minister" means the Minister of Railways and Canals;

(21) "Railway" means any railway which the company has authority to construct or operate and includes all branches, extensions, sidings, stations, depots, wharves, rolling stock, equipment, stores, property, real or personal, and works connected therewith, and also any railway bridge, tunnel or other structure which the company is authorized to construct; and, except where the context is inapplicable, includes street railway and tramway;

(25) "Rolling stock" means and includes any locomotive, engine, motor car, tender, snow-plough, flanger, and every description of car or of railway equipment designed for movement on its wheels, over or upon the rails or tracks of the company;

(28) "Special Act," when used with reference to a railway, means any Act under which the company has authority to construct or operate a railway, or which is enacted with special reference to such railway, whether heretofore or hereafter passed, and includes,—

(a) all such Acts,

(b) with respect to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, The National Transcontinental Railway Act, and any amendments thereto, and any scheduled agreements therein referred to, and

(c) any letters patent, constituting a company's authority to construct or operate a railway, granted under any Act, and the Act under which such letters patent were granted or confirmed;

(34) "Train" includes any engine, locomotive or other rolling stock.

3. Except as in this Act otherwise provided,—

(a) this Act shall be construed as incorporate with the Special Act; and

(b) where the provisions of this Act and of any Special Act passed by the Parliament of Canada relate to the same subject-matter the provisions of the Special Act shall, in so far as is necessary to give effect to such Special Act, be taken to override the provisions of this Act.

4. If in any Special Act heretofore passed, it is enacted that any provision of any general railway Act in force at the time of the passing of such Special Act, is excepted from incorporation therewith, or if the application of any such provision is, by such Special Act, extended, limited or qualified, the provisions of this Act relating to the same subject-matter, shall, unless otherwise provided in this Act, be taken to be excepted, extended, limited, or qualified, in like manner.

Railways—Application of Act.

Chapter 68.—5. This Act shall, subject as herein provided, apply to all persons, railway companies and railways, within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada, whether heretofore or hereafter, and howsoever, incorporated or authorized, except Government railways, to which however it shall apply to such extent as is specified in any Act referring or relating thereto.

6. The provisions of this Act shall, without limiting the effect of the last preceding section, extend and apply to,—

(a) every railway company incorporated elsewhere than in Canada and owning, controlling, operating or running trains or rolling stock upon or over any line or lines of railway in Canada either owned, controlled, leased or operated by such company or companies, whether in either case such ownership, control, or operation is acquired by purchase, lease, agreement or by any other means whatsoever;

(b) every railway company operating or running trains from any point in the United States to any point in Canada.

(c) every railway or portion thereof, whether constructed under the authority of the Parliament of Canada or not, now or hereafter owned, controlled, leased, or operated by a company wholly or partly within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada, or by a company operating a railway wholly or partly within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada, whether such ownership, control, or first mentioned operation is acquired or exercised by purchase, lease, agreement or other means whatsoever, and whether acquired or exercised under authority of the Parliament of Canada, or of the Legislature of any province, or otherwise howsoever; and every railway or portion thereof, now or hereafter so owned, controlled, leased or operated shall be deemed and is hereby declared to be a work for the general advantage of Canada.

(2) The provisions of paragraph (c) of this section shall be deemed not to include or apply to any street railway, electric suburban railway or tramway constructed under the authority of a provincial Legislature, and which has not been declared to be a work for the general advantage of Canada otherwise than by the provisions of the said paragraph. Provided that this subsection shall not affect or come into force with respect to any street railway, electric suburban railway or tramway in the province of British Columbia until the expiration of one year from the passing of this Act. 1920, c. 65, s. 1.

7. Where any railway, the construction or operation of which is authorized by a Special Act passed by the Legislature of any province, is declared, by any Act of the Parliament of Canada, to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, this Act shall apply to such railway, and to the company constructing or operating the same, to the exclusion of such of the provisions of the said Special Act as are inconsistent with this Act, and in lieu of any general railway Act of the province.

8. Every railway, the construction or operation of which is authorized by Special Act of the Legislature of any province and which connects with or crosses or may hereafter connect with or cross any railway within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada, shall, although not declared by Parliament to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, be subject to the provisions of this Act relating to,—

(a) the connection or crossing of one railway with or by another, so far as concerns the aforesaid connection or crossing;

(b) criminal matters, including offences and penalties; and,

(c) navigable waters.

Railways—Change of Divisional Point—Compensation to Employees.

Chapter 68.—179. The company shall not, at any time,— . . . . . remove, close, or abandon any station, or divisional point or create a new divisional point which would involve the removal of employees, without leave of the Board; and where any such change is made the company shall compensate its employees as the Board deems proper for any financial loss caused to them by change of residence necessitated thereby.

Fair Wages for Railway Employees.

Chapter 68.—244. (1) In every case in which the Parliament of Canada votes financial aid by way of subsidy or guarantee towards the cost of railway construction, all mechanics, labourers or other persons who perform labour in such construction shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the district in which the work is being performed; and if there is no current rate in such district, then a fair and reasonable rate.

(2) In the event of a dispute arising as to what is the current or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Minister, whose decision shall be final.

Railway Bridges, Tunnels, etc.

Chapter 68.—250. (1) Every bridge, tunnel or other erection or structure, over, through or under which any railway passes, shall be so constructed and maintained as to afford, at all times, an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight car used on the railway and the lowest beams, members, or portions of that part of such bridge, tunnel, erection or structure, which is directly over the space liable to be traversed by such car in passing thereunder.

(2) The Board may, if necessary, require any existing bridge, tunnel, or other erection or structure to be reconstructed or altered, within such time as it may order, so as to comply with the requirements mentioned in the last preceding subsection; and any such bridge, tunnel, or other erection or structure, when so reconstructed or altered shall thereafter be maintained accordingly.

(3) Except by leave of the Board the space between the rail level and such beams, members or portions of any such structure, constructed after the first day of February, one thousand nine hundred and four, shall in no case be less than twenty-two feet six inches.

(4) If, in any case, it is necessary to raise, reconstruct or alter any bridge, tunnel, erection or structure not owned by the company, the Board, upon application of the company, and upon notice to all parties interested, or without any application, may make such order, allowing or requiring such raising, reconstruction or alteration, and upon such terms and conditions as to the Board shall appear just and proper and in the public interest.

(5) The Board may exempt from the operation of this section any bridge, tunnel, erection or structure, over, through or under which it is satisfied no trains, except such as are equipped with air brakes, are run.

Safety Provisions—Packing.

Chapter 68.—282. (1) The spaces behind and in front of every railway frog or crossing, and between the fixed rails of every switch, where such spaces are less than four inches in width, shall be filled with packing up to the under side of the head of the rail.

(2) The spaces between any wing rail and any railway frog, and between any guard rail and the track alongside of it, shall be filled with packing at their splayed ends, so that the whole splay shall be so filled where the width of the space between the rails is less than four inches.

(3) Such packing shall not reach higher than to the under side of the head of the rail.

(4) Such packing shall consist of wood or metal, or some equally substantial and solid material, of not less than two inches in thickness, and, where by this section any space is required to be filled in on any railway, shall extend to within one and a half inches of the crown of the rails in use, shall be neatly fitted so as to come against the web of such rails, and shall be well and solidly fastened to the ties on which such rails are laid: Provided that if there is at any time any method of packing which, in the opinion of the Board, is an improvement over the present requirements, the Board, after hearing on notice, may authorize or direct the use of such improved method.

Inspection of Railways.

Chapter 68.—283. (1) Whenever any complaint is made to the Board, or the Board receives information, that any railway, or any portion thereof, is dangerous to the public using the same, from want of renewal or repair, or insufficient or erroneous construction, or from any other cause, or whenever circumstances arise which, in its opinion, render it expedient, the Board may direct an inspecting engineer to examine the railway, or any portion thereof.

(2) The Board may, upon the report of the inspecting engineer, order any repairs, renewal, reconstruction, alteration or new work, materials or equipment to be made, done or furnished by the company upon, in addition to, or substitution for, any portion of the railway, which may, from such report, appear to the Board necessary or proper, and may order that until such repairs, renewals, reconstruction, alteration, and work, materials or equipment are made, done and furnished to its satisfaction, no portion of the railway in respect of which such order is made, shall be used, or used otherwise than subject to such restrictions, conditions and terms as the Board may in such order impose.

(3) The Board may by such order condemn and thereby forbid further use of any rolling stock which, from such report, it may consider unfit to repair or use.

284. (1) If in the opinion of any inspecting engineer, it is dangerous for trains to pass over any railway, or any portion thereof, until alterations, substitutions or repairs are made thereon, or that any of the rolling stock should be run or used, the said engineer may, by notice, in writing,—

(a) forthwith forbid the running of any train over such railway or portion of railway; or
(b) require that the same be run only at such times, under such conditions, and with such precautions, as he by such notice specifies; and,

(c) forbid the running or using of any such rolling stock.

(2) Such notice shall state the reasons for such opinion of the inspecting engineer, and distinctly point out the defects or the nature of the danger to be apprehended.

(3) The notice may be served upon the company owning, running, or using such railway or rolling stock, or upon any officer having the management or control of the running of trains upon the railway, or the management or control of the rolling stock.

(4) The inspecting engineer shall forthwith report such notice to the Board, which may either confirm, modify or disallow the act or order of such engineer.

(5) Notice of such confirmation, modification or disallowance, shall be duly given to the company.

Accidents on Railways.

Chapter 68.—285. (1) Every company shall, as soon as possible and immediately after the head officers of the company have received information of the occurrence upon the railway belonging to such company, of any accident attended with personal injury to any person using the railway, or to any employee of the company, or whereby any bridge, culvert, viaduct, or tunnel on or of the railway has been broken or so damaged as to be impassable or unfit for immediate use, give notice thereof, with full particulars to the Board. The conductor or other employee in charge of the train, place, or structure in connection with which such accident occurred, shall as soon as possible after such accident notify the Board of the same by telegraph.

(2) The Board may by regulation declare the manner and form in which such information and notice shall be given, and the class of accidents to which this section shall apply, and may declare any such information so given to be privileged.

286. (1) The Board may appoint such person or persons as it thinks fit to inquire into all matters and things which it deems likely to cause or prevent accidents, and the causes of and the circumstances connected with any accident or casualty to life or property occurring on any railway, and into all particulars relating thereto.

(2) The person or persons so appointed shall report fully in writing, to the Board, his or their doings and opinions on the matters respecting which he or they are appointed to inquire, and the Board may act upon such report and may order the company to suspend or dismiss any employee of the company whom it may deem to have been negligent or wilful in respect of any such accident.

Protection of Railway Employees—Power of Board to make Regulations.

Chapter 68.—287. (1) The Board may make orders and regulations,—

(c) with respect to the method and means of passing from one car to another, either inside or overhead, and for the safety of railway employees while passing from one car to another;

(d) for the coupling of cars;

(e) requiring proper shelter to be provided for all railway employees when on duty;

(g) with respect to the rolling stock, apparatus, cattle-guards, appliances, signals, methods, devices, structures and works, including light, heat and power lines or wires, to be used upon the railway, so as to provide means for the due protection of property, the employees of the company, and the public and all persons travelling on His Majesty's service;

(h) with respect to the length of sections required to be kept in repair by employees of the company, and with respect to the number of employees required for each section, so as to ensure safety to the public and to employees;

(i) designating the number of men to be employed upon trains, with a view to the safety of the public and of employees;

(j) limiting or regulating the hours of duty of any employees or class or classes of employees with a view to the safety of the public and of employees;

(l) generally providing for the protection of property, and the protection, safety, accommodation and comfort of the public, and of the employees of the company, in the running and operating of trains and the speed thereof, or the use of engines, by the company or on or in connection with the railway.

(2) Any orders or regulations under this section may be made applicable during or after the construction of the railway, or during such time, and in such manner, as the Board deems proper.<sup>1</sup>

288. The Board shall endeavour to provide for uniformity in the construction of rolling stock to be used upon the railway, and for uniformity of rules for the operation and running of trains.

Wages of Railway Employees Payable Semi-Monthly.

Chapter 68.—289. The salary or wages of every person employed in the operation, maintenance or equipment of any railway to which the Parliament of Canada has granted aid by means of subsidy or guarantee shall be paid not less frequently than semi-monthly during the term of employment of such person.

Rules for Railway Employees.

Chapter 68.—290. The company may, subject to the provisions and restrictions in this and in the Special Act contained, and subject to any orders or regulations of the Board made under sections two hundred and eighty-seven and two hundred and eighty-eight, make by-laws, rules, or regulations respecting,—

(f) the travelling upon, or the using or working of the railway;

(g) the employment and conduct of the officers and employees of the company.

291. The company may, for the better enforcing of the observance of any such by-law, rule or regulation, thereby prescribe a penalty enforceable on summary conviction not exceeding forty dollars for any violation thereof.

292. All by-laws, rules, and regulations, whether made by the directors or the company, shall be reduced to writing, be signed by the chairman or person presiding at the meeting at which they are adopted, have affixed thereto the common seal of the company, and be kept in the office of the company.

293. (1) All such by-laws, rules and regulations, except such as relate to tolls and such as are of a private or domestic nature and do not affect the public generally, shall be submitted to the Governor in Council for approval.

(2) The Board shall make a report to the Governor in Council upon such by-laws, rules and regulations, and the Governor in Council may thereupon sanction such by-laws, rules and regulations or any of them, or any part thereof, and may, from time to time, rescind the sanction thereof, or of any part thereof.

(3) No such by-law, rule or regulation shall have any force or effect without such sanction or after such sanction has been rescinded.

294. Such by-laws, rules and regulations when so approved shall be binding upon, and shall be observed by all persons, and shall be sufficient to justify all persons acting thereunder.

295. (2) A printed copy of so much of any by-law, rule or regulation as relates to the conduct of or affects the officers or employees of the company, shall be given to every officer and employee of the company thereby affected.

(3) In the province of Quebec, every such notice, by-law, rule and regulation shall be published both in the English and French languages.

296. If the violation or non-observance of any by-law, rule or regulation, is attended with danger or annoyance to the public, or hindrance to the company, in the lawful use of the railway, the company may summarily interfere, using reasonable force if necessary, to prevent such violation, or to enforce observance, without prejudice to any penalty incurred in respect thereof.

Operation of Trains—Safety Appliances.

Chapter 68.—298. (1) Every railway company shall provide and cause to be used on all trains modern and efficient apparatus, appliances and means,—

(a) to provide immediate communication between the conductor while in any car of any passenger train, and the engine driver;

(b) to check at will the speed of the train, and bring the same safely to a standstill, as expeditiously as possible, and, except under circumstances of sudden danger or emergency without causing undue discomfort to passengers, if any, on the train; and,

(c) to securely couple and connect the cars composing the train, and to attach the engine to such train, with couplers which couple automatically by impact, and which can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going in between the ends of cars.

2. Such apparatus, appliances and means for the checking of speed or the stopping of any train shall include a power drive wheel brake and appliances for operating the train brake system upon the locomotive.

(3) There shall also be such a number of cars in every train equipped with power or train brakes that the engineer on the locomotive drawing such train can control its speed, or bring the train to a stop in the quickest and best manner possible, without requiring brakemen to use the common hand brake for that purpose.

(4) Upon all trains carrying passengers such system of brakes shall be continuous, instantaneous in action, and capable of being applied at will by the engine driver or any brakeman, and the brakes must be self-applying in the event of any failure in the continuity of their action.

(5) All box freight cars of the company shall, for the security of railway employees, be equipped with,—

(a) outside ladders, on two of the diagonally opposite ends and sides of each car, projecting below the frame of the car, with one step or rung of each ladder below the frame, the ladders being placed close to the ends and sides to which they are attached; and,

(b) hand grips placed anglewise over the ladders of each box car and so arranged as to assist persons in climbing on the roof by means of the ladders: Provided that, if there is at any time any other improved side attachment which, in the opinion of the Board, is better calculated to promote the safety of the train hands, the Board may require any of such cars not already fitted with the side attachments by this section required, to be fitted with the said improved attachment.

(6) Every railway company shall adopt and use upon all its rolling stock such height of draw-bars as the Board determines, in accordance with any standard from time to time adopted by competent railway authorities.

(7) The Board may upon good cause shown, by general regulation, or in any particular case, from time to time grant delay for complying with the provisions of this section.

299. The Board may, by general regulation or upon application in any particular case, after hearing on notice, order that any apparatus or appliances specified in such regulation or order shall or shall not be deemed sufficient compliance with the provisions of the last preceding section, or that any apparatus or appliances specified in such regulation or order shall or shall not, when used upon the train in the manner and under the circumstances in such regulation or order specified, be deemed sufficient compliance with the provisions of the said section.

300. The oil cups or other appliances used for oiling the valves of every locomotive in use upon any railway shall be such that no employee shall be required to go outside the cab of the locomotive, while the same is in motion, for the purpose of oiling such valves.

301. Every locomotive engine shall be equipped and maintained with a bell of at least thirty pounds weight and with a steam whistle.

Transportation of Explosives.

[Chapter 68, sections 349, 350, 432, 433, deals with the transportation of explosives.]

Railway Employees to Wear Badges.

Chapter 68.—353. Every employee of the company employed in a passenger train or at a passenger station shall wear upon his hat or cap a badge which shall indicate his office, and he shall not, without such badge, be entitled to demand or receive from any passenger any fare or ticket, or to exercise any of the powers of his office, or to interfere with any passenger or his baggage or property.

Telegraphs Wires, etc., across Railways.

Chapter 68.—372. (1) Lines, wires, other conductors, or other structures or appliances for telegraphic or telephonic purposes, or for the conveyance of power or electricity for other purposes, shall not, without leave of the Board, except as provided in subsection (5) of this section, be constructed or maintained,—

(a) along or across a railway, by any company other than the railway company owning or controlling the railway; or

(b) across or near other such lines, wires, conductors, structures or appliances, which are within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada.

(2) Upon any application for such leave, the applicant shall submit to the Board a plan and profile of the part of the railway or other work proposed to be affected, showing the proposed location and the proposed works.

(3) The Board may grant the application and may order the extent to which, by whom, how, when, on what terms and conditions, and under what supervision, the proposed works may be executed.

(4) Upon such order being made the proposed works may be constructed and maintained subject to and in accordance with such order.

Returns of Railway Accidents.

Chapter 68.—381. (1) Every railway, telegraph, telephone and express company and every carrier by water shall annually, or more frequently if the Board so requires, make to the Board, under the oath of the president, secretary or superintendent of the company, or carrier, or of such other person as the Board may direct, a true and particular return of all accidents and casualties, whether to persons, or to animals or other property, which have occurred on the property or in connection with the operation of the undertaking of the company, or carrier, setting forth,—

(a) the causes and natures of such accidents and casualties;

(b) the points at which such accidents and casualties occurred, and whether by night or by day; and,

(c) the full extent of such accidents and casualties and all the particulars thereof.

(2) Such returns shall be made for the period beginning from the date to which the then last yearly returns made by the company or carrier extend, or, if no such returns have been previously made, from the commencement of the operation of the railway, or undertaking, and ending with the last day of December in the then current year.

(3) A duplicate copy of such returns, dated, signed and attested in manner aforesaid, shall be forwarded by such company or carrier to the Dominion Statistician within one month after the first day of February in each year.

(4) Every such company and every carrier by water shall also, when required by the Board, return a true copy of the existing by-laws of the company, or carrier, and of its rules and regulations for the management of the company or carrier, and of its railway, or of such other undertaking or business as it is authorized to carry on.

(5) The Board may order and direct the form in which such returns shall be made up.<sup>1</sup>

382. The Board may order and direct any railway company to make up and deliver to the Board, from time to time, in addition to the said periodical returns, returns of serious accidents occurring in the course of the public traffic upon the railway belonging to such company, whether attended with personal injury or not, in such form and manner as the Board deems necessary and requires for their information with a view to public safety.

383. All returns made in pursuance of any of the provisions of the four sections of this Act last preceding shall be privileged communications, and shall not be evidence in any court whatsoever, except in any prosecution for,—

(a) default in making such returns in accordance with the requirements of this Act;

(b) perjury in making any oath required by this Act in connection with such returns;

(c) forgery of any such return; or,

(d) signing any such returns knowing the same to be false.

Railways—Actions for Damages.

Chapter 68.—391. (1) All actions or suits for indemnity for any damages or injury sustained by reason of the construction or operation of the railway shall, and notwithstanding anything in any Special Act may, be commenced within two years next after the time when such supposed damage is sustained, or, if there is continuation of damage, within two years next after the doing or committing of such damage ceases, and not afterwards.

(2) Nothing in subsection one of this section shall apply to any action brought against the company upon any breach of contract, express or implied, for or relating to the carriage of any traffic, or to any action against the company for damages under the provisions of this Act respecting tolls.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in any Special Act or elsewhere contained, the pleadings in any action or suit against the company shall be governed by the law or rules of procedure of the court in which such action or suit is brought, and the company shall not, unless permitted by such law or rules, be entitled to plead the general issue.

(4) No inspection under or by the authority of this Act, and nothing in this Act and nothing done, ordered or directed, or required or provided for, or omitted to be done, ordered or directed or required or provided for, under or by virtue of the provisions of this Act, shall, except in so far as a compliance with the Act or with such order or direction, or requirement or provision, constitutes a justification for what would otherwise be wrongful, relieve, or be construed to relieve, any company of or from, or in anywise diminish or affect, any liability or responsibility resting upon it by law, either towards His Majesty or towards any person, or the wife or husband, parent or child, executor or administrator, tutor or curator, heir or personal representative, of any person, for anything done or omitted to be done by such company, or for any wrongful act, negligence or default, misfeasance, malfeasance, or nonfeasance, of such company.

Inspection of Railways—Penalties for Obstructing Inspecting Engineers.

Chapter 68.—393. (1) Every operator or officer employed in any telegraph office of the company, or under the control of the company, who neglects or refuses to obey, without unnecessary delay, all orders of any inspecting engineer for the transmission of messages shall, for every such offence, be liable on summary conviction to a penalty of forty dollars.

(2) Every person who wilfully obstructs any inspecting engineer in the execution of his duties shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding forty dollars, and, in default of payment thereof forthwith, or within such time as the convicting justice appoints, to imprisonment with or without hard labour for any term not exceeding three months.

Failure to give Notice of Railway Accidents.

Chapter 68.—400. Every railway company which fails or neglects to comply with any direction of the Governor in Council, given upon report of the Board, requiring such company within such time as the Governor in Council directs, to construct fixed and permanent bridges, or swing, draw or movable bridges, or to substitute any of such bridges for bridges existing on the line of the company's railway, shall, for every day after the expiration of the period so fixed, during which the company fails or neglects to comply with such direction, forfeit and pay to His Majesty the sum of two hundred dollars.

401. (a) If any bridge, tunnel or other erection or structure over, through or under which any railway passes is not so constructed, or reconstructed or altered, within such time as the Board may order, and thereafter so maintained, as to afford at all times an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight car used on the railway and the lowest beams, members or portions of that part of such bridge, tunnel, erection or structure, which is directly over the space liable to be traversed by such car in passing thereunder; or,

(b) If, except by leave of the Board, the space between the rail level and such beams, members, or portions of any such structure, constructed after the first day of February, one thousand nine hundred and four, is in any case less than twenty-two feet six inches; the company or owner so constructing shall incur a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, for each day during which such company or owner wilfully refuses, neglects or omits to comply with the requirements of this Act, as to construction, reconstruction, alteration or maintenance, in this section mentioned; Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to any bridge, tunnel, erection or structure exempted by the Board from such requirements.

402. Every company which erects, operates or maintains any bridge, approach, tunnel, viaduct, trestle, or any building, erection or structure, in violation of this Act, or of any order or regulation of the Board, shall for each offence incur a penalty of fifty dollars.

Railway Bridges, Tunnels, etc.—Penalty for Non-Compliance with Orders of the Board.

Chapter 68.—410. (1) If any company refuses or neglects to comply with any order of the Board, made upon the report of the inspecting engineer, under the authority of this Act,—

(a) directing any repairs, renewals, reconstruction, alteration or new work, material or equipment to be made, done or furnished by the company upon, in addition to or in substitution for any portion of the railway; or,

(b) directing that, until such repairs, renewals, reconstruction, alteration and work, materials or equipment are made, done and furnished to the satisfaction of the Board, no portion of the railway in respect of which such order is made shall be used, or used otherwise than subject to certain restrictions, conditions and terms by such order imposed; or,

(c) condemning and forbidding further use of any rolling stock therein specified; the company shall for each such refusal or neglect forfeit to His Majesty the sum of two thousand dollars.

(2) Any person wilfully and knowingly aiding or abetting any such disobedience or non-compliance shall be liable therefor, upon conviction, to a penalty of not less than twenty dollars and not more than two hundred dollars.

(3) No prosecution for any penalty under this section shall be instituted without the authority of the Board first obtained.

Penalty for Operating Railway Contrary to Inspector's Orders.

Chapter 68.—411. If any railway company refuses or neglects to comply with any notice in writing of any inspecting engineer, given under the authority of this Act, and duly served upon the company, forbidding the running of any train over the railway of the company, or any portion thereof, or requiring that trains be run only at such times, under such conditions and with such precautions as specified in such notice, or forbidding the running or using of any rolling stock specified in the notice, such company shall forfeit to His Majesty the sum of two thousand dollars.

Chapter 68.—412. (1) Every railway company which wilfully or negligently omits to give immediate notice as by this Act required, with full particulars, to the Board of the occurrence upon the railway belonging to such company, of any accident attended with serious personal injury to any person using the railway, or to any employee of the company, or whereby any bridge, culvert, viaduct or tunnel on or of the railway has been broken, or so damaged as to be impassable or unfit for immediate use, shall forfeit to His Majesty the sum of two hundred dollars for every day during which the omission to give such notice continues.

(2) Every conductor or other employee who makes a report to the company of the occurrence of any such accident and fails, wilfully or negligently, to notify the Board of the same by telegraph as soon as possible after such accident, is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Safety Appliances—Penalty for Failure to Provide Proper Equipment.

Chapter 68.—414. Every railway company required by this Act,—

(a) to provide and cause to be used on its trains modern and efficient apparatus, appliances and means, or any apparatus, appliances and means in this Act specified, for the providing of communication between the conductor and the engine driver, or for the checking of the speed of any train or the bringing of the same expeditiously to a standstill, or for the secure coupling and connecting of the cars and the engine composing the train; or

(b) to equip its box freight cars, for the security of its employees, with outside ladders and hand-grips, or if the Board so requires, with any other improved side attachment required by the Board; or

(c) to adopt and use upon its rolling stock draw-bars of a height determined by the Board; which fails to comply with any requirement of this Act in that behalf shall forfeit to His Majesty a sum not exceeding two hundred dollars for every day during which such default continues.

Provisions for Safety of Public—Penalties for Negligence of Railway Employees.

Chapter 68.—416. Every officer or employee of any railway company who directs or knowingly permits any freight, merchandise or lumber car to be placed in any passenger train, in the rear of any passenger car in which any passenger is carried, is guilty of an indictable offence.

417. (1) A company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding four hundred dollars, if when the railway passes over any navigable water or canal by means of a draw or swing bridge which is subject to be opened for navigation, any train of the company upon such railway is not brought to a full stop before coming on or crossing over such bridge, or if such train thereafter proceeds before a proper signal has been given for that purpose.

(2) This section shall not apply in the case of any bridge over which, by order of the Board under the authority of this Act, engines and trains are permitted to pass without stopping.

418. Every employee of the company who fails to comply with the rules of the company made for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act with regard to the stopping of trains before crossing any such draw or swing bridge, or for preventing such trains from proceeding over any such bridge before a proper signal has been given for that purpose, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding four hundred dollars, or to six months' imprisonment, or to both.

419. (1) The company shall incur a penalty of eight dollars if, when any train of the company is approaching a highway crossing at rail level,—

(a) the engine whistle is not sounded at least eighty rods before reaching such crossing and,

(b) the bell is not rung continuously from the time of the sounding of the whistle until the engine has crossed the highway.

(2) The company shall also be liable for all damage sustained by any person by reason of any failure or neglect to so sound the whistle or ring the bell.

(3) Where a municipal by-law of a city or town prohibits such sounding of the whistle or such ringing of the bell in respect of any such crossing or crossings within the limits of such city or town, such by-law, if approved by order of the Board, shall, to the extent of such prohibition, relieve the company from any penalty or liability under this section.

420. Every employee of the company whose duty it is to sound the whistle or ring the bell at any such highway crossing, who neglects to perform such duty as required by this Act, shall for each offence incur a penalty of eight dollars.

Intoxication of Railway Employees.

Chapter 68.—423. Every conductor, locomotive engineer, train dispatcher, telegraph operator, station agent, switchman, signal man, bridge tender or any other person who is intoxicated, or under the influence of liquor, while on duty, in charge of or in any employment having to do with the movement of trains upon any railway, is guilty of an offence, and shall be punished by fine, not exceeding four hundred dollars, or imprisonment, not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court before which the conviction is had, and according as such court considers the offence proved to be more or less grave as causing injury to any person or property, or as exposing or likely to expose any person or property to injury, although no actual injury occurs.

424. Every person who sells, gives or barter any spirituous or intoxicating liquor to or with any servant or employee of any company, while on duty, is liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a period not exceeding one month, or to both.

Failure to make Returns of Railway Accidents.

Chapter 68.—438. Any railway, telegraph, telephone or express company that fails or neglects to deliver to the Dominion Statistician within the time provided in this Act or when required by the Board, and in the form ordered and directed by the Board, or specified in this Act,—

(a) a true and particular return of all accidents and casualties, whether to persons or to animals or other property, which have occurred on the property of the company, or in connection with the operation of the undertaking of the company, setting forth the particulars and verified in manner as by this Act, required; or,

(b) if required by the Board, a true copy of the existing by-laws of the company and of its rules and regulations for the management of the company and of its railway or such other undertaking or business as it is authorized to carry on, within fourteen days after having been so required by the Board; or,

(c) in the case of a railway company, any other or additional returns of serious accidents occurring in the course of the public traffic on the railway, if thereunto required with a view to public safety by the Board, within fourteen days after the same have been so required; shall forfeit to His Majesty the sum of one hundred dollars for every day during which the company so neglects to deliver such return.

Railways—Provincial Legislation regarding Sunday Trains.

Chapter 68.—456. (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, or in any other Act, every railway, situate wholly within one province of Canada and declared by the Parliament of Canada to be either wholly or in part a work for the general advantage of Canada, and every person employed thereon, in respect of such employment, and every person, company, corporation or municipality owning, controlling or operating the same wholly or partly, in respect of such ownership, control or operation, shall be subject to any Act of the Legislature of the province in which any such railway is situate which was in force on the tenth day of August, one thousand nine hundred and four, in so far as such Act prohibits or regulates work, business or labour upon the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday.

(2) Every such Act, in so far as it purports to prohibit, within the legislative authority of the province, work, business or labour upon the said first day of the week, is hereby ratified and confirmed and made as valid and effectual for the purposes of this section, as if it had been duly enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

(3) The Governor in Council may, by proclamation, confirm, for the purposes of this section, any Act of the Legislature of any province passed after the tenth day of August, one thousand nine hundred and four, in so far as such Act purports to prohibit or regulate, within the legislative authority of the province, work, business or labour upon the said first day of the week; and such Act shall, to the extent aforesaid, be by force of such proclamation, ratified and confirmed and made as valid and effectual for the purposes of this section, as if it had been enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

(4) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, or in any other Act, every railway wholly situate within the province, and which has been declared by the Parliament of Canada to be in whole or in part a work for the general advantage of Canada, and every person employed thereon, in respect of such employment, and every person, company, corporation or municipality owning, controlling, or operating the same wholly or partly in respect of such ownership, control or operation, shall, from and after such proclamation, be subject to such Act in so far as it has been so confirmed.

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply to any railway or part of a railway,—

- (a) which forms part of a continuous route or system operated between two or more provinces, or between any province and a foreign country, so as to interfere with or affect through traffic thereon; or,
- (b) between any of the ports on the Great Lakes and such continuous route or system, so as to interfere with or affect through traffic thereon; or,
- (c) which the Governor in Council by proclamation declares to be exempt from the provisions of this section.

Vocational Education.

Chapter 73 with amendment.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Technical Education Act."

2. In this Act the expression,—

- (a) "Minister" means the Minister of Labour;
- (b) "Province" means and includes each of the provinces of Canada, but not the Northwest Territories or the Yukon Territory;
- (c) "Technical Education" means and includes any form of vocational, technical or industrial education or instruction, approved by agreement between the Minister and the Government of any province as being necessary or desirable to aid in promoting industry and the mechanical trades, and to increase the earning capacity, efficiency and productive power of those employed therein.

3. This Act shall not apply to any province until the Government thereof has by Order in Council signified its desire to take advantage thereof.

4. (1) For the purpose of promoting and assisting technical education in Canada, the following sums, aggregating ten million dollars, shall be appropriated and paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada during each fiscal year for the period of ten years beginning with the year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty, namely,—

- (a) During the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty, the sum of seven hundred thousand dollars;
  - (b) During the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, the sum of eight hundred thousand dollars;
  - (c) During the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, the sum of nine hundred thousand dollars;
  - (d) During the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, the sum of one million dollars;
  - (e) During the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, the sum of one million one hundred thousand dollars;
- and the like sum of one million one hundred thousand dollars during each of the succeeding fiscal years until the expiration of the fiscal year ending the thirty-first day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine.

(2) Such sums, subject to the conditions of this Act, shall be allotted and shall be paid quarterly as grants to the Governments of the several provinces as follows:—

- (a) The sum of ten thousand dollars shall be paid in each year to the Government of each province;
- (b) The remainder of the appropriation for each year shall be allotted and paid to the Governments of the respective provinces in proportion to the population of the said provinces respectively as determined by the last federal decennial census.

5. (1) The grant payable to any province in any year shall not exceed the amount provided for each province by the next preceding section, nor shall it exceed an amount equivalent to that which the Provincial Government shall expend on technical education within such year.

(2) Repealed 1920, c. 20, s. 1.

6. The payment of the grants hereinbefore authorized shall be made subject to the following terms and conditions:—

(a) All payments shall be applied and used for technical education in the manner agreed upon by the Minister and the Government of each province; every such agreement shall be approved by the Governor in Council;

(b) No portion of any grant shall be used in whole or in part in meeting any liability or expenditure of any kind whatsoever incurred in any province prior to the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, for lands, buildings, furnishings or equipment secured or provided for technical education purposes;

(c) Not more than twenty-five per centum of the annual grant payable to any province shall be applied for acquiring land, erecting, extending or improving buildings or supplying furnishings and equipment;

(d) There shall be forwarded to the Minister annually, by each province taking advantage of the provisions of this Act, a report setting forth the work done in such province in promoting technical education, containing such details and information as may be prescribed by the Minister;

(e) Every province receiving a grant shall furnish the Minister with such evidence as he may require, to show that the grants paid hereunder are expended for technical education as provided by this Act.

7. Such officers and employees as may be required for carrying out the provisions of this Act, shall be appointed under the provisions of "The Civil Service Act, 1918."

8. Any portion of any appropriation authorized under this Act which may remain unexpended at the expiration of any of the said fiscal years, shall be carried forward and remain available according to its apportionment for the purposes of this Act during any one or more of the succeeding years: provided that not more than twenty-five per centum of any annual appropriation shall be so carried forward and remain available without the approval of the Minister.

9. The Minister shall make an annual report on or before the thirty-first day of March on the work done, under the provisions of this Act, containing such information and particulars as the Governor in Council may prescribe, and shall include in such report the reports made by the several provinces on the work done in each province for the promotion of technical education and the expenditure connected therewith, and such report shall be submitted to both Houses of Parliament by the Minister within fifteen days after the presentation of the report, if Parliament is then sitting, and if not, then within fifteen days after the opening of the next session of Parliament.

STATUTES OF 1920.

Director of Coal Operations.

Chapter 42.—1. The powers, duties and rights of the Director of Coal Operations, appointed under the provisions of the Order in Council of the twenty-fifth day of June, nineteen hundred and seventeen (P.C. 1725), as set forth in the said Order in Council and in the Order in Council of the twelfth day of July, nineteen hundred and seventeen (P.C. 1896), the Order in Council of the fifteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and seventeen (P.C. 3224), and the Order in Council of the twentieth day of February, nineteen hundred and eighteen (P.C. 426), in amendment thereof, are hereby ratified and confirmed and continued in force and effect until the end of the next session of Parliament: Provided, however, that the Governor in Council shall have power to repeal and cancel all or any of the said Orders in Council if at any time he deems that the same are no longer required.

2. The orders heretofore issued by the Director of Coal Operations set forth in the Schedule hereto attached are hereby ratified and confirmed and shall be deemed to have been lawfully made on the respective dates when they were signed by the said Director of Coal Operations. [The Orders in Council above referred to provide for the appointment of a Director of Coal Operations for certain districts of Alberta and British Columbia with power to make necessary investigations and inquiries respecting wages, holidays, hours of labour, and other labour conditions and all other matters connected with or affecting the cost and production of coal and coke. The owner, agent and manager of every mine or coke producing plant and every employee thereof must obey the orders of the Director, who may take over and operate any mine or plant. The price of coal and coke in the districts specified is also subject to the Director's approval.] (Schedule omitted.)

Protection of Employees as Voters—Time to Vote.

Chapter 46.—15. (1) Every employer shall, on polling day, allow to every elector in his employ at least two additional hours other than the noon hour, for voting, and no employer shall make any deduction from the pay of any such elector nor impose upon or exact from him any penalty by reason of his absence during such hours.

(2) This section shall extend to railway companies and to the Government Railways and their employees, excepting such employees as are actually engaged in the running of trains and to whom such time cannot be allowed without interfering with the manning of the trains.

Protection of Employees as Voters—Advance Polls.

Chapter 46.—100. (1) Every railway employee, sailor and commercial traveller, being an elector whose name appears on the list of voters of a polling division within which any place mentioned in Schedule Two is wholly or partly contained, and whose employment or calling is such as to necessitate from time to time his absence from his ordinary place of residence, and who has reason to believe that, because of necessary absence from such place of residence in the pursuit of his employment or calling, he will be unable to vote on polling day, may vote in advance of polling day as in this section provided.

(2) For the purpose of enabling such electors to vote, the returning officer in every electoral district wherein any place mentioned in Schedule Two is wholly or partly contained, shall establish within such place as many special polling stations as may be necessary, numbering them in order and terming them, as in this section they are hereafter termed, "Advance Polls." Every such polling station shall be located so as to suit the convenience of that class of voters which, in the judgment of the returning officer, is most likely to resort in any considerable number thereto.

(3) The Chief Electoral Officer may from time to time amend such Schedule by striking therefrom the name of any place or by adding thereto the name of any other place, and, so amended, such Schedule shall have effect as if now incorporated into this Act. He shall amend under the following circumstances only:—

(a) If a total of less than fifty votes is polled at the advance polls held within any such place at the election which immediately preceded the amendment, he may strike off the name of that place; or,

(b) If he is advised and believes that a total of fifty votes will be polled at any place in case an advance poll is established there, he may add the name of that place.

(4) The Chief Electoral Officer shall give notice, under his hand published in the "Canada Gazette" of all amendments made to such Schedule, and he shall, at every election, furnish to every returning officer a copy of such Schedule as it then stands amended.

(5) In case the date of the writ for an election falls within sixty days after notice so given of any such amendment that amendment shall not be in force nor have any effect at such election.

(6) Except as in this section provided all advance polls shall be held, conducted and officered in the same manner as, and for all purposes of this Act be regarded as ordinary polling stations.

(7) Advance polls shall be open, and shall only be open, between the hours of seven and ten o'clock in the afternoon of the three days, exclusive of Sunday, immediately preceding polling day.

(8) The returning officer shall, not later than seven days before polling day, give public notice within the place where an advance poll is to be held, of the poll and of the location of the polling station. Such notice may be in Form No. 52.

(9) A person applying to vote at an advance poll shall be permitted to do so only after compliance with the following in addition to all other applicable provisions of this Act:—

(a) He shall produce and deposit with the deputy returning officer a certificate of his right to vote, issued and signed by the registrar or revising officer of his polling division and countersigned by himself in the presence of such registrar or revising officer, the whole in Form No. 53;

(b) He shall, in the presence of the deputy returning officer, sign the statement of identification appearing on Form No. 53;

(c) He shall make before the deputy returning officer a declaration in Form No. 54.

(10) Every registrar or revising officer of a polling division within which any place mentioned in Schedule Two is wholly or partly contained shall, on application of an elector whose name appears on the list of voters of such polling division, issue gratis to such elector on that elector's attendance and request made in person, but not otherwise, a certificate in Form No. 53, and shall forthwith thereafter enter in the "Remarks" column of his list of voters, opposite the name of such elector, the words "Advance Poll." If, at the time of issue of such certificate, the registrar or revising officer has already delivered to the deputy returning officer the official list of voters, the registrar or revising officer shall issue such certificate in duplicate and forthwith deliver to the deputy returning officer one of such duplicates, whereupon the deputy returning officer shall make, opposite such name on the official list of voters, the like entry, which shall produce the like effect. For the purposes of the election officers at ordinary polling stations, persons who have secured certificates in Form No. 53 shall be deemed to have already voted. Provided, however, that if an elector who has obtained a certificate in Form No. 53 is unable to vote at an advance poll he shall nevertheless be entitled to vote on polling day at the polling station at which his name appears upon the list of voters, and at no other polling station. Before so voting such elector shall surrender his certificate in Form No. 53 to the deputy returning officer who shall then and there cancel such certificate and the entry concerning the same on the official list of voters and such elector shall then be entitled to vote as if such certificate had never been issued.

(11) In case of an election for which this Act does not require that registrars or revising officers be appointed, either at all or for any specific polling division, the duties performable by registrars and revising officers pursuant to this section shall be performed by the returning officer or by his election clerk, who may vary any prescribed form to fit the circumstances.

(12) There shall be no list of electors nor poll book supplied to or kept at an advance poll, but the poll clerk thereat shall assist the deputy returning officer as required, preserving each certificate deposited and marking thereon such notations as, if there were a poll book, he would be required by this Act to mark opposite the voter's name in the poll book.

(13) An elector who is by this section authorized to vote at an advance poll may vote at any advance poll within the electoral district whereof the person who has issued to such elector a certificate in Form No. 53 is a registrar or revising officer; but no deputy returning officer shall permit any person to vote at an advance poll upon any certificate in Form No. 53 issued by a registrar or revising officer of another electoral district.

(14) At the close of the poll each day, the deputy returning officer shall in the presence of such of the candidates or their agents or of the electors representing candidates as may be entitled to be present and are present:—

(a) unseal and open the ballot box,

(b) empty the ballots (in such manner as not to disclose for whom any elector has voted) into a special envelope supplied for the purpose,

(c) seal such envelope,

(d) count the unused ballots and the certificates in Form No. 53 which up to that time have been presented,

(e) place the unused ballots and certificates in Form No. 53 in another envelope which shall be supplied for the purpose,

(f) endorse thereon the number of such unused ballots and certificates in Form No. 53, and

(g) seal up the said envelope.

The deputy returning officer shall and such candidates and their agents or electors representing candidates as are present may affix their seals or signatures to both envelopes and the deputy returning officer shall then place both envelopes in the ballot box and lock the same and the deputy returning officer shall and every candidate or agent present who desires to do so may affix their respective seals and signatures to the ballot box in such a manner that the box cannot be opened or anything deposited therein or removed therefrom without breaking such seals.

At the re-opening of the poll each day the ballot box shall be opened by the deputy returning officer in the presence of such of the candidates or their agents or of the electors representing candidates as may be entitled to be present and are present and the envelope containing the unused ballots shall be taken out and opened, the ballot box being immediately thereafter locked and kept locked except as herein otherwise provided.

(15) The deputy returning officer shall, at six o'clock in the afternoon of polling day, attend with his poll clerk at the polling station where the advance poll was held, and there, in the presence of such of the candidates and their agents as may attend, open the ballot box and the sealed envelopes containing ballots, count the votes and take all other proceedings provided by this Act for deputy returning officers and poll clerks in connection with the conduct of an election after the close of the poll, except that such statements and other documents as other provisions of this Act may require to be made and to be written in or attached to the poll book shall be made as so required and be annexed to the certificates in Form No. 53 in this section referred to.

(16) Subject to the provisions of this section, the provisions of this Act relating to polls shall in so far as applicable apply to Advance Polls.

(17) Any person who corruptly,—

(a) for the purpose of obtaining from a registrar, revising officer or returning officer a certificate in Form No. 53, makes to such officer any false statement; or,

(b) forges or fabricates any such certificate, or any name thereon, or not being the person named therein, presents any such certificate to any deputy returning officer or poll clerk at any polling station; or,

(c) makes before any deputy returning officer a false declaration as to the cause or necessity of his voting at an advance poll; or,

(d) after having obtained from a registrar, revising officer or returning officer a certificate in Form No. 53 votes or attempts to vote at any other than an advance poll, except upon presentation on election day of such certificate as provided by this section; or,

(e) in any other manner contravenes any provision of this section; is guilty of an offence against this Act punishable on summary conviction as by this Act provided.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

REVISED STATUTES, 1773-1868.

Sunday Labour.

1780, Chapter 3 with amendment.—2. No truckman, driver of carts, labourer, or other person whatsoever, shall hereafter do or perform any labour, work or business appertaining to his or their respective ordinary callings or professions, or other worldly labour, or suffer the same to be done by his, her, or their child or children, servant or servants, either by land or by water (works of necessity and charity only excepted) . . . . . in any of the county towns, or other parts or places wheresoever within this Island, on the Lord's Day, or any part thereof, upon pain, that every person so offending, upon conviction thereof by the oath of one credible witness, before any of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in this Island, or upon view of such Justice, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings; the same to be levied, in case of non-payment, by warrant of distress and sale made of the offender's goods—all fines and penalties incurred under this section to be applied to the use of the poor, and disposed of at the discretion of the Justices before whom the offenders shall or may be convicted; the said Justice or Justices to keep a record of the fines levied and disposed of by them. Amended 1892, c. 29. s. 2.

Employment of Labour—General Provisions.

1833, Chapter 26.—[Section 1, repeals 35 George III, chapter 4].

2. . . . . from and after the passing hereof, all contracts that shall be entered into relative to the hire of servants, if for the term of one month, or for any longer period, shall be made in writing, and signed by the parties thereto, or shall be made verbally in presence of one or more credible witness or witnesses.

3. . . . . every servant who shall or may engage to serve for the term of one calendar month, or for any longer period, in manner aforesaid, and who shall neglect or refuse to perform the full time for which he or she hath so contracted to serve, or be wilfully absent from his or her said employment, contrary to the true intent and meaning of his or her said agreement, or shall be absent from his or her said master's or mistress's house, without permission first had and obtained, or shall otherwise misconduct himself or herself, every such servant shall be subject to the loss of his or her wages, and be liable, on conviction, upon complaint made on oath before any two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace of such neglect or misconduct as aforesaid, to be confined for a period not exceeding one calendar month in the common jail.

4. . . . . all masters and mistresses who shall hereafter hire any servant or servants in manner aforesaid, and who shall ill use or ill treat any such servant so hired, or shall neglect to perform all the conditions on their parts in every such agreement so made or entered into, every such servant may, and they are hereby authorized to make complaint thereof on oath before any two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the county wherein such servant or servants has or have been employed; and such Justices shall have power, and they are hereby directed, to inquire into every complaint so made, and to make such order thereon, either by cancelling the agreement so entered into, or by directing its fulfilment, as to the said Justices shall seem meet; and every servant so discharged by any Justices as aforesaid, shall be entitled to his or her full wages for the term so served, to be recovered as hereinafter mentioned; and the Justices are hereby authorized and required to grant a certificate to every servant so discharged by them certifying the same, which certificate shall be considered a sufficient authority for such servant to be legally hired by any other master or mistress; and in case any servant shall be discharged for ill treatment, the Justices before whom complaint thereof shall be made may order the offending master or mistress to pay a fine to the servant so ill-treated, not exceeding five pounds.

5. . . . . every servant who shall or may hereafter be hired as aforesaid, and who shall fulfil the term contracted to be performed, or who shall be discharged as aforesaid, shall be entitled to receive his or her full wages for the time served; and if the same shall not be paid agreeably to contract so made as aforesaid, or according to the order made by the Justices as aforesaid, every such servant shall have power to recover the same in a summary way—if under the sum of five pounds, before any two of the Commissioners appointed to adjudicate in matters of small debt; or if above that sum, in His Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature—in which action no imparance or dilatory plea shall be allowed, unless the Court shall especially direct the same, on affidavit showing the absolute necessity thereof, in order justly to decide the case on its merits.

6. . . . . any person whosoever shall, after the passing of this Act, hire the servant of another, knowing him or her to be such, or shall hire any servant without a written discharge from his or her last master or mistress, if resident within this Island, being produced, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay to the injured party or informer, as the case may be, a sum not exceeding five pounds; and every master or mistress refusing to give a written discharge to any servant or servants, after the term contracted to be performed is fulfilled, shall, on conviction, upon complaint made to any two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace on oath, forfeit, for every offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds, to be paid to such servant—all which fines shall be recovered, with costs, on the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, before any two of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, by warrant of distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels; and for want thereof, the offender shall be committed to prison for a period not exceeding two calendar months.

Apprenticeship.

1845, Chapter 14.—[Section 1, repeals 8 George IV, chapter 1; 5 Victoria, chapter 19; and 3 Victoria, chapter 9.]

2. . . . it shall be lawful for any parent or parents, guardian or guardians, to bind out as an apprentice any child of any age as an indentured servant, to any tradesman, artisan, or farmer, for a period not exceeding the time when such child shall attain the age of twenty-one years.

3. . . . any infant of the age of twelve years may be lawfully indentured to any tradesman, farmer, or other, by his or her own consent, if such infant have no parent or guardian within the Island, until such infant attain the age of twenty-one years—provided that every such indenture shall be entered into by the respective parties, in the presence of and with the consent of two Justices of the Peace, each of whom shall sign the said indentures, which shall be equally binding, as if they had been signed by the parent or guardian of the said infant; provided, that any two Justices acting in this behalf, may, if they think fit, and in like manner, indent such infant for a shorter period than his or her attaining the age of twenty-one years.

4. . . . all infants of the age of sixteen and upwards, having no parents or guardians within the Island, may lawfully indent themselves to service to any tradesman, farmer, or other, until he or she shall attain the age of twenty-one years, by indenture under seal, and shall be fully bound thereby.

5. . . . every indenture entered into as aforesaid, shall contain a stipulation on the part of the master or mistress, his or her executors, administrators or assigns, to cause the indentured child to be taught reading, writing, and the common rules of arithmetic.

6. . . . whenever it shall be made to appear to any two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, either upon the oath of any one or more credible witness or witnesses, or from a certificate under the hands of any eight or more respectable housekeepers residing in any town, or royalty, or township, within this Island, that any mendicant child between the ages of two and twelve years, being an orphan, or whose parent or parents shall have abandoned the care of such child, and shall have left this Island under such circumstances as to such Justices shall be deemed a final departure therefrom, and that such child hath been in the habit of soliciting alms, or receiving charitable contributions or allowances regulated by any charitable association, or being supported by any sums voted by the legislature of this Island, and hath not otherwise means for his or her necessary permanent support, that then and in every such case, it shall be lawful for such Justices to indent any such child as aforesaid, until the age of twenty-one years, or for any less term in the discretion of such Justices, and upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the master or mistress and the said Justices, to any tradesman, farmer, or any other person in manner hereinbefore described: Provided, that every indenture so to be made, shall contain a covenant or stipulation on the part of the master or mistress, his or her executors, administrators or assigns, to cause the indentured child to be taught reading, writing, and the common rules of arithmetic.

7. . . . in all actions at law or suits in equity arising out of any breach of the conditions of any indenture entered into in manner aforesaid in behalf of any pauper, orphan, or abandoned child, such actions or suits shall be brought in the name of the two Justices, their executors or administrators, who have been parties to the indenture as aforesaid, and such apprentice, with permission of the Court in which such suit or action shall be brought shall be allowed to sue in forma pauperis.

8. . . . if any apprentice, indentured by virtue of this Act, shall desert, or without leave absent himself or herself from the service of his or her said master or mistress, or otherwise misconduct himself or herself, then it shall and may be lawful for any Justice of the Peace to issue his warrant on the application, on oath, of the master or mistress of such apprentice, for his or her apprehension, which warrant so issued, it shall be lawful for any constable or constables to whom it may be addressed to execute in any County of this Island; notwithstanding it may have been issued by one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace not qualified in the County where its execution may be required; and on such apprentice being brought before such Justice, he shall, upon the evidence on oath of the said master or mistress, or of any other person, either order him, or her, to return to the service of such master or mistress immediately, or commit the said apprentice to the common jail of the County wherein such master or mistress resides. there to remain for any term not exceeding two calendar months, with or without hard labour, (if a male), for any part of such time, and to require such apprentice thereafter to return to the service of such master or mistress, as he may in his discretion adjudge, and to continue to fulfill the conditions of the indenture; and the Justice's and officer's fees of proceeding in every such case against any apprentice, shall be paid by the parent or guardian of such apprentice, and shall and may be recovered by warrant of distress, or such other usual process as the case may require.

9. . . . any person or persons wilfully harboring an apprentice deserting, or being absent without leave from his or her master's or mistress's service, or shall, in his or their house, suffer or permit any apprentice to play at cards, dice, or any other unlawful game, or therein to be engaged in any unlawful employment, or who, not being licensed to retail spirituous liquors, shall suffer any such apprentice to sit drinking in his or her house, or give him or her, or suffer to be given to him or her, any intoxicating liquors, each and every person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds, to be recovered with costs before any one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County wherein the offence may have been committed, on the oath of any one or more credible witness or witnesses.

10. . . . if any parent or guardian, becoming bound for any apprentice, shall wilfully represent, that such apprentice is younger than his real or true age, every such parent or guardian shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, any sum not exceeding twenty pounds, the said sum of twenty pounds to be recovered in Her Majesty's Supreme Court or Judicature, by bill, plaint, or information; and if not more than eight pounds, before any court of Commissioners for the recovery of small debts, for the County where such parent or guardian shall reside or before any two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the same County, in the like manner as small debts are now recovered, on the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses.

11. . . . it shall be lawful in all cases of complaint against a master or mistress, by an apprentice, or his or her parent or guardian, on the ground of ill usage, neglect or inability to instruct, or lawfully to maintain, lodge, or clothe any such apprentice, for any one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, having jurisdiction, to summon the master or mistress of such apprentice, to appear before any three of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, in order that such complaint may be investigated, who shall (if the master or mistress being lawfully summoned, do not appear), proceed to adjudicate thereon in his or her absence, and it shall and may be lawful for the said three Justices to cancel any indentures between any such apprentice and their master or mistress, proof being made on oath of continued ill usage on the part of such master or mistress or of his or her neglect or inability to instruct or duly and lawfully to maintain, lodge or clothe any such apprentice, as the case may be.

12. . . . if it shall be made to appear to such three Justices, that any premium has been paid with any such apprentice, or any wages be due, or clothing unprovided, according to covenants contained in any indenture entered into and produced before such Justices, together with sufficient evidence, on oath, respecting any matters of account, or provision which may be in dispute, it shall and may be lawful for such Justices to include, in any order for the cancelling any such indentures, an order for the equitable restitution of the whole or part of any such premium or payment of any sum that shall appear a just equivalent for any clothing, provision, or any other necessary, to which the said apprentice shall appear, by the covenants of the said indenture, to be entitled, and not to have received.

13. . . . and whereas it may seem just to the three Justices acting upon the authority of this Act, to order, in certain cases, the person to whom any complainant may be indentured, to receive such indentured person back into their houses, if such person has been compelled by any master or mistress to leave the same: Be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for such Justices to insert in such order, a clause directing such amount per diem, to be paid to such apprentice, his or her parent or guardian, as shall seem reasonable for the maintenance, as well during the time such apprentice shall have been compelled to be absent from the house of such master or mistress, previous to the hearing of any complaint before such Justices, as subsequent to the making such order; and such order shall set forth the amount per diem which shall accrue in case of a continued refusal to admit such apprentice.

14. . . . all orders so made shall be returned under the hands and seals of the two Justices so adjudicating as aforesaid, into the Prothonotary's Office of the Supreme Court of this Island, for the county where such Justices reside, there to be filed, and such orders so made shall not be quashed for want of form; but only, if they contain anything repugnant to the plain meaning of this Act, or the indentures on which they are founded; and the said Supreme Court is hereby authorized and empowered to hear the said appeal, and to quash or vary the said order of the said Justices, with or without costs, as it shall seem just and equitable, and to award judgment, and grant execution, in the usual and customary manner, to the party or parties in whose favour the same shall be determined by the said Court.

15. . . . if any master or mistress against whom any such order as aforesaid shall be made, shall be dissatisfied therewith, it shall be lawful for such master or mistress to give notice of his or her intention to appeal against such order to the next sitting of Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature; and provided that such notice be given in writing to either of the two Justices, whose hands and seals are set to such order, within four days after the delivery thereof; and provided also, that security be entered into within such period, to the satisfaction of such Justices, by the appellant, and one other sufficient surety, by recognizance, in such amount as they may deem necessary for the due prosecution of the said appeal; then and in such case, the operation of such order shall be suspended.

16. . . . either one of such Justices aforesaid, shall return the recognizances so entered, into the Prothonotary's Office of the Supreme Court for the County, who shall file the same, together with the order of the said Justices as aforesaid, and in case the conditions thereof be not complied with, then the said recognizances shall be forfeited by the order of the Court, without further proof or application, and the said Court shall, as it is hereby authorized to, grant execution against the said parties so bound in the said recognizance for the amount of such sum as shall have been ordered to be paid by the said Justices, together with reasonable costs, to be taxed in the usual and customary manner.

17. . . . in case the order remain uncomplied with, it shall be lawful for the Justices aforesaid to issue a warrant of distress for the amount so ordered to be paid as aforesaid, from time to time, against the goods and chattels of the party against whom such order shall have been made; and if no goods and chattels can be found whereon to levy, then it shall be lawful for the said Justices to commit the party or parties to the jail of the County, for a period (if the sum ordered to be paid shall not exceed forty shillings) of one month; and if above forty shillings, and not exceeding three pounds, for the space of three months; and if for any sum above three pounds, and not exceeding five pounds, for the space of five months; and if for any sum above five pounds, and not exceeding eight pounds, for the space of six months.

Prison Labour.

1849, Chapter 12.—3. . . . it shall and may be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, or other Administrator of the Government, by and with the advice and consent of Her Majesty's Council to appoint three or more fit and proper persons being Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace resident in each of the Counties of this Island, to be Commissioners for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

5. . . . such Commissioners shall have power to make such rules, regulations, and orders, and to prescribe the place, time, and mode of performing such labour, whether within or without such jail, as may to the majority of them seem best adapted to the more effectual punishment of offenders so convicted and imprisoned as aforesaid.

STATUTES OF 1878.

Earnings of Minors—Suits for Wages.

Chapter 12.—24. It shall be lawful for any minor to sue for and recover before any of the said Courts any sum not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars, which may be due to him for wages or piece work, or work as a servant, in the same manner as if he were of full age; and the defendant may give evidence of any payments or set off against such demand, and the cause shall be adjudicated upon and judgment given and execution issued either in favour of defendant or plaintiff in the same manner as if the plaintiff were of full age.

STATUTES OF 1879.

Mechanics' Liens.

Chapter 8.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Mechanics' Lien Act."

2. In the construction of this Act (1) "Contractor shall mean a person contracting with or employed directly by the owner for the doing of work, or placing or furnishing of machinery or materials for any of the purposes mentioned in this Act; (2) "Sub-contractor" shall mean a person not contracting with, or employed directly by the owner, for the purposes aforesaid, but contracting with, or employed by the "Contractor," or under him, by another "Sub-contractor"; and (3) "Owner" shall extend to and include a person having any estate or interest, legal or equitable, in the lands upon, or in respect of which, the work is done, or materials or machinery are placed or furnished, at whose request and upon whose credit or on whose behalf, or with whose privity or consent, or for whose direct benefit, any such work is done, or materials or machinery placed or furnished, and all persons claiming under him, whose rights are acquired after the work in respect of which the lien is claimed is commenced, or the materials or machinery furnished have been commenced to be furnished.

3. Unless there is an express agreement to the contrary, every mechanic, machinist, builder, labourer, contractor or other person doing work upon, or furnishing materials to be used in the construction, alteration or repair of any building or erection, or erecting, furnishing, or placing machinery of any kind in, upon, or in connection with any building or erection shall, by virtue of being so employed, or furnishing, have a lien or charge for the price of such work, machinery or materials upon such building or erection, and the lands occupied thereby or enjoyed therewith and limited in amount to such sum as is justly due to the person entitled to such lien.

4. A statement of claim in the form or to the effect in the Schedule to this Act, may be filed in the office of the Registrar of Deeds, before or during the progress of the work aforesaid or within thirty days from the completion thereof, or from the supplying or placing of the machinery aforesaid; such statement of claim shall be verified by the affidavit of the person entitled thereto, to be sworn before any Commissioner for taking affidavits on the Supreme Court, or County Court, and shall state:

(a) The name and residence of the claimant, and of the owner of the property to be charged, and of the person for whom, and upon whose credit the work is done, or materials or machinery furnished, and the time or period within which the same was, or was to be done or furnished.

(b) The work done or materials or machinery furnished.

(c) The sum claimed as due or to become due.

(d) The description of the land to be charged. When such statement is so registered, the person entitled to such lien shall be deemed a purchaser pro tanto, and within the provisions of all Acts relating to the Registry of Deeds.

5. The Registrar, upon the payment of the fee of one dollar for the use of the Provincial Government shall register such claim in a book to be kept for that purpose, so that the same may appear as an incumbrance against the land therein described, and such lien shall be discharged by the Registrar, on his receiving a certificate to that effect from the person entitled to said lien, and verified as required in cases of certificate of discharge of mortgage.

6. Every lien under this Act shall attach upon the estate and interest, legal or equitable, of the owner in the building or erection upon, or in respect of which the work is done, or the materials or machinery placed or furnished, and the land occupied thereby or enjoyed therewith, but the lien shall not in any case attach upon such estate and interest, so as to make the same or the owner thereof, liable to the payment of any greater sum than the sum payable by the owner to the contractor, and in case the lien is claimed by a sub-contractor, the amount which may be claimed in respect thereof shall be limited to the amount payable to the contractor, or sub-contractor (as the case may be) by whom the work has been done, or the materials or machinery have been furnished or placed.

(1) In cases where the estate or interest charged by said lien is leasehold, the fee simple may also, with the consent of the owner thereof, be subject to said charge, provided such consent is testified by the signature of such owner upon the statement of claim, at the time of the registering thereof, and duly verified.

7. In case the land upon, or in respect of, which the work is done, or materials or machinery are placed, is encumbered by a mortgage, judgment or other charge existing or created before the commencement of the work, or the placing of the materials or machinery upon the land, such mortgage or judgment, or other charge shall have priority over the lien, and the provisions in this Act contained shall not affect such mortgage, judgment, or other charge, or the rights and remedies of any party owning or having such mortgage, judgment or other charge.

8. All persons furnishing material to, or doing labour for, the person claiming a lien under this Act, in respect of the subject of such lien, who notify the owner of the premises sought to be effected thereby, within thirty days after such material is furnished, or labour performed, of unpaid account or demand against such lien holder, for such material or labour, shall be entitled to a charge therefor, pro rata upon any amount payable by such owner, under said lien, and if the owner thereupon pays the amount of such charge to the person furnishing material, and doing labour as aforesaid, such payment shall be deemed a satisfaction pro tanto of such lien.

9. In case of any dispute as to the validity, or amount of such unpaid account or demand the same shall be first determined by suit in the proper court in that behalf or by arbitration, under sections nineteen and twenty, at the option of the person having such unpaid account, or demand against the lien-holder, and during the pending of the proceedings to determine the dispute, so much of the amount of the lien, as is in question therein, may be withheld from the person claiming the lien.

10. In case the person primarily liable to the person entitled to the lien, fails to pay the amount awarded within ten days after the award is made, the owner, contractor, or sub-contractor may pay the same out of any moneys due by him to the person primarily liable as aforesaid, on account of the work done or materials or machinery furnished or placed, in respect of which the indebtedness arose, and such payment, if made after an award, shall in all cases, or if made without any arbitration having been previously had, or dispute existing, then if the indebtedness in fact existed, and to the extent thereof, operate as a discharge, pro tanto, of the moneys so due as aforesaid to the person primarily liable.

11. All payments up to ninety per centum of the price to be paid for the work, machinery or materials, as defined by section three of this Act, made in good faith by the owner to the contractor; or by the contractor to the sub-contractor, or by one sub-contractor to another sub-contractor, before notice in writing by the person claiming the lien has been given to such owner, contractor, or sub-contractor (as the case may be) of the claim of such person, shall operate as a discharge, pro tanto, of the lien created by this Act; but this section shall not apply to any payment made for the purpose of defeating or impairing a claim to a lien existing or arising under this Act.

12. The said lien shall, in addition to all other rights or remedies given by this Act, also operate as a charge to the extent of ten per centum of the price to be paid as aforesaid by such owner, up to ten days after completion of the work, in respect of which such lien exists, or of the delivery of the materials, and no longer, unless notice in writing be given as hereinbefore provided.

13. (1). When the amount of the claim, in respect of any lien, is within the jurisdiction of the County Court, proceedings to recover the same, according to the procedure of the said court, by judgment and execution may be taken in the County Court of the county in which the land charged is situate, or in the Supreme Court; or proceedings may be taken before any Judge of the said court, who may proceed in a summary manner by summons and order, and may take accounts, and make requisite inquiries, and in default of payment, may direct the sale of the estate and interest charged at such time, as any judge of said court may think proper, and such further proceedings may be taken for the purpose aforesaid as any judge of said court thinks proper in his discretion.

(2). Any conveyance under the seal of the Supreme Court shall be effectual to pass the estate or interest sold.

(3) The fees and costs in all proceedings taken under this section, shall be such as are payable in respect of the like or similar matters, according to the ordinary procedure of the said courts respectively.

14. In other cases the lien may be realized in the Court of Chancery, according to the ordinary procedure of that Court.

15. The said Judge or Court in his or its discretion may also direct the sale of any machinery and authorize its removal.

16. Any number of lien-holders may join in one suit, and all suits brought by a lien holder shall be taken to be brought on behalf of all the lien holders of the same class, and in the event of the death of the plaintiff therein, or his refusal or neglect to proceed therewith, may by leave of the court in which the suit is brought, on such terms as may be deemed just and reasonable, be prosecuted and continued by any other lien holder of the same class.

17. In the event of the death of a lien holder, his right of lien shall pass to his personal representatives, and the right of a lien holder may be assigned by an instrument in writing.

18. Where there are several liens, under this Act, against the same property, each class of the lien holders shall rank pari passu for their several amounts, and the proceeds at any sale shall be distributed amongst them pro rata, according to their several classes and rights, and they shall respectively be entitled to execution for any balance due to them respectively after said distribution.

19. In case a claim is made by a sub-contractor in respect of a lien to which he is entitled and dispute arises as to the amount due or payable in respect thereof, the same shall be settled by arbitration.

(1) One arbitrator shall be appointed by the person making the claim, one by the person against whom the claim may be made, and the third arbitrator shall be appointed by the two so chosen.

(2) The decision of the arbitrators or a majority of them shall be final and conclusive.

20. In case either of the parties, interested in any such dispute, refuses or neglects, within three days after notice in writing requiring him to do so, to appoint his arbitrator, or if the two arbitrators appointed fail to agree upon a third, the appointment may be made by the County Judge of the County in which the lands, in respect of which the lien is claimed, are situate, or by a Judge of the Supreme Court.

21. Every lien, which has not been duly registered under the provisions of sections four and five, shall absolutely cease to exist after the expiration of thirty days after the work has been completed, or materials or machinery furnished, unless, in the meantime, proceedings are instituted to realize the claim under the provisions of this Act, and a certificate thereof (which may be granted by the Judge or Court before whom, or in which, the proceedings are instituted) is duly registered in the Office of Registrar of Deeds.

22. Every lien, which has been duly registered under the provisions of sections four and five, shall absolutely cease to exist after the expiration of ninety days after the work has been completed, or materials or machinery furnished, or the expiry of the period of credit, unless in the meantime proceedings are instituted to realize the claim under the provisions of this Act, and a certificate thereof (which may be granted by the Judge or Court before whom or in which the proceedings are instituted) is duly registered in the Registrar of Deeds.

23. During the continuance of any lien, no portion of the property affected thereby, or the machinery therein, shall be removed to the prejudice of such lien, and any attempt at such removal may be restrained by application to the County Court, or the Judge thereof, or the Court of Chancery, or the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof respectively, according to the Court in which the suit is instituted.

24. Upon application to the County Court, or the Judge thereof, or the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, in claims to be enforced in said Courts, and to the Court of Chancery in other cases such Judge or Court may receive security or payment into Court in lieu of the amount of such claim, and may thereupon vacate the registry of such lien, or may annul the said registry upon any other ground.

25. In any of the said cases, the Court or Judge may proceed to hear and determine the matter of the said lien, and make such order as seems just, and in case the person claiming to be entitled to such a lien has wrongfully refused to sign a certificate of discharge thereof, or without just cause, claims a larger sum to be due than is found by such Judge or Court the Judge or Court may order and adjudge him to pay to the other party such costs as the Judge or Court may think fit to award.

26. Wherever any mechanic, artisan, machinist, builder, contractor or other person has furnished or procured any materials for use in the construction, alteration, or repair of any building or erection, at the request of any, and for some other person such materials shall not be subject to execution or other process to enforce any debt, other than for the purchase thereof due by the person furnishing or procuring such materials, and whether the same have or have not been in whole or in part worked into or made part of such building or erection.

27. Where there is an express agreement between the owner and the contractor, that a certain contract for the erection or repair of any building, or for the furnishing of any machinery or materials to be used in the construction, alteration or repair of any building, is not to be affected by any lien under this Act, no provision in this Act shall apply or give a lien to such owner, contractor, sub-contractor, mechanic, labourer or furnisher of machinery, or materials, in connection with such building.

28. Except so far as is herein otherwise provided, the provisions of the Acts relating to the Registry of Deeds shall not apply to any lien arising under the provisions of this Act.

29. Nothing in this Act shall be held to debar any person from pursuing any common law remedy that he had before the passing of this Act to recover any claim arising under this Act.

STATUTES OF 1881.

Exemption of Wages from Garnishment.

Chapter 4.—32. Wages due, or accruing due, to any debtor for his personal labour and service on a hiring to the extent of one-half part of such wages, shall be exempt from garnishment.

STATUTES OF 1882.

Mechanics' Liens.

Chapter 11.—1. After any lien shall have been duly registered according to the provisions of section four, sub-section (a.b.c.d.) of the said "The Mechanics' Lien Act," [1879, chapter 8], it shall be lawful for the person or persons registering such lien to obtain from a judge of the Supreme Court, or County Court, as the case may be, a rule or summons calling upon the debtor or debtors, person or persons, against whom the lien is registered, to appear before such judge to be examined on oath, touching the particulars of the claim of the person or persons registering such lien, and generally as to the particulars of the debt for which such lien was registered: provided always that no such order or summons shall be grantable, or obtainable, until the expiring of the period of credit, which may have been given by the person or persons registering such lien to the person or persons against whom such lien is claimed, and for which such lien was registered.

2. Such summons or order shall contain the statement of the time when such lien was registered, and the book and folio of the registry book in which the same is registered, and shall be signed by the judge granting the same, and shall command or summon the person or persons against whom the lien is claimed, to appear before such judge ten days after the service of the said summons upon him or them, to be examined on oath touching the said lien, and generally as to the particulars of the debt for which the lien was registered.

3. The said order or summons shall be served in the same manner as writs of summons are now served in the Supreme Court or County Court, as the case may be, and the same proof of service, and the same practice as far as practicable, shall apply, and be applicable, to the service of any order or summons under this Act.

4. Upon the return of any such order or summons, in case the debtor does not deny on oath the amount due, and for which such lien was registered, or in case the debtor refuses or neglects to attend upon due proof of the service of the said summons, it shall be lawful for a judge of the Supreme Court or County Court, as the case may be, to order that the whole, or any part of the premises, land, estate, or interest, machinery or material, charged by such lien, shall be sold by public auction either together, or in parcels, as the said judge shall deem most expedient to satisfy such lien: provided always that before any sale shall take place under such last mentioned order, the order of the said judge directing such sale shall be advertised at least one month in some paper or papers, newspaper or newspapers, published in the Island, to be named by such judge, and it shall be lawful for such judge to regulate and direct the terms, manner and place of any such sale or sales, and as to such judge shall seem best and most expedient, and to impose such conditions or restrictions as he shall deem meet, and the circumstances of the case require.

5. After any sale duly made in accordance with the foregoing provisions shall have taken place, a deed or deeds, or, in the case of personal property, an absolute bill of sale, reciting the judge's order for sale, and the sale thereunder, under the seal of the Supreme Court or County Court, as the case may be, signed by the Prothonotary of the Supreme Court, or in the County Court by a judge thereof, shall operate as an absolute conveyance or assignment of the estate or interest of the person, against whom such lien has been registered, in the property, real or personal as the case may be, conveyed or assigned by such deed or bill of sale, and which was chargeable by such lien to the person or persons in whose favour the same is executed.

6. Any person or persons interested in the premises charged by the lien, or who may have any claim against the person or persons against whom the lien is registered, may, at any time before the said deed or bill of sale is actually delivered to the purchaser or purchasers, apply to any Judge of the Supreme Court or County Court, as the case may be, to have any proceedings taken under this Act stayed, and, if the Judge shall think fit, set aside on the ground of any fraud or improper collusion between the person or persons registering such lien, and the person or persons to whom such lien is registered, or any of the parties thereto, and such Judge shall have power to make such order or orders in the matter as to him shall seem proper, or the justice of the case shall require.

7. In case any person or persons, against whom any lien is registered as aforesaid, shall attend upon the return of the order or summons mentioned in first section hereof, and deny certain portions of the claim, and admit others, it shall be lawful for the Judge, if he shall think fit, to order a sale of a sufficient portion of the premises or property charged, to satisfy the claim so admitted, and the person or persons, having or claiming such lien, shall proceed to enforce the lien as to the balance under the other provisions contained in the said "The Mechanics Lien Act," and such parcel sale shall in no way prejudice or affect his lien, or the balance not admitted, or his right to recover and enforce the same under any of the other provisions and powers of the said "The Mechanics Lien Act," and the like procedure and practice shall be followed and taken, in making any such parcel sale, as would be taken if such sale were of the entire property charged by such lien, under the previous sections hereof.

8. When the sum realized by any such sale, or parcel sale as aforesaid, shall be more than sufficient to satisfy the said lien, or the amount admitted to be due in case of a partial sale, and the costs and charges necessarily increased in obtaining same and of such sale, the surplus shall be paid into the Supreme Court or County Court, as the case may be, and such surplus, or any part thereof, shall be paid out by an order of such Court or Judge to such person or persons as such Court or Judge shall consider legally entitled to the same, and upon any application therefor such Court, or Judge, shall have power to make any and such order or orders respecting the same, and upon any and such terms as may be deemed necessary or expedient or that justice may require, and notice of any sale or order, in any such application, may be given in such manner, and for such time, as such Court or a Judge shall deem proper: provided always that no such surplus, or any part thereof, shall be paid out by order of such Court or Judge, in case of any partial sale as aforesaid, until the person or persons claiming the lien, under which such partial sale shall have taken place, shall have abandoned or substantiated his or their right to a lien for the balance, not admitted to be due as aforesaid, by action as provided by the provisions of the said "The Mechanics Lien Act."

9. Any sale to be made under the provisions of this Act, shall be made by the Sheriff of the County in which the land premises or property, to be sold, are situated: provided always that it shall be lawful for a Judge of the Supreme Court or County Courts, as the case may be, to order that the same shall take place in any other County, if he shall deem it expedient or advantageous.

10. It shall be lawful for any person or persons claiming any such lien, duly registered before or after the passing of this Act, notwithstanding he may have commenced proceedings in the Supreme Court, or County Court, for the recovery of such lien under the said "The Mechanics' Lien Act," to suspend and abandon such proceedings, and to proceed, in lieu thereof, under the provisions of this Act, without prejudice to his lien, or his right to recover the same, and no lien, registered subsequently to his or theirs, shall gain any priority by reason merely of such proceedings having been suspended or abandoned by him or them.

11. This Act shall not be construed to revive liens, registered under the Act hereby amended, that have lapsed before the passing of this Act.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Assignments.

Chapter 4.—8. (1) Whenever an assignment is made of any real or personal property for the general benefit of creditors under the provisions of this Act, the assignee shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the person making the same, the wages or salaries of all persons in the employment of such person at the time of making such assignment, or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three month's wages or salary; and such person shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claim.

STATUTES OF 1903.

Earnings of Married Women.

Chapter 9.—4. (1) Every married woman whether married before or after the passing of this Act, shall be entitled to have and to hold, and to dispose of as her separate property, as if she were a femme sole, the wages, earnings, money, and property gained or acquired by her in any employment, trade or occupation in which she is engaged or which she carries on, and in which her husband has no proprietary interest, or gained or acquired by the exercise of any literary, artistic or scientific skill.

(2) Every married woman whether married before or after the passing of this Act, shall be entitled to have and to hold and to dispose of in manner aforesaid, as her separate property, all real and personal property acquired by her or devolving upon her to which her title shall accrue, after the passing of this Act.

STATUTES OF 1906.

Charlottetown Street Railways—Qualifications of Employees, etc.

Chapter 30.—34. No person shall drive any car unless he shall be of the full age of twenty-one years, or unless he shall have obtained written permission from the mayor of the city for such purpose; every conductor, driver or motorman, shall wear a badge bearing his number on a conspicuous portion of his dress. The company when required to do so by the mayor and city council, shall furnish a list of all its conductors, drivers and motormen, and the name of any one of them conducting or driving a car at a specified time, and shall keep such register, books and records as shall enable it to furnish such information.

35. The front end of each car while in motion on the street, shall be provided with a bright light, between dusk in the afternoon and day-light, each car shall also be provided with a loud clear-sounding gong which shall be rung before passing a crossing, or when any person or vehicle is in the way of such car, and each car shall be equipped with efficient brakes.

37. Where no other remedy is provided, any conductor or motorman violating any of the above provisions shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars ($20) to be recovered before the stipendiary magistrate of the city of Charlottetown or of Queen's County as the case may be, and in default of payment to imprisonment in the Queen's County jail for a period not exceeding twenty days.

STATUTES OF 1913.

Registration and Licensing of Chauffeurs.

Chapter 7, with amendment.—16. Every person hereafter desirous to operate a motor vehicle as a chauffeur shall file in the office of the secretary on a blank to be supplied by such secretary a statement which shall include the name and address and the trade name and motor power of the motor vehicle or vehicles he is able to operate; and shall pay a registration fee of two dollars and in addition as provided in section 20.

17. Before a license is granted, the applicant shall furnish testimonials as to his character and sobriety to the secretary and no license shall be issued until the secretary is satisfied that the applicant is a proper person to receive it. No operator's license shall be issued to any person under eighteen years of age.

(2) The secretary shall thereupon file such statement in his office, register such chauffeur in a book or index to be kept for that purpose and assign him a number.

(3) The secretary shall forthwith upon such registration, deliver to such chauffeur a badge of aluminium or other suitable metal which shall be oval in form and the greater diameter of which shall not be more than three inches, and such badge shall have stamped thereon the words "Registered Chauffeur No. ———" with the registration number inserted therein which badge shall thereafter be worn by such chauffeur pinned upon his clothing in a conspicuous place at all times while he is operating a motor vehicle upon the public highways.

(4) No chauffeur having registered as hereinbefore provided shall voluntarily permit any other person to wear his badge, nor shall any person while operating a motor vehicle wear any badge belonging to another person or a fictitious badge.

(5) No person shall operate a motor vehicle as a chauffeur upon the public highways unless such person shall have complied with the requirements of this section and sections 16 and 17.

20. No chauffeur shall drive a motor vehicle unless he shall have paid the secretary such fee or tax as may from time to time be fixed and determined by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. Amended 1918, c. 4, s. 7 (4).

(1) The secretary shall give to each chauffeur a receipt for his yearly tax which receipt is to contain the race, age, height, weight, colour of eyes and hair of chauffeur and to be carried on the person of the chauffeur and produced upon demand.

STATUTES OF 1915.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Liquidations.

Chapter 14.—197. (1) In a winding-up there shall be paid in priority to all other debts,—

(a) All assessed taxes, rates, land tax, personal property tax or income tax, assessed on the company up to the first day of January next before the date hereinafter mentioned, and not exceeding in the whole one year's assessment; and

(b) All wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the company during four months before the said date, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars; and

(c) All wages of any workman or labourer not exceeding one hundred and twenty-five dollars, whether payable for time or for piece-work, in respect of services rendered to the company during two months before the said date: Provided that where any labourer in husbandry has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the year of hiring, he shall have priority in respect of the whole of such sum, or a part thereof as the court may decide to be due under the contract, and proportionate to the time of service up to the said date:

(2) The foregoing debts shall—

(a) Rank equally among themselves and be paid in full, unless the assets are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportion; and

(b) In so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the company, and be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge.

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs and expenses of the winding-up the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith so far as the assets are sufficient to meet them.

(4) In the event of the landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of the company within three months next before the date of a winding-up order the debts to which priority is given by this section shall be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof: Provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom the payment is made.

(5) The date hereinbefore in this section referred to is—

(a) In the case of a company ordered to be wound-up compulsorily which had not previously commenced to be wound up voluntarily, the date of the winding-up order; and

(b) In any other case, the date of the commencement of the winding-up.

STATUTES OF 1920.

Employers to Furnish Names of Employees to Assessor—Liability for Taxes of Employees.

Chapter 3.—67. Every person shall, not later than the first day of July, 1920, and not later than the first day of September in each year thereafter, furnish the assessor with a correct list of the officers and employees of such person whose respective annual income so far as he has any knowledge, exceeds five hundred dollars, and on the said list he shall state the amount paid by him to each such officer or employee for the year ending the thirty-first day of December preceding the date of such demand.

Part IV.—Poll Tax.—142. "Employer of Labour" shall include merchants, farmers, traders, corporations and companies, and every person who employs labourers, servants, clerks, domestics, or hired help of any kind whatsoever, whether for wages, salary, fee, or reward, or otherwise.

[Section 143. Provides for a poll-tax of three dollars on every male person between the ages of twenty-one and sixty-five years. Every British subject who has seen honourable service, in any capacity, with Britain or any of her Allies during the Great War is, however, exempt from payment of this tax for a period of five years.]

144. (1) Every employer of labour shall, on demand of the collector, pay the annual poll-tax for every person in his employ, not only at the time when the said demand is made, but also from time to time for every person in his employ during the year for which the said tax is payable, and may deduct the amount so paid on account of any such person from the amount of salary or wages due, or to become due, to such person, upon production and delivery of the receipt for such tax to such person.

(2) Every such employer of labour shall be primarily liable for the said tax in respect of every person in his employ at any time during the year for which the said tax is payable, and until the tax is paid in respect of such person. Every such employer of labour shall furnish to the collector, when requested by him so to do, from time to time, a list of all persons in his employ, or indirectly employed by him, liable to pay the said tax: but no such statement shall bind the collector, nor shall excuse him for making due inquiries to ascertain its correctness.

145. Every employer of labour shall be liable to all provisions of this Part of this Act with regard to persons in his employ, and as to all persons who work for him or on his premises or in connection with his business, whether such persons are employed directly by him or indirectly through a contractor for labour. Such employer of labour shall have the right to deduct from the amount payable to such contractor all sums paid by him to the Government as poll-tax for any men furnished to him by such contractor, and such contractor may deduct the same from the amount due by him to such men respectively.

146. In the event of any person liable to the tax while in the employment of any employer of labour having paid the tax for the then current year and producing the receipt therefor to such employer of labour, the liability of such employer of labour shall cease in respect to the tax on such person: provided, however, that the collector shall, on demand, be furnished by such employer of labour with the particulars of the name, number, date and place of issue upon such receipt.

147. If any employer of labour fails to pay the said tax for every person in his employ as aforesaid or to deliver to the collector the list mentioned in section 144 of this Act, when required to do so, or knowingly states anything falsely in such list, he shall, on complaint of the collector, and upon summary conviction before a Justice of the Peace, or stipendiary magistrate, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars.

148. No employer of labour shall be responsible for payment of the said tax in respect of any person in his employ unless such person shall have been in his employ for at least two months immediately preceding the date of the tax being demanded.

154. The said tax and penalties, whether due from the person immediately liable to pay the same or from any employer of labour in regard to an employee or servant, may (in addition to any other mode of recovery) be recovered with costs by summary proceedings upon complaint of any collector, constable, or other person authorized to collect the said tax before any Justice of the Peace or Stipendiary Magistrate; and any such Justice of the Peace or Stipendiary Magistrate is hereby empowered and authorized to make an order for the payment of moneys due or payable under this Part of this Act, and to enforce the payment thereof in manner provided for the enforcement and recovery of penalties under the provisions of the Statute 19 Victoria, Cap. 23, intituled "An Act to Facilitate the Performance of the Duties of Justices of the Peace with respect to Summary Convictions and Orders."

Employment of Children—School Attendance.

Chapter 6.—95. Every person having under his control a child between the ages of seven and thirteen, shall annually during the continuance of such control, send such child to some public school in the city, town, or school district in the country in which he resides at least thirty weeks, if such person reside in the Town of Charlottetown or Summerside, and twenty weeks if he resides elsewhere in the province, if the public schools of such city, town or school district in the county so long continue, six weeks of which time shall be consecutive; and for every neglect of such duty the party offending shall forfeit to the use of the trustees of such city, town or district, a sum not exceeding twenty dollars; but if it appears upon the inquiry of the inspectors, or upon the trial of any prosecution that the party so neglecting was not able, by reason of poverty, to send such child to school, or to furnish him with the means of education, or that such child has been otherwise furnished with the means of education, for a like period of time, or has already acquired the branches of learning taught in the public schools, or that his bodily or mental condition has been such as to prevent his attendance at school or application to study for the period required, the penalty before mentioned shall not be incurred.

96. Inspectors of the several inspectorates shall inquire into all cases of the neglect of the duty prescribed by the preceding section, and ascertain from the persons neglecting, the reasons, if any, therefor, and shall forthwith prosecute any person liable for the penalty provided for in such section.

NOVA SCOTIA.

REVISED STATUTES OF 1900.

Industrial Disputes in Coal Mines—Arbitration and Conciliation.

Chapter 21 with amendments.—1. This Chapter may be cited as “The Miners’ Arbitration Act.”

Interpretation.

2. In this Chapter, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions shall be construed in the manner in this section mentioned:

(a) “employer” means the person, firm or corporation working any coal mine and employing persons in or about the same or in connection therewith;

(b) “employed” means the persons employed in or about a coal mine or in connection therewith, who, for the purposes of this Chapter, are divided into three divisions as follows:— (1) the persons who labour above ground at or about the mine; (2) the persons who labour on or about the wharves, or in trimming coal loaded into vessels at the wharves; (3) the persons who labour below ground;

(c) “Any division” means all the persons in any one of such divisions so employed;

(d) “Commissioner” means the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines;

(e) “The Board” means the Board of Arbitration appointed under this Chapter.

Complaint to Commissioner.

3. Where any dispute arises between the employer and the majority of the employed, or the majority of any division, in respect to wages, the employed shall not strike or abandon work and the employer shall not reduce the wages, dismiss or lock out the employed or any division, if the employer or the majority of the employed, or the majority of any division, makes complaint in regard to the matter causing such dispute in writing to the Commissioner, until such matter is finally determined as in this Chapter provided.

4. A certificate under the hand of the chairman and secretary of a meeting, duly called, that a majority of the employed, or of any division attending such meeting, was in favour of arbitration under this Chapter of any such dispute, shall be sufficient complaint to the Commissioner.

5. The Commissioner upon receipt of such certificate or upon receipt of complaint from the employer, may summon the agent of the employed, or of the division, or of the employer making such complaint, to appear before him and adduce evidence in support of such complaint, and upon such evidence the Commissioner shall determine whether such matter of dispute should be referred to arbitration or not.

5a. In the case of an employer operating more than one coal mine the employer or the employed may, in the complaint to the commissioner, designate the mine or mines in relation to which the complaint is made, and any proceedings under the chapter taken in consequence of such complaint shall have relation only to the mine or mines so designated. 1901, c. 30, s. 1.

Reference.

6. If the Commissioner determines that the matter complained of should be submitted to arbitration, he shall forthwith make an order referring such matter to the Board; if he determines otherwise such matter shall be deemed to be finally determined against the party who made the complaint.

7. When the employer and a majority of the employed, or of any division, apply jointly in writing to the Commissioner to settle any such dispute by arbitration, the Commissioner shall forthwith refer the matter to the board.

Board of Arbitrators.

8. (1) The Board shall consist of five persons, two of whom shall be appointed by the Governor-in-Council, one by the agent of the employer who is a party to such dispute, one by the agent of the employed or division who are the other party to such dispute, and one by the persons appointed by such agents.

(2.) If such agents or either of them do not within five days after notice from the Commissioner of the reference to the Board of the matter of dispute, or if such persons so appointed do not within five days after their appointment, make the appointment required by this section to be made by them, any such appointment may be made by a judge of the Supreme Court on application of the Commissioner.

9. The Board shall hear and determine all matters of dispute referred to it by the Commissioner.

10. The Board may compel the attendance before it of witnesses by subpoena under the hand and seal of the chairman, and may require witnesses to give evidence under oath and to produce such documents and things as the board deems necessary. The chairman may administer oaths to witnesses.

11. (1) The Board may appoint a secretary, who may be a member of the Board, and such other officers as are necessary for the purposes of the arbitration.

(2.) The secretary of the Board shall keep a complete record of all proceedings before the Board, and shall file with the prothonotary of the Supreme Court for the county in which the dispute arises, a copy of the complaint lodged with the Commissioner and a copy of the award of the Board.

(3.) The books, records, accounts and papers of the Board shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Commissioner, and of any person appointed by him for such purpose.

12. The arbitrators, before entering upon any of their duties as such Board, in any case of dispute, shall be sworn before a justice of the peace to the faithful performance of their duty, and that they will not divulge any matter of the employer's business.

13. The Board shall meet to hear and determine any dispute referred to it at such time as it appoints, and at some place as near as conveniently may be to the mine of the employer at which or in connection with which the employed or division is employed.

14. (1) For the purposes of the arbitration the books and accounts of the employer shall be open to the examination of any person appointed for the purpose by the board.

(2.) The person so appointed shall not in any way be interested in, or in the employ of, any other company carrying on a similar business to that concerning which the investigation is held.

(3.) Such person shall obtain for and furnish to the board such information respecting the affairs of the mine as the board requires.

(4.) The chairman of the Board shall administer to such person as soon as appointed an oath not to divulge, save to the Board, any matter of the employer's business.

15. Each member of the Board shall be entitled to receive a sum not exceeding six dollars per day for every day he is employed on an arbitration, and his travelling expenses in addition, and such sums shall form part of the costs of arbitration.

Award.

16. Every award shall be in writing, signed by a majority of the members of the Board, and shall be filed in the Office of the Commissioner.

17. The Commissioner shall cause the parties to the arbitration to be notified of the award immediately after the same is filed in his office.

18. The chairman of the Board shall, within twenty days after an award has been made by the board, make a report in writing to the Commissioner, setting forth the operations of the board, which report shall be laid before the Legislature.

19. The award, when filed with the prothonotary, may, on motion of either party, be made an order of the Supreme Court, and the said court may enforce obedience to such award by attachment, or if the award directs payment of a sum of money by ordering judgment to be entered or execution to issue for such sum, with costs.

20. Such judgment, when registered in the registry of deeds for any registration district, shall bind the land of the employer in such district, but no such judgment shall have priority over any amount due to Her Majesty in respect to royalties, or over any bona fide mortgage or judgment previously registered.

21. (1) The Board may appoint a committee of three of its number, two of whom shall be the arbitrators appointed by the agents in default of such appointment, or by the judge, to examine into any question in dispute that is referred to them by the Board, and such committee may hear and determine such dispute, and their decision in regard thereto, if agreed to and signed by the three members of such committee, shall be deemed an award of the Board, and shall when filed in the Office of the Commissioner be final.

(2.) Such committee shall for the purposes of summoning witnesses and taking evidence have all the powers by this Chapter conferred upon the Board.

Costs and Security.

22. The employer on receiving notice that an arbitration has been granted may withhold the wages of the employed or division to whom arbitration has been granted in a sum not exceeding three dollars for each employee, and shall pay into some chartered bank in the province to the credit of the Commissioner a sum of money equal to double the sum so withheld. 1901, c. 29, s. 1.

23. If the Board decided against the employer he shall be bound thereby, and if he does not submit at once to the award, the sum paid into the chartered bank to the credit of the Commissioner shall be forfeited by the employer, and shall, after first deducting the costs of the arbitration, be paid to the agent of the employed or division for the use and benefit of the employed or division in proportion to their respective rates of wages.

24. If the Board decides against the employed, or against the division, and the employed, or any division to whom arbitration has been granted, does not at once submit to the award, the amount of wages of the employed or division paid into the chartered bank shall be forfeited by the employed or by the division, and shall be paid to the agent of the employer, for his use and benefit by the Commission, after first deducting the costs of the arbitration.

25. The Commissioner shall pay the costs of arbitration out of the sum paid to his credit by the employer, and if the award directs that costs be paid by the employed or division, the amount of costs so paid by the Commissioner shall be deemed payment of wages by the employer to the employed or division.

Procedure.

26. A meeting of the employed or of any division shall be duly called if notice calling the same is given by not less than five of the employed or of any division stating that a meeting of the employed or of any division for the purposes of "The Miners' Arbitration Act," is to be held, by posting such notice in three public places at or about the mine for three days before such meeting.

27. (1) When the employed or any division makes complaint to the Commissioner, or is party to an arbitration, the employed or such division shall give notice to the Commissioner of the name and address of some person appointed, at a meeting, duly called, of the employed or of such division, as agent.

(2) Service upon such agent of all papers, notices or process shall be deemed service upon the employed or such division.

28. If before the appointment of such agent the Commissioner desires to serve any summons or notice on the employed or on any division, the same shall be deemed sufficiently served on the employed or division if posted up at any of the principal entrances of the mine at which they are employed.

29 (1) Every employer shall file at the office of the Commissioner a writing signed by or on behalf of the employer, giving the name of some person regularly engaged at the mine of the employer, authorized to act as agent of the employer, and service of all papers, notices or process upon such agent shall be deemed service upon such employer.

(2) Any request, notice or communication in relation to the affairs of the mine made or given by such agent shall be deemed to be made or given by the employer.

(3) If such writing is not filed as by this section required, any paper, notice or process mailed duly registered and addressed to the employer at the chief place of business of the employer within the province, shall be deemed to be duly served upon such employer.

(4) Every employer who fails to file such writing with the Commissioner within thirty days after notice from the Commissioner requiring him to do so, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars.

30. No complaint, award or other proceeding under this Chapter shall be removed by certiorari into any of Her Majesty's courts of record.

31. (1) There shall be an appeal from any award of the Board to the Supreme Court in banco.

(2) Notice of appeal shall be given within ten days after the award is filed in the office of the Commissioner, and after such notice is given such appeal shall be subject to all the rules of the Supreme Court which are applicable to appeals from the decision of a judge of the Supreme Court.

(3) The notice of appeal shall state whether the whole or part only of the award of the board is complained of, and in the latter case shall specify such part.

32. The Governor in Council may make rules and regulations not inconsistent with the laws of the province for the government of the board.

Prison Labour.

Chapter 75.—18. (1) The Governor in Council may from time to time make regulations directing or authorizing the employment upon any work or duty beyond or in the limits of any common jail of any prisoner who is sentenced to be imprisoned with hard labour in such jail, or who is therein confined for the breach of any law of Canada or of the province of Nova Scotia, or of any by-law of any municipal corporation in the province.

Fire Escapes on Factories.

Chapter 90.—8. Every board [of fire escapes] shall examine all buildings within its jurisdiction which it considers dangerous and not constructed so as to afford ready egress to the inmates in case of fire, and it may order the erection and maintenance of strong and suitable fire escapes on, in and from all buildings where it deems the same necessary. It shall revisit such buildings as often as it deems necessary to see that its orders are carried out and the fire escapes efficiently and properly maintained, and shall meet at regular intervals for the transaction of business.

9. Every board shall pay particular attention to all . . . . . factories . . . . . and other buildings within its jurisdiction in which an unusual number of persons work, congregate or reside; and it shall have power to order the enlargement or alteration of the doors, passage ways, staircases and windows in any such building in such manner as it deems best for the protection of the inmates, and so as to afford a ready means of escape in case of fire or panic.

10. The board may order the alteration of any fire place, chimney, furnace, heating apparatus or pipe for the conveyance of smoke or heated air, when it considers the same dangerous.

11. The board or any of its members may enter in and upon any building or premises within its jurisdiction at all reasonable hours for the performance of its duties, and remain there as long as is necessary to make a thorough examination of the building and its surroundings.

12. The positions of the fire escapes and the way of access to them from the inside of the buildings shall, if required by the board, be indicated by printed notices and coloured lights, or in such other way as the board directs.

13. All fire escapes erected under the provisions of this Chapter, shall always be well painted and maintained in good order, to the satisfaction of the board.

14. The owner of any building in which any fire escape is ordered to be erected or maintained, or any alteration of any door, passage, staircase or window is ordered to be made, shall be notified thereof in writing signed by the chairman of the board or any two of its members; and the mailing of such notices addressed to the owner or his agent, if any, within the district, and leaving a copy thereof on the premises in which the erection, maintenance or alteration is ordered to be made, shall be a sufficient notice to the owner thereof and his agent.

15. No order or direction of the board shall be deemed to have been executed until it has been certified in writing by the chairman or two members of the board that such order or direction has been complied with to the satisfaction of the board.

16. (1) If the owner of a building or his agent who has been required to erect a fire escape or escapes, or to make alterations in his building, differs from the board in opinion as to the necessity for any such fire escape or alteration, or as to the number, kind, size or position of the fire escapes ordered, he shall, on giving written notice to the board, be entitled to be heard before it on a day to be fixed by the board, and may produce witnesses, who shall be examined under oath; and the board shall reconsider the matter, and after hearing such owner or agent and his witnesses make a decision thereon.

(2) Every such decision shall be subject to appeal to arbitrators, one to be chosen by the owner or agent, one by the board, and a third by the two so chosen; and the award of a majority of such arbitrators shall be final.

17. (1) The fees to be paid to the arbitrators on any such appeal shall be such as are fixed by the council of the city, incorporated town or municipality, as the case may be, and such council is hereby empowered to fix the same.

(2) If the decision of the arbitrators is favourable to the person appealing, the fees shall be paid by such city, town or municipality, to be borne in the case of a municipality by the district. If the decision is against the person appealing, such person shall pay the arbitrators' fees.

[Sections 20-23 inclusive provide penalties for violation of the provisions of this Act.]

Railways—Definition of Terms.

Chapter 99.—2. In this Chapter and in the special Act incorporating any railway company to which this Chapter or any part thereof applies, unless the context otherwise requires:—

(a.) The expression "Special Act" means any Act under which the company has authority to construct or operate a railway, or which is enacted with special reference to such railway, and includes all such Acts;

(b.) The expression "company" means a railway company and includes any person having authority to construct or operate a railway;

(j.) The expression "highway" includes any public road, street, lane or other public way or communication;

(k.) The expression "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines;

(q.) The expression "railway" means any railway which the company has authority to construct or operate, and includes all stations, depots, wharves, rolling stock, equipment, property, and works connected therewith, and also any railway bridge or other structure which the company is authorized to construct under a special Act;

(r.) The expression "railway company" or "company" includes any person being the owner or lessee of or a contractor working, any railway constructed or carried on under the powers of any statute of the province;

Railways—Application of Act.

Chapter 99.—3. The provisions of this Chapter shall apply to every railway constructed and in operation or hereafter to be constructed under the authority of any Act passed by the legislature of Nova Scotia, and shall in so far as they are applicable to the undertaking, and unless they are expressly varied or excepted therefrom by the special Act, be incorporated with the special Act, form part thereof, and be construed therewith as forming one Act.

4. For the purpose of excepting from incorporation with the special Act any of the sections of this Chapter, it shall be sufficient in the special Act to enact that the provisions of this Chapter proposed to be excepted, referring to them by the words forming the headings or numbers of such section or subsection, as the case may be, respectively, shall not be incorporated with such Act, and the special Act shall thereupon be construed accordingly.

5. (1.) If in any special Act it is provided that any provision of any general Railway Act in force at the time of the passing of the special Act is excepted from incorporation therewith, or if the application of any such provision is extended, limited or qualified, the corresponding provision of this Chapter shall be excepted, extended, limited or qualified in like manner.

(2.) No special contract or obligation of any company or contractor to complete lines of railway now under construction shall be nullified or varied hereby, and all such contracts and enactments relating thereto, shall remain in full force until such line is completed, and a certificate to that effect is given by the Provincial Engineer, under the authority of the Commissioner. All obligations of such companies or contractors in relation to the operation of such lines of railway now under construction, and all enactments respecting the same after completion, shall remain in full force, and all conditions and specifications shall be fully carried out, as well as the provisions of this Chapter wherein additional restrictions are provided.

6. If in any special Act heretofore passed and under which a company has been organized for the construction of any railway, it is provided that any matter respecting the organization or administration of such company dealt with by this Chapter might be regulated by such company by by-law, and the same has been so dealt with by any such company, the provisions of this Chapter shall not be deemed to repeal such by-law, but the same shall remain in force as though this Chapter had not been passed.

Protection of Railway Employees—Power of Governor to make Regulations.

Chapter 99.—7. (1.) The Governor in Council may,—

(c.) Make regulations with respect to the method of passing from one car to another either inside or overhead, and for the safety of railway employees while passing from one car to another and for the coupling of cars;

(d.) Impose penalties, not exceeding twenty dollars for each offence, on every person who offends against any regulation made under this section, which penalties shall be recoverable upon summary conviction.

(2) The imposition of any such penalties shall not lessen or affect any other liability which any person has incurred.

Railway Bridges, Tunnels, etc.

Chapter 99.—183. (1) Every bridge or other erection or structure or tunnel over or through or under which any railway passes, and every tunnel through which any railway passes, shall, at all times, be so maintained as to admit of an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight cars used in the railway and the bottom of the lower beams, members or portions of that part of such bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, which is over the railway.

(2) The company, before using higher freight cars than those which admit of such open and clear headway of at least seven feet, shall, after having first obtained the consent of the municipality or of the owner of such bridge or other erection, structure or tunnel, raise every such bridge or other erection, structure or tunnel, and the approaches thereto, if necessary, so as to admit of such open and clear headway of at least seven feet.

(3) Whenever, any bridge, erection, structure, or tunnel is constructed over or on the line of a railway, or whenever it becomes necessary to reconstruct any bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, already built over or on the line of a railway, or to make large repairs to the same, such bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, and the approaches thereto, if necessary, shall be constructed, reconstructed or repaired at the cost of the company, or of the municipality, or other owner of the bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, as the case may be, and shall be so constructed and at all times maintained as to admit of an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight cars then used on the railway and the bottom of the lower beams, members or portions of that part of such bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, which is over the railway.

(4) Such company shall thereafter, before using higher freight cars than those used on its railway at the time of the construction or reconstruction of or large repairs to such bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, after having first obtained the consent of the municipality, or of the owner of such bridge, erection, structure or tunnel, raise the said bridge or other erection, structure or tunnel and the approaches thereto, if necessary, so as to admit, as aforesaid, of an open and clear headway of at least seven feet over the top of the highest freight car then about to be used on the railway.

(5) The Governor in Council may exempt from the operations of this section any bridge, erection, structure or tunnel which is upon any portion of any line of railway on all the cars of the trains running upon which air-brakes are used or otherwise.

(6) Every company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars per day for every day of wilful neglect, omission or refusal to obey the provisions of this section.

184. No company shall run its trains on any bridge unless such bridge is constructed and maintained with safeguards approved by the Commissioner. This section shall not apply to any bridge already constructed, until six months after the coming into force of this Chapter.

Inspection of Railways.

Chapter 99.—197.—Whenever the Commissioner receives information to the effect that any bridge, culvert, viaduct, tunnel or any other portion of any railway, or any engine, car or carriage used, or for use on any railway, is dangerous to the public using the same, from want of repair, insufficient or erroneous construction, or from any other cause, or whenever circumstances arise which in his opinion render it expedient, he may direct the Provincial Engineer to examine and inspect the railway or any portion thereof, or of the works connected therewith, or the engines and other rolling stock in use thereon, or any portion thereof, and, upon the report of the Provincial Engineer, may condemn the railway, or any portion thereof, or any of the rolling stock or other appliances used thereon, and, with the approval of the Governor in Council, may require any change or alteration therein or in any part thereof, or the substitution of any new bridge, culvert viaduct or tunnel, or of any material for the said railway; and thereupon the company to which such railway belongs, or the company using, running or controlling the same, shall, after notice thereof in writing, proceed to make good or remedy the defects in the said portions of the railway or in the locomotive, car or carriage which has been so condemned, or shall make such change, alteration or substitution as has been required by the Commissioner.

202. If, in the opinion of the Provincial Engineer, it is dangerous for trains or vehicles to pass over any railway, or any portion thereof, until alterations, substitutions or repairs are made thereon, or that any particular car, carriage, or locomotive should be run or used, the Provincial Engineer may forthwith forbid the running of any train or vehicle over such railway or portion of railway, or the running or using of any such car, carriage or locomotive, by delivering or causing to be delivered to the president, managing director or secretary or superintendent of the company owning, running or using such railway, or to any officer having the management or the control of the running of trains on such railway, a notice in writing to that effect, with his reasons therefor, in which he shall distinctly point out the defects or the nature of the danger to be apprehended; and for every failure to comply therewith such company shall be liable to a penalty of two thousand dollars.

203. The Provincial Engineer shall forthwith report the same to the Commissioner who, with the sanction of the Governor in Council, may either confirm, modify or disallow the act or order of the Provincial Engineer; and notice of such confirmation, modification or disallowance shall be duly given to the company affected thereby.

Rules for Railway Employees.

Chapter 99 with amendment.—206. The company may, subject to the provisions and restrictions in this Chapter and in the special Act contained, make by-laws, rules or regulations for the following purposes, that is to say:—

(b) For the appointment of all officers, servants, and artificers, and for prescribing their respective duties, and the compensation to be made therefor;

(c) For the retirement of such of said officers and servants, on such terms as to an annual allowance or otherwise, as in each case the directors, in the interest of the company's service and under the circumstances, consider just and reasonable:

(i) For regulating the travelling upon, or the using or working of the railway;

(j) For regulating the conduct of the officers, servants and employees of the company:

and

(k) For providing for the due management of the affairs of the company in all respects whatsoever.

207. The company may, for the better enforcing the observance of any such by-law, rule or regulation thereby, prescribe a penalty not exceeding forty dollars for any violation thereof.

208. All by-laws, rules and regulations of the company shall be reduced to writing, be signed by the chairman or person presiding at the meeting at which they are adopted, have affixed thereto the common seal of the company, and be kept in the office of the company.

209. All such by-laws, rules and regulations shall be submitted from time to time to the Governor in Council for approval, and no such by-law, rule or regulation shall have any force or effect until it is approved by the Governor in Council.

211. A printed copy of so much of any by-law, rule or order as relates to the conduct of or affects the officers, servants or employees of the company, shall be given to every officer, servant and employee of the company thereby affected.

212. Such by-laws, rules and regulations, when so confirmed, shall be binding upon and observed by all persons, and shall be sufficient to justify all persons acting thereunder.

213. If the violation or non-observance of any such by-law, rule or regulation is attended with danger or annoyance to the public, or hindrance to the company in the lawful use of the railway, the company may summarily interfere, to obviate or remove such danger, annoyance or hindrance, and without prejudice to any penalty incurred by the violation of such by-law, rule or regulation.

214. A copy of any by-law, rule or regulation certified as correct by the president or secretary of the company, shall be evidence thereof in any court.

The following clauses were added by sections 1 and 2 of Chapter 25 of the Acts of 1906:—

Sections 206 to 214, both inclusive, of chapter 99 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, shall hereafter apply to tramways. 1906, c. 25, s. 1.

In said sections the word "railway" shall include tramway, and the word "Company" shall include any person, firm or corporation having authority to construct or operate a tramway and the words "special Act" shall include any Act under which the company has authority to construct or operate a tramway, or which is erected with special reference to such tramway, and includes all such Acts. 1906, c. 25, s. 2.

Operation of Trains—Safety Appliances, etc.

Chapter 99 with amendment.—235. Every railway company, which runs trains upon the railway for the conveyance of passengers, shall provide and cause to be used in and upon such trains such known apparatus and arrangements as best afford good and sufficient means of immediate communication between the conductors and the engine drivers of such trains while the trains are in motion,—and good and sufficient means of applying, by the power of the steam engine or otherwise, at the will of the engine driver or other person appointed to such duty, the brakes to the wheels of the locomotive or tender, or both, or of all or any of the cars or carriages composing the trains, and of disconnecting the locomotive, tender and cars or carriages from each other by any such power or means,—and also such apparatus and arrangements as best and most securely place and fix the seats or chairs in the cars or carriages,—and shall alter such apparatus and arrangements or supply new apparatus and arrangements, from time to time, as the Governor in Council orders; and every railway company which fails to comply with any of the provisions of this section, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars for every day during which such default continues, and shall, as well, be liable to pay to all such persons as are injured by reason of non-compliance with these provisions, or to their representatives, such damages as they are legally entitled to, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary with regard to any such person.

(2) Every railway company shall before December 31, 1918, equip all rolling stock with couplers which couple automatically by impact, and which can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going in between the ends of the cars. 1918, c. 28, s. 2.

(3) Any railway company which fails to comply with the provisions of the last preceding subsection, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two hundred dollars for each and every failure to comply therewith. 1914, c. 31, s. 1.

236. Every locomotive engine shall be furnished with a bell, of at least thirty pounds weight, and with a steam whistle.

Railway Employees to wear Badges.

Chapter 99.—239. Every servant of the company employed in a passenger train or at a station for passengers, shall wear upon his hat or cap a badge, which shall indicate his office, and he shall not, without such badge, be entitled to demand or receive from any passenger any fare or ticket, or to exercise any of the powers of his office, or to interfere with any passenger or his baggage or property.

Transportation of Explosives.

[Chapter 99, sections 244 and 245, deals with the transportation of explosives.]

Provisions for Safety of Public—Penalty for Negligence of Railway Employees.

Chapter 99.—247. The bell with which the engine is furnished shall be rung or the whistle sounded, at the distance of at least eighty rods from every place at which the railway crosses any highway, and be kept ringing or be sounded at short intervals, until the engine has crossed such highway; and the company shall, for every failure to comply with the provisions of this section, be liable to a penalty of eight dollars, and shall also be liable for all damage sustained by any person by reason of such failure; and a moiety of such penalty and damages shall be chargeable to and collected by the company from the engineer who has charge of such engine, and who neglects to sound the whistle or ring the bell as aforesaid.

Safety Provisions—Packing, etc.

Chapter 99 with amendment.—253. (1) In this section the expression "packing" means a packing of wood or metal, or some other equally substantial and solid material, of not less than two inches in thickness, and which, where by this section any space is required to be filled in, shall extend to within one and a half inches of the crown of the rails in use on any such railway, shall be neatly fitted so as to come against the web of such rails, and shall be well and solidly fastened to the ties on which such rails are laid.

(2) The spaces behind and in front of every railway frog or crossing, and between the fixed rails of every switch where such spaces are less than five inches in width, shall be filled with packing up to the under side of the head of the rail.

(3) The spaces between any wing rail and any railway frog, and between any guard rail and the track rail alongside of it, shall be filled with packing at their splayed ends, so that the whole splay shall be so filled where the width of the space between the rails is less than five inches; such packing not to reach higher than to the under side of the head of the rail: Provided however, that the Governor in Council may allow such filling to be left out, from the month of December to the month of April in each year, both months included.

(4) The oil cups or other appliances used for oiling the valves of every locomotive in use upon any railway, shall be such that no employee shall be required to go outside the cab of the locomotive, while the same is in motion, for the purpose of oiling such valves.

253a. (1) All companies operating steam locomotives, except for yard service, shall on or before the 31st day of December, A.D. 1917, equip such locomotives, as may be in use, with ash pans that can be dumped or emptied without the necessity of any employee going under such locomotives except in cases of emergency; but this shall not apply to any locomotive employed about any railway yard, wharf, pier or mine, provided a sufficient number of ash pits are provided by the company for the purpose of cleaning ash pans in case of such locomotive so used for yard service; nor shall this section apply to roads used solely or mainly for lumbering purposes.

(2) After the said date, it shall be unlawful for any such company to use any such locomotive not equipped as above provided, and every company violating the provisions of the last preceding subsection shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every such violation.

(3) A sufficient number of ash pits shall be provided in all yards for the purpose of cleaning out fires in all engines used for yard service, and any company failing to provide the same shall be liable to a penalty of not less than fifty dollars. 1914, c. 31, s. 2.

253b. (1) The Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Commissioner, may make regulations providing for the testing and inspecting of the locomotive boilers used on railways, may appoint an officer to make such inspection, and may fix fees therefor payable by the railway company, and such regulations shall be published in at least two issues of "The Royal Gazette," and shall be made and come into effect not later than December 31, 1914.

(2) Such regulations may cover all such matters as may be deemed proper to secure a uniform standard of strength, safety and efficiency in the inspection and operation of such locomotive boilers, and any company violating any provision of such regulation shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each and every violation.<sup>1</sup> 1914, c. 31, s. 2.

253c. The two preceding sections shall apply to companies which are exempted by any special or private Act from the provisions of the Nova Scotia Railways Act, as well as companies subject to such Act, and shall apply to every company operating locomotives and rolling stock. 1918, c. 28, s. 1.

253d. (1) The Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Commissioner, may also make regulations with respect to locomotives, rolling stock, apparatus, cattle guards, appliances, signals, methods, devices, structures and work to be used upon any railway, so as to provide means for the due protection of property, the employees of the Company, and the public.

(2) Any such regulation may be made to apply to any particular district, or to any railway or section or portion thereof, or to any companies which are exempted by any special or private Act from the provisions of the Nova Scotia Railways Act, as well as companies subject to such Act, and shall apply to every company operating locomotives and rolling stock, and the Governor in Council may exempt any railway or section or portion thereof from the operation of any such regulation for such time or during such period and upon such conditions as may be deemed expedient, and may determine in such regulation the time within which said regulation shall be complied with. Every regulation made under the provisions of this section shall come into effect on and after a date to be determined in the same, and shall be published in the Royal Gazette for at least two consecutive issues before coming into effect. 1919, c. 45, s. 1.

Railways—Actions for Damages.

Chapter 99.—278. All actions for indemnity for any damages or injury sustained by reason of the railway, shall be commenced within one year next after the time when such alleged damage is sustained, or if there is continuation of damage, within one year next after the doing or committing of such damage ceases, and not afterwards; and the defendants may plead the general issue and give this Chapter and the special Act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and may prove that the same was done in pursuance of and by the authority of this Chapter or of the special Act.

Liability of Railway Companies.

Chapter 99.—279. No inspection had under this chapter, and nothing in this chapter contained, and nothing done or ordered or omitted to be done or ordered, under or by virtue of the provisions of this Chapter, shall relieve, or be construed to relieve, any company of or from any liability or responsibility resting upon it by law, either towards Her Majesty or towards any person, or the wife or husband, parent or child, executor or administrator, tutor or curator, heir or personal representative, of any person, for anything done or omitted to be done by such company, or for any wrongful act, neglect or default, misfeasance, malfeasance, or nonfeasance of such company, or in any manner or way to lessen such liability or responsibility, or in any way to weaken or diminish the liability or responsibility of any such company.

Negligence of Railway Employees.

Chapter 99.—282. Every officer or servant of any company or any person employed by it who directs or knowingly permits any baggage, freight, merchandise or lumber car to be placed in the rear of the passenger cars, shall be guilty of an offence against this Chapter.

Intoxication of Railway Employees.

Chapter 99.—283. Every person who is intoxicated while he is in charge of a locomotive engine, or acting as the conductor of a car or train of cars, shall be guilty of an offence against this Chapter.

284. Every person who sells, gives or barter any spirituous or intoxicating liquors to or with any servant or employee of any company while on duty, is liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, or to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a period not exceeding one month, or to both.

Penalty for Negligence of Railway Employees.

Chapter 99.—285. Every officer or servant of, and every person employed by, the company, who wilfully or negligently violates any of the provisions of this Chapter, or any by-law, rule or regulation of the company lawfully made and enforced, or any order or notice of the Governor in Council, or of the Commissioner or Provincial Engineer, of which a copy has been delivered to him, or which has been posted up or open to his inspection in some place where his work or his duties, or any of them, are to be performed, if such violation causes injury to any person or to any property, or exposes any person or any property to the risk of injury, or renders such risk greater than it would have been without such violation, although no actual injury occurs, shall be guilty of an offence against this Chapter, and shall, in the discretion of the court before which the conviction is had, and according as such court considers the offence proved to be more or less grave, or the injury or risk of injury to person or property to be more or less great, be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both; but no such fine shall exceed four hundred dollars, and no such imprisonment shall exceed the term of five years.

286. If such contravention does not cause injury to any property or person, or expose any person or property to the risk of injury, or make such risk greater than it would have been without such contravention, then the officer, servant or other person guilty thereof, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the amount of thirty days' pay, or less than fifteen days' pay, of the offender from the company, in the discretion of the magistrate before whom the conviction is had.

287. One moiety of such penalty shall belong to Her Majesty for the public uses of the province and the other moiety to the informer, unless he is an officer or servant of, or person in the employ of, the company, in which case the whole penalty shall belong to Her Majesty for the uses aforesaid.

288. The company may, in all cases under the next three preceding sections, pay the amount of the penalty and costs, and recover the same from the offender or deduct it from his salary or pay.

Wages of Railway Employees payable Semi-monthly.

[The following sections were added by Chapter 13 of the Acts of 1916:]—

1. The wages of every person employed on or about a railway, shall be paid twice in each month, at intervals as nearly as possible of half a month. 1916, c. 13, s. 1.

2. At each of such times of payment the wages of such employee shall be paid up to the time of the last preceding time of payment, and any employee who is absent at any such time of payment shall at any time thereafter, on demand, be entitled to be paid his wages up to such last preceding time of payment. 1916, c. 13, s. 2.

3. The owner, agent, superintendent or manager of any railway who contravenes or fails to comply with this section shall each be guilty of an offence against this Chapter. 1916, c. 13, s. 3.

4. In case of any proceeding instituted in respect of an offence against this section:—

(a) Three days' notice of the intention to institute such proceeding shall be given to such owner, agent, superintendent or manager;

(b) Every such proceeding shall be instituted within thirty days from the commission of the offence charged;

(c) The owner, agent, superintendent or manager accused shall not be permitted to set up by way of defence any agreement of hiring inconsistent with this section, and

(d) Any penalty recovered shall be paid to the treasurer of any municipality or town through which the railway runs in respect to which the offence was committed is situated. 1916, c. 13, s. 4.

Company Doctors—Protection of Employees in Choice of Physicians.

Chapter 104 with amendments.—1. This Chapter may be cited as "The Companies' Doctors Act."

2. In any case in which an employer in any mine or manufacturing establishment makes a monthly deduction of wages of employees for medical attendance, any employee of such employer may by writing specify any duly qualified medical practitioner in respect to whose services the employer may deduct a fee from the wages of such employee.

3. The employer shall be bound to recognize the specification of the employees when at least twenty-five per centum of the persons employed at any mine unite in specifying some qualified medical practitioner whose services they desire, in which case such medical practitioner shall be recognized by the employer as a regular medical attendant of the company, and the employer shall, upon request of any qualified medical practitioner, resident in the vicinity of the mine or manufacturing establishment, from time to time, furnish to such practitioner a list of the employees who have specified such medical practitioner as their medical attendant under the provisions of this Act and shall pay over to the medical practitioner or practitioners specified as the medical attendant or attendants, the amounts deducted from the wages of the employees who have united in specifying such practitioner as a regular medical attendant, 1907, c. 24, s. 1, as amended 1909, c. 34, s. 1.

4. Every employer who contravenes or fails to comply with the provisions of this Chapter shall, for each offence, be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars.

Earnings of Married Women.

Chapter 112.—5. Every woman who marries after the coming into force of this Chapter, shall be entitled to have and to hold as her separate property, and dispose of in manner aforesaid, all real and personal property which belongs to her at the time of marriage, or is acquired by, or devolves upon her after marriage, including any wages, earnings, money and property gained or acquired by her in any employment, trade or occupation, in which she is engaged, or which she carries on separately from her husband, or by the exercise of any literary, artistic or scientific skill.

Apprenticeship.

Chapter 117.—1. In this chapter unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) The expression "infant" means a male person under the age of twenty-one, and a female person under the age of eighteen;

(b) The expression "master" means any person to whom an infant is bound apprentice under the provisions of this Chapter and includes "mistress."

2. (1) Infants under the age of fourteen may be bound as apprentices or servants under this Chapter until they reach that age.

(2) Infants above the age of fourteen years may be so bound until,

(a) if males, they reach the age of twenty-one years, or

(b) if females, they reach the age of eighteen years or marry.

3. (1) Infants may be bound,

(a) by their father, or

(b) by their mother if they are illegitimate, or if their father is dead, insane, absent or otherwise incompetent, or

(c) by their guardian, if any is appointed, and both father and mother are dead, insane, absent or otherwise incompetent, or

(d) by themselves, with the approval of two justices of the peace, if they have no parents competent to act and no guardian.

(2) In the case of any infant above the age of fourteen years being bound by his parent or guardian, the consent of such infant shall be expressed in the indenture and signified by his signing the same.

4. The overseers of the poor for any poor district may bind as apprentices or servants the infant children of any person who is in need of relief from such district and has a settlement therein, and also all infants who are themselves in need of such relief and have such settlement, and in such cases the master shall be bound by the indenture of apprenticeship to make provision for the instruction of such apprentices or servants, in reading, writing and arithmetic, and for such other instruction, benefit and allowances, either during the term of apprenticeship or services or at the end thereof, as the overseers think reasonable.

5. (1) No infant shall be bound otherwise than by an indenture in duplicate, executed by both the parties thereto, and when made with the approval of two justices of the peace, such approval shall be in writing signed by them upon each part of the indenture.

(2) One part of the indenture shall be kept for the use of the infant by the parent or guardian executing the same, and when made by the overseers of the poor, or with the approval of two justices of the peace, it shall be deposited with the town clerk or clerk of the municipality for the use of the infant, and the other part thereof shall be kept by the master to whom the apprentice is bound.

6. All considerations of money or other things paid or allowed by the master upon any contract of apprenticeship or service under this Chapter, shall be paid or secured to the sole use of the infant bound thereby.

7. Parents, guardians, justices of the peace and overseers shall inquire into the treatment of all infants bound by them respectively, or with their approval, and in the case of guardians and overseers of all who have been bound by their predecessors in office, and protect them from all cruelty, neglect and breach of contract on the part of their masters.

8. In case of any misconduct or neglect of the master, a complaint may be made in writing by the parents, guardians, justices, or overseers, to any two justices of the peace for the county in which the master resides, setting forth the facts and circumstances of the case, and the justices, after having duly notified the master, shall hear and determine the same.

9. After hearing the parties, or the complainants alone if the master neglects to appear, the justices may order that the infant be discharged from his apprenticeship or service, and give the costs of the proceeding against the master, and may issue execution accordingly, and the infant may be thereupon bound out anew.

10. If the complaint is not sustained, the justices shall award costs against the complainants, and shall issue execution therefor, provided that in case of such a complaint by overseers, the justices shall not award costs against them unless it appears that the complaint was made without reasonable cause.

11. Any person feeling himself aggrieved by the decision of any justices under the next three preceding sections, may appeal therefrom to the county court for the county in which the master resides at its next term in such county, and such appeal shall be perfected and determined in the same manner as in civil actions.

12. If any apprentice or servant bound as in this Chapter unlawfully departs from the service of his master, or is guilty of any gross misbehaviour, or refusal to do his duty, or wilful neglect thereof, any justice of the peace, upon complaint on oath made to him by the master, or by any one on his behalf, may issue a warrant to apprehend the apprentice or servant and bring him before the same or any other justice; and if the complaint is supported, the justice may order the offender to be returned to his master, or may commit him to the common jail for a term not exceeding twenty days, unless sooner discharged by his master.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Assignments.

Chapter 145.—22. Whenever an assignment is made of any real or personal property for the general benefit of creditors under the provisions of this Chapter, the assignee shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the person making the same, the wages or salaries of all persons in the employment of such person at the time of making such assignment or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary; and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims.

Sunday Labour.

Revised Statutes, Third Series, Chapter 159 with amendments.—2. Any person who shall be convicted before a justice of the peace of . . . servile labour, works of necessity and mercy excepted, on the Lord's Day, shall for the first offence forfeit not less than two dollars nor more than ten dollars, and in default of payment shall be committed to jail for a term of not less than forty-eight hours nor more than five days, and shall for a second or any subsequent offence forfeit not less than ten nor more than twenty dollars, and in default of payment shall be committed to jail for a term of not less than five nor more than twenty days, but the penalties against corporations shall be for the first offence the forfeit of a sum of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and for a second or any subsequent offence forfeit not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars. 1889, c. 57, s. 1.

2. The word person in the said section of the said Act shall apply to bodies corporate as well as to individuals, and shall include employer as well as the employed. 1889, c. 57, s. 2 amended 1890, c. 22, s. 1.]

7. Any person who employs or hires, or procures any other person to perform servile labour (works of necessity and mercy excepted) on Sunday, or who directs, allows, permits, or procures any one or more of his servants, workmen or employees to perform servile labour (works of necessity and mercy excepted) on Sunday, is guilty of performing servile labour on Sunday within the meaning of the second section of this Act, and shall for the first offence forfeit not less than the sum of two dollars, nor more than the sum of five dollars, and in default of payment shall be committed to jail for a term of not less than forty-eight hours, nor more than five days; and shall for a second or subsequent offence forfeit not less than the sum of ten dollars, nor more than the sum of twenty dollars, and in default of payment shall be committed to jail for a period of not less than five days nor more than twenty days. 1891, c. 32, s. 1.

8. Any body corporate which employs or hires, or procures, any person to perform servile labour (works of necessity and mercy excepted) on Sunday, or which directs, permits, allows, or procures any one or more of its servants, workmen, or employees to perform servile labour (works of necessity and mercy excepted) on Sunday, is guilty of performing servile labour on Sunday within the meaning of the second section of this Act, and shall for the first offence forfeit not less than the sum of five dollars, and not more than the sum of twenty dollars; and shall for a second or any subsequent offence forfeit not less than the sum of twenty dollars, and not more than the sum of fifty dollars. 1891, c. 32, s. 1.

STATUTES OF 1901.

Inspection and Regulation of Factories.

Chapter 1 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Nova Scotia Factories Act."

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions shall be construed in the manner in the section mentioned.

(1) "Factory" means:

(a) Any premises, building, workshop, structure, room or place wherein, or within the precincts of which, steam, water or other mechanical power is used to move or work any machinery employed in preparing, manufacturing or finishing, or in any process incidental to the preparing, manufacturing or finishing of any article, substance, material, fabric or compound, or is used to aid the manufacturing process carried on there.

(b) Any other building, workshop, structure, room or premises to which this Act is, by the Governor in Council by proclamation published in the Royal Gazette, declared to apply. A part of a factory may for the purpose of this Act be taken to be a separate factory.

(2) "Inspector" means the inspector appointed by order of the Governor in Council under the authority of and for enforcing the provisions of this Act in and for the locality in reference to which such expression applies, and which locality shall be that designated in the order.

(3) "Employer" means any person who in his own behalf or as the manager, superintendent, overseer, or agent for any person, firm, company or corporation, has charge of any factory and employs persons therein.

(4) "Week" means the period between midnight on Sunday night and midnight on the succeeding Saturday night.

(5) "Child" means a person under the age of fourteen years.

(6) "Young girl" means a girl of the age of fourteen years and under the age of eighteen years.

(7) "Women" means a woman of eighteen years of age and upwards.

(8) "Parent" means a parent or guardian of, or a person having the legal custody of, or the control over, or having direct benefit from the wages of any child or young girl.

(9) "Court" means the justices of the peace or stipendiary magistrate before or by whom an action, prosecution or proceeding under the Act is heard, and also, in case of an appeal in any such action, prosecution or proceeding, the court by which such appeal is heard.

(10) "Mill-gearing" comprises every shaft, whether upright, oblique or horizontal, and every wheel, drum or pulley, by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine appertaining to a manufacturing process.

Application.

3. The Governor in Council may, by proclamation published in the Royal Gazette, exempt any building, workshop, structure, room or premises from the operation of this Act, or from any particular part thereof, and such exemption may be of the whole building, workshop, structure, room or premises, or of any particular part thereof, and may be either for an indefinite time or for a limited period, and any such exemption may be revoked in the same manner as it is created.

4. (1) The provisions of this Act which relate:

(a) To the cleanliness or to the freedom from effluvia, or to the overcrowding or ventilation, of a factory; and

(b) To children, young girls and women being, during any part of the times allowed for meals in a factory, employed in the factory or being allowed to remain in any room; and

(c) To the posting up of any notice or abstract in a factory or specifying any matter in the notice so posted up, save and except where such notice is a notice of the name and address of the inspector; and

(d) To sending notice of accidents;

shall not apply where persons are employed at home that is to say to a private house, room or place used as a dwelling in which neither steam, water or other mechanical power is used, and in which the only persons employed are members of the same family dwelling there, though such house, room or place might by reason of the work carried on there be a factory within the meaning of this act.

5. Nothing in this Act shall extend to any person being a mechanic, artisan or labourer, working only in repairing either the machinery in, or any part of, a factory.

Sanitary Provisions.

6. (1) Every factory shall be kept in a cleanly state and free from effluvia arising from any drain, privy or any other nuisance.

(2) A factory shall not be so overcrowded while work is carried on therein as to be injurious to the health of the persons employed therein.

(3) Every factory shall be ventilated in such a manner as to render harmless, so far as reasonably practicable, all the gases, vapours, dust or other impurities generated in the course of the manufacturing process or handicraft carried on therein that may be injurious to health.

(4) In every factory there shall be kept provided a sufficient number and description of privies, earth or water closets, and urinals, for the employees of such factory; such closets and urinals shall at all times be kept clean and well ventilated, and separate sets thereof shall be provided for the use of male and female employees and shall have respectively separate approaches.

(5) A factory in which there is a contravention of this section or of the regulations made for the enforcement of this section, shall be deemed to be kept unlawfully, and so that the health of any person employed therein is likely to be permanently injured, and the employer shall, because thereof, be deemed to be guilty of a contravention of the provisions of this Act.

(6) Without in any way restricting the general application of the foregoing, the following additional provisions shall apply to brass, iron and steel foundries, hereinafter referred to as foundries,—

(a) All entrances to foundries shall be so constructed and maintained as to minimize drafts, and all windows therein shall be maintained in proper condition and repair.

(b) Smoke, steam and gases generated in foundries shall be promptly and effectively removed therefrom, and whenever it is necessary, exhaust fans of sufficient capacity and power properly equipped with piping and hoods, shall be provided and operated to remove such smoke, steam and gases. The milling and cleaning of castings shall be done in rooms not otherwise used during the process of such milling or cleaning, and provision shall be made for confining and collecting the dust arising during the process;

(c) All foundries shall be properly and thoroughly lighted during working hours, and in cold weather proper and sufficient heat shall be provided and maintained therein. The use of heaters discharging smoke or gas into workrooms is prohibited. In every foundry employing five or more moulders, there shall be provided and maintained for the use of employees therein, suitable and convenient washrooms, adequately equipped with proper hot and cold water service; such washrooms shall be kept clean and sanitary and shall be properly heated during the cold weather. Lockers shall be provided for the safe-keeping of employees' clothing, and proper facilities shall be provided for drying the working clothes of the employees. Water-closets used by foundry employees shall be so arranged or located that such employees in passing thereto or therefrom shall not be exposed to outdoor atmospheres and such water-closets shall be properly heated during cold weather. 1915, c. 27, s. 1.

7. (1) In every factory where, contrary to the provisions of this Act, there is any omission act, neglect, or default in relation to any overcrowding, ventilation, drain, privy, earth-closet, water-closet, ash-pit, water supply, nuisance or other matter whereby the health of persons employed in the factory may be affected, the employer shall within a reasonable time take such action thereon as the inspector, acting under the regulations, if any, made in respect of such subjects, notifies the employer to be proper and necessary; and

(2) In every factory where any process is carried on by which dust is generated and inhaled by the workers to an injurious extent, if such inhalation can by mechanical means be prevented or partially prevented, the inspector may, subject to such regulations, if any, as are made in that behalf, direct that such means shall be provided within a reasonable time by the employer, who in such cases shall be bound so to provide them.

(3) A factory in which the provisions of this section are not complied with by the employer shall be deemed to be kept unlawfully and so that the health of any person therein employed is likely to be permanently injured and such employer shall because thereof be deemed to be guilty of a contravention of the provisions of this Act.

8. (1) Where two or more persons occupy or use the same room or premises for carrying on any work or business within the meaning of this Act, and employ in the aggregate six persons or more, no one of such persons employing so many as six, each of the several employers shall be held responsible for providing proper and sufficient water-closets, and the other requirements set forth in the next two preceding sections of this Act: which said sections shall apply to each and every of such employers as if they were partners in all the work or business of the said room or premises.

(2) The inspector may, for the purposes of the next three preceding sections, take with him into any factory a physician, health officer or other officer of the local sanitary authority.

9. (1) No employer shall employ in any factory any child, young girl or woman in such a manner that the health of such child, young girl or woman is likely to be permanently injured.

(2) Every employer who so employs any child, young girl or woman shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months.

10. (1) No employer shall keep any factory in such a condition that the safety of any person employed therein is endangered or the health of any such person is likely to be permanently injured.

(2) Every employer who contravenes or fails to comply with the requirements of this section shall for each such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding three hundred dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year.

Employment and Hours.

11. Except as in this Act otherwise provided no child shall be employed in any factory, and every employer who contravenes this section shall for each offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment not exceeding six months.

11a. (1) Every employer shall, before permitting a person under the age of sixteen years to work in a factory, obtain a certificate of birth from such person or an affidavit proving age, which said affidavit shall be duly sworn by some one having knowledge of the age of such person, before a justice of the peace or some other authority qualified to administer an oath, and keep the same on file at the factory.

(2) The inspector may require the production of such birth certificate or affidavit proving age at any time.

(3) Any employer who employs a person under the age of sixteen years without first having secured a birth certificate or affidavit proving age, or who refuses to produce such birth certificate or affidavit proving age when requested to do so by the Inspector, shall, for each offence, be liable to a fine of not less than ten dollars or more than fifty dollars, or in default of payment to imprisonment for not more than three months.

(4) Such birth certificate shall be in the Form "E" in the Schedule to this Act, and such affidavit shall be in the Form "F" in the schedule to this Act. 1912, c. 56, s. 1.

12. (1) Boys and girls under fourteen years of age may be employed during the months of July, August, September and October in any year in such gathering in and other preparation of fruits or vegetables for canning or desiccating purposes as is required to be done prior to the operation of cooking or other process of that nature requisite in connection with the canning or desiccating of fruits or vegetables.

(2) The place, room or apartment in which such boys or girls are so employed shall be separate from any other wherein the cooking or other process aforesaid, or the canning or desiccating of said fruits or vegetables, is carried on.

13. The Governor in Council may from time to time by Order in Council, notice of which shall be published in the "Royal Gazette," prohibit the employment of girls under the age of eighteen, and boys under the age of sixteen, in factories, the work in which is deemed by the Governor in Council to be dangerous or unwholesome.

14. (1) If a person is found in a factory, except at meal times or while all the machinery of the factory is stopped, or for the sole purpose of bringing food to the persons employed in the factory, such person shall until the contrary is proved, be deemed for the purpose of this Act to have been then employed in the factory.

(2) Yards, playgrounds and places open to the public view, waiting rooms and other rooms belonging to the factory in which no machinery is used or manufacturing process is carried on, shall not be taken to be any part of the factory within the meaning of this section.

(3) Where a child or young girl, is in the opinion of the court, apparently of the age alleged by the informant, it shall lie on the defendant to prove that the child or young girl is not of that age.

15. A child, young girl or woman who works in a factory, whether for wages or not, either in a manufacturing process or handicraft, or in cleaning any part of the factory used for any manufacturing process or handicraft, or in cleaning or oiling any part of the machinery or in any other kind of work whatsoever incidental to or connected with the manufacturing process or handicraft, or connected with the article made, or otherwise the subject of the manufacturing process or handicraft therein shall, save as is otherwise provided by this Act, be deemed to be employed in such factory within the meaning of this Act, and for the purpose of this Act an apprentice shall be deemed to work for hire.

16. (1) It shall not be lawful for a child in the cases provided for by section 12, nor for a boy or girl under the age of sixteen to be employed for more than eight hours in any one day, nor for more than four hours on any Saturday; nor shall it be lawful for any young girl to be employed for more than nine hours in one day. 1909, c. 36, s. 2. as amended 1910, c. 17, s. 20.

(2) In every factory the employer shall allow every child, young girl and woman therein employed not less than one hour at noon of each day for meals; but such hour shall not be counted as part of the time herein limited as respects the employment of children, young girls and women.

(3) If the inspector so directs in writing, the employer shall not allow any child, young girl or woman to take meals in any room wherein any manufacturing process is then being carried on. And if the inspector so directs in writing, the employer shall at his own expense provide a suitable room or place in the factory or in connection therewith for the purposes of a dining and eating room for persons employed in the factory.

17. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, women may during the months of July, August, September and October in any year be employed to a later hour than nine o'clock in the afternoon of any day in any factory wherein the only work or operations carried on relate to or are exclusively such as may be necessary for the canning or desiccating of fruits or vegetables, and the preparation thereof for being so canned or desiccated; but no woman shall be so employed during the said months to a later hour than nine o'clock in the afternoon of any day for more than twenty days in the whole, and in reckoning such period of twenty days, every day on which any woman has been so employed to a later hour than nine o'clock in the afternoon shall be taken into account.

(2) Where under the provisions of this section any woman is employed on any day to a later hour than seven o'clock in the afternoon, she shall, on every such day and in addition to the hour for the noon-day meal provided for by this Act, be allowed not less than forty-five minutes for another or evening meal between five and eight of the clock in the afternoon.

18. (1) Subject to any regulations which may be made in that behalf by the Governor in Council, it shall be lawful for the inspector—

(a) Where any accident which prevents the working of any factory happens to the motive power of any machinery; or

(b) Where from any other occurrence beyond the control of the employer the machinery or any part of the machinery of any factory cannot be regularly worked; or on due proof to his satisfaction of such accident, occurrence, customs or exigency of trade, to give permission for such exemption from the observances of the foregoing provisions of this Act, as will, in his judgement, fairly and equitably to the proprietors of, and to the young girls and women in such factory, make up for any loss of labour from such accident or occurrence or meet the requirements of such customs or exigency of trade.

(2) In the case of the inspector permitting such exemption—

(a) No young girl or woman shall be employed before the hour of six o'clock in the morning, nor after the hour of nine o'clock in the evening; and

(b) The hours of labour for young girls and women shall not be more than twelve and a half in any one day, nor more than seventy-two and a half in any one week; and

(c) Such exemption shall not comprise more than thirty-six days in the whole in any twelve months, and in reckoning such period of thirty-six days every day on which any young girl or woman has been employed over time shall be taken into account; and

(d) During the continuance of such exemption there shall, in addition to the hour for the noon-day meal, hereinbefore provided for, be allowed to every young girl or woman so employed in the factory on any day to an hour later than seven of the clock in the afternoon not less than forty-five minutes for another or evening meal between five and eight of the clock in the afternoon; and

(e) In every factory to, or with respect to which any such permission or exemption is so given, there shall, in compliance with the provisions of this Act respecting the posting up of notices, be posted up a notice specifying the extent and particulars of such exemption. Amended, 1909, c. 36, s. 3.

19. (1) When under the exemptions allowed herein any young girl or woman is employed in any factory on any day for a longer period than is allowed herein, the duration of such employment shall be daily recorded by the employer in a register by the Act required to be kept by such employer. Amended, 1909, c. 36, s. 3.

(2) Notice of the hours between which young girls or women are to be employed during the period of such exemption shall be made in such form as may be required by the regulations made in that behalf by the Governor in Council, and shall be signed by the inspector and by the employer, and shall be hung up during the period affected by such notice, in such conspicuous place or places in the factory as the inspector requires.

20. (1) In every factory—

(a) All dangerous parts of mill-gearing, machinery vats, pans, caldrons, reservoirs, wheel races, flumes, water channels, doors, openings in the floors or walls, bridges, and all other like dangerous structures or places, shall be as far as practicable securely guarded.

(b) No machinery other than steam engines shall be cleaned while in motion if the inspector so directs by written notice.

(c) The openings of every hoistway, hatchway, elevator or well-hole shall be at each floor provided with and protected by good and sufficient trap-doors or self-closing hatches and safety catches, or by such other safeguards as the inspector directs, and such trap-doors shall be kept closed at all times except when in actual use by persons authorized by the employer to use the same.

(d) All elevator cabs or cars, whether used for freight or passengers shall be provided with some suitable mechanical device to be approved by the inspector, whereby the cab or car will be securely held in the event of accident to the shipper, rope or hoisting machinery, or from any similar cause.

(e) Any other particulars which any inspector from time to time considers dangerous, and in regard to which he gives notice to that effect to the employer, shall likewise as far as practicable be secured or securely guarded.

(2) Without in any way restricting the general application of the foregoing, the following additional provisions shall apply to brass, iron and steel foundries, hereinafter referred to as foundries:—

(a) All passageways in foundries shall be constructed and maintained of sufficient width to make the use thereof by employees safe; during the process of casting, such passageways shall not be obstructed in any manner;

(b) The flask, moulding machines, ladles, cranes and apparatus for transporting molten metal in foundries shall be maintained in proper condition and repair, and any such tools or implements that are defective shall not be used until properly repaired. There shall be in every foundry, available for immediate use, an ample supply of lime water, olive oil, vaseline, bandages and absorbent cotton, to meet the needs of workmen in case of burns or other accidents; any other equally efficacious remedy for burns may be substituted for those herein prescribed. 1915, c. 27, s. 2.

(3) A factory in which there is a contravention of this section or of the regulations made for the enforcement of this section shall be deemed to be kept unlawfully, and so that the safety of any person employed therein is endangered. 1915, c. 27, s. 3.

21. (1) A young girl or woman shall not be allowed to clean such part of the machinery in a factory as is mill-gearing, while the same is in motion, for the purpose of propelling any part of the manufacturing machinery.

(2) A young girl shall not be allowed to work between the fixed and traversing part of any self-acting machine while the machine is in motion by the action of steam, water or other mechanical power.

(3) A young girl or woman allowed by an employer to clean or to work in contravention of this section, shall be deemed to be employed by him contrary to the provisions of this Act, and to have contravened such provisions.

22. (1) In every factory—

(a) There shall be such means of extinguishing fire as the inspector, acting under the regulations made in that behalf, directs in writing;

(b) The main inside and outside doors shall open outwardly, and any door leading to or being the principal or main entrance to the factory or to any tower, stairways or fire-escapes therein or belonging thereto, shall not be bolted, barred or locked at any time during the ordinary and usual working hours in the factory.

(2) In the case of factories over two stories in height there shall be provided in every room which is above the ground floor, or in so many of the rooms above the ground floor as the inspector in writing certifies to be in his judgment sufficient, a wire or other rope for every window in the room, or for as many windows in the room as the inspector certifies in writing to be sufficient.

(3) Every such rope shall not be less than three quarters of an inch in thickness, and of sufficient length to reach from the room in which it is kept to the ground below; and every such window of every room shall be provided with proper, convenient and secure fastenings and appurtenances to which one end of the rope may be safely secured or fastened, and the said wire or other ropes shall be kept in a coil or other convenient position in the room.

(4) Every factory three or more stories in height in which persons are employed above the second story, unless supplied with a sufficient number of tower stairways with iron doors, shall be provided with a sufficient number of fire-escapes; such fire-escapes shall consist of an iron stairway with a suitable railing, and shall be connected with the interior of the building by iron doors or windows, with iron shutters, and shall have suitable landings at every story above the first, including the attic, if the attic is occupied as a workroom, and such fire-escapes shall be kept in good repair and free from obstruction or incumbrance of any kind; but any of the requirements of this subsection may be dispensed with in any factory if the inspector so directs.

(5) A factory or workshop in which there is a contravention of this section shall be deemed to be kept unlawfully and so that the safety of any person employed therein is endangered.

23. Where in a factory the owner or hirer of a machine or implement moved by steam, water or other mechanical power, in or about or in connection with which machine or implement young girls or women are employed, is some person other than the employer as defined by this Act, and such young girls or women are in the employment and pay of the owner or hirer of such machine or implement, in any such case, such owner or hirer shall, so far as respects any offence against this Act, which may be committed in relation to such young girls or women, be deemed to be the employer.

24. In case of a fire or accident in any factory occasioning any bodily injury to any person employed therein, whereby he is prevented from working for more than six days next after the fire or accident, a notice shall be sent to the inspector in writing by the employer forthwith after the expiration of the said six days, and if such notice is not so sent the employer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding thirty dollars.

25. In case of an explosion occurring in a factory, whether any person is injured thereby or not, the fact of such an explosion having occurred shall be reported to the inspector in writing by the employer within twenty-four hours next after the explosion takes place. And if such notice is not so sent, the employer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding thirty dollars.

26. (1) Where in a factory any person is killed from any cause, or is injured from any cause in a manner likely to prove fatal, written notice of the accident shall be sent to the inspector within twenty-four hours after the occurrence thereof, and if such notice is not sent, the employer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding thirty dollars.

(2) A notice under this section or under the next two preceding sections may be in the form "B" in the schedule or to the like effect.

Inspection.

27. The Governor in Council may from time to time for the purpose of carrying out this Act,

(1) Make such rules, regulations and orders for enforcing its provisions, and for the conduct and duties of the inspector, as may be deemed necessary.

(2) Appoint one or more inspectors, who shall be paid such salary or compensation as the Governor in Council determines.

(3) Designate and assign in the order appointing any inspector, the locality in and for which he is to be the inspector under this Act.

28. The Governor in Council may from time to time appoint a female inspector for the purpose of carrying out this Act, in addition to the other inspectors by law directed.

29. (1) The inspector shall for the purposes of the execution of this Act, and for enforcing the regulations made under the authority thereof, have power to do all or any of the following things, namely:

(a) To enter, inspect and examine at all reasonable times by day or night any factory and any part thereof when he has reasonable cause to believe that any person is employed therein, and to enter by day any place which he has reasonable cause to believe to be a factory;

(b) To require the production of any register, certificate, notice or document required by this Act to be kept, and to inspect, examine and copy the same;

(c) To take with him in either case a constable into a factory in which he has reasonable cause to apprehend any serious obstruction in the execution of his duty.

(d) To make such examination and inquiry as may be necessary to ascertain whether the provisions of this Act are complied with so far as respects the factory and the persons employed therein;

(e) To examine either alone or in the presence of any other person, as he thinks fit, with respect to matters under this Act, every person whom he finds in the factory, or whom he has reasonable cause to believe to be, or to have been, within the two preceding months employed in a factory, and to require such person to be so examined, and to sign a declaration of the truth of the matters respecting which he is so examined;

(f) For the purposes of any investigation, inquiry or examination made by him under the authority of this Act, to administer an oath to and to summon any person to give evidence;

(g) To exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying this Act into effect.

(2) The employer and his agents and servants shall furnish the means required by the inspector as necessary for an entry, inspection, examination, inquiry, or the exercise of his powers under this Act in relation to such factory.

30. (1) The inspector before entering, in pursuance of the powers conferred by this Act without the consent of the occupier any room or place actually used as a dwelling as well as for a factory, shall on an affidavit or statutory declaration of facts and reasons, obtain written authority to do so from the Governor in Council, or such warrant as is hereinafter mentioned from a justice of the peace or police magistrate.

(2) A justice of the peace or stipendiary magistrate, if satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable cause to suppose that any enactment of this Act is contravened in any such room or place as aforesaid, may in his discretion grant a warrant under his hand, authorizing the inspector named therein, at any time within the period named therein, but not exceeding one month from the date thereof, to enter, in pursuance of this Act, the room or place named in the warrant, and exercise therein the powers of inspection and examination conferred by this Act; and the fines and provisions of this Act with respect to obstruction of the inspector shall apply accordingly.

31. Every inspector under this Act shall be furnished with a formal certificate of his appointment under the hand and seal of the provincial secretary, and on applying for admission to a factory, shall, if required, produce to the employer the said certificate.

32. (1) Every person who—

(a) wilfully delays the inspector in the exercise of any power under this Act; or

(b) who fails to comply with a requisition or summons of the inspector in pursuance of this Act, or to produce any certificate or document which he is required by or in pursuance of this Act to produce; or

(c) who conceals or prevents a child, young girl or woman from appearing before or being examined by the inspector, or attempts so to conceal or prevent a child, young girl or woman; shall be deemed to obstruct an inspector in the execution of his duties under this Act; but no one shall be required under this section to answer any question or to give any evidence tending to criminate himself.

(2) Every person who obstructs an inspector in the discharge of his duties under this Act shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment not exceeding three months.

33. Such annual or other report of the inspector as the Governor in Council from time to time directs shall be laid before the Legislature.

Miscellaneous.

34. (1) Every person shall within one month after he begins to occupy a factory serve on the inspector a written notice containing the name of the factory, the place where it is situated, the address to which he desires his letters to be addressed, the nature of the work, the nature and amount of the moving power therein, and the name of the firm under which the business of the factory is to be carried on, and in default shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding thirty dollars. Such notice may be in the form "C" in the schedule to this Act.

(2) In every factory the employer shall keep, in the form and with the particulars prescribed by any regulations made by the Governor in Council in that behalf, a register of the children, young girls and women employed in that factory, and of their employment, and of other matters under this Act; and shall send to the inspector such extracts from any register kept in pursuance of this Act as the inspector from time to time requires for the execution of his duties under this Act, and in default thereof such employer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding thirty dollars. Such register may be in the form "D" in the schedule to this Act.

35. (1) Any notice, order, requisition, summons and document under this Act may be in writing or print, or partly in writing and partly in print.

(2) Any notice, order, requisition, summons and document required or authorized to be served or sent for the purposes of this Act, may be served and sent by delivering the same to or at the residence of the person on or to whom it is to be served or sent, or, where that person is an employer within the meaning of this Act, by delivering the same, or a true copy thereof, to his agent, or to some person in the factory of which he is employer; it may be also served or sent by post by a prepaid letter, and if served or sent by post shall be deemed to have been served and received respectively at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.

(3) In proving such service or sending, it shall be sufficient to prove that it was properly addressed and put into the post; and where it is required to be served on or sent to an employer it shall be deemed to be properly addressed if addressed to him at the factory in respect of which he is employer, with addition of the proper postal address, but without naming the person who is the employer.

36. Every person who—

(a) wilfully makes any false entry or statement in any register, notice, certificate or document required by this Act; or

(b) wilfully makes use of any such false entry or declaration, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months. 1912, c. 56, s. 2.

37. (1) There shall be posted up at each entrance of a factory and in such other parts thereof as the inspector directs, and be kept constantly so posted up, in such position as to be easily read by the persons employed in the factory—

(a) Notice of the hours during which children, young girls and women may be employed, and of such other provisions of this Act and of any regulations made thereunder as the inspector deems necessary to enable the persons employed in the factory to become acquainted with their rights, liabilities and duties under this Act.

(b) The name and address of the inspector.

(c) A notice of the clock (if any) by which the period of employment and times for meals in the factory are regulated.

(d) Every other notice or document (if any) required by this Act or any regulation made thereunder to be posted up in the factory.

(2) The notice required by this section may be in the form "A" in the schedule to this Act or to the like effect.

(3) Every employer who contravenes or fails to comply with the requirements of this section shall for each such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment not exceeding three months.

Penalties and Proceedings.

38. The parent of any child or young girl employed in a factory in contravention of this Act, shall unless such employment is without the consent, connivance or wilful default of such parent, be guilty of an offence in contravention of this Act, and shall for each offence be liable to a penalty of not more than fifty dollars and costs of prosecution, and in default of immediate payment of such fine and costs to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

39. Every employer or other person who contravenes or fails to comply with any provision of this Act or of any regulation, rule or order made under the authority thereof by the Governor in Council in respect to which no penalty is specifically provided, shall for each such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

40. If a factory is not kept in conformity with this Act, the court, in addition to, or instead of inflicting a fine, penalty or other punishment upon the employer may order certain means to be adopted by the employer, within the time named in the order, for the purpose of bringing his factory into conformity with the Act; the court may also upon application enlarge the time so named, but if, after the expiration of the time as originally named or enlarged by subsequent order, the order is not complied with, the employer shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day that such non-compliance continues.

41. Where the employer is charged with an offence against this Act, he shall be entitled upon information duly laid by him, to have any other person whom he charges as the actual offender brought before the court or tribunal at the time appointed for hearing the charge; and if after the commission of the offence has been proved, the employer proves to the satisfaction of the court that he had used due diligence to enforce the execution of the Act, and that the said other person had committed the offence in question without the knowledge, consent or connivance of him, the employer, the said other person shall be summarily convicted of such offence, and the employer shall be exempt from any fine, penalty or punishment.

42. Where it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the inspector at the time of discovering the offence;

(a) That the employer has used all due diligence to enforce the execution of this Act; and

(b) By what person such offence was committed, and

(c) That it was committed without the knowledge, consent or connivance of the employer and in contravention of his orders; the inspector shall proceed against the person whom he believes to be the actual offender in the first instance, without first proceeding against the employer.

43. Where an offence for which an employer is liable under this Act to a penalty has in fact been committed by some agent, servant, workman or other person, such agent, servant, workman or other person shall be liable to the same penalty for such offence as if he were employer.

44. A person shall not be liable in respect to a repetition of the same kind of offence from day to day to any larger penalty than the highest penalty fixed by this Act for the offence except:

(1) where the repetition of the offence occurs after an information has been laid for the previous offence, or

(2) where the offence is one of employing two or more children, young girls or women, contrary to the provisions of this Act.

45. All money or penalties in money imposed or recovered under or in pursuance of this Act, shall be paid by the convicting justices or stipendiary magistrate, as the case may be to the inspector, who shall forthwith pay the same over to the treasurer of the province to and for the use of the province.

46. The following provisions shall have effect with respect to summary proceedings for penalties under this Act;

(1) The information shall be laid within two months, or, where the offence is punishable at discretion by imprisonment, within three months after the offence has come to the knowledge of the inspector.

(2) The description of an offence in the words of this Act, or in similar words shall be sufficient in law.

(3) Any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification whether it does or does not accompany the description of the offence in this Act, may be proved by the defendant, but need not be specified or negatived in the information, and if so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matter so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the informant

(4) It shall be sufficient to allege that a factory is a factory within the meaning of this Act without more.

(5) It shall be sufficient to state the name of the ostensible employer, or the title of the firm by which the employer employing persons in the factory is usually known.

STATUTES OF 1902.

Hours of Labour in Halifax Shops.

Chapter 43 with amendments—1. This Act may be cited as "The Halifax Early Closing Act."

2. In this Act and in any ordinance passed under the provisions of this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression "shop," means any building or portion of a building, booth, stall, or place, where goods are exposed or offered for sale, wholesale or retail.

The expression "closed" means not open for the serving of any customers; provided that nothing in this Act or in any ordinance passed under its provisions, shall be deemed to render unlawful the continuance in a shop after the hour appointed for the closing thereof of any customers who were in the shop immediately before that hour, or the serving of such customers during their continuance therein.

The expression "city" means the city of Halifax.

The expression "council" means the city council of the city of Halifax.

3. Neither this Act, nor any ordinance passed under the provisions of this Act, shall apply where the trade or business carried on in any shop is solely that of an hotel, tavern, victualizing house or refreshment house. 1920, c. 88, s. 1.

4. Any of the persons occupying shops in the City may present a petition to the Council praying that an ordinance be passed directing that every shop occupied by any person within the City engaged in trade in a particular class or particular classes of merchandise mentioned in the petition shall be closed and remain closed on each or any day of the week until five of the clock on the morning of the following day and at and during the time specified in said petition. 1920, c. 88, s. 2.

5. Every such petition shall be signed by not less than seventy-five per cent of the persons engaged in the particular class or classes of trade specified in the petition. 1920, c. 88, s. 3.

6. (1) Any person signing any such petition shall state opposite his signature the street and number of the shop or store occupied by him, and the trade in which he is engaged, and if he is engaged in more than one class of trade, the principal one of such trades.

(2) If a petition is delivered to the city clerk or his assistant, it shall be deemed to have been presented to the council, and the clerk shall lay such petition before the council at its next meeting:

7. Upon the receipt of any such petition the council shall refer the question as to whether the petition has been signed by the requisite two-thirds [seventy-five per cent] of the persons affected thereby to the city assessors, who shall report to the council thereon within three weeks.

8. Upon being satisfied that the petition has been signed by the requisite two-thirds [seventy-five per cent] of the persons to be affected, the council shall pass an ordinance as therein prayed for, or in respect to the shops engaged in the trade or trades specified in the petition, and in respect to which two-thirds [seventy-five per cent] of the persons affected have signed the petition.

9. If more than one trade is specified in the petition the ordinance shall specify those trades only in respect to which the requisite two-thirds [seventy-five per cent] of the persons [affected have signed the petition, but the fact that in respect to one or more of the trades specified in the petition, the requisite number of signatures have not been obtained, shall not prevent the council passing an ordinance in relation to the trade or trades in respect to which the requisite number of persons have signed.

10. A shop in which trades in two or more classes of merchandise are carried on, one of which is specified in any ordinance passed under this Act, shall be closed for the purpose of all such trades at the times and hours at which it is by any such ordinance required be closed.

11. Every such ordinance shall take effect at a date named herein, being not less than one nor more than two weeks after the passing thereof, and shall before that date be published in such manner as to the council appears best suited to insure the publicity thereof.

12. The council shall not have the power to repeal an ordinance passed under the provisions of this Act except as hereinafter provided.

13. If at any time it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the council that more than two-thirds [seventy-five per cent.] in number of the occupiers of shops to which an ordinance passed under the provisions of this Act relates or of any class of such shops, are opposed to the continuance of such ordinance, or the part thereof referring to such class, the council may repeal the said ordinance or may repeal the same in so far as it affects such class of shops as aforesaid, but any such repeal shall not affect the power of the council thereafter to pass another ordinance under the provisions of this Act.

14. Any person who violates any of the provisions of this Act, or of any ordinance passed under the provisions of this Act, shall for each offence be liable to a penalty of not less than fifteen dollars for the first offence, twenty-five dollars for the second offence, and fifty dollars for the third offence. 1920, c. 88, s. 4.

15. In any prosecution for an offence against this Act or any ordinance passed under its provisions the burden of proving that a petition in compliance with this Act was not presented to the council by the requisite number of the occupiers of the shops or the class of shops required to be closed by an ordinance passed, or purporting to be passed, under the provisions of this Act, shall in all cases, and for all purposes, be upon the person asserting that such petition was not so presented.

16. When an offence for which the occupier of a shop is liable under this Act, or any ordinance passed under its provisions, to any penalty, has in fact been committed by some agent or servant of such occupier, such agent or servant shall, as well as the occupier, be liable to the same penalty as if he were the occupier.

17. Where the occupier of a shop is charged with an offence against any ordinance, she shall be entitled upon information duly laid by him to have any other person whom he charges to be the actual offender brought before the court at the time appointed for hearing the charge; and if, after the commission of the offence has been proved, the said occupier proves to the satisfaction of the court that he has used due diligence to enforce the execution of the provisions of the ordinance, and that the said other person committed the offence in question without his knowledge, consent or connivance, or wilful neglect or default, the said occupier shall be exempt from any penalty; but the said other person may thereupon be summarily convicted of such offence, and shall be liable to the same penalty therefor as if he were the occupier.

18. All penalties imposed or recovered under or in pursuance of this Act, or any ordinance passed under this Act, shall be paid into the city clerk for the city of Halifax.

19. All prosecutions under this Act, or any ordinance passed under the provisions of this Act, shall be heard before the stipendiary magistrate in and for the city of Halifax.

20. Chapter 29 of the Acts of 1896 and Acts in amendment thereof are repealed.

STATUTES OF 1903.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Executions.

Chapter 14 with amendment.—24. (1) Where the amount levied by the sheriff is not sufficient to pay the execution debts and other claims with costs in full, the money shall be applied, after retaining the sheriff's fees and after payment in full of the taxed costs and the costs of the execution, to the creditor at whose instance and under whose execution seizure and levy were made, to the paying in priority to all other claims the wages or salaries of all persons in the employment of the execution debtor at the time of the levy or within one month before the making of the levy, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, and such persons shall be entitled to rank rateably with other creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims. If, however, there be not sufficient money, after paying the costs and fees as hereinbefore provided, to pay in full said privileged claim for wages or salaries, such claims shall be paid rateably. After the payment of the sheriff's fees, and the taxed costs and the costs of the execution and of said privileged claims for wages or salaries as herein provided, then the balance, if any, of the moneys in the hands of the sheriff shall be applied to the payment rateably, of all other debts and costs of the creditors who have complied with the provisions of this Act. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

Industrial Disputes—Arbitration and Conciliation.

Chapter 37.—1. (1) Any board which is constituted for the purpose of settling disputes between employers and workmen by conciliation or arbitration, or any association or body authorized by an agreement in writing made between employers and workmen to deal with such disputes (in this Act referred to as a conciliation board), may apply to the Provincial Secretary for registration under this Act.

(2) The application must be accompanied by copies of the rules and regulations of the conciliation board, with such other information as the Provincial Secretary may reasonably require.

(3) The Provincial Secretary shall keep a register of conciliation boards, and enter therein with respect to each registered board, its name and principal office, and such other particulars as the Provincial Secretary may think expedient, and any registered conciliation board shall be entitled to have its name removed from the register on sending to the Provincial Secretary a written application to that effect.

(4) Every registered conciliation board shall furnish such returns, reports of its proceedings, and other documents, as the Provincial Secretary may require.

(5) The Provincial Secretary may, on being satisfied that a registered conciliation board has ceased to exist or to act, remove its name from the register.

(6) Subject to any agreement to the contrary, proceedings for conciliation before a registered conciliation board shall be conducted in accordance with the regulations of the board in that behalf.

2. (1) Where a difference exists or is apprehended between an employer, or any class of employers, and workmen, or between different classes of workmen, the Provincial Secretary may, if he thinks fit, exercise all or any of the following powers, namely: —

(a) To cause an inquiry to be made into the causes and circumstances of the difference;

(b) Take such steps as the Provincial Secretary may deem expedient for the purpose of enabling the parties to the difference to meet together, by themselves or their representatives, under the presidency of a chairman, mutually agreed upon or nominated by the Provincial Secretary or by some other person or body, with a view to the amicable settlement of the difference.

(c) On the application of the employers or workmen interested, and after taking into consideration the existence and adequacy of means available for conciliation in the district or trade and the circumstances of the case, appoint a person or persons to act as conciliator or a board of conciliation;

(d) On the application of both parties to the difference appoint an arbitrator.

(2) If any person is so appointed to act as conciliator he shall inquire into the causes and circumstances of the difference by communication with the parties, and otherwise shall endeavour to bring about a settlement of the difference, and shall report his proceedings to the Provincial Secretary.

(3) If a settlement of a difference is effected, either by conciliation or arbitration, a memorandum of the terms thereof shall be drawn up and signed by the parties or their representatives, and a copy thereof shall be delivered to and kept by the Provincial Secretary.

3. If it appears to the Provincial Secretary that in any district or trade adequate means do not exist for having disputes submitted to a conciliation board for the district or trade, he may appoint any person or persons to inquire into the conditions of the district or trade, and confer with the employers and employed, and if the Provincial Secretary thinks fit, with any local authority or body, as to the expediency of establishing a conciliation board for the district or trade.

4. A board of conciliation shall consist of three members nominated by the employers, and three by the workmen. Each party shall send to the other within one week from January 1 in each year the names of six persons, from whom three shall be selected to act as their representatives on the board of conciliation for the current year, ending December 31, and in the event of death or resignation of any member, either party shall appoint another member within one week, notice being given thereof. The number of representatives of the employers and of the workmen on a board of conciliation shall always be equal, and shall be so maintained during all sittings.

5. A board of conciliation so constituted, if unable to agree, shall make application to the Provincial Secretary for the appointment of a person to act as arbitrator.

6. Boards of conciliation shall have power to decide all questions arising between the employer and the workmen, including any questions between one trade and another as regards demarcation of labour, or other matters, provided that for the decision of any question involving claims or rights of other sections of the building or other trades a joint conciliation board shall be constituted of the three representatives nominated by each trade involved, and by a similar number of representatives of the employers, so that members on the joint conciliation board may be specially represented on such board, and so that the number of representatives of the employers and of the workmen on such joint conciliation board shall be equal, and so maintained during the sitting.

7. A joint conciliation board shall have the like powers as the conciliation board and be regulated in the same manner.

8. A conciliation board or a joint conciliation board shall have power to make such rules and regulations for the transaction of business as they may approve.

9. Upon a difference arising between an employer and any of his workmen, or upon the works of the employer, from any cause whatever, the subject matter of dispute shall be referred to the board of conciliation, which shall be summoned within seven days, and, if practicable, shall give its decision within the next six working days.

10. In the event of an application being made to the Provincial Secretary, or a person being appointed as arbitrator, the decision of such person, or the conciliation board shall be final and binding on both parties.

11. The Provincial Secretary shall from time to time present to the Legislature a report of his proceedings under this Act.

12. This Act may be cited as the Conciliation Act, 1903.

STATUTES OF 1906.

Prison Labour.

Chapter 41.—2. When any person is committed to any jail under a commitment requiring hard labour such hard labour may be performed either in the jail, the jail yard or any part of the jail limits, or in any place within the county in which such jail is situated.

4. The council of any municipality may make by-laws and regulations for the proper enforcement and carrying out of commitments requiring hard labour in the jail, the jail yard or within the county in which such jail is situated.

5. The sheriff shall at any and all times, on the written order of the warden of the municipality or the chairman of any committee appointed in relation to hard labour sentences, or any person designated by the municipal council, deliver to any person named in such order, any person in his custody who is committed to jail to suffer imprisonment with hard labour, for the purpose of performing such hard labour, and the sheriff shall not be liable for the escape of any person while engaged in the performance of such hard labour without the jail.

STATUTES OF 1907.

Vocational Training—Technical Schools—Schools for Miners.

Chapter 1 with amendment.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Technical Education Act."

Director of Technical Education.

2. (1) The Governor in Council may appoint a person to be Director of Technical Education, who shall be an officer of the Council of Public Instruction, and shall be paid such annual salary (and receive such allowances) as the Governor in Council determines.

(2) The Council of Public Instruction shall, upon the recommendation of the Director, provide the Director with such assistants as may be found necessary, and shall define their duties and fix the salaries they shall receive.

3. The duties of the Director of Technical Education shall be as follows:—

(a) To exercise general supervision over the conduct and management of all schools established or carried on under the provisions of this Act;

(b) To report to and advise the Council as to all matters relating to engineering, mining and industrial education;

(c) To promote the establishment and efficiency of local technical schools and other schools under his supervision;

(d) To report annually to the Legislature on the state of technical education in the province, and as to the condition and efficiency of the schools under his supervision, with detailed accounts of the expenditure of the moneys appropriated for the support of the same;

(e) Such other duties as the Council of Public Instruction from time to time prescribes.

4. The Governor in Council, on behalf of the province, may accept, take, hold and administer any gifts, bequests, or devises of real or personal property of every kind which may be made for the furtherance of any of the objects of this Act.

Local Technical Schools.

13. The Governor in Council may from time to time establish, in such places as it may be deemed advisable, local technical schools to furnish industrial education of such character and extent as will most effectively meet the requirements of the population and industries of the locality.

14. No such local technical school shall be established until the necessity or desirability thereof, the amount of local aid to be furnished, the facilities which can be afforded and the advantages to be derived have been reported upon by the Director of Technical Education, and he has recommended the establishment of such school.

15. (1) The Council of Public Instruction may make such rules and regulations as they deem advisable for the support, conduct and management of the school.

(2) Subject to such regulations the Council may associate the board of school commissioners of the place in which the school is established, or a committee thereof, or any person or persons with the Director in the management of any local technical school.

16. The Council of Public Instruction shall, upon the recommendation of the Director, appoint such instructors as may be required for the carrying on of such schools and shall fix their salaries.

17. Such sums as may be required in addition to the local aid provided for the establishment and maintenance of the local technical schools shall be paid out of the provincial treasury.

17a. The council of any city, town or municipality may grant such amount as is deemed expedient towards the support of a local technical school, and may include such amount in the annual estimates, and such amount shall be rated and collected annually in the same manner and with the same remedies as other rates and taxes. 1908, c. 66, s. 1.

Schools for Miners.

18. The schools of instruction for miners established under the provisions of chapter 22 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, "Of Schools of Instruction for Miners," are hereby continued and hereafter the establishment and maintenance of such schools shall be under the direction of the Council of Public Instruction.

19. Such schools shall be for the purpose of instructing persons who wish to prepare themselves to undergo examination by the board of examiners for the purpose of obtaining certificates of competency as underground managers or overmen or stationery engineers, under the provisions of "The Coal Mines Regulation Act," and amendments thereto.

20. All such schools shall be under the supervision and control of the Director of Technical Education.

21. (1) The instructors in such schools shall be appointed by the Council of Public Instruction upon the recommendation of the Director.

(2) Such instructors shall be paid such salaries as the council determines.

22. No teacher in any such school shall take from any intending candidate any fee for the instruction given by him; provided however, that this provision shall not apply in the case of any person desiring instruction but not contemplating examination for a certificate.

23. No fee shall be charged by the board of examiners to candidates who have been prepared at any school established or continued under the authority of this Act.

24. All expenditure necessary for the establishment and maintenance of said schools, including buildings, rent, apparatus, instruments, instruction, fuel, light, and incidental expenses shall be defrayed out of the provincial treasury on the certificate of the Director of Technical Education.

25. The Council of Public Instruction may from time to time make such regulations as are necessary or expedient for the conduct and management of said schools, and may amend or repeal the same.

26. Chapter 22 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, "Of Schools of Instruction for Miners," is repealed.

STATUTES OF 1908.

Miners' Relief Societies.

Chapter 2. [Not yet in force.]—1. Every person employed in or about the coal mines of Nova Scotia, and in connection with the works incidental thereto, and every person who may hereafter be so employed, shall, by reason of such employment, be and become a member of "The Nova Scotia Colliery Workers' Provident Society" hereinafter called "The Society," which is hereby constituted a body corporate under said name: Provided, however, that any person becoming a member of this Society, after the coming into force of this Act, suffering from chronic disease or the recurring effects of injuries received, may be excluded from membership in the Society or any branch society formed hereunder.

2. When or so soon as thirty persons are employed in any coal mine, and in connection with the works incidental thereto, a Branch of such Society shall be formed to be known as "The Nova Scotia Colliery Workers' Provident Society" (name of mine) Branch.

3. There shall be a board to be known as "The Nova Scotia Colliery Workers' Provident Society and Old Age Pension Board," hereinafter called "The Board," which shall consist of the following persons:—

The Commissioner of Works and Mines, who shall be Chairman; the Provincial Treasurer, who shall be Treasurer; the Deputy Commissioner of Works and Mines, who shall be Secretary. One person to be appointed annually by an official in the employ of the coal mine owners, or, if they fail to appoint such person, then such person shall be appointed by the Governor in Council from among such mine owners; and two persons to be appointed for a term of three years by the Branch Societies hereinbefore referred to. The Board shall meet at such times as it may appoint in the City of Halifax, and the members shall receive such remuneration for their services as the Governor in Council may determine.

4. Such Board shall have power to make all necessary regulations and orders for the organization, administration and government of such Society and the Branches thereof, and for a scheme providing old age and total disability pensions for the members thereof, which regulations having been approved by the Governor in Council, shall have the force of law, and particularly, but not so as to limit the general powers hereinbefore conferred, the Board shall have power to make regulations and orders touching the following subjects:—

(a) Providing a constitution for such Branch Societies.

(b) Appointing all necessary officers to inspect the books, affairs and administration of such Branch Societies.

(c) Formulating a scheme providing old age and total disability pensions for the members of the Society and determining the sums to be contributed in aid thereof by the members and the coal mine owners.

5. On coming into force of this Act the Board shall forthwith convene in the city of Halifax a Council consisting of one representative from each Branch of the Society for the purpose of electing the two representatives mentioned in paragraph three hereof; and a similar council shall be convened once in three years in the same place for the same purpose; the outlay for the travelling expenses and necessary loss of time of each representative shall be paid by each branch. In addition to the power of appointing such representatives the Council shall have the right to suggest to the Board a revision of the Branch Constitution and changes in the regulations for the Old Age Pension Fund.

6. The Board shall act as custodian of all funds in excess of the sum of one thousand dollars in the hands of any Branch, and so that at no time shall any Branch have more than the sum of one thousand dollars in its possession, and such sums shall be kept intact to the credit of each Branch, and may by the Board be invested in the securities authorized by law for the investment of trust funds.

7. The owner of every coal mine shall without any order retain the monthly dues payable to the Branch by every member thereof, and shall pay over to the proper officer of such Branch the amounts so retained, or if no Branch is organized he shall remit the same to the Treasurer of the Board. The owner shall also, without any order, retain the monthly contribution payable by each member to the Pension Fund, and remit the same to the Treasurer of the Board. No fee or allowance whatsoever shall be due or payable to any owner or employee of such owner for such retention or paying over of the said dues.

8. The financial and other affairs of each Branch Society shall be managed by a committee to consist of seven persons, four of whom shall be appointed by the members at their annual meeting, one person to be nominated by the owner, and two persons to be nominated by the Board. The committee shall from their number appoint all necessary officers for the transaction of the business of the Branch, and shall in all matters be subject to the constitution and to the regulations of the Board.

9. The Governor in Council may annually pay to the Treasurer of the Board, or if a Branch Society is established, to the Treasurer of such Branch, a sum not in excess of twelve and one-half cents per month for each member, and such sums shall be payable quarterly, provided that the sum or sums so paid shall not in the aggregate exceed in any year eighteen thousand dollars. The Governor in Council may also annually pay to the Treasurer of the Board a sum not in excess of twelve and one-half cents per month for each member in aid of an old age pension and total disability provision for the members of the Society, such sum to be payable quarterly, provided that such sum shall not in any year exceed eighteen thousand dollars.

10. (1) The owner of every coal mine shall pay to the Treasurer of the Branch Society organized in connection with such mine, the sum of six and one-half cents per month for each member, and such owner shall also on or before the 1st day of October in each year pay to the Treasurer of the Board in aid of the Old Age Pension Fund the sum of seventy-five cents for each member.

(2) Where at any coal mine less than thirty persons are employed, the owners thereof shall be exempted from payment of the contribution to the Society hereinbefore mentioned; provided, however, that the Board shall have power to appoint any agent or representative at such mine with such powers as to the Board may seem proper.

11. The Board shall forthwith establish an Emergency Fund for the purpose of enabling special aid to be granted in cases of serious disaster at any coal mine, or in such special cases as to the Board may seem reasonable. The Board are hereby authorized to pay and apply to such Emergency Fund the sum of ten per centum of all surplus funds deposited with the Board as aforesaid. The Treasurer of each Branch Society shall annually on or before the first day of October in each year remit to the Treasurer of the Board the sum of thirty cents per capita for each member, which sums shall by the Board be paid and applied to the Emergency Fund. The Governor in Council may also annually pay to the Treasurer of the Board in aid of the said Emergency Fund a sum not in excess of two thousand dollars.

12. So soon as the said Emergency Fund with accumulated interest amounts to fifty thousand dollars, it shall be available for the support of the widows of members of the Society in accordance with regulations to be framed by the Board; and when and so soon as said Emergency Fund with accumulated interest amounts to one hundred thousand dollars, it shall be available for the support of the children of deceased members, in accordance with regulations to be framed by the Board.

13. The Relief given by any Society or Fund established under authority of this Chapter, whether to persons injured, or to children or other dependent relations, shall be exempt from attachment and from levy under execution for debt of any kind.

14. Nothing in this Chapter shall affect the liability of any persons or corporation for damages resulting from any wrongful act, neglect or default.

15. Sections 1 to 16, both inclusive of this Act shall come into force when and so soon as proclaimed by the Governor in Council by publication in the "Royal Gazette," and when and so soon as this Act is proclaimed, Chapter 23 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, is repealed, and all contracts made thereunder shall cease and have no further operation.<sup>1</sup>

16. Notwithstanding the repeal of Chapter 23, Revised Statutes, the assets, contracts, liabilities and obligations of each Relief Society organized in accordance with the provisions of said Chapter, shall continue to be the assets, contracts, liabilities and obligations of the Branch organized in substitution therefor.

17. All contracts or agreements made under Chapter 23 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, "Of Miners' Relief Societies," which are now in force, shall remain in operation until sections 1 to 16, both inclusive, of this Act come into force, unless any of such contracts or agreements are sooner terminated by any of the parties thereto.

Protection of Employees as Voters.

Chapter 6.—94. Every person who, directly or indirectly, by himself, or by any other person on his behalf, makes use of or threatens to make use of any force, violence or restraint, or inflicts or threatens the infliction by himself or by or through any other person of any injury, damage, harm or loss, or in any manner practices intimidation upon or against any person in order to induce or compel such person to vote or refrain from voting, or on account of such person having voted or refrained from voting at any election, or who by abduction, duress or any fraudulent device or contrivance impedes, prevents or otherwise interferes with the free exercise of the franchise of any voter, or thereby compels, induces or prevails upon any voter either to give or refrain from giving his vote at any election, shall be deemed to have committed the offence of undue influence, and shall be liable to forfeit the sum of two hundred dollars to any person who sues for the same, with costs.

STATUTES OF 1911.

Crown Mines—Inspection—Fair Wages.

Chapter 10 with amendment.—7. It shall be the duty of the Inspector [of Mines] and of the deputy inspectors, under his direction,—

(a) to visit and inspect, from time to time, the various mines belonging to, or under license or lease from, the Crown;

(b) to ascertain that the laws, stipulations and agreements relative to the working and management of such mines, and to the payment of rent and royalties, accruing therefrom, are complied with, and that the mines are being worked in a scientific, workmanlike and effective manner, and with due regard to the maintenance of the value of such mines, and to the safety and protection of the persons employed therein;

(c) to report from time to time to the Commissioner in regard to such matters.

[Section 57, as amended by 1914, chapter 57, section 3, provides that whenever any mine lease becomes forfeited under the provisions of the Act, and it becomes necessary in the interests of the Crown, that the area covered by such lease and the plant connected therewith should be taken possession of on behalf of the Crown, the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines shall take possession of such area. Section 58, as amended by 1914, Chapter 10, sections 4 and 5, empowers the Commissioner under certain circumstances to operate any mine in such area. He is also empowered to employ skilled and other workmen for the purpose, and if necessary to require the assistance of any person; and any person who has been required to assist the Commissioner and who neglects to do so without reasonable excuse is liable to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for not less than three months.

Section 59 provides for the remuneration of those employed as follows:—]

59. All persons so employed by, or required to assist the Commissioner, shall be paid such wages or remuneration as shall be fixed by the Commissioner, not, however, to be less than the usual and customary wages paid at such mine for the respective classes of services performed.

Street Railway Employees—Protection—Qualifications—Rest Days—Hours of Labour.

Chapter 11, with amendments.—7. On and after the first day of December in the year nineteen hundred and eleven, all street cars in use for the transportation of passengers in the months of November, December, January, February and March, in each year, shall have their platforms all enclosed in such manner as to protect the motorman, conductors or other employees who operate such cars, from exposure to wind and weather in such manner as the Board shall approve.

8. A street railway company which fails or neglects to comply with the provisions of the preceding section shall be liable to a penalty of not more than twenty-five dollars for each day during which such neglect continues.

16. (a) On and after March 1, 1915, all cars thirty feet or more in length shall be equipped with efficient air brakes and with suitable seating arrangements for the use of the motormen, while operating such cars; provided, however, that the Board may specify districts in which the seats may not be used by the motormen. 1914, c. 58, s. 2.

[Cars less than thirty feet in length are to be equipped with brakes of the kind approved by the Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities. 1913, c. 52, s. 1.]

16. (b) No person shall be employed as a motorman or conductor on any street railway in any city, town or municipality, unless he has first, either within or without the province, received instructions under the direct supervision of a regularly employed inspector, motorman or conductor for the period of fourteen days. 1914, c. 58, s. 2.

16. (c) Every street railway company which fails or neglects to comply with any of the provisions of sections 16 (a) and 16 (b) hereof shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $25 for each day during which such failure or neglect continues, which penalty shall be enforceable under the provisions of the "Nova Scotia Summary Convictions Act." 1914, c. 58, s. 2.

16. (d). The Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities, on application being made to it, and on being satisfied that the additional men required can be obtained, and that in other respects it is not unreasonable so to do, shall make regulations, limiting the number of days in every eight days during which employees or any class of employees of any street railway company may be required to work, as such employees. 1917, c. 53, s. 1.

16. (e). The power conferred by the next preceding section may be exercised, notwithstanding the provisions of any agreement, respecting hours of labour, between such street railway company and its employees. 1917, c. 53, s. 1:

17. This Act shall apply to the Halifax Electric Tramway Company, Limited, only.

3. It shall not be lawful for any motorman or conductor on a street railway to be employed as such motorman or conductor for more than six hours on Sundays, which said hours shall be consecutive, nor for more than ten hours on any week day, the said ten hours to be completed within thirteen consecutive hours from the time when a motorman or conductor first begins his work for the day: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to motormen or conductors who on any one day, notwithstanding that they have completed the said ten hours as aforesaid, are required for the purpose of operating a sweeper or snow-plough on any lines or tracks on any street railway, or to enable them to complete a run.

4. Every street railway company which fails or neglects to comply with any of the provisions of this Act shall be liable to a penalty of not more than twenty-five dollars for each day during which such failure or neglect continues; which penalty shall be enforceable under the provisions of the "Nova Scotia Summary Convictions Act."

5. Each and every of the foregoing provisions of this Act shall come into force and take effect when deemed necessary or feasible by the Board of Public Utilities, which Board shall direct when and in what manner the same shall be carried out.

STATUTES OF 1913.

Woodmen's Liens.

Chapter 4.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Woodmen's Lien Act."

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression,

(1) "Logs and timber" includes logs, timbers, telegraph poles, railway ties, pulpwood, shingle bolts or staves, or any of them, and fence posts and cordwood while lying piled for shipment by rail or water.

(2) "Labour, service or services" includes cutting, skidding, felling, hauling, scaling, banking, driving, running, rafting or booming any logs or timber and any work done by cooks, blacksmiths, artisans, and others usually employed in connection therewith.

(3) "Judge" means a judge of any of the county courts in Nova Scotia.

3. Every agreement or bargain, verbal or written, expressed or implied, which has heretofore been made or entered into, or which may hereafter be made or entered into on the part of any workman, servant, labourer, mechanic, or other person employed in any kind of manual labour intended to be dealt with in this Act, by which it is agreed that this Act shall not apply or that the remedies provided by it shall not be available for the benefit of any person entering into such agreement, is hereby declared to be null and void and of no effect as against any such workman, servant, labourer, mechanic or other person.

(2) This section shall not apply to any foreman, manager, officer or other person whose wages are more than $3 a day, exclusive of board and lodgings.

4. Any person performing any labour, service or services in connection with any logs or timber within this province shall have a lien thereon for the amount due for such labour, service or services; and the same shall be deemed a first lien or charge on such logs or timber and shall have priority over all other claims or liens thereon except any lien or claim which the Crown may have upon such logs or timber.

5. (1) The lien provided for in section 4 shall not continue to be a charge on the logs or timber after the time within which the statement of claim hereinafter provided for is required to be filed, unless such statement, verified upon oath by the person claiming such lien or some one duly authorized on his behalf, shall be filed as hereinafter directed.

(2) Such statement shall be in writing and shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county in which the labour or service or some part thereof has been performed.

(3) Provided that when such labour or services have been performed upon any logs or timber got out to be run down, or which have been run down any of the rivers or streams within Nova Scotia, such statement may, at the option of the claimant, be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county wherein the drive terminates or reaches its destination.

6. Such statement shall set out briefly the nature of the debt, demand or claim, the amount due to the claimant as near as may be over and above all legal set-offs or counter-claims, and a description of the logs or timber upon or against which the lien is claimed and may be in the form A set out in the schedule to this Act or to the like effect.

7. If such labour, service or services be done between the first day of October and the first day of April next thereafter the statement of claim shall be filed on or before the thirtieth day of April next thereafter; but if such labour or services or any part thereof be done or performed on or after the first day of April and before the first day of October in any year, then such statement shall be filed within thirty days after the last day upon which labour or services or some part thereof were performed.

8. No mortgage, sale or transfer of the logs or timber upon which a lien is claimed under this Act made during the time limited for the filing of such statement of claim and previous to the filing thereof or after the filing thereof and during the time limited for enforcement thereof shall in any wise affect such lien; but such lien shall remain and be in force against such logs or timber in whosoever possession the same shall be found.

9. Any person or persons having a lien upon or against any logs or timber under this Act may enforce the same by action in the county court where such statement of lien is filed; and such action may be commenced to enforce such lien if the same be due immediately after the filing of such statement, or if credit has been given immediately after the expiry of the period of credit; and such lien shall cease to be a lien upon the property named in such statement unless the proceedings to enforce the same be commenced within thirty days after the filing of the statement of claim or within thirty days after the expiry of the period of credit. In all such actions the person, company or corporation liable for the payment of such debt or claim shall be made the party defendant.

10. There shall be attached to or indorsed upon the writ of summons a copy of the lien claim as hereinbefore provided; and no other statement of claim shall be necessary unless ordered by the court or judge; and except as herein otherwise provided the practice shall be that of the county courts; writs may be served anywhere in the province in the same manner as in other cases, and the judgment shall declare that the same is for labour or services, the amount thereof and costs, and that the plaintiff has a lien therefor and the property described when such is the case.

11. When an execution has issued and has been placed in the sheriff's hands for execution and no attachment has been issued, the proceedings for the enforcement of the lien shall be by sale under the execution, and the proceedings relating to proof of other claims, and the payment of other money into court and the distribution of money and otherwise shall as far as practicable be the same as hereinafter provided for proceedings upon and subsequent to an attachment.

12. (1) The judge may direct that any action brought to enforce a lien under the provisions of this Act shall be disposed of summarily by him in chambers without waiting for the regular sitting of the court upon such terms as to notice and otherwise as the order shall provide and the same was to be so heard and disposed of.

(2) The judge may also entertain in chambers any application to set aside an attachment or seizure or to release logs or timbers that have been seized, and may summarily dispose of the same.

13. Where the amount of any claim whereon action has been commenced as aforesaid is not less than $10, upon the production and filing of a copy of said claim and affidavit and of an affidavit made and sworn by the claimant of the amount of the claim due and owing and showing that the same has been filed as aforesaid and stating that:

(a) he has good reason to believe and does believe that the logs or timber are about to be removed out of Nova Scotia; or

(b) that the person indebted for the amount of such lien has absconded from the province with intent to defraud or defeat his creditors; or

(c) that the logs or timber are about to be cut into lumber or other timber so that the same cannot be identified;

(d) and that he is in danger of losing his said claim if an attachment do not issue; and if an affidavit corroborating the affidavit in respect to clauses (a), (b) and (c) of this section be also filed, then the judge of the proper county court may on application made to him ex parte direct the clerk to issue a writ of attachment directed to the sheriff of such court, commanding such sheriff to attach, seize, take and safely keep such logs or timber, or a sufficient portion thereof, to secure the sum mentioned in the said writ and the costs of the action and of the proceedings to enforce the lien, and to return the writ forthwith to the court out of which the same is issued.

14. Where additional claims are made, or the amount of claim is increased, or sufficient seizure has not been made, a second or subsequent seizure may be made either under execution or attachment.

15. A copy of the writ of attachment shall be served upon the defendant; and if the defendant in such attachment is not the owner of the logs or timber described in the writ of attachment, then a copy of the writ shall also be served upon the owner of said logs or timber or upon the agent or person in whose possession, custody or control for him they may be found; the owner may on his own application or by the direction of a judge be made a party defendant at the trial.

16. In case the defendant or owner cannot be found within the province, or the owner cannot be ascertained, and no agent or person is in possession for the owner, the writ may be served in such a manner as the judge shall by order direct.

17. No sheriff shall seize upon or detain any logs or timber under the provisions of this Act when in transit by water from the place where cut to the place of destination.

18. In case of an attachment, if the owner of said logs or timber, or any person in his behalf, shall execute and file with the clerk of the court out of which the attachment has been issued a good and sufficient bond to the person claiming the lien, executed by two sureties and conditional for the payment of the claim and of all damages, costs, charges, disbursements and expenses that may be recovered by the claimant in such proceedings, together with the amount for which a lien is claimed in any other action, if any, the judge may, upon application, ex parte, if satisfied as to the sufficiency of the bond, issue an order to the sheriff having in charge the logs or timber, directing their release; and upon service of such order upon the sheriff he shall release the same.

19. Any person who shall have been served with a copy of the writ of attachment under this Act and who may desire to dispute the same shall, within twenty days after such service enter, in the court in which proceedings are pending a notice that he or they dispute the claim upon the lien in whole, or in part, or file a statement of defence as the practice of the county court may require.

20. The defendant may at any time after service of the writ of attachment, and before the sale of the logs or timber, pay into court the amount for which a lien is claimed in the action, together with the amount for which a lien is claimed in any other action, if any, and together with the costs of the proceedings thereon to the date of such payment taxed by the judge if so required; and the person making such payment shall thereupon be entitled to a certificate vacating such lien; and upon said certificate being filed with the clerk of the county court in which the original statement of claim was filed, the said lien shall be vacated and all further proceedings thereon shall cease, and the person making such payment shall further be entitled to an order directing the delivery up of the logs or timber seized under the attachment or the cancellation of any bond given under section 18 of this Act.

21. After the expiration of the time hereinbefore named within which notice of dispute may be entered or statement of defence filed, the judge shall, in chambers, as provided by section 12 of this Act or at the next sitting of the court, after due notice to all parties to the action and to all persons claiming liens on the logs or timber, and whose liens are duly filed as aforesaid, or to their solicitors, hear all such parties and claimants and take all accounts necessary to determine the amounts, if any, due to them or any of them or to any other holders of liens who may be called by the judge to prove their liens, and shall tax to them their costs and determine by whom the same shall be payable and settle their priorities and generally determine all such matters as may be necessary for the adjustment of the rights of the several parties.

22. At the conclusion of the inquiry the judge shall make his report and order which shall state his findings and direct the payment into the court in which proceedings are pending of the amounts, if any, so found due, and the costs, within ten days thereafter; and in default of such payment that the logs or timber shall be sold by the sheriff for the satisfaction of the amount found due to the several parties upon the inquiry and costs.

23. In default of payment into court under the last preceding section, within the time named therein, the said logs or timber shall within twenty days thereafter be sold by the sheriff, holding the same in the manner and subject to the same provisions of law as goods and chattels seized or taken in execution, unless the judge shall direct that additional publicity be given to the sale; and the amount realized by such sale shall, after deducting the expenses thereof payable to the sheriff, be paid into the court in which the proceedings are pending, and shall, upon the application of the several parties found to be entitled thereto under the order of the judge, be paid out to them by the clerk of the said court. Provided that where the amount realized upon the sale shall not be sufficient to pay the claims in full and costs, the judge shall apportion the amount realized pro rata among the different claimants.

24. If after such sale and distribution of the proceeds thereof under the preceding section, any balance shall remain due to any person under the said order of the judge, judgment may be entered therefor against the person or persons by whom the claim was directed to be paid and execution may be issued thereupon as in the case of other judgments in the county court.

25. Where nothing shall be found due upon the several claims filed under this Act or upon the lien or liens in respect to which proceedings have been taken, the judge may direct by his said order that the lien or liens be discharged and the logs or timber released or the security given therefor be delivered up and cancelled, and shall also by such order direct payment forthwith of any costs which may be found due to the defendant or owner of the said logs or timber.

26. Where more money shall be paid into court as the proceeds of the sale of logs or timber than shall be required to satisfy the liens which shall have been proved, and the interest and costs, the remaining moneys shall be paid over to the party entitled to the same unless the judge otherwise orders.

27. Any person affected by proceedings taken under this Act may apply to the judge to dismiss the same for want of prosecution, and the judge may make such order upon the application as to costs or otherwise as may be just.

28. The judge may at any stage of such proceedings on the application of any party, or as he may see fit, order that any person who may be deemed a necessary party to any such proceedings be added as a party thereto or be served with any process or notice provided for by this Act; and the judge may make such order as to the costs of adding such person or corporation or as to such service as may be just.

29. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to disentitle any person to any other remedy than that afforded by this Act for the recovery of any amount due in respect of labour or services performed upon or in connection with any logs or timber; and where action is brought to enforce a lien, but no lien be found to exist, judgment may be directed for the amount found due as in an ordinary case.

30. Any number of lien holders may join in taking proceedings under this Act, or may assign their claims to any one or more persons; but the statement of claim to be filed under section 5 of this Act shall include particular statements of the several claims of persons so joining and shall be verified by the affidavits of such persons so joining, or separate statements of claim may be filed and verified as by this Act provided, and one attachment or writ of summons issued on behalf of all the persons so joining.

31. Where suits are brought in more than one county court respecting liens or claims, upon the same logs or timber, the proceedings after the issue of the first execution or attachment shall be had in the county court out of which such execution or attachment first issued, unless the judge shall otherwise order.

32. The forms necessary to be used in any action or proceeding under this Act, the costs to be taxed to any party therein and the procedure regulating the practice in actions brought and other proceedings taken under the provisions of this Act, shall, so far as the same are not inconsistent with this Act, be as nearly as may be according to the forms, tariff of costs and procedure in force in county courts.

Regulation and Inspection of Metalliferous Mines.

Chapter 15.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act."

Application.

2. This Act shall apply to every quarry and to every mine of whatever description other than a mine to which "The Coal Mines Regulation Act" applies, whether the mineral or minerals are held under lease from the Crown or are the property of the owner of the soil.

3. If any question arises, otherwise than in legal proceedings, whether a mine is a mine to which this Act or "The Coal Mines Regulation Act" applies, such question shall be referred to the Commissioner, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Interpretation.

4. In this Act and in any special rules made under the provisions thereof, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Mine" means a mine to which this Act applies, and includes every shaft in the course of being sunk, and every level and inclined plane in the course of being driven for commencing or opening any such mine, or for searching for or proving minerals, and all the shafts, levels, planes, works, machinery, tramways, railways and sidings both below ground and above ground in and adjacent to a mine, and any such shaft, level and inclined plane of and belonging to the mine; and includes a quarry;

(b) "Shaft" includes pit and slope and quarry;

(c) "Inclined plane" includes slope;

(d) "Plan" includes a map and section or sections, and a correct copy or tracing of any original plan as so defined;

(e) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines;

(f) "Inspector" means an Inspector of Mines appointed under "The Mines Act";

(g) "Deputy Inspector" means a Deputy Inspector of Mines appointed under "The Mines Act";

(h) "Owner" in relation to any mine, means any person or body corporate who is the immediate proprietor, or lessee, or occupier of any mine, or of any part thereof, and does not include a person or body corporate who merely receives a royalty or rent from a mine, or is merely the proprietor of a mine subject to any lease, grant or license for the working thereof, or is merely the owner of the soil, and not interested in the minerals of the mine; but any contractor for the working of any mine or any part thereof as if he was an owner, but so as not to exempt the owner from any liability.

(i) "Agent" in relation to any mine, means any person having, on behalf of the owner, care or direction of any mine or any part thereof;

(j) "Boy" means any male person under the age of eighteen years;

(k) "Shift" means a body of men or boys, or both (other than men or boys engaged in attending to the ventilation of a mine) who go to work in a mine at a set period of the day.

Employment of Boys.

5. (1) No boy of or above the age of twelve years and under the age of sixteen years shall be employed in or about or allowed to be for the purpose of employment in or about any mine below or above ground for more than fifty-four hours in any one week, or for more than ten hours in any one day, except in case of accident or emergency.

(2) For the purpose of this section a "week" shall be deemed to begin at midnight on Saturday night and to end at midnight on the succeeding Saturday night.

(3) No boy under the age of twelve years shall be employed in or about or allowed to be for the purpose of employment in or about any mine below ground or above ground.

6. (1) No boy of or above the age of twelve years and under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted to work in or about any mine below or above ground, unless he furnishes a certificate from the principal teacher of the schools or school of the section, of having satisfactorily completed the prescribed course of study up to the end of grade seven.

(2) Every such teacher shall, without requiring payment of any fee, upon the application of any boy desiring employment, grant him such certificate, if he is entitled to the same, and any such teacher refusing to make such examination and grant such certificate shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars.

7. Every person who contravenes or fails to comply with or permits any person to contravene or fail to comply with any provision of this chapter with respect to the employment of boys, shall be guilty of an offence against this chapter, and in case of any such contravention or non-compliance by any person whomsoever, the owner and agent shall each be guilty of an offence against this Chapter, unless he proves he has taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance by publishing, and to the best of his power enforcing, the next two preceding sections.

Payment of Wages.

8. No wages shall be paid to any person employed in or about any mine at or within any public house, beer shop or place for the sale of any spirits, beer, wine or other spirituous or fermented liquor, or other house of entertainment, or any office, garden or place belonging or contiguous thereto, or occupied therewith.

9. No owner, agent or manager of any mine shall deduct from the wages of any employee in such mine any sum in respect to school rates or other rates, without the consent in writing of such employee to such deduction.

10. Every person who contravenes or fails to comply, or permits any person to contravene or fail to comply, with the provisions of this Act respecting the payment of wages, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act; and in the event of any such contravention or non-compliance by any person whomsoever, the owner, agent and manager shall be guilty of an offence against this Act unless he proves that he had taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance by publishing and to the best of his power enforcing such provisions.

Notice of Accidents.

11. (1) Where, in or about any mine, whether above or below ground, either

(a) loss of life or any personal injury to any person employed in or about the mine occurs by reason of any explosion of gas, powder, dynamite or other explosive or of any steam boiler, or

(b) loss of life or any serious personal injury to any person employed in or about the mine occurs by reason of any accident whatever, the owner, agent or manager of the mine shall within eight hours next after the explosion or accident, notify the Commissioner by telegraph or telephone or other quickest mode of communication, of the explosion or accident and of the loss of life or personal injury occasioned thereby, and shall specify in such notice the character of the explosion or accident, and the number of persons killed and injured respectively, and as soon thereafter as possible shall make a return of facts relating to such accident or explosion in the form given in the schedule to this Act.

(2) Where any personal injury, of which notice is required to be sent under this section, results in the death of the person injured, notice in writing of the death shall be sent to the Commissioner within twenty-four hours after such death comes to the knowledge of the owner, agent or manager.

(3) Every owner, agent or manager who fails to act in compliance with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Abandoned Mines.

12. (1) Where any mine has been abandoned, or the working thereof has been discontinued, the owner thereof or his agent or manager shall cause the top of the shaft and all entrances from the surface, and all pits and openings dangerous by reason of their depth, to be and to be kept securely fenced for the prevention of accidents.

(2) When any mine has been abandoned the owner thereof or his agent or manager shall, if required by the Commissioner, within three months after such abandonment send to the Commissioner an accurate plan of the workings of such mine up to the time of the abandonment on a scale of not less than one hundred feet to one inch.

(3) Every such owner, agent or manager who fails to comply with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Notice of Change of Ownership or of Working.

13. (1) In any case,
 (a) where any change occurs in the name of any mine or in the name of the owner or agent of any mine, or in the officers of any incorporate company which is the owner of a mine;
 (b) where any working is commenced for the purpose of opening a mine;
 (c) where a shaft of any mine is abandoned or the working thereof discontinued; or
 (d) where the working of a mine is recommenced after an abandonment or discontinuance for a period exceeding two months;
 the owner, agent or manager of such mine shall give notice thereof to the Commissioner within two months after such change, commencement, abandonment, discontinuance or recommencement.

(2) If such notice is not given, the owner, agent or manager shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) This section shall not apply to—

(a) Any working or mine in which not more than twelve men are ordinarily employed below ground, or

(b) Any working or mine exempted from compliance with this section by the Commissioner

Inspection.

14. (1) The inspector and every deputy inspector shall have power to do all or any of the following things, namely:—

(a) To make such examination and inquiry as is necessary to ascertain whether the provisions of this Act relating to matters above ground or below ground are complied with in the case of any mine;

(b) To enter, inspect and examine any mine and every part thereof, at all times by day and night, but so far as possible not to impede or obstruct the working of the mine;

(c) To examine into and make inquiry respecting the state, condition and ventilation of any mine, or any part thereof, and the sufficiency of any special rules for the time being in force in the mine, and all matters and things connected with or relating to the safety of the persons employed in or about the mine, or any mine contiguous thereto;

(d) To exercise such other powers as are necessary for carrying this Act into effect.

(2) Every person who wilfully obstructs the inspector or a deputy inspector in the execution of his duty under this Act, and every owner, agent or manager of a mine who refuses or neglects to furnish to the inspector or deputy inspector the means necessary for making any entry, inspection, examination or inquiry under this Act in relation to such mine, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

15. (1) If in any respect (which is not provided against by any express provision of this Act, or by any special rule) the inspector finds any mine, or any part thereof, or any matter, thing or practice in or connected with any such mine, to be dangerous or defective, so as in his opinion to threaten or tend to the bodily injury of any person, or to the waste or misuse of any property of or leased from the Crown, the inspector may give notice in writing thereof to the owner, agent or manager of the mine, and shall state in such notice the particulars in which he considers such mine, or any part thereof, or any matter, thing or practice, to be dangerous or defective, and require the same to be remedied; and unless the same is forthwith remedied the inspector shall report the same to the Commissioner.

(2) If the owner, agent or manager of the mine objects to remedy the matter complained of in the notice, he may within ten days after the receipt of such notice, send his objection in writing, stating the grounds thereof, to the Commissioner, and thereupon the matter shall be decided by arbitration by the Commissioner, together with one arbitrator appointed by the inspector and one appointed by such owner or agent; and the award of the Commissioner and one of the arbitrators shall be final.

(3) Five days' notice of the time and place at which the arbitrators will hear such matter shall be given to the parties interested.

(4) If the owner or agent fails,—

(a) when no such objection is sent, to comply with the requisition of the notice within ten days after the expiration of the time for objection, or

(b) when there has been an arbitration to comply with the award within the time fixed by the award,

he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and the notice and the award shall respectively be deemed to be written notice of the offence.

(5) The Commissioner, if satisfied that the owner or agent has taken active measures for complying with the notice of decision, but has not with reasonable diligence been able to complete the works, may extend such time of five days to such time as he deems proper, and if the works are completed within such time no penalty shall be inflicted.

(6) No person shall be precluded by any agreement from doing such acts as are necessary to comply with the provisions of this section, or be liable under any contract to any penalty or forfeiture for doing such acts.

16. (1) The owner, agent or manager of every mine shall keep in the office at the mine an accurate plan of the workings of such mine, showing the workings up to three months or less previously.

(2) The owner, agent or manager of the mine shall produce to the inspector or deputy inspector at the mine such plan, and shall, if requested by the inspector or deputy inspector mark on such plan or a copy thereof the progress of the workings of the mine up to the time of such production, and shall allow the inspector or deputy inspector to examine the same, and shall furnish to the inspector or deputy inspector a correct copy of such plan when requested by him.

(3) The owner, agent or manager, on or before the first day of April of each year, shall furnish to the inspector a correct plan or tracing (not before furnished) of the workings up to the 1st day of January then last past.

(4) Every owner, agent or manager of any mine who

(a) fails to keep such a plan as is prescribed by this section, or

(b) refuses to produce the same to the inspector or deputy inspector and allow it to be examined by him, or

(c) refuses on request to mark on such plan the state of the workings of the mine at the time of such request, or

(d) conceals any part of such plan, or

(e) produces an imperfect or inaccurate plan, shall, unless he shows that he was ignorant of the concealment, imperfection or inaccuracy, be guilty of an offence against this chapter.

(5) The inspector may also by notice in writing (whether a penalty for such offence has been imposed or not), require the owner, agent or manager to cause an accurate plan, such as is prescribed by this section, to be made within a reasonable time at the expense of the owner of the mine on a scale of not less than four hundred feet to one inch, or on the same scale as the plan then used at the mine.

(6) If the owner, agent or manager fails within twenty days after the requisition of the inspector, or within such further time as is shown to be necessary to make such plan, he shall be guilty of an offence against this chapter.

17. Where it appears to the Commissioner that a formal investigation of any accident in any mine, or of any matter connected with the working of any mine, is expedient, the Commissioner may direct the inspector to hold such investigation, and with respect to any such investigation the following provisions shall have effect:—

(1) The Commissioner may appoint any person or persons possessing legal or special knowledge to act with the inspector as assessor or assessors in holding the investigation.

(2) The inspector shall make such investigation in such manner and under such conditions as he thinks most effectual for the making of a full investigation.

(3) The inspector for the purposes of investigation shall have all the power of a commissioner appointed under the chapter of the Revised Statutes, "Of inquiries concerning public matters," and all the powers conferred upon the inspector by this Act and as part thereof, or in addition thereto, the following powers, namely:—

(a) Power to enter or inspect any mine, building or place, the entry or inspection of which appears to the inspector expedient;

(b) Power by summons signed by the inspector to require the attendance of any person and to require of such person such answers or returns to inquiries as the inspector thinks fit;

(c) Power to require the production of any book, paper or document which the inspector thinks important upon such investigation;

(d) Power to administer an oath.

(4) Any person attending before the inspector in obedience to any such summons shall be allowed the fees paid to a witness attending a trial in the Supreme Court.

(5) Any person who without reasonable excuse either fails (after having had any fees to which he is entitled tendered to him), to comply with any summons requiring him to attend before the inspector upon any such investigation, or refuses to produce any document which he is required by the inspector to produce, or prevents or impedes the inspector when engaged upon such investigation, shall for each such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twenty days, and in addition thereto may be proceeded against in the Supreme Court as for a contempt of such court.

(6) The inspector shall make a report upon such investigation, which the Commissioner may cause to be made public at such time and in such manner as he thinks fit.

(7) Any expense incurred in and about any such investigation (including the remuneration of any person appointed to act as assessor) shall be paid out of the treasury of the province.

Returns.

18. On or before the tenth day of each of the months of January, April, July and October in each year, every owner, or his agent or manager, shall send to the Commissioner a correct return, specifying the quantity of every mineral wrought or gotten from the mine, the probable use or destination of the same, the amount of royalty, if any, which has accrued upon the mineral or minerals wrought or gotten during the last previous quarter, and a correct return specifying the number of days' labour, and the number of persons ordinarily employed in or about the mine, below ground and above ground, and the different classes of persons so employed, and a plan or description of all the shafts, quarries, slopes, levels, planes, works, machinery, tramways and railways sunk, driven, opened or constructed during the progress of the work, or during the next preceding quarter. Such return shall be in the form prescribed in the form prescribed by the Commissioner, and shall be verified by the affidavit of the owner, agent or manager of the mine.

General Rules.

19. (1) The following general rules shall be observed, so far as is reasonably practicable, in every mine:—

Rule 1. An adequate amount of ventilation shall be constantly produced in every mine to dilute and render harmless noxious gases to such an extent that the working places of the shafts, levels, stables, winzes, sumps and workings of the mine, and the travelling roads to and from such working places, shall be in a fit state for working and passing therein.

Rule 2. The following provisions shall relate to the use of any explosive:—

(a) It shall not be stored in the mine, or within two hundred and fifty yards of the slope or shaft or quarry;

(b) It shall not be taken into any mine in which more than twelve men are employed in quantities exceeding the requirements of one day, and not in any case exceeding twenty-five pounds;

(c) In any such mine the explosives shall be under the special charge of one man, and the firing of the explosives shall also be under the control and supervision of some man specially appointed for that purpose.

(d) Detonators shall not be stored with explosives nor kept in any place within two hundred feet of such explosives.

Rule 3. (1) Where there is a shaft or an inclined plane or level in any mine, whether for the purpose of an entrance to such mine or of a communication from one part to another part of such mine, and persons are taken up or down or along such shaft, plane or level by means of any engine, windlass or gin driven or worked by steam or any mechanical power, or by an animal or by manual labour, a person shall not be allowed to have charge of such engine, windlass or gin, or of any part of the machinery, ropes, chain or tackle connected therewith, unless he is a male person of at least eighteen years of age.

(2) Where the engine, windlass or gin is worked by an animal, the person under whose direction the driver of the animal acts shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be the person in charge of the engine, windlass or gin; but such driver shall not be under fourteen years of age. This clause shall not apply to operations known in the mines as counter or back balances.

Rule 4. Where a place is likely to contain a dangerous accumulation of water the working approaching such place shall not exceed eight feet in width or height, and there shall be constantly kept at a sufficient distance, not being less than five yards in advance, at least one bore-hole near the centre of the working and sufficient flank bore-holes on each side.

Rule 5. Every underground plane on which persons travel, which is self-acting or worked by an engine, windlass or gin, shall be provided (if exceeding thirty yards in length) with some proper means of communicating distinct and definite signals between the stopping places and the ends of the plane, and shall be provided in every case, at intervals of not more than twenty yards, with sufficient manholes, or places of refuge.

Rule 6. Every back balance or counter balance used for raising or lowering minerals or materials, if exceeding thirty yards in length, shall, unless exempted in writing by the inspector, be provided with some proper means of communicating distinct and definite signals between the lower end and between the entrance of every working place thereon for the time being in work and the upper end thereof.

Rule 7. (1) Every road on which persons travel underground where the produce of the mine in transit exceeds ten tons in any one hour over any part thereof, and where the load is drawn by a horse or other animal, where there is not standing room of at least two feet, shall be provided, at intervals of not more than twenty-five yards, with sufficient man-holes or with places of refuge, and every such place of refuge shall be of sufficient length and of at least three feet in width between the wagons running on the tram-road and the side of such road.

(2) Where the load is drawn by machinery or other mechanical appliance, and there is not standing room of at least two feet, there shall be provided at intervals of not more than fifteen yards, sufficient man-holes or places of refuge, and every such place of refuge shall be of sufficient length and of at least three feet in width, between the wagons running on the tram-road and the side of such road.

(3) Whenever in the opinion of the inspector the precautions required by this rule with respect to roads over which minerals are drawn by machinery or other mechanical appliance are not sufficient for the safety of the men travelling thereon, he may require the owner, agent, or manager of the mine to provide a separate travelling road.

Rule 8. Every man-hole and place of refuge shall be constantly kept clear, and no person shall place anything in a man-hole or place of refuge so as to prevent access thereto.

Rule 9. The top of every shaft which for the time being is out of use or used only as an air shaft, shall be kept securely fenced, and in every such case the owner, agent or manager shall notify the deputy inspector, who shall report to the Commissioner as to the sufficiency of such fencing, and the Commissioner may require such further precautions for safety to be taken as may be deemed necessary.

Rule 10. The top and all entrances between the top and bottom of every working shaft, ventilating or pumping shaft shall be properly fenced; but this shall not be taken to forbid the temporary removal of the fence for the purpose of repairs or other operations if proper precautions are used. The top and approaches to any quarry shall be kept securely fenced.

Rule 11. Where the natural strata are not safe, every working or pumping shaft shall be securely cased, lined, or otherwise made secure.

Rule 12. The roof and sides of every travelling road and working place shall be made secure, and a person shall not, unless appointed for the purpose of exploring or repairing, travel or work in any such travelling road or working place which is not so made secure.

Rule 13. Every working shaft used for the purpose of drawing minerals, or for the lowering or raising of persons, shall, if exceeding fifty yards in depth, and not exempted in writing by the inspector, be provided with guides and some proper means of communicating distinct and definite signals from the bottom of the shaft, and from every entrance for the time being in use between the surface and the bottom of the shaft and to every entrance for the time being in use between the surface and the bottom of the shaft.

Rule 14. A sufficient cover overhead shall be used for every cage or tub employed in lowering or raising persons in any work shaft, except where the cage or tub is worked by a windlass or where any persons are employed at work in the shaft, or where a written exemption is given by the inspector.

Rule 15. A single-linked chain shall not be used for lowering or raising persons in any working shaft or place except for the short coupling chain attached to the cage or load.

Rule 16. There shall be on the drum of every machine used for lowering or raising persons such flanges or horns, and also if the drum is conical, such other appliances as are sufficient, to prevent the rope from slipping.

Rule 17. There shall be attached to every machine worked by steam, water or mechanical power, and used for lowering or raising persons, an adequate brake, and also a proper indicator (in addition to any mark on the rope) showing to the person who works the machine the position of the cage or load in the shaft.

Rule 18. Every fly-wheel and all exposed and dangerous parts of the machinery used in or about the mine shall be and be kept securely fenced.

Rule 19. Every steam boiler shall be provided with a proper steam gauge and water gauge to show respectively the pressure of steam and the height of water in the boiler, and with a proper safety valve.

Rule 20. A ladder permanently used for the ascent or descent of persons in the mine shall not be fixed in a vertical or overhanging position, and shall be inclined at the most convenient angle which the space in which the ladder is fixed allows; and every such ladder shall have substantial platforms at intervals of not more than twenty feet.

Rule 21. If more than twelve persons are ordinarily employed in the mine below ground, sufficient accommodation shall be provided above ground near the principal entrance of the mine, and not in the engine-room or boiler-room, for enabling the persons employed in the mine to conveniently dry and change their dresses.

Rule 22. Where one portion of a shaft is used for the ascent and descent of persons by ladders or otherwise, and another portion is used for raising the materials gotten in the mine, the first mentioned portion shall be either cased or otherwise securely fenced off from the last mentioned portion, or no person shall be permitted to travel in the shaft when the shaft is working.

Rule 23. No person shall wilfully damage, or without proper authority remove or render useless, any fence, fencing, casing, lining, guide, means of signalling, signal, cover, chain, flange, horn, brake, indicator, ladder, platform, steam-gauge, water-gauge, safety valve or other appliance or thing provided for any mine in compliance with this Act.

Rule 24. Every person shall observe such directions with respect to working as are given to him with a view to comply with this Act, or any special rules in force under this Act.

Rule 25. A competent person or persons who shall be appointed for the purpose shall, once at least in every twenty-four hours, examine the state of the external parts of the machinery and the state of the head-gear, working places, levels, planes, ropes, chains and other works of the mine which are in actual use, and once at least in every week shall examine the state of the shafts by which persons ascend or descend and the guides or conductors therein.

Rule 26. The persons employed in a mine may from time to time appoint two of their number to inspect the mine, at their own cost, and the persons so appointed shall be allowed once at least in every month, accompanied, if the owner, agent or manager of the mine thinks fit, by himself or one or more of the officers of the mine, to go to every part of the mine and to inspect the shafts, levels, planes, working-places, return air-ways, ventilating apparatus, old workings and machinery, and shall be afforded by the owner, agent or manager and all persons in the mine, every facility for the purpose of such inspection, and shall make a true report of the result of such inspection, and such report shall be recorded in a book to be kept at the mine for the purpose, and shall be signed by the persons who made the same.

Rule 27. The majority of the workmen at any mine may appoint a committee to examine the seat of any accident resulting in the death or injury of any person.

(2) Every person who contravenes or does not comply with any of the general rules in this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act; and in the event of any contravention of or non-compliance with any of such general rules in the case of any mine by any person whomsoever being proved, the owner, agent or manager shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves that he had taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance, by publishing and to the best of his power enforcing the said rules as regulations for the working of the mine.

Special Rules.

20. (1) The owner, agent or manager of any mine may establish special rules for such mine in the manner provided for the establishment of special rules for a coal mine in "The Coal Mines Regulation Act," and all the provisions respecting special rules in such Act shall apply to any rules so established.

(2) If any person who is bound to observe any special rules so established, acts in contravention of or fails to comply with any of them, he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) In any such case the owner, agent or manager of such mine shall also be guilty of an offence against this chapter, unless he proves that he had taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance by publishing and to the best of his power enforcing such rules as regulations for the working of the mine.

21. (1) All iron ore or other minerals extracted from mines leased by the Crown, on which royalty is payable shall be weighed at the mine.

(2) A competent person shall be appointed weigher by the owner, agent or manager, who shall enter in a book specially kept for the purpose the weight of every weighing, and shall make a true report to the office at the mine of the weighings so made by him.

(3) Every person who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Notices

22. All notices required by this Act shall be in writing or print, or partly in writing and partly in print; and all notices and documents required by this Act to be served or sent by or to the Commissioner or inspector may be either delivered personally or served and sent by post by a prepaid registered letter; and if served or sent by post, shall be deemed to have been served and received respectively at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of post; and in proving such service or sending it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice was properly addressed and put in to the post.

Penalties.

23. Every person employed in or about a mine, other than an owner, agent or manager, who is guilty of any act or omission which in the case of an owner, agent or manager would be an offence against this Act, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

24. (1) Every owner, agent or manager who is guilty of an offence against this Act shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars.

25. Every person other than an owner, agent or manager who is guilty of an offence against this Act shall be liable to a penalty of eight dollars.

26. No prosecution shall be instituted against the owner, agent or manager of any mine for an offence against this Act, except,—

(a) by the inspector, or

(b) with the consent in writing of the Commissioner, or

(c) by some person appointed by the Commissioner, or

(d) by some person employed in or about the mine in respect to which the offence was committed, appointed in writing to institute such prosecution by not less than twelve persons so employed.

27. If it appears that a boy was employed on the representation of his parent or guardian that he was of the age at which his employment would not be in contravention of this Act, and under the belief in good faith that he was of such age, the owner, agent or manager of the mine or the employer of such boy shall, notwithstanding the boy was not of such age, be exempt from any penalty in respect to such employment, and such parent or guardian shall for the misrepresentation be guilty of an offence against this Act.

28. In any prosecution or other proceeding against an owner, agent or manager of any mine for an offence against this Act, such owner, agent or manager shall be discharged if he proves that he took all reasonable means to prevent the commission of such offence.

29. Any complaint or suit made or brought in pursuance of this Act shall be made or brought within six months from the time when the matter of such complaint or suit came to the knowledge of the prosecutor.

30. Where a penalty is imposed under this Act for neglecting to send a notice of any explosion or accident or for any offence against this Act which has occasioned loss of life or personal injury, the Commissioner may (if he thinks fit) direct such penalty to be paid to or distributed among the persons injured and the relatives of any persons whose death has been occasioned by such explosion, accident or offence, or among some of them. Provided that such persons did not in his opinion occasion or contribute to occasion the explosion or accident, and did not commit and were not parties to the commission of the offence.

31. Except as in this Act otherwise provided all penalties imposed in pursuance of this Act shall be paid on receipt of the same into the provincial treasury.

STATUTES OF 1914.

Inspection of Steam Boilers.

Chapter 2.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Steam Boiler Act."

2. In this Act, and the regulations made hereunder, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "Inspector" means an inspector appointed by the Governor in Council under and for the purposes mentioned in this Act;

(b) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines for the Province;

(c) "Steam boiler" shall mean and include a boiler used for generating steam for heating or power purposes, and every part thereof or thing connected therewith, and apparatus and things attached to or used in connection with any such boiler, but not—

(i) a boiler in a private residence, apartment house, office building, church, hotel or public building used exclusively for heating purposes, and provided with a device approved by the Commissioner, limiting the pressure carried to fifteen pounds to the square inch, nor

(ii) a portable boiler, rated at 25 horse-power or under, or a boiler used exclusively for horticultural or agricultural purposes, nor

(iii) railway locomotives;

(d) "Inspection certificate" means the annual certificate of the inspection of any boiler issued by an inspector under this Act;

(e) "Owner" means and includes any person, firm or corporation, the owner or lessee of a boiler and the manager or other head officer in charge of the business of such firm or corporation

3. Upon the recommendation of the Commissioner, the Governor in Council may make regulations—

(a) respecting the construction of steam boilers;

(b) prescribing specifications for the construction of steam boilers, including the material to be used, the method and order for construction, the tests to be applied during and after construction;

(c) for the inspection of every steam boiler during its construction and before it is removed from the place of construction; and

(d) generally respecting such other matters as may be deemed proper to secure an uniform standard of strength, safety and efficiency in the construction of steam boilers.

(e) Nothing in this section or in the provisions of this Act shall be construed to make it applicable to any marine boiler, providing the same is being constructed according to Dominion Government specifications and subject to its inspection.

4. The regulations shall be published in the "Royal Gazette;" shall come into force and take effect at a date to be named by proclamation.

5. (1) The Governor in Council may appoint inspectors of steam boilers for the purposes of this Act and for the enforcement of the regulations, and may designate one of them to be chief boiler inspector.

(2) The Commissioner may employ any boiler insurance company, or any inspection company engaged in the inspection of steam boilers, to make any inspection of steam boilers during their construction, required by the regulations, and the company making such inspection shall report upon the same within fourteen days thereafter to the chief boiler inspector.

(3) The Commissioner may accept, in lieu of the "Inspection Certificate" of any boiler inspector appointed under this Act, a certificate of inspection of any steam boiler by any boiler insurance company licensed to do business in the province of Nova Scotia.

(4) Upon acceptance by the Commissioner of the Inspection Certificate of any boiler insurance company licensed to do business in the Province of Nova Scotia, the Commissioner may cause to be issued to the owner or manufacturer of such boiler an "Inspection Certificate," and the owner or manufacturer shall pay the Commissioner a fee not exceeding one dollar for the issue of such certificate.

6. No person shall be appointed or shall hold office as inspector who is directly or indirectly interested in the manufacture or sale of steam boilers or steam machinery.

7. Every inspector appointed under the provisions of this Act, before entering upon the performance of his duties, shall take and subscribe an oath that he will faithfully and impartially perform the duties of his office.

8. For the purpose of seeing that the provisions of this Act and of the regulations are complied with, any inspector may at any reasonable hour enter upon any lands or into any building where any steam boiler is under construction, operation, alteration or repair.

9. Any person interfering with or obstructing any inspector in the performance of his duties under this Act shall incur a penalty not exceeding $50.

10. (1) An inspector may by notice in writing require the attendance before him, at any time and place named in the notice, of any person and may examine such person either alone or in the presence of any other persons as he may think fit as to any matter connected with the construction, alteration or repair of a steam boiler or its removal from any place in which it has been constructed, altered or repaired.

(2) For the purpose of subsection 1 the inspector may administer an oath to any person to be examined by him.

(3) Every person who wilfully neglects or refuses to attend before the inspector after receiving notice so to do, or refuses to be sworn or to give evidence before the inspector, or to answer any question put to him by the inspector touching the matters mentioned in subsection 1, shall incur a penalty of $25.

11. (1) Every steam boiler in the Province shall be inspected at least once in each calendar year by an inspector appointed under this Act.

(2) If the owner of any boiler proves to the satisfaction of the inspector that his boiler has not been operated since the date of the previous inspection and is in good condition as when inspected, the inspector may issue a new inspection certificate without inspecting the boiler, and may remit the fee for inspection hereinafter provided for.

(3) Upon the completion of his inspection the inspector shall issue to the owner or manufacturer of the boiler an inspection certificate; and the owner or manufacturer shall pay the inspector a fee of $5 for such inspection and the issue of such certificate.

(4) The inspector shall upon the completion of his inspection stamp upon every boiler a number.

(5) Any owner or manufacturer neglecting or refusing to pay the inspector such fee shall incur a penalty not exceeding $20.

(6) Such inspection certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the due inspection of the boiler and of its fitness to be operated, and the possession of such certificate shall authorize the operation of such boiler from the date of such certificate until its inspection in the next following year, provided that no defect is in the meantime discovered therein.

12. Any owner who operates, or causes to be operated, any boiler without being in possession of an inspector's certificate shall incur a penalty not exceeding $200; provided, however, that any owner of a boiler which has not been inspected within a year who has notified an inspector or the Commissioner, by properly addressed and prepaid registered letter, of his intention to operate such boiler, may operate the same until an inspection is made, without being guilty of an offence under this Act.

13. In addition to the annual inspection, it shall be the duty of an inspector to examine at any time, when in his opinion such examination shall become necessary, any steam boiler which may be reported to him to be unsafe from any cause, and to notify the owner or person using such boiler, of any defects or repairs necessary to be made to render the same safe.

14. Any boiler declared to be unsafe by an inspector shall not be used until such repairs as are ordered by the inspector have been made and the certificate required hereunder duly issued; and any person operating a boiler declared to be unsafe by an inspector before the repairs ordered by the inspector are completed and the certificate issued, shall be liable to a penalty of $50.

15. Every inspector shall keep a true record of all steam boilers inspected by him, and all repairs ordered; of all steam boilers condemned by him as unsafe, and of all accidents to boilers by explosions or otherwise which come to his knowledge.

16. (1) On the occurrence of an explosion of any steam boiler, notice thereof shall be sent at once by telegraph to the Commissioner by the owner or by some person acting on his behalf, stating the precise locality as well as the number of persons killed or injured; and after the explosion of any such boiler no part or parts of the same shall without the written permission of an inspector be removed or their positions altered by any person except to rescue persons injured or to remove the bodies of persons killed.

(2) Any person neglecting or violating any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $100 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months.

(3) On receipt of any report mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, the Commissioner shall cause a full investigation to be made as to the cause and circumstances of such explosion.

17. The chief inspector shall render annually on or before the last day of February in each year a concise report to the Commissioner of all inspections made by him during the preceding year, and of all accidents and casualties that may have happened connected with the operation of steam boilers within the Province.

18. Any person who sells or exchanges a boiler shall within thirty days after such sale or exchange notify the Commissioner in writing, by duly prepaid registered mail, of such sale or exchange, stating the name and address of the person to whom such boiler has been sold, or with whom the same has been exchanged, and the number stamped on such boiler by the inspector.

19. The Commissioner may, upon due cause being shown, cancel any certificate issued under the provisions of this Act.

20. All fees payable and all penalties recovered under this Act, or the regulations, shall be paid into the Provincial Treasury.

21. The specifications provided for in this Act for the construction of steam boilers shall not apply to—

(a) a new boiler in the possession of a manufacturer or of a dealer in steam boilers on the 1st day of July, 1914, nor a boiler under construction on that date; nor

(b) a second-hand boiler in the possession of the manufacturer or of a dealer in steam boilers on that date, unless the same is rebuilt or extensively altered after that date.

22. This Act shall come into force at a date to be fixed by proclamation by the Governor in Council.

STATUTES OF 1915.

Workmen's Compensation.

Chapter 1, with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as the Workmen's Compensation Act.

2. In this Act—

(a) "Accident fund" shall mean the fund provided for the payment of compensation, medical aid, outlays, and expenses under Part 1 of this Act; 1919, c. 61, s. 1.

(b) "Association" shall mean any association or body of employers whose constitution shall have been approved by the Board as entitling it to represent any of the classes provided for in this Act or any subdivision or group of employers in such class;

(c) "Board" shall mean Workmen's Compensation Board;

(d) "Construction" shall include reconstruction, repair, alteration and demolition;

(e) "Dependants" shall mean such of the members of the family of a workman as were wholly or partly dependent upon his earnings at the time of his death, or who but for the incapacity due to the accident would have been so dependent, but shall not include persons who become dependants by reason of the marriage of the injured workman between the date of the accident and the death of the workman resulting from such accident; Amended 1919, c. 61, s. 2.

(f) "Employer" includes every person having in his service, under a contract of hiring or apprenticeship, written or oral, expressed, or implied, any person engaged in any work in or about an industry within the scope of this Act and in respect of any such industry includes Municipal Corporations, and the Crown as represented by the Province, and may include the Crown as represented by the Dominion of Canada in so far as it may in its capacity of employer submit to the operation of this Act; Amended 1919, c. 61, s. 2.

(g) "Employment" means and refers to the whole or any part of any establishment, undertaking, work, operation, trade or business within the scope of this Act, and in the case of any industry not as a whole within the scope of this Act includes any department or part of such industry as would if carried on separately be within the scope of this Act; 1917, c. 70, s. 1.

(h) "Industrial disease" shall mean any of the diseases mentioned in the Schedule and any other disease which by the Regulations is declared to be an industrial disease;

(i) "Industry" shall include establishment, undertaking, work, operation, trade, or business; 1917, c. 70, s. 2.

(j) "Invalid" shall mean physically or mentally incapable of earning;

(k) "Member of the family" shall mean and include wife, husband, father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, stepfather, stepmother, son, daughter, grandson, grand-daughter, stepson, step-daughter, brother, sister, half-brother, and half-sister, and a person who stood in loco parentis to the workman or to whom the workman stood in loco parentis whether related to him by consanguinity or not so related, and where the workman is the parent or grandparent of an illegitimate child shall include such child, and where the workman is an illegitimate child shall include his parents and grandparents;

(l) "Outworker" shall mean a person to whom articles or materials are given out to be made up, cleaned, washed, altered, ornamented, finished, repaired or adapted for sale in his own home or on other premises not under the control or management of the person who gave out the articles or materials;

(m) "Regulations" shall mean regulations made by the Board under the authority of this Act;

(n) "Workman" shall include a person who has entered into or works under a contract of service or apprenticeship, written or oral, expressed or implied, whether by way of manual labour or otherwise; and in respect of the industry of mining, shall include a person while he is actually engaged in taking or attending a course of training or instruction in mine-rescue work under the direction or with the approval, expressed or implied, of an employer in whose employment the person is employed as a workman in that industry; and in respect to any industry, shall include a person while he is actually engaged in rescuing or protecting or attempting to rescue or protect life or property in the case of an explosion, a fire, or an accident, which endangers either life or property in or about the industry in which such person is employed, and should such person meet with an accident while so engaged, such accident shall be deemed to arise out of and in the course of such person's employment; 1917, c. 70, s. 3.

(o) (Repealed 1919, c. 61, s. 3).

(p) "Teaming" shall include all kinds of work done by workmen with teams, carts (including hand carts), drays, trucks, cabs, carriages, automobiles and other vehicles; 1917, c. 70, s. 4.

(q) "Stevedoring" shall mean the loading or unloading of vessels or railway cars; 1917, c. 70, s. 4.

PART I.

Scope of this Part.

3. This part shall employ to employers and workmen in or about any operations carried on in a factory, and also to employers and workmen in or about the industries of—

Manufacturing, lumbering, river driving, mining, quarrying, excavation, drilling with diamond drills, fishing, canning, printing, building, construction, engineering, transportation, navigation, stevedoring, rafting of lumber, teaming, horse shoeing, scavenging, street cleaning, handling of hides, painting, decorating, renovating, dyeing and cleaning, the operation of any railway, tramway, telegraph, cable, or telephone system, electric light or power plant or system, gas works, water works, sewers, laundries, theatres, packing houses, lumber yards, coal yards, refrigerating or cold storage plant, warehouses, elevators, boats, ships, tugs, ferries, dredges, and any public utility; and any occupation incidental to or immediately connected with any of the industries or operations mentioned in this section; 1917, c. 70, s. 5, as amended 1918, c. 45, s. 23.

Provided that, subject to Sections 5 and 6, this part shall not apply to the following:

(a) Persons engaged as travelling salesmen; 1917, c. 70, s. 5, as amended 1918, c. 45, s. 1.

(b) Persons whose employment is of a casual nature, and who are employed otherwise than for the purposes of the employer's trade or business; 1917, c. 70, s. 5.

(c) Outworkers; 1917, c. 70, s. 5.

(d) Persons employed by a city, town or municipal corporation, as members of a police force, or of a fire department; 1917, c. 70, s. 5.

(e) Members of the family of the employer, who reside with the employer. 1918, c. 45, s. 2.

4. (Repealed 1918, c. 45, s. 3.)

5. (1) Any industry or workman not within the scope of this Part by virtue of Section 3 may, on the application of the employer, be admitted by the Board as being within the scope of this Part on such terms and conditions and for such period and from time to time as the Board may prescribe, and from and after such admission and during the period of such admission, such industry or workman shall be deemed to be within the scope of this Part.

(2) Any employer in any industry within the scope of this Part may be admitted on such terms and conditions and for such period and from time to time as the Board may prescribe as being entitled, for himself or his dependants as the case may be, to the same compensation as if such employer were a workman within the scope of this Part.

(3) Such admission may be made in such manner and form as the Board may deem adequate and proper.

6. The Board may by regulation exclude from the scope of this Part any industry or industries in which not more than a stated number (fixed by regulation) of workmen, or workmen other than temporary workmen, are employed, and may define the meaning of "temporary workmen." The Board may from time to time revoke, alter, or modify any such regulation, provided that any industry so excluded may be readmitted by the Board as being within the scope of this Part. The Board may likewise exclude the mayor, warden, clerk, treasurer, controllers, councillors, and aldermen and other officers of a city, town or municipality, and the president, vice-president, directors and other officers of any company without excluding the other persons in any industry. 1919, c. 61, s. 4.

7. (1) Where, in any industry within the scope of this Part, personal injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment is caused to a workman, compensation as herein-after provided shall be paid to such workman, or his dependants, as the case may be, except where the injury—

(a) does not disable the workman for the period of at least seven days from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed; or

(b) is attributable solely to the serious and wilful misconduct of the workman, unless the injury results in death or serious and permanent disablement.

(2) Where the accident arose out of the employment, unless the contrary is shown, it shall be presumed that it occurred in the course of the employment, and where the accident occurred in the course of the employment, unless the contrary is shown, it shall be presumed that it arose out of the employment.

(3) Where compensation for disability is payable it shall be computed and be payable from the date of the disability.

8. (1) Every contract entered into in Nova Scotia whereby the relationship of employer and workman as defined by this Act arises in an industry which if carried on in Nova Scotia would be within the scope of Part I, having regard to any regulations made by the Board for the exclusion or inclusion of any industry or industries, shall, unless there be an expressed agreement in writing to the contrary signed by the workman, be subject to and be deemed to include the following covenant on the part of the workman with his employer, which covenant shall bind the workman, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns as effectually as if made in writing and under seal, viz:—

Workman's Covenant with Employer.

"The workman, for valuable consideration and as a condition of his being employed, covenants with the employer that, in the event of an accident happening to such workman while employed elsewhere than in Nova Scotia and while the workman and the industry carried on out of Nova Scotia in which he is so employed are within the scope of Part One of the Workmen's Compensation Act of Nova Scotia, he will accept the provisions of Part One of said Act in lieu of all rights and rights of action, statutory or otherwise, which he may have or to which he may become entitled against his employer, and that he will not commence or prosecute any action or other proceeding against his employer, by reason of such accident or any injury resulting therefrom, and that this covenant and Section 8 of the Workmen's Compensation Act may be pleaded as a bar to or otherwise made use of to defeat or stay any action or proceeding that the workman may commence against the employer within or without Nova Scotia." 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(2) (a) Every contract, entered into in Nova Scotia, whereby the relationship of employer and workman as defined by this Act arises, in an industry to which this subsection is made to apply by virtue of subsection (b) hereof and whereby the workman agrees to perform or by virtue of which he does perform any work or services out of Nova Scotia, shall, unless there be an agreement to the contrary in writing signed by the workman, be deemed to include and be subject to the following covenant on the part of the employer with the workman, which shall bind the employer, his heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, as fully and as effectually as if executed in writing by the employer and under seal: viz.,—

Employer's Covenant With Workman.

"Subject to the provisions of Section 8 of the Workmen's Compensation Act the employer for valuable consideration and as a condition of the workman's consent to perform or of his performing work or services out of Nova Scotia, covenants with the workman that before the workman shall be required or permitted by the employer to perform any work or services out of Nova Scotia in the industries set forth in subsection (b) hereof, he (the employer) shall apply to the Workmen's Compensation Board of Nova Scotia to have the industry in which such workman is employed admitted as being within the scope of Part One of the Workmen's Compensation Act—if the same be not then within the scope of said Part—and that the employer shall furnish all information and pay such assessments as may be required to obtain a certificate of admission from the Board, and if such industry be so admitted or is at the time within the scope of said Part that the employer shall pay all assessments and furnish information required by the Board to keep such industry within the scope of said Part during the whole period of the workman's employment in such industry, and that if the employer refuses, neglects, or fails to perform any of the foregoing covenants, the workman, and in case of his death his dependants, shall in the event of any accident happening to such workman while employed in such industry, out of Nova Scotia, be entitled to recover in an action from the employer an amount equal to the compensation or the capitalized amount of compensation that would be payable under said Act if the industry were within the scope of Part One of said Act at the time of the accident."

(b) The foregoing subsection (a) hereof shall apply to the industries of "navigation" and "fishing," and then only to the work of services performed or to be performed by a workman, as an officer or member of the crew of a ship registered in Nova Scotia or operated by an employer residing or having a place of business in Nova Scotia, and for the period that the operations of the ship are confined to the making of voyages or trips between places in Nova Scotia and places in New Brunswick, or Prince Edward Island, or Newfoundland, or to the making of fishing trips or voyages from ports or places in Nova Scotia. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(3) An industry carried on out of Nova Scotia shall be within the scope of this Part when the Board has, upon application of the employer, admitted such industry so carried on out of Nova Scotia as being within the scope of this Part and has issued a certificate to that effect, and then only during the period of and subject to the terms stated in such certificate. The admission of such industry and the granting of such certificate shall be in the discretion of the Board. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(4) (a) Where an accident happens while the workman is employed elsewhere than in Nova Scotia, which would entitle him or his dependants to compensation under this Part if it had happened in Nova Scotia, the workman or his dependants, as the case may be, shall be entitled to compensation under this Part if the industry carried on out of Nova Scotia at the time of the accident is within the scope of this Part by virtue of subsection (3) of this section.

(b) Section 11 of this Act shall apply to the dependants of such workman whose death results from such accident, and the workman or his dependants so far as they are within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia may be restrained or enjoined from commencing or prosecuting any action or proceeding within or without Nova Scotia, and the production of a certificate from the Board that the workman and the industry, in which such workman was employed at the time of the accident, were within the scope of Part 1, shall be sufficient proof of that fact. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(5) A workman or his dependants, as the case may be, who would be entitled to compensation under this Part but for the refusal, neglect, or failure of an employer within the provisions of this section to perform the statutory covenant set forth in said section shall be entitled to recover compensation from such employer, and such employer shall be personally liable for the payment of compensation to such workman or his dependants as provided by said statutory covenant of the employer and the provisions of this Part. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(6) This section shall not apply to such part of an industry as is carried on out of Nova Scotia nor to a workman engaged therein for the period that such industry and such workman are within the scope and operation of a Workmen's Compensation Act in force in the jurisdiction out of Nova Scotia in which such industry is carried on, and under which the workman, if injured, is required to accept the provisions of that Act in lieu of any action against the employer and under which the employer has been or may be compulsorily assessed with respect to such industry. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(7) (a) If notwithstanding the provisions of this section the workman or his dependants are, by the law of the country or place in which the accident happens, entitled to proceed by action or other proceedings in any court against the employer personally to recover damages or compensation against the employer in respect of such accident; or

(b) If in the opinion of the Board the law of such country or place is doubtful in that respect; or

(c) If any demand for damages has been made upon or any notice of action has been given to the employer with respect to any accident in respect of which compensation is payable under this Part; or

(d) If an action or other proceedings in any country or place outside of Nova Scotia has been commenced;

no compensation shall be payable under this Part in the cases mentioned in (a) and (b) of this subsection, unless an election be first made to claim compensation under the provisions of this Part in lieu of all claims and rights under the law of such other country or place, and unless such undertaking be given as the Board may require that no action or other proceeding will be commenced against the employer for damages, or to attach or levy upon any property of the employer in such country or place; and in the cases mentioned in (c) and (d) hereof any compensation that the person making such demand or commencing such action or proceeding would otherwise be entitled to under this Part, may be forfeited in whole or in part by the Board in its discretion, and the Board may pay to the employer such amount, not to exceed the amount forfeited, as was actually paid out by the employer by reason of such action or proceeding. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(8) Except as provided by this section, no compensation shall be payable under this Part where the accident to the workman happens elsewhere than in Nova Scotia, and the amount of compensation payable under this section to any person residing out of the Province at the time of the accident shall not exceed the amount that would be payable to such person under the laws of the country or place in which the accident happens. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

(9) In the case of a non-fatal accident happening to a workman employed on board of any vessel, compensation shall not be payable under this Part, for the period that the owner of the vessel is, under the Merchant Shipping Act and amendments thereto or otherwise, liable to defray the expenses of maintenance of the injured workman, and in the case of a fatal accident where the owner of the vessel is liable to pay the expenses of burial, such expenses shall not be payable out of the accident fund. 1917, c. 70, s. 23.

8A (a) In respect to the industry of fishing, a person who becomes a member of the crew of a ship registered in Nova Scotia under an agreement to prosecute a fishing voyage or voyages in the capacity of a sharesman, or who is described in the shipping Articles as a sharesman, or who agrees to accept in payment of his services any share or proportion of the proceeds or profits of the venture, with or without other remuneration, shall be considered and deemed to be a workman within the meaning of this Part.

(b) The owners of or persons operating the ship referred to in (a) hereof shall be deemed to be employers within the meaning of this Part.

(c) Members of the crew of such ship who are remunerated for their services in the manner mentioned in (a) hereof shall, for the purposes of assessments under this Part, be deemed to earn wages at the rate of $1200 a year, and in case of accident where the compensation payable depends upon the earnings or average earnings of such workman, he shall be deemed to earn at the rate of $1200 a year.

(d) Assessments paid or payable in respect of such industry shall be borne wholly by the employers. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

8B. Where it appears that by the laws of any other province, country, or jurisdiction, a workman or his dependants, if resident in Nova Scotia, would be entitled in respect of death or injury in such province, country or jurisdiction to compensation (as distinguished from damages) the Board may order that payments of compensation under this Act may be made to persons resident in such province, country, or jurisdiction in respect of any workman killed or injured in Nova Scotia; provided, however, that if the compensation payable under the laws of such other province, country, or jurisdiction be less than the compensation payable under this Part, the Board may reduce the amount of compensation accordingly. Provided that the Board may upon application grant leave from time to time to any workman, or dependant resident in Nova Scotia at the time of the accident to reside out of Nova Scotia without thereby forfeiting the right to compensation payments under this Act. Except as in this section provided, nothing in this Act shall entitle any person not resident in Nova Scotia to compensation payments under this Part with respect to an accident happening within Nova Scotia. 1919, c. 61, s. 5.

9. (1) Where an accident happens to a workman in the course of his employment in such circumstances as entitled him or his dependants to an action against some person other than his employer, the workman or his dependants if entitled to compensation under this Part may claim such compensation or may bring such action.

(2) If such workman or his dependants bring such action and less is recovered and collected than the amount of the compensation to which such workman or dependants would be entitled under this Act, such workman or dependants shall be entitled to compensation under this Part to the extent of the amount or amounts of such difference.

(3) If such workmen or dependants, or any of them have claimed compensation under this Part, the Board shall be subrogated to the position of such workman or dependant as against such other person for the whole or any outstanding part of the claim of such workman or dependant against such other person.

10. In any case within the provisions of Section 9, sub-section (1), neither the workman nor his dependants, nor the employer of such workman, shall have any right of action in respect of such accident against an employer in any industry within the scope of this Part; and in any such case where it appears to the satisfaction of the Board that a workman of an employer in any class is injured or killed owing to the negligence of an employer or of the workman of an employer in another class within the scope of this Part, the Board may direct that the compensation awarded in such case shall be charged against the last mentioned class. 1917, c. 17, s. 9.

11. The provisions of this Part shall be in lieu of all rights and rights of action, statutory or otherwise, to which a workman or his dependants are or may be entitled against the employer of such workman in or by reason of any accident in respect of which compensation is payable hereunder, and no action in respect to such accident shall lie. 1916, c. 7, s. 18.

12. It shall not be competent for a workman to agree with his employer to waive or to forego any of the benefits to which he or his dependants are or may become entitled under this Part, and every agreement to that end shall be absolutely void.

13. It shall not be lawful for an employer, either directly or indirectly, to deduct from the wages of any of his workmen any part of any sum which the employer is or may become liable to pay into the accident fund or otherwise under this Part, or to require or to permit any of his workmen to contribute in any manner towards indemnifying the employer against any liability which he has incurred or may incur under this Part.

14. Unless with the approval of the Board, no sum payable as compensation or by way of commutation of any periodical payment in respect of it shall be capable of being assigned, charged or attached, nor shall it pass by operation of law except to a personal representative, nor shall any claim be set off against it.

15. (1) No compensation shall be payable under this Part in respect of any injury unless application for such compensation is made within one year after the occurrence of the injury.

(2) Unless a person applying for compensation establish his right thereto to the satisfaction of the Board within 15 months from the date of the accident no compensation shall be payable to him under this Part with respect to such accident. 1919, c. 61, s. 7.

(3) The foregoing sub-section shall not apply where death results from an injury, but in such case no compensation shall be payable to a dependant under this Part, unless application for such compensation is made within one year and unless the person applying for compensation establish his right thereto to the satisfaction of the Board within fifteen months after the occurrence of the death. 1920, c. 42, s. 6.

Medical Aid.

(In force January 1st, 1920).

15A (1) Every workman entitled to compensation under this Part, or who would have been so entitled had he been disabled for seven days, shall be entitled during the period of thirty days from the date of the disability, to such medical and surgical aid and hospital and skilled nursing services as may be necessary as a result of the injury.

(2) In this Act "medical aid" shall mean the medical and surgical aid and hospital and skilled nursing services above mentioned.

(3) Such medical aid shall be furnished or arranged for by the Board or as it may direct or approve, and shall at all times be subject to the supervision and control of the Board, and shall be paid for by the Board out of the Accident Fund or as herein otherwise provided, and such amount as the Board may consider necessary shall be included in the assessment levied upon the employers.

(4) All questions as to the necessity, character, and sufficiency of any medical aid furnished or to be furnished shall be determined by the Board.

(5) The fees or charges for such medical aid shall be fixed and determined by the Board, and no action for any amount larger than that fixed by the Board shall lie in respect of any medical aid herein provided for.

(6) It shall not be lawful for any employer, directly or indirectly, to collect or receive or retain from any workman any contribution toward the expense of medical aid, and every person contravening this provision shall, for every such contravention, be liable to a penalty not exceeding $50 and shall also be liable, upon the order of the Board, to reimburse the workman treble the amount of any sum so collected, received, or retained, provided that it shall not be considered a contravention of this section for the employer to receive or collect a contribution from a workman under any arrangement approved by the Board.

(7) Where any employer has now established or hereafter establishes in connection with any industry carried on by him an arrangement for furnishing medical aid to his workmen which in the opinion of the Board is at least as favorable to the workmen as that herein provided for, the Board, after investigating the facts and considering the wishes of both the workmen and employer, may approve such arrangement, and pending such investigation the Board may provisionally approve such arrangement, and as long as such approval remains unrevoked such arrangement may be continued in lieu of the medical aid herein provided for, and the employer shall be entitled to such reduction in his rate of assessment as the Board shall deem just.

The Board for the purpose of approving of any such arrangement may take into consideration contributions voluntarily or by agreement with workmen made by the employer to any relief or other association of which at least the majority of workmen of such employer are members. Any arrangement or practice in force on December 31st, 1919, and which has since been continued for providing medical aid for workmen in any industry although at the expense of workmen may be temporarily continued unless otherwise ordered by the Board pending the adoption of such arrangement as may meet with the approval of the Board, and while such temporary arrangement or practice is so continued the Board shall not be liable to furnish medical aid to any workmen entitled to medical aid under such arrangement or practice. This section shall be effective as of January 1st, 1920. Amended 1920, c. 42, s. 7.

(8) Nothing in this Act shall affect any obligation upon the employer under any other Statute or any regulation made thereunder.

(9) Employers in any industries in which it is deemed proper may be required by the Board to maintain as may be directed by the Board such first aid appliances and service, and such transportation for an injured workman, as the Board may direct, and the Board may make such order or regulation respecting the same and how the expense thereof shall be borne as may be deemed just.

(10) Where in conjunction with or apart from the medical aid, to which workmen are to be entitled free of charge, further or other service of benefit is, or is proposed to be, given or arranged for, any question arising as to whether or to what extent any contribution from workmen is, or would be one prohibited by this Act shall be determined by the Board.

(11) Every physician, surgeon and hospital official attending, consulted respecting, or having the care of any workman, shall furnish to the Board from time to time, without additional charge, such reports as may be required by the Board in respect of such workman.

(12) In the case of any workman employed as a master, mate, engineer, seaman, sailor, steward, fireman, or in any other capacity on board of any vessel on which duty has been paid or is payable for the purpose of the Sick Mariners' Fund under Part V of the "Canada Shipping Act," being chapter 113 of the "Revised Statutes of Canada 1906," the provisions of subsections (1) to (5) shall not apply to such workman during the period in respect of which such duty has been paid or is payable, or during which the workman is entitled to medical and surgical attendance and other treatment under said Act.

(13) It shall not be lawful for a physician, surgeon or other person, entitled to be paid by the Board under this Part for any services performed or for any medicines or materials supplied, to make any charge or claim against the injured workman, the employer, or any person, other than the Board, for such services, medicines, or materials. 1919, c. 61, s. 8.

The Workmen's Compensation Board.

16. There is hereby constituted a commission for the administration of this Part to be called "The Workmen's Compensation Board," which shall consist of three members to be appointed by the Governor in Council and shall be a body corporate.

17. (1) One of the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Governor in Council to be the chairman of the Board, and he shall hold that office while he remains a member of the Board, and another of the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Governor in Council vice-chairman of the Board.

(2) In the absence of the chairman, or in case of his inability to act, or if there is a vacancy in the office the vice-chairman may act as and shall have all the powers of the chairman.

18. (1) In the case of the death, illness, or absence from Nova Scotia of a Commissioner or of his inability to act from any cause, the Governor in Council may appoint some person to act pro tempore in his stead, and the person so appointed shall have all the powers and perform all the duties of a Commissioner.

(2) Sub-section (1) shall apply in the case of the chairman of the Board as well as in the case of any other member of it.

19. Where the vice-chairman appears to have acted for or instead of the chairman, it shall be conclusively presumed that he so acted for one of the reasons mentioned in the next preceding sub-section.

20. Each Commissioner shall, subject to Section 21, hold office during good behaviour, but may be removed at any time for cause.

21. Unless otherwise directed by the Governor in Council, a Commissioner shall cease to hold office when he attains the age of 75 years.

22. The salary of the chairman, of the vice-chairman and of the other Commissioner shall be determined by the Governor in Council, and such salaries shall be payable out of the Provincial revenue.

23. The presence of two Commissioners shall be necessary to constitute a quorum of the Board.

24. A vacancy on the Board shall not, if there remain two members of it impair the authority of such two members to act.

25. The Board shall have the like powers as the Supreme Court for compelling the attendance of witnesses and of examining them under oath, and compelling the production of books, papers, documents and things.

26. The offices of the Board shall be situated in the City of Halifax, and its sittings shall be held there, except where it is expedient to hold sittings elsewhere, and in that case sittings may be held in any part of Nova Scotia.

27. The Commissioners shall sit at such times and conduct their proceedings in such manner as they may deem most convenient for the proper discharge and speedy despatch of business.

28. (1) The Board shall appoint a secretary and a chief medical officer, and may appoint such auditors, actuaries, accountants, inspectors, officers, clerks and servants as the Board may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of this part, and may prescribe their duties, and, subject to the approval of the Governor in Council, may fix their salaries and pay the same out of the accident fund.

(2) Every person so appointed shall hold office during the pleasure of the Board.

29. (1) The Board may act upon the report of any of its officers, and any inquiry which it shall be deemed necessary to make may be made by any one of the commissioners or by an officer of the Board or some other person appointed to make the inquiry, and the Board may act upon his report as to the result of the inquiry.

(2) The person appointed to make the inquiry shall for the purposes of the inquiry have all the powers conferred upon the Board by section 25.

30. (1) The Board shall have jurisdiction to inquire into, hear and determine all matters and questions of fact and law necessary to be determined in connection with compensation payments and the administration thereof and the collection and management of the funds therefor.

(2) The Board may in its discretion invest any funds arising under any provisions of this Part, and under its control, in any securities which are under the "Trustee Act" a proper investment for trust funds.

(3) The funds, investments and income of the Board shall be free from every form of taxation. 1918, c. 45, s. 4.

31. (1) Except as stated in sub-sections (2) and (5) of this section, the decisions and findings of the Board upon all questions of law and fact shall be final and conclusive, and in particular, but not so as to restrict the generality of the powers of the Board hereunder, the following shall be deemed to be questions of fact—

(a) The question whether an injury has arisen out of or in the course of an employment within the scope of this Act;

(b) The existence and degree of disability by reason of any injury;

(c) The permanence of disability by reason of any injury;

(d) The degree of diminution of earning capacity by reason of any injury;

(e) The amount of average earnings;

(f) The existence of the relationship of a member of the family as defined by this Act.

1918, c. 45, s. 5.

(g) The existence of dependency;

(h) The character, for the purposes of this Act, of any employment, establishment or department and the class to which such employment, establishment or department should be assigned;

(i) Whether or not any employee in any industry within the scope of this Part is within the scope of this Part and entitled to compensation thereunder.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court in banco from any final decision of the Board upon any question as to its jurisdiction or upon any questions of law, but such appeal can be taken only by permission of a judge of the said court, given upon a petition presented to him within fifteen days after the rendering of the decision, and upon such terms as said judge may determine. Notice of such petition shall be given to the Board, at least two clear days before the presentation of such petition.

(3) Where an appeal has been granted, the appeal shall be brought by notice served on the chairman or vice-chairman of the Board within ten days after the permission to appeal has been granted. The notice shall contain the names of the parties and the date of the order appealed from, and such other particulars as the judge granting the appeal may require.

(4) On the hearing of such appeal any association representing a class interested in result of the case shall be entitled to appear and be heard.

(5) The Board may of its own motion state a case in writing for the opinion of the Supreme Court in banco upon any question which in the opinion of the Board is a question of law.

(6) The Supreme Court shall hear and determine the question or questions of law arising thereon and remit the matter to the Board, with the opinion of the Court thereon.

(7) No costs shall be awarded in any appeal or case stated under this section.

32. The accounts of the Board shall be audited by an auditor appointed by the Governor in Council for that purpose, and the salary or remuneration of such auditor shall be fixed by the Governor in Council and paid by the Board. 1918, c. 45, s. 6.

33. The Board shall, on or before the 1st day of March in each year, make a report to the Provincial Secretary of its transactions during the next preceding calendar year, and such report shall contain such particulars as the Governor in Council may prescribe.

34. (1) All expenses incurred in the administration of this Part shall be paid out of the accident fund.

(2) To assist in defraying the expenses incurred in the administration of this Part, there shall be paid to the accident fund out of the Provincial treasury such annual sum, not exceeding $25,000, as the Governor in Council may direct.

Scale of Compensation.

(From and after October 1, 1920).

35. (1) Where death results from an injury, the amount of compensation shall be—

(a) The necessary expenses of the burial of the workman, not exceeding $75;

(b) Where the widow or an invalid widower is the sole dependant, a monthly payment of $30;

(c) Where the dependants are a widow or an invalid widower and one or more children, a monthly payment of $30, with an additional monthly payment of $7.50 for each child under the age of 16 years, not exceeding in the whole $60;

(d) Where the dependants are children, a monthly payment of $15 to each child under the age of 16 years not exceeding in the whole $60.

(e) Where no compensation is payable under (b), (c) or (d), and persons other than those mentioned in the foregoing clauses are dependants, a sum reasonable and proportionate to the pecuniary loss to such dependants occasioned by the death, to be determined by the Board, but not exceeding $30 per month to a parent or parents, and not exceeding in the whole $45 per month.

(f) Where compensation is payable to or for a child under (c) or (d) or under Section 37, subsection (2), no additional compensation shall be payable with respect to such child by reason of the subsequent death from an injury, of any person upon whom such child was wholly or partly dependent. 1920, c. 42, s. 1.

(2) In the case provided for in clause (c) of subsection (1), the payments shall continue only so long as in the opinion of the Board it might reasonably have been expected had the workman lived he would have continued to contribute to the support of the dependants.

(3) Where there are both total and partial dependants the compensation may be allotted partly to the total and partly to the partial dependants.

(4) Exclusive of the expenses of burial, the compensation payable as provided by subsection (1) shall not in any case exceed 55 per cent of the average earnings of the workman, and if the compensation payable under that sub-section would in any case exceed that percentage it shall be reduced accordingly and where several persons are entitled to monthly payments the payments shall be reduced proportionately.

(4½) The foregoing sub-section (4) shall not apply to compensation payable under clauses (b), (c) or (d) of said sub-section (1) provided however, that the dependants of a workman whose death results from an injury received while in the employ of an incorporated company shall not be entitled to compensation in excess of that provided by the foregoing sub-section (4) if

(a) such workman at the time of the accident was an officer and also a shareholder of such incorporated company, or

(b) if a majority of the shares of such incorporated company was owned at the time of the accident directly or indirectly by such workman or by the workman and any members of his family, or by any members of his family.

This sub-section (4½) shall be deemed to have been in force since January 1st, 1920. 1920, c. 42, s. 2.

(5) Where death results from an injury, or after an injury from any cause, any compensation payable with respect to any portion of the period between the date of the injury and the date of the death may be paid by the Board to the widow or to such of the dependants of the deceased workman as the Board may deem advisable, and in case of minors or persons of unsound mind, payment may be made as provided in Section 44. 1917, c. 70, s. 10; amended 1920, c. 42, s. 8.

(6) Any compensation payable to a dependant who dies before such compensation is paid may be paid to such member or members of the family of the deceased dependant, or to such person or persons caring or providing for the deceased dependant prior to his or her decease, as the Board may deem advisable. 1919, c. 61, s. 10.

36. (1) If a dependent widow marries, her right to compensation under (b) or (c) of sub-section (1) of Section 35 shall cease, but she shall be entitled to $20.00 a month for a period of 25 months from the date of the marriage, or, in the discretion of the Board, to be paid an amount equal to such payments in one or more amounts, payable during the said 25 months; and upon payment of same all payments of compensation to her shall cease. (In force October 1st, 1920.) 1920, c. 42, s. 3 and 4.

(2) Sub-section (1) shall not apply to payments to a widow in respect of a child.

37. (1) Payments in respect of a child shall cease when the child attains the age of 16 years or dies.

Compensation shall be payable to an invalid child without regard to the age of such child, and payments to such child shall continue so long as in the opinion of the Board it might reasonably have been expected had the workman lived he would have continued to contribute to support of such child. 1917, c. 71, s. 2.

(2) Where a payment to any one of a number of dependants ceases, the remaining dependants shall be entitled to receive the same compensation as though they had been the only dependants at the time of the death of the workman.

This sub-section shall not apply where a payment ceases by reason of the remarriage of a widow. Amended 1918, c. 45, s. 7.

37A. Persons entitled immediately before October 1st, 1920, to compensation under clauses (b), (c) or (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 35, or under Sections 36, 37, sub-section (2), of said Chapter 1 of the Acts of 1915, as amended prior to the passing of this Act, shall, on and after October 1st, 1920, be entitled to compensation as provided by this Act, but except as aforesaid and as provided by the new sub-section (4½) to said Section 35 added by Section 2 hereof, this Act shall not apply so as to increase or decrease the compensation payable to any person whose right to compensation arose prior to October 1st, 1920. 1920, c. 42, s. 5.

38. Where permanent total disability results from the injury the amount of the compensation shall be a periodical payment during the life of the workman equal to 55 per cent of his average earnings. Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 12.

(2) The compensation awarded under this section shall not be less than an amount equal to five dollars per week, unless the workman's average earnings are less than five dollars per week, in which case he shall receive compensation in an amount equal to his average earnings. The reference to Section 38 in sub-section (1) of Section 40 shall not include this sub-section. 1917, c. 71, s. 1.

39. (1) Where permanent partial disability results from the injury, the compensation shall be a periodical payment of such amount as the Board considers represents 55 per cent of the difference in the earning capacity of the workman before the accident and his earning capacity after the accident, having regard to the degree of disability, the age of the workman, and his average earnings at the time of the accident, and shall be payable during the lifetime of the workman. 1919, c. 61, s. 12.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of sub-section (1), where in the circumstances the amount which the workman was able to earn before the accident has not been diminished, the Board may, nevertheless, recognize an impairment of earning capacity. Amended 1919, c. 61, s. 12; 1920, c. 42, s. 9.

40. (1) Where temporary total disability results from the injury, the compensation shall be the same as that prescribed by Section 38, but shall be payable only so long as the disability lasts.

(2) Where temporary partial disability results from the injury the compensation shall be a periodical payment of 55 per cent of the difference between the average earnings of the workman before the accident and the average amount which he is earning or is able to earn in some suitable employment or business after the accident and shall be payable so long as the disability lasts. 1919, c. 61, s. 13.

41. "Average earnings" and "earning capacity" shall mean and refer to the average earnings or earning capacity at the time of the injury, and may be calculated upon the daily, weekly or monthly wages or other regular remuneration, which the workman was receiving at the time of the injury, or upon the average yearly earnings of the workman for three years prior to the injury, or upon the probable yearly earning capacity of the workman at the time of the injury as may appear to the Board best to represent the actual loss of earnings suffered by the workman by reason of the injury, but not so in any case to exceed the rate of $1,200 per year.

42. (1) In fixing the amount of a weekly or monthly payment regard shall be had to any payment, allowance or benefit which the workman may receive from his employer during the period of his disability, including any pension, gratuity, or other allowance provided wholly at the expense of the employer.

(2) Where compensation is payable, any sum deducted from the compensation under sub-section (1) may be paid to the employer out of the accident fund.

43. (1) Where any workman or dependant is entitled to compensation under this Part he shall file with the Board an application for such compensation together with the certificate of the attending physician, if any, and such further or other proofs of his claim as may be required by the Board.

(2) It shall be the duty of every physician or surgeon attending or consulted upon any case of injury to any workman to furnish or cause to be furnished from time to time such reports, and in such form as may be required by the Board in respect of such injury.

(3) It shall also be the duty of every physician in attendance upon any injured workman to give all reasonable and necessary information, advice and assistance to enable such workman or his dependants, as the case may be, to make application for compensation, and to furnish such proofs as may be required by the Board.

(4) It shall be the duty of every employer, within three days after the happening of an accident to a workman in his employment by which the workman is disabled from earning full wages, to notify the Board in writing of the—

- (a) happening of the accident and nature of it;
- (b) time of its occurrence;
- (c) name and address of the workman;
- (d) place where the accident happened;
- (e) name and address of the physician or surgeon, if any, by whom the workman was or is attended for the injury;
- (f) any other particulars required by the Board. 1917, c. 70, s. 13.

(5) It shall be the duty of the employer to make such further and other reports respecting such accident and workman as may be required by the Board.

44. (1) Payments of compensation shall be made in such manner and in such form as may appear to the Board to be most convenient, and in the case of minors or persons of unsound mind, payments may be made to such persons as, in the opinion of the Board, are best qualified in all the circumstances to administer such payment, whether or not the person to whom the payment is made is the legal guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind.

(2) If a person entitled to compensation is committed to an insane asylum or to any jail or prison, compensation shall not be payable for the period of confinement therein, provided that the Board may pay the whole or any part of the compensation so withheld, to any dependant or dependants of the person so confined, and provided that in the case of a person committed to prison for an indictable offence compensation may at the discretion of the Board be entirely forfeited. 1919, c. 61, s. 14.

45. (1) The Board may, in its discretion, commute the whole or any part of the payments due or payable to the workman or any beneficiaries for a lump sum in lieu of such payments to be applied as directed by the Board.

(2) The Board may, in its discretion, instead of paying any compensation payable in a lump sum, divide the compensation into periodical payments.

(3) Where in any case, in the opinion of the Board, it will conserve the accident fund to provide a special surgical operation or other special medical treatment for a workman, and the furnishing of the same by the Board is, in the opinion of the Board, the only means of avoiding heavy payment for disability, the expense of such operation or treatment may be paid out of the accident fund. Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 14; 1919, c. 61, s. 6.

46. (1) The Board may re-open, re-hear, re-determine, review or re-adjust any claim, decision, or adjustment either because an injury has proven more serious or less serious than it was deemed to be, or because a change has occurred in the condition of a workman or in the number, circumstances or condition of dependants or otherwise.

And in any case where the Board is of opinion that any person entitled to compensation under this Part is leading an immoral or improper life, the Board shall have power, after due investigation, to withhold or suspend compensation for such period as the Board deems proper. Where compensation is so withheld or suspended, it shall be paid to the other dependants, if any, or to such of the other dependants as the Board deems advisable. Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 15.

(2) The Board may withhold compensation payable to a parent with respect to the death of any child under the age of 14 years where the employment of such child was unlawful by virtue of any statute. 1918, c. 45, s. 9.

47. Where the workman was at the date of the accident under twenty-one years of age and the review takes place more than six months after the accident, the amount of a periodical payment may be increased to the sum to which he would have been entitled if his average earnings had at the date of the accident been equal to what, if he had not been injured, he would probably have been earning at the date of the review.

48. (1) The Board may from time to time require that any workman applying for or receiving compensation payments shall submit to medical examination by the Board or its duly appointed officers; and in default of such requirement being complied with, may withhold such compensation payments.

(2) The Board may require such proof from time to time of the existence and condition of any dependant in receipt of compensation payments as may be deemed by the Board necessary.

Accident Fund and Assessments.

49. The compensation provided for in this Act shall be paid out of a fund to be called "The Accident Fund."

50. For the purpose of creating and maintaining the accident fund, all industries within the scope of this Part shall, subject to Sections 51 and 52, be divided into the following classes—
Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 16.

- Class 1.—Lumbering, logging, saw-mills, manufacture of pulp or paper.
- Class 2.—Wood-working, planing mills, furniture factories, piano or organ factories, cooepage.
- Class 3.—Coal mining.
- Class 4.—Mining (other than coal), reduction of ores and smelting, quarrying, manufacture of brick or lime.
- Class 5.—Manufacture of iron and steel, and iron and steel products.
- Class 6.—Car-shops, manufacture of vehicles.
- Class 7.—Manufacture of compounds, paints, chemicals, liquors or beverages.
- Class 8.—Manufacture of leather, leather goods, rubber or rubber goods.
- Class 9.—Flour-milling and handling of grain; canning; pork-packing; manufacture of food products; tobacco and tobacco products.
- Class 10.—Manufacture of cloth, textiles and clothing.
- Class 11.—Printing, lithographing, engraving; manufacture of stationery.
- Class 12.—Teaming, cartage, warehousing and storage.
- Class 13.—Construction of buildings and wooden ships; mason work, structural carpentry, plumbing and painting.
- Class 14.—Steel erection, steel bridge building, steel ship building.
- Class 15.—Road-making, sewer construction, excavation.
- Class 16.—Sub-aqueous construction, dredging, pile-driving.
- Class 17.—Construction and operation of electric railways, electric power lines and appliances.
- Class 18.—Construction and operation of telegraphs and telephones.
- Class 19.—Construction and operation of steam railways.
- Class 20.—Navigation and stevedoring.

51. The Board may by regulation re-arrange any of the classes mentioned in Section 50 or withdraw from any class, any industry or group of industries included therein, and transfer such industry or group of industries to any other class, or form it into a separate class or may make new classes, or exclude any industry from the operation of Part 1, or add any industry to those mentioned in Section 3. Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 17.

52. The Board shall assign every industry within the scope of this Part to its proper class; and where any industry includes several departments assignable to different classes, the Board may either assign such industry to the class of its principal or chief department, or may, for the purpose of this Act, divide such industry into two or more departments, assigning each of such departments to its proper class.

53. (Repealed 1918, c. 45, s. 10.)

54. (1) The Board shall every year assess and levy upon and collect from the employers in each class by an assessment rated upon the pay roll, or otherwise as the Board may deem proper sufficient funds to meet all claims payable during the year and in case of refusal or neglect to furnish a pay roll, statement or estimate, the Board shall have power to make its own estimate of the amount of the pay roll of such employer for the purpose of making a provisional assessment. Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 18.

(2) The Board may fix an amount not to exceed $5.00 as the minimum amount of any assessment made under this Part upon any employer with respect to any industry carried on by him during any calendar year. 1919, c. 61, s. 15.

55. Separate accounts shall be kept of the amounts collected and expended in respect of every class and of every fund set aside by way of reserve, but for the purpose of paying compensation the accident fund shall, nevertheless, be deemed one and indivisible.

56. (1) The Board may, in addition to the amount actually required in each class for the year, assess, levy and collect from any class or classes a surcharge or surcharges to be set aside as a reserve or reserves—

(a) by way of providing a contingent fund in aid of industries or classes which may become depleted or extinguished; or

(b) by way of providing a sinking fund for the capitalization of periodical compensation payments payable in future years; or

(c) by way of setting up a reserve fund for the equalizing of assessments; or

(d) for the purpose of raising a special fund to be used to meet the loss arising from any disaster or other circumstance which in the opinion of the Board would unfairly burden the employers in any class.

(2) The Board may, in respect of any industry or class where it is deemed expedient, assess, levy and collect in each year a sufficient amount to provide capitalized reserves which shall be deemed sufficient to meet the periodical payments accruing in future years in respect of all accidents during such year.

(3) Upon any such change being made as provided in Section 52, the Board may make such adjustment and disposition of the funds, reserves and accounts of the classes affected as may be deemed just and expedient.

57. (1) Every employer shall pay into the accident fund such assessments as may be levied by the Board, and if any assessment or any part thereof is not duly paid in accordance with the terms of the levy, the Board shall have a right of action against the employer in respect of any amount unpaid, together with costs of such action.

(2) Assessments may be made in such manner and form, and at such times and by such procedure as the Board may deem adequate and expedient, and may be general as applicable to any class or sub-class, or special as applicable to any industry or part or department of an industry. 1918, c. 45, s. 11.

(3) Where an employer engages in any industry within the scope of this Part, the Board, if of opinion that the industry is to be carried on only temporarily, may require the employer to pay or to give security for the payment to the Board of a sum, which in the opinion of the Board will be sufficient to pay all assessments that the Board may make with respect to such industry, and the payment of such amount may be enforced as provided by Section 68. 1918, c. 45, s. 12.

(4) In any case where an employer makes default in the payment of an assessment, and an execution issued upon a judgment, entered with respect to such assessment, is returned with a certificate from a sheriff or his deputy that he was unable to wholly satisfy the same, and the judgment debtor continues to carry on an industry within the scope of this Part in which workmen are employed, any judge of the Supreme Court, upon an application made on behalf of the Board by Chambers Summons without the issue of any writ or the commencement of any action, may restrain such judgment debtor from carrying on any industry within the scope of this Part until the amount due on such execution and all assessments made by the Board and the costs of the application be paid. 1918, c. 45, s. 13.

58. The Board shall give notice to each employer, in such manner as may be deemed by the Board proper and sufficient, of the amount of the assessments due from time to time in respect of his industry or industries, and the time or times when such assessments are due and payable.

59. Notwithstanding any provision of this Part respecting estimates of pay-rolls and notice to employers, it shall be the duty of every employer without demand from the Board, to cause to be paid to the Board the full amount of every assessment assessed or levied in accordance with this Part, in respect to workmen in his employ within the scope of this Part.

60. The Board may establish such sub-classifications, differentials and proportions in the rates as between the different kinds of employment in the same class as may be deemed just; and where any particular industry is shown to be so circumstanced or conducted that the hazard is greater than the average of the class to which such industry is assigned, the Board may impose upon such industry a special rate, differential or assessment, to correspond with the excessive hazard of such industry.

61. If in any class the estimated assessment shall prove insufficient, the Board may make such further assessments and levies as may be necessary, or may temporarily advance the amount of any deficiency out of any reserve, and may add such amount to any subsequent assessment or assessments.

62. Assessments may, wherever it is deemed expedient, be collected in half-yearly, quarterly or monthly instalments, or otherwise; and where it appears that the funds in any class are sufficient for the time being, any instalment may be abated or its collection deferred.

63. In each year, as soon as the necessary information is obtained, the amount of the assessment for the preceding calendar year shall be adjusted upon the actual requirements of the class and upon the correctly ascertained payroll of each industry, and the employer shall upon demand of the Board forthwith make up and pay to the Board any deficiency, or the Board shall refund to the employer any surplus, or credit the same upon the succeeding assessment as the case may require. 1918, c. 45, s. 14.

64. Where in any industry a change of ownership or employership has occurred, the Board may levy any part of such deficiency or the amount due upon any assessment on either or any of such successive owners or employers, or pay or credit to any one or more of such owners or employers such surplus as the case may require, but as between or amongst such successive owners or employers the assessment in respect of such employment shall, in the absence of an agreement between the respective owners or employers determining the same, be apportionable, as nearly as may be, in accordance with the proportions of the payrolls of the respective periods of ownership or employment. 1918, c. 45, s. 15.

65. In computing and adjusting the amount of the payroll of any industry, regard shall be had only to such portion of the payroll as represents workmen and work within the scope of this Part, but the Board may by regulation exclude the salary or wages of any officer in excess of an amount to be stated in such regulation. 1918, c. 45, s. 16, as amended 1919, s. 61, c. 16.

66. (1) Every employer shall, on or before a date to be fixed by the Governor in Council, or whenever thereafter he shall have become an employer within the meaning of this Act, or whenever required from time to time by the Board so to do, cause to be furnished to the Board an estimate or estimates of the probable amount of the payroll of each of his industries within the scope of this Part, together with such further and other information as may be required by the Board for the purpose of assigning such industry to the proper class or classes, and of making the assessments hereunder, and shall likewise at or after the close of each calendar year, or at such other times as may be required by the Board, furnish certified copies or reports of his payroll or payrolls, verified by statutory declaration, for the purpose of enabling the Board to adjust and compute the amount of the assessment as provided in Section 65.

(2) The assessors appointed under the Assessment Act and the board of assessors for every city, shall yearly within ten days after the completion of the assessment roll, make a return to the Board upon forms provided by the Board for the purpose, showing the names, addresses, nature of business, and usual number of employees, if known, of all employers of labour carrying on any industry or business, other than a farming or mercantile business, within the district of such assessor, and any other information the Board may require. 1917, c. 70, s. 22.

(3) Within three days after the granting of any building permit in any municipality, city or town, written notice thereof shall be given to the Board by the person whose duty it is to keep a record of such permits. 1917, c. 70, s. 22.

(4) Every employer shall keep in such form and with such detail as may be required for the purposes of this Act, a careful and accurate account of all wages paid to his employees. And such account shall be kept within the province and shall be produced to the Board or its officers when required. 1917, c. 70, s. 22, as amended 1919, c. 61, s. 17.

(5) Upon the refusal, neglect or failure of an employer to furnish verified copies or reports of his pay roll as required by this section or such statements as the Board may require of the actual amount of wages paid and other allowances made to workmen, verified by statutory declaration, or if the employer refuses, neglects or fails to keep or produce for inspection or for the purpose of being audited, proper and sufficient accounts of all wages paid and other allowances made to workmen, the Board, in addition to any penalty for which the employer may be liable, may of its own motion make an estimate of the amount of such wages and other allowances, and such estimate of the Board shall, except in so far as the Board may revise or change same, be final and conclusive for the purpose of making any assessment or of adjusting the amount that such employer should pay. 1919, c. 61, s. 17.

(6) Every person, though not an employer, or not an employer carrying on an industry within the scope of this Part, shall, whenever required, make a return to the Board stating whether he has or has not employed workmen during any period since January 1st, 1917, that the Board may designate, and if he has employed workmen, he shall state in such return the nature of the industry in which they were employed, and furnish such other information as the Board may require. 1919, c. 61, s. 17.

67. (1) If an assessment or a special assessment is not paid at the time when it becomes payable the defaulting employer shall be liable to pay and shall pay as a penalty for his default such a percentage upon the amount unpaid, as may be prescribed by the regulations or may be determined by the Board, and such percentage may be added to the amount of the assessment and payment enforced as provided by Section 68. 1918, c. 45, s. 17.

(2) Any employer who refuses or neglects to make or transmit any payroll return or other statement required to be furnished by him under the provisions of Section 66, or who refuses or neglects to pay any assessment, special or supplementary assessment, or the provisional amount of any assessment, or any instalment or part thereof, shall, in addition to any penalty or other liability to which he may be subject, pay to the Board the full amount or capitalized value, as determined by the Board, of the compensation payable in respect of any accident to a workman in his employ which happens during the period of such default, and the payment of such amount may be enforced in the same manner as the payment of an assessment may be enforced.

(3) The Board, if satisfied that such default was excusable, may in any case relieve such employer in whole or in part from liability under this section.

68. Where default is made in the payment of any assessment or any part thereof, or where it is provided by any other section of this Part that an amount or payment may be recovered or enforced in the same manner as an assessment or as provided by Section 68, the Board may issue its certificate, stating that the assessment was made, or the matter with respect to which the amount is due or payable, the amount remaining unpaid on account thereof, and the person by whom it was payable, and such certificate, or a copy of it certified by the secretary of the Board to be a true copy, may be filed with a clerk of any county court, or with any prothonotary of the Supreme court, and when so filed and sealed with the seal of such Court shall become an order of that court, upon which judgment may be entered against such person for the amount mentioned in the certificate, together with the fees of the clerk or prothonotary allowable in the case of a default judgment, and such judgment may be enforced by execution or otherwise as any other judgment of the court, and such courts shall have jurisdiction with respect to the amount mentioned in such certificate, whatever it may be. 1918, c. 45, s. 18.

69. The Board and any member of it, and any officer of the Board or person authorized by it for that purpose, shall have the right to examine the books and accounts of the employer and to make such other inquiry as the Board may deem necessary for the purpose of ascertaining whether any statement furnished to the Board under the provisions of section 66 is an accurate statement of the matters which are required to be stated therein or of ascertaining the amount of the payroll of any employer or of ascertaining whether any industry or person is under the operation of this Part.

70. Every member of the Board and every officer or person authorized by it to make any examination or inquiry under this Act shall have power and authority to require and to take affidavits, affirmations or declarations as to any matter of such examination or inquiry, and to take statutory declarations required under section 66, and in all such cases to administer oaths, affirmations and declarations and certify to the same having been made.

71. The Board and any member of it and any officer or person authorized by it for that purpose, shall have the right at all reasonable hours to enter into the establishment of any employer who is liable to contribute to the accident fund, and the premises connected with it, and every part of them, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the ways, works, machinery or appliances therein are safe, adequate and sufficient, and whether all proper precautions are taken for the prevention of accidents to the workmen employed in or about the establishment or premises, and whether the safety appliances or safeguards prescribed by law are used and employed therein, or for any other purpose which the Board may deem necessary for the purpose of determining the proportion in which such employer should contribute to the accident fund.

72. No officer of the Board and no person authorized to make an inquiry under this Part shall divulge or allow to be divulged, except in the performance of his duties or under the authority of the Board, any information obtained by him or which has come to his knowledge in making or in connection with an inspection or inquiry under this Part.

Liability for Assessments.

73. Where any work within the scope of this Part is performed under contract for any municipal corporation or public service commission, any assessment in respect of such work may be paid by such corporation or commission as the case may be, and the amount of such assessment may be deducted from any moneys due the contractor in respect of such work. 1918, c. 45, s. 19.

74. (1) Where any work within the scope of this Part is undertaken for any person by a contractor, both the contractor and the person for whom such work is undertaken shall be liable for the amount of any assessment in respect thereof and such assessment may be levied upon and collected from either of them or partly from one and partly from the other; provided that in the absence of any term in the contract to the contrary the contractor shall, as between himself and the person for whom the work is performed, be primarily liable for the amount of such assessment.

(2) Where any work within the scope of this Part is performed under sub-contract, both the contractor and the sub-contractor shall be liable for the amount of the assessments in respect of such work; and such assessments may be levied upon and collected from either or partly from one and partly from the other; provided that in the absence of any term in the sub-contract to the contrary, the sub-contractor shall be primarily liable for such assessments. 1917, c. 70, s. 20.

(3) Any contractor or sub-contractor who is not assessed with respect to the work carried on by him as such contractor or sub-contractor and the workmen of such contractor or sub-contractor may be considered workmen of the principal with respect to any industry within the scope of this Part.

Provided that in the absence of any term in the contract or sub-contract to the contrary, the principal shall be entitled to recover from the contractor and the contractor from the sub-contractor the amount or proportionate part of any assessment paid by the principal with respect to the contractor or his workmen or paid by the contractor in respect to a sub-contractor or his workmen. 1918, c. 45, s. 20, as amended 1920, c. 42, s. 10.

75. In the case of a work or service performed by an employer in any of the industries within the scope of this Part, for which the employer could be entitled to a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, it shall be the duty of the owner as deemed by that Act to see that any sum which the employer is liable to contribute to the accident fund is paid, and if any such owner fails to do so he shall be personally liable to pay it to the Board, and the Board shall have the like powers and be entitled to the like remedies for enforcing payment as it possesses or is entitled to in respect of an assessment.

76. (1) There shall be included among the debts which under "The Assignments Act" "The Companies Winding Up Act," and "The Trustee Act," are, in the distribution of the property in the case of an assignment or death or in the distribution of the assets of a company being wound up under the said Acts respectively, to be paid in priority to all other debts, the amount of any assessment the liability whereof accrued before the date of the assignment or death or before the date of the commencement of the winding up, and the said Acts shall have effect accordingly.

(2) The amount of any assessment and any judgment with respect to same shall be a first lien upon all the property, real, personal, or mixed, used in or in connection with the industry with respect to which the employer is assessed, subject only to municipal taxes, and the amount levied under execution upon any such judgment to the extent of the amount due upon such execution shall forthwith be paid by the sheriff or his deputy to the Workmen's Compensation Board. This subsection shall apply to all assessments made or payable after January 1st, 1917. 1918, c. 45, s. 21.

(3) The words "amount of any assessment and any judgment with respect to same" in the first line of the foregoing sub-section (2), shall include any percentage payable under the authority of section 67 subsection (1) of chapter 1 of the Acts of 1915, as amended by section

17 of chapter 45 of the Acts of 1918, and the amount due upon any judgment entered in the manner provided by section 68 of chapter 1 of the Acts of 1915 as amended by section 18 of chapter 45 of the Acts of 1918. 1919, c. 61, s. 18.

77. The Board may make such regulations as may be deemed requisite for the due administration and carrying out of the provisions of this Part, and may prescribe the form and use of such payrolls, records, reports, certificates, declarations and documents as may be requisite. Amended 1917, c. 70, s. 21.

78. The Board may prescribe penalties for the violation of any of the provisions of this Act, or for the breach of any rules, regulations or orders made under the authority of this Act, provided that such penalties shall be approved by the Governor in Council.

79. The penalties imposed by or under the authority of this Part shall be recoverable under the Summary Convictions Act or by an action brought by the Board, in any court of competent jurisdiction, and such penalties when collected shall be paid over to the Board, and shall form part of the accident fund.

Associations.

80. (1) Where any association shall make rules for the prevention of accidents in the industry or industries represented by such Association, such rules shall, if approved by the Board, be binding on all the employers included in the class, sub-class or group represented by such association whether or not such employers are members of such association.

(2) Where an association under the authority of its rules, appoints one or more inspectors engineers or experts for the purpose of accident prevention, the Board may pay the salary and necessary expenses of any such inspector, engineer or expert out of the accident fund and charge the same to the account of the proper class, sub-class or group.

(3) The Board may on the application of any association make an allowance to such association to meet any expenses of such association and pay such allowance out of the accident fund and charge the same to the account of the class, sub-class or group represented by such association.

Industrial Diseases.

81. (1) Where a workman suffers from an industrial disease and is thereby disabled from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed, or his death is caused by an industrial disease, and the disease is due to the nature of any employment in which he was engaged at any time within twelve months previous to the date of his disablement, whether under one or more employments, the workman or his dependants shall be entitled to compensation as if the disease were a personal injury by accident and the disablement were the happening of the accident subject to the modifications hereinafter mentioned, unless at the time of entering into the employment he had wilfully and falsely represented himself as not having previously suffered from the disease.

(2) If the workman at or immediately before the date of the disablement was employed in any process mentioned in the second column of the Schedule hereto and the disease contracted is the disease in the first column of the Schedule set opposite to the description of the process, the disease shall be deemed to have been due to the nature of that employment unless the contrary is proved.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of a workman to compensation in respect of a disease to which this section does not apply, if the disease is the result of an injury in respect of which he is entitled to compensation under this Part.

82. The provisions of this Part relating to the organization of the Board, the classification of industries, and levying and collecting of assessments, or any of them, shall become effective from and after a day to be named in a proclamation by the Governor in Council: the provisions of this Part respecting the payment of compensation and the right of the workman thereto shall become effective from and after a day to be named by any subsequent proclamation by the Governor in Council, and compensation shall be payable in respect of injuries occurring on and after the day named in such last mentioned proclamation, on which day also the Workmen's Compensation Act, Chapter 3 of the Acts of 1910, and amendments thereto, shall stand repealed.

83. This Part shall not apply to farm labourers, or domestic or menial servants or their employers.

PART II.

84. Subject to Section 88, Sections 85 to 87, shall apply only to the industries to which Part I does not apply and to the workmen employed in such districts.

85. (1) Where personal injury is caused to a workman by reason of any defect in the condition or arrangement of the ways, works, machinery, plant, buildings or premises connected with, intended for or used in the business of his employer or by reason of the negligence of his employer, or any person in the service of his employer, acting within the scope of his employment, the workman, or if the injury results in death the legal personal representative of the workman and any person entitled in case of death, shall have an action against the employer, and if the action is brought by the workman he shall be entitled to recover from the employer the damages sustained by the workman by or in consequence of the injury, and if the action is brought by the legal personal representatives of the workman or by or on behalf of persons entitled to damages under the Fatal Injuries Act, they shall be entitled to recover such damages as they are entitled to under that Act.

(2) Where the execution of any work is being carried into effect under any contract, and the person for whom the work is done owns or supplies any ways, works, machinery, plant, building or premises, and by reason of any defect in the condition or arrangement of them, personal injury is caused to a workman employed by the contractor or by any sub-contractor, and the defect arose from the negligence of the person for whom the work or any part of it is done or of some person in his service and acting within the scope of his employment, the person for whom the work or that part of the work is done shall be liable to the action as if the workman had been employed by him, and for that purpose shall be deemed to be the employer of the workman within the meaning of this Act, but any such contractor or sub-contractor shall be liable to the action as if this sub-section had not been enacted, but not so that double damages shall be recoverable for the same injury.

(3) Nothing in sub-section (2) shall affect any right or liability of the person for whom the work is done and the contractor or sub-contractor as between themselves.

(4) A workman shall not, by reason only of his continuing in the employment of the employer with knowledge of the defect or negligence which caused his injury, be deemed to have voluntarily incurred the risk of the injury.

86. A workman shall hereafter be deemed not to have undertaken the risks due to the negligence of his fellow-workmen and contributory negligence on the part of a workman shall not hereafter be a bar to recovery by him or by any person entitled to damages under the Fatal Injuries Act, in an action for the recovery of damages for an injury sustained by, or causing the death of the workman while in the service of his employer, for which the employer would otherwise have been liable.

87. Contributory negligence on the part of the workman shall nevertheless be taken into account in assessing the damages in any such action.

88. This Part shall not apply to farm laborers or domestic or menial servants or their employers.

89. This Part shall take effect on, from and after a day to be named in a proclamation by the Governor in Council.

[In force January 1st, 1917, by Proclamation.] *

Mechanics' Liens.

Chapter 2, with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as "The Mechanics' Lien Act."

Interpretation.

2. In this Act—

(a) "Contractor" shall mean a person contracting with or employed directly by the owner or his agent for the doing of work or service or placing or furnishing materials for any of the purposes mentioned in this Act

(b) "Material" or "materials" shall include every kind of movable property

(c) "Owner" shall extend to any person, body corporate or politic, including a municipal corporation and a railway company, having any estate or interest in the land upon or in respect of which the work or service is done, or materials are placed or furnished, at whose request and

(i) upon whose credit, or

(ii) on whose behalf, or

(iii) with whose privity and consent, or

(iv) for whose direct benefit

work, or service is performed or materials are placed or furnished, and all persons claiming under him or them whose rights are acquired after the work or service in respect of which the lien is claimed is commenced or the materials furnished have been commenced to be furnished.

(d) "Registrar" means registrar of deeds

(e) "Sub-contractor" shall mean a person not contracting with or employed directly by the owner or his agent for the purposes aforesaid, but contracting with or employed by a contractor, or under him by another sub-contractor.

(f) "Wages" shall mean money earned by a mechanic or labourer for work done, whether by the day or other time or as piece work.

3. Nothing in this Act shall extend to any public street or highway, or to any work or improvement done or caused to be done by a municipal corporation thereon.

4. (1) Every agreement, verbal or written, expressed or implied, on the part of any workman, servant, labourer, mechanic or other person employed in any kind of manual labour intended to be dealt with in this Act, that this Act shall not apply, or that the remedies provided by it shall not be available for the benefit of such person, shall be null and void.

(2) This section shall not apply to a manager, officer or foreman, or to any other person whose wages are more than $5 per day.

5. No agreement shall deprive any person otherwise entitled to a lien under this Act who is not a party to the agreement, of the benefit of the lien, but it shall attach, notwithstanding such agreement.

6. Unless he signs an express agreement to the contrary, and in that case subject to the provisions of section 4, any person who performs any work or service upon or in respect of, or places or furnishes any material to be used in the making, constructing, erecting, fitting, altering, improving, or repairing of any erection, building, railway, ship, vessel, land, wharf, pier, bulkhead, bridge, trestlework, vault, mine, well, excavation, fence, sidewalk, pavement, fountain, fishpond, drain, sewer, aqueduct, roadbed, way, fruit or ornamental trees, or the appurtenances to any of them, for any owner, contractor, or sub-contractor, shall by virtue thereof have a lien for the price of such work, service or materials upon the erection, building, railway, ship, vessel, land, wharf, pier, bulkhead, bridge, trestlework, vault, mine, well, excavation, fence, sidewalk, paving, fountain, fishpond, drain, sewer, aqueduct, roadbed, way, fruit or ornamental trees and appurtenances, and the land occupied thereby or enjoyed therewith or upon or in respect of which such work or service is performed, or upon which such materials are placed or furnished to be used, limited, however, in amount to the sum justly due to the person entitled to the lien and to the sum justly owing (except as herein provided) by the owner. 1917, c. 72, s. 1.

7. Where work or service is done or materials furnished upon or in respect of the land of a married woman with the privity and consent of her husband he shall be deemed to be acting as well for himself so as to bind his own interest, and also as her agent for the purposes of this Act, unless before doing such work or service or furnishing such materials the person doing or furnishing the same shall have had actual notice to the contrary.

8. (1) The lien shall attach upon the estate or interest of the owner in the property mentioned in section 6.

(2) Where the estate or interest upon which the lien attaches is leasehold, the fee simple may also, with the consent of the owner thereof, be subject to the lien, provided that such consent is testified by the signature of the owner upon the claim of lien at the time of registering thereof, verified by affidavit.

(3) Where the land upon or in respect of which any work or service is performed, or materials are placed or furnished to be used, is incumbered by a prior mortgage or other charge; and

(a) The selling value of the land is increased by the work or service, or by the furnishing or placing of the materials; and

(b) The mortgagee consents to the performance of such work or service or the furnishing or placing of such materials;

the lien shall attach upon such increased value in priority to the mortgage or other charge.

(4) Such lien, upon registration, as in this Act provided, shall attach and take effect from the date of the registration as against subsequent purchasers, mortgagees, or other incumbances.

9. Where any of the property upon which a lien attaches is wholly or partly destroyed by fire any money received by reason of any insurance thereon by an owner or prior mortgagee or chargee shall take the place of the property so destroyed, and shall be subject to the claims of all persons for liens to the same extent as if such money was realized by a sale of such property in an action to enforce the lien.

10. Save as herein otherwise provided, the lien shall not attach so as to make the owner liable for a greater sum than the sum payable by the owner to the contractor.

11. Save as herein otherwise provided, where the lien is claimed by any person other than the contractor the amount which may be claimed in respect thereof shall be limited to the amount owing to the contractor or sub-contractor or other person for whom the work or service has been done or the materials placed or furnished, but not so as to affect the percentage to be retained by the owner as provided by Section 12. Amended 1920, c. 43, s. 1.

12. (1) In all cases the owner shall, as the work is done or materials are furnished under the contract, deduct from any payments to be made by him in respect of the contract, and retain for a period of thirty days after the completion or abandonment of the contract, twenty per cent of the value of the work, service and materials actually done, placed or furnished as mentioned in section 6, and such value shall be calculated on the basis of the contract price, or if there is no specific contract price, then on the basis of the actual value of the work, service, or materials. Amended 1920, c. 43, s. 2.

(2) Where the contract price or actual value exceeds $15,000, the amount to be retained shall be fifteen per cent instead of twenty per cent.

(3) The lien shall be a charge upon the amount directed to be retained by this section in favour of sub-contractors whose liens are derived under persons to whom such moneys so required to be retained are respectively payable.

(4) All payments up to eighty per cent or eighty-five per cent where the contract price or actual value exceeds $15,000, of such price or value made in good faith by an owner to a contractor, or by a contractor to a sub-contractor, or by one sub-contractor to another sub-contractor, before notice in writing of such lien given by the person claiming the lien to him, shall operate as a discharge pro tanto of the lien.

(5) Payment of the percentage required to be retained under subsections (1) and (2) may be validly made so as to discharge all liens or charges in respect thereof after the expiration of the period of thirty days mentioned in sub-section 1, unless in the meantime proceedings have been commenced to enforce any lien or charge against such percentage as hereinafter provided.

13. If an owner, contractor or sub-contractor makes a payment to any person entitled to a lien under section 6 for or on account of any debt justly due to him for work or service done or for materials placed or furnished to be used as therein mentioned, for which he is not primarily liable, and within three days afterwards gives, by letter or otherwise, written notice of such payment to the person primarily liable, or his agent, such payment shall be deemed to be a payment on his contract generally to the contractor or sub-contractor primarily liable, but not so as to affect the percentage to be retained by the owner as provided by section 12.

14. (1) The lien shall have priority over all judgments, executions, assignments, attachments, garnishments and receiving orders recovered, issued or made after such lien arises, and over all payments or advances made on account of any conveyance or mortgage after notice in writing of such lien to the person making such payments or after registration of a claim for such lien as hereinafter provided.

(2) Where there is an agreement for the purchase of land, and the purchase money or part thereof is unpaid, and no conveyance has been made to the purchaser, he shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed a mortgagor and the seller a mortgagee.

(3) Except where it is otherwise provided by this Act no person entitled to a lien on any property or money shall be entitled to any priority or preference over another person of the same class entitled to a lien on such property or money, and each class of lien holders shall rank pari passu for their several amounts, and the proceeds of any sale shall be distributed among them pro rata according to their several classes and rights.

15. (1) Every mechanic or labourer whose lien is for wages shall, to the extent of thirty days' wages, have priority over all other liens derived through the same contractor or sub-contractor to the extent of and on the twenty per cent or fifteen per cent, as the case may be directed to be retained by section 12, to which the contractor or sub-contractor, through whom such lien is derived is entitled, and all such mechanics and labourers shall rank thereon pari passu.

(2) Every wage-earner shall be entitled to enforce a lien in respect of a contract not completely fulfilled.

(3) If the contract has not been completed when the lien is claimed by a wage earner, the percentage shall be calculated on the value of the work done or materials furnished by the contractor or sub-contractor by whom such wage earner is employed, having regard to the contract price, if any.

(4) Where the contractor or sub-contractor makes default in completing his contract the percentage shall not, as against a wage earner claiming a lien, be applied by the owner or contractor to the completion of the contract or for any other purpose, nor to the payment of damages for the non-completion of the contract by the contractor or sub-contractor, nor in payment or satisfaction of any claim against the contractor or sub-contractor.

(5) Every device by an owner, contractor or sub-contractor to defeat the priority given to a wage earner for his wages, and every payment made for the purpose of defeating or impairing a lien, shall be null and void.

Material.

16. (1) During the continuance of a lien no part of the material affected thereby shall be removed to the prejudice of the lien.

(2) Material actually brought upon any land to be used in connection with such land for any of the purposes enumerated in section 6, shall be subject to a lien in favour of the person furnishing it until placed in the building, erection or work, and shall not be subject to execution or other process to enforce any debt other than for the purchase thereof, due to the person furnishing the same.

Registration of Claim.

17. A claim for lien may be registered in the registry of deeds for the registration district in which the land is situated.

18. (1) A claim for lien shall state—

(a) The name and residence of the person claiming the lien, and of the owner of the property to be charged (or of the person whom the person claiming the lien, or his agent, believes to be the owner of the property proposed to be charged) and of the person for whom and on whose credit the work or service was, or is to be, done, or materials furnished or placed, and the time within which the same was, or is to be done, or furnished or placed.

(b) A short description of the work or service done, or to be done, or materials furnished or placed, or to be furnished or placed;

(c) The sum claimed as due or to become due;

(d) A description of the land or property to be charged. 1917, c. 72, s. 2.

(e) The date of expiry of the period of credit, if any, agreed upon by the lien holder for payment for his work or service or materials, where credit has been given.

(2) The claim may be in one of the forms A or B in the Schedule to this Chapter, or to the like effect, and shall be verified by the affidavit (form C) of the person claiming the lien, or of his agent or assignee having a personal knowledge of the matters required to be verified, and the affidavit of the agent or assignee shall state that he has such knowledge.

(3) Where it is desired to register a claim for lien against the lands of a railway company it shall be a sufficient description of such lands to describe them as the lands of such railway company, and every such claim for lien shall be registered in the registry of deeds for the registration district in which such lien is claimed to have arisen.

19. A claim for lien may include claims against any number of properties, and any number of persons claiming liens on the same property may unite therein (form D), but when more than one lien is included in one claim each lien shall be verified by affidavit (form C), as provided in the next preceding section of this Act.

20. (1) Substantial compliance only with the next two preceding sections of this Act shall be required, and no lien shall be invalidated by reason of the failure to comply with any of the requisites of such sections, unless in the opinion of the court or judge who has power to try the action under this Act, the owner, contractor, or sub-contractor, or mortgagee or other person, as the case may be, is prejudiced thereby, and then only to the extent to which he is thereby prejudiced.

(2) Nothing in this section contained shall be construed as dispensing with the registration required by this Act.

21. The registrar, upon payment of a fee of twenty-five cents, shall register the claim so that the same may appear as an incumbrance against the land so described.

22. Where the claim for lien is so registered the person entitled to such lien shall be deemed the purchaser pro tanto and within the provisions of "The Registry Act," but, except as in this Act provided, "The Registry Act" shall not apply to any lien arising under this Act.

23. (1) A claim for lien by a contractor or sub-contractor, in cases not otherwise provided for, may be registered before or during the performance of the contract, or within thirty days after the completion or abandonment thereof.

(2) A claim for lien for materials may be registered before or during the furnishing or placing thereof, or within thirty days after the furnishing or placing of the last material so furnished or placed.

(3) A claim for lien for services may be registered at any time during the performance of the service or within thirty days after the completion of the service.

(4) A claim for lien for wages may be registered at any time during the performance of the work for which such wages are claimed, or within thirty days after the last work is done for which the lien is claimed.

(5) In the case of a contract which is under the supervision of an architect, engineer or other person upon whose certificate payments are to be made, the claim for lien by a contractor may be registered within the time mentioned in subsection (1), or within seven days after the architect, engineer or other person has given, or has, upon application to him by the contractor, refused to give a final certificate.

Expiry and Discharge of Lien.

24. Every lien for which a claim is not registered shall absolutely cease to exist on the expiration of the time hereinbefore limited for the registration thereof, unless in the meantime an action is commenced to realize the claim or in which the claim may be realized under the provisions of this Act, and a certificate thereof (form E) is registered in the registry office in which the claim for lien might have been registered.

25. (1) Every lien for which a claim has been registered shall absolutely cease to exist on the expiration of ninety days after the work or service has been completed or materials have been furnished or placed, or after the expiry of the period of credit, where such period is mentioned in the claim for lien registered, or in the cases provided for in subsection (5) of section 23, on the expiration of thirty days from the registration of claim, unless in the meantime an action is commenced to realize the claim or in which the claim may be realized under the provisions of this Act, and a certificate is registered as provided by the next preceding section.

(2) Where the period of credit mentioned in the claim for lien registered has not expired, it shall nevertheless cease to have any effect on the expiration of six months from the registration or any re-registration thereof if the claim is not again registered within that period, unless in the meantime an action is commenced and a certificate thereof has been registered as provided by subsection (1).

26. If there is no period of credit, or if the date of the expiry of the period of credit is not stated in the claim so registered, the lien shall cease to exist upon the expiration of ninety days after the work or service has been completed or materials furnished or placed, unless in the meantime an action is commenced and a certificate thereof registered as provided by section 24.

27. The right of a lien holder may be assigned by an instrument, in writing and, if not assigned, upon his death shall pass to his personal representative.

28. (1) A lien may be discharged by a receipt signed by the claimant, or his agent, duly authorized in writing, acknowledging payment, and verified by affidavit and registered.

(2) The receipt shall be numbered and entered like other instruments, but shall not be copied in any registry book, and there shall be entered against the entry of the lien to which the discharge relates the word "discharged" and the registration number of such discharge.

(3) The fee shall be the same as for registering a claim.

(4) Upon application, the court or judge having jurisdiction to try an action to realize a lien, may allow security for or payment into court of the amount of the claim, and may thereupon order that the registration of the lien be vacated or may vacate the registration upon any other proper ground and a certificate of the order may be registered.

(5) Where the certificate required by sections 24 and 25 has not been registered within the prescribed time, and an application is made to vacate the registration of a claim for lien after the time for registration of the certificate required by sections 24, 25 or 26, the order vacating the lien may be made ex parte upon production of the certificate of the registrar certifying the facts entitling the applicant to such order.

Effect of Taking Security or Extending Time.

29. (1) The taking of any security for, or the acceptance of any promissory note or bill of exchange for, or the taking of any acknowledgment of the claim, or the giving of time for the payment thereof, or the taking of any proceedings for the recovery, or the recovery of a personal judgment for the claim, shall not merge, waive or pay, satisfy, prejudice or destroy the lien unless the claimant agrees, in writing, that it shall have that effect.

(2) Where any such promissory note or bill of exchange has been negotiated, the lien holder shall not thereby lose his lien if, at the time of bringing his action to enforce it, or where an action is brought by another lien holder, he is, at the time of proving his claim in such action, the holder of such promissory note or bill of exchange.

(3) Nothing in subsection (2) shall extend the time limited by this Act for bringing the action to enforce the lien.

(4) A person who has extended the time for payment of a claim for which he has a lien to obtain the benefit of this section, shall commence an action to enforce such lien within the time prescribed by this Act, and shall register a certificate as required by sections 24, 25 or 26, but no further proceedings shall be taken in the action until the expiration of such extension of time.

30. Where the period of credit in respect of a claim has not expired, or where there has been an extension of time for payment of the claim, the lien holder may nevertheless, if an action is commenced by any other person to enforce a lien against the same property, prove and obtain payment of his claim in such action as if the period of credit or the extended time had expired.

Lien Holder's Right to Information.

31. (1) Any lien holder may at any time demand of the owner or his agent the terms of the contract or agreement with the contractor for and in respect of which the work, service or material is or is to be performed or furnished or placed, and if such owner or his agent does not, at the time of such demand or within reasonable time thereafter, inform the person making such demand of the terms of such contract or agreement, and the amount due and unpaid upon such contract or agreement, or if he knowingly falsely states the terms of the contract or agreement, or the amount due or unpaid thereon, and if the person claiming the lien sustains loss by reason of such refusal or neglect or false statement, the owner shall be liable to him in an action therefor for the amount of such loss.

(2) The court, or judge having jurisdiction to try an action to realize a lien, may, on a summary application at any time before or after an action is commenced for the enforcement of such lien, make an order requiring the owner or his agent to produce and allow any lien holder to inspect any such contract or agreement upon such terms as to costs as he may deem just.

Liens on Mining Claims.

32. (1) Every labourer or workman to whom wages is due by any person, firm or corporation for work or labour performed at a mine or in connection with mining operations carried on by such person, firm or corporation, shall have a lien upon the property and mining leases or licenses in respect to which such work and labour has been performed to the extent of two months' wages.

(2) Such lien shall have priority over all other liens, mortgages or charges upon the said property and mining leases or licenses, whether the same are prior or subsequent to the performing of such work and labour.

(3) In the registration of such lien it shall not be necessary to describe the property and mining leases affected thereby, but it shall be sufficient to designate such property and mining leases as the property and mining leases of such person or corporation.

(4) Such lien shall be registered in the office of the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines at Halifax, as well as at the registry of deeds, of the registration district in which the mine is situate, and the provisions of this Act shall, in so far as the same are applicable, apply to registration in the office of said Commissioner.

(5) Proceedings to enforce a lien created by this section may be taken at any time within six months from the registration thereof and shall be deemed to be taken on behalf of all persons holding such liens at the time such proceedings are commenced or within thirty days thereafter.

(6) In this section the expression "mine" means a mine to which the Coal Mines Regulation Act or the Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act applies, and the expression "mining" shall have the same meaning as the expression "to mine" in the Mines Act.

Realising Liens and Procedure.

33. (1) The liens created by this Act may be enforced by an action to be brought and tried in the county court of the county court district in which the lands are situated, whether the amount claimed is over $800 or not, and according to the ordinary procedure of such court, except where the same is varied by this Act.

(2) Without issuing a writ of summons an action under this Act shall be commenced by filing a statement of claim in the office of the clerk.

(3) Any number of lien holders claiming liens on the same property may join in the action, and any action brought by a lien holder shall be taken to be brought on behalf of all other lien holders on the property in question.

(4) It shall not be necessary to make any lien holders defendants to the action, but all lien holders served with a notice of trial shall, for all purposes, be treated as if they were parties to the action.

(5) Every such lien holder who is not a party to the action shall file his claim, verified by affidavit (form G).

(6) The statement of claim shall be served within one month after it is filed, but the court or judge having power to try the action may extend the time for service thereof.

(7) The statement of defence may be in one of the forms H or I. The time for delivering a statement of defence shall be the same as for entering an appearance in an action in the Supreme Court.

(8) The service of all papers necessarily or usually served in the enforcement of this Act may be effected by any literate person. 1918, c. 46, s. 1.

34. (1) After the delivery of the statement of defence, where the plaintiff's claim is disputed, or after the time for delivery of defence in all other cases, where it is desired to try the action otherwise than at the ordinary sittings of the court, either party may apply to a judge who has power to try the action to fix a day for the trial thereof, and the judge shall make an appointment fixing the day and place of trial, and on the day appointed, or on such other day to which the trial is adjourned, shall proceed to try the action and all questions which arise therein, or which are necessary to be tried to fully dispose of the action, and to adjust the rights and liabilities of the persons appearing before him, or upon whom the notice of trial has been served, and at the trial shall take all accounts, make all inquiries, and give all directions, and do all things necessary to try and otherwise finally dispose of the action, and of all matters, questions and accounts arising in the action, or at the trial, and to adjust the rights and liabilities of, and give all necessary relief to, all parties to the action, or who have been served with the notice of trial, and shall embody all results in the judgment. (Form K.)

(2) The judge who tries the action may order that the estate or interest charged with the lien be sold, and when by the judgment a sale of the estate or interest charged with the lien is ordered, the judge who tries the action may direct the sale to take place at any time after judgment, allowing, however, a reasonable time for advertising such sale.

(3) The judge who tries the action may also order the sale of any materials, and authorize the removal thereof.

(4) Any lien holder who has not proved his claim at the trial of any action to enforce a lien, on application to the judge who tried the action, upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as are just, may be let in to prove his claims at any time before the amount realized in the action for the satisfaction of liens has been distributed, and where such claim is proved and allowed, the judge shall amend the judgment so as to include such claim therein.

(5) Any lien holder for an amount not exceeding one hundred dollars, or any lien holder not a party to the action, may attend in person at the trial of an action to enforce a lien, and on any proceedings in such action, or may be represented thereat or thereon by a solicitor.

(6) Where a sale is had the moneys arising therefrom shall be paid into court to the credit of the action, and the judge upon whose order the lands were sold shall direct to whom such moneys shall be paid, and may add to the claim of the person conducting the sale his actual disbursements incurred in connection therewith and where sufficient to satisfy the judgment and costs is not realized by the sale, he shall certify the amount of such deficiency, and the names of the persons, with the amounts, who are entitled to recover the same, and the persons by the judgment adjudged to pay the same, and such persons shall be entitled to enforce the same by execution or otherwise, as a judgment of the court.

35. The party who obtains an appointment fixing the day and place of trial, shall, at least eight clear days before the day fixed for the trial, serve a notice of trial, which may be in the form L in the Schedule, or to the like effect, upon the solicitors for the defendants who appear by solicitors, and upon all lien holders who have registered their liens as required by this Act, and upon all other persons having any registered charge or incumbrance or claim on the said lands who are not parties, or, who being parties, appear personally in the said action, and such service shall be personal unless otherwise directed by the court or judge who is to try the action, and the court or judge may, in lieu of personal service, direct in what manner the notice of trial shall be served.

36. Where more than one action is brought to realize liens in respect to the same property, the court or judge having power to try such actions may, on the application of any party to any one of such actions, or on the application of any other person interested, consolidate all such actions into one action, and may give the conduct of the consolidated action to any plaintiff in his discretion.

37. Any lien holder entitled to the benefit of the action may apply for the carriage of the proceedings, and the court or judge having power to try the action may thereupon make an order giving such lien holder the carriage of the proceedings, and such lien holder shall for all purposes in the action, be the plaintiff in the action.

38. In any action where the total amount of the claims of the plaintiff and other persons claiming liens is one hundred dollars or less, the judgment of the court or judge having power to try such action shall be final, binding, and without appeal, except that upon application, within fourteen days after judgment is pronounced to the court or judge who tried the same, a new trial may be granted.

39. In all actions where the total amount of the claim of the plaintiff and other persons claiming liens is more than one hundred dollars, any party affected thereby may appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court, en banc, whose judgment shall be final and binding, and no appeal shall lie therefrom. The "Judicature Act" and the rules of the Supreme Court shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to all appeals under this section.

40. (1) The costs of the action under this Act awarded to the plaintiffs and successful lien holders, shall not exceed in the aggregate an amount equal to twenty-five per cent of the amount of the judgment, besides actual disbursements, and shall be in addition to the amount of the judgment, and shall be apportioned and borne in such proportion as the judge who tries the action may direct.

(2) Where the costs are awarded against the plaintiff or other persons claiming the lien, such costs shall not exceed an amount in the aggregate equal to twenty-five per cent of the claims of the plaintiff and other claimants, besides actual disbursements, and shall be apportioned and borne as the judge may direct.

(3) In case the least expensive course is not taken by a plaintiff under this Act, the costs allowed to the solicitor shall in no case exceed what would have been incurred if the least expensive course had been taken.

(4) Where a lien is discharged or vacated under section 28 of this Act, or where in an action judgment is given in favor of or against a claim for a lien, in addition to the costs of an action, the judge may allow a reasonable amount for costs of drawing and registering the lien or for vacating the registration of the lien.

(5) The costs of and incidental to all applications and orders made under this Act, and not otherwise provided for, shall be in the discretion of the judge.

41. Every statement of claim filed in the City of Halifax in an action to enforce a lien under this Act shall be accompanied by a fee of fifty cents, which shall be included in the costs, and paid by law library stamp.

42. All judgments in favor of lien holders shall adjudge that the person or persons personally liable for the amount of the judgment shall pay any deficiency which may remain after sale of the property adjudged to be sold, and whenever on a sale of any property to realize a lien under this Act sufficient to satisfy the judgment and costs is not realized therefrom, the deficiency may be recovered against the property of such person or persons by the usual process of the court.

43. A certificate vacating a lien may be in one of the forms M or N in the Schedule, or to the like effect.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

44. (1) Every mechanic or other person who has bestowed money, or skill and materials upon any chattel or thing in the alteration and improvement in its properties, or for the purpose of imparting an additional value to it, so as thereby to be entitled to a lien upon such chattel or thing for the amount or value of the money, or skill and materials bestowed, shall, while such lien exists, but not afterwards, in case the amount to which he is entitled remains unpaid for three months after the same ought to have been paid, have the right, in addition to all other remedies provided by law, to sell by auction the chattel or thing in respect to which the lien exists, on giving one week's notice by advertisement in a newspaper published in the county in which the work was done, or in case there is no newspaper published in such county, then in a newspaper circulating therein, stating the name of the person indebted, the amount of the debt, a description of the chattel or thing to be sold, the time and place of sale, and the name of the auctioneer, and leaving a like notice in writing at the last known place of residence (if any) of the owner, if he is a resident of such county.

(2) Such mechanic, or other person, shall apply the proceeds of the sale in payment of the amount due him, and the cost of advertising and sale, and shall upon application pay over any surplus to the person entitled thereto.

45. When in any action brought under the provisions of this Act, any claimant fails for any reason to establish a valid lien, he may nevertheless recover therein a personal judgment against the party or parties to the action for such sum or sums of money as appear to be due him from such party or parties, and which he might recover in an action on the contract against such party or parties.

46. The forms in the Schedule hereto, or forms similar thereto, or to the like effect, may be adopted in all proceedings under this Act.

47. The Acts and parts of Acts in the Schedule hereto are repealed to the extent in such Schedule mentioned.

STATUTES OF 1917.

Employment of Children in Breweries, etc.

Chapter 2, with amendment.—21. Every agent of a children's aid society, and any duly appointed agent of the Superintendent [of Neglected Children] shall have the power and authority of a constable for the purpose of enforcing any of the provisions of this Act.

22. Any such agent or any policeman of an incorporated city or town, or any provincial or municipal constable, may apprehend without warrant and bring before the judge, as neglected, any child who—

(a) is employed in any brewery or any shop, saloon, tavern or other place where intoxicating liquors are made, bottled, or sold.

37. (1) Any person who knowingly or wilfully is guilty of any act or omission which causes produces, promotes or contributes to a child becoming a neglected child within the meaning of this Part of this Act, shall be liable, on summary conviction before a judge, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year, or to both penalty and imprisonment.

(2) The judge may impose conditions upon any person found guilty under this section, and suspend sentence, subject to such conditions, and upon proof at any time that such conditions have been violated, may pass sentence on such person.

(3) Imprisonment under this section may be in any reformatory institution for adults, approved by the Governor in Council. 1918, c. 23, s. 31.

Employment of Women and Children—Hours of Labour in Shops.

Chapter 2.—67. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires:—

(a) The expression "shop" means any retail, auction or wholesale shop, store, booth, stall or warehouse in which assistants are employed for hire;

(b) The expression "young person" means any boy under the age of fourteen years and any girl under the age of sixteen years, as the case may be, but does not mean or include any person whose usual and ordinary employment in or about a shop is that of a driver of a delivery wagon, van, or vehicle;

(c) The expression "employer" means any person who, in his own behalf, or as the manager, superintendent, overseer, agent for any person, firm, company, or corporation, has charge of any shop and employs persons therein;

(d) The expression "week" means the period between midnight on Sunday night and midnight on the succeeding Saturday night;

(e) The expression "parent" means a parent or guardian of, or a person having the legal custody of, or the control over, or having direct benefit from the wages of, a young person.

68. Nothing in this Part of this Act shall apply to a shop in which the only young persons employed are members of the family dwelling in the building of which the shop is a part.

69. A young person shall not be employed in or about any shop for a longer period than eight hours on any day, exclusive of meal time, nor for a longer period than four hours on any Saturday, and on every day on which such young person is employed for more than four hours, not less than one hour shall be allowed for the noonday meal.

70. Where any young person is employed in or about a shop contrary to the provisions of this Part of this Act, the employer shall, upon conviction thereof, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars for each person so employed, and in default of payment, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month.

71. The parent of any young person employed in a shop in contravention of this Part of this Act shall, unless such employment is without the consent, connivance or wilful default of such parent, for each offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month.

72. Every employer shall at all times provide and keep in the shop occupied by him a sufficient and suitable seat or chair for the use of every female employed in such shop, and shall permit her to use such seat or chair when not necessarily engaged in the work or duty for which she is employed in such shop and any person offending against any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month.

73. In every shop in which any young person is employed there shall be kept exhibited by the employer, in a conspicuous place, a notice referring to the provisions of this Part of this Act, and stating the number of hours in the week during which a young person may lawfully be employed therein.

74. Where the employer of a young person is charged with an offence against any of the provisions of this Part of this Act, he shall be entitled, upon information duly laid by him, to have any other person whom he charges as the actual offender brought before the court at the time appointed for hearing the charge and if, after the commission of the offence has been proved, the said employer proves to the satisfaction of the court that he has used due diligence to enforce the execution of the provisions of this Part of this Act, and that the said other person has committed the offence in question without his knowledge, consent or connivance, the employer shall be exempt from any penalty or imprisonment, but the said other person shall thereupon be summarily convicted of such offence, and shall be liable to the same penalty or imprisonment therefor as if he were the employer.

75. If a young person is, in the opinion of the court, apparently of the age alleged by the informant, it shall lie on the defendant to prove that the young person is not of that age.

76. A person shall not be liable in respect of a repetition of the same kind of offence from day to day, to any larger penalty or imprisonment fixed by this Part of this Act for the offence, except—

- (a) where the repetition of the offence occurs after an information has been laid for the previous offence, or
- (b) where the offence is one of employing two or more young persons contrary to the provisions of this Part of this Act.

77. The following provisions shall apply with respect to summary proceedings for offences and penalties under this Part of this Act:—

- (a) The information shall be laid within one month after the commission of the offence
- (b) The description of an offence in the words of this Part of this Act or in similar words shall be sufficient in law
- (c) Any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse, or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany the description of the offence, in this Part of this Act, may be proved by the defendant, but need not be specified or negatived in the information, and if so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matters so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the informant.
- (d) It shall be sufficient to allege that a shop is a shop within the meaning of this Part of this Act
- (e) It shall be sufficient to state the name of the ostensible employer, or the title of the firm by which the employer employing persons in the shop is usually known
- (f) A conviction or order made in any matter arising under this Part of this Act, either originally or on appeal, shall not be quashed for want of form.

78. Any prosecution under this Part of this Act may be brought and heard before any justices of the peace in and for the county or municipality in which the offence was committed, or before a stipendiary magistrate or the judge of a juvenile court for the city or town in which the offence was committed, and save where otherwise provided by this Part of this Act, the procedure shall be governed by "The Summary Convictions Act."

Miners' Relief Societies.

Chapter 187.—1. (1) Whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the Governor in Council—

(a) that any person or company operating a coal mine and the workmen employed by such person or company have agreed to co-operate to establish or provide a society or fund for the relief of such workmen in case of sickness, and for the relief of their dependants in case of the death of such workmen or

(b) that the workmen employed by such person or company have established or are about to establish such society or provide such fund; or

(c) that such person or company has provided or is about to provide such fund, the Governor in Council may out of the Provincial Treasury, contribute to such society or fund such amount as the Governor in Council may determine.

(2) Every such contribution shall be on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Governor in Council may prescribe but no such contribution shall be made to any fund out of which payments are provided for any sickness or death in respect of which compensation is payable under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1915.

2. The constitution and by-laws of any society to which such contribution may be made under this Act shall be subject to approval by the Governor in Council, and the conditions under which payments are to be made out of any fund provided by any person or company as aforesaid shall be subject to like approval.

3. The relief given by any society or fund established under the authority of this Act shall be exempt from attachment and from levy under execution for debt of any kind.

4. Nothing in this Act shall affect the liability of any person or corporation for damages or penalty resulting from any wrongful act, neglect or default.

5. Chapter 23 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, and all amendments thereto, are repealed, provided, however, that such repeal shall not affect contracts or agreements made under said Chapter and now in force, but such contracts and agreements shall remain in operation until determined by the parties thereto, or otherwise according to law.

6. The Governor in Council is authorized to make such regulations as he deems necessary or desirable for the carrying out of any of the provisions of this Act.

STATUTES OF 1918.

Municipal By-Laws—Sunday Labour—Early Closing, etc.

[Chapter 3, the Municipal Act, section 134, empowers municipal councils to pass by-laws on a variety of subjects, including the licensing of carters and the regulation of explosives.]

[Chapter 4, the Towns Incorporation Act, section 233, confers similar powers upon town councils in respect to a number of matters among which are fire protection, licensing of carters and inspection of buildings.

Subsection (82), which empowers councils to pass by-laws concerning hours of closing in shops, reads as follows:—]

(82) providing that during the whole or any part of the year all or any class or classes of shops, stores or places in which goods are exposed or offered for sale by retail in the town shall on any day or on certain days be closed to customers during certain hours.

Employers to Furnish Names of Employees to Assessors.

Chapter 5.—22. (1) The assessors shall, up to the thirty-first day of October, add to the assessment roll the names of persons liable to pay a poll tax who have not paid taxes in any municipality or town during the current year.

(2) Every person, firm or corporation that employs in any trade, manufacture, enterprise, business or calling, one or more persons liable to pay a poll tax shall within ten days after demand therefor annually furnish to the assessors or to the town clerk in writing the names and addresses of each such employee, and thereafter, at intervals of not less than three months, furnish to such assessors or town clerk the names and addresses of any other such employees employed in the interim.

(4) Every person, firm or corporation that fails to furnish the names and addresses of employees employed - - - shall be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars for each such offence.

Health of Employees in Factories, Shops, Etc.

[Chapter 6, The Public Health Act, defines "house" as including factories and other buildings, huts and tents, whether stationary or movable, used for human habitation or work, whether such use is permanent or temporary.

Section 5 empowers the Provincial Health Officer to make investigations regarding the effect of employment upon the health of the people, and to issue regulations providing for the cleansing, ventilating, etc., of houses and places of assembly.

Section 19 authorizes a local board of health to make regulations relative to the water supply, drainage, etc., in buildings and premises and the sanitary conduct of laundries, barber shops, bakeries, etc.; and also to provide for the inspection of all houses and to assist the factory inspector in his work. The Act prohibits the exposure for common use of any towel, drinking cup or similar article.]

70A. No person shall establish, conduct or maintain a camp or boarding-house for the accommodation of his employees without a permit in writing from the medical health officer of the district in which such camp or boarding-house is situate, setting forth that the sanitary conditions thereof are satisfactory, and such permit may be revoked at any time by the medical health officer if he deems the sanitary conditions to be unsatisfactory or if he believes that any occupant of such camp or boarding-house not immune to vaccination against smallpox has not within five years been successfully vaccinated. 1919, c. 72, s. 18.

Employment of Children—School Attendance.

Chapter 9, with amendment.—118. This Part [of the Education Act] shall apply only to cities and incorporated towns within the Province.

119. In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) The expression "child" means any boy or girl between the ages of six and sixteen years living in the city or town.

123. (1) Except as is herein otherwise provided, every child shall attend some school during school hours on every day on which such school is open, unless such child is excused from such attendance by the Board, upon the presentation to the Board of satisfactory evidence, showing that such child is prevented from attendance upon school, or application to study, by mental, physical, or other good and sufficient reason.

(2) Any child over twelve years of age who passes a satisfactory examination in grade seven of common school work; or

(3) Any child over thirteen years of age who shows to the satisfaction of the Board that necessity requires him to go to work, may be granted by the Board an employment certificate permitting him to be absent from school while actually engaged in some remunerative employment. The person applying to the Board for such certificate for his child shall submit a statement from the prospective employer describing the occupation in which the child will be engaged. In engaging such child to work the employer shall acknowledge the receipt from the Board of such employment certificate and shall return it to the Board within five days after the child leaves his employ, under a penalty of not more than twenty dollars. Before engaging in work the child shall be required to obtain from the school medical inspector or other physician approved by the Board a certificate of physical fitness for such work.

124. (1) Every parent or person in charge of any child shall cause such child to attend some school as provided in the next preceding section.

(2) Every parent or person in charge of any child who fails to comply with this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month; provided, that before any such penalty is incurred, the parent or other person liable therefor shall be notified by a notice in writing sent or posted by mail to his place of business or residence by the secretary of the Board or the principal, of the effect of such non-compliance, and shall have an opportunity, by compliance with the requirements of this Part, to avoid the imposition of such penalty. 1919, c. 7, s. 34.

(3) The stipendiary magistrate may impose conditions upon any person found guilty under this section and suspend sentence, subject to such conditions, and upon proof at any time that such conditions have been violated, may pass sentence on such person.

138. (1) No child under the age of sixteen years shall be employed by any person to labour in any business whatever or street trade, nor accompany any person engaged in any street trade during the hours from nine o'clock in the morning until half-past three in the afternoon, of any school day, unless such child delivers to the employer or has in his possession a certificate signed by the principal, or secretary of the Board, or a certificate signed by the principal that such child has passed a satisfactory examination in grade seven of common school work.

(2) Every person who employs any child or any person engaged in any street trade who permits a child to accompany him contrary to the provisions of this section shall for each offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for not more than one month.

139. The Board, or such officer or person as it appoints, shall in the months of November and May in every year, and at such other times as it deems necessary, examine into the condition of the children employed in every manufacturing or other establishment, and for this purpose may enter, inspect and examine at all reasonable hours, by day or night, any such establishment or any part thereof, and ascertain whether all the provisions of this Part are duly observed, and prosecute every person violating any of such provisions.

140. (1) On demand, on any such examination as is mentioned in the next preceding section, the proprietor, superintendent, or manager of such establishment or manufactory shall exhibit to the officer or person appointed by the Board to make such examination, a correct list of all children under the age of sixteen years employed in such manufactory or establishment, with the required certificate of attendance at school or place of instruction.

(2) Any such proprietor, superintendent or manager who fails to furnish such a list, or to send such list to the office of the Board when requested in writing to do so, or wilfully delays the officer or person appointed by the Board in the exercise of any power under this Part, or obstructs such officer or person so appointed in the discharge of his duties under this Part shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, and in default of payment to imprisonment for not more than one month.

[Part III provides that in any school section, not being a city or town, the provisions of Part II may be brought into force by the adoption of a resolution to that effect at an annual school meeting for such section. Where Part II is made applicable to any school section other than a city or town, the expression "child" means any boy or girl between the ages of seven and fourteen years.]

151. The penalties and imprisonments prescribed for the violation of any of the provisions of this Act may be recovered or enforced under the Nova Scotia Summary Convictions Act, chapter 161 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, as now or from time to time hereafter amended. 1919, c. 7, s. 35.

Inspection and Regulation of Coal Mines—Examination of Miners and Engineers.

Chapter 10, with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as the Coal Mines Regulation Act.

Application.

2. This Act shall apply to mines of coal, mines of stratified ironstone, mines of shale, and mines of fire clay, whether such minerals are held under lease from the Crown or are the property of the owner of the soil.

3. If any question arises other than in legal proceedings, whether a mine is a mine to which this Act, or the Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act applies, the question shall be referred to the Commissioner, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Interpretation.

4. In this Act and in any special rules made thereunder, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires,—

(a) "Agent" means any person having, on behalf of the owner, the care or direction of any mine or any part thereof;

(b) "Boy" means any male person under the age of eighteen years;

(c) "Board" means the Board of Examiners constituted under the provisions of Section 8 of this Act;

(d) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Public Works and Mines;

(e) "Coal Miner" means a person employed underground in any coal mine to cut, shear, break or loosen coal from the solid, whether by hand or machinery, and possessed of a certificate of competency as such;

(f) "Deputy Inspector" means a deputy inspector of mines appointed under the Mines Act;

(g) "Engineer in charge of a Steam Plant" means the person having the control and daily supervision of all machinery and boilers at a mine;

(h) "Inclined Plane" includes slope;

(i) "Inspector" means an inspector of mines appointed under The Mines Act;

(j) "Local Board" means a local board of examiners constituted under the provisions of Section 20 of this Act;

(k) "Manager" means the chief officer having the control and daily supervision of any mine and who possesses a certificate of competency as manager issued under this or some former Act;

(l) "Mine" means a mine to which this Act applies, and includes every shaft in the course of being sunk, and every level and inclined plane in the course of being driven for commencing or opening any mine, or for searching for or proving minerals, and all the shafts, levels, planes, works, machinery, tramways, railways and sidings, both below ground and above ground, in and adjacent to a mine, and any such shaft, level and inclined plane of and belonging to the mine;

(m) "Mine Examiner" means a person who is possessed of a certificate of competency under this Act and who is appointed to inspect the working places of a mine and approaches thereto, the air ways, road ways and other accessible parts of a mine; and to see that such are safe before a shift is allowed to enter such workings or other parts of the mine; and to examine as to the safety of using and to supervise the use of the explosives used in breaking coal.

(n) "Owner," when used in relation to any mine, means any person or body corporate who is the immediate proprietor, or lessee or occupier of any mine or any part thereof, and does not include a person or body corporate who merely receives a royalty or rent from a mine, or is merely the proprietor of a mine subject to any lease, grant or license for the working thereof, or is merely the owner of the soil and not interested in the minerals of the mine; but any contractor for the working of any mine or any part thereof shall be subject to this Act in like manner as if he was an owner, but so as not to exempt the owner from any liability;

(o) "Overman" means any person in charge of any mine or any portion of a mine next under the underground manager and who possesses a certificate of competency as such issued under this or some former Act;

(p) "Plan" includes a map and section, and a correct copy or tracing of any original plan as so defined;

(q) "Shaft" includes slope and pit;

(r) "Shift" means a division of the men or boys, or both, employed in any mine (other than men or boys engaged in attending to the ventilation of the mine) who go to work in the mine at a set period of the day, and includes the period during which such divisions may work;

(s) "Underground Manager" means any person who has the daily charge of the underground workings of a mine under the control and daily supervision of the manager, and next in charge under said manager and who possesses a certificate as such issued under this or some former Act;

(t) "Working face" means any place in any mine from which coal or other mineral to which this Act applies is being cut, sheared, broken or loosened. Amended 1919, c. 74, s. 5.

PART I.

MANAGEMENT.

Managers.

5. (1) Every mine shall be under the control of a manager, and the owner or agent of every mine shall appoint himself or some other person to be the manager of such mine, and shall send a written notice to the Commissioner of the name and address of such manager.

(2) A person shall not be qualified to be a manager, underground manager, overman or mine examiner unless he is the holder of a certificate under this Act.

(3) Subject to the next succeeding subsection, if any mine is worked without there being such a manager for the mine as is required by the following subsection the owner and agent shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(4) Where the person appointed to be manager of a mine, by reason of death, resignation [resignation] or otherwise ceases to be manager, the mine may be worked for a period not exceeding ninety days, until a new manager is appointed, if in the meantime a competent person holding a certificate as manager or underground manager under this Act is temporarily appointed to perform the duties and exercise the powers of a manager.

(5) The underground workings of every mine shall be under the daily charge of an underground manager or underground managers, and overman or overmen holding certificates under this Act.

(6) A mine in which less than thirty persons are employed underground shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act, so far as relates to the appointment of a manager, unless the deputy inspector for the district, by notice in writing, served on the owner or agent, requires the same to be under the control of a manager; but the operations underground shall be under the charge of underground managers or overmen holding certificates under this Act, unless permission is given by the inspector that the operations underground may be under the charge of one such person.

6. (1) In every mine required to be under the control of a manager, daily personal supervision shall be exercised by the manager, and, where an underground manager has been appointed by the owner or agent of the mine, also by that underground manager.

(2) In cases where, on account of the absence of the manager or underground manager on leave or from sickness or any other temporary cause, such daily personal supervision as is required by this section cannot be exercised, arrangements shall be made for the duties of the manager or underground manager, as the case may be, in respect of daily supervision being performed,

(a) in the absence of the manager, by the underground manager;

(b) in the absence of the underground manager, in the case of a mine for which a separate underground manager is required by this Act to be appointed, by a person not under the age of twenty-five years and holding a certificate as an overman, under this Act; and any person performing the duties of a manager or underground manager, whether under this Act or under the last preceding section, shall have the same responsibility and shall be subject to the same liability as the person whose duties he is performing.

(3) If in any mine there is a contravention of, or non-compliance with, the provisions of this section, the mine shall be deemed to be not managed in conformity with this Act.

Certificates of Competency.

7. There shall be the following descriptions of certificates of competency under this Act, that is to say:—

(1) Manager.

(2) Underground Manager.

(3) Overman.

(4) Mine Examiner.

(5) First, Second and Third Class Stationary Engineers.

8. (1) For the purpose of ascertaining the fitness of applicants and recommending the granting of certificates of competency under this Act, the Commissioner shall appoint a Board of Examiners consisting of:—

(a) the inspector of mines;

(b) one mechanical engineer of recognized fitness and ability;

(c) one mining engineer of recognized fitness and ability.

(2) The members of said Board shall hold office during the pleasure of the Commissioner.

(3) Subject to the approval of the Commissioner, the Board shall make such regulations as may be necessary for the proper carrying out of the provisions of this section and as [to] its own procedure.<sup>1</sup>

(4) The Board shall, at such intervals as the Commissioner determines, make a report to him of its proceedings and such other matters as he may require.

9. (1) Examinations for such certificates shall be held annually, or oftener if the Commissioner so directs.

(2) The Province, for the purpose of holding examinations, shall be divided into four districts, called respectively Cumberland, Pictou, Inverness and Cape Breton districts, the limits whereof shall be defined from time to time by the Commissioner.

(3) The Commissioner shall designate a time and place, public notice of which shall be given, at which candidates for certificates of competency for managers, underground managers, overmen and mine examiners in each district shall present themselves for the purpose of writing answers to examination papers. The time designated by the Commissioner shall be the same for each district throughout the Province.

10. (1) The Board shall, at the end of the annual or any other examination of candidates, return to the Commissioner its recommendations, together with all the papers, of the candidates who have submitted themselves for examination; and said papers shall be kept on file with the Commissioner for at least one year after the date of said examination.

(2) The Board shall, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, make regulations for the qualifications of applicants for certificates of competency under this Act. Such regulations shall amongst other things provide:—

(a) If a candidate for manager, underground manager or overman, that the applicant is a British subject of the full age of 21 years and has had at least four years' experience underground in a coal mine, part of which must have been at the working face;

(b) if a candidate for manager, that the applicant must, in addition, be the holder of a certificate of competency as an underground manager; 1919, c. 74, s. 1.

(c) or has had such practical experience in mining, either in Nova Scotia or partly in Nova Scotia and partly elsewhere, as may be required by such regulations, for a period of not less than three years and is the holder of a degree as a mining engineer from the Nova

Scotia Technical College or any other college or university approved by the Commissioner, the course of study in which involves training in and knowledge of scientific and mining subjects;

(d) if a candidate for underground manager, that the applicant must, in addition, be the holder of a certificate of competency as an overman.

(e) If a candidate for first class certificate as stationary engineer, that the applicant—

(i) is at least twenty-four years of age;

(ii) is the holder of a second class certificate, and has served one year at mechanical work on machinery, and has for one year been in charge of a hoisting or haulage engine, or for two years in charge of an engine other than the engine last above specified, or;

(iii) is the holder of a second class certificate and has been engineer in charge of a steam plant for twelve months, or has served at mechanical work in a machine shop for three years.

(f) If a candidate for a second class certificate, that the applicant;

(i) is at least twenty-one years of age.

(ii) is the holder of a third class certificate and has been employed as a third class engineer for not less than one year.

(g) If a candidate for a third class certificate, that the applicant:

(i) is the holder of a license as a fireman, or has served not less than six months as a fireman; or,

(ii) has served at least twelve months as engineer, assistant engineer, pumpman, oiler, or locomotive engineer; or,

(iii) has served at least 18 months at mechanical work in a machine shop;

(iv) if not less than 18 years of age.

(h) If a candidate for mine examiner, that the applicant is a British subject of the full age of 21 years, has had at least three years' experience in and about the practical working of a coal mine, is the holder of a certificate of competency as a coal miner, and has a practical knowledge of gas, explosives, ventilation and timbering;

(i) for the holding, if deemed advisable by the Board, as a part of the examination, of viva voce examinations in the several districts established by this act, with a view to ascertaining the practical knowledge of applicants for certificates in each district being tested with reference to the local mining conditions, and requiring at least one of the examiners in every viva voce examination to be a person possessing practical acquaintance with those conditions.

(3) Any person conducting the examination under the next preceding section shall not take any part in the examination of the papers, or in the viva voce examination of any applicant for a certificate whom he has in any way trained or instructed in any of the subjects of the examination.

(4) Experience had outside of the Province may be accepted should the Board consider the same of equal value to the experience otherwise required.

(5) The Commissioner shall deliver to every candidate who is duly reported by the Board to have satisfactorily passed the requisite examination and to have given satisfactory evidence of his sobriety, experience, ability and general good conduct, such a certificate of competency as the case requires.

11. The Commissioner shall have power at any time to alter and revoke any rules made by the Board.

12. The fees and travelling expenses to be paid to the members of the Board and the fees to be paid by applicants for certificates, shall be determined by the Governor in Council.

13. A register of the holders of certificates under this Act shall be kept at the office of the Commissioner by such person and in such manner as he may from time to time direct.

14. Any person holding a certificate as manager, underground manager or overman, issued by the Commissioner previous to the coming into force of this Act, may continue to be employed as manager, underground manager or overman, (according to the tenor of such certificate), anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

15. If at any time representation is made to the Commissioner by a deputy inspector or otherwise that any person holding a certificate of competency under this Act is by reason of incompetency, misconduct, drunkenness or gross negligence unfit to discharge his duty or has been convicted of an offence against this Act, the Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, cause inquiry to be made into the conduct of such person; and with respect to every such inquiry the following provisions shall apply:—

(a) The inquiry shall be public and shall be held at such place as the Commissioner directs and by the Commissioner or such person as the Commissioner may appoint;

(b) The Commissioner shall, before the commencement of the inquiry, furnish the person into whose conduct the inquiry is to be made, with a statement of the case upon which the inquiry is instituted;

(c) The person into whose conduct the inquiry is to be made may attend the inquiry by himself, his solicitor or agent, and may, if he thinks fit, be sworn and examined as a witness in the case;

(d) The Commissioner shall have the power to cancel or suspend the certificate of the person into whose conduct the inquiry has been made if he finds, that he is, by reason of incompetency, misconduct, drunkenness or gross negligence, unfit to discharge his duty, or has been convicted of an offence against this Act;

(e) The Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, require the person into whose conduct the inquiry is to be made to deliver up his certificate; and if such person fails without sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Commissioner to comply with such requisition, he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act. The Commissioner shall hold the certificate so delivered up until the conclusion of the inquiry, and shall then either restore, cancel or suspend the same according to his judgment in the case;

(f) The Commissioner for the purpose of such inquiry shall have all the powers of a person appointed to hold an inquiry under the provisions of Chapter 12 of the Revised Statutes, 1900;

(g) The Commissioner may make such order as he thinks fit respecting the costs and expenses of inquiry, and such order shall, on the application of any person entitled to the benefit of the same, be enforced by any court of competent jurisdiction as if such costs and expenses were a penalty imposed by such court;

(h) When a certificate is cancelled or suspended in pursuance of this Act, the Commissioner shall cause such cancellation or suspension to be recorded in the register of holders of certificates.

16. The Commissioner may, at any time, if it is shown to him to be just so to do, renew or restore on such terms as he thinks fit any certificate which has been cancelled or suspended in pursuance of this Act.

17. Whenever any person proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that he has, without fault on his part, lost or been deprived of any certificate previously granted to him by the Commissioner under this Act, the Commissioner shall cause a copy of the certificate to which the applicant appears by the register to be entitled, to be made out and certified by the person who keeps the register and delivered to the applicant, and every copy which purports to be so made and certified shall have all the effect of the original certificate.

17a. (1) Persons skilled in the use of mine rescue apparatus shall be qualified to receive certificates of competency in such work.

(2) The Commissioner may make such regulations as he deems necessary for the purpose of ascertaining the fitness and qualifications of applicants for such certificates, and governing the granting and holding of the same. 1919, c. 75, s. 1.

Miners.

18. (1) No person shall be qualified to receive a certificate of competency as a coal miner who has not been employed in some capacity in a mine for the period of at least one year.

(2) No person shall be employed to cut, shear, mine, bore, loosen or extract coal by hand, machinery or otherwise in any mine who is not in possession of a certificate of competency as a coal miner.

19. (1) No person shall be given charge of a working face in a mine who is not in possession of a certificate of competency as a coal miner and in addition has been employed in a mine for at least one year as a coal miner.

(2) Every owner, agent or manager of any mine who gives charge of a working face to any person contrary to the provisions of this section, and every person who obtains or seeks to obtain such employment by means of a false or fraudulent certificate, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) In the case of the introduction of any coal cutting machine not in use in the Province before the 11th day of March, 1898, any person may work such machine, if he is accompanied by a person capable of taking charge of a working face under this Act.

20. (1) The Commissioner may appoint Local Boards for granting certificates of competency to coal miners in such places as he deems expedient, who shall examine candidates for such certificates, and grant such certificates to persons found duly qualified.

(2) Such local boards shall consist of three members as follows:—

(a) two persons who have had practical experience in coal mining in Nova Scotia and who hold certificates of competency as miners;

(b) one person holding a certificate of competency as an underground manager.

(3) The members of such local boards shall hold office for two years, to begin on the first day of January in the year in which their appointment is made, or until their successors are appointed.

(4) The Commissioner may make regulations for the guidance of local boards in the performance of their duties, and may prescribe the times and places at which the examinations shall be held. <sup>1</sup>

(5) Such boards shall report in writing to the Commissioner at the times and in the manner prescribed in the regulations, after each examination, the name, address and place of employment, if any, of every candidate to whom a certificate of competency is granted under this section.

(6) Members of such boards are for the purposes of the examination authorized to administer oaths and affirmations.

21. Every person who gives any false certificate of employment or other certificate to be used under the provisions of this Act, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars.

Fireman.

2. Every person who has served for not less than one year as a fireman at a steam boiler, and who satisfies at least one member of the Board of Examiners after an oral examination that the applicant has a sufficient knowledge of boilers to have charge of them, shall, upon satisfying the Board as to age and character, be entitled to receive from the Board of Examiners a license as a fireman.

Mine Examiners.

23. (1) In every mine there shall be appointed by the manager, in writing, one or more competent persons who hold a certificate of competency as a mine examiner under this Act, whose duty it shall be:—

(a) to fire all shots in the mine, and perform all other duties prescribed by any special rules;

(b) to make such inspections and carry out such other duties as to the presence of gas, ventilation, state of roof and sides, as are required by this Act and by any special rules;

(c) to have the general charge of the safety of the mine and the workmen, as required by this Act or by any special rules.

(2) A mine examiner shall be required to devote his whole time to such duties as aforesaid, but these provisions shall not apply in the case of a mine examiner in—

(a) any mine in which the total number of persons employed underground at one time does not exceed thirty; or

(b) any mine exempted by the inspector on account of the special circumstances of the mine.

(3) No person not employed as a mine examiner or shot-firer in any mine previously to the first day of August, 1918, shall be employed or permitted to act as a mine examiner unless he is possessed of a certificate of competency as such, under this Act; provided, however, that all persons who, on the passing of this Act, are the holders of a certificate of mine examiner or shot-firer issued by any board for the examination of workmen and who are now or have been employed as mine examiners or shot-firers, shall be granted a certificate of competency as mine examiner by the Commissioner upon the manager of the mine in which such mine examiner or shot-firer is employed filing a certificate with the Commissioner that such mine examiner or shot-firer is so employed in the mine as such, is a British subject, and has written or is competent to write in the English language a report of his examinations in the book kept for that purpose at the mine in which he is employed.

(4) That part of the mine assigned to a mine examiner shall not be of such a size as to prevent him from carrying out in a thorough manner the duties assigned to him.

Inspection on behalf of Workmen.

24. The workmen employed in a mine may, at their own cost, from time to time, appoint two of their number, or any two who are or have been practical working miners and have had not less than five years' experience of underground work, to inspect the mine; and the persons so appointed shall be allowed, once at least in every month, accompanied, if the owner, agent or manager of the mine thinks fit, by himself, or one or more of the officers of the mine, to go to every part of the mine, and to inspect the shafts, levels, planes, working places, return air-ways, ventilating apparatus, old workings and machinery; the said persons shall be afforded by the owner, agent or manager and all persons in the mine every facility for the purpose of such inspection. A true report of the result of such inspection shall be made, and such report shall be recorded in a book to be kept at the mine for the purpose, and shall be signed by the persons who made the same.

Returns, Plans, Notices.

25. (1) The owner, agent or manager of every mine shall once a year or oftener, if required by the inspector, send to him a plan and a return of facts relating to the mode and description of means of ventilation, a description of the up cast and down cast shafts, of the length and sectional area of the airways, the number of splits and quantity of fresh air in cubic feet per minute and the average total quantity of air in cubic feet per minute in his mine.

(2) The returns shall be in such forms as are from time to time prescribed by the inspector. The Commissioner shall from time to time on application furnish forms for the purpose of such returns.

(3) Every owner, agent or manager of a mine who fails to comply with this section, or makes any return which is to his knowledge false in any particular, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Re-opening or Abandoning a Mine.

26. In any case:—

(a) where any change occurs in the name of any mine not exempted from compliance with this section by the Commissioner, or in the name of the owner, agent or manager of any such mine or in the officers of any incorporated company which is the owner of any such mine; or

(b) where any working is commenced for the purpose of opening a mine; or

(c) where any mine is abandoned or the working thereof discontinued; or

(d) where the working of a mine is recommenced after an abandonment or discontinuance for a period exceeding two months, the owner, agent or manager of such mine shall give notice thereof to the Commissioner within one month after such commencement, abandonment, discontinuance, recommencement or change; and if such notice is not given, the owner, agent or manager shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

27. (1) Where any mine is abandoned or the working thereof discontinued, at whatever time such abandonment or discontinuance occurs, the owner thereof, and every other person interested in the mineral of such mine, shall cause the top of the shaft and any side entrance from the surface to be fenced and to be kept securely fenced for the prevention of accidents.

(2) Subject to any contract to the contrary, the owner of such mine shall as between himself and any other person interested in the minerals of the mine, be liable to perform the duty imposed by this section, and to pay any expenses incurred by any other person interested in the minerals of the mine in fencing and keeping fenced such mine as aforesaid.

(3) Nothing in this section shall exempt any person from any liability otherwise imposed by law.

(4) Any person who fails to perform the duty imposed by subsection (1) shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

28. (1) Where any mine is abandoned, the owner of such mine at the time of such abandonment shall, within three months after such abandonment, send to the Commissioner an accurate plan on a scale of not less than four hundred feet to one inch, showing the boundaries of the workings of such mine up to the time of the abandonment, with the view of its being preserved under the care of the Commissioner.

(2) Every person who fails to comply with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

PART II.

PROVISIONS AS TO SAFETY.

Plan of Workings.

29. (1) The owner, agent or manager of every mine shall keep in the office at the mine an accurate plan of the workings of such mine, showing the workings up to three months or less previously.

(2) The owner, agent or manager of the mine shall produce to the inspector or deputy inspector at the mine such plan, and shall, if requested by the inspector or deputy inspector mark on such plan or a copy thereof the progress of the workings of the mine up to the time of such production, and shall allow the inspector or deputy inspector to examine the same, and shall furnish to the inspector or deputy inspector a correct copy of such plan when requested by him.

(3) The owner, agent or manager shall before the 20th day of each of the months of January, April, July and October of each year furnish to the Commissioner a correct plan or tracing on a scale of not less than 400 feet to an inch of the workings up to the first day of the months above mentioned.

(4) Every owner, agent or manager of any mine who:—

(a) fails to keep such a plan as is prescribed by this section; or

(b) refuses to produce the same to the inspector or deputy inspector and allow it to be examined by him; or

(c) refuses on request to mark on such plan the state of the workings of the mine at the time of such request; or

(d) conceals any part of such workings; or

(e) produces an imperfect or inaccurate plan, shall, unless he shows that he was ignorant of the concealment, imperfection or inaccuracy, be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(5) The inspector may also by notice in writing require the owner, agent or manager to cause an accurate plan, such as is prescribed by this section, to be made within a reasonable time at the expense of the owner of the mine on a scale of not less than four hundred feet to one inch, or on the same scale as the plan then used at the mine.

(6) If the owner, agent or manager fails within twenty days after the requisition of the Inspector, or within such further time as is shown to be necessary to make such plan, he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Notice of Accidents.

30. (1) Where, in or about any mine, whether above or below ground, any accident occurs which either:—

- (a) causes loss of life to any person employed in or about the mine; or
- (b) causes any serious bodily injury to any person employed in or about the mine; or
- (c) is caused by any explosion of gas or coal dust or any explosive, or by electricity, or by overwinding, or by any other such cause as the Commissioner specifies by order or regulation, and causes any bodily injury whatever to any person employed in or about the mine, the owner, agent or manager of the mine shall forthwith send notice by telegram of the accident and of any loss of life or injury caused thereby, to the Commissioner and in writing to the deputy inspector of the district in which the accident occurs, and as soon thereafter as possible shall send a report to the Commissioner of all the facts relating to such accident or explosion in such form and accompanied by such particulars as are prescribed in the schedule to this Act.

(2) Where any injury, of which notice is required to be sent under this section, results in the death of the person injured, notice in writing of the death shall be sent to the deputy inspector within twenty-four hours after such death comes to the knowledge of the owner, agent or manager.

(2a) In any mine where a fatal accident occurs at any working face the place shall be at once fenced off and remain so for forty-eight hours unless such place is sooner inspected by two men selected by the workmen and accompanied by the deputy inspector for the district, or in his absence, the mine manager or some one appointed by him to accompany the men. The mine manager shall furnish the special examiner holding the inquest, and before it is held, with the name of the parties making such inspection. 1919, c. 74, s. 2.

(3) Every owner, agent or manager who fails to act in compliance with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Single Shafts.

31. (1) The owner, agent or manager of a mine shall not employ any person in the mine, or permit any person to be in the mine for the purpose of employment therein, unless the following conditions respecting shafts or outlets are complied with, that is to say:—

(a) there shall be at least two shafts or outlets with which every seam for the time being at work in the mine shall have a communication, so that such shafts or outlets shall afford separate means of ingress and egress available to the persons employed in every such seam, whether the shafts or outlets belong to the same mine or to more than one mine;

(b) such shafts or outlets shall not at any point be nearer to one another than fifteen yards, and there shall be between such two shafts or outlets a communication not less than four feet wide and four feet high;

(c) proper apparatus for raising and lowering persons at each such shaft or outlet shall be kept on the works belonging to the mine; and such apparatus if not in actual use at the shafts or outlets shall be constantly available for use.

(2) Every owner, agent or manager of a mine who acts in contravention of or fails to comply with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) The Supreme Court, or any judge thereof, whether any other proceedings have been taken or not, may, upon the application of the Attorney-General, prohibit by injunction, the working of any mine in which any person is employed or is permitted to be for the purpose of employment in contravention of this section, and may award such costs in the matter of the injunction as the court or judge thinks just; but this provision shall be without prejudice to any other remedy permitted by law for enforcing the provisions of this Act.

(4) Written notice of the intention to apply for such injunction in respect to any mine shall be given to the owner, agent or manager of the mine not less than ten days before the application is made.

Second Shaft.

32. No person shall be precluded by any agreement from doing such acts as are necessary for providing a second shaft or outlet to a mine, where the same is required by this Act or be liable under any contract to any penalty or forfeiture for doing such acts as are necessary in order to comply with the provisions of this Act with respect to shafts or outlets.

33. (1) The foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to shafts or outlets shall not apply:—

(a) in the case of a new mine being opened:—

(i) to any working for the purpose of making a communication between two or more shafts; or

(ii) to any working for the purpose of searching for or proving minerals, as long as not more than twenty persons are employed below ground at any one time in the whole of the different seams in connection with a single shaft or outlet; nor

(b) to any proved mine, so long as it is exempted by order of the Commissioner on the ground either:—

(i) that the quantity of mineral proved is not sufficient to repay the outlay which would be occasioned by sinking or making a second shaft or outlet, or by establishing communication with a second shaft or outlet in any case where such communication existed and has become unavailable; or

(ii) that the workings in any seam of the mine have reached the boundary of the property or the extremity of the mineral field of which that seam is a part, and that it is expedient to work away the pillars already formed in course of ordinary working, notwithstanding that one of the shafts or outlets may be cut off by so working away the pillars of that seam, and so long as not more than twenty persons are employed below ground at any one time in the whole of the different seams in connection with a single shaft or outlet; nor

(c) to any mine:—

(i) while a shaft is being sunk or an outlet being made; or

(ii) one of the shafts or outlets of which has become by reason of some accident unavailable for the use of the persons employed in the mine, so long as the mine is exempted by order of the Commissioner, and so long as the conditions, if any, annexed to the order of exemption are duly observed.

Dangerous Practices.

34. (1) If in any respect not provided for by any provision of this Act or by any general or special rule, the inspector of mines or any deputy inspector is of opinion that any mine or any part thereof, or any matter, thing or practice in or connected with any mine or any part thereof, is dangerous or defective, or if he is of opinion that any matter, thing or practice is being carried on contrary to any rule, regulation or order made under the provisions of this Act, and in either case so as in his opinion to endanger life or any property leased from the Crown, the inspector or any deputy inspector shall forthwith give notice in writing thereof to the owner, agent or manager of the mine, and shall state in such notice the particulars in which he considers such mine, or any part thereof, or any matter, thing or practice, to be dangerous or defective, or is being carried on contrary to any rule, regulation or order, and require the same to be remedied within such time as said inspector of mines or deputy inspector fixes in his notice; and unless the same is remedied in accordance with the terms and requirements of said notice, the inspector of mines shall report the same to the Commissioner. It shall be the duty of every deputy inspector who serves a notice under this sub-section to transmit a copy of the same to the inspector as well as to report to the inspector promptly any non-compliance with his request.

(2) If the owner, agent or manager of the mine objects to remedy the matter complained of in the notice, he may within ten days after the receipt of such notice send his objection in writing, stating the grounds thereof to the Commissioner, and thereupon the matter shall be decided by arbitration by the Commissioner, together with one arbitrator appointed by the inspector and one appointed by such owner or agent; and the award of the Commissioner with one of the arbitrators shall be final.

(3) Five days' notice of the time and place at which the Commissioner will hear such matter shall be given to the parties interested.

(4) Every owner, agent or manager who fails:—

(a) when no objection is sent as aforesaid, to comply with the requisition of the notice within ten days after the expiration of the time for objection, or

(b) when there has been an arbitration, to comply with the award within the time fixed by the award;

shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and liable to a penalty of at least eighty dollars for each and every day he fails to comply with the requisition of the notice, or with the award, and the notice and the award shall respectively be deemed to be written notice of the offence.

(5) The Commissioner, if satisfied that the owner, agent or manager, has taken active measures for complying with the notice or award, but has not with reasonable diligence been able to complete the works, may adjourn any proceedings taken before him for punishing the offence, and if the works are completed within a reasonable time no penalty shall be inflicted.

Examination of Mine.

35. (1) In respect to any mine the Commissioner may appoint a commission of three members, one of whom shall be a working miner, one the owner of the mine or his agent, and one a person of experience in coal mining, but not employed in or connected with any mine in operation, to examine such mine and to make recommendations as to whether in such mine lamps or lights, other than locked safety lamps, shall be allowed or used, and shall forthwith report any such recommendations to the Commissioner.

(2) The Commissioner, upon such report, may order that no lamp or light, other than a locked safety lamp, shall be allowed or used in such mine, and that in case the owner or manager of the mine neglects or refuses to comply with the any such order, the Commissioner shall have power to order the closing of such mine, and for every day that any work is done below ground in such mine, in violation of the order, such owner or manager shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one thousand dollars.

Use of Electricity.

36. (1) Electricity shall not be used in any part of a mine where, on account of the risk of explosion of gas or coal dust, the use of electricity would be dangerous to life, and if the owner of a mine, on being required by the deputy inspector not to use, or to desist from using, electricity in the mine or any part thereof, for the reasons aforesaid, refuses to do so, the question as to the application of this section to the mine or part thereof shall be settled in manner provided for settling disputes under Section 34 of this Act.

(2) If at any time in any place in the mine inflammable gas is found, the electric current shall at once be cut off from all cables and other electrical apparatus in that place, and shall not be switched on until the place is reported to be clear of gas and permission is given to switch on by the manager; provided that nothing in this subsection shall apply to any telephone or signalling wires or instruments as long as the conditions prescribed with reference to the installation and use of such wires and instruments are complied with, nor to any electric lamps of a type for the time being approved.

(3) When any question under this section is to be settled in the manner hereinbefore provided the owner shall, pending the settlement of the question, comply with the requirements, of the deputy inspector, subject to an appeal to the inspector.

(4) The use of electricity in any mine shall be subject to regulations made by the Governor in Council.

Powers and Duties of Inspectors.

37. (1) The inspector and every deputy inspector shall have power to do all or any of the following things, namely:—

(a) to make such examination and inquiry as is necessary to ascertain whether the provisions of this Act relating to matters above ground or below ground are complied with in the case of any mine;

(b) to enter, inspect and examine any mine and every part thereof, at all reasonable times by day and night, but so as not to impede or obstruct the working of the mine; and

(c) to examine into and make inquiry respecting the state and condition of any mine, or any part thereof, and the ventilation of the mine, and the sufficiency of any special rules for the time being in force in the mine, and all matters and things connected with or relating to the safety of the persons employed in or about the mine or any mine contiguous thereto.

(2) The inspector shall have power, and may authorize any deputy inspector to exercise such other powers as are necessary for carrying this Act into effect.

(3) The deputy inspector shall visit every mine within his jurisdiction and every working part thereof, all underground travelling roads and all air courses, including examination of stoppings at least once every month. Immediately after each visit, the deputy inspector shall cause to be posted in some conspicuous place, at or near the mine conveniently accessible to the workmen in such mine, a statement showing what part of said mine he has visited, and the conditions found to prevail therein.

(4) Every person who wilfully obstructs the inspector or any deputy inspector in the execution of his duty under this Act, and every owner, agent and manager of a mine who refuses or neglects to furnish to the inspector or deputy inspector the means necessary for making any entry, inspection, examination or inquiry under this Act in relation to such mine, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

PART III.

EMPLOYMENT AND WAGES.

38. (1) No boy of or above the age of twelve years and under the age of sixteen years shall be employed in or about or allowed to be for the purpose of employment in or about any mine, below or above ground, for more than fifty-four hours in any one week, or for more than ten hours in any one day, except in case of accident or emergency.

(2) For the purpose of this section a "week" shall be deemed to begin at midnight on Saturday night and to end at midnight on the succeeding Saturday night.

(3) No boy under the age of twelve years shall be employed in or about or allowed to be for the purpose of employment in or about any mine below ground or above ground.

(4) No boy of or above the age of twelve years and under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted to work in or about any mine, below or above ground, unless he furnishes a certificate from the principal or a teacher of the schools or school of the section of having satisfactorily completed the prescribed course of study up to the end of grade seven.

(5) Every such teacher shall, without requiring payment of any fee, upon the application of any boy desiring employment, grant him such certificate, if he is entitled to the same, and any such teacher refusing to make such examination and grant such certificate shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars.

(6) Every person who contravenes or fails to comply with or permits any person to contravene or fail to comply with any provision of this section, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and in case of any such contravention or non-compliance by any person whomsoever, the owner and agent shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves that he has taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance by publishing, and to the best of his power enforcing, the next preceding sub-sections.

39. (1) When the amount of wages paid to any of the workmen employed in a mine depends on the amount of mineral gotten by them, such persons shall, if the majority of them so desire, and unless the mine is exempted by the Commissioner, be paid according to the weight of the mineral gotten by them, and such mineral shall be truly weighed accordingly at a place as near to the pit mouth as is reasonably practicable.

(2) Nothing in this section shall preclude the owner, agent or manager of any mine from agreeing with the workmen so employed and paid that deductions shall be made in respect to stones or material other than mineral contracted to be gotten which are sent out of the mine with the mineral contracted to be gotten, or in respect to any tubs, cars or hutchies being improperly filled in those cases in which they are filled by the getter of the mineral, or by the loader, or by the workman immediately employed by him and no such deductions shall be made until such agreement is made in writing on behalf of both parties.

(3) When the amount of wages paid to any of the workmen employed in a mine depends on the amount of mineral gotten by them, and such persons are paid by cubic measurement or by the car or a box of a standard weight mutually agreed on by the owner, agent or manager of such mine and a majority of the workmen so employed, no change shall be made in such mode of payment nor in such standard weight of a car or box unless an agreement in writing has been first made between such owner, agent or manager on the one hand and a majority of the workmen so employed on the other hand, and if the parties are unable to agree the matter shall be determined in the manner provided in subsections (4) and (5) of this section.

(4) If such deductions or new standard of weight are not mutually agreed on, they shall be determined:—

(a) in any special mode agreed upon between the owner, agent or manager of the mine on the one hand, and the majority of the workmen so employed and paid on the other; or

(b) by some person appointed on that behalf by the owner, agent or manager, and by a person appointed by such majority, who may be the check-weigher, if any check weigher has been appointed, as in this Act provided; or

(c) if the persons so appointed are unable to agree, a third person shall be chosen by such persons, or by the Commissioner in case they fail to agree upon such third person, and the decision of the majority of the three persons so selected shall be final.

(5) If any owner, agent or manager, or a majority of the workmen so employed in any mine, fail to appoint a person to determine such deductions, or new standard of weight, a person may be appointed on his or their behalf by the Commissioner.

(6) The Commissioner may make rules prescribing the procedure to be observed in the appointment by the workmen employed in the mine, of a person to act under this section, and certifying the same to the Commissioner, or certifying that they have been unable to agree upon such appointment, or have failed to make such appointment.

(7) The wages of every person employed in a coal mine, other than those whose wages are fixed at a monthly rate, shall be paid at weekly intervals.

(8) At each of such times of payment the wages of such employee shall be paid up to the date of the last preceding time of payment, and any employee who is absent at any such time of payment shall at any time thereafter on demand be entitled to be paid his wages up to such last preceding time of payment.

(9) The owner, agent or manager of any mine who contravenes or fails to comply with this section shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(10) Every proceeding instituted in respect of an offence against this section shall be begun within thirty days from the commission of the offence charged, and three days' notice of intention to institute such proceeding shall be given to such owner, agent or manager.

(11) The owner, agent or manager accused of any such offence, shall not be permitted to set up by way of defence any agreement of hiring inconsistent with this section, and

(12) Any penalty recovered shall be paid to the treasurer of the municipality or town in which the mine in respect to which the offence was committed is situated.

40. (1) From and after the first day of October, 1918, the wages or salary of every employee of any mine shall be paid to such employee in money current in the Dominion of Canada (and no part thereof shall be abated by the employer).

(2) There shall be exempted from the operation of the above enactment, all sums due from such employee for powder, coal, oil, rent, check-weigher's and doctor's fees, church, hospital and society dues. Every employer may retain such sums from the wages or salary due such employee.

41. (1) The owner, agent or manager of any mine who contravenes or fails to comply with the next preceding section, shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act and liable to a penalty of not less than fifty dollars or more than one hundred dollars.

(2) In any prosecution for any such offence:—

(a) service of any process shall be sufficient if made on the manager of the mine at which the offence was committed; and

(b) the burden of proving that the provisions of the next preceding section were complied with shall be upon such owner, agent or manager.

42. (1) No owner, agent or manager of any mine shall deduct from the wages of any employee in such mine any sum in respect of school rates, or other rates, without the consent in writing of the employee to such deduction.

(2) Every person who contravenes or fails to comply with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) Any penalty recovered in respect to an offence against this section shall be paid to the person aggrieved.

Check Weighers.

43. (1) The persons who are employed in a mine and are paid according to the weight of the mineral gotten by them may, at their own cost, station a person (in this Act called a "check-weigher") at the place appointed for the weighing of such mineral in order to take an account of the weight thereof on behalf of the persons by whom he is so stationed. Every such check-weigher shall be a certificated miner of at least three years' service, and shall be at the time of his appointment employed in the colliery at which he is to serve.

(2) A check-weigher shall have every facility afforded him to take a correct account of the weighing for the persons by whom he is so stationed, including facilities for examining and testing the weighing machine, and checking the taring of tubs and boxes, when necessary; and also for counting boxes and tallies in order that the number of boxes, weights or quantities credited to each person may be ascertained; and also including a shelter from the weather, and a desk or table at which to write, to be furnished by the owner, agent or manager, and access to all parts of the mine and bankhead necessary for the fulfilment of his duties.

(3) If at any mine proper facilities are not afforded to a check-weigher, as required by this section, the owner, agent or manager of the mine shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves he had taken all reasonable means to enforce to the best of his power the requirements of this section.

(4) Where no check-weigher has been appointed in any mine, or an additional check-weigher is required, or when a vacancy occurs in the office of check-weigher, a meeting of the persons who are employed in the mine and are paid according to the weight of the mineral gotten by them, may be called by a notice signed by not less than ten of such persons, and posted up in at least three public places at or near the mine for not less than one week.

(5) Such meeting shall fix the time and place for taking a ballot of the persons employed in the mine who are paid according to the weight of the mineral gotten by them for the appointment of a check-weigher, and shall make all necessary arrangements for the securing to all of such persons the opportunity of voting at such ballot, and the person receiving the largest number of votes at such ballot shall be the check-weigher appointed.

(6) No check-weigher shall, unless re-elected in the manner in this section provided, hold office or act as check-weigher for more than one year.

44. The check-weigher shall not be authorized in any way to impede or interrupt the working of the mine, or to interfere with the weighing, but shall be authorized only to take such account as aforesaid; and the absence of the check-weigher shall not be a reason for interrupting or delaying such weighing.

45. When a check-weigher has been appointed by the majority ascertained by ballot of the persons employed in a mine who are paid according to the weight of the mineral gotten by them, and has acted as such, he may recover from any person for the time being employed at such mine and so paid, his proportion of the check-weigher's wages or recompense, notwithstanding that any of the persons by whom the check-weigher was appointed have left the mine, or others have entered the same since the check-weigher's appointment, any rule of law, or equity to the contrary notwithstanding.

46. (1) If the owner, agent or manager of the mine desires the removal of a check-weigher, on the ground that the check-weigher has impeded or interrupted the working of a mine, or interfered with the weighing, or has otherwise misconducted himself, he may complain to any justice of the peace of the county in which the mine is situated, who, if of the opinion that the owner, agent or manager shows sufficient prima facie ground in writing for the removal of such check-weigher, shall by summons call upon the check-weigher to appear at a certain time and place therein mentioned.

(2) Such summons and a copy of the complaint shall be served on the check-weigher by any constable of the county at least five days before the return day of said summons.

(3) In default of appearance of the check-weigher to answer the complaint, proof of the service of the said summons shall be furnished by the said constable in the same way as in ordinary civil suits before a justice of the peace.

(4) Whether the check-weigher appears nor not, the justice shall hear the case at the time fixed in the summons, and if he thinks sufficient ground is shown by the owner, agent or manager to justify the removal of the check-weigher, he shall make a summary order for his removal and the check-weigher shall thereupon be removed, but without prejudice to the stationing of another check-weigher in his place.

(5) The justice may in every case make such order as to the cost of the proceedings as he thinks just, and execution may issue for the recovery of the same.

47. (1) In any mine in which the persons employed are, with the concurrence of the Commissioner of Mines, paid by mutual agreement otherwise than according to the weight of the mineral gotten by them, they may at their own cost employ a practical miner, who shall at all times have power and necessary facilities to check the correctness of the modes, methods, measure, measurements, or quantities, according to which such persons are paid, on behalf of the persons by whom he is employed; and also for counting boxes and tallies once daily, in order that the number of boxes, weights or quantities credited to each person may be ascertained.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to the powers and duties of a check-weigher and the facilities to be afforded him, and his removal from office, shall apply to every person appointed under this section.

PART IV.

Investigations.

48. Where it appears to the Commissioner that a formal investigation of any accident in any mine or of any matter connected with the working of any mine is expedient, the Commissioner may direct the inspector to hold such investigation, and with respect to any such investigation the following provisions shall apply—

(1) The Commissioner may appoint any person or persons possessing legal or special knowledge to act with the inspector as assessor or assessors in holding the investigation.

(2) The inspector shall make such investigation in such manner and under such conditions as he thinks most effectual for the making of a full investigation.

(3) The inspector, for the purposes of the investigation, shall have all the power of a Commissioner appointed under that chapter of the Revised Statutes, 1900, of "Inquiries Concerning Public Matters," and all the powers conferred upon the inspector by this Act, and as part thereof or in addition thereto, he shall have power:—

(a) to enter and inspect any mine, building or place, the entry or inspection of which appears to the inspector expedient; and

(b) by summons signed by the inspector to require the attendance of any persons, and to require of such persons such answers or returns to inquiries as the inspector thinks fit; and

(c) to require the production of any book, paper or document which the inspector thinks important upon such investigation.

(4) Any person attending before the inspector in obedience to any such summons shall be allowed the fees paid to a witness attending a trial in the Supreme Court.

(5) Any person who without reasonable excuse either fails (after having had any fees to which he is entitled tendered to him) to comply with any summons requiring him to attend before the inspector upon any such investigation, or refuses to produce any document which he is required by the inspector to produce, or prevents or impedes the inspector when engaged upon such investigation, shall for each such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twenty days, and in addition thereto may be proceeded against in the Supreme Court as for contempt of such court.

(6) The inspector shall make a report upon such investigation, which the Commissioner may cause to be made public at such time and in such manner as he thinks fit.

(7) Any expense incurred in and about any such investigation, including the remuneration of any person to act as assessor, shall be paid out of the Provincial Treasury.

Special Examiners into Accidents Causing Death.

49. Where any accident occurs in any mine from any cause resulting in the loss of life, no coroner of the county in which the accident occurs shall hold an inquest touching the death of such person, but the following provisions shall have effect:—

(1) The Governor in Council shall appoint in each of the districts into which the Province is divided for the purpose of holding examinations for certificates of competency under this Act, one or more competent persons, to be called special examiners, who shall have all the powers and privileges of commissioners appointed under the provisions of Chapter 12, Revised Statutes, 1900, "Of Inquiries Concerning Public Matters," and all the powers and privileges of the inspector under the provisions of Section 48 of this Act, as well as all the powers and privileges of a coroner, except as in this Act otherwise provided.

(2) Such special examiners shall hold office during pleasure.

(3) The Commissioner may appoint any person or persons possessing special knowledge to act with said special examiner in holding any inquiry.

(4) Such special examiners shall make inquiry and report respecting the death of each person, separately, or may make one report upon the cause of the death of all such persons, and shall at such inquiry report as to whether such accident was or was not preventable, as to whether any neglect either caused or contributed to the explosion or accident, and as to whether there was any defect in or about the mine, or the modes of working said mine, or in the observance of this Act or any general or special rules, and shall send to the inspector a copy of his findings in these respects.

(5) If, upon such inquiry, the special examiner is of the opinion that death was caused by explosion or accident and resulted from culpable negligence or that there is reasonable ground for suspecting the same, he shall forthwith file a copy of his report with the Clerk of the Crown for the county in which the accident occurred, and transmit a copy thereof to the Attorney-General, together with a notice stating that in his opinion it is expedient that a further inquiry shall be held, respecting the cause of such accident.

(6) When such special examiner holds an inquiry on the body of any person whose death has been caused by an explosion or accident, of which notice is required by this Act to be given to the Commissioner and deputy inspector, he shall immediately notify the deputy inspector for the district, of his intention to hold such inquiry and fix a time and place therefor. Where the deputy inspector is unable to attend such inquiry at the time fixed the special examiner shall adjourn such inquiry whenever practicable to enable the inspector, deputy inspector or some other properly qualified person appointed by the Commissioner to be present at the inquiry.

(7) The special examiner, at least four days before holding the adjourned inquiry, shall send to the Commissioner or to the deputy inspector for the district, notice in writing of the time and place of holding such adjourned inquiry.

(8) The inspector, deputy inspector, or such other person so appointed or person appointed by the workmen of the mine at which the accident occurred, shall be at liberty at any such inquiry to examine any witnesses, subject nevertheless, to the order of the special examiner.

(9) Such special examiner shall be paid for every inquiry into the cause of any accident such sum as may be determined by the Governor in Council, to be paid out of the Provincial Treasury.

(10) Except as is otherwise provided, all fees, remuneration and expenses incurred by the said special examiner in connection with any inquiry and report shall be paid out of the Provincial Treasury.

(11) Such special examiners, for the purpose of making an inquiry, shall have the power to summon any witness who may be able to give expert testimony as to the cause of the accident or as to whether there was any defect in or about the mine in which the accident occurred. The special examiner may fix a special fee to be paid such expert witnesses.

(12) Every person who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

PART V.

GENERAL RULES.

50. (1) The following general rules shall be observed, so far as is reasonably practicable in every mine:—

Ventilation.

Rule 1. (1) An adequate amount of ventilation shall be constantly produced in every mine to dilute and render harmless inflammable or noxious gases to such an extent that all underground places in the mine, except places sealed or properly fenced off according to law, shall be in a fit state for passing and working therein.

(2) In any working place in a mine where the current of air is not sufficient to keep the place clear of inflammable or noxious gases, brattice shall be used to conduct the air to the face and a breach of this Rule shall be an offence against this Act.

Rule 2. (1) In every mine a competent person or persons holding a certificate of competency as underground manager, overman or mine examiner, who shall be appointed for the purpose, shall inspect with a locked safety lamp every part of the mine except places abandoned and properly fenced off, according to Rule 13 of this section, within three hours of the time of commencing work therein, to ascertain the condition of the mine as far as ventilation is concerned, as to the condition of the roof and sides, as to the presence and accumulation of dust, and as to whether or not inflammable or noxious gas is found.

(2) If inflammable or noxious gas is found, such competent person shall forthwith mark the place in such a conspicuous way as to indicate the same to any workman likely to enter said part, and then shall report the presence of gas to the workmen at the entrance station, and no workman shall go to work in said part until such part and the roadways leading thereto and the condition of the air are all reported by such competent person to be safe. Such competent person shall, as soon as practicable, make a true report in writing of his inspection to the manager, underground manager or overman at the time in charge underground.

(3) Every such report shall be recorded without delay in a book which shall be kept at the mine for the purpose and accessible to the workmen, and shall be signed by the person who made the inspection.

(4) A similar inspection shall be made once at least in the course of each shift, of all parts of the mine situated beyond the station or such of the stations provided for by Rule 14 hereinafter, and in which the workmen are to pass during that shift, and the result of such inspection shall be recorded in a book kept at the mine for this purpose.

(5) Unless the floor, roof and sides of the road in every such mine are naturally wet throughout they shall be systematically cleared so as to prevent, as far as practicable, coal dust accumulating; and systematic steps, either by way of watering or otherwise, shall be taken to prevent explosions of coal dust occurring or coal dust being carried along the roads.

Rule 3. All cross cuts made for the purpose of ventilation shall be kept of uniform width and height between the openings which they connect; except where the deputy inspector permits a height of coal sufficient for drainage purposes to remain on the pavement.

Safety Lamps.

Rule 4. There shall be provided at every mine in which locked safety lamps are required to be used under the provisions of this Act, such lighting stations at or near the entrance to the mine, or the different parts of the mine, as the extent and nature of the workings of the mine, in the opinion of the inspector, require.

Rule 5. (1) In any mine where safety lamps are now used, or may be required by this Act or any special rules made in pursuance of this Act to be used, a competent person who shall be appointed by the manager of the mine for the purpose shall examine every safety lamp immediately before it is taken into the mine for use and ascertain if it is in all respects in a proper condition for use and is securely locked before permitting the lamp to be taken into the mine, and the lamp shall not be unlocked except at a lighting station; and no person other than a mine examiner employed in such a mine as a mine examiner shall have in his possession any key or contrivance for opening the lock of any safety lamp, or any lucifer match or apparatus of any kind for striking a light.

(2) In every working approaching any place where there is likely to be an accumulation of inflammable or noxious gas, no lamp or light other than a locked safety lamp shall be allowed or used. The manager of every mine in which, or in any part of which, locked safety lamps are required by this Act, shall, for the purpose of ascertaining, before the persons employed underground in the mine or in the part of the mine, as the case may be, commence work, whether they have in their possession any lucifer match or such apparatus as aforesaid, or cigar, cigarette, pipe or contrivance for smoking, cause either of those persons or such of them as may be selected on a system approved by the deputy inspector for the district, to be searched in the prescribed manner after or immediately before entering the mine or that part of the mine.

(3) No person shall search any workman in pursuance of this section, unless he has previously given an opportunity to some two workmen employed in the mine to search himself, and no lucifer match or such apparatus as aforesaid, and no cigar, cigarette, pipe or contrivance for smoking has been found on him.

(4) Any person who refuses to allow himself to be searched in accordance with the foregoing provision shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall not be allowed to enter the mine, or the part of a mine, as the case may be, and any person who, on being searched, is found to have in his possession any of the articles prohibited under this section, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Rule 6. Every mine examiner shall, at all times, while in the discharge of his duties as mine examiner, use a locked safety lamp, and shall, unless the deputy inspector permits otherwise, be accompanied by an employee of the owner, agent or manager, not less than 18 years of age, who shall also use a locked safety lamp; such mine examiner shall also observe such other precautions as to safety as the Commissioner, on the recommendation of the inspector or the deputy inspector, may from time to time prescribe. The application of such regulations may be made general or may be limited to such mine or mines as conditions require.

Rule 7. Nothing in these rules or in this Act shall make illegal the use of electric lamps, of a type approved of by the Commissioner; provided, however, that no such electric lamp shall, under any circumstances, be used for the purpose of examination for the detection of inflammable or noxious gas.

Explosives.

Rule 8. No explosive other than a "permitted explosive" shall be used for blowing coal in any mine unless permission to use some other explosive is given in writing by the inspector and the deputy inspector of the district in which such mine is situated; and no explosive shall be used in any mine except in accordance with the following regulations:—

(1) It shall not be stored in the mine, or within two hundred and fifty yards of the slope or shaft, or at any place not approved of by the inspector or deputy inspector,

Provided that the storage of permitted explosives shall be allowed near the mouth of the shaft or slope of a mine in such quantity as may be required in the mine for one shift, in a building to be selected by the manager of the mine and approved by the deputy inspector, and further provided that detonators shall not be stored in the same building. Amended 1919, c. 74, s. 3.

(2) It shall not be taken into the mine except in a secure case or canister containing not more than six pounds;

(3) There shall not be at any one time in any one working place more than one of such cases or canisters;

(4) It shall not be taken into or be in the possession of any person in any working place in any mine during two months after inflammable gas has on three consecutive days been found in such place in quantity sufficient to show in a safety lamp, except in the following cases:—

(a) In cases of stonework and sinking shafts in which the ventilation is so managed that the return from the place where the explosive is used passes into the main return air course without passing any place in actual course of working; or

(b) when the persons ordinarily employed in the mine are out of the same.

(5) In any case in which any explosive is used:—

(i) under the next preceding sub-section of this rule; or

(ii) in any mine during three months after inflammable gas has been found in quantity sufficient to show in a safety lamp, no shot shall be fired except by a person holding a certificate as a mine examiner under this Act, nor unless such person, immediately before firing a shot, has examined the place where the shot is to be fired, and the places contiguous thereto, with a locked safety lamp, and has found such places to be safe. After a shot has been fired, the mine examiner shall immediately return to the place at which such shot has been fired and satisfy himself that no dangerous condition has been produced by the firing of such shot.

(6) Before any shot is fired all mining shall be removed and a sufficient time allowed for the dust to settle.

(7) It shall be the duty of the mine examiner before a shot is fired to satisfy himself that the hole is properly placed and cleaned before the explosive is placed therein, and that such hole is not overcharged and is properly tamped, so as to fill the hole to the face, with clay or other non-inflammable material approved by the deputy inspector.

(8) Before any shot is fired in any working face which is not more than 15 feet from an approaching working face, and before any shot is fired in any working place that is not more than 15 feet from any accessible place from which coal has been taken, it shall be the duty of the mine examiner to station a man in the adjoining place, in a position of safety, to prevent any person from entering said place until after such shot has been fired.

(9) It shall be unlawful for the mine examiner or any other person to unstem any shot that has failed to explode; and in every such case a new hole must be bored at a safe distance from the loaded hole. The distance between the two holes shall not at any point be less than six inches.

(10) The inspector, upon representation made to him in writing by the owner, agent or manager of any mine, that the finding of inflammable or noxious gas in quantity sufficient to show in a safety lamp on three consecutive days was exceptional in the case of any place mentioned in subsection (4) of this rule, and that the mine is damp, may cause an examination of such mine to be made by the deputy inspector, and if the deputy inspector approves, may order that the provisions of said subsection (4) of this rule shall apply to such place only if inflammable or noxious gas is found in quantity sufficient to show in a safety lamp on two consecutive days in each of two consecutive weeks.

(11) In the application of this rule to any mine which is divided into districts in such a manner that each district has an independent in-take and return air-way from the main air-course and the main return air-course, each of such districts shall be considered a separate mine.

(12) Unless tipped with copper or copper alloy, no iron or steel pricker or needle shall be used in charging holes for blasting with gunpowder or other explosive in a mine, nor shall any iron or steel tamping rod or stemmer, unless tipped as aforesaid, be used in a mine for ramming the charge or the tamping or stemming on the gunpowder or other explosive, nor shall any person have in his possession in a mine underground any iron or steel pricker or needle, tamping iron or stemmer, unless tipped as aforesaid.

(13) In construing this rule the term "permitted explosive" means an explosive having the same constituents mixed in the same proportions and manufactured in the same manner as an explosive that has passed the tests of the British Government or the United States Bureau of Mines and declared to be by such authorities a "permitted explosive." Where such explosive is used or intended to be used in any mine to which this Act applies, the purchaser shall satisfy the inspector that such explosive is in accordance with this section.

Travelling Roads and Haulage.

Rule 9. Every underground plane on which persons travel, which is self-acting or worked by an engine, windlass or gin, shall be provided (if exceeding thirty yards in length) with some proper means of communicating distinct and definite signals between the stopping places and the ends of the plane, and shall be provided in every case, at intervals of not more than twenty yards, with sufficient manholes or places of refuge, properly whitewashed; and every back or counter-balance used for raising or lowering coal or other minerals, if exceeding thirty yards in length, unless exempted in writing by the inspector, shall be provided with some proper means of communicating distinct and definite signals between the lower end and between the entrance of every working place thereon for the time being in work, and the upper end thereof.

Rule 10. There shall be provided at every slope, underground plane and incline, whether self-acting or otherwise, all such necessary stop-blocks, derailing switches, drags or other suitable apparatus to prevent accidents.

Rule 11. (1) Every road on which persons travel underground where the produce of the mine in transit exceeds ten tons in any one hour over any part thereof, and where the load is drawn by a horse or other animal, shall be provided, where there is not standing room of at least two feet at intervals of not more than twenty-five yards, with sufficient manholes, or with places of refuge, and every such place of refuge shall be as near as may be three feet in width and not less than four feet in depth and not less than the height of the haulage road at the point where the hole is, or six feet, whichever is the less.

(2) Where the load is drawn by machinery or other mechanical appliances, and there is not standing room of at least two feet, there shall be provided at intervals of not more than fifteen yards sufficient manholes or places of refuge, and every such place of refuge shall be as near as may be three feet in width and not less than four feet in depth and not less than the height of the haulage road at the point where the hole is, or six feet, whichever is the less.

(3) Whenever in the opinion of the inspector or deputy inspector the precautions required by this rule with respect to roads over which the product of the mine is drawn by machinery or other mechanical appliance are not sufficient for the safety of the men travelling thereon, he shall require the owner, agent or manager of such mine to provide a separate travelling road.

Rule 12. Every manhole and every place of refuge shall be constantly kept clear and frequently white-washed, and no person shall place anything in a manhole or place of refuge so as to prevent access thereto.

Shafts and Windings.

Rule 13. All entrances to any place in a mine not in actual course of working and extension shall be properly fenced across the whole width of such entrance, so as to prevent persons inadvertently entering the same; and every person who enters any place so fenced off, or any place having a danger signal board displayed at the entrance thereof, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars.

Rule 14. For the purpose of the examination of every mine before the commencement of work in a shift, one or more stations shall be appointed at the entrance to the mine, or at the entrance to the different parts of the same mine as the case requires, and no workman shall pass beyond any such station until that part of the mine beyond the particular station has been examined and reported by the mine examiner to be safe.

Rule 15. The top of every shaft which for the time being is out of use or used only as an air shaft, shall be kept securely fenced, and in every such case the owner, agent or manager shall notify the deputy inspector, who shall report to the Commissioner as to the sufficiency of such fencing, and the Commissioner may require such further precautions for safety to be taken as may be deemed necessary. The deputy inspector shall inspect such fencing at least once in every three months and shall take such measures as are required to secure compliance with this Rule.

Rule 16. The top and all entrances between the top and bottom of every working, ventilating or pumping shaft shall be properly fenced; but this shall not be taken to forbid the temporary removal of the fence for the purpose of repairs or other operations if proper precautions are used.

Rule 17. Where the natural strata are not safe, every working or pumping shaft shall be securely cased, lined or otherwise made secure.

Rule 18. When one portion of the shaft is used for the ascent and descent of persons by ladders or otherwise, and another portion is used for raising the material gotten in the mine the first mentioned portion shall be either cased or otherwise securely fenced off from the last mentioned portion, or no person shall be permitted to travel in the shaft when the shaft is working.

Rule 19. In every mine in which men are raised or lowered in a shaft, there shall be attached to the cage used for that purpose such safety appliances as may be agreed upon between the owner or manager of such mine and the inspector.

Signalling.

Rule 20. Every working shaft used for the purpose of drawing minerals or for the lowering or raising of persons shall, if exceeding fifty yards in depth, and not exempted in writing by the inspector, be provided with guides and some proper means of communicating distinct and definite signals from the bottom of the shaft, and from every entrance for the time being in work, between the surface and the bottom of the shaft to the surface, and from the surface to the bottom of the shaft and to every entrance for the time being in use between the surface and the bottom of the shaft.

Support of Roof and Sides.

Rule 21. The roof and sides of every travelling road and working place shall be made secure, and every travelling road shall be of reasonable height and width, having regard to the nature of the workings, and no person, unless appointed for the purpose of exploring or repairing, shall be required or allowed to travel or work in any such travelling road or working place which is not so made secure.

Rule 22. (1) In every coal mine, unless otherwise directed by the inspector, the coal and the roof in every working place, during the operation of boring, holing or undercutting, shall be safely supported by sprags or wooden props or other support, and every miner or other person or persons charged with this duty neglecting to strictly comply with this provision shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and may, in addition to any other penalties to which he may be liable, have his certificate, if the holder of one, temporarily suspended or cancelled.

(2) A sufficient supply of timber or other material suitable for supports shall at all times be kept at suitable and practically convenient places.

(3) It shall be the duty of every underground manager, overman and mine examiner employed in the daily underground operations of any mine to see that the provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) of this rule are strictly carried out, and neglect to do so will be an offence against this Act.

(4) It shall be the duty of the deputy inspector for the district to forthwith report to the Commissioner the name of all persons holding certificates who are convicted of any offence under the provisions of this rule.

Provisions as to Machinery.

Rule 23. A single-linked chain shall not be used for lowering or raising persons in any working shaft or place except for the short coupling chain attached to the cage or load.

Rule 24. A sufficient cover overhead shall be used for every cage or tub employed in lowering or raising persons in any working shaft, except where the cage or tub is worked by a windlass, or where persons are employed at work in the shaft, or where a written exemption is given by the inspector.

Rule 25. There shall be on the drum of every machine used for lowering or raising persons such flanges, or horns, and also, if the drum is conical, such other appliances as are sufficient to prevent the rope from slipping.

Rule 26. There shall be attached to every engine used for lowering or raising persons, an adequate brake and also a proper indicator (in addition to any mark on the rope) showing the person who works the machine the position of the cage or load in the shaft.

Rule 27. (1) Where there is a shaft or an inclined plane or level in any mine, whether for the purpose of an entrance to such mine, or a communication from one part to another part in such mine, and persons are taken up or down or along such shaft, plane or level by means of any windlass or gin driven or worked by an animal, or by manual labour, no person shall be allowed to have charge of such windlass or gin, or any part of the machinery, ropes, chains or tackle connected therewith, unless he is a male person of at least eighteen years of age.

(2) Where the windlass or gin is worked by an animal, the person under whose direction the driver of the animal acts shall for the purpose of this rule be deemed to be the person in charge of the windlass or gin; but such driver shall not be under fourteen years of age. This sub-section of this rule shall not apply to operations known in the mines as counter or back balances.

Rule 28. Every fly-wheel and all exposed and dangerous parts of the machinery used in or about the mine shall be and be kept securely fenced.

Rule 29. In any mine, which is usually entered by means of machinery, a person holding a certificate of competency as a stationary engineer under this Act, and not less than twenty-one years of age, shall be appointed for the purpose of working the machinery which is employed in lowering and raising persons therein, and shall attend for such purpose during the whole time that any person is below ground in the mine.

Rule 30. Every steam boiler shall be provided with a proper steam gauge, and water gauge, to show respectively the pressure of steam and height of water in the boiler, and with a proper safety valve.

Inspection as to Safety.

Rule 31. A competent person or persons, holding certificates of competency from the Board, who shall be appointed for the purpose, shall, once at least in every twenty-four hours, examine the state of the external parts of the machinery and the state of the head-gear, working-places, levels, planes, ropes, chains, cages and other works of the mine which are in actual use, and once at least in every week shall examine the state of the shafts by which persons shall ascend or descend, and the guides or conductors therein, and shall make a true report of the result of such examination; and such report shall be recorded in a book kept at the mine for the purpose and shall be signed by the person who made the examination.

Withdrawal of Workmen.

Rule 32. (1) If at any time it is found by the person for the time being in charge of the mine, or any part thereof, that by reason of inflammable or noxious gases prevailing in such mine, or any part thereof, or from any cause whatever, the mine or the said part is dangerous, every workman shall be withdrawn from the mine, or such part thereof as is so found dangerous and a competent person, who shall be appointed for the purpose, shall inspect the mine or such part thereof as is so found dangerous, and if the danger arises from inflammable or noxious gas, shall inspect the same, with a locked safety lamp, and in every case shall make a true report of the condition of such mine or part thereof; and a workman shall not, except in so far as is necessary for inquiring into the cause of danger or for the removal thereof, or for exploration, be re-admitted into the mine, or such part thereof as was so found dangerous, until the same is stated by such report not to be dangerous.

(2) Every such report shall be recorded in a book, which shall be kept at the office of the manager of the mine for the purpose, and shall be signed by the person who made the inspection.

Rule 33. Properly constructed ambulances or stretchers, with splints and bandages, shall be kept at the mine, ready for immediate use in case of accident.

Rule 34 (1) In every mine where by reason of its depth or the extent of its working, egress to the surface cannot be conveniently obtained, there shall be provided suitable places for sanitary uses, which shall be deodorized and constantly maintained in a sanitary condition, and suitable outhouses for sanitary purposes shall be similarly maintained in convenient positions contiguous to the surface works thereof. It shall be incumbent on the owner, agent or manager of such mine to maintain all bunk-houses, cook-houses and wash-houses controlled by the said owner, agent or manager in such cleanly and sanitary condition as may be approved by the inspector.

(2) If more than twelve persons are ordinarily employed in the mine below ground, sufficient accommodation shall be provided above ground near the principal entrance of the mine, and not in the engine house or boiler house, for enabling the persons employed in the mine to conveniently dry and change their dresses.

Miscellaneous.

Rule 35. A ladder permanently used for the ascent or descent of persons in the mine shall not be fixed in a vertical or over-hanging position, and shall be inclined at the most convenient angle which the space in which the ladder is fixed allows; and every such ladder shall have substantial platforms at intervals of not more than twenty feet.

Rule. 36. No person shall wilfully damage, or without proper authority, remove or render useless, any fence, fencing, casing, ladder, platform, steam gauge, water gauge, cover, chain, flange, horn-brake, indicator, lining guide, means of signalling, signal, safety-valve or other appliance or thing provided for any mine in compliance with this Act.

Rule 37. Every person shall observe such directions with respect to working as are given to him with a view to comply with these rules or the special rules in this Act provided for.

Rule 38. Where a place is likely to contain a dangerous accumulation of water, or noxious or inflammable gas the workings approaching such place shall not exceed eight feet in width or height, and there shall constantly be kept at a sufficient distance, not less than five yards in advance, at least one bore-hole near the centre of the working and sufficient flank bore-holes on each side.

Rule 39. Every person who contravenes or does not comply with any of the general rules prescribed by this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act; and in event of any contravention of or non-compliance with any of such general rules in the case of any mine by any person whomsoever being proved, the owner, agent and manager shall each be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves that he had taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance by publishing and to the best of his power enforcing the said rules as regulations for the working of the mine.

Rule 40. (1) Wherever required by the inspector a barometer and thermometer shall be placed above ground in a conspicuous place near the entrance to every mine, and in every such mine a hygrometer shall be placed below ground in a conspicuous position near a shaft or outlet, both in the main intake air-way and in the main return air-way.

(2) The instruments to be required under this rule shall be read at such intervals as are prescribed by the inspector of mines by the manager, or some competent person appointed by him, and the readings so taken at the prescribed intervals shall be entered in a book to be kept at such mine for the purpose.

PART VI.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

General Rules.

51. The following general rules shall be observed so far as is reasonably practicable, in every mine, respecting stationary engineers to which this Act applies:—

Rule 1. Every engineer in charge of a steam plant of not less than one hundred and not more than three hundred horse-power shall be the holder of at least a third-class certificate.

Rule 2. Every engineer in charge of a steam plant of not less than three hundred and not more than eight hundred horse-power shall be the holder of at least a second-class certificate.

Rule 3. Every engineer in charge of a steam plant of over eight hundred horse-power shall be the holder of a first-class certificate.

Rule 4. Every person serving as engineer in charge of an engine of not more than three hundred horse-power, used for lowering persons in and out of a mine, or for moving men therein, shall be the holder of at least a third-class certificate, and if such engine is over three hundred horse-power, the person serving as engineer in charge thereof shall be the holder of at least a second-class certificate.

Rule 5. Every person employed as engineer in charge of an engine of not less than seventy-five horse-power used for the purpose of ventilating a mine, and upon the movement or operation of which the safety of any person or persons depends, shall be the holder of at least a third-class certificate.

Rule 6. On every steam plant of five hundred horse-power or over there shall be on duty in the fire room at all times, while all or any part of the plant is under steam, a licensed fireman or an engineer who holds at least a third-class certificate.

Rule 7. Every person employed as engineer in charge of an engine or other machine of and less than twenty-five horse-power, used for the purpose of ventilating a mine, and upon the movement or operation of which the safety of any person or persons depends, shall be the holder of at least a third-class certificate of competency, or a certificate of service equivalent thereto.

Rule 8. On every steam plant of five hundred horse-power or over there shall be on duty in the fire room at all times, while all or any part of the plant is under steam, a licensed fireman or an engineer who holds at least a third-class certificate of competency or a certificate of service equivalent thereto.

Rule 9. (1) Every engineer in charge of an engine or engines of a combined horse power of not more than two hundred shall be the holder of at least a third-class certificate of competency as a stationary engineer. 1919, c. 74, s. 4.

(2) Every engineer in charge of an engine or engines of a combined horse-power of not more than eight hundred or not less than two hundred shall be the holder of at least a second-class certificate of competency as a stationary engineer. 1919, c. 74, s. 4.

(3) Every engineer in charge of an engine or engines of a combined horse-power of more than eight hundred shall be the holder of a first-class certificate of competency as a stationary engineer. 1919, c. 74, s. 4.

Rule 10. All certificates of service and of competency and of licenses to firemen granted by the Commissioner on the recommendation of the Board of Examiners before the coming into force of this Act, shall be of the same force and effect as if granted under the provisions of this Act, and are hereby ratified and confirmed and declared to be valid.

Rule 11. Every owner, agent or manager of a mine who violates or fails to comply with, or permits any person to violate or fail to comply with, any of the provisions of Rules 1 to 10, both inclusive, of this section shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred dollars.

Rule 12. In case of any dispute as to the horse-power of any engine the decision of the Commissioner shall be final.

Rule 13. On the recommendation of any member of the Board appointed under the provisions of this Act, the Commissioner may grant permits to persons to take charge of a steam plant, and to take charge of stationary engines for periods to be limited in such permits, and such permits shall for the time therein specified be in all respects equivalent to certificates of service of competency for the purposes mentioned in the same. But no such permit shall be valid for more than sixty days after the date fixed for the examination of candidates for stationary engineers, and no such permit shall be granted a second time to the same person.

Rule 14. Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this Act, the Commissioner, on the recommendation of the Board, may grant to any person who does not hold a certificate of competency under this Act, a special permit, authorizing such person to operate engines of such of the following classes only, as may be specified in the permit, namely:—

- (a) hoisting engines;
- (b) compressor engines;
- (c) fan engines,

on such terms and conditions, if any, as are deemed expedient.

The Board shall, before making any such recommendation, satisfy themselves either by the applicant passing such examination or otherwise as the Board requires, that he is competent, and a fit and proper person to operate engines, of the class or classes in respect of which such special permit is applied for. 1920, c. 70, s. 1.

PART VII.

SPECIAL RULES.

52. (1) The owner, agent or manager of any mine may make such special rules as are deemed necessary for the conduct and guidance of the persons acting in the management of such mine or employed in or about the mine, and as under the particular state and circumstances of such mine appear best calculated to prevent accidents, and to provide for the safety and proper discipline of the persons employed in or about the mine.

(2) Such special rules when approved by the Commissioner shall be signed by the inspector and shall be of the same force and effect in and about the mine to which they apply to the same extent as if they were enacted in this Act; if any person who is bound to observe the special rules established for any mine, acts in contravention of or fails to comply with any of such special rules, he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act; the owner, agent and manager of such mine shall be guilty of an offence against this Act if he contravenes or fails to comply with any of such special rules, unless he proves that he had taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention or non-compliance by publishing, and to the best of his power enforcing, such rules as regulations for the working of the mine.

53. Before being transmitted to the Commissioner for approval, the proposed special rules shall be posted and kept posted for a period of not less than two weeks in at least two conspicuous places at the mine to which they apply, and where all persons affected thereby may have access thereto, and shall be accompanied by a notice signed by the owner, agent or manager of the mine, stating that any objection to any such proposed rules, on the ground of anything contained therein or omitted therefrom, may be sent by any of the persons employed in the mine to the inspector of mines at his address at the Mines Office, in Halifax, or to the person who signs the said notice. The owner, agent or manager shall, when transmitting the said proposed special rules to the Commissioner, attach thereto a certificate stating that the said proposed rules accompanied by said notice have been so posted up, and shall at the same time transmit to the Commissioner any objections that have been received by him from any of the persons employed in the said mine and who are affected thereby.

(2) If the owner, agent or manager, makes any false statement with respect to the posting up of the rules and notices he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) Every person who pulls down, injures or defaces any proposed special rules or notice when posted up in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, or any notice posted up in pursuance of the special rules, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

54. (1) If the Commissioner is of opinion that the proposed special rules so transmitted or any of them, do not sufficiently provide for the prevention of dangerous accidents in the mine, or for the safety or convenience of the persons employed in or about the mine, or are unreasonable, he may, within forty days after the rules are received by the inspector, object to the rules, and propose to the owner, agent or manager in writing any modifications in the rules by way either of omission, alteration, substitution or addition.

(2) If the owner, agent or manager does not, within twenty days after the modifications, omissions, alterations, substitutions or additions proposed by the Commissioner are transmitted to him, object in writing to the same, the proposed special rules, with such modifications, omissions, alterations, substitutions or additions, shall be made by the Commissioner and shall be effective as though they were contained in the original proposed special rules.

(3) In case of any dispute arising between the Commissioner and the owner, agent or manager of any mine, as to any modifications, omissions alterations, substitutions or additions to the proposed special rules made by the Commissioner and to which the said parties are unable to agree, the said dispute shall be referred to the Governor in Council by the Commissioner, and the decision of the Governor in Council as to said dispute shall be final.

(4) The modifications, alterations, substitutions or additions made by the Commissioner under subsection (1) herof shall be transmitted by the Commissioner to the Deputy Inspector of Mines in the district in which the mine to which they apply is situated. The said deputy inspector shall post in at least two conspicuous places at the said mine and keep posted for a period of ten days a copy of the said modifications, alterations, substitutions or additions and shall also post a notice at the same time, stating that any objections to said modifications, alterations, substitutions or additions may be sent to him by any persons employed in the mine. It shall be the duty of the said deputy inspector to transmit to the Commissioner all such objections immediately upon receipt thereof.

55. After the special rules are in force under this Act in any mine, the owner, agent or manager of such mine may, from time to time, propose in writing to the inspector, for the approval of the Commissioner, any amendment of such special rules, and the provisions of this Act with respect to the original special rules shall apply to all such amendments and new special rules in like manner, as nearly as may be, as they apply to the original special rules.

56. The inspector may, from time to time, propose in writing to the owner, agent or manager of a mine in which there are no special rules, and to the owner, agent or manager of a mine in which there are special rules, any new special rules, or any amendment to the special rules, and the provisions, of this Act with respect to a proposal of the Commissioner for modifying the special rules transmitted by the owner, agent or manager of a mine, shall apply to all such proposed special rules, new special rules and amendments in like manner, as nearly as may be, as they apply to such proposals.

Rules to be Supplied.

57. (1) For the purpose of making known the provisions of this Act and of any amendments thereto, to all persons employed in and about a mine, a prescribed abstract of the Act or of such parts of the same as are deemed necessary shall be supplied free of charge by the owner, agent or manager of any mine to any person on his being employed for the first time at any mine, and to any person employed in such mine who applies for the same.

(2) Copies of said abstract, so prescribed, shall, for the purposes of this section be supplied free of charge to the owner, agent or manager of any mine who applies for the same.

(3) Copies of any special rules shall be furnished under this section at the expense of the owner, agent or manager required to furnish the same.

(4) The owner, agent or manager of every mine shall cause a copy of all special rules, applicable to such mine, signed by the inspector and owner, agent or manager, to be posted up in legible characters in some conspicuous place at or near the mine, where they may be conveniently read by the persons employed, and so often as the same become defaced, obliterated or destroyed, shall cause them to be renewed with all reasonable despatch.

(5) Any owner, agent or manager who fails to comply with this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves that he has taken all reasonable means by enforcing the observance of this section to prevent such non-compliance.

58. The inspector shall, when required, certify a copy which is shown to his satisfaction to be a true copy of any special rules which for the time being are in force under this Act in any mine; and a copy so certified shall be evidence (but not to the exclusion of other proof) of such rules, and of the fact that they have been signed by the inspector and brought into force under this Act.

PART VIII.

SUBMARINE AREAS.

59. (1) In the working of coal or stratified deposits in submarine areas, the following provisions shall apply:—

(a) No submarine seam of coal or stratified deposits shall be wrought under a less cover than one hundred and eighty feet of solid measures; provided, that the owner or lessee of any such area may drive passage ways to win the mineral to be wrought under a less cover than one hundred and eighty feet, but not less than one hundred feet of solid measures;

(b) A barrier of the mineral wrought of not less than fifty yards, twenty-five yards on both sides of the boundary lines of every lease, shall be left unwrought between the workings of every submarine seam;

(c) Where there is less than five hundred feet of solid measures overlying the seam or stratified deposit wrought, the workings of every such submarine area shall be laid off in districts of an area not greater than half of one square mile, and the barrier enclosing each separate district shall not be less than thirty yards thick, and shall not be pierced by more than four passage ways having a sectional area not greater than nine feet wide and six feet high; provided that the inspector may, if he deems it necessary, permit the said passage ways to be driven with a cross section, not exceeding sixty square feet;

(d) No district shall have its length when parallel to the general trend of the adjoining shore greater than one mile;

(e) A proposed system of working the mineral in each submarine area shall before work is commenced be submitted to and approved of by the inspector; and no change shall be made in such approved system without the written sanction of the inspector;

(f) The opening of a new lift or level in a mine already working in a submarine area shall be deemed the commencement of a new winning within the meaning of the section.

(2) The owner, agent or manager of any mine to which this section applies, who contravenes or fails to comply with any provision of this section, shall each be liable to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, and if the offence complained of is continued or repeated after a written notice has been given by the inspector to such owner, agent or manager, of any such offence having been committed the Supreme Court, or a judge thereof, whether any other proceeding have or have not been taken, may, upon application by the Attorney-General, prohibit by injunction the working of such mine; provided that the Commissioner may waive or modify any of the provisions of this section when, on the report of the inspector, it appears to his satisfaction that valuable coal areas cannot be otherwise wrought or mined.

PART IX.

NOTICES.

60. All notices required by this Act shall be in writing or print, or partly in writing and partly in print; and all notices and documents required by this Act to be served or sent by or to the Commissioner or inspector may be either delivered personally or served and sent by post by a prepaid registered letter; and if served or sent by post, shall be deemed to have been served and received respectively at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of post; and in proving such service or sending it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice was properly addressed and put in the post.

Penalties.

61. Every person employed in or about a mine other than an owner, agent or manager, who is guilty of an act or omission which in the case of an owner, agent or manager would be an offence against this Act, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

62. (1) Every owner, agent or manager, underground manager, overman or mine examiner, who is guilty of an offence against this Act shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding eighty dollars, except as in this Act otherwise provided.

(2) If such offence is committed or continued after notice thereof given by the Inspector a further penalty of five dollars for each violation or for each day that such violation continues after such notice, shall be imposed.

63. Every person other than an agent, owner, manager, underground manager, overman or mine examiner who is guilty of an offence against this Act shall be liable to a penalty of not less than five or more than fifty dollars.

64. No prosecution shall be instituted against any owner, agent, manager, underground manager, overman or mine examiner for an offence against this Act, except:—

- (a) by the Inspector; or
- (b) with the consent in writing of the Commissioner; or
- (c) by some person appointed by the Commissioner; or
- (d) by some person employed in or about the mine in respect to which the offence was committed.

65. If it appears that a boy was employed on the representation of his parent or guardian that he was of the age at which his employment would not be a contravention of this Act, and under the belief and good faith that he was of such age, the owner, agent or manager of the mine shall, notwithstanding the boy was not of such age, be exempt from any penalty in respect to such employment, and the parent or guardian shall, for the misrepresentation, be deemed guilty of an offence against this Act.

66. In any prosecution or other proceeding against an owner, agent, manager, underground manager, overman or mine examiner for an offence against this Act, such owner, agent, manager, underground manager, overman or mine examiner shall be discharged if he proves to the satisfaction of the tribunal before which the same is tried that he took all reasonable means to prevent the commission of such offence.

67. Any complaint or action made or brought in pursuance of this Act shall be made or brought within six months from the time when the matter of such complaint or suit came to the knowledge of the prosecutor.

68. Where a penalty is imposed under this Act for neglecting to send a notice of any explosion or accident or for any offence against this Act which has occasioned loss of life or personal injury, the Commissioner may direct such penalty to be paid to or distributed among the persons injured and the relatives of any persons whose death has been occasioned by such explosion, accident or offence, or among some of them; provided, that such persons did not in his opinion occasion or contribute to the explosion or accident and did not commit and were not parties to the commission of any offence.

69. Except as in this Act otherwise provided, all certificates of service and competency granted before the coming into force of this Act shall be of the same force and effect as if granted under the provisions of this Act.

70. None of the provisions of this Act, relating to stationary engineers, shall apply to persons working engines underground whose power is furnished by compressed air or electricity.

71. The Governor in Council may make rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act or "The Mines Act," for the carrying out of any of the provisions of this Act, and such rules and regulations shall, after the publication thereof in the "Royal Gazette," have the force of law. All such rules and regulations shall be laid before the House of Assembly immediately if the House is then in session, or if not, within ten days after the opening of the next session of the Legislature.

72. The Acts and parts of Acts referred to in the schedule hereto are repealed to the extent in such schedule stated.

Licensing of Chauffeurs.

Chapter 12 with amendments. 2. (d) The expression “licensed chauffeur” means any chauffeur licensed as in this Act provided; 1919, c. 76, s. 1.

32. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the [Provincial] Secretary shall, in a book or index to be kept by him for the purpose, register every person as a chauffeur who is of the full age of eighteen years and who,—

(a) files in the Secretary's office on a form to be furnished by him for the purpose a statement verified by affidavit or by a declaration under the Canada Evidence Act, giving such person's name, address and age and the trade name and motive power of the motor vehicles he is able to operate properly, and such other information as the Secretary requires, and also satisfies the Secretary by a testimonial or otherwise that such person is careful, temperate, of good character, and also satisfies him that he has passed an examination by a person authorized by the Secretary as to his ability to operate motor vehicles properly. Amended 1919, c. 76, s. 10 (1)..

(b) having been previously licensed as a chauffeur under this Act, and his license being no longer in force, applies for such license, and, if required by the Secretary, files the said statement and satisfies the Secretary as aforesaid. 1919, c. 76, s. 10 (2).

(2) The license of every chauffeur shall expire at midnight on the thirty-first day of December following the date of such license. 1919, c. 16, s. 10 (3).

(3) The Secretary shall, on such registration, issue to the licensed chauffeur a license and a numbered badge or button. Every chauffeur's license shall be numbered and dated and shall state the date on which the same will expire, shall have affixed thereto a photograph of himself furnished by the chauffeur and satisfactory to the Secretary, and shall contain the name of the chauffeur and his address and such other things as the Secretary deems expedient. On such numbered badge or button there shall be stamped, or otherwise displayed in arabic numerals the calendar year to which the said license relates, and there may be stamped or otherwise displayed such other things as the Secretary deems expedient. Every such license and badge or button shall be and remain the property of the Crown and shall be returned to the Secretary whenever required by him. 1919, c. 76, s. 10 (4).

33. (1) No person shall, as chauffeur, operate or have under his control or in his charge any motor vehicle on any public highway unless each and every of the following requirements is complied with, namely,—

(a) such person shall be a licensed chauffeur;

(b) he shall carry with him when operating a motor vehicle a license issued by the Secretary and there shall be conspicuously displayed on his clothing a badge or button issued by the Secretary;

(c) said license and badge or button shall each be one issued respecting such person;

(d) said license and badge or button shall each be one relating to the calendar year in which the motor vehicle is so operated.

(2) If any person as a chauffeur operates a motor vehicle on any public highway and fails on request of any peace officer to produce then and there for his inspection a license issued as in this Act provided for such person, he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) If any person operates a motor vehicle on any public highway it shall be prima facie evidence that such person as a chauffeur so operated the said motor vehicle. 1919, c. 76, s. 11.

34. No licensed chauffeur shall wilfully permit any other person to use the license or to wear the badge or button of such licensed chauffeur. 1919, c. 76, s. 12.

35. No person shall display or use the license or the badge or button issued to any other person as a licensed chauffeur, or any badge or button liable to be confounded with the badge or button of a licensed chauffeur. 1919, c. 76, s. 13.

36. No person shall allow or permit any motor vehicle owned by him or under his control or in his charge to be operated on any public highway by any person as a chauffeur unless such chauffeur is a licensed chauffeur, or by any person in violation of any of the provisions of this Act. 1919, c. 76, s. 14.

37. (2) Any person who violates any of the provisions of sections 12 and 33, respectively, of this Act shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable, for the first offence, to a penalty not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars; for the second offence to a penalty not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and for the third offence or any subsequent offence to a penalty not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or to imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, or to both.

(3) Any person who violates any of the provisions of sections . . . 34, 35, and 36, respectively, of this Act, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable for the first offence to a penalty not more than fifty dollars; for the second offence to a penalty not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars; and for the third offence or any subsequent offence to a penalty not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, or to imprisonment not exceeding sixty days or to both.

40. (1) The Secretary may, whenever he deems it expedient, revoke any permit or cancel the license of any licensed chauffeur.

(2) When a permit is so revoked, or a license or registration is so cancelled, the permit or the license and the badge or button, as the case may be, shall forthwith be returned to the Secretary by the person to whom the same was issued. If any person violates the provisions of this subsection he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable to a penalty of not more than fifty dollars.

(3) A certificate under the signature of the Secretary and the seal of the department of the Secretary that a permit has been revoked or that the license of any licensed chauffeur has been cancelled, shall be conclusive evidence that such permit has been duly and lawfully revoked or that such license has been duly and lawfully cancelled, as the case may be, and such certificate shall be received in evidence without proof of such seal or of such signature or of the official character of the person appearing to have signed the same without further proof thereof.

(4) Unless and until the Secretary thinks fit,—

(a) a permit shall not be issued respecting any motor vehicle if a permit respecting the same has been so revoked, and,

(b) a person shall not be licensed as a chauffeur if the license of such person as a licensed chauffeur has been so cancelled. 1919, c. 76, s. 17.

44. (1) The stipendiary magistrate or justice of the peace before whom a person is convicted of an offence under this Act, if the person convicted is required to hold a license under section 33, and does not hold such license, may declare him disqualified to hold such a license for such a time as the stipendiary magistrate or justice of the peace thinks fit, and shall so report with the certificate of the conviction to the Secretary.

(2) If a person convicted holds a license under Section 33, the stipendiary magistrate or justice of the peace shall cause particulars of the conviction, if for an offence against Sections . . . . ., 33, to be endorsed upon said license, and if such conviction is the third conviction shall confiscate such license, and any badge or button issued therewith and shall forward the same with the certificate of the conviction to the Secretary.

(3) The person so convicted, if he holds a license issued under Section 33, shall produce the license within a reasonable time for the purpose of endorsement, and if he fails to do so shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(4) The stipendiary magistrate, or justice of the peace who makes a conviction under this Act, shall within 30 days of any conviction made by him under the provisions of this Act certify the same to the Secretary, setting out the name, address, and description of the person so convicted, the nature of the offence, the number of the permit of the motor vehicle with which the offence was committed, the number of the section of the Act contravened, and if such offence was committed by a person licensed under Section 33, the number of the license and the name, address, and description of his employer, and any other particulars required by the Secretary, and if three such convictions for an offence against Sections 12, 14, 16, 21, 27 and 29 are made against the same person the permit of the motor vehicle with which the offence for which such third conviction was made or committed, or the license issued under Section 33, or both, may be cancelled, and the offender shall not be entitled to a permit or license for the period of two years thereafter. 1920, c. 71, s. 6.

Employers to Furnish Names of Employees to Assessors.

[Chapter 50, Section 13 adds subsection (8) to section 12 of the Public Highways Act, 1917, Chapter 3. The new sub-section provides that employers having at least ten employees liable to the highway tax shall furnish to the city clerk, when so required by him, a list of the names and addresses of such employees.]

STATUTES OF 1919.

Commission of Inquiry respecting Eight-Hour Day.

Chapter 24.—1. The Governor in Council is authorized to appoint a Commission of three members, whose duty it shall be to inquire into and report upon the economic effect of limiting a working day for the workmen employed in the various industries in the Province of Nova Scotia to a period of eight hours in every twenty-four consecutive hours, with special reference to the effect of such limitation upon the following matters:—

- (a) the industries of the Province;
- (b) production;
- (c) wages;
- (d) employment;
- (e) export trade;
- (f) Canadian industries;

regard being had to the different conditions obtaining in different districts, of amount and cost of production.

2. The Commissioners shall have all the powers of a Commission appointed under Chapter 12 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, "Of Inquiries Concerning Public Matters," and Acts in amendment thereof.

[No Commission has yet been appointed under this Act.]

Employment of Women—Inquiry respecting Hours, Wages, etc.—Mothers' Pensions.

Chapter 26.—1. The Governor in Council may appoint such number of persons as he deems expedient, but not less than three, one of whom shall be a woman, to inquire into and concerning and to report on the following matters:—

(a) hours of labour, wages, and working conditions of women employed in industrial occupations;

(b) schemes providing mothers' pensions or allowances and what scheme, if any, would be practicable in this Province.

2. The Commissioners shall have the power of summoning before them any persons as witnesses and of requiring them to give evidence on oath orally or in writing (or on solemn affirmation if they are entitled to affirm in civil matters) and to produce such documents and things as the Commissioners deem requisite to the full investigation of the matters into which they are appointed to inquire.

3. The Commissioners shall have the same power to enforce the attendance of persons as witnesses and to compel them to give evidence and to produce documents and things as is vested in the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof in civil cases and the same privileges and immunities as a Judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

[The Commission appointed under this Act to consider hours of labour, wages and working conditions of women in industry reported in April, 1920, and its recommendations were embodied in the Minimum Wage Act passed at the session of the Legislature in the same year (see page 234 of this Report). This Commission is now investigating Mothers' Pensions and will probably present its report, before the next (1921) session of the Legislature.]

STATUTES OF 1920.

Minimum Wage.

Chapter 11 [not yet in force].—1. This Act may be cited as the Minimum Wage For Women Act, 1920.

2. In this Act unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) The expression "Board" means the Minimum Wage Board hereinafter mentioned;
 (b) The expression "Factory" has the same meaning as in the Nova Scotia Factories Act;
 (c) The expression "Shop" has the same meaning as in Chapter 124, Revised Statutes 1900, entitled "Of the Closing of Shops and the Hours of Labour therein for Children and Young Persons."

(d) The expression "Employer" means any person who in his own behalf or as the manager superintendent, overseer or agent for any person has charge of any factory or any shop and employs persons therein;

(e) The expression "Employee" means any female person who is in receipt of or who is entitled to any compensation for labour or services performed in a factory or shop;

(f) The expression "Wage" or "Wages" means any compensation for the labour or services of an employee.

3. (1) There shall be a board to be called "The Minimum Wage Board."

(2) There shall be five members of the Board, two of whom shall be females.

(3) The members of the Board shall be appointed by the Governor-in-Council and may be paid such compensation for their services and expenses as the Governor-in-Council determines.

(4) The Governor in Council may appoint such clerical and other assistants as is deemed necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

4. (1) The Board shall have authority—

(a) to ascertain and declare what wages are adequate to furnish the necessary cost of living to employees and where not inconsistent with the provisions of the Nova Scotia Factories Act or Chapter 124 Revised Statutes, 1900, what are reasonable hours and proper sanitary conditions and requirements for those employed in factories or in shops, or in any particular factory or in any particular shop, or in any class of factories or in any class of shops;

(b) to establish standards of minimum wages and of hours of employment for such employees;

(c) for the purpose of this section to make all necessary orders.

(2) An order made under the provisions of this Section shall be published in two successive issues of the 'Royal Gazette' and shall become effective on the expiration of thirty days from the date of the first publication.

5. The Board may make all necessary inquiries and investigations, respecting matters and things appertaining to or in any way connected with the subject matter of this Act, and shall for that purpose have all the powers, privileges and immunities of commissioners appointed under the Public Inquiries Act, 1919.

6. A summons for a person or witness may be issued and signed by one or more of the members of the Board, and the same shall be as valid and effectual as if it were issued and signed by all the members of the Board.

7. If any person or witness served with a summons fails to appear according to the tenor thereof the Board or a majority of the members may issue a warrant to bring such person at a time and place to be therein mentioned before the Board to give evidence or produce documents and things or either of them and such warrant shall be obeyed by all constables and peace officers into whose hands it may come.

8. Every employer shall keep a register of the names and addresses and the actual earnings of all his employees and shall permit any member or representative of the Board to inspect and examine the same.

9. In the case of employees who are physically defective, and in the case of employees who are apprentices, the Board may in cases where a minimum wage has been fixed issue to any such employee a special license authorizing her employment in a particular factory or in a particular shop or in a specified class of factories or of shops at a minimum wage to be fixed in the license less than the minimum wage fixed for that factory or that shop or that class of factories or that class of shops. Such license shall be in force for such period as is fixed by the Board.

10. No employer shall discharge or threaten to discharge or in any other manner discriminate against or intimidate an employee because such employee has testified or is about to testify, or because such employer believes that an employee may testify in an investigation or proceeding relative to the enforcement of this Act.

11. Every employer who employs an employee at less than the minimum wage to which she is entitled, or who violates any other provision of this Act, or of any order or regulation of the Board shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty of not less than $25 and not more than $100.

12. If any employee is paid by her employer less than the minimum wage to which she is entitled she may recover in a civil action the full amount of such wage less any amount actually paid by her employer, with such costs as may be allowed by the court, and no agreement made by an employee for less than such minimum wage shall avail as a defence to such action.

13. (1) The Board may make regulations for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

(2) Such regulations shall be published in two successive issues of the 'Royal Gazette' and the same shall come into force and effect on a date named therein, which date shall be subsequent to the second publication thereof.

14. This Act shall apply only to the cities and incorporated towns of Nova Scotia, but from time to time the Governor-in-Council on the recommendation of the Board may order that this Act shall apply to any portion of the Province outside of a city or incorporated town, and thereupon, this Act shall apply to the portion of the Province mentioned in such order.

15. This Act shall come into force on, from and after and not before such day as the Governor in Council orders and declares by proclamation.

Private Employment Offices.

Chapter 13.—1. This Act may be cited as the "Employment Agencies Act."

2. No person, firm, corporation or association shall collect or receive directly or indirectly from or on behalf of any person seeking employment or for whom employment has been secured any fee or compensation for persuading, enticing, inducing, procuring or being instrumental in the persuasion, enticing, inducing or procuring or sending or causing to be sent from or to any place within the Province, to or from any place outside the Province, or between any two places within the Province, any persons seeking employment, or for giving or furnishing information regarding employers seeking employees or employees seeking employment:

3. Every person, firm, corporation or association contravening any of the provisions of Section 2 hereof shall be liable upon summary conviction to a penalty of not less than ten dollars and not more than twenty-five dollars.

4. The Governor in Council may from time to time, by a proclamation, declare that the provisions of Section 2 of this Act shall not apply to any person or class of persons named in said proclamation, and the provisions of said section shall thereupon, so long as said proclamation remains unrevoked, cease to apply to the persons or classes of persons so named.

5. This Act shall take effect on, from and after a day to be issued in a proclamation by the Governor in Council.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

CONSOLIDATED STATUTES OF 1903.

Protection of Employees as Voters.

Chapter 3.—99. If any elector shall . . . by threats or force, intimidate any person to vote or forbear to vote at such election, he shall for every such act forfeit the sum of eighty dollars, and be forever debarred from voting at any election.

Earnings of Married Women.

Chapter 78.—5. Every married woman, whether married before or after the commencement of this Chapter, shall be entitled to have and to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of as her separate property, the wages, earnings, money and property gained or acquired by her in any employment, trade or occupation in which she is engaged or carries on, and in which her husband has no proprietary interest, or gained or acquired by the exercise of any literary, artistic or scientific skill.

Apprenticeship.

Chapter 83.—1. Children under the age of fourteen years may be bound as apprentices until that age by their father, or in case of his death, or incompetency, by their mother or legal guardian, and if illegitimate, by their mother. If they have no parent competent to act, and no guardian, they may bind themselves with the assent of two justices of the county.

2. Minors above the age of fourteen years, not having parents or guardians competent to act, may be bound in the same manner, with their consent expressed in the indenture, and testified by their signing the same; females to the age of eighteen years, or to the time of their marriage within that age, and males to the age of twenty-one years.

3. No minor shall be bound unless by an indenture of two parts, sealed and delivered by both parties, and one part shall be kept by the parent or guardian, when executed by them respectively or deposited with the town clerk or county secretary, for the use of the minor.

4. No indenture shall be binding on the minor after the death of the master, nor shall any indenture be assignable, nor the minor be taken out of the Province, unless with his consent declared in the presence of a justice, and certified by him.

5. The Overseers of the Poor may bind as apprentices the children of any poor person who has become chargeable to the parish, and children whose parents are dead, who have become chargeable themselves, whether they are under or above the age of fourteen years; females to the age of eighteen years, or to the time of their marriage within that age, and males to the age of twenty-one years.

6. Provisions shall be made in every indenture for teaching children to read and write, and to cypher as far as the rule of three, and for religious and other instruction, and such other benefit and allowance to the minor as may be agreed upon; and in case of sickness, for medical attendance, board and care.

7. Before any indenture is finally concluded, the parties shall go before a justice, who shall examine whether the apprentice has any just objection thereto, and certify thereon accordingly; and no indenture shall be deemed executed without such certificate.

8. All considerations of money or other things paid or allowed by the master upon any contract or apprenticeship made in pursuance of this Chapter, shall be paid or secured to the sole use of the apprentice.

9. In the case of the non-performance of the agreement or of cruel or hard usage by the master, any apprentice may apply to two justices, who shall hear the complaint, and if they find sufficient cause, make an order for his discharge, or other relief. If either party be dissatisfied therewith, he may appeal to the next session of the county court, where the matter shall be determined.

10. No person shall sell upon credit to any apprentice, and every action founded on such credit, brought against an apprentice, shall be void.

11. Any person harbouring an apprentice, shall be liable to a penalty of forty dollars, but this shall not interfere with any right of action the master may have in respect of such harbouring.

12. Every apprentice bound by indenture may, at the expiration of his term, demand his discharge. If the master refuses, he may apply to a justice, who shall, after notice, require the reason for such refusal. If no sufficient cause be shown in five days, the justice shall discharge the apprentice.

13. Any two justices may, on the complaint of any master made on oath against an indented apprentice, for absenting himself from service, or touching any miscarriage, or illbehaviour in his service, issue a warrant to bring the apprentice before them to hear the complaint, and punish the apprentice by commitment to the common gaol not exceeding one month.

14. Parents or other persons who have bound minors, shall have a right to inquire into their condition and treatment, and protect them from the cruelty of, or any other violation of their contract, by their master.

Railways—Definition of Terms.

Chapter 91.—2. Where the words following occur in this Chapter, they shall be construed in the manner hereinafter mentioned, unless a contrary intention appears:—

(1) "The Special Act" shall be construed to mean any Act authorizing the construction of a railway, and with which this Chapter is incorporated.

3. Where the following words occur, both in this Chapter and the special Act, they shall be construed in the manner hereinafter mentioned, unless a contrary intention appears:—

(2) "The Company" shall mean the company or party authorized by the Special Act to construct the railway.

(6) "Highways" shall mean all public roads, streets, squares, lanes, and other public ways and communications.

(11) "The Railway" shall mean any railway which the company has authority to construct or operate, and shall include all stations, depots, wharves, property and works connected therewith, and also any railway bridge or other structure which any company is authorized to construct under a special Act.

Railways—Application of Act.

Chapter 91.—4. Where not otherwise expressed, this section and the following sections to section 33 inclusive, shall apply to every railway which is subject to the legislative authority of the Legislature of this Province, and is authorized to be constructed by any special Act passed in or after the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, and shall also apply to every railway company which shall have heretofore duly elected to become subject to section 4 of the Act of Assembly 54 Victoria, Chapter 18; and shall also apply to every railway company which shall elect to become subject to this section by serving a written notice of such election under its seal upon the Provincial Secretary, whose duty it shall be, at the expense of the company, to publish a notice of such election in the 'Royal Gazette' for at least four consecutive issues immediately subsequent to such election; and the said sections of this Chapter from this section to section 33 inclusive shall be deemed to be incorporated with every such special Act, or with the Act incorporating said company so making such election; and all provisions of such sections so incorporated, unless they are expressly varied or excepted by such special Act, shall apply to the undertaking, authorized thereby, so far as applicable to the undertaking, and shall, as well as the clauses and provisions of every other Act incorporated with such special Act, form a part of such special Act, and be construed together therewith as forming one Act.

Railway Bridges, Tunnels, etc.

Chapter 91.—18. The highways and bridges shall be regulated as follows:—

(5) Whenever a bridge or any other erection or structure, or tunnel shall be constructed over or on a railway, or whenever it shall become necessary to reconstruct any highway bridge, or other erection or structure, or tunnel already built and under or through which it is proposed to construct a railway, or to make large repairs to the same, such bridges or erections, structures or tunnels, and the approaches thereto, if necessary, shall be constructed or reconstructed by and at the cost of the railway company or other owner of bridge erections, or structures, or tunnels, as the case may be, and shall be so constructed, and at all times be maintained at a sufficient height from the surface of the rails of the railway to admit of an open and clear headway of not less than seven feet between the top of the highest freight cars then running on the railway and the lowest beams, members or portions of such bridge, or other erection or tunnel, and thereafter any railway company, before using higher freight cars than those running on their railway at the time of the construction or reconstruction of or large repairs to such bridge, or other erection, or structure, or tunnel, shall, after having first obtained the consent of the municipality or of the owners of such highway bridge, or other erection or structure, or tunnel, raise the said bridge or other erection or structure or tunnel and the approaches thereto, if necessary, at the costs and charges of the railway company, so as to admit as aforesaid an open and clear headway of not less than seven feet over the highest freight car then about to be used on the railway.

Railway Employees to wear Badges—Negligence of Railway Employees.

Chapter-91.—29 (1) Every servant of the undertaking employed in a passenger train or at a station for passengers shall wear upon his hat or cap a badge which shall indicate his office, and he shall not without such badge be entitled to demand or receive from any passenger any fare or ticket, or to exercise any of the powers of his office, or to meddle or interfere with any passenger or his baggage or property.

(8) Every locomotive engine shall be furnished with a bell of at least thirty pounds weight and with a steam whistle.

(9) The bell shall be rung, or the whistle sounded, at the distance of at least eighty rods from the place where the railway crosses any highway, and be kept ringing or be sounded at short intervals until the engine has crossed such highway, under a penalty of eight dollars for every neglect thereof, to be paid by the company, who shall also be liable for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such neglect, one-half of which penalty and damages shall be chargeable to and collected by the company from the engineer having charge of such engine neglecting to sound the whistle or ring the bell as aforesaid.

Transportation of Explosives.

[Chapter 91, section 29 (12) and (13) deals, with the transportation of explosives.]

Railways—Actions for Damages.

Chapter 91.—30 (1). All actions for indemnity for damage or injury sustained by reason of the railway shall be instituted within one year next after the time of the supposed damage sustained, or if there be a continuation of damage, then within one year next after the doing or committing such damage ceases, and not afterwards; and the defendants may plead "not guilty by Statute," and give this Chapter and the special Act, and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and may prove that the same was done in pursuance of and by authority of this Chapter, and the special Act.

Railway Companies not relieved from Liability by Inspection of Railways.

Chapter 91.—56. No inspection had under this Chapter, nor anything in this Chapter contained or done or ordered or omitted to be done or ordered under or by virtue of the provisions of this Chapter, shall relieve, or be construed to relieve, a railway company of or from any liability or responsibility vesting upon it towards His Majesty, or the wife or husband parent or child, executor or administrator or other personal representative of any person, for anything done, or omitted to be done, by the company; or for any wrongful act, neglect, or default, misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance of the company, or in any manner or way lessen the liability or responsibility of the company, or weaken or diminish the liability of the company under the laws existing in the Province.

Accidents on Railways—Notices and Returns.

[Sections 59—63 provide for the reporting of accidents.]

Rules for Railway Employees.

Chapter 91.—69. Every railway company shall make such by-laws, rules and regulations to be observed by the conductors, engine drivers, and other officers and servants of the company, and by all other companies and persons using the railway of such company, and such regulations in regard to the construction of the carriages and other vehicles to be used in the trains on the railway of the company, as are requisite for ensuring the perfect carrying into effect of the provisions of this part of this Chapter, and the orders and regulations of the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

70. The notice of the by-law, or of any order or notice of the Chief Commissioner of Public Works, may be proved by proving the delivery of a copy thereof to the office, servant, or person, or that he has signed a copy thereof, or that a copy thereof was posted in some place where his work or his duties, or some of them, were to be performed.

Operation of Trains—Safety Appliances.

Chapter 91.—77. Every railway company which runs trains upon the railway for the conveyance of passengers, shall provide and cause to be used in and upon such trains, such known apparatus and arrangements as best afford good and sufficient means of immediate communication between the conductors and the engine drivers of such trains while the trains are in motion, and good and sufficient means of applying by the powers of the steam engine or otherwise, at the will of the engine driver or other person appointed to such duty, the brakes to the track wheels of the locomotive or tender, or both, or of all or any of the cars or carriages composing the train, and of disconnecting the locomotive or tender, and cars and carriages from each other by any such power or means, and also such apparatus and arrangements as best and most securely place and fix the seats or chairs in the cars or carriages, and shall alter such apparatus and arrangements, or supply new apparatus and arrangements from time to time, as the Chief Commissioner of Public Works, with the sanction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, may order.

78. Every railway company which fails to comply with any of the provisions contained in the last preceding section of this Chapter, shall forfeit to His Majesty a sum not exceeding two hundred dollars for every day during which such default continues.

Safety Provisions—Packing, etc.

Chapter 91.—86. (1) This section shall apply to every railway and railway company within the legislative authority or jurisdiction of this Province.

(2) In this section the expression "packing" means a packing of wood or metal, or some other equally solid and substantial material of not less than three inches in thickness, and which, where by this section any space is required to be filled in, shall extend to one and a half inches of the crown of the rails in use on any such railway, shall be neatly fitted so as to come against the web of such rails, and shall be well and solidly fastened to the ties on which such rails are laid;

(3) The spaces behind and in front of every railway frog or crossing, and between the fixed rails of every switch, where such spaces are less than five inches in width, shall be filled with packing up to the under side of the head of the rail;

(4) The spaces between any wing rail and any railway frog, and between any guard rail and track rail alongside of it, shall be filled with packing at the splayed ends, so that the whole splay shall be so filled where the width of the space between the rails is less than five inches, such packing not to reach higher than the underside of the head of the rail; provided, however, that the Chief Commissioner of Public Works may allow such filling to be left out from the month of December to the month of April in each year, both months included;

(5) The oil cups or other appliances used for oiling the valves of every locomotive in use upon any railway, shall be such that no employee shall be required to go outside the cab of the locomotive while the same is in motion for the purpose of oiling such valves.

Prison Labour.

Chapter 98 with amendment.—1. In all cases where any person has been convicted under any Act of the Legislature of the Province of New Brunswick by any police magistrate, stipendiary magistrate, or justice of the peace, and is in and by such conviction adjudged to pay a pecuniary penalty, and in default thereof, or in addition thereto, to suffer imprisonment and whether or not such conviction imposes hard labour, such police magistrate, or stipendiary magistrate, or justice of the peace, as the case may be, may in and by such warrant of commitment issued upon such conviction, direct that the person committed under such warrant, shall, while so committed, perform hard labour and where any person is committed to any gaol under a commitment requiring hard labour, such hard labour may be performed either in the gaol, the gaol yard, or any part of the gaol limits, or in case the commitment is to the gaol in the city of Saint John, anywhere within the County of the City and County of Saint John.

3. In all cases, where any person has been convicted under any Act of the Legislature of the Province of New Brunswick, or under any by-laws made thereunder, by any police magistrate of any city or incorporated town, and is in and by such conviction adjudged to pay a pecuniary penalty, and in default thereof, or in addition thereto to suffer imprisonment, and whether or not such conviction imposes hard labour, such police magistrate may, in and by such warrant of commitment issued upon such conviction, direct that the person committed under said warrant shall, while so committed, perform hard labour, within the limits of said city or incorporated town under the direction of such policeman or constable as the city or town council shall appoint for that purpose; and for the purposes of this section, the lock-up house of any city or town is hereby constituted a gaol or place of imprisonment for prisoners convicted as aforesaid. 1909, c. 28, s. 1.

4. Each city and town council is hereby authorized and empowered to make by-laws and regulations for the proper enforcement and carrying out of hard labour sentences within its limits. 1909, c. 28, s. 1.

Sunday Labour.

Chapter 107.—1. (1) No person shall on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, . . . do or exercise any worldly labour, business or work of his ordinary calling (conveying travellers or His Majesty's mail by land or by water, selling drugs and medicines, and other works of necessity and charity only excepted.)

(2) The word "person" in this Chapter shall be construed as including corporations, except where the context requires a contrary interpretation, and any corporation which requires or permits its employees to carry on the business of such corporation, or to labour or work therefor, contrary to the provisions of this Chapter, shall for each offence forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

(3) Nothing herein contained shall prevent the delivery of milk or ice to customers on Sunday; or shall prevent telephone or telegraph companies from keeping open their offices for the purpose of receiving, transmitting and delivering messages; or the keepers of livery stables and cabs from letting on Sunday, horses and vehicles, with or without a driver for purposes other than that of doing business or work; or the proprietors of daily morning newspapers, or their employees from doing such kinds of work as may be necessary for the purpose of preparing and printing a Monday morning's edition of such newspaper; . . . or any sexton from performing the ordinary work in connection with any church or the putting forth to sea of any vessel for any destination without the limits of the Province; or to prevent any vessel coming into port, or any pilot or pilot-boat, or any tug-boat from going in search of vessels making port, or from bringing any vessel into port, or taking her out of port on Sunday; or shall prevent the carrying on in any mill or manufactory of any manufacturing process of such a nature that it is essential to proceed with the work and development thereof continuously for a period over six days to prevent injury or damage to the material so in course of manufacture; or the operation in any mine of any pumps; or from steam driving; or from towing, booming or freighting any lumber, or raft of lumber or timber when the same is in transit, and it is essential to proceed with the transport of the same to prevent injury thereto, or to prevent such delay in getting the same to its place of destination as would be liable to lead to the loss or injury of any such lumber; or shall apply to the loading or unloading of fishing smacks or boats; or to the moving of through freight trains in the Province of New Brunswick.

(4) Provided, however, that nothing in this Chapter contained shall operate to prevent the loading or unloading or other work necessary to be done, in order to enable any steamship to prepare for sailing in case said steamship is under contract with the Canadian government to sail at any time certain, and it is necessary in order to fill said contract that said work should be done.

6. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Chapter shall for each such offence, on conviction, be liable to a penalty of not less than one dollar and costs, and not exceeding twenty dollars and costs, in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law for the same act.

7. Nothing herein contained shall relieve employees or servants who violate the provisions of this Chapter from the penalties thereby imposed in the case of such violation.

Earnings of Minors—Suits for Wages.

Chapter 116.—20. A minor or person under the age of twenty-one years may sue in the said courts for any sum within their jurisdiction for wages due to him, in the same manner as if he were of age, and such infant shall be liable for costs, exactly as if of full age.

Exemption of Wages from Garnishment.

Chapter 134.—33. Wages due the judgment debtor for his personal labour and services on a hiring, to the extent of twenty dollars, shall be exempt from garnishment.

Mechanic's Liens.

Chapter 147 with amendment.—1. This Chapter may be cited as "The Mechanics' Lien Act."

2. Wherever the following words occur in this chapter or in the schedule thereto, they shall be construed in the manner hereinafter mentioned unless a contrary intention appears:—

(1) "Contractor" shall mean a person contracting with or employed directly by the owner for the doing of work, or placing or furnishing of machinery or materials for any of the purposes mentioned in this chapter.

(2) "Sub-contractor" shall mean a person not contracting with or employed directly by the owner for the purposes aforesaid, but contracting with or employed by the "contractor" or under him by a "sub-contractor."

(3) "Owner" shall extend to and include a person having any estate or interest in the lands upon or in respect of which the work is done or materials or machinery are placed or furnished, at whose request and upon whose credit, or on whose behalf, or with whose privity or consent, or for whose direct benefit any such work is done, or materials or machinery placed or furnished, and all persons claiming under him whose rights are acquired after the work in respect of which the lien is claimed is commenced, or the materials or machinery furnished have been commenced to be furnished.

(4) "Wage-earner" shall mean any person performing labour for wages, by the day, week or month as the case may be, and not by the job.

(5) "County Court" in this chapter shall mean the county court of the county in which the lands sought to be affected by the lien are situate.

(6) "Judge" shall mean the judge of the county court of the county in which the lands sought to be affected by the lien are situate, or the judge of a county court before whom proceedings may be taken in case of the said judge being interested or related to any of the parties.

(7) "Registrar" shall mean the registrar of deeds of the county where the lands sought to be affected by the lien are situate.

(8) "Registered" shall mean filed in the office of the registrar of deeds of the county where the lands sought to be affected by the lien are situate.

(9) "Building" shall extend to and include any insurance carried upon a building, and any moneys payable in any insurance policy in respect to such building. 1915, c. 60.

3. No agreement shall be held to deprive anyone otherwise entitled to a lien under this chapter, and not a party to the agreement, of the benefit of the lien, but the lien shall attach notwithstanding such agreement.

4. Unless he signs an express agreement to the contrary, every mechanic, machinist, builder, labourer, contractor or other person doing work upon or furnishing materials to be used in the construction, alteration or repair of any building or erection, or erecting, furnishing or placing machinery of any kind in, upon or in connection with any building, erection or mine, shall, by virtue of being so employed or furnishing, have a lien for the price of the work, machinery or materials upon the building, erection or mine and the lands occupied thereby or connected therewith.

5. The lien shall attach upon the estate and interest of the owner, as defined by this Chapter, in the building, erection or mine upon or in respect of which the work is done or the materials or machinery placed or furnished, and the land occupied thereby or connected therewith.

6. (1) Every wage-earner who performs labour for wages upon the construction, alteration or repairs of any building or erection, or in erecting or placing machinery of any kind in, upon, or in connection with any building, erection or mine, shall, to the extent of the interest of the owner, have upon the building, erection or mine, and the land occupied thereby or connected therewith, a lien for such wages, not exceeding the wages for thirty days, or a balance equal to his wages for thirty days.

(2) The lien for wages mentioned in this section shall attach, when the labour is in respect of a building, erection or mine on property belonging to the wife of the person at whose instance the work is done, upon the estate or interest of the wife in such property as well as upon that of her husband.

(3) Every device by any owner or contractor which shall be adopted in order to defeat the lien of wage-earners under this Chapter, shall, as respects such wage-earners, be null and void.

7. The owner shall, in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary, be entitled to retain, for a period of thirty days after the completion of the contract,—

(a) Fifteen per centum of the price to be paid to the contractor when such price does not exceed $1,000.

(b) Twelve and a half per centum of the price to be paid to the contractor when such price is more than $1,000, but does not exceed $5,000; and

(c) In all other cases, ten per centum of the price to be paid to the contractor.

8. In case the lien is claimed by a sub-contractor, the amount which may be claimed in respect thereof shall be limited to the amount payable to the contractor or sub-contractor (as the case may be) for whom the work has been done, or the materials or machinery have been furnished or placed.

9. (1) All payments up to ninety per centum of the price to be paid for the work, machinery or materials, as defined by section 4 of this Chapter, made in good faith by the owner to the contractor, or by the contractor to the sub-contractor, or by one sub-contractor to another sub-contractor, before notice in writing by the person claiming the lien has been given to such owner, contractor or sub-contractor (as the case may be) of the claim of such person, shall operate as a discharge pro tanto of the lien created by this Chapter, but this section shall not apply to any payment made for the purpose of defeating or impairing a claim to a lien existing or arising under this Chapter.

(2) A lien shall, in addition to all other rights or remedies given by this Chapter, also operate as a charge to the extent of ten per centum of the price to be paid by the owner for the work, machinery or materials as defined by section 4 of this Chapter, up to ten days after the completion of the work or of the delivery of the materials in respect of which such lien exists, and no longer, unless such notice in writing be given as herein provided.

(3) A lien for wages for thirty days or for a balance equal to the wages for thirty days, shall, to the extent of the said ten per centum of the price to be paid to the contractor, have priority over all other liens under this Chapter, and over any claim by the owner against the contractor for or in consequence of the failure of the latter to complete his contract.

(4) When the total price to be paid, or contracted or agreed to be paid for the whole of the work, machinery or materials, as defined by section 4 of this Chapter does not exceed $1,000 the three preceding subsections of this section shall be read as if the word "ninety" was omitted therefrom, and the word "eighty-five" inserted in lieu thereof, and as if the word "ten" was omitted therefrom and the word "fifteen" inserted in lieu thereof; and where the said total price exceeds $1,000, but does not exceed $5,000, the said first three subsections shall be read as if the word "ninety" was omitted therefrom and the word "eighty-seven and a half" inserted in lieu thereof, and as if the word "ten" was omitted therefrom and the words "twelve and a half" inserted in lieu thereof.

10. Save as herein provided the lien shall not attach so as to make the owner liable to a greater sum than the sum payable by the owner to the contractor.

11. All persons furnishing material to or doing labour for the person having a lien under this Chapter, in respect of the subject of such lien, who notified the owner of the premises sought to be affected thereby, within thirty days after such materials furnished or labour performed, of any unpaid account or demand against such lien-holder for such material or labour, shall be entitled, subject to the provisions of sections 6 and 9, to a charge therefor pro rata upon any amount payable by such owner under said lien, and if the owner thereupon pays the amount of such charge to the person furnishing material or doing labour as aforesaid, such payment shall be deemed a satisfaction pro tanto of such lien.

12. In case of a dispute as to the validity or amount of an unpaid account or demand, of which notice is given to the owner under the preceding section, the same shall be first determined by action in the proper court in that behalf; and pending the proceedings to determine the dispute, so much of the amount of the lien as is in question therein may be withheld from the person claiming the lien, or the judge may order such amount paid into a bank to the credit of the cause.

13. In case the person primarily liable to the person giving such notice as mentioned in section 11, fails to pay the amount for which judgment is recovered within ten days after the judgment is obtained, the owner, contractor or sub-contractor may pay the same out of any moneys due by him to the person primarily liable as aforesaid, on account of the work done, or materials or machinery furnished or placed in respect of which the debt arose; and such payment if made after the judgment as aforesaid (or if made without any action being previously brought or dispute existing, then if the debt in fact existed, and to the extent thereof) shall operate as a discharge pro tanto of the money so due as aforesaid to the person primarily liable.

14. During the continuance of a lien, no portion of the property or machinery affected thereby shall be removed to the prejudice of the lien; and any attempt at such removal may be restrained by application to the judge. Disobedience of the judge's order restraining such removal shall be punishable by attachment for contempt by the judge as in the Supreme Court for disobedience of an order of a judge of that court.

15. (1) A claim of lien applicable to the case may be registered in the office of the registrar, and shall state:—

(a) The name and residence of the claimant and of the owner of the property to be charged, and of the person for whom and upon whose credit the work is done or materials or machinery furnished, and the time or period (if any time is specified in the contract) within which the same was or was to be done or furnished;

(b) The work done or materials or machinery furnished;

(c) The sum claimed;

(d) The description of the land to be charged;

(e) The date of expiry of the period of credit agreed to by the lien-holder for payment for his work, materials or machinery, where credit has been given.

(2) The claim may be in one of the Forms (1), (2), and (3) given in the Schedule to this Chapter, and shall be verified by the affidavit of the claimant, or of his agent or assignee having full knowledge of the matters required to be verified, and the affidavit of an agent or assignee shall state that he has such knowledge.

16. A claim for wages may include the claims of any number of wage-earners who may choose to unite therein. In such case each claimant shall verify his claim by his affidavit, but need not repeat the facts set out in the claim, and an affidavit substantially in accordance with Form (4) of this Chapter shall be sufficient.

17. (1) The registrar, upon payment of his fees, shall register the claim so that the same may appear as an incumbrance against the land therein described, and the day, hour and minute when the same was registered shall appear upon the registry.

(2) The fee registration shall be twenty-five cents; if several parties join in one claim the registrar shall have a further fee of ten cents for every person after the first.

(3) The registrar shall not be bound to copy in any registry book any claim or affidavit but he shall enter such claim in a book to be kept for that purpose, to be called "The Mechanics' Lien Book," and shall insert therein particulars of the claim, with a description of the property against which the lien is sought.

18. Where a claim is so registered the person entitled to the lien shall be deemed a purchaser pro tanto, and within the provisions of the Registry Act, chapter 151 of these Consolidated Statutes, but except as herein otherwise provided, The Registry Act, shall not apply to any lien arising under this Chapter.

19. (1) Where the lien is for wages under sections 6 or 9, the claim may be registered at any time within thirty days after the last day's labour for which the wages are payable.

(2) Such lien shall not be entitled to the benefit of the provisions of sections 6 and 9, after the said period, unless the same is duly registered before the expiration of the said period so limited.

(3) Such lien shall have the same priority for all purposes after as before registration.

20. In other cases the claim of lien may be registered before the commencement or during the progress of the work, or within thirty days from the completion thereof, or from the supplying or placing of the machinery.

21. Every lien which has not been duly registered under the provisions of this Chapter, shall absolutely cease to exist on the expiration of the time hereinbefore limited for the registration thereof, unless in the meantime proceedings are instituted and are being prosecuted without delay to realize the claim under the provisions of this Chapter, and a certificate of the pending of such proceedings, (which may be granted by the judge), is duly registered.

22. (1) Every lien which has been duly registered under the provisions of this Chapter shall absolutely cease to exist after the expiration of ninety days after the work has been completed, or materials or machinery furnished, or wages earned, or the expiry of the period of credit where such period is mentioned in the claim of lien filed, unless in the meantime proceedings are instituted and are being prosecuted without delay to realize the claim under the provisions of this chapter, and a certificate of such proceedings (which may be granted by the judge) is duly registered.

(2) The registration of a lien under this chapter shall cease to have any effect at the expiration of six months from the registration thereof, unless the lien shall be again registered within the same period, except in the meantime proceedings have been instituted to realize the claim and are being prosecuted without delay, and a certificate of the pendency of such proceedings as aforesaid has been duly registered as provided in the preceding subsection.

23. If there is no period of credit, or if the date of the expiry of the period of credit is not stated in the claim so filed, the lien shall cease to exist upon the expiration of ninety days after the work has been completed or materials or machinery furnished, unless in the meantime proceedings have been instituted pursuant to section 22 of this Chapter and are being prosecuted without delay, and a certificate of the pendency of such proceedings as aforesaid has been duly registered as provided in section 22.

24. In the event of the death of a lien-holder his right of lien shall pass to his personal representatives, and the right of a lien-holder may be assigned by an instrument in writing.

25. A lien may be discharged by a receipt signed by the claimant or his agent, duly authorized in writing, acknowledging payment and verified by affidavit, and filed in the office of the registrar; such receipt shall be numbered and entered by the registrar in the Mechanics' Lien Book. The fees shall be the same as for registering a claim for lien.

26. When there is a contract for the execution of the work as hereinbefore mentioned, the registration of all discharges of liens shall be at the cost of the contractor, unless the judge otherwise orders.

27. (1) Upon application to the judge, he may receive security or payment into court in lieu of the amount claimed, and may thereupon vacate the registry of the lien.

(2) The judge may annul the said registry upon any other ground.

28. (1) Every mechanic or other person who has bestowed money or skill or materials upon any chattel or thing in the alteration and improvement in its properties, or which imparts an additional value to it, so as thereby to be entitled by law to a lien upon such chattel or thing for the amount or value of the money or skill and materials bestowed, shall, while such lien exists, but not afterwards, in case the amount to which he is entitled remains unpaid for three months after the same ought to have been paid, have the right, in addition to all other remedies provided by law, to sell the chattel or thing in respect of which the lien exists, on giving one week's notice by advertisement by posters put up in three or more public places adjacent to the place of sale, stating the name of the person indebted, the amount of the debt, a description of the chattel or thing to be sold, the time and place of the sale (which shall be a public place), and the name of the auctioneer, and leaving a notice in writing two weeks prior to the sale at the last or known place of residence (if any) of the owner, if he be a resident of such county.

(2) Such mechanic or other person shall apply the proceeds of the sale in payment of the amount due to him and the cost of advertising and sale, and shall, upon application, pay over any surplus to the person entitled thereto.

29. In case an owner chooses to make payments to the mechanics, labourers, or other persons referred to in section 4 of this Chapter, for or on account of, but not exceeding, the amount of the just debts due to them for work done or materials or machinery placed or furnished as therein mentioned, without the proceedings mentioned in section 12, and shall within three days afterwards give, by letter or otherwise, written notice of such payment to the contractor or his agent, such payment shall, as between the owner and the contractor, be deemed to be a payment to the contractor, on the contract generally, but not so as to affect the percentage to be retained by the owner as provided by sections 7 and 9.

30. (1) Before the contractor for any work shall be entitled to receive a payment on his contract, it shall be his duty to produce to and leave with the owner or his agent an affidavit or a statutory declaration by the contractor (or his agent, competent from personal knowledge to speak to the facts), stating that all persons, who up to that time have been employed on the work and entitled to wages, have been paid in full up to and inclusive of the fourteenth day previous to such payment being made by the owner to the contractor. The said affidavit or statutory declaration may be to the effect set forth in Forms (5) and (6) in the Schedule to this Chapter.

(2) Or if it is admitted, or otherwise appears that any wages are unpaid, the contractor shall not be entitled to receive the amount otherwise payable to him without there being deducted therefrom an amount sufficient to cover what is so unpaid to such wage-earners.

(3) The said affidavit or statutory declaration shall be conclusive evidence in favour of the owner making the payment; unless at or before making the payment he had actual and express notice of the wages not having been paid.

(4) Any payment made on the contract without the owner having received such affidavit, or statutory declaration, or with actual and express notice of unpaid wages, shall not be a valid payment as against persons whose wages are unpaid at the time of the payment on the contract.

(5) The affidavit or statutory declaration aforesaid shall not be necessary when the architect's estimate for the month, in case the contract provides for such estimate, does not exceed $100, or when the payment made in good faith in respect of the progress of the work for the month (in case the contract does not provide for estimates) does not exceed $100.

31. The lien of wage-earners for thirty days' wages, or for a balance equal to thirty days' wages, provided for by sections 6 and 9, shall not be defeated or impaired by any garnishment had subsequently to the contract, or by any execution subsequently issued, or by reason of the work contracted for being unfinished, or of the price, for that or any other reason, not being payable to the contractor.

32. (1) In case of the contract not having completely fulfilled when lien is claimed by wage-earners, the percentage aforesaid shall be calculated on the work done or materials furnished by the contractor.

(2) Every wage-earner shall be entitled to enforce a lien in respect of an unfinished building to the same extent as if the building were finished.

(3) The percentage as aforesaid shall not, as against wage-earners, be applied to the completion of the work by the owner when the contractor makes default in completing the same, nor to the payment of damages for the non-completion thereof by the contractor.

33. When a mortgage is given to secure an intended loan of money, which money is to be paid thereafter according or with reference to the progress of work done, or materials or machinery placed or furnished as aforesaid, on the land mortgaged, no advance thereafter made by the mortgagee shall have priority over the claims of mechanics, labourers or other persons referred to in section 4 of this Chapter as aforesaid, if the mortgagee at or before the time of such advance has actual and express notice that there are any such claims as aforesaid unpaid; nor unless at the time of such advance he shall require and receive from the mortgagor or his contractor an affidavit or statutory declaration, stating that all such persons as aforesaid have been paid in full up to the time of the advance. The said affidavit or statutory declaration may be to the effect set forth in Form (7) in the Schedule to this Chapter.

34. In case of the sale or mortgage of an unfinished house or building, if its being an unfinished house or building is such as to be apparent to an ordinary observer, the purchaser, before paying his purchase money, or giving a mortgage or other value or security for any balance of such purchase money, or the mortgagee before advancing any money on the security of a mortgage or otherwise, shall require from the vendor (in the case of a sale, or from the mortgagor in the case of a mortgage) a similar affidavit or statutory declaration of the payment of all claims as is provided for in section 33 of this Chapter, and the purchaser or mortgagee shall not be entitled to priority in this respect to such claims, if at or before the time aforesaid he had actual and express notice that there were such claims as aforesaid unpaid; nor unless he shall have received such affidavit or statutory declaration aforesaid.

35. In cases where there is an agreement for the purchase of land, and the purchase money, or part thereof, is unpaid, and no conveyance is made to the purchaser, the purchaser shall for the purposes of this Chapter, and within the meaning thereof, be deemed a mortgagor and the seller a mortgagee.

36. When any proceeding is taken to enforce a lien under this Chapter, in case a mortgagee of the land is served with a written notice of such proceeding being had, he shall thereafter be entitled to attend the proceedings; and in case of being so served, he shall not thereafter, without the leave hereinafter mentioned, take any proceedings for sale or foreclosure, nor proceed to exercise any power of sale until the proceedings to enforce the lien have terminated; but he may without leave serve any notices required to be served in order to the due exercise of the power. The leave aforesaid may be granted by the judge, and shall only be granted by consent, or (if without consent) on a reasonable consideration of all the circumstances in view of what would be just to both parties.

37. Every claim of lien shall give an address at which all notices and papers may be served, and service of any notice or paper may be effected by sending the same by registered letter to the address so given.

38. Any person claiming a lien under this Chapter may enforce the same by means of the proceedings hereinafter set forth.

39. No writ of summons shall be necessary, but the claimant may file a statement of claim with the judge.

40. Such statement of claim shall be verified by affidavit, Form (8); upon the filing of such statement of claim and affidavit the judge shall issue a certificate in duplicate.

41. Upon the registration of such certificate in the office of the registrar, the action shall be deemed to have been commenced as against the owner and all other parties against whom the lien is claimed.

42. The judge shall also in and by such certificate appoint a time and place at which he will inquire into the claim of the plaintiff and take all necessary accounts; such certificate and appointment shall be issued in duplicate, and may be in the Form (9) set forth in the Schedule hereto.

43. A copy of such certificate and appointment shall be served on the owner and all other proper parties at least fifteen days before the day therein named for taking the first proceedings thereunder.

44. Within ten days after the service of such certificate and appointment any person served therewith may file with the judge a notice in the Form (10) in the Schedule hereto disputing the plaintiff's right to a lien.

45. In case a notice disputing the plaintiff's lien is filed, the judge shall, before taking any further proceedings, determine the question raised by the notice, and if so required by any of the parties, may thereupon issue a certificate of his finding.

46. But if not required to issue such last named certificate, it shall suffice for the judge to enter in his book a note of his finding.

47. Where no notice disputing the plaintiff's lien is filed as aforesaid, and the proceedings are instituted by a sub-contractor, the owner shall file with the judge a statement of account, Form (11), verified by affidavit, Form (12), showing what, if anything, he admits to be due for the satisfaction of the plaintiff's lien, and all other liens of the same class as plaintiff's; such statement shall be filed at least eight days before the day named in the certificate mentioned in section 42 for taking accounts, and in case the owner shall not file such statement, or shall file an untrue statement, he may be ordered by the judge to pay all costs incurred in establishing the true amount due and owing from him.

48. All lien-holders of the same class served with the appointment, or who may claim to be entitled to the benefit of the action, shall also within six days from the day named in the appointment for taking accounts, or within such further time as the judge may allow, file with the judge a statement of account, showing the just and true sum due to them respectively, after giving credit for all sums in cash, merchandise or otherwise, to which the debtor is entitled to credit on account of their respective claims, which account shall be verified by affidavit, and such account and affidavit may be in the Forms (13) and (14) set out in the Schedule hereto.

49. A lien-holder who has registered his lien, but has not filed his claim, with the judge within the time limited by the next preceding section, may apply to the judge to be let in to prove his claim at any time before the amount realized by the proceedings for the satisfaction of liens has been distributed, and such application may be granted or refused, and upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may appear just.

50. Upon the return of the appointment to take accounts, the Judge shall proceed to take an account of what is due from the owner, and also what is due to the respective lien-holders who have duly filed their claims, and shall also tax to them respectively such costs as he may find them entitled to, and shall settle their priorities, and shall make all other inquiries, and take all necessary accounts for the adjustment of the rights of the various parties, and shall thereupon make a report of the result of such inquiries and accounts and shall direct that the money found due by the owner shall be paid into a bank to the credit of the action at the expiration of one month from the date of the report.

51. In case any dispute arises as to the amount due by the owner for the satisfaction of liens under this Chapter, or as to the amount claimed to be due to any of the lien-holders, the costs occasioned by the dispute shall be in the discretion of the judge, and shall be borne and paid as he directs.

52. If nothing is found due by the owner, the judge may make an order staying all further proceedings, and make such order as to costs as may be just, and at the expiration of fourteen days thereafter may grant a certificate vacating the lien of the plaintiff, and all other liens of the same class as the plaintiff's.

53. Where anything is found due by the owner, he may, on or at any time before the day appointed for payment, pay the amount found to be due by him into a bank named by the judge to the credit of the action, and thereupon, upon proof of such payment, the judge may grant ex parte a certificate in Form (16) in the Schedule to this Chapter, vacating the lien of the plaintiff and all other liens of the same class as plaintiff's.

54. The judge may make such order as to the owner's costs of obtaining and registering any certificate vacating the lien as may be just.

55. Upon the registration of a certificate vacating any lien or liens, the same shall thereupon be vacated and discharged.

56. Upon payment into a bank of the amount which may be found due by the owner, the same shall be (subject to the payment of any costs thereout, as may be ordered), be paid out to the parties found entitled thereto by the report of the judge.

57. In default of payment by the owner within the time directed by the report, the plaintiff may apply to the said judge, who, upon due proof of the default, may grant an order or judgment for the sale of the land in question for the satisfaction of the lien of the plaintiff, and other liens of the same class.

58. The judgment for sale may be in Form (15), set forth in the Schedule to this Chapter.

59. Such judgment for sale shall be entered as other judgments are required to be entered in the office of the clerk of the county court, and shall have the same force or effect as a judgment in the ordinary case of an action between the said parties.

60. The sale under said judgment shall be conducted by the sheriff, who shall execute a deed to the purchaser, the proceedings on such sale shall be in the manner prescribed by Statute respecting sales of land made under writs of feri facias.

61. After the sale the sheriff shall pay the proceeds into a bank to the credit of the action, and make a report upon the sale to the judge, who shall thereupon tax the costs of the sale to the party entitled thereto, and shall apportion the money realized among the parties entitled thereto, and may order the moneys realized to be paid out of the bank to the parties so found by him entitled thereto.

62. (1) For the proper proceedings to obtain an order for sale and carrying out of the sale, and the apportionment of the moneys realized thereunder, the plaintiffs shall be deemed sufficiently to represent all other lien-holders entitled to the benefit of the action unless the judge otherwise orders.

(2) Where there are several liens under this Chapter against the same party each class of lien-holders shall, subject to the provisions of sections 6, 9 and 11, rank pari passu for the several amounts, and the proceeds of any sale shall, subject as aforesaid, be distributed amongst them pro rata according to their several claims and rights.

(3) The judge shall have power from time to time to add any parties to the proceedings as he may deem necessary or advisable, and may direct as to service of notices on such new parties.

(4) The death of an owner or any other defendant shall not cause the proceedings to abate, but they may be continued against the personal representatives of such owner or other defendant.

63. Any lien-holder entitled to the benefit of the action may apply for the carriage of the proceedings, and the judge may thereupon make such order as to costs and otherwise as may be just; and any lien-holder who obtains the carriage of the proceedings shall, in respect of all proceedings taken by him be deemed to be the plaintiff in the action.

64. Any person affected by the proceedings may apply to the judge to dismiss the same for want of due prosecution and the judge may make such order, upon the application as to costs or otherwise as may be just.

65. Where any infants are named as defendants the appointments referred to in section 42 may be served upon the official guardian for such infants. If there is no official guardian, the judge may appoint a guardian ad litem. Such official guardian or guardian so appointed shall thereupon become and be the guardian ad litem for such infants in the proceedings, and it shall not be necessary to serve any such infant defendant with any further or other proceedings, and such infant shall be bound thereby.

66. (1) The fees and costs in all proceedings taken under this Chapter shall be such as are payable in respect of similar matters according to the ordinary procedure of the county court, but where the taxed costs of proceedings to enforce any lien are payable out of the amount realized by such proceedings to enforce any lien are payable out of the amount realized by such proceedings for the satisfaction of the lien, and shall exceed ten per cent of the amount realized thereby for the satisfaction of the lien, such costs shall be reduced proportionately by the judge so as the same shall not in the aggregate exceed the said ten per cent, and no more costs than such reduced amount shall be recoverable between party and party or solicitor and client.

(2) In no case shall the costs taxed against any of the parties exceed ten per cent of the amount in dispute between such party and the party to whom the costs are awarded.

67. After the amount of the lien shall be realized, any lien-holder who has proved a claim may apply to the said judge, upon notice to his primary debtor, for judgment for the payment of any balance which may remain due after deducting the amount received or payable in respect of the lien, and thereupon the judge may grant or refuse the application upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just; and in case he sees fit to grant the application, he will grant a certificate of the amount for which he finds the applicant is entitled to judgment for debt and costs.

68. Such certificate may be filed in the office of the clerk of the court, and the same whether the amount awarded exceeds the ordinary jurisdiction of the county court or not shall thereupon be entered in the judgment book and shall thereupon become a judgment of the court, and may be enforced in like manner as any other judgment for the payment of money is enforced in the said court.

69. (1) Orders and certificates made by a judge under this Chapter shall be appealable to the Supreme Court in like manner as any order or decision of a county court judge in ordinary actions is appealable.

(2) In case of appeal from any such order or certificate, the proceedings upon such order or certificate may be stayed as in ordinary cases.

70. A proceeding under this Chapter shall be deemed to be an action.

71. (1) Any number of lien-holders may join in one action or proceedings; and any action or proceedings brought by a lien-holder shall be taken to be brought on behalf of all lien-holders of the same class who have registered their liens before or within fourteen days after the commencement of the action, or who shall within the said fourteen days, or within such further time as may be allowed for that purpose, file with the judge of the county court of the county where the proceedings have been brought, a statement entitled in or referring to the said action, of their respective claims.

(2) Where separate proceedings are instituted by lien-holders, the judge may consolidate the proceedings and give all such directions as to carrying on the same, after consolidation, as he may deem necessary or desirable.

72. The judge may on good cause extend the time within which any proceedings are to be taken under this Chapter, upon application made either before or after the time for taking any such proceedings has expired.

73. Any money paid into a bank under this Chapter shall be paid out by the order of the judge as he may direct.

74. In case the judge of the county court in which the land, in respect of which the lien is claimed, is situate, is interested in any proceedings under this Chapter, or related to any of the parties, the proceedings may be taken before any judge of another county court, who in so acting shall, for the purpose of such proceedings, be deemed to be judge of the county court of the county in which the lands in question are situate.

75. Any affidavit required under this Chapter may be sworn before a justice of the peace or commissioner for taking affidavits.

(Forms and schedules omitted.)

Woodmen's Liens.

Chapter 148 with amendment.—1. This Chapter may be cited as "The Woodmen's Lien Act."

2. Where the following words occur in this Chapter they shall be construed in the manner hereinafter mentioned, unless a contrary intention appears:—

(1) The words "logs or timber" shall mean and include what is ordinarily known as logs, timber or pulpwood, cedar posts, telegraph poles, railway ties, but shall not include cordwood tan bark, shingle bolts or staves. 1920, c. 43, s. 1.

(2) The words "labour, service or services" shall mean and include cutting, skidding, felling, hauling, scaling, barking, driving, rafting or booming any logs, timber or pulp wood, cedar posts, telegraph poles, railway ties, or any work done by cooks, blacksmiths, artisans or others used or employed in connection with the work. 1920, c. 43, s. 2.

(3) The words "place of destination" shall mean the boom or rafting ground where the logs are rafted or sorted, in case of logs or timber driven down rivers or streams; and the mill or mill pond, in cases where the logs or timber are hauled from the woods or brought by railway to a mill or to the pond in connection therewith, or driven in the stream to a mill or mill pond, without first being rafted or sorted, or other place where logs or lumber are brought or hauled for the purpose of being manufactured or sawn.

3. Any person performing any labour or services in connection with any logs or timber intended to be driven down rivers or streams, or hauled directly from the woods or brought by railway to the place of destination, shall have a lien thereon for the amount due for such labour, service or services, and the same shall be deemed a first lien or charge on such logs or timber, and shall have precedence over all other claims or liens thereon, except any lien or claim which the Crown may have upon such logs or timber, for or in respect of any dues or charges, or which any owner of lands may have for the stumpage upon such logs or timber, or which any streams improvement company or boom company, or person owning streams improvements or booms may have thereon for or in respect of tolls.

4. The lien provided for in section 3 shall not attach or remain a charge on the logs or timber, unless and until a statement thereof in writing, duly verified upon oath by the person claiming such lien, or some one duly authorized on his behalf, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court in which the labour or services, or some part thereof, have been performed.

5. Such statement shall set out briefly the nature of the debt, demand or claim, the amount due to the claimant, as near as may be, over and above all legal set-offs or counter claims, and a description of the logs or timber upon or against which the lien is claimed, and may be in the Form (1) set out in the Schedule to this Chapter, or to the like effect.

6. The statement of claim shall, in respect of work done in the woods, be filed within thirty days after the last day on which such labour or services were performed, and in respect to work done in stream driving or otherwise than in the woods, within twenty days after the last day on which such labour or services were performed, provided that no sale or transfer of the logs or timber upon which a lien is claimed under this Chapter during the time limited for the filing of such statement of claim and previous to the filing thereof, or after the filing thereof, and during the time limited for the enforcement thereof, shall in anywise affect such lien, but such lien shall remain and be in force against such logs or timber in whosoever possession the same shall be found.

7. In case of the transfer by sale or chattel mortgage or any logs or timber which may become subject to a lien under this Chapter, the purchaser, before paying his purchase money or giving a mortgage or other security for any balance of such purchase money, or the mortgagee, before advancing any money on the security of a chattel mortgage or otherwise, may require from the vendor, in the case of a sale or from the mortgagor in the case of a mortgage, an affidavit or statutory declaration by such vendor or mortgagor (as the case may be), or his agent, stating that all claims for wages to the persons mentioned in section 3 of this Chapter have been paid.

8. Any person or persons having a lien upon or against any logs or timber may enforce the same by means of the proceedings hereinafter stated.

9. Without issuing a writ of summons, the claimant may apply to a judge of the county court of the county in which the logs or timber may be, and upon the production to the judge of an affidavit verifying his claim and showing that the same has been filed as aforesaid, also stating the particulars of the claim, and showing that the claimant has fully performed his contract, and that the amount is justly due and owing to him, and that payment thereof has been demanded and refused, the judge may thereupon, if he thinks it in the interest of justice to do so, make an order under his hand, directing that a writ of attachment may issue to the sheriff of such county, commanding such sheriff to attach, seize, take and safely keep such logs or timber, whereupon a writ of attachment may issue out of the county court, which shall be in the Form (2) in the Schedule to this Chapter, or to the like effect.

10. Upon the delivery of the said writ of attachment to the sheriff, he shall act thereon according to the exigency of the said writ.

11. (1) A copy of the said writ of attachment shall be served upon the defendant, and if the defendant therein named is not the owner of the logs or timber described in the writ, then a copy of the writ shall also be served upon the owner of the said logs or timber, or upon the person or agent in whose possession, custody or control they may be found.

(2) A copy of the claim filed with the clerk as aforesaid shall be attached to the copy of the writ of attachment and served with it.

(3) When the defendant or owner of the logs or timber cannot be found within the county, and there is no one in possession of the logs or timber, then a copy of the writ of attachment shall be forwarded to the sheriff of any county within whose shrievalty the defendant or owner, or either of them, as the case may be, resides or may be found, and such copy of the writ of attachment may be served by such sheriff upon such defendant or owner of the logs or timber. The owner may, on his own application or by direction of the judge, be made a party defendant at the hearing.

(4) In case the defendant or owner cannot be found within the Province, or the owner cannot be ascertained, and no agent or person is in possession for the owner, the writ of attachment may be served in such manner as the judge shall by order direct, but when the writ is served upon an agent or other person in possession as aforesaid, the order of the judge allowing the said service shall be necessary.

(5) Where the service has not been personal upon either the defendant or owner, and where the proper defence has not been made, the judge may at any time before the close of the proceedings in his discretion admit them, or either of them, to make full defence, and may make such order in the premises as may be reasonable and just to all parties.

(6) The sheriff shall, before making any service, be entitled to demand the payment of a sum sufficient to cover the amount of his necessary disbursements in making the same.

12. (1) No sheriff shall seize upon or detain any logs or timber under the provisions of this Chapter when in transit from the place where cut to the place of destination, but in case such logs and timber are so in transit, or are in possession of any boom company or other person or corporation for the purpose of being driven or sorted and delivered to the owners, or to satisfy any statutory lien, then attachment of said logs or timber may be made by serving a copy of said attachment upon the person or corporation driving or holding the same, who shall from the time of such service be deemed to hold the same both on their own behalf and for the said sheriff to the extent of the lien until the logs or timber can be driven or sorted out, and when driven or sorted out the sheriff may receive the said logs or timber from such person or corporation and a statutory lien of such person or corporation shall not be released by the holding of such sheriff.

(2) The claimant or plaintiff in any suit and the sheriff shall, when necessary, be entitled under order of the judge to take any proceedings which the owner of any logs may take for the purpose of procuring the separation of any logs so seized by the sheriff under this Chapter, from other logs with which they have become intermixed, or a sale may be made without such separation if the judge so directs.

13. (1) The owner of said logs or timber, or any person on his behalf having a knowledge of the facts, may make and file with the clerk of the court out of which the attachment issued an affidavit stating what amount is due to persons entitled to a lien against the said logs in addition to the claim of the plaintiff, and such owner or person on his behalf may thereupon execute and file with such clerk a good and sufficient bond to the sheriff, executed by himself and two sureties to be approved by the said clerk and conditioned for the payment of all damages, costs, charges, disbursements and expenses that may be recovered by the claimant in such proceedings, together with the amount for which other lien-holders stated in such affidavit, may have a lien, and thereupon the clerk shall issue an order to the sheriff having in charge the logs or timber, directing their release, and upon service of such order upon the sheriff he shall release the same.

(2) Any lien-holder or lien-holders entitled to the benefit of the said bond may obtain an order from the Judge, entitling him or them to bring an action or actions thereon in his or their name, and upon such order being made, such person or persons may sue upon the said bond in his or their name, such bond shall be retained by the sheriff, subject to any order which the judge may make in respect thereof.

(3) Such bond may be in the Form (3) in the Schedule to this Chapter or to the like effect.

14. (1) The defendant or owner may, at any time after the service of the writ of attachment, and before the sale of the logs or timber, pay into a bank to be designated by the judge, the amount for which a lien is claimed in the suit, together with the additional amount specified in the affidavit mentioned in section 13, and likewise the amount for which a lien is claimed against the said logs or timber in any other suit, (if any), together with the costs of the proceedings thereon to the date of such payment, taxed by the clerk of the court, if so required, and the person making such payment shall thereupon be entitled to a certificate from the judge vacating the said liens, and upon the said certificate being filed with the clerk of the court in which the original statement of claim was filed, the said lien shall be vacated, and all further proceedings thereon shall cease, and the person making such payment shall be further entitled to an order of the judge, directing the delivering up of the logs or timber seized under the attachment or the cancellation of any bond given under section 13 of this Chapter.

(2) When the amount has been paid into a bank under the preceding sub-section, the judge may, on such notice as he may think desirable or necessary to all parties interested, either by advertisement in the Royal Gazette or otherwise, apportion the said amount among the various holders of liens against said logs or timber, and may by order direct that such amount be paid out of the bank by check of the clerk of the court to the various parties entitled thereto.

15. (1) After the said writ of attachment has been returned the judge shall, upon the application of the claimant, which application shall be made within ten days after such return, unless the time shall be extended by the judge, issue an appointment naming a day upon which all persons claiming a lien on the logs or timber shall appear before the judge in person, or by their solicitor or agent, for the adjustment of their claims and the settlement of accounts, and the said appointment shall be served upon the defendant and upon the owner, if the judge so directs, and shall also, if the judge so directs, be published once a week for two weeks before the day named in such appointment in the Royal Gazette.

(2) Provided further that a copy of such appointment shall be mailed by registered letter to every holder of a claim known to the plaintiff as such holder, at least two weeks before the day named in such appointment, directed to the post office address of such claimant where the same is known, and if not known, then to his last known address.

16. (1) Upon the day named in the said appointment and advertisement, the person served with a copy thereof, and all other persons claiming a lien on the said logs or timber, who have prior to the said date, filed with the clerk of the court, a notice claiming such lien on the said logs or timber, and stating the nature and amount of such claim, shall attend before the judge named in the appointment and advertisement.

(2) When claims are brought in pursuant to notice, they may be established prima facie by affidavit, but any parties interested shall be at liberty to cross-examine the deponent and may require that the claim be established by viva voce evidence.

17. The judge shall hear all parties and take all accounts necessary to determine the amount (if any) due to them, or any of them, or any other holders of liens who may be called by the judge to prove their claim, and shall tax to them their costs and determine by whom the same shall be payable and settle their priorities, and shall determine all such matters as may be necessary for the adjustment of the rights of the several parties.

18. At the conclusion of the inquiry, the judge shall make his report and order, which shall state his finding and direct the payment into a bank, to be specified by him, of the amounts (if any) so found to be due, and the costs, within ten days thereafter; and in default of such payment, that the logs or timber shall be sold by the sheriff for the satisfaction of the amount found due to the several parties upon the inquiry.

19. (1) In default of payment into a bank under the preceding section within the time named in the order thereof, the said logs or timber shall, within twenty days thereafter, be sold by the sheriff holding the same, in the same manner and subject to the same provisions of law as goods seized or taken under execution, unless the judge shall direct that additional publicity be given to the sale, and the amount realized by such sale shall, after deducting the expenses thereof payable to the sheriff, be paid into a bank to the credit of the cause, and shall, upon the application of the several parties found to be entitled thereto under the order of the judge, be paid out to them by the clerk of the said court by check drawn upon the said bank to the orders of the parties entitled thereto respectively.

(2) Provided that where the amount realized upon the sale shall not be sufficient to pay the claims in full and the costs, the judge shall apportion the amount realized pro rata among the different claimants. If, after such sale and distribution of the proceeds thereof under the preceding section, any balance shall remain due to any person under the said order of the judge, the Judge shall, upon the application of such person, give to him a certificate that such amount remains due, which certificate may be entered as a judgment in such county court whether the amount is within the ordinary jurisdiction of the county court or not, against the person or persons by whom the claim was directed to be paid, and execution may be issued thereupon as in the case of other judgments in the said court.

20. (1) Where nothing shall be found due upon the several claims filed under section 16 of this Chapter, or upon the lien or liens with respect to which proceedings have been taken, the judge may direct by his said order, that the lien or liens be discharged, and the logs or timber released or security given therefor delivered up and cancelled, and shall also by such order direct payment forthwith of any costs which may be found due to the defendant or the owner of the said logs or timber;

(2) Such costs may be recovered by attachment.

21. Where more money shall be paid into a bank to the credit of a cause, as hereinbefore provided for than shall be required to satisfy the liens which shall be proved, and interest and costs, the judge may order the payment out of the bank of any remaining moneys to the party entitled to the same.

22. (1) Any person affected by proceedings taken under this Chapter, may apply to the judge to dismiss the same for want of due prosecution, and the judge may make such order upon the application as to costs or otherwise as may be just.

(2) The judge may at any stage of such proceedings, on application of any party, or as he may see fit, order that any person or corporation who may be deemed a necessary party to any such proceeding, be added as a party thereto, or be served with any process or notice provided by this chapter, and the judge may make such order as to the costs of adding such person or corporation, or as to such service as he may deem proper.

23. Any number of lien-holders may join in taking proceedings under this Chapter, but the statement of claim to be filed under section 4 shall include particular statements of the several claims of persons so joining, and shall be verified by the affidavit of such persons so joining, or of some one having a knowledge of the facts on their behalf, or separate statements of claim may be filed and verified as by this Chapter provided, and one attachment issue on behalf of all the persons so joining.

24. When separate proceedings have been commenced under this Chapter against the same logs or timber, or any part of them, any judge before whom any of the proceedings are pending may consolidate the proceedings, and may give such directions as may seem advisable or necessary in reference to the proceedings after consolidation.

25. No lien under this Chapter shall be held to be waived or discharged merely by the taking of a note or due-bill from the person liable for the debt in respect of which the lien is claimed, or from the owner of the lumber or any person acting on his behalf, until such note or due-bill has been paid, except that partial payment upon such note or due-bill shall be deemed a discharge of the lien pro tanto; provided, however, that if a note or due-bill given for such debt shall have passed into the hands of a third party, the judge may order that such amount as may be found due shall be paid to the holder of the note or due-bill to the extent thereof.

26. (1) When taxed costs, exclusive of necessary disbursements by the sheriff and clerk's fees, and necessary witness fees, according to the scale of fees in the county court, of the proceedings to enforce any lien under this Chapter, which are payable out of the amount realized by the proceedings for the satisfaction of the lien, shall exceed ten per cent of the amount so realized, such costs, upon application of any party to the proceedings interested in the payment thereof, shall be reduced by the judge, so that the same shall not in the aggregate exceed the said ten per cent, and no more costs than such reduced amount shall be recovered between party and party or solicitor and client.

(2) The costs outside of sheriff's fees and clerk's fees, and necessary witness fees which may be taxed to any claimant proving a claim under this Chapter, shall not exceed ten per cent of the amount of his claim.

(3) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) of this section, when not otherwise provided herein, the costs to be taxed to any party shall, as far as possible, be according to the tariff of fees in force as to other proceedings in the county court.

(4) The following shall be allowed to the clerk in lieu of all other fees under this Chapter:—

|                                                                          |        |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| For filing all papers in connection with any one claim or lien.....      | $0 20 |
| For filing each additional claim in connection with the one proceeding.. | 0 10   |
| For signing and sealing writ of attachment.....                          | 0 20   |
| For filing all judgment papers.....                                      | 0 40   |

27. (1) Any decree or order made by a judge under this Chapter shall be subject to appeal in the same manner and subject to the same provisions as respects the decision of a judge of a county court in other cases.

(2) Upon such appeal being taken, the judge may stay the proceedings pending the appeal as in other cases of appeal in the county court.

28. Any affidavit required under this Chapter, may be sworn before a judge of a county court, commissioner for taking affidavits, or justice of the peace.

(Forms and schedules omitted.)

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Assignments, Liquidations, Executions, etc.

Chapter 149.—1. Whenever an assignment is made of any real or personal property for the general benefit of creditors (whether such assignment contains preferences or not), the assignee shall pay in priority to the claim of the ordinary or general creditors (and likewise other preferred creditors) of the person making the same, the wages or salary of all persons in the employment of such person at the time of the making of the assignment, or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue (if any) of their claims.

2. In distributing the assets of a company under the provisions of The Companies Winding-up Act, Chapter 90 of these Consolidated Statutes, the curator shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the company, the wages or salary of all persons in the employment of the company at the time of the making of the winding-up order, or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors of the company for the residue (if any) of their claims.

3. In distributing the assets of any deceased person, the executor or administrator shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the deceased the wages or salary of all persons in the employment of the deceased at the time of his death, or within one month prior thereto, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors of the estate for the residue (if any) of their claims.

4. All persons in the employment of an execution debtor at the time of the seizure by the sheriff of property of the debtor, or within one month prior thereto, shall be entitled to be paid by such sheriff out of the moneys realized on such execution the wages or salary due to them by the execution debtor, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, in priority to the claim of the execution creditor, and such persons shall be entitled to recover from the debtor the balance (if any) of their claims; provided that before the sheriff pays over the moneys realized on such sale, the person claiming the benefit of this section file with the sheriff a statement of his claim verified by affidavit made before a commissioner for taking affidavits or a justice of the peace. In case such claim is filed with the sheriff, he may, if he has not already levied for sufficient to satisfy the claim of the execution creditor, and also the said claim of such wage-earner, make a further levy to an amount sufficient for the purpose, either before or after the return day named in the execution, and may proceed thereon in all respects as if he had made such additional levy at the time of the original levy. If any dispute arises as to the correctness of any such claim, or the sheriff, for his own protection, thinks proper to do so, he may apply to the judge of the county court upon petition, stating the facts as to the moneys in his hands and the claim filed, and obtain a summons calling upon the debtor and claimant to appear before the judge at a time and place to be named in such summons, and the judge, upon hearing the parties, or such of them as appear at the return of the summons, may make an order disallowing the claim, or allowing it in whole or in part, and may make such order therein as justice may require, and the sheriff's obedience to such order shall be a defence to him in any proceedings which the claimant or debtor may bring against him in respect of any sum which he may pay in accordance with such order.

5. Any person in the employment of an absconding, concealed, or absent debtor, at the time of a seizure by the sheriff, under Chapter 135 of these Consolidated Statutes, respecting absconding, concealed, or absent debtors, or within one month prior thereto, shall be entitled to be paid out of any moneys realized out of the property of such debtor, by such sheriff, the wages or salary due to him by the absconding concealed, or absent debtor, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, in priority to the claims of the other creditors of the absconding, concealed or absent debtor, and shall be entitled to share pro rata with such other creditors as to the residue, if any, of his claim.

6. Where a mortgage to secure debentures issued by any railway company is hereafter foreclosed, and the railway sold, or the railway is hereafter sold under power of sale in any mortgage, the referee or mortgagee shall, out of the proceeds of the sale, after payment of the costs of the foreclosure suit, or if the sale is made under power of sale, pay the wages or salary of all persons employed in the operation of the railway at the time of the commencement of the foreclosure proceedings or proceedings for sale, or within one month previous thereto (not exceeding three months' wages or salary) in priority to the claims of bond-holders or other creditors, save only employees engaged by the receiver, in case a receiver is appointed, or by the mortgagee in operating the railway.

7. This Chapter is not intended to apply to an assignment made under the provisions of any Act of the Parliament of Canada relating to or respecting bankruptcy or insolvency.

STATUTES OF 1904.

Bureau of Labour.

Chapter 17 with amendment.—1. There shall be attached to the Department of the Provincial Secretary, or such other existing head of Department as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall designate, a bureau to be styled the "Bureau of Labour."

2. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a secretary of the said bureau.

3. It shall be the object of the bureau to collect, assort and systematize and publish information and statistics relating to employment, wages and hours of labour throughout the Province, co-operation, strikes, or other labour difficulties, trades unions, labour organizations, the relations between labour and capital, and other subjects of interest to working men and working women, with such information relating to the commercial, industrial and sanitary condition of working men and working women, and the permanent prosperity of the industries of the province as the bureau may be able to gather.

4. (1) The head of such department to which the Bureau of Labour is attached, shall be known as the "Commissioner of Labour."

(2) Such Commissioner of Labour may appoint at such time or times as he deems it desirable, agents in the industrial centres of the Province, whose duty will be to assist in getting statistical information, to consult with employers and employees in order to prevent or settle lockouts and strikes, and to confer with factory inspectors as to their duties and the making up of their semi-annual reports. 1910, c. 35.

STATUTES OF 1906.

Employment of Children—School Attendance.

[Chapter 13, Part one, provides that in every school district a resolution, that the provisions of this Part be made operative in the district, is to be submitted annually at the school meeting until the said resolution is adopted. When a majority of the voters have voted in favour of the resolution, it becomes the duty of the school trustees to make lists of the names and ages of all children in the district between seven and twelve years of age, and of the names of their parents or guardians. The trustees are to ascertain how many days such children attend school and to collect from the parents or guardians two dollars for each child who has attended school no portion of the year, and pro rata for each child who has attended but who has not reached sixty per cent of the teaching days. Parents are to be exempted from payment who can show that their children are being properly educated elsewhere otherwise than in the public schools or whose children are prevented through delicate health, or through being more than two miles from a school in a district where no provision is made for conveyance, or through other sufficient cause, from attendance.]

Part two is to be operative only in the cities and incorporated towns to which section 105 of chapter 50 of the Consolidated Statutes, 1903, applies. In each of these cities or towns a resolution bringing into force the provisions of this part is to be submitted annually to the city or town council. When the resolution is adopted, the attendance of children at school shall be regulated as follows:—]

10. Every child in the city or town shall attend school during the regular school hours every day for at least one hundred and twenty days in each school year, unless the physical or mental condition of the child is such as to render such attendance or instruction in the subjects taught in such schools inexpedient or impracticable; but any child over twelve years of age who passes a satisfactory examination in grade seven of common school work, and any other child over thirteen years of age who has attended school sixty days during fourteen consecutive weeks in the preceding year, if necessity requires him to work, and who shows that fact to the satisfaction of the board, and obtains the written permission of the secretary of such board for such employment, shall be exempt from the requirements of this section.

11. The Board shall ascertain before the first day of each school year the names and ages of all children residing in the city or town between the ages of six and sixteen years, and the names of their parents or guardians or persons having charge of them, and carefully preserve lists of the same.

14. The Board shall ascertain as soon as possible after the close of the school for the year, how many of the children named in the lists prepared under the provisions of this Act have not been at school for one hundred and twenty days during such school year, and shall notify the parents, guardians or persons having charge of such children, of the exact number of days' attendance made by such children during the year, and that they are liable to prosecution under this Act unless they satisfy the Board that there was a good reason for the failure of such children to attend for the full period prescribed.

15. The Board shall also ascertain how many of the children residing in the city or town have not attended school at all during the year, and shall notify the parents, guardians or persons having charge of such children that they are liable to prosecution under this Act unless they satisfy the Board that there was good reason for non-attendance.

16. Every parent, guardian or person having charge of any child residing in the city or town, shall cause such child to attend some public or private day school approved by the Board, at least one hundred and twenty days in each school year, except as exempted under the preceding provisions of this second part.

18. Every parent, guardian or person having charge of any child in the city or town who fails to comply with the next two preceding sections, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one dollar, nor more than twenty dollars for the first offence, and for every second or subsequent offence to a penalty of one dollar and costs, for each school day that the law is not complied with; provided, however, that the same person shall not be fined more than sixty dollars, exclusive of costs, in any one year.

19. (1) It shall be the duty of the Board to institute proceedings under this Act against all parents, guardians and persons having charge of children residing in the city or town who fail to comply with the law, unless such parents, guardians or persons satisfy the Board that—

(a) The physical or mental condition of the child of or under the guardianship of such person is such as to render attendance or instruction in a public school inexpedient or impracticable, or

(b) Such child is being properly educated in reading, spelling, writing, composition, geography and arithmetic, otherwise than in a public or approved private school, or

(c) The failure to attend the requisite term was owing to ill health, or temporary absence from the city or town, or

(d) Through some domestic affliction in the family of said person, it is necessary or prudent, in the opinion of the Board to keep such child at home, or

(e) The parent, guardian or person summoned was by reason of poverty unable to provide such child with proper and sufficient wearing apparel for attendance at school, and that such parent, guardian or person bona fide endeavoured to procure sufficient wearing apparel for such child to attend school.

(2) No parent, guardian or person having charge of any child shall be exempted from the penalties mentioned in this second Part on the ground that the child in question has been educated otherwise than in a public or approved private school, unless such child present a certificate from the city or town superintendent of schools or a principal of school of the city or town of having passed a satisfactory examination in the grade of work suitable to the child's age and previous opportunities for receiving an education; and it shall be the duty of the city or town superintendent of schools or principal to examine at stated times all such children making application whose compliance with this Act is called in question.

(3) In any prosecution under this Act, the age stated in the information shall be taken prima facie to be the age of the child.

(4) The Board, its executive committee, or some person or persons appointed by them for the purpose, shall alone have power and authority to prosecute or institute any proceedings under this Act.

31. (1) No child under the age of sixteen years shall be employed in the city or town by any person to labour in any business whatever during the school hours of any school day unless such child has attended some public school or some approved private school, or has been otherwise instructed by a teacher qualified to instruct in spelling, reading, writing, geography, composition and arithmetic for at least six months of the twelve months next preceding such employment, and in every year in which such child is employed, and at the time of such employment delivers to the employer a certificate signed by the Secretary of the Board, certifying to such attendance, or a certificate signed by the city or town superintendent of schools or principal that such child has passed a satisfactory examination in grade seven of common school work.

(2) No child under the age of thirteen years shall at any time be employed in any mechanical, manufacturing or mercantile establishment.

(3) Any person who employs any child contrary to the provisions of this section shall, for each offence, be liable to a penalty of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars.

32. The Board or such officer or person as they appoint shall, at the beginning of each school year, and at such other times as the Board deems necessary, examine into the situation of the children employed in all manufacturing and other establishments in the city or town, and ascertain whether the provisions of this Act are duly observed and prosecute all persons violating its provisions.

33. On demand, on any such examination as mentioned in the next preceding section the proprietor, superintendent or manager of such establishment or manufactory shall exhibit to the officer or person appointed by the Board to make any such examination a correct list of all children under the age of sixteen years employed in such manufactory or establishment with the certificates of attendance at schools or of instruction. Any such proprietor, superintendent or manager who refuses or neglects to furnish such lists and certificates, or to send such lists and certificates to the officer of the Board when requested in writing to do so, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten dollars, nor more than fifty dollars.

34. All fines, forfeitures and penalties imposed by this Act, or any amendment hereof, shall be prosecuted in the name of His Majesty the King, and when any Act or thing is directed to be done or prohibited by this Act, and no penalty is provided therefor, then, in such case the person violating this Act shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, and in default of payment, to imprisonment in the county gaol for a period not exceeding sixty days, or both, at the discretion of the stipendiary magistrate.

Homes for Workingmen—Erection of Miners' Houses Encouraged.

Chapter 28.—Whereas, His Majesty the King owns as part of the right of way formerly owned by the New Brunswick Coal and Railway Company, considerable land which is not needed for the purposes of the railway, and which could be utilized to advantage for the erection thereon of miners' houses:

1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council is hereby authorized to make grants to any mining company or its assigns, upon such conditions as to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may seem in the public interest, of such portions of such right of way as may not be required for the purposes of the railway, in order that the same may be used for the erection of houses for the use of miners engaged in the work of mining coal near said line of railway.

2. The grants thereof shall be executed in the usual manner.

STATUTES OF 1911.

Employment of Children—School Attendance.

Chapter 34.—1. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Second Part of Chapter 13 of the Acts of the Legislative Assembly, 6 Edward VII, the provisions of said Part shall not apply to any child between the age of 14 and 16 years, provided:

(1) That the said child produces a certificate signed by the secretary of the board of school trustees of the city or town in which such child resides, certifying that said child has regularly attended school for a reasonable period previous to the granting of said certificate, and is reasonably proficient in writing, reading and the performance of simple arithmetical problems, involving the fundamental process of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division, or

(2) Passes a satisfactory examination before the secretary of the board of school trustees of the city or town in which such child resides, upon the subjects hereinbefore mentioned, and produces a certificate to that effect.

2. The secretary of the board of school trustees is hereby authorized to examine any child applying to be examined under the last preceding section, and to grant certificates thereby authorized in such form as may be sufficient.

3. Whenever it is necessary under this Act that the age of any child shall be verified by the oath or affidavit of any parent or guardian, or any other fact, attested by oath or affidavit, the secretary of the board of school trustees, as well as any justice of the peace, commissioner for taking affidavits to be read in the Supreme Court, or notary public, is authorized to administer the same.

STATUTES OF 1915.

Examination and Licensing of Chauffeurs.

Chapter 43 with amendments.—6. (1) Every person hereafter desiring to operate a motor vehicle as a chauffeur must first obtain a certificate of competency from an examiner to be appointed by the Minister of Public Works. The qualifications necessary to obtain such a certificate shall consist of such a knowledge of the operation and mechanism of a motor vehicle as will satisfy the examiner that the applicant is a proper person to be in charge of a motor vehicle. On receipt of a certificate of competency from such examiner, the applicant shall forward the same to the Department of Public Works, together with the registration fee of two dollars. This fee shall be in addition to the fee payable under Section 9 of the said Act. 1918, c. 25, s. 1.

(2) The applicant must furnish the said examiner with satisfactory testimonials as to his character and sobriety, and no application for examination shall be entertained unless the applicant shall produce an affidavit to the satisfaction of the said examiner, setting forth that such applicant has attained the age of eighteen years. 1918, c. 25, s. 2.

(3) The said examiner shall forthwith file said testimonials and affidavit in the office of the Minister of Public Works, and such chauffeur shall be registered in a book or index to be kept for that purpose, and a number shall be assigned to him. 1918, c. 25, s. 3.

(4) The Department of Public Works shall forthwith, upon such registration, deliver to such chauffeur a badge of aluminium or other suitable material, and such badge shall be for one year only, and shall have stamped thereon "Registered Chauffeur, License, N.B." with the registration number and year inserted therein, which badge shall thereafter be worn by such chauffeur upon his clothing in a conspicuous place at all times while he is operating a motor vehicle upon the public highways; to be effective on and after the first day of January, 1920. 1919, c. 11, s. 6.

(5) No chauffeur having registered as hereinbefore provided shall voluntarily permit any other person to wear his badge nor shall any person while operating a motor vehicle wear any badge belonging to another person or a fictitious badge.

(6) No person shall operate a motor vehicle as a chauffeur upon the public highways unless such person shall have complied with the requirements of this section and section 9.

9. (1) No chauffeur shall drive a motor vehicle unless he shall have paid to the Secretary of the Department of Public Works, in addition to the registration fee required by this law, an annual fee of two dollars, which said annual fee shall be payable the first day of January in each year, and any person who permits a chauffeur to operate his car until satisfied that said chauffeur has paid his annual tax, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two nor more than ten dollars.

(2) The Department of Public Works shall give to each chauffeur a receipt for this annual tax, which receipt is to contain the nationality, age, height, weight, colour of eyes and hair of chauffeur, and to be carried on the person of the chauffeur and produced upon demand. Amended 1917, c. 21, s. 6.

STATUTES OF 1916.

Homes for Workingmen.

[Chapter 74 authorizes the City of St. John to erect dwellings suitable for occupation by workingmen.]

<sup>1</sup>Regulations have been issued under the authority of this section.

STATUTES OF 1917.

Early Closing of Shops.

Chapter 33, with amendment.—1. This Act may be cited as The Early Closing Act.

2. Unless the context otherwise requires, the following words and expressions in this section and in any by-law passed under the provisions of this Act, shall have the meaning hereby assigned them, respectively:

(a) "Shop" shall mean any building or portion of a building, booth, stall or place where goods are exposed or offered for sale by retail, but not where the only trade or business carried on is that of a druggist, tobacconist, news agent, hotel, inn, restaurant, café, fruiterer, confectioner, florist, keeper of an ice cream parlor or vendor of soda water. In the last mentioned places of business no groceries shall be sold or exposed for sale during the prohibited hours.

(b) "Closed" shall mean not open for the service of any customer; provided, that nothing in this Act, or in any by-law passed by authority thereof, shall be deemed to render unlawful the continuance in a shop, after the hour appointed for the closing thereof, of any customers who were in the shop immediately before that hour, or the serving of such customers during their continuance therein.

3. Nothing contained in this Act, or in any by-law made under authority thereof, shall, during the time shops are to remain closed, prevent the sale or delivery of merchandise which may be required in cases of death, sickness or accident.

4. Stores wherein are established post offices or express offices, may remain open during the time shops are to remain closed, but only for the postal or express service.

5. Upon the presentation of a petition signed by two-thirds of the persons engaged in any particular line of business, in any city or incorporated town, the city council or town council of such city or town may require that, during the whole or any part or parts of the year, all shops within the city or town engaged in such line of business, shall be closed and remain closed on each day or any day of the week, except Saturday, between six of the clock in the afternoon of any day and five of the clock in the forenoon of the next following day. 1919, c. 50, s. 1.

6. The provisions of the last preceding section shall not apply to days preceding the following holidays, namely—Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day and Thanksgiving Day, nor any day proclaimed a public holiday by lawful authority; nor shall the provisions of the said section apply to any days during the last three weeks of the month of December and the first two weeks of January in each year.

7. The provisions of section 5 of this Act, so far as Fridays are concerned, shall not apply to persons who close their shops on Saturdays at one o'clock in the afternoon and keep the same closed until five o'clock on the morning of the following Mondays.

8. Any person found guilty of infringement of any by-law made under the authority of this Act shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten dollars nor exceeding forty dollars, for each offence, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two months. Prosecutions for the infringement of any by-law passed hereunder shall be governed by chapter 123 of the Consolidated Statutes, 1903, of New Brunswick, being "The Summary Convictions Act."

9. The Acts 1 George V, chapter 15 (1911) and 2 George V, chapter 29 (1912) are hereby repealed.

10. This Act shall come into operation on the first day of July next.

11. If several trades or businesses are carried on in the same shop, and if any by-law passed under the provisions of this Act does not apply to any one or more of such trades or business, such shop may on such terms and conditions as may be specified in said by-law, be kept open after the closing hour for the purposes of those trades or businesses only. 1919, c. 50, s. 2.

STATUTES OF 1918.

Health of Employees in Factories, Construction Camps, etc.

[Chapter 36, The Public Health Act, defines "House" as including factories, warehouses, offices, and other buildings for human occupation, whether movable or stationary and whether used temporarily or permanently.]

"Nuisance" . . . includes . . . overcrowding, lack of proper ventilation, gases, vapours, smells, dust and smoke.

"Public Place" means and includes . . . factory, office, store, . . . or any tent, building, house or structure of any kind to which the public have access.

8. The Minister of Health may, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, make and issue such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this Act as he may deem necessary for . . .

(b) The inspection, cleansing, purifying, plumbing, drainage, ventilating and disinfecting of houses . . .

(c) The inspection, construction, maintenance, cleansing, purifying and disinfection of all water supply systems and of sewers, location of water closets, privies . . . or other things which may be detrimental to the public health . . .

(d) The prevention, abatement and removal of nuisances.

(e) The method of carrying on of all factories, trades or businesses, so far as relates to the public health and the summary abatement or prevention of any nuisance arising or liable to arise therefrom, and the prevention of injury to the public health occurring or likely to occur thereby.

(o) For licensing and regulating plumbers, and regulating the plumbing and draining to be installed in and for the use of buildings.

(p) Respecting any particular industry and the conditions under which the same can be carried on, for the purpose of preventing nuisance or the outbreak or spread of disease.

(q) For the cleansing, regulating, inspection and sanitary requirements of lumbering, mining, railway construction or other camps, works or places where labour is employed, for the employment of duly qualified medical practitioners by the employers at such camps, works or places and for the erection of permanent or temporary hospitals, and for the construction, arrangement and inspection of houses, for the accommodation of the men employed at such camps, works or places.

21. The Minister, or any officer of the Department [of Health] or the Bureau, or any medical health officer or inspector may, for any of the purposes of this Act, or in case of emergency at any hour of the day or night, as often as he or they think necessary, enter into and upon any premises and examine the same.

27. All factories, of whatsoever kind, employing over ten persons shall be examined by the district medical health officer, or an inspector, who shall give his certificate that on such examination he found all the requirements of this Act, and all regulations made under the Act were being fulfilled.

Before such certificate shall be granted, the premises shall be examined by the district medical health officer or an inspector, who shall give his certificate that on such examination he found all requirements of this Act and of all regulations made under this Act were being fulfilled.

No factory as above shall operate or carry on business without such certificate, except that in his discretion the Minister may consent for any factory to continue for such time as he deems sufficient to permit such factory fulfilling the requirements of this Act.

30. No person shall be employed in any camp, ship, factory or other place wherein the employees come at frequent intervals into close and prolonged contact one with another, unless and until such person produces to the employer or the employer's representative a certificate, signed by a regularly qualified medical practitioner, of successful vaccination, or of a like signed certificate that he is immune to vaccinia as proven by three consecutive non-successful vaccinations, or that he is immune to smallpox by reason of having had the disease, and no employer shall employ any person in employment as set forth above, without such certificate being produced. When any person contracts smallpox, who is at the time of the inception of his sickness employed as set out in this section, or who was so employed within fourteen days prior to the inception of his sickness, and who has not complied, or been required to comply, by said employer or employer's representative, with the foregoing provisions prior to his employment; then in such case the employer shall be primarily liable to pay all such costs, charges and expenses as the subdistrict Board of Health concerned may have incurred in necessarily protecting the public health: provided such charges, costs and expenses were incurred in or about the necessary precautions relative to, or immediately appertaining to, any such case of smallpox, and such costs, charges and expenses may be sued for and recovered with costs, in the name of the chairman of the subdistrict board incurring the same, in any court of competent jurisdiction, within six months of the recovery or death of any such person. Such liability shall be in addition and without prejudice to any liability for any penalty provided for any violation of the provisions of this Act.

The terms and conditions of this Section shall not become operative until the First day of July, A.D. 1920. 1919, c. 51, s. 1; amended 1920, c. 65, s. 2.

Workmen's Compensation.

Chapter 37 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1918.

2. In this Part, unless inconsistent with the context,

(a) "Accident fund" shall mean the fund provided for the payment of compensation under Part 1 of this Act,

(b) "Association" shall mean any association or body of employers whose constitution shall have been approved by the Board as entitling such association to represent any of the classes provided for in this Act or any subdivision or group of employers in such class,

(c) "Average earnings" and "earning capacity" when used in reference to the time of, or before, the injury shall be calculated upon the daily, weekly, monthly or the regular remuneration which the workman was receiving at the time of the injury or received previously as may appear to the Board best to represent the actual loss of earnings suffered by the workmen by reason of the injury, but not in any case to exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars per year.

Where the workman was at the date of the accident under twenty-one years of age and is established to the satisfaction of the Board that under normal conditions his wages would probably increase, this fact shall be considered in arriving at his average earnings or earning capacity. 1920, c. 12, s. 1.

- (d) "Board" shall mean Workmen's Compensation Board
- (e) "Construction" shall include reconstruction, repair, alteration, renovating, painting and decorating,
- (f) "Dependants" shall mean such of the members of the family of a workman as were wholly or partly dependent upon his earnings at the time of his death, or who but for the incapacity due to the accident would have been so dependent,
- (g) "Employer" shall mean any person, firm, association or body having in service any workman in any industry within the scope of this Part, and shall in respect of any such industry include municipal corporations and may include the Crown as represented by the Province of New Brunswick and the Dominion of Canada in so far as they or either of them may, in their capacity as employers, submit to the operation of this Act. 1919, c. 7, s. 2.
- (h) "Industrial disease" shall mean any disease which by the regulations is declared to be an industrial disease,
- (i) "Industry" shall mean and refer to the whole or any part of any industry, operation, undertaking or employment within the scope of this Part, and in the case of any industry, operation, undertaking or employment not as a whole within the scope of this Part, shall mean any department or part of such industry, operation, undertaking or employment as would, if carried on by itself, be within the scope of this Part,
- (j) "Invalid" shall mean physically or mentally incapable of earning,
- (k) "Manufacturing" shall include making, preparing, altering, repairing, renovating, dyeing, cleaning, ornamenting, printing, finishing, assembling, packing and adapting for use or sale any raw material, goods, article or commodity;
- (l) "Member of the family" shall mean and include wife, husband, father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, step-father, step-mother, son, daughter, grandson, granddaughter, step-son, step-daughter, brother, sister, half-brother, and half-sister, and a person who stood in loco parentis to the workman or to whom the workman stood in loco parentis whether related to him by consanguinity or not so related, and where the workman is the parent or grandparent of an illegitimate child, shall include such child, and where the workman is an illegitimate child, shall include his parents and grandparents;
- (m) "Mining" shall include mine rescue work;
- (n) "Navigation" shall mean the operation of any ship, boat, tug, dredge or other vessel owned in New Brunswick, while such vessel is within the limits of the said Province;
- (o) "Outworker" shall mean a person to whom articles or materials are given out to be made up, cleaned, washed, altered, ornamented, finished, repaired or adapted for use or sale, in his own home or in other premises not under the control or management of the person who gave out the articles or materials;
- (p) "Person" shall include any person, whether male or female, or any corporation, and the heirs, executors, administrators or legal representatives of such person, or the successors of such corporation;
- (q) "Quarrying" shall include excavation for any purpose, drilling, and the removal or transportation of any rock, shale, gravel, sand, earth, or other material;
- (r) "Regulations" shall mean regulations made by the Board under the authority of this Part;
- (s) "Stevedoring" shall mean the loading or unloading of vessels and railway cars and the handling of goods, articles and commodities on or about any dock, wharf or quay;
- (t) "Teaming" shall include all kinds of work done by workmen with teams, carts (including hand carts), drays, trucks, cabs, carriages, automobiles and other vehicles;
- (u) "Workman" shall include a person who has entered into or works under a contract of service or apprenticeship, written or oral, express or implied, and whether by way of manual labour or otherwise, in any industry within the scope of this Part.

PART I.

Scope of this Part.

3. This Part shall apply to employers and workmen in or about the industries of lumbering, mining, quarrying, manufacturing, building, construction, engineering; operation of any railway, tramway, telegraph, telephone, cable or electric light or power line or system; operation of any water works, gas works or sewerage plant or system, or other public utility; operation of any refrigeration, storage or terminal warehouse, elevator or plant; operation of any passenger or freight elevator; operation of any theatre or place of public amusement; scavenging and street cleaning; horse-shoeing; operation of any lumber yard, or fuel yard; stevedoring; or navigation; Persons employed in the woods in logging, cutting of timber, pulp-wood, firewood, railroad ties or sleepers, or river-driving, rafting, booming or the transportation of logs, timber, pulp-wood, firewood, railroad ties or sleepers; teaming, shipbuilding, printing, laundries, wholesale and retail stores (except as provided in sub-section (a) of Section 3 of the Act), fishing, canning, plumbing, and road making, transportation, handling of hides; coal, and wood merchants, hospitals, hotels and window cleaning, and any employment incidental thereto or immediately connected therewith; provided that, subject to sections 4 and 5 this Part shall not apply to the following:—

(a) Persons engaged as travelling salesmen or in office or other clerical work, and not exposed to the hazards incident to the nature of the work carried on in the industry;

(b) Persons whose employment is of a casual nature, and who are employed otherwise than for the purposes of the industry;

(c) Outworkers;

(d) Persons employed by a city, town or municipal corporation as members of a police force or fire department;

(e) Members of the family of the employer residing with the employer;

(f) Persons employed as farm labourers or domestic or menial servants;

(g) Persons employed in the woods in logging, cutting of timber, pulpwood, firewood, railroad ties or sleepers, or river driving, rafting, booming or the transportation of logs, timber, pulpwood, firewood, railroad ties or sleepers.

4. Where it shall appear to the Board that any kind of industry not within the scope of this Part may properly be brought within the scope of this Part, the Board may so report to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, who may thereupon, by Order in Council, declare such industry to be within the scope of this Part, and from and after the date of such Order in Council or such date as may be named therein, such industry shall be deemed to be within the scope of this Part.

5. (1) Any industry or workman not within the scope of this Part by virtue of section 3 may, on the application of the employer, be admitted by the Board as being within the scope of this Part on such terms and conditions, and for such period, and from time to time, as the Board may prescribe, and from and after such admission, and during the period of such admission, such industry or workman shall be deemed to be within the scope of this Part.

(2) Any employer in any industry within the scope of this Part may be admitted, on such terms and conditions, and for such period, and from time to time, as the Board may prescribe, as being entitled, for himself or his dependants, as the case may be, to the same compensation as if such employer were a workman within the scope of this Part.

(3) Such admission may be made in such manner and form as the Board may deem adequate and proper.

6. The Board may by regulation exclude from the scope of this Part any industry or industries in which not more than a stated number (fixed by such regulation) of workmen are usually employed, and the Board may from time to time revoke, alter or modify any such regulation; provided that any industry so excluded may be re-admitted by the Board as being within the scope of this Part.

Compensation.

7. Where personal injury or death is caused to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment in any industry within the scope of this Part, compensation shall be paid to such workman or his dependants, as the case may be, as hereinafter provided, unless such injury was, in the opinion of the Board, intentionally caused by such workman, or was wholly or principally due to intoxication or serious and wilful misconduct on the part of the workman, or to a fortuitous event unconnected with the industry in which the workman was employed.

8. Where it appears that by the laws of any other province, state or country, a workman or his dependants, if resident in New Brunswick, would be entitled in respect of death or injury in such Province, country or jurisdiction to compensation corresponding or similar to that provided in this Part, and an Order in Council to that effect is passed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the Board may order that payments of compensation under this Part may be made to persons resident in such province, country or jurisdiction in respect of any workman killed or injured in New Brunswick; but save as in this section provided nothing in this Part shall entitle any person not resident in New Brunswick to compensation payments; provided that the Board may upon application grant leave from time to time to any workman or dependant resident in New Brunswick at the time of the accident to reside out of New Brunswick without thereby forfeiting the right to compensation payments under this Part.

[An Order in Council was passed on February 5th, 1919, authorizing the Board to pay compensation out of the accident fund of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1918, to a workman or his dependants residing outside of New Brunswick when entitled thereto in case of death or injury within the Province when the laws of such province, state, or country in which such workman or his dependants reside, provide in case of death or injury for payment of compensation corresponding or similar to that provided by Part I of the Workmen's Compensation Act of this Province to a workman or his dependants resident in this Province.]

9. Where an accident occurs to a workman in the course of his employment in such circumstances as to entitle him or his dependants to any claim or right of action against his employer under, or in virtue of, any statute of the Parliament of Canada, or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, such workman or dependants shall be entitled to compensation under this Part to the extent to which the compensation under this Part would exceed in amount or value the amount or value of such claim or right of action; provided that if such workman or dependants shall execute and give a full and effectual release of the employer from any such claim or right of action the Board may pay to such workman or dependants the full amount of the compensation provided by this Part.

10. (1) Where an accident occurs to a workman in the course of his employment in such circumstances as to entitle him or his dependants to an action against some person other than his employer the workman or his dependants if entitled to compensation under this Part may claim such compensation or may bring such action.

(2) If such workman or his dependants bring such action, and less is recovered and collected than the amount of the compensation to which such workman or dependants would be entitled under this Part, such workman or dependants shall be entitled to compensation under this Part to the extent of the amount or amounts of such difference.

(3) If such workmen or dependants, or any of them have claimed compensation under this Part, the Board shall be subrogated to the position of such workman or dependant as against such other person for the whole or any outstanding part of the claim of such workman or dependant against such other person.

11. Nothing in section 10 shall give any right to an employer or to a workman within the scope of this Part to bring an action against any employer within the scope of this Part; but in any case where it appears to the satisfaction of the Board that a workman of an employer in any class was injured or killed owing to the negligence of an employer or the workman of an employer in another class, the Board may direct that the compensation awarded in any such case shall be charged against the class to which such last mentioned employer belongs.

12. Except as provided by section 61 the provisions of this Part shall be in lieu of all claims and rights of action, statutory or otherwise, to which a workman or his dependants are or may be entitled against the employer of such workman for, or by reason of any accident in respect of which compensation is payable under this Part.

13. It shall not be competent for a workman to agree with his employer to waive or forego any of the benefits to which he or his dependants are or may become entitled under this Part, and every agreement to that end shall be absolutely void.

14. It shall not be lawful for an employer, either directly or indirectly, to deduct from the wages of any of the workmen any part of any sum which the employer is or may become liable to pay into the accident fund or otherwise under this Part, or to require or to permit any of his workmen to contribute in any manner towards indemnifying the employer against any liability which he has incurred or may incur under this Part.

15. Unless with the approval of the Board, no sum payable as compensation or by way of commutation of any periodical payment in respect of it shall be capable of being assigned, charged or attached, nor shall it pass by operation of law except to a personal representative.

16. No compensation shall be payable under this Part in respect of any injury unless application for such compensation is made within one year after the occurrence of the injury.

The Workmen's Compensation Board.

17. There is hereby constituted a Commission for the administration of this Part to be called the "Workmen's Compensation Board," which shall be a body corporate, and shall have a seal which shall be judicially noticed.

18. (1) The Board shall consist of three members to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

(2) Each Commissioner shall hold office during good behaviour, but may be removed at any time for cause.

(3) Unless otherwise directed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, a Commissioner shall cease to hold office when he attains the age of seventy-five years.

19. In case of the death, illness or absence from New Brunswick of any Commissioner, or of his inability to act from any cause, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint some other person to act pro tempore in his stead.

20. (1) One of the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to be the chairman of the Board, and another of the Commissioners shall be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to be vice-chairman of the Board.

(2) In case of the absence of the chairman or of his inability to act or of a vacancy in the office, the vice-chairman may act as and shall have all the powers of the chairman.

(3) Where the vice-chairman appears to have acted for or instead of the chairman, it shall be presumed that he so acted for one of the reasons mentioned in the preceding subsection.

21. The presence of two Commissioners shall be necessary to constitute a quorum of the Board.

22. A vacancy in the Board shall not, if there remain two members of it, impair the authority of such two members to act.

23. (1) The offices of the Board shall be situated at the city of St. John or at such other place as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall designate and its sittings shall be held there except where it is expedient to hold sittings elsewhere, in which case sittings may be held in any part of New Brunswick.

24. The Commissioners shall sit at such times and conduct their proceedings in such manner as they may deem most convenient for the proper discharge and dispatch of business; provided that in respect of any matter coming before the Board for decision, any employer, association, workman or dependant interested in such decision, shall be entitled upon application to a public hearing, before such decision is made by the Board.

25. The Board shall appoint a secretary and a chief medical officer and may appoint such auditors, actuaries, accountants, inspectors, officers, clerks and servants as the Board may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Part, and may prescribe their duties, and every person so appointed shall hold office during the pleasure of the Board.

26. It shall be the duty of the secretary to cause proper reports or minutes to be made of all meetings or sittings of the Board, to cause all decisions and findings of the Board to be duly recorded, and to cause all claims and communications to be brought before the Board or its proper officers and to prepare and make such reports and communications as are required by law or may be required from time to time by the Board.

27. The salaries of the Commissioners, and of the secretary, chief medical officer, auditors, medical inspectors, officers, clerks, and servants together with the necessary expenses of administration of this Part shall be paid out of the revenue of this Province, provided that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may in any year, order the payment of any portion of such salaries or expenses out of the Accident Fund.

28. (1) The accounts of the Board shall be audited by a chartered accountant to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for that purpose.

(2) Any Association may appoint an auditor to act in conjunction with such chartered accountant or to make an independent audit of the funds of any class or sub-class represented by such association.

29. (1) The Board shall on or before the 1st day of April in each year make a report to the Provincial Secretary of its transactions during the last preceding calendar year, and such report shall contain a statement of the receipt and disposition of funds for the said year in each of the classes and subclasses established in sections 45 and 52, together with such other particulars as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may prescribe.

(2) Any association applying therefor shall be entitled to receive from the Board, on or before the first day of April in each year, a detailed statement of the receipts and disbursements during the preceding calendar year on account of each employer in the class or subclass represented by such association.

Jurisdiction of Board.

30. (1) The Board shall have jurisdiction to inquire into, hear and determine all matters and questions of fact and law necessary to be determined in connection with compensation payments under this Part and the administration thereof, and the collection and management of the funds therefor; provided that no decision or ruling of the Board shall be binding upon it as a precedent for any other decision or ruling, the intent of this proviso being that each case shall be decided upon its own merits.

31. The Board shall have the like powers as the Supreme Court for compelling the attendance of witnesses and of examining them under oath, and compelling the production of books, papers, documents and things.

32. (1) The Board may act upon the report of any of its officers, and any inquiry which it shall be deemed necessary to make may be made by any one of the commissioners or by an officer of the Board or any other person appointed to make the inquiry, and the Board may act upon his report as to the result of the inquiry, and any person so appointed to make the inquiry shall for the purposes of the inquiry, have all powers conferred upon the Board by section 31.

33. (1) Except as provided in sections 35 and 66 the decisions and findings of the Board upon all questions of law and fact shall be final and conclusive, and in particular, but not so as to restrict the generality of the powers of the Board hereunder, the following shall be deemed to be questions of fact;

(a) The question whether an injury has arisen out of, or in the course of an employment within the scope of this Act;

(b) The existence of, and degree of disability by reason of any injury;

(c) The permanence of disability by reason of any injury;

(d) The amount of average earnings;

(e) The degree of diminution of earning capacity by reason of any injury;

(f) The existence of the relationship of member of the family;

(g) The existence of dependency;

(h) The character, for the purpose of this Act, of any industry, and the class to which such industry should be assigned.

34. The Board may in any case where it is deemed necessary, and shall on the application of any employer, association or workman interested in any order, ruling or decision of the Board, issue a certificate under the seal of the Board, embodying the substance of any such order, ruling or decision.

35. (1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court, Appeal Division, from any final decision of the Board upon any question as to its jurisdiction or upon any question of law, but such appeal shall be taken only by permission of a judge of the Supreme Court, given upon a petition presented to him within fifteen days after the rendering of the decision, and upon such terms as said judge may determine. Notice of such petition shall be given to the Board, at least two clear days before the presentation of such petition.

(2) Where an appeal has been granted, the appeal shall be brought by notice served on the chairman or vice-chairman of the Board, within ten days after the permission to appeal has been granted. The notice shall contain the names of the parties and the date of the order appealed from, and such other particulars as the judge granting the appeal may require.

(3) The Board may of its own motion state a case in writing for the opinion of the Supreme Court, Appeal Division, upon any question which in the opinion of the Board is a question of law.

(4) On hearing of such appeal or stated case any association representing a class interested in the result of the case shall be entitled to appear and be heard.

(5) The Supreme Court, Appeal Division, shall hear and determine the question or questions of law arising thereon and remit the matter to the Board, with the decision of the Court thereon, and such decision shall be binding upon the Board.

(6) No costs shall be awarded in any appeal or case stated under this section.

Scale of Compensation.

36. (1) The compensation payable under this Part to an injured workman or to the dependants of a deceased workman shall be as follows:

(a) In case of temporary partial disability continuing for more than seven days after the accident and diminishing the earning capacity of the workman by more than ten per cent a payment or payments, at a rate equal to fifty-five per cent of such diminution of earning capacity calculated on a basis not exceeding one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month;

(b) In case of total disability continuing for more than seven days after the accident, of payment or payments equal to fifty-five per cent of the average earnings of the workmen, but not less than six dollars per week or more than fifty-five per cent of one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month, such payments to be continued during the life of the workman or the duration of such disability.

(c) In case of permanent partial disability, payments on a scale to be established by the Board and proportioned upon the diminution of earning capacity and the degree of disfigurement, but not exceeding in any case two thousand five hundred dollars;

(d) In case of death of the workman as a result of the injury in addition to any payments under (a) or (b);

(i) Necessary and proper expenses of burial not exceeding one hundred dollars;

(ii) Where the sole dependant is a widow or invalid widower, payments during the life of such widow or widower, at the rate of thirty dollars per month;

(iii) Where the dependants are a widow or invalid widower and one or more children, payments at the rate of thirty dollars per month, with an addition of seven dollars and fifty cents per month for each of such children;

(iv) Where the dependants are persons other than those mentioned in the foregoing clauses payments at a rate reasonable and proportionate to the pecuniary loss to such dependants, on a scale to be determined by the Board, having in view the scale of payments laid down in clauses (ii) and (iii);

(2) In the case provided in item (iv) of clause (d) of sub-section (1), the payments shall continue only so long as in the opinion of the Board it might reasonably have been expected had the workman lived he would have continued to contribute to the support of the dependants;

(3) Where there are both total and partial dependants the compensation may be allotted partly to the total and partly to the partial dependants;

(4) Exclusive of the expenses of burial the compensation payable as provided by sub-section (1) shall not in any case exceed fifty-five per cent of the average earnings of the workmen, and if the compensation payable under that sub-section would in any case exceed that percentage it shall be reduced accordingly, and where several persons are entitled to monthly payments, it shall be reduced proportionately.

(5) If a dependent widow remarries, the monthly payments to her shall cease, but she shall be entitled in lieu of them to a sum equal to the payments for two years, provided this sub-section shall not apply to payments to a widow in respect of a child;

(6) Payments in respect of female children shall cease when the child attains the age of eighteen years or dies; in case of male children when the child attains the age of sixteen years or dies.

(7) The amendments to section 36 relating to payments to widows, invalid widowers or children shall relate back to and include all widows, invalid widowers, or children as from the first day of January, 1919, but the increased monthly payments shall actually take effect from January first, 1920. 1920. c. 12, s. 2.

37. (1) In fixing the amount of any payment regard shall be had to any payment, allowance or benefit which the workman may receive from his employer during the period of his disability, including any pension, gratuity or other allowance provided at the expense of the employer.

(2) Where the compensation is payable, any sum deducted from the compensation under subsection (1) may be paid to the employer out of the accident fund.

38. The Board may in its discretion:—

(a) Commute the whole or any part of the payments due or payable to an workman or dependant for a lump sum; or

(b) Substitute for such payments any other scheme of periodical payments; or

(c) Substitute for any lump sum or sums any scheme of periodical payments; as may be deemed most expedient in the interest of such workman or dependant.

(2) Where in any case, in the opinion of the Board, it will conserve the accident fund to provide a special surgical operation or other special medical treatment for a workman, the expense of such operation or treatment may be paid out of the accident fund.

39. (a) Every workman entitled to compensation under this Part, or who would have been so entitled had he been disabled for seven days, shall be entitled to such medical and surgical aid and hospital and skilled nursing services and transportation as may be necessary as a result of the injury.

(b) In this Act "medical aid" shall mean the medical and surgical aid and hospital and skilled nursing services and transportation as above mentioned.

(c) In the industries within the scope of Part One of this Act, such medical aid shall be furnished or arranged for by the Board, or as it may direct or approve, and shall be paid for by the Board out of the accident fund, and the necessary amount shall be included in the assessments levied upon the employers.

(d) All questions as to the necessity, character and sufficiency of any medical aid furnished or to be furnished shall be determined by the Board.

(e) The fees or charges for such medical aid shall not be more than would be properly or reasonably charged to the workman if he were himself paying the bill, and except in the case of an employer individually liable and himself furnishing the medical aid, the amount thereof shall be fixed and determined by the Board and no action for any amount larger than that fixed by the Board shall lie in respect of any medical aid herein provided for.

(f) It shall not be lawful, except as hereinafter provided in clause (g) for any employer directly or indirectly to collect or receive or demand from any workman any contribution towards the expense of medical aid and every person contravening this provision shall, for every contravention be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars and shall also be liable, upon the order of the Board, to reimburse the workman the amount of any amount so collected, received or obtained.

(g) Where any employer has now established or hereafter establishes in connection with any industry carried on by him an arrangement for furnishing medical aid to his workmen which, in the opinion of the Board, is at least as favourable to the workmen as that herein provided for, the Board may, after investigating the facts and considering the wishes of both workmen and employer approve of such arrangements and as long as such approval continues, such arrangements may be continued in lieu of the medical aid hereinbefore provided for, and if the inquiry is within the scope of Part One of the Act, the employer shall be entitled to such reimbursement out of the accident fund, or to such reduction in his rate of assessment as the Board shall deem just, but medical aid so furnished or provided shall be subject at all times to the supervision and control of the Board.

(h) Employers in any industries in which it is deemed proper may be required by the Board to maintain as may be directed by the Board, such first-aid appliances and service as the Board may direct, and the Board may make such order respecting the expenses thereof as may be deemed just.

(i) Every employer shall furnish to any workman injured in his employment, who is in need of it, immediate conveyance and transportation to a hospital, or to a physician, or to the workman's home, such transportation to be paid for by the Board out of the general accident fund, and any employer failing so to do shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars to be collected upon the order of the Board.

(j) Where in conjunction with or apart from the medical aid to which workmen are to be entitled, free of charge, further or other service or benefit is, or is proposed to be given or arranged for, any question arising as to whether or to what extent any contribution from workmen is or would be prohibited by this Act, shall be determined by the Board.

(k) Every physician, surgical, hospital official or nurse attending, consulted respecting, or having the care of any workman, shall furnish to the Board from time to time without additional charge, such reports as may be required by the Board in respect of such workman.

(l) In case of any workman employed as a master, mate, engineer, seaman, sailor, steward or fireman, or in any other capacity on board of any vessel on which duty has been paid or is payable for the purpose of the Sick Mariners' Fund, under Part V of the Canada Shipping Act, being Chapter 113 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, the above sections shall not apply to such workmen during the period in respect of which such duty has been paid or is payable. 1920, c. 12, s. 3.

Payment of Compensation.

40. (1) Where any workman or dependant is entitled to compensation under this Part he shall file with the Board an application for such compensation, together with the certificate of the attending physician, if any, and such further or other proofs of his claim as may be required by the Board.

(2) It shall be the duty of every physician or surgeon attending, or consulted upon, any case of injury to any workman to furnish or cause to be furnished from time to time, such reports, and in such form, as may be required by the Board, in respect of such injury and the resulting condition of the workman.

(3) It shall also be the duty of every physician in attendance upon any injured workman to give all reasonable and necessary information, advice and assistance to enable such workman or his dependants, as the case may be, to make application for compensation, and to furnish such proofs as may be required by the Board.

(4) It shall be the duty of every employer, within three days after the happening of an accident to a workman in his employment by which the workman is disabled from earning full wages, to notify the Board in writing of the:—

- (a) happening of the accident and nature of it;
- (b) time of its occurrence;
- (c) name and address of the workman;
- (d) place where the accident happened;
- (e) name and address of the physician or surgeon, if any, by whom the workman was or is attended for the injury;

(f) any other particulars required by regulation of the Board.

(5) It shall be the duty of the employer to make such further and other reports respecting such accident and workman as may be required by the Board.

(6) It shall also be the duty of every employee within fourteen days after any accident entitling him to compensation, or so soon thereafter as his claim to compensation shall have accrued, to make due application under subsection (1) or to notify the Board of such accident.

41. Payments of compensation shall be made in such manner and in such form as may appear to the Board to be most convenient, and in the case of minors or persons of unsound mind, payments may be made to such persons as, in the opinion of the Board, are best qualified in all the circumstances to administer such payments, whether or not the person to whom the payment is made is the legal guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind.

42. The Board may reopen, rehear, redetermine, review or readjust any claim, decision, or adjustment, either because an injury has proven more serious than it was deemed to be, or because a change has occurred in the condition of a workman or in the number, circumstances or condition of dependants, or otherwise.

43. The Board may require such proof from time to time of the existence and condition of any dependants in receipt of compensation payments as may be deemed by the Board necessary, and may from time to time require any workman applying for or receiving compensation payments to submit to medical examination by the Board or its duly appointed officers, and in default of such requirement being complied with, may withhold such compensation payments.

Classification.

44. Subject to section 61, the compensation provided for in this Part shall be paid out of a fund to be called "The Accident Fund."

45. For the purpose of creating and maintaining the Accident Fund, all industries within the scope of this Part shall be divided by the Board into classes in the discretion of the Board.

(2) The Board may by regulation rearrange such classes or withdraw from any class, any industry or group of industries included therein, and transfer such industry or group of industries to any other class, or form it into a separate class.

46. The Board shall assign every industry within the scope of this Part to its proper class; and where any industry includes several departments assignable to different classes, the Board may either assign such industry to the class of its principal or chief department, or may, for the purpose of this Part, divide such industry into two or more departments, assigning each of such departments to its proper class.

Assessment.

47. The Board shall on or before the first day of January of each year make an estimate of the assessments necessary to provide funds in each of the classes sufficient to meet all claims for compensation payable during the succeeding year.

48. (1) Every employer shall, on or before a date to be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and thereafter on or before the first day of January in each year, or whenever he shall have become an employer within the meaning of this Part, or whenever required from time to time by the Board so to do, cause to be furnished to the Board an estimate or estimates of the probable amount of the pay-roll of each of his industries within the scope of this Part, together with such further and other information as may be required by the Board for the purpose of assigning such industry to the proper class or classes, and of making the assessments hereunder; provided that the Board may also require any employer not within the scope of this Part to furnish from time to time such information as may enable the Board to determine whether such employer is or is not within the scope of this Part.

(2) Every employer wilfully neglecting or refusing to furnish such estimates or information shall be liable to a penalty of $20 per day for each day of such default;

(3) Every assessor appointed under chapter 21 of the Acts of 1913, or any other Act respecting assessments for taxation shall yearly, within ten days after the completion of the assessment roll, make a return to the Board upon forms provided by the Board, for the purpose of showing the names, addresses, nature of business and usual number of employees, if known, of all employers of labour carrying on any industry or business, other than farming or mercantile business, within the district of such assessor, together with such other information as the Board may require;

(4) Within three days after the granting of any building permit in any city, town or parish, notice thereof, together with such particulars as the Board may require, shall be given to the Board by the person whose duty it is to keep a record of such permits;

(5) Every steam engineer employed in connection with the operation of any portable saw-mill shall before such operation is begun in any particular locality or place, or within three days after such operation is begun, report to the Board that such operation will be or has begun, and shall likewise from time to time report to the Board upon the cessation of such operation, and furnish to the Board such further and other information with respect to such operation as the Board may by regulation require.

49. The Board shall every year assess and levy upon and collect from the employers in each class, by an assessment rated upon the pay-roll, or otherwise as the Board may deem proper, sufficient funds to meet all claims payable during the year.

50. Separate accounts shall be kept of the amounts collected and expended in respect of every class and of every fund set aside by way of reserve, but for the purpose of paying compensation the accident fund shall, nevertheless, be deemed one and indivisible.

51. (1) The Board may, in addition to the amount actually required in each class for the year, assess and levy upon and collect from any class or classes a surcharge or surcharges to be set aside as a reserve or reserves—

(a) by way of providing a contingent fund in aid of industries or classes which may become depleted or extinguished; or

(b) by way of providing a sinking fund for the capitalization of periodical compensation payments payable in future years; or

(c) by way of setting up a reserve fund for the equalizing of assessments.

(2) The Board may, in respect of any industry or class where it is deemed expedient, assess, levy and collect in each year a sufficient amount to provide capitalized reserves which shall be deemed sufficient to meet the periodical payments accruing in future years in respect of all accidents during such year.

(3) Upon any such change being made as provided for in subsection (2) of section 45 the Board may make such adjustment and disposition of the funds, reserves and accounts of the classes affected as may be deemed just and expedient.

52. The Board may establish such subclassifications, differentials and proportions in the rates as between the different kinds of employment in the same class as may be deemed just; and where any particular industry is shown to be so circumstanced or conducted that the hazard is greater than the average of the class or subclass to which such industry is assigned, the Board may impose upon such industry a special rate, differential or assessment, to correspond with the excessive hazard of such industry.

53. If authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council the Board may make or sanction any arrangement for the insurance or reinsurance, with an underwriter or underwriters, of any employer or class under this Part, subject to such terms and conditions as the Board may prescribe, and may make any necessary or equitable adjustment of the assessment of such employer or class having in view any premium paid on such insurance or reinsurance; provided that all claims for compensation shall be adjusted and paid by the Board.

54. Assessments shall be made under seal, and may be general as applicable to any class or subclass, or special as applicable to any industry or part or department of an industry.

(2) Any general assessment may be made in the manner and form set forth in Schedule A.

(3) Notice of any general assessment may be in the form set forth in Schedule B, and shall be published in the Royal Gazette and in such other newspapers, and in such other manner, as the Board may deem adequate or expedient.

55. The Board shall give notice to each employer, in such manner as may be deemed by the Board adequate and proper, of the amount of the assessments due from time to time in respect of his industry or industries, and the time or times when such assessments are due and payable.

56 (1) Notwithstanding any provisions of this Part respecting estimates or pay-rolls and notice to employers, it shall be the duty of every employer, without demand from the Board, to cause to be paid to the Board the full amount of every assessment assessed or levied in accordance with this Part in respect to workmen in his employ who are entitled to compensation hereunder, and every such assessment, whether the employer have notice thereof or otherwise, shall be a debt unliquidated until the amount thereof shall have been ascertained by adjustment as provided by this Act, and payable by the employer to the Board.

(2) The Board shall have a right of action against the employer in respect of any amount unpaid, with costs of such action.

57 (1) At or before the 1st of January of each year, or as soon thereafter as any industry shall have begun operation, the Board may levy upon each employer a provisional amount based upon the estimates and information furnished by such employer or upon such further or other information as the Board may obtain, and such provisional amount shall be presumed to be the amount due by any such employer and may be collected from such employer as hereinafter provided.

(2) In case of the refusal or neglect of any employer to furnish any estimate or information as required under section 48, the Board may make its own estimates of the amount due by such employer and may levy and collect such amount.

(3) Such provisional levies may, wherever it is deemed expedient, be collected in half-yearly, quarterly or monthly instalments, or otherwise; and where it appears that the funds in any class are sufficient for the time being, any instalment may be abated or its collection deferred.

58. If in any class the estimated assessments shall prove insufficient the Board may make such further assessments and levies as may be necessary, or may temporarily advance the amount of any deficiency out of any reserve provided for such purpose, and may add such amount to any subsequent assessment or assessments.

59. In the case of any industry which, in the opinion of the Board, is to be carried on only temporarily, the Board may, instead of collecting a provisional amount, require or take from the employer security in such form and amount as the Board may deem adequate, until the cessation of the industry and final report and audit of the pay-roll therefor.

60. If any assessment is not paid at the time when it becomes payable, a percentage, prescribed by regulation of the Board, and not exceeding in the whole twelve per cent per year, may be added to such assessment, by way of penalty, and collected and enforced as part of such assessment.

61. (1) Any industry in respect of which the employer neglects or refuses to furnish any estimate or information as required by section 48 shall, during the continuance of such default, be deemed to be an industry within Part II, and such employer shall be liable for damages as provided in Part II, and except as provided in subsection (3) no compensation shall be payable under Part I during the continuance of such default.

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1) such employer shall be liable to pay to the Board the full amount of capital value of any compensation payments to which any workman would be entitled under Part I by reason of any accident occurring during the continuance of such default, such amount or capital value may be assessed against, and collected from, such employer by like process and means as in the case of other assessments under Part I.

(3) If, and to the extent that, such employer shall pay to the Board such amount or capital value he shall cease to be liable under subsection (1) and such workman shall be entitled to compensation under Part I.

(4) If satisfied that such default was excusable, the Board may relieve such employer in whole or in part from liability under subsection (1) or subsection (2), or both, on such terms as the Board may deem just.

Liability for Assessments.

62. Where any work within the scope of this Part is performed under contract for any municipal corporation or public service commission, any assessment in respect of such work may be paid by such corporation or commission as the case may be, and the amount of such assessment may be deducted from any moneys due the contractor in respect of such work.

63. (1) Where any work within the scope of this Part is undertaken by any person by a contractor, both the contractor and the person for whom such work is undertaken shall be liable for the amount of any assessment in respect thereof, and such assessment may be levied upon and collected from either of them or partly from one and partly from the other; provided that in the absence of any term in the contract to the contrary the contractor shall, as between himself and the person for whom such work is performed, be primarily liable for the amount of such assessment.

(2) Where any work within the scope of this Part is performed under subcontract, both the contractor and the subcontractor shall be liable for the amount of any assessments in respect of such work; and such assessments may be levied upon and collected from either, or partly from one and partly from the other; provided that in the absence of any term in the subcontract to the contrary, the subcontractor shall, as between himself and the contractor, be primarily liable for such assessments.

64. In the case of any work or service performed by an employer in any of the industries within the scope of this Part, for which the employer would be entitled to a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Act, it shall be the duty of the owner as defined by that Act, to see that the amount of any assessment in respect of such work or service is paid, and if any such owner fails to do so he shall be personally liable to pay it to the Board, and the Board shall have the like powers and be entitled to the like remedies for enforcing payment as it possesses or is entitled to in respect of an assessment.

65. There shall be included among the debts which under the Act Respecting Assignments and Preferences by Insolvent Persons, The Companies Winding Up Act, and The Trustee Act, are in the distribution of the property in the case of an assignment or death or in the distribution of the assets of a company being wound up under the said Acts, respectively, to be paid in priority to all other debts, the amount of any assessment the liability whereof accrued before the date of the assignment or death or before the date of the commencement of the winding up, and the said Acts shall have effect accordingly.

66. Where default is made by any employer in the payment of any levy the Board may, after ten days' notice to such employer of its intention so to do, issue its certificate specifying the amount of such levy and the person by whom it is payable, and such certificate or a copy thereof under the seal of the Board, may be filed with the clerk of any county court or with the registrar or assistant registrar of the Supreme Court, and such clerk, registrar or assistant registrar shall thereupon issue a judgment of such court against such person for such amount, and such judgment shall be enforceable in the same manner as other judgments of such court, subject to such appeal as in the case of other judgments of such court.

67. On or before the first day of April in each year, or so soon thereafter as the Board may deem expedient, the amount of the assessment for the preceding calendar year shall be adjusted upon the actual requirements of the class and upon the correctly ascertained pay-roll of each industry, or otherwise as the case may require and the employer shall forthwith make up and pay to the Board any deficiency, or the Board shall refund to the employer any surplus, or credit the same upon the succeeding assessment as the case may require. 1920, c. 12, s. 4.

68. (1) Every employer shall, at or after the close of each calendar year, or at such other times as may be required by the Board, furnish verified copies or reports of his pay-roll or pay-rolls, together with such other information as the Board may require, verified by statutory declaration, for the purpose of enabling the Board to adjust and compute the amount of the assessment as provided in section 67.

(2) In computing and adjusting the amount of the pay-roll of any industry, regard shall be had only to such portion of the pay-roll as represents workmen and work within the scope of this Part, and where the wages of any workman exceeds the rate of $125 per month, due and proper deduction may be made in respect of any such excess.

69. Where in any industry a change of ownership or employership has occurred, the Board may levy any part of such deficiency on either or any of such successive owners or employers, or pay or credit to any one or more of such owners or employers such surplus as the case may require, but as between or amongst such successive owners or employers the assessment in respect of such industry shall, in the absence of an agreement between the respective owners or employers determining the same, be apportionable as nearly as may be, in accordance with the proportions of the pay-rolls of the respective periods of ownership or employment.

70. (1) The Board and any member of it, and any officer of the Board or person authorized by it for that purpose, shall have the right to examine the books and accounts of any employer and to make such other inquiry as the Board may deem necessary for the purpose of ascertaining whether any statement furnished to the Board under the provisions of section 68 is an accurate statement of the matters which are required to be stated therein, or of ascertaining the amount of the pay-roll of any employer, or of ascertaining whether any industry or person is within the scope of this Part.

(2) Every member of the Board and every officer or person authorized by it to make examination or inquiry under this section shall have power and authority to require and to take affidavits, affirmations or declarations as to any matter of such examination or inquiry, and to take statutory declarations required under section 68, and in all such cases to administer oaths, affirmations and declarations and certify to the same having been made.

71. The Board and any member of it, and any officer or person authorized by it for that purpose shall have the right at all reasonable hours to enter into the establishment of any employer and the premises connected with it, and every part of them, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the ways, works, machinery or appliances therein are safe, adequate and sufficient, and whether all proper precautions are taken for the prevention of accidents to the workmen employed in or about the establishment or premises, and whether the safety appliances or safeguards prescribed by law are used and employed therein, or for any other purpose which the Board may deem necessary for the purpose of determining the amount of the assessment of such employer.

72. No officer of the Board and no person authorized to make an inquiry under this Part shall divulge or allow to be divulged, except in the performance of his duties or under the authority of the Board, any information which has been obtained by him or which has come to his knowledge in making, or in connection with, an inspection or inquiry under this Part.

Investment of Funds.

73. (1) The Board may, in its discretion, invest any part of the accident fund, and under its control in any securities which are under the "Trustee Act" a proper investment for trust funds, except mortgages on real estate.

(2) No part of the accident fund, whether so invested or not, shall be subject to any municipal or other tax.

Regulations.

74. (1) The Board may make such regulations, approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, as may be deemed requisite for the due administration and carrying out of the provisions of this Part, and may likewise prescribe the form and use of such pay-rolls, records, reports, certificates, declarations and documents as may be requisite.

(2) Such regulations, when so approved, shall forthwith be published in the Royal Gazette.

(3) Any such regulation may at any time be revoked or amended by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Penalties.

75. The Board may, by regulation, prescribe penalties for the violation of any of the provisions of this Part, or for the breach of any rules, regulations or orders made under the authority of this Act, provided, that such penalties shall be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

76. The penalties imposed by or under the authority of this Part shall be recoverable under the Summary Convictions Act or by an action brought by the Board in any court of competent jurisdiction, and such penalties when collected shall be paid over to the Board, and shall form part of the accident fund.

Associations.

77. (1) Where any association shall make rules for the prevention of accidents in the industry or industries represented by such association, such rules shall, if approved by the Board, be binding on all the employers included in the class, subclass or group represented by such association whether or not such employers are members of such Association.

(2) Where an association under the authority of its rules, appoints one or more inspectors, engineers or experts for the purpose of accident prevention, the Board may pay the salary and necessary expenses of any such inspector, engineer or expert out of the accident fund and charge the same to the account of the proper class, subclass or group.

(3) The Board may on the application of any association make an allowance to such association to meet any expenses of such association and pay such allowance out of the accident fund and charge the same to the account of the class, subclass or group represented by such association.

Industrial Diseases.

78. (1) Where a workman suffers from an industrial disease and is thereby disabled from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed, or his death is caused by an industrial disease, and the disease is due to the nature of any employment in which he was engaged at any time within twelve months previous to the date of his disablement, whether under one or more employments, the workman or his dependants shall be entitled to compensation as if the disease were a personal injury by accident and the disablement were the happening of the accident, subject to the modifications hereinafter mentioned, unless at the time of entering into the employment he had wilfully and falsely represented himself as not having previously suffered from the disease.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of a workman to compensation in respect of a disease to which this section does not apply, if the disease is the result of an injury in respect of which he is entitled to compensation under this Part.

Proclamation of Part One.

79. The provisions of this Part relating to the organization of the Board, the classification of industries, and levying and collecting of assessments, or any of them, shall become effective from and after a day to be named in a proclamation by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council; the provisions of this Part respecting the payment of compensation and the right of the workmen thereto shall become effective from and after a day to be named in any subsequent proclamation by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and compensation shall be payable in respect of injuries occurring on and after the day named in such last mentioned proclamation, on which day also the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, being chapter 34 of the Acts of the Legislative Assembly, passed in the fourth year of His present Majesty's reign, and amendments thereto shall stand repealed. [In force January 1st, 1919, by proclamation.]

Provided, however, that an action or proceeding to recover compensation for an injury sustained prior to the date of the last mentioned proclamation may, before or after such date be instituted, proceeded with and maintained under said chapter 34, in the same manner and to the same extent as if said chapter 34 had not been repealed. Provided also that the Board may in its discretion pay compensation to the dependants of any deceased workman who shall have died since the repeal of said chapter 34 in consequence of injuries sustained prior to such repeal if the Board shall be satisfied that such dependants have no legal claim against any person or corporation. Amended 1919, c. 7, s. 4.

PART II.

80. Subject to Section 84, this Part, shall apply to industries to which Part I does not apply.

81. (1) Where personal injury is caused to a workman by reason of any defect in the condition or arrangement of the ways, works, machinery, plant, buildings or premises connected with, intended for or used in the business of his employer or by reason of the negligence of his employer or any person in the service of his employer, acting within the scope of his employment, the workman, or if the injury results in death, the legal personal representative of the workman, and any person entitled in case of death shall have an action against the employer, and if the action is brought by the workman he shall be entitled to recover from the employer the damages sustained by the workman by or in consequence of the injury, and if the action is brought by the legal personal representatives of the workman or by or on behalf of persons entitled to damages under the act respecting compensation to relatives of persons killed by wrongful act, neglect or default, they shall be entitled to recover such damages as they are entitled to under that Act.

(2) Where the execution of any work is being carried into effect under any contract, and the person for whom the work is done owns or supplies any ways, works, machinery, plant, building or premises, and by reason of any defect in the condition or arrangement of them, personal injury is caused to a workman employed by the contractor or by any subcontractor, and the defect arose from the negligence of the person for whom the work or any part of it is done or of some person in his service and acting within the scope of his employment, the person for whom the work or that part of the work is done shall be liable to the action as if the workman had been employed by him, and for that purpose shall be deemed to be the employer of the workman within the meaning of this Act, but any such contractor or subcontractor shall be liable to the action as if this subsection had not been enacted, but not so that double damages shall be recoverable for the same injury.

(3) Nothing in subsection (2) shall effect any right or liability of the person for whom the work is done and the contractor or subcontractor as between themselves.

(4) A workman shall not by reason only of his continuing in the employment of the employer with knowledge of the defect or negligence which caused his injury to be deemed voluntarily incurred the risk of the injury.

82. A workman shall hereafter be deemed not to have undertaken the risks due to the negligence of his fellow-workmen, and contributory negligence on the part of a workman shall not hereafter be a bar to recovery by him or by any person entitled to damages under the Act respecting compensation to relatives of persons killed by wrongful act, neglect or default, in an action for the recovery of damages for an injury sustained by, or causing the death of the workman while in the service of his employer, for which the employer would otherwise have been liable, but the damages that may be recovered under the provisions of this section, shall not exceed the sum of $3,500.

83. Contributory negligence on the part of the workman shall nevertheless be taken into account in assessing the damages in any such action. In such cases when tried by a judge with a jury, the jury shall assess the damages sustained, and the deductions to be made therefrom because of contributory negligence, separately. The Court of Appeal may review such deduction upon the evidence, drawing such inferences therefrom as a judge sitting without a jury might do, and increase or decrease the amount of such deduction.

84. This Part shall not apply to farm labourers, domestic or menial servants, or their employers, or fishermen.

85. This Part shall take effect on, from and after a day to be named in a proclamation by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. [In force January 1st, 1919, by proclamation.] (Schedules omitted.)

Vocational Education.

Chapter 41 with amendments—1. This Act may be cited as The Vocational Education Act, 1918.

2. The following terms shall in this Act mean as herein defined unless the context is repugnant thereto.

(a) "Pre-vocational Education" shall mean any education, the controlling purpose of which is to enable a child with the help of its parents and teacher, to wisely select its course of study and training.

(b) "Vocational Education" shall mean any education, the controlling purpose of which is to fit for profitable employment, and shall include industrial, agricultural and commercial education, and education in the fisheries and home economics.

(c) "Pre-vocational School" shall mean an organization of courses, pupils and teachers (or teacher), designed to hold the pupils from 12 to 14 years of age, who wish to enter industry early, for the purpose of extending their general education.

(d) "Vocational School" shall mean an organization of courses, pupils and teachers (or teacher), designed to give industrial, agricultural and commercial instruction, and instruction in fisheries and home economics, under a separate director.

3. (a) For the purpose of administering this Act, the Board of Education shall appoint a Vocational Education Board, consisting of nine members, namely: The Chief Superintendent of Education, the Principal of the Normal School, the Secretary for Agriculture, the Director of Elementary Agricultural Education, and five others, of whom one shall be a representative of farming, one of labour, one of manufacturing and one of commerce. The chairman shall be elected from the last-mentioned five, and the Chief Superintendent of Education shall be the vice-chairman. The five members of the Vocational Education Board, as above set out, shall be appointed to serve till June 30, 1921. In June, 1921, one member shall be appointed to retire in 1922, one in 1923, one in 1924, one in 1925 and one in 1926, on the 30th of June in each case. After 1921, no member shall be eligible to succeed himself on the Board, and each appointment shall be made for a term of five years only. No remuneration shall be paid to the members of the Vocational Education Board for services as members of Board, but they shall be reimbursed for all necessary outlays in connection with their duties under this Act.

(b) It shall be the duty of the Vocational Education Board to investigate the need for and to aid in the introduction of vocational education; to superintend the establishment of schools and departments for the various kinds of such education, and to supervise and approve such schools and departments, as hereinafter provided. The Vocational Education Board shall appoint the officials necessary to administer this Act, define their duties and fix their salaries, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. The Board shall make an annual report to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 1919, c. 30, s. 1.

4. In cities and incorporated towns, the board of school trustees may apply, on the recommendation of the common council, city council or town council, as the case may be, and in districts where the school trustees are elected, the ratepayers may, at any annual meeting, or any special meeting called for the purpose, by resolution, request the trustee of such school districts to apply to the Vocational Education Board for power to establish, equip and maintain a vocational school setting forth and including in such application the plans of any proposed building and the nature of the instruction desired, and upon such application being approved of by the Vocational Board, the board of school trustees so applying, shall have the power to assess and collect a sum sufficient for the purpose of establishing and equipping a suitable building or for otherwise carrying on the work, and for maintaining the same, and for the payment of tuition fees and in all respects carrying out the provisions of this Act, and for the purposes aforesaid shall have all the powers of a board of school trustees under the Schools Act, chapter 50, of the Consolidated Statutes, or under any amendment thereof. 1919, c. 30, s. 2, amended 1920, c. 62, s. 3.

5. Upon the application for the establishment of a vocational school being approved, and the assessment being made or ordered as provided in Section 4 of this Act, a local vocational committee for the establishment, administration and control of such vocational school, shall be appointed by the local school board. Such local vocational committee shall consist of five or seven members, and the chairman and secretary of the school board shall in every case be chairman and secretary respectively of the local vocational committee. If the local vocational committee consists of five members, it shall include members of the local school board (including the chairman) and two others who shall be representatives of labour and capital respectively. If the local vocational committee consists of seven members, it shall include four members of the local school board, including the chairman, and three others representing labour and homemaking, respectively. Amended 1919, c. 30, s. 3.

6. Two or more cities, towns or school districts, each having secured the approval and provided the funds necessary (according to section 4 hereof), may co-operate to establish a vocational school under a joint vocational committee composed of two members of each school board, appointed by their own board in each case, and three others appointed by the Vocational Educational Board; and any city or town, having secured the approval and provided the necessary funds, as hereinbefore provided, may co-operate with any municipality to establish a vocational school under a joint vocational committee, composed of two members appointed by the municipality, two members of the school board, of each city or town co-operating, appointed by such school board, and three members appointed by the Vocational Education Board, one of whom shall be the warden of the municipality, and two from the cities or towns so co-operating. 1919, c. 30, s. 4.

7. Any county may establish and maintain a county vocational school or schools, subject to the approval of the Vocational Education Board, under a county vocational committee of seven, four of whom shall be appointed by the county council, and three by the Vocational Education Board. The Vocational Education Board shall name the chairman and secretary of the county vocational committee. The county council shall have the power to assess and collect sufficient funds for the purposes of this section in addition to any sum assessed and collected for general school purposes.

8. Members of a vocational committee, appointed under section 5 of this Act, except the chairman, shall hold office for not more than three consecutive years. The initial membership of said committee, excluding the chairman, shall be appointed, one-half for two years, and one-half for three years, or one-third for one, one-third for two and one-third for three years. Succeeding appointments shall be for terms of three years.

Members of a vocational committee appointed under section 6 of this Act shall be appointed as follows: One appointee of any school board, one appointee of any municipality, and one appointee of the Vocational Board for a period of two years. The remainder for three years. Succeeding appointments after the initial membership of said committee shall be for terms of three years, and no member shall be eligible to succeed himself on said committee. Such committee shall elect its own chairman.

Members of a vocational committee appointed under section 7 of this Act shall be appointed as follows: Two appointees of the municipality and two appointees of the Vocational Board for a period of two years. The remainder for three years. Succeeding appointments after the initial membership of the said committee shall be for terms of three years, and no member shall be eligible to succeed himself on said committee.

A quorum shall consist of a majority of the members in all cases. 1919, c. 30, s. 5.

9. (a) Each local, joint and county vocational committee shall submit for approval on or before the beginning of each school year to the school board or boards or county councils which appointed said committee, or any part of it, an estimate of the amount of money required for said school year, both on capital and maintenance accounts. Said approval having been granted, the amount of said budget shall be placed by the approving school board or boards or county council to the credit of said committee in each case in a way that will enable it to meet all expenditures made within the amount so approved throughout the year.

(b) Each local, joint or county vocational committee shall appoint a director, who shall be head of the vocational schools organized by the committee. Before appointment said director must be approved by the Vocational Education Board.

(c) Subject to the approval of its budget as herein provided, each local joint and county vocational committee shall have authority:

(1) To administer and control all funds available for vocational education in the community according to this Act.

(2) To provide suitable accommodation and equipment for vocational education under the terms of this Act.

(3) To employ and dismiss teachers and necessary officers and fix their salaries, subject to the approval of the Vocational Education Board.

(4) To establish and control vocational and pre-vocational classes and make returns thereon to the Vocational Education Board.

(5) Generally to do all things necessary for carrying out the true object and intent of this Act, in the administration and control of vocational education. 1920, c. 62, s. 1.

10. No teacher shall be employed in a vocational school established under this Act, without the approval of the Vocational Education Board. It shall be the duty of said Vocational Education Board to provide facilities at the Normal School or elsewhere for the training of vocational teachers, out of the funds provided under this Act.

11. In order that boys and girls between 12 and 14 years of age who plan to enter industry early, may continue their common school education in the essential branches, and at the same time have opportunity to wisely select the most suitable industry and lay a foundation for vocational training in the same, any vocational committee may establish a pre-vocational school, subject to the approval of the Vocational Education Board.

12. In order to make vocational training accessible to the largest possible number, and that it may be adapted to local circumstances, vocational schools may organize day, part-time and evening classes. The education offered shall be of less than college grade and be designed to meet the vocational needs of persons over 14 years of age who are able to profit by the instruction offered. Attendance upon such day or part-time classes shall be restricted to persons over 14 and under 25 years of age; and upon such evening classes to persons over 16 years of age.

13. (a) Subject to the provisions of this Act, any resident of any city, town or school district in New Brunswick, which does not maintain a vocational or pre-vocational school offering the type of training which he or she desires, may, through his or her local school board, make application to any vocational committee, maintaining a school of the desired type, for admission to said school. A vocational committee receiving such application may approve or disapprove the same; but in event of disapproval, the applicant may appeal to the Vocational Education Board, whose decision shall be final. In making its decision, the Vocational Education Board shall take into consideration the opportunities for free vocational and pre-vocational training in the community in which the applicant resides; the financial status of the community; the age, sex, preparation, aptitude and previous record of the applicant and all other relevant circumstances.

(b) The school board of the city, town or district in which the person resides, who has been admitted, as above provided, to a vocational or a pre-vocational school, maintained by another city, town or district, shall pay such tuition fee as may be fixed by the Vocational Education Board, and the Province shall reimburse such school board as provided for in this Act. If any school board neglects or refuses to pay for such tuition, it shall be liable therefor in an action of contract to the vocational committee maintaining the school which the pupil, with the approval of the said Board, attended.

14. Vocational and pre-vocational schools established under this Act, shall, so long as they are approved by the Vocational Education Board, as to organization, control, location, equipment, courses of study, qualifications of teachers, methods of instruction, employment of pupils and expenditures of money, receive Provincial grants as provided in Sections 15, 16 and 17 of this Act.

15. (a) In order to aid in the establishment and maintenance of approved vocational and pre-vocational schools as provided in this Act, the Province shall reimburse vocational committees as follows:

(b) In respect to expenditures for salaries of vocational directors and teachers, to the extent of sixty per cent in cities and towns having a population of over six thousand; of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent in towns having a population of not less than two thousand and not more than six thousand; and of seventy-five per cent in towns and districts having a population of less than two thousand. All county vocational committees shall receive sixty-six and two-thirds per cent reimbursements in respect to salaries. For purposes of this section the population as given in the latest decennial census shall govern.

(c) In respect to expenditures for vocational school equipment approved by the Vocational Board to the extent of fifty per cent.

(d) In respect to expenditures made on or before June 30th, 1925, for buildings to be used for vocational education to the extent of a total amount not to exceed fifty per cent of the total grants accruing to the Province before said date under the terms of the Technical Education Act of Canada, 1919. Reimbursement in respect of expenditures for buildings shall be apportioned according to regulations to be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

(e) School boards that have paid claims for tuition in vocational or prevocational schools shall be reimbursed by the Province to the extent of two-thirds the sums expended in payment of such tuition claims.

(f) All moneys payable under the provisions of this Act shall be paid on requisition of the chairman or vice-chairman of the Vocational Board upon approval by the Board of Education, out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund; provided always that the sum total of the amounts paid under the Act, exclusive of Dominion grants, shall in no year exceed fifty thousand dollars 1920, c. 62, s. 2.

16. (a) Estimates shall be presented by the Vocational Education Board to the Governor in Council before each session of the Legislature, for the school year beginning the first day of July next following.

(b) Estimates shall be presented by vocational committees to the Vocational Education Board, on or before the first day of January of the school year for which the estimate is made.

17. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to any city, town or district unless compulsory attendance therein shall have been adopted.

18. The Vocational Education Board shall have power to make regulations for the carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

STATUTES OF 1919.

Employment of Children in Breweries, Saloons, etc.

Chapter 6.—10. Any such officer, or any policeman of a city or incorporated town, or any policeman designated by the municipality for that purpose, or any constable of a municipality or any truant officer, or the agent of any children's aid society may apprehend without warrant and detain, and without unnecessary delay after such apprehension, bring before the judge as neglected, any child, whether boy or girl actually or apparently under the age of sixteen years who comes within the following designations, namely:—

(i) Who is employed in any brewery or any shop, saloon, tavern, or other place where intoxicating liquors are made, bottled or sold.

11. Any child apprehended under the last preceding section shall be brought before the judge for examination, and it shall be the duty of the judge to investigate the facts of the case in a summary manner, and ascertain if such child is neglected within the meaning of the last preceding section, also its age, and the name, residence and religion, if any, of its parents, and he shall give judgment on the facts, and he may order delivery of such child to the children's aid society to be detained by them in their temporary home or shelter, until placed in an approved foster home, or otherwise dealt with pursuant to the provisions of this Act.

STATUTES OF 1920.

Inspection and Regulation of Factories—Examination and Licensing of Engineers.

Chapter 54.—1. This Act shall be known as The New Brunswick Factories Act, 1919.

Interpretation.

2. (1) In this Act, unless inconsistent with the context,—

(2) "factory" means

(a) Any building, office, or place in which ten or more persons are employed, directly or indirectly, in any handicraft or in preparing or manufacturing goods for trade or sale, but does not include any building in course of erection, or any temporary workshop or shed for workmen engaged in the erection of such building, but, whatever the number of persons employed therein, includes:

(b) Any building or place in which steam, water, electricity or any mechanical power or appliance is used for the purpose of preparing, manufacturing or bottling goods for trade or sale, or packing such goods for transit, and also:

(c) Every laundry (meaning thereby every building or place where laundry work is performed for hire or reward), whether the persons employed therein receive payment or not; provided, that none of the provisions of this Act shall be held to apply to lobster and fish canning establishments or fruit canning establishments within the Province of New Brunswick.

(3) "Board" shall mean The Workmen's Compensation Board.

(4) "Inspector" shall mean any one of the inspectors appointed by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council under the authority of and for enforcing the provisions of this Act.

(5) "Employer" shall mean any person who in his own behalf, or as manager, superintendent, overseer or agent, or any person, firm, company or corporation, has charge of any factory and employs persons therein.

(6) "Week" shall mean the period between midnight on Sunday night and midnight on the succeeding Saturday night.

(7) "Child" shall mean a person under the age of fourteen years.

(8) "Young girls" shall mean a girl above the age of fourteen years and under the age of eighteen years.

(9) "Woman" shall mean a woman of eighteen years and upwards.

(10) "Parent" shall mean the parent or guardian of, or a person having the legal custody of, or control over, or having direct benefit of the wages of a young girl or boy.

(11) "Court of Summary Jurisdiction" shall mean a justice of the peace or police magistrate, as the case may be, to whom jurisdiction is given by this Act to hear and determine prosecutions under this Act.

(12) "Mill-gearing" shall comprehend every shaft, whether upright, oblique, or horizontal, and every wheel, drum or pulley by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine appertaining to the manufacturing process.

(13) "Examiners" shall mean the Board of Examiners appointed under this Act to examine and pass upon all applications for stationary engineers' certificates, conduct the examinations and award certificates.

(14) "Regulations" shall mean regulations made under the authority of this Act.

(15) "Steam plant" or "power plant" shall mean and include a steam boiler and a steam engine and every part thereof and thing connected therewith or used with reference to any such boiler or engine or under the care of any engineer.

(16) All rules and regulations made by the Board under the provisions of this Act, shall, when approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, become effective.

3. The Board may from time to time, by order, notice of which shall be published in the 'Royal Gazette,' prohibit the employment of girls under the age of eighteen years, and boys under the age of fourteen years, in factories the work of which is deemed by the Board to be dangerous or unwholesome.

(a) In case of an accident occurring in any factory, causing the death of any girl under the age of sixteen years, or any boy under the age of fourteen years, or whereby any girl under the age of sixteen years, or any boy under the age of fourteen years is injured, the employer shall be liable to the same extent and in the same manner as the Board would be if such girl were of the full age of sixteen years or such boy were of the full age of fourteen years: provided that this section shall not apply in the case of an employer who has used all due diligence and where the offence was committed without his knowledge, consent or connivance.

4. To employ in a factory any young girl or woman shall be deemed to be unlawful, and so that the health of such young girl or woman is likely to be permanently injured, if in that factory there is a contravention of the following provisions of this section, that is to say:—

(a) It shall not be lawful for a young girl or woman to be employed for more than ten hours in one day, nor more than sixty hours in one week, unless a different apportionment of the hours of labour per day has been made for the purpose of giving a shorter day's work on Saturday.

(b) In every factory the employer shall allow every young girl and woman therein employed not less than one hour at noon each day for meals, but such hour shall not be counted as part of the time herein limited as respects the employment of young girls and women.

5. Where any young girl or woman is employed on any day to a later hour than seven o'clock in the afternoon, she shall on every such day and in addition to the hour for the noon-day meal hereinbefore provided for, be allowed not less than one hour for another or evening meal, between five and eight o'clock in the afternoon.

6. (1) Subject to any regulations which may be made in that behalf by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, it shall be lawful for the Board:

(a) Where any accident, which prevents the work of any factory, happens to the working power of any machinery; or

(b) When from any other occurrence beyond the control of the employer, the machinery or any part of the machinery of any factory cannot be regularly worked; or

(c) Where customs or exigencies require that young girls or women working in a factory, or in certain processes in a factory, shall be employed for a longer period than as hereinbefore provided.

On due proof to their satisfaction of such accident, occurrence, custom or exigency of trade, to give permission of such exemption of the foregoing provisions of this Act as will in their judgment fairly and equitably to the proprietors thereof, and to the women and young girls in such factory, make up for any loss of labour from such accident or exigency of trade.

(2) In case of the Board permitting such exemption:

(a) No woman or young girl shall be employed before the hour of six o'clock in the morning or after the hour of ten-thirty o'clock in the evening; and

(b) The hours of labour for women and young girls shall not be more than thirteen and one-half hours in any one day, nor more than eighty-one in any one week; and

(c) Such exemptions shall not comprise more than thirty-six days in any twelve months, and in reckoning such period of thirty-six days, every day on which any young girl or woman has been employed overtime shall be taken into account.

7. When under the exemptions allowed herein, any young girl or woman is employed in any factory on any day for a longer period than is allowed herein, the duration of such employment shall be daily recorded by the employer in a register which shall be in such form as may be required by any regulations made by the Board.

8. Notice of the hours between which young girls or women are to be employed shall be made in such form as may be required by the regulations made in that behalf by the Board and shall be signed by the inspector and by the employer, and shall be hung up during the period affected by such notice in such conspicuous place or places in the factory as the inspector requires.

9. In any shop in which young girls or women are employed the employer shall at all times provide and keep a sufficient and suitable chair or seat for the use of every such young girl or woman, and shall permit her to use such chair or seat when not necessarily engaged in the work or duty for which she was employed, and the employer shall not by any contrivance, prevent any female employee from using such chair or seat by any threat, rule or other intimidation, expressed or implied.

10. (1) No employee shall be allowed to clean such part of the machinery in a factory as mill-gearing while the same is in motion for the purpose of propelling any part of the manufacturing machinery.

(2) A young girl or woman shall not be allowed to work between the fixed and traversing part of any self-acting machine while the machine is in motion by the action of steam, water, electricity or other mechanical power.

(3) A young girl or woman allowed by an employer to clean or to work in contravention of this section shall be deemed to be employed by him contrary to the provisions of this Act, and shall be deemed to have thereby contravened this provision.

11. (1) Every factory shall be kept in a cleanly state and free from effluvia of any drains, privy or other nuisance.

(2) A factory shall not be so overcrowded while work is carried on therein as to be injurious to the health of the persons employed therein, but shall contain 300 cubic feet of air space to each employee.

12. (1) In every factory:

(a) All dangerous parts of mill-gearing, machinery, vats, pans, cauldrons, reservoirs, wheels, flumes, water-channels, doors, openings in the floors or walls, bridges and other like dangerous structures or places, shall be, as far as practicable, securely guarded.

(b) No machinery, other than steam-engines shall be cleaned while in motion.

(c) The openings of every hoist-way, hatchway, elevator, or well-hole, shall be at every floor provided with and protected by good and sufficient trap-doors, or self-closing hatches and safety catches, or by such other safeguards as the inspector directs, and such trap-doors shall be kept closed at all times, except when in actual use by persons authorized by the employer to use the same.

(d) All elevator cabs or cars, whether used for freight or passengers, shall be provided with some suitable mechanical device to be approved by the inspector, whereby the cab or car shall be securely held in the event of accident to the rope or hoisting machinery, or the like, except such elevators as are used for freight only.

(e) No child shall be employed in the management or control of any elevator.

(f) Any other conditions which any inspector from time to time considers dangerous, and in regard to which he gives notice to that effect to the employer, shall likewise, as far as practicable, be securely guarded against.

(g) Inflammable materials, such as coal, oil or petroleum, benzine and naphtha, and explosives of all kinds, shall be kept stored when not in actual use in a building separate from the other parts of the factory.

(h) Young girls and women in a factory shall, during working hours, wear their hair rolled or plaited and fastened securely to their heads or confined in a close fitting cap or net, so as to avoid contact with machinery, shafting or belting, or with the material being handled.

(i) The manager, superintendent, foreman or other person in charge shall see that employees are fully notified of the provisions of this section.

(j) No boiler shall be used which is not insured in some boiler inspection company, duly authorized in the Province for that purpose, or which has not been inspected within one year by a competent inspector; such inspector to be an inspector usually employed by a boiler inspection company, or a marine engineer holding a first or second class certificate, or a competent boiler maker, whose qualification shall be certified by the factory inspector. No such inspector shall be in personal charge of any boiler inspected by him. The manager or proprietor of any factory shall, whenever so requested by the inspector, produce for examination the insurance policy or the certificate of inspection.

(2) A factory in which there is a contravention of this section, or of the regulations made for the enforcement of this section, shall be deemed to be kept unlawfully, and so that the safety of any person employed therein is in danger.

13. (1) In every factory:

(a) There shall be such means of extinguishing fires as the inspector, acting under the regulations made in that behalf, directs in writing.

(b) In all factories of more than one storey the doors shall open outwards, provided, however, that the inspector may permit sliding doors for the purpose of taking goods in and out of the factory.

(c) Any door leading to or being the principal or main entrance to the factory or to any tower, stairway or fire escape therein or belonging thereto, shall not be bolted, barred or locked at any time during the ordinary and usual working hours of the factory.

(2) The owner of every factory over two storeys in height, and, where deemed necessary by the inspector, the owner of every factory over one storey in height, shall, within six months of the time of the passing of this Act, provide the said factory with one or more systems of fire escapes as follows:—

(a) A sufficient number of tower stairways with iron doorways within reach of or having easy communication with all the working rooms of the factory; or

(b) A sufficient number of iron or other unflammable fire escapes on the outside of the building, such fire escapes to consist of stairways with railings or iron ladders to be connected with the interior of the building by iron or tinned doors or windows, with iron shutters, and to have suitable landings at every storey, including the attic, if the attic is occupied as a workroom, and the stairways to start at a distance of not more than eight feet from the ground or pavement; or

(c) Any other system of fire escape that may be sanctioned under this Act by the Board.

(3) The owner or proprietor of any factory refusing or neglecting to provide the means of safe exit in case of fire prescribed by the inspector, shall, upon conviction thereof, incur and be liable to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, with costs of prosecution, and in default of immediate payment of such fine and costs be liable to imprisonment within the common gaol of the county for a period of not more than twelve months.

14. Nothing in this Act shall extend to any person being a mechanic, artisan or, labourer working only in repairing the machinery, in or any part of a factory.

15. The Board may, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, from time to time, for the purpose of carrying out this Act,

(1) Make such rules, regulations and orders for enforcing its provisions, and for the conduct and duties of the inspector as may be deemed necessary.

(2) Appoint one or more inspectors, and safety first inspectors, one of whom may be a female, who shall be paid such salary or compensation as from time to time may be appropriated by the Legislature.

16. (1) The inspector shall, for the purposes of the execution of this Act, and for the enforcing of the regulations made under the authority hereof, have power to do all or any of the following things, namely:

(a) To enter, inspect and examine at all reasonable times, by day or night, any factory and any part thereof, when he has reasonable cause to believe that any persons are employed therein, and to enter by day or night any place which he has reasonable cause to believe to be a factory.

(b) To require the production of any register, certificate or document required by this Act to be kept, and to inspect, examine and keep a copy of the same.

(c) To take with him in every case, a constable into a factory in which he has reasonable cause to apprehend any serious obstruction in the execution of his duty.

(d) To make such examination and enquiry as may be necessary to ascertain whether the provisions of this Act are complied with, as far as respects the factory and the persons employed therein.

(e) To examine, either alone, or in the presence of any other person as he thinks fit, with respect to matters under this Act, every person whom he finds in a factory, or whom he has reasonable cause to believe to be or to have been within the two preceding months employed in a factory, and to require such person to be so examined and to sign a declaration of the truth of the matter of which he is so examined.

(f) For the purpose of any investigation, enquiry or examination made by him under the authority of this Act, to administer an oath to and to summons any person to give evidence.

(g) To exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying this Act into effect.

(2) The employer and his agents and servants shall furnish the means required by the inspector as necessary, for an entry, inspection, examination or enquiry, or the exercise of his power under this Act in relation to such factory.

(3) Every person who wilfully delays the inspector in the exercise of any power under this section, or who fails or refuses to comply with the summons of the inspector in pursuance of this section, or to produce any certificate or document which he is required by or in pursuance of this Act to produce or who conceals or prevents a child, a young girl or woman from appearing before or being examined by the inspector, or attempts so to conceal or prevent a child, young girl or woman, shall be deemed to obstruct an inspector in the execution of his duties under this Act, but no one shall be required under this section to answer any question or to give any evidence tending to criminate himself.

(4) Where the inspector is obstructed in the execution of his duties under this Act, the person so obstructing him shall be liable to a fine not exceeding thirty dollars, and where an inspector is so obstructed in a factory, the employer shall be liable to a fine not exceeding thirty dollars, or where the offence is committed at night, one hundred dollars.

17. (1) The inspector before entering in pursuance of the powers conferred by this Act, without the consent of the occupier, any room or place actually used as a dwelling, as well as for a factory, shall, upon an affidavit or statutory declaration of facts and reasons, obtain written authority to do so from the Board, or such warrant, as is hereinafter mentioned from a justice of the peace or police magistrate.

(2) The affidavit or statutory declaration as above mentioned may be inspected or produced in evidence in all respects as an information on oath before a justice.

(3) A justice of the peace or police magistrate, if satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable cause to suppose that any enactment of this Act is contravened in any such room or place as aforesaid may, in his discretion, grant a warrant under his hand authorizing the inspector named therein, at any time within the period so named therein, but not exceeding one month from the date thereof, to enter in pursuance of this Act the room or place named in the warrant and exercise therein the powers of inspection and examination conferred by this Act, and the fines and provisions of this Act with respect to obstruction of the inspector shall apply accordingly.

18. Every inspector under this Act shall be furnished with a formal certificate of his appointment under the hand and seal of the Board to whom the duty of the administration of this Act is assigned and on applying for admission to a factory shall, if required, produce to the employer the said certificate.

19. Every person shall, within one month after he begins to occupy a factory, serve on the Board a written notice containing the name of the factory, the place where it is situated, the address to which he desires his letters to be addressed, the nature of the work, the nature and amount of the moving power therein, and the name of the firm under which the business of the factory is to be carried on, and in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars.

20. There shall be affixed at the entrance of a factory and in such other parts thereof as the inspector directs, and be constantly kept so affixed in the form directed by the inspector, and in such position as to be easily read by the persons employed in the factory.

(a) Such notices of the provisions of this Act and of any regulations made hereunder as the Board deems necessary to enable the persons employed in the factory to become acquainted with their rights, liabilities and duties under this Act.

(b) A notice of the name and address of the inspector.

(c) Every other notice and document (if any) required by this Act to be affixed in the factory. In the event of a contravention of any of the provisions or requirements of this section, the employer shall be liable to a fine of not exceeding fifteen dollars.

21. Any notice, order, requisition, summons and document under this Act may be in writing or print, or partly in writing and partly in print.

22. Every person who wilfully makes a false entry in any register, notice, certificate or document required by this Act to be left, served or sent, or who wilfully makes or signs a false declaration under this Act, or who knowingly makes use of any such entry or declaration shall, upon conviction thereof, be liable to imprisonment in the common gaol of the County in which the offence was committed for a period not exceeding three months or to a fine of not more than fifty dollars with costs of prosecution, and in default of immediate payment of such fine and costs then to imprisonment as aforesaid.

23. The parent of any child or young girl employed in any factory in contravention of this Act shall, unless such employment is without the consent, connivance or wilful default of such parent, be guilty of an offence in contravention of this Act, and shall for such offence pay a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars with costs of prosecution, and in default of immediate payment of such fine and costs shall be imprisoned in the common gaol of the county wherein the offence was committed for a period not exceeding two months.

24. If any of the provisions of this Act, or of any regulations, rules or orders made under the authority hereof by the Board are contravened and no penalty is herein provided for such contravention, the employer guilty of such contravention shall, in summary conviction thereof, incur and pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars and not more than fifty dollars, with costs of prosecution and in default of immediate payment of such fine and costs shall be imprisoned in the common gaol of the county wherein the offence was committed for a period not exceeding two months.

25. Where the employer is charged with an offence against this Act he shall be entitled, upon information duly laid by him, to have any other person whom he charges as the active offender brought before the Court of Tribunal at the time appointed for hearing the charge, and if, after the commission of the offence has been proved, the employer proves to the satisfaction of the court that he has used due diligence to enforce the execution of this Act, and that the said other person committed the offence in question without the knowledge, consent or connivance of him, the employer, the said other person shall be summarily convicted of such offence, and the employer shall be exempt from any fine, penalty or punishment.

26. Where it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the inspector, at the time of discovering the offence, that the employer has used all due diligence to enforce the execution of this Act, and also by what person such offence was committed, and also that it was committed without the knowledge, consent or connivance of the employer and in contravention of his orders, then the inspector shall proceed against the person whom he believes to be the actual offender in the first instance without first proceeding against the employer.

27. All fines or penalties in money imposed or recovered under or in pursuance of this Act shall be paid by the convicting justice or police magistrate, as the case may be, to the Board, who shall forthwith pay the same over to the Provincial Secretary Treasurer of the Province, to and for the use of the Province.

28. All prosecutions under this Act may be brought and heard before any two of His Majesty's justices of the peace in and for the county wherein the penalty was incurred or the offence was committed or wrong done, and in cities and towns in which there is a police magistrate, before such police magistrate, and save where otherwise provided by this Act, the procedure shall be governed by the Summary Convictions Act.

29. The following provisions shall have effect with respect to summary proceedings for offences and fines under this Act.

(a) The information shall be laid within two months, or where the offence is punishable at discretion by imprisonment, within three months after the offence has come to the knowledge of the inspector.

(b) The description of an offence in the words of this Act or in similar words, shall be sufficient in law.

(c) It shall be sufficient to allege that a factory is a factory within the meaning of this Act without more.

(d) It shall be sufficient to state the name of the ostensible employer or the title of the firm by which the employer employing persons in the factory is easily known.

30. On the trial of any complaint, proceeding, matter, or question under this Act, the person opposing or defending, or who is charged with any offence against or under any of the provisions of this Act, shall be competent and compellable to give evidence in or with respect to such complaint, proceeding, matter or question.

31. It shall be the duty of the inspector to make a report to the Board on the first day of January in every year, which report shall give the names and locations of all factories where the conditions are not according to law, a brief account of all such illegal conditions in such factories, and the causes thereof, and any other matters that to the said inspector may seem necessary and desirable, and it shall be the duty of the Board to cause such reports to be laid before the Legislative Assembly as soon as possible after the opening of each session thereof.

32. The factory inspector may demand of an employer or corporation the names of all children or young persons under sixteen years of age, in his employ in the several cities and towns in the Province, and may require that the birth record, baptismal record, passport, or age certificate of such children shall be produced for his inspection, and the failure to produce the same shall be prima facie evidence that the employment of such child or young person is illegal. Such age certificate shall be a printed form supplied by the factory inspector to the employer, and which certificate shall be signed by the parent or parents of the child, stating the birth date of the child. Whoever, either for himself or as superintendent, overseer, or agent of another, employs or has in his employment, any child or young person in violation of the provisions of this section, and every parent who allows any child or young person to be so employed shall be punished by a fine of not less than one or more than fifty dollars for each offence.

33. Whoever, being the parent of such child, presents, or who allows any child under his control to present to any employer, owner, superintendent, overseer or agent, as required under this section, any certified copy of birth or baptismal record, or passport, or age certificate containing any false statements as to the date of birth, or age of such child, knowing them to be false, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offence.

Stationary Engineers.

34. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a Board of Examiners consisting of three competent and independent engineers of not less than ten years' experience as stationary steam engineers, practically conversant with the construction of boilers and the operation of steam plants, who shall hold office during pleasure and who, subject to the regulations mentioned in the next section following, shall prescribe the subjects in which candidates for certificates of qualification as stationary, pumping, or hoisting engineers shall be examined and shall conduct or provide for and supervise the examination of candidates and report thereon to the board.

35. A person who is not the holder of a certificate shall not operate or have charge of any steam plant, but the inspector may, in his discretion, in any special case in which it is made to appear to him that the owner or user of a steam boiler or engine may be unable to procure a duly licensed engineer, capable of operating his plant, issue to such owner or user a temporary permit for a period not exceeding thirty days, for operation by a person who he is satisfied has sufficient practical knowledge and experience to operate the same with safety to the plant and to persons and property in its vicinity.

36. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint an inspector or inspectors of steam boilers at a stated salary and travelling expenses, for the purposes of this Act and for the enforcement of the regulations, but before making such appointment the Examiners must call for applications, by advertisement in the Royal Gazette. All applicants must stand a written examination prescribed by the Board and the results of such examination shall be submitted to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, who may act thereon, and the applicant best qualified in the judgment of the Board shall receive the appointment.

37. No person shall be appointed or shall hold office as inspector who is directly or indirectly interested in the manufacture or sale of steam boilers or steam machinery.

38. No person, except he possesses a license granted under this Act, shall have charge of or operate steam boilers and engines within the province, under a penalty of not less than five dollars and not more than ten dollars, for every day in which he shall have charge of such boiler and engine without possessing such license, but nothing in this Act shall apply to:

- (a) Boilers and engines upon locomotives;
- (b) Motor road vehicles;
- (c) Boilers and engines in private residences;
- (d) Boilers in apartment houses, schools, churches, or other public buildings, for hot water heating only; or when used for steam heating carrying a pressure of not more than fifteen pounds.
- (e) Boilers and engines used for agricultural purposes only.
- (f) Boilers and engines in charge of a person holding a certificate as a first or second-class marine engineer, who shall make application to the Board for, and shall receive, without examination, a license on payment of the prescribed fee.

39. Upon any other province, state or country, agreeing to accept licenses issued under this Act as sufficient to entitle the holder to operate steam plants in such province, state or country, or to license the holders of such licenses for such purposes, then the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by proclamation, provide that the Board shall grant licenses to operate within the Province, to the holders of similar licenses issued in such other province, state or country.

40. The Board shall have full power to make any and all regulations that may be deemed necessary for the examination of candidates, granting of certificates, time and duration of certificates, any and all fees to be paid, causes for revocation, cancellation or suspension of certificates, remuneration to be paid to examiners, qualification of candidates, and for the proper carrying effect of the provisions and intentions of this Act, and providing penalties for the non-performance of or non-compliance with any of said regulations. Such regulations to be first approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and printed in the Royal Gazette.

41. The Acts 5 Edward VII, Chapter 7; 9 Edward VII, Chapter 42; 1 George V, Chapter 50; 2 George V, Chapter 40; 5 George V, Chapter 57; 6 George V, Chapter 40, and all other Acts or Parts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

42. This Act shall come into force on the first day of July next [1920].

QUEBEC.

CIVIL CODE<sup>1</sup>.Earnings of Minors—Suits for Wages.

304. Actions belonging to a minor are brought in the name of his tutor. Nevertheless a minor of fourteen years of age may bring alone actions to recover his wages. He may also, with the authority of a judge, bring alone all other actions arising from the contract for the hire of his personal services.

Liability of Employers for Injuries to Employees.

1053. Every person capable of discerning right from wrong is responsible for the damage caused by his fault to another, whether by positive act, imprudence, neglect or want of skill.

1054. He is responsible not only for the damage caused by his own fault, but also for that caused by the fault of persons under his control and by things which he has under his care;

Masters and employers are responsible for the damage caused by their servants and workmen in the performance of the work for which they are employed.

Employment of Labour—General Provisions.

1666. The principle kinds of work which may be leased or hired are:

1. The personal services of workmen, servants, and others;
2. The work of carriers, by land or water, who undertake the conveyance of persons or things;

3. That of builders and others, who undertake works by estimate or contract.

1667. The contract of lease or hire of personal service can only be for a limited term, or for a determinate undertaking.

It may be prolonged by tacit renewal.

1668. It is terminated by the death of the party hired or his becoming, without fault, unable to perform the services agreed upon.

It is also terminated by the death of the party hiring, in some cases, according to circumstances.

1669. In any action for wages by domestics or farm servants, the master may, in the absence of written proof, offer his oath as to the conditions of the engagement and as to the fact of the payment, accompanied by a detailed statement; but such oath may be refuted in the same manner as any other testimony.

1670. The rights and obligations arising from the lease or hire of personal service are subject to the rules common to contracts. They are also regulated in certain respects in the country parts by a special law, and in the towns and villages by by-laws of the respective municipal councils.

1671. The hiring of seamen is subject to certain special rules provided in the Imperial Laws respecting merchant shipping and the Federal Acts respecting the hiring of seamen, and the hiring of boatmen, commonly called voyageurs, by the Provincial Act respecting voyageurs.

Rights and Obligations of Workmen as Contractors.

1683. When a party undertakes the construction of a building or other work by estimate and contract, it may be agreed, either that he shall furnish labour and skill only, or that he shall also furnish materials.

1684. If the workman furnish the materials, and the work is to be perfected and delivered as a whole, at a fixed price, the loss of the thing, in any manner whatsoever, before delivery, falls upon himself, unless the loss is caused by the fault of the owner or he is in default of receiving the thing.

1685. If the workman furnish only labour and skill, the loss of the thing before delivery does not fall upon him, unless it is caused by his fault.

1686. In the case of the last preceding article, if the work is to be perfected and delivered as a whole, and the thing perish before the work has been received, and without the owner being in default of receiving it, the workman cannot claim his wages, although he be without fault unless the thing has perished by reason of defect in the materials, or by the fault of the owner.

1687. If the work be composed of several parts, or done at a certain rate by measurement, it may be received in parts. It is presumed to have been so received, for all the parts paid for, if the owner pays the workman in proportion to the work done.

1688. If a building perish in whole or in part within ten years, from a defect in construction, or even from the unfavourable nature of the ground, the architect superintending the work and the builder are jointly and severally liable for the loss.

1689. If, in the case stated in the last preceding article, the architect do not superintend the work, he is liable for the loss only which is occasioned by defect or error in the plan furnished by him.

1690. When an architect or builder undertakes the construction of a building or other work by contract, upon a plan and specifications, at a fixed price, he cannot claim any additional sum upon the ground of a change from the plan and specifications, or of an increase in the labour and materials, unless such change or increase is authorized in writing and the price thereof is agreed upon with the proprietor, or unless the agreement upon these two points be established by the decisory oath of the proprietor.

1691. The owner may cancel the contract for the construction of a building or other works at a fixed price, although the work have been begun, on indemnifying the workman for all his actual expenses and labour, and paying damages according to the circumstances of the case.

1692. The contract of lease or hire of work by estimate and contract is not terminated by the death of the workman; his legal representatives are bound to perform it. But in cases wherein the skill and ability of the workman were an inducement for making the contract, it may be cancelled at his death by the party hiring him.

1693. In the latter case stated in the last preceding article, the owner is bound to pay to the legal representatives of the workman, in proportion to the price agreed upon in the contract the value of the work done and materials furnished in case such work and materials are useful to him.

1694. The contract is not terminated by the death of the party hiring the work, unless the performance of it becomes thereby impossible.

1695. Architects, builders, and other workmen have a privilege upon the buildings or other works constructed by them, for the payment of their work and materials, subject to the rules contained in the title of Privileges and Hypothecs, and the title of Registration of Real Rights.

1696. Masons, carpenters, and other workmen who undertake work by contract, for a fixed price, are subject to the rules prescribed in this section. They are regarded as contractors with regard to such work.

1697. The workmen who are employed by the contractor in the construction of a building or other works have no direct action against the owner.

Payment of Wages.

1697a. Every builder or contractor, whether chief or sub-contractor, who employs workmen by the day or by piece work, to carry out a contract, must keep a list, showing the names and wages or price of the work of such workmen; and every payment to them made must be attested by the signature or cross of such workman affixed thereto, in presence of a witness, who also signs it.

1697b. It shall be lawful for every workman who is unpaid to produce, in the presence of a witness, to the proprietor who gave the work out to contract, his claim in duplicate in the form in Schedule B; and from the time such claim shall be so produced, the sum then due upon the price or value of the contract shall be deemed to be seized in the hands of the proprietor pro rata up to the amount of the claim of the workman.

Five days after the production of such claim, if the claim of the workman have not been paid, the latter may proceed judicially against the contractor who employed him, making the proprietor a party to the suit.

Payments made by the proprietor after the production of the claim cannot be opposed to the workman's claim.

1697c. Several unpaid workmen may join in the same claim.

1697d. In case of an assignment by the contractor to a third party of the price of the work, the claim of the workman has, with respect to such third party, the same effect as it would have had with respect to the contractor if no such assignment had been made.

Workmen's Liens—Fishermen, Woodmen, Etc.

1994. The claims which carry a privilege upon movable property are the following, and when several of them come together they take precedence in the following order, and according to the rules hereinafter declared, unless some special law derogates therefrom:

9. Servants' wages and those of employees of railway companies engaged in manual labour, sums due under article 7340 of the Revised Statutes, 1909, and sums due for supplies of provisions. 1918, c. 75, s. 1.

1994a. Each person engaged to fish, or assist at any fishery, or in the dressing of fish, either by written agreement or otherwise, has, for securing his wages or share, a first lien preferable to any other creditor upon the produce of his employer's fishery.

1994c. Every person engaging himself to cut or manufacture timber, or to draw it out of the forest, or to float, raft or bring it down rivers and streams, has, for securing his wages or salary, a privilege, ranking with the claims of creditors who have a right of pledge or of retention, upon all the timber belonging to the person for whom he worked, and, if he worked for a contractor, sub-contractor or foreman, upon all the timber belonging to the person in whose service such contractor, sub-contractor or foreman were, and which was cut, drawn or floated, by such contractor, sub-contractor or foreman; but said privilege is extinguished as soon as the lumber shall have passed into the hands of a third person who has bought it, has received delivery thereof, and has paid the price therefor in full. Such privilege in no wise affects that which the banks may acquire in virtue of the Banking Act. However, in the case in which the creditor has worked for a contractor or sub-contractor, such privilege shall not exist unless the person having a right thereto has given a written notice to the person affected by the exercise thereof, and to the debtor or their agents or employees, of the amount due to him at each term of payment, as soon as possible, and such notice may be given by one creditor for and in the name of all the others who are unpaid.

2. In the event of a contestation between the creditor and the debtor respecting the amount due, the creditor shall, without delay, give written notice to the person affected, by the exercise of such right, and the latter shall then retain the amount in dispute until he receives a written notification of an amicable settlement or of a judicial decision.

1994d. Workmen who have worked for persons giving theatrical or other profit-making exhibitions, including circuses, shall have a privilege upon things used for the purposes of such exhibitions above-mentioned, and which belong to such persons, for thirty days' salary due and unpaid. 1914, c. 64, s. 1.

2001. Creditors, having a right of pledge or of retention, rank according to the nature of their pledge or of their claim.

The following is the order among them:

Carriers;

Hotel-keepers;

Mandatories or consignees;

Borrowers in loan for use;

Depositories;

Pledges;

Workmen, upon things repaired by them, and persons having a privilege in virtue of article 1994e or 1994d. Amended 1914, c. 64, s. 2.

Mechanics' Liens.

2009. The privileged claims upon immovables are hereinafter enumerated and rank in the following order:

7. The claim of the workman, supplier of materials, builder and architect, subject to the provisions of Article 2013 and following; 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 1.

9. Servants' wages, and those of employees of railway companies engaged in manual labour, under the same restrictions as funeral expenses.

2013. The workman, supplier of materials, builder and architect have a privilege and a right of preference over all the other creditors, on the immovable, but only upon the additional value given to such immovable by the work done or by the materials. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2013a. The word "workman" includes the artisan, the labourer and generally every one who makes his living by manual labour.

The words "supplier of materials" include the supplier not only of raw materials but also of every manufactured object which enters into any construction.

The word "builder" includes both contractor and sub-contractor.

The words "end of the work" mean the date at which the construction is ready for the use for which it is intended. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2013b. In case the proceeds are insufficient to pay all the claims, the additional value given to the property is established by a relative valuation ordered by a judge, upon summary petition presented by any interested party, after such notice as the judge deems necessary.

The judge appoints, in his discretion, one or three experts, who proceed with the valuation, and make their return within the delay and according to the formalities ordered.

On the question of valuation, their decision, after homologation by the judge, is final and unappealable. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2013c. Such privileges rank as follows:—

1. The workman;

2. The supplier of materials;

3. The builder;

4. The architect. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2013d. The workman has a privilege, by reason of the work he has done on an immovable, for arrears up to twenty days, whether he was engaged by the proprietor or by a contractor. No formality is necessary to secure this privilege.

Such privilege shall subsist for thirty days after the end of the work, and need not be registered. But the privilege is extinguished on failure of the workman to sue his debtor within such delay, and to bring the proprietor into the case, as well as the registrar of the division in which the property is situated, in order to give notice of such privilege to the latter, who must make note of the suit in the index of immovables.

During the whole period and up to the end of the work, the proprietor is entitled to retain, on the contract price, an amount sufficient to pay the privileged claims. Any amount fixed by the sworn certificate of the architect or engineer in charge of the work shall be deemed sufficient, and, failing such architect or engineer, a like certificate may be given by a licensed architect or a duly qualified engineer of this Province, who may be agreed upon by the interested parties or, failing such agreement, appointed by a judge of the Superior Court.

The builder may not exact any payment on the contract price before he furnishes to the proprietor a statement, under his signature, of all amounts due by him for labour and materials.

Several workmen may join in one action, the costs of which shall be those of a personal action for the amount claimed. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2013e. The supplier of materials has a privilege on the immovable in the construction of which the materials supplied to the proprietor or builder have been used, or for the construction of which they have been specially prepared.

Such privilege, however, shall take effect only upon the registration of a notice given to the proprietor or his representative informing him of the nature and cost of the materials to be supplied, as well as the cadastral number of the immoveable property affected, and shall apply only to those furnished, or those specially prepared and not delivered, for the immovable in question, after the receipt of such notice by the proprietor, and its registration.

In order to meet the privileged claims of the supplier of materials, the proprietor of the immovable is entitled to retain on the contract price an amount equal to that mentioned in the notices he has received.

Such privilege is extinguished on failure of the supplier of materials to sue his debtor within thirty days after the end of the work, with the same formalities as those prescribed for the claim of the workman.

The supplier of materials is also entitled, in case of the insolvency of the proprietor or builder, or in case of failure to make payment at the periods agreed upon, to revendicate the materials he has supplied, but which have not yet been incorporated into the building. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2013f. The builder, or the architect, has a privilege on the immovable for the work he has done as such, provided that before the expiration of thirty days after the end of the work, he registers by memorial, at the registry office of the division in which the property is situated, a statement of his claim. Notice of such registration must be given, within the same delay, to the proprietor.

Such privilege is extinguished after six months following the date of the end of the work, unless the creditor take an action against the proprietor to preserve it. In such action the registrar must be called into the case, in order to give him notice of such action, and to cause him to note the same in his index of immovables.

In the case where the builder has had the work done, either wholly or in part, by sub-contract, if the sub-contractor has notified the proprietor of his contract, such sub-contractor shall have a privilege upon the immovable for all work done after such notification, provided that before the expiration of thirty days after the end of the work he registers statement of his claim. Such privilege is subject to the same formalities as that of the builder or architect, in so far as concerns its creation and extinction. The proprietor, in case the sub-contractor has notified him of his sub-contract, is entitled to retain, on the contract price, an amount sufficient to meet the privileged claim of the sub-contractor; and any amount fixed by a certificate given in compliance with the formalities contained in article 2013d, shall be deemed sufficient. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 3.

2103. 1. The privilege of every person, except the workman mentioned in article 2013 is created and preserved by registration within the proper delay at the registry office of the division in which the immovable is situated, of a notice or memorial, drawn up in the form of an affidavit of the creditor or his representative, sworn to before a justice of the peace, a commissioner of the Superior Court, or a notary, setting forth the name, occupation and residence of the creditor, the nature and amount of his claim, and the cadastral number of the immovable so affected. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 4 (a).

2. In registering such memorial, it is sufficient to mention, opposite the official number of the cadastre which describes the immovable, if the cadastre be deposited, or opposite the title of the registered deed, if the cadastre be not yet deposited, the name of the claimant and the amount due at the time the memorial is filed.

3. The memorial shall be made out in duplicate, one copy of which shall remain in the archives of the registry office and the other be delivered to the creditor with the registrar's certificate thereon.

4. After the expiration of six months from the date of registration of any privileged claim, or from the date of the end of the work, whichever be the latest, without an action having been taken to preserve it, any interested party may cause the registrar to radiate such claim by filing with him a written application to that effect, supported by affidavit of the expiry of such delay, and served on the privileged creditor or his representative not later than eight days prior to such filing. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 4 (b).

5. In the event of an action having been taken, the registrar is bound to radiate the registration of the claim upon the filing with him of a judgment dismissing the action or other order of the court ordering him so to do, or of a certificate from the prothonotary establishing that the action has been discontinued. 1916, second session, c. 52, s. 4 (b).

CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE<sup>1</sup>.

Exemption of Wages and Pensions from Seizure.

[Article 599 enumerates in a number of clauses possessions which are exempt from seizure. Clauses 8 to 10 inclusive deal with the salaries of teachers, of public officers, and of municipal officers and employees. Clauses 11, 13 and 14 provide for the exemption from seizure of other salaries and wages and of pensions as follows:]

11. All other salaries and wages, at whatever time and in whatever manner payable, for
  - (a) Four-fifths, when they do not exceed three dollars per day;
  - (b) Three-quarters, when they exceed three dollars but do not exceed six dollars per day; and
  - (c) Two-thirds when they exceed six dollars per day.
13. All pensions granted by financial or other institutions to their employees, by means of retiring funds or pension funds established among the said employees, as well as the instalments paid, or to be paid, to form such pension funds and to give a right to the benefits arising therefrom.

14. Four-fifths of the salary, remuneration or earnings of members of the Corporation of Pilots for and below the harbour of Quebec, for the pilotage of vessels.

Garnishment of Wages.

[Article 685 sets forth what a garnishee must declare concerning his indebtedness. An amendment added by 1912, first session, chapter 50, provides for the valuation of certain services as follows:]

If the garnishee declares that the debtor is in his employ, or that he works for him, but without receiving wages or remuneration for his work or services, the judge, on petition of the seizing creditor, may order proof of the value of the debtor's work or services, and, on such proof, may determine in money the amount of the wages or the value of the debtor's work or services, and the amount so fixed shall be thereafter treated for all the purposes of the case, as having been and as being the debtor's wages or to the value of his services, until it is proved upon the demand of the debtor or of the creditor, that the amount so fixed ought to be changed. 1912, first session, c. 50, s. 1.

697. In seizing salaries or wages mentioned in paragraphs 10 and 11 of Article 599, the seizure by garnishment remains binding for the proportion which is seizable, so long as the contract or engagement continues or so long as the debtor remains in the employ of the garnishee.

Any other creditor may, so long as the seizure in garnishment remains binding, file in the record of the case his sworn claim, and in such case shall give notice thereof to the seizing creditor and to the debtor.

The prothonotary after collocating the first seizing party for his costs, distributes ratably among the creditor and the creditors who have fulfilled the requirements of the preceding paragraph, the sum to be divided, and determines, in a summary manner, upon the writ or upon a sheet annexed thereto, the amount coming to each of the creditors.

The garnishee must, on making his declaration, deposit the sum which he owes; and if the defendant continues in his service, the garnishee must, every month, either renew his declaration in the office of the court, and make the required deposit, or transmit to the prothonotary, by registered letter, a sworn declaration stating the amount in which he is indebted, accompanied with the amount to be deposited.

If he neglects so to do, he may be thereto compelled by a judge's order.

If the defendant quits his service, the garnishee makes a declaration to that effect.

The garnishee may, upon making his original declaration, fix the day of the month, not later than the fifteenth, at which he will renew his declaration.

The moneys seized and paid remain in the hands of the prothonotary, who pays them over to the plaintiff and the other creditors on demand three days after they are deposited, if there are no oppositions.

In other respects, the seizure of salaries is subject to the same rules as seizures by garnishment in general.

REVISED STATUTES OF 1909.

Protection of Employees as Voters.

392. Every one who, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, makes use of, or threatens to make use of any force, violence or restraint, or inflicts or threatens the infliction, by himself, or by or through any other person, of any injury, damage, harm or loss, or in any manner practises intimidation upon or against any person, in order to induce or compel such person to vote or refrain from voting or on account of such person having voted or refrained from voting at any election,—or who, by abduction, duress or any fraudulent device or contrivance, impedes, prevents or otherwise interferes with the free exercise of the franchise of any elector, or thereby compels, induces or prevails upon any elector either to give or refrain from giving his vote at any election, shall be deemed to have committed the offence of "undue influence," and shall, in addition to any penalty thereby incurred, forfeit the sum of two hundred dollars to any person who sues therefor, with costs.

Bureau of Statistics.

795a. In this section, unless the context otherwise requires:—

(a) The word "Minister" means the Provincial Secretary;

(b) The word "head" means the head of the Quebec Bureau of Statistics;

(c) The word "Bureau" means the Quebec Bureau of Statistics. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 1.

795b. There shall be established under the authority of the Provincial Secretary a permanent Bureau called "The Quebec Bureau of Statistics," and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint, for the good administration of this service, a head of the Bureau and the other necessary officers, clerks and employees, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the Minister, to carry out the provisions of this section and to perform such other duties as may be assigned to them from time to time by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 1.

795c. The Minister may also employ from time to time, such employees or other persons, as may be necessary to collect for the Bureau the statistics and information which he may think useful to the public. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 1.

795d. Under the direction of the Minister, the head of the Bureau shall collect, condense and tabulate useful statistics and information respecting this Province, and more particularly respecting education, industry, commerce, agriculture, population, colonization, the natural products of the soil and generally respecting everything which concerns the Province and is of public interest. 1912, Second session, c. 16, s. 1.

795e. Whenever it appears to the Minister that the statistics and information collected and condensed are sufficiently important and reliable to make the publication thereof useful, he shall have them published in the manner and form prescribed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Neither the Lieutenant-Governor in Council nor the Minister, in the exercise of the powers conferred by this section, shall discriminate between any persons or companies to the prejudice of any of them. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 1.

795f. The public officers or employees under the control of the Government of the Province, or under the control of a municipality, or of a school board or of a society, association or corporation constituted in virtue of a law in force in this Province, or receiving a subsidy from the Government of this Province, and all persons so subsidized, shall answer promptly all official communications from the Bureau and collect and correctly classify the facts or statistics called for by the Bureau. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 1.

795g. Any person mentioned in article 795f who wilfully gives false information or refuses or neglects to answer a question authorized by this section, or to collect, classify or deliver the statistics which it is in his power to collect, classify or deliver, when he has been duly called upon so to do by the Minister or by the head of the Bureau, shall be liable for each offence, to a fine of not more than fifty dollars. 1912, second, session c. 16, s. 1.

795h. The Minister with the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may make all arrangements which he may think useful to establish a system of exchange of information or statistics between the Government of Canada or one or more of its departments and the Bureau. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 1.

Sale of Intoxicants near Mines.

1004. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by proclamation issued and published for that purpose in the usual manner, when mines are in operation and when the public interest requires the same, declare that the first division of this subsection shall apply to any or all mining divisions of the Province or to any part thereof; and after such proclamation, whosoever, in such mining division or part thereof, sells or exchanges any intoxicating liquors, within a radius of five miles from any mine that is being worked, without having first obtained a license for that purpose, from the inspector of the division, under the Mining Act, shall be liable to the following penalties, to wit: for a first offence, a fine of not less than seventy and not more than one hundred dollars; for a second offence a fine of two hundred dollars, and, in either case, in default of payment, to imprisonment for three months, and for a third or any subsequent offence, to imprisonment for three months without the option of a fine.

Cashing of Pay Cheques in Hotels Prohibited.

1023. Every person holding either a hotel or a restaurant license, who cashes or exchanges for money, any employer's certificate of wages or pay cheques, shall incur for each offence a fine of twenty dollars, and in default of payment, imprisonment for one month.

Employment of Women and Minors in Bar Rooms.

1049. No person under eighteen years of age shall act as bar-tender in any establishment licensed under this section, and any person offending against this article shall incur for each offence a penalty of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars, and the employer of such bar-tender shall incur for each offence a penalty of not less than fifty dollars nor more than seventy-five dollars.

1050. No female, not being the wife of the tavern, inn or restaurant keeper, shall act as bar-maid or be employed to serve or wait upon the guests or the public in the bar-room of any tavern, inn or restaurant licensed under this section.

Licensing of Public Laundries.

1299a. The words "public laundry" mean, for the purposes of this subsection 11a, any shop, dwelling or building whatsoever in which linen, brought or sent there by the public, is washed or ironed for a profit.

The words "public laundry," however, do not include the shop, dwelling or building of a landress who, either alone or with members of her family, washes or irons therein, for a profit, linen brought or sent there by the public, nor the shops, dwellings or buildings occupied by charitable religious communities or by incorporated companies paying the provincial tax on corporations, and in which linen, brought or sent there by the public, is washed or ironed for a profit.

The corporations mentioned in this article, and which pay the provincial corporation tax, are exempt from the application of this subsection only if the taxes paid each year, under article 1345 and following, equal or exceed the fees and duties which might be exacted under this subsection. 1915, c. 22, s. 2.

1299b. In order to obtain a license to carry on or keep a public laundry, the applicant must pay the proper collector of provincial revenue, besides the duties set forth in the tariff hereinafter mentioned, a fee of five dollars, three dollars whereof shall be transmitted to the Provincial Treasurer, and two dollars kept by the collector. 1915, c. 22, s. 2.

1299c. Every person to whom this subsection 11a applies must show his license to any proper collector of provincial revenue or to any person authorized in writing by such collector of provincial revenue, and in default of so doing shall be deemed to have no license, and shall be punishable accordingly. 1915, c. 22, s. 2.

2. No person, holding a license as aforesaid, shall lend or lease his license to any other person, or traffic with such license, under penalty of a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each offence, and, in default of payment of the fine and costs, to imprisonment for one month. 1915, c. 22, s. 2.

1299d. Any person who carries on or keeps a public laundry within the meaning of this subsection 11a, without having a license therefor in force, shall be liable to a fine of not less than thirty dollars and not more than two hundred dollars for each offence, and, in default of payment of the fine and costs, to imprisonment for two months. 1915, c. 22, s. 2.

Sale of Intoxicants near Public Works.

1334. 1. No person shall barter, sell, exchange or dispose of, directly or indirectly, to any other person, any intoxicating liquor, or shall expose, keep or have in his possession for sale, barter or exchange, any intoxicating liquor, at any place, not within any city, town, or village, and being within three miles of the line of any railway, canal, or other public work in process of construction, whether such work is constructed by the Government of this Province, or by any incorporated company, or by private enterprise.

2. No person shall obtain or receive a license to sell any intoxicating liquor at any such place as aforesaid, and any such license if granted shall be null.

3. If any doubt at any time arises, as to whether any work then in progress does or does not come within the meaning of this section, the Lieutenant-Governor, if he sees fit, may declare by proclamation that such work is within the meaning of this section and that the prohibition herein contained applies to any place within three miles of the line thereof, which line may be described and defined in such proclamation.

The declaration contained in such proclamation shall have the like force as if contained in this section and the said prohibition shall apply accordingly:

4. Nothing in such declaration shall be construed as a declaration that such work or any part thereof was not within the meaning of this section before the issuing of such proclamation, but the question whether it was or was not, shall be decided as if such proclamation had not issued.

5. This section shall not extend to any licensed distiller or brewer selling intoxicating liquors by wholesale, and not retailing the same.

1335. 1. Any person, who, in contravention of this section, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, exposes or keeps for sale or barter, or sells, disposes of, gives or exchanges for any other matter or thing, to any other person any intoxicating liquor, shall be liable to a fine of twenty dollars on the first conviction, forty dollars on the second, and on the third and every subsequent conviction to such last mentioned fine and to imprisonment for not more than six months.

Such fine shall be paid over to the clerk or secretary-treasurer of the municipality in which the offence is proved to have been committed, for the use of the municipality and to be applied to such public purposes as the council thereof may direct.

2. In default of payment at the time of conviction, of any fine and costs imposed under this section, with the costs of prosecution, the offender shall be imprisoned until the same be paid under warrant of the justice, warden, mayor, police magistrate, recorder or judge before whom the conviction is had; but no person shall be imprisoned for any separate offence under this section for more than six months.

3. Any clerk, servant or agent, or other person in the employment or on the premises of another, who sells, disposes of, or exchanges for any other matter or thing, or assists in selling, disposing of, or exchanging, for any other matter or thing, any intoxicating liquor, in contravention of this section, for the person in whose service or on whose premises he is, is equally guilty with the principal and shall be liable to the like penalty.

Registration and Licensing of Chauffeurs.

1399. (1) No operator's or chauffeur's license shall be issued to any person under eighteen years of age. 1911, c. 16, s. 5.

1400. Every person who desires to operate a motor vehicle as a chauffeur must previously obtain a chauffeur's license.

For that purpose he shall file in the Treasury Department on a blank to be furnished to him from the said Department, a statement which shall include his name and address and the trade name and motive power of the vehicle which he is able to operate. Such statement shall be filed and recorded in the Department, and a number shall be assigned to such chauffeur. The Provincial Treasurer shall thereupon issue to the applicant a chauffeur's license and shall deliver to him a metal badge of such size and dimensions as he may select, with the words: "Registered Chauffeur No. . . . , Quebec," stamped or painted thereon, which badge shall be at all times worn by such chauffeur when operating a motor vehicle on the public roads, under the penalty hereinafter provided.

1401. No such chauffeur's license shall be granted before the applicant has given such proof of his qualifications thereupon as may be required by the Provincial Treasurer.

1402. (1) Each operator's or chauffeur's license shall expire on the first day of March in each year, and shall be renewable at that date. The fee for each such license and renewal thereof shall be five dollars, and the amount of said fee to be sent in with the application. Amended 1916, second session, c. 21, s. 8.

Every holder of a license under this section must carry his license with him when operating a motor vehicle.

(2) The Provincial Treasurer may, at any time, suspend or revoke, any license for any violation of this section or any of the regulations made thereunder.

1402a. The provisions of article 1393 respecting the exemptions and privileges of non-residents with respect to registration apply equally to the issue of licenses to non-residents 1911, c. 16, s. 6.

Offences.

1403. The refusal by any operator or chauffeur to exhibit his license or certificate of registration when called upon so to do by an authorized representative of the Provincial Treasurer, is an offence against this section.

1404. No person whose certificate of registration or license to operate has been suspended or revoked, shall operate a motor vehicle thereafter in this Province while such suspension or revocation remains in force; and any person convicted of so doing and any person convicted of operating or causing or permitting any other person to operate a motor vehicle after the certificate of registration for such vehicle has been suspended or revoked, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment for ten days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

1405. Every contravention of any of the provisions of this section or of the regulations made thereunder, not specially provided for, shall render the guilty party liable, upon an action taken before the circuit court or magistrate's court, or on conviction before a justice of the peace, for the first offence, to a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred dollars; for the second offence, to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars; for the third or any subsequent offence, to a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, and, in default of payment of the fine and costs, to imprisonment for not more than two months, or to both. 1916, second session, c. 21, s. 10.

1425. No chauffeur, being licensed as hereinabove provided shall voluntarily permit any other person to wear his badge, nor shall any person while operating a motor vehicle wear any badge belonging to another person, or a fictitious badge.

<sup>1</sup>The Regulations issued under Article 1432 include a requirement that applicants for licenses must file with the license issuer certificates of competency from an authorized examiner and references as to character. The regulations also contain provisions respecting examinations.

1426. No person shall employ as chauffeur of a motor vehicle any person not specially licensed as such.

1427. No person under the influence of intoxicating liquor shall drive a motor vehicle. If any person convicted under this article . . . . . be the holder of an operator's or a chauffeur's license he shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars, or, in the discretion of the court, to imprisonment in the common gaol for such period of time not exceeding six months as the court may determine; and upon such condemnation the license shall become null and void. Amended 1914, c. 12, s. 8. 1916, second session c. 21, s. 23.

1429. Save in the cases to which article 1404 applies, the provisions of this section shall not prevent the operation of a motor vehicle by an unlicensed person if with, or accompanied by, a licensed chauffeur or operator, and provided that such unlicensed person obtains a permit to operate a motor vehicle.

Such permit may be issued by the proper collector of provincial revenue, for such duration of time, on such terms and conditions, and on payment of such fee, as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may fix. 1918, c. 27, s. 8.

Prison Labour.

1512. 1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, from time to time, direct or authorize the employment, upon any specific work or duty, within or without the limits of any common gaol, of any prisoner who, after a prior sentence of imprisonment for any breach of any law of Canada or of any Province, is sentenced to be imprisoned, with hard labour, in such gaol, for breach of the laws of Canada or of this Province, or for breach of the by-laws of any municipal corporation in this Province.

2. First offenders are also governed by paragraph 1 of this article, provided that the specific work or duty to be done or performed be within the limits of the gaol.

3. Prisoners condemned to imprisonment, by judgments which make no mention of hard labour, may also do or perform the specific work or duty mentioned in paragraph 1 of this article provided they consent thereto and that the gaoler sees no objection.

Inspection and Regulation of Mines.

2177. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the Minister, appoint any police force and all inspectors, policemen and other officers (except constables) deemed necessary for the carrying out of this section, fix their rank and salaries and prescribe their duties not herein prescribed.

2189. Every inspector, constable or peace officer, in a mining division, may, at any time enter upon private or public lands that are being mined in the said division, and examine the pits, shafts, tunnels, subterranean passages or other mining works or excavations constructed or commenced in any manner whatsoever, and require from the proprietors of such pits, shafts, tunnels and other mining works, and from their employees, all the facilities and assistance necessary for that purpose.

2190. No inspector of a mining division shall, under the penalties mentioned in article 2204, at any time, either directly or indirectly, so long as he is in office, take any share, in his own name, or in the name of another for him, in the working of any mines in the mining division for which he has been appointed.

2193. Every person who, in contravention of article 2212, by himself or his agents, employs a woman or a girl, or a male child in the working of such mine, is liable to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offence and the costs, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment not exceeding one month.

Riots in the Neighborhood of Mines.

2209. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by proclamation, whenever he thinks necessary, declare that section twelfth of chapter ninth of title fourth of these Revised Statutes (articles 2451 to 2467 both inclusive), respecting riots near public works, shall apply to one or more mining divisions, in so far as its provisions may be applicable; and the said section shall have force of law from and after the date of such proclamation, in the mining division or divisions mentioned in the proclamation.

2210. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, in the same manner, from time to time, declare the said section to be no longer in force in such mining division or divisions, and again put the same in force when he thinks advisable.

2211. No such proclamation shall have any effect within the limits of a city.

Protection of Workmen in Mines.

2212. 1. No woman or girl shall be employed in the working of a mine.

2. No male child under fifteen years shall be employed in the underground works of any mine or quarry.

3. No male child of fifteen years but under seventeen years shall be employed in a mine as above, more than forty-eight hours per week, such week being considered as beginning at mid-night on Sunday and ending at midnight on the following Saturday.

4. No male child under twenty years shall be employed in working machinery in or near a mine, with the exception of machinery put in motion by horses or other animals, in which case their driver may be sixteen years of age.

2213. Every proprietor of a mine in operation, who, by himself or his agents, offends against article 2212, is subject to the penalties mentioned in article 2193.

2213a. If while a mine or a quarry is being worked, an accident takes place resulting in loss of life or serious injury, the person working the same or his representative at such mine or quarry, shall forthwith send a written notice to the Minister, specifying the nature of the accident, the number of persons killed or injured and their names if they are known.

Every person not complying with the requirements of this article, shall be liable to the penalties provided in article 2207. 1911, c. 23, s. 8.

2214. Regulations may be made by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, respecting the sanitary condition and safety of the works in mines, so as to protect the life and health of the workmen therein employed.

Such regulations, after their publication in the "Quebec Official Gazette," shall become law and a copy of the same shall be posted up in the most conspicuous places of the mine, in conformity with the instructions of the mining inspector.*

2214a. It shall be the duty of the inspector to make such inspections of mines, quarries and workshops for the reduction of minerals as may be necessary to ensure the observance of all regulations made under article 2214.

The inspector shall have power, further, to order any owner of a mine or his agents, to have remedied within a certain lapse of time specified by such inspector, any state of affairs or any practices which he may consider bad or dangerous in the working of any mine, quarry or workshop for reducing mineral.

Any failure to obey such notice within the time specified shall be an offence punishable by the penalties provided by article 2207. 1914, c. 20, s. 6.

2215. Every three months, the inspector shall make a report to the Minister with respect to the fulfilment of the provisions of this subsection within the limits of his mining division.

Sale of Intoxicating Liquors Near Mines in Operation.

2216. The sale or exchange of intoxicating liquors, within a radius of seven miles from any mine in operation, is prohibited unless a license to that effect has been obtained from the inspector of the mining division, in conformity with section fourteenth of chapter fifth of title fourth of these Revised Statutes (articles 903 to 1315 both inclusive), under the penalties set forth in articles 1004 and following.

2217. The inspector of a division shall have the supervision of those who sell intoxicating liquors therein; and he alone may refuse or grant such licenses and cancel the same within such radius of seven miles.

REGULATIONS IN OPERATION OF MINES

Whereas under article 2214 of the R.S.P.Q., 1909, regulations may be made by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, respecting the sanitary condition and safety of the works in mines, so as to protect the life and health of the workmen therein employed.

It is ordered that under the authority of the aforesaid article 2214 of the R.S.P.Q., 1909, it be ruled and enacted as follows:—

When persons employed in the working of mines are hoisted, or lowered by means of a steam or electric hoist, this hoist shall not be in charge of a person of less than twenty years of age.

The storing of explosives shall be made in magazines or powder-houses, built to the satisfaction of the inspector of mines. Such magazines shall not be built nearer than four hundred feet from the mine or works, or from any public highway, without a special authorization from the inspector of mines.

Only implements of wood, brass or copper shall be used in opening cases containing explosives.

Blasting caps, detonators or fulminates of any sort shall in no case be kept or stored with the explosives.

In underground workings, no supply greater than that necessary for the next twenty-four hours shall be kept, and this supply shall be stored in wooden boxes, in a part of the mine not less than 100 feet distant from all drilling or mining work. Such supply shall be in charge of an experienced man, who will apportion the explosives as they are needed.

In charging holes, no iron or metal tools shall be used for tamping.

When the enclosing rocks are not safe, shafts, winzes, level and other underground workings in use shall be suitably timbered, cased or lined, or otherwise made secure.

The ladder in shaft or winze shall be in lengths not exceeding 25 feet each, with platforms at each of these intervals. These platforms shall be closely covered, with the exception of an opening just large enough to permit the passage of a man's body, so arranged that it would not be possible for a person to fall through this opening from one ladder-length to the one below.

* Since provisions corresponding to those contained in the regulations issued under this Article appear in the Mines Acts of the other provinces, the text of the regulations in question is reproduced below.

The ladder way shall be encased by a closely boarded partition, separating it completely from the compartment of the shaft used for hoisting the material.

No person shall be hoisted or lowered by means of buckets or skips without vertical guides. The inspector of mines has full authority to enforce the above regulations, or to exercise such other powers as he may judge necessary to ensure the safety and protection of miners and other persons employed in or about mines, mills or smelters.

Non compliance, on the part of mine-owners or their agents, with any rule contained in these regulations, shall be deemed an offence subject to penalties mentioned in article 2207 of the Revised Statutes of the Province of Quebec.

The walls, roofs of shafts, levels, stopes, tunnels, raises and other underground parts of mine workings, the sides and walls of open-cast pits, quarries, sand and clay pits, and all other workings of mines and prospects, must be scaled and freed of loose or fissured rocks and stones, so as to ensure the safety of the workmen.

All firing of blasts in the course of shaft sinking shall be done by means of electric current.

A charge of explosives, whether it is a missed hole or a charge which has not been fired, shall not be withdrawn.

Department of Public Works and Labour.

2361. The Minister of Public Works and Labour, in this Chapter called the "Minister," has the administration and direction of the Department of Public Works and Labour.

2362. The functions, powers and duties of the Minister are the following:—

1. He has the management, custody and control of all public works, immovables and public buildings belonging to the Province, and all buildings destined for the residence of the Lieutenant-Governor or for offices for the public departments;

2. He exercises control over the property of all railways built or subsidized by the Government in virtue of provincial laws, and over the works connected therewith or dependencies thereof;

3. He has the management and control of the construction, maintenance and repair of the public buildings, bridges, roads, drainage or other public works in process of construction or maintained wholly or in part at the expense of the province;

4. [Repealed 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 2].

5. He institutes and controls inquiries into important industrial questions and those relating to manufactures, and may collect useful facts and statistics relating thereto, and transmit the same to the Quebec Bureau of Statistics. 1912, second session, c. 16, s. 2.

6. He has the supervision of and control over all proceedings under the Quebec Trade Disputes' Act;

7. He further has control over all other works undertaken at the expense of the Province and all immovables acquired by the Government of the Province, which the Lieutenant-Governor in Council declares by proclamation to be subject to the provisions of this chapter.

8. The Council of Arts and Manufactures and Mechanics' Institutes are under his control.

2363. The Minister shall, within ten days after the opening of each session thereof, submit to the Legislature a detailed report of his proceedings.

2364. 1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall appoint a Deputy Minister of Public Works and Labour, in this Chapter called the "Deputy Minister."

2. He shall further appoint an engineer, a secretary and an accountant and all the other officers, clerks and messengers necessary for the proper administration of the Department.

These officers, to each of whom the Lieutenant-Governor in Council assigns his duties, shall hold office during pleasure.

3. He may also, from time to time, appoint outside of the Department, as many engineers, superintendents of works and other officers as he may deem necessary for the efficiency of the service in the various branches of the Department and may remove them from office at pleasure.

2364a. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a Deputy Minister of Labour, who shall, subject to the direction of the Minister of Public Works and Labour, have the control of such matters coming within the purview of the Department of Public Works and Labour, as shall be assigned to him by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

He may also either alone or concurrently with such officer, perform the duties of chief inspector of industrial establishments. 1919, c. 14, s. 2.

[Section 1 of Chapter 14, 1919, provides for the inclusion of the Deputy Minister of Labour in the list of Deputy Heads of Departments. Section 3 of the same Chapter directs that wherever the words Deputy Minister of Public Works and Labour or Deputy Minister occur in any statute, Order in Council, or regulation relating to Labour matters they shall be replaced by the words Deputy Minister of Labour.]

2365. The duties of the officers of the Department, not expressly regulated by law, shall, from time to time, be assigned to them by the Minister.

2369. Public institutions and public officers in this Province shall promptly answer official communications from the Department, and shall diligently endeavour to supply correct information on all questions submitted to them.

Any officer of any of the said institutions, refusing or wilfully neglecting to answer any questions or to furnish any information relating to the interest of mechanics or manufacturers, shall for every such offence incur a penalty of twenty dollars, which shall be recoverable in the name of His Majesty before any competent court.

Peace Preservation on Public Works.

2451. In this section the word "weapon" includes every kind of weapon, arms or ammunition enumerated in article 2453.

2452. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may declare by proclamation that this section shall be in force in any place in this Province within which any canal or other provincial public work or any canal, railway or other work undertaken or carried on by any incorporated company under authority of any act of the Legislature, is in process of construction, or any such designated places as are in the vicinity of any such locality.

This section shall, upon and after the day named in any such proclamation, take effect within the places designated in such proclamation.

The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, in like manner, from time to time, declare this section to be no longer in force in any such places, and he may again declare the same to be in force in any such place or places.

No such proclamation shall have any effect within any city.

2453. Upon and after the day to be fixed in such proclamation, no person employed in or upon any such canal, railway or other work as aforesaid, within the limits specified in such proclamation, shall keep or have in his possession or under his care or control, within such limits, any gun, pistol, or other firearm, or any stock, lock, barrel or any other part of such gun, pistol or other firearm, or any bullets, sword, sword-blade, bayonet, pike, pike-head, spear, spear-head, dirk, dagger or other instrument intended for cutting or stabbing, or other arms or ammunition or weapon of war, under a penalty of not less than two dollars, or more than four dollars for every such weapon found in his possession.

2454. Within the time appointed as aforesaid in such proclamation, every person employed in or upon the canal, railway or other work to which the same relates, shall bring and deliver up to some justice of the peace or commissioner appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for the purposes of this section, every such weapon in his possession, and shall obtain from such justice of the peace or commissioner a receipt for the same.

2455. When this section ceases to be in force within the place where any weapon has been delivered and detained in pursuance thereof, or, when the owner or person lawfully entitled to any such weapon, satisfies the justice of the peace or commissioner that he is about to remove immediately from the limits within which this section is at the time in force, the justice of the peace or commissioner may deliver up to the owner or person authorized to receive the same any such weapon, on production of the receipt so given for it.

2456. Every such weapon found in the possession of any person employed as aforesaid, after the day named in any proclamation as that on or before which such weapon ought to be delivered up, and within the limits or locality set forth in the proclamation bringing this section into force, shall be liable to be seized, and being seized by any justice of the peace, commissioner, constable or other peace officer, shall be forfeited to the use of His Majesty.

2457. Any person who, for the purpose of defeating this section, receives, or conceals or aids in receiving or concealing, or procures to be received or concealed, within the limits within which this section is at the time in force, any such weapon as aforesaid belonging to or in the custody of any person employed on any such canal, railway or other work, shall forfeit a sum of not less than forty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, one-half to belong to the informer and the other half to His Majesty.

2458. Any justice of the peace, or any commissioner appointed under this section, having authority within the place where this section is at the time in force, upon the oath of a credible witness that he believes that any such weapon as aforesaid is in the possession of any person contrary to the provisions of this section, or in any house or place, may issue his warrant to any constable or peace officer to search for and seize the same, and he or any person assisting him may search for and seize the same in possession of any person, or in any such house or place.

If admission to any such house or place cannot be obtained within a reasonable time after demand, such constable and peace officer and person assisting, may enter the same by force, by day or by night, and seize such weapon.

Unless the person within whose possession or in whose house or place the same has been found, does, within four days next after the seizure, prove to the satisfaction of such justice of the peace or commissioner that the weapon so seized was not in his possession or in his house or place contrary to the meaning of this section, such weapon shall be forfeited to the use of His Majesty.

Any commissioner or justice of the peace, constable or peace officer, or any person acting under a warrant in aid of any constable or peace officer, may arrest and detain any person employed on any public work, found carrying any weapon within any place in which this section is at the time in force, at such a time and in such manner as, in the judgment of such commissioner, justice of the peace, constable or peace officer, or person acting under a warrant, affords just cause of suspicion that it is carried for purposes dangerous to the public peace.

2459. Every such justice of the peace or commissioner shall make a monthly return to the Provincial Secretary of all weapons delivered to him, and detained by him under this section.

2460. All weapons declared forfeited under this section, shall be sold under the direction of the justice of the peace or commissioner by whom or by whose authority the same were seized, and the proceeds of such sale, after deducting necessary expenses, shall be received by such justice or commissioner and paid over by him to the Provincial Treasurer for the use of the Province.

2461. Any action brought against any justice of the peace or commissioner, constable, peace officer, or other person, for anything done in pursuance of this section, must be commenced within six months next after the doing of such thing.

The action shall be instituted in the district where the thing was done.

The defendant may plead the general issue and give this section and the special matter in evidence.

If such action is discontinued or dismissed after the defendant has appeared, the defendant shall be entitled to recover double costs.

2462. All penalties imposed by this section may be recovered before any two justices of the peace acting for the district or county within which the offence, in respect of which such penalty is sought to be recovered, was committed.

Such justices shall, on complaint on oath of such offence, issue their warrant for bringing the offender before them, and shall thereupon hear the complaint and adjudge upon the same.

If the offender is convicted on the oath of one witness other than the informer, or by his own confession, the justices shall impose such penalty.

2463. For better carrying this section into effect, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may cause a body of men, not exceeding one hundred inclusive of officers, and to be called the "Mounted Police Force," to be raised, mounted, armed and equipped, and to be placed under the command of such officers as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council deems necessary.

He may cause such police force, or any portion thereof, to be employed in any place in which this section is then in force, under such orders and regulations as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall, from time to time, issue.

2464. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint the chief officer and such of the subordinate officers of the said mounted police force and such other persons as he deems necessary, to be respectively justices of the peace for the purposes of this section within any of the places in which this section is in force.

Such officers and persons respectively may act as justices of the peace although they may not have the property qualifications required of other persons.

2465. The men in such mounted police force shall be constables and peace officers, for the purposes of this section, for the district or county in which they are employed for the time being.

2466. The expense of carrying this section into effect, upon or near public provincial works shall be paid through the Minister out of the moneys appropriated for the work on which such expenses are incurred, and shall be charged as part of the cost of such work.

The sum to be so charged against each work shall be proportionate to the number of policemen employed in such work and the time during which they are so employed; but the sums expended in any one year, shall not exceed forty thousand dollars.

2467. The expenses attending the employment of any police force in any place in or in the vicinity whereof any railway, canal or work undertaken and carried on by any such incorporated company as aforesaid, is in process of construction, shall be, in the first instance, paid by the Lieutenant-Governor out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, and shall, on demand, be repaid to the Provincial Treasurer by such incorporated company, or, if not so repaid, may be recovered from the company as a debt due to the Crown; and, when recovered, shall form a part of the said Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Vocational Training—Instruction of Mechanics.

2468. The Council of Arts and Manufactures consists of seventeen members appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The Minister of Public Works and Labour, the Provincial Secretary and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, are ex-officio members of the Council.

2481. It is the duty of the Council:

1. To take measures, with the approval of the Minister, to collect and establish, at Montreal and elsewhere, for the instruction of practical mechanics and manufactures, museums of minerals and other materials, substances, and chemical compositions capable of being used in mechanical arts and manufactures, with model rooms appropriately stocked and supplied with models of works of art, implements mechanisms and machines of any kind (except those adapted to facilitate agricultural operations), and free libraries containing books of reference, plans and drawings calculated to impart useful information in connection with mechanical arts and manufactures;

2. To take measures to obtain from foreign countries new or improved implements and machines (not being agricultural implements, or machines specially adapted to facilitate agricultural operations), and to test the quality, value and usefulness of such implements and machines;

3. To co-operate with the Council of Agriculture at provincial exhibitions.

The officers of the Council of Arts and Manufactures, or such other members as may be appointed by the Council for that purpose, shall have the management of and responsibility for the mechanical and manufacturing portion of such exhibitions;

4. To adopt, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council jointly with the Federal authorities, the measures necessary for the most advantageous display of the arts and manufactures of this Province at all foreign exhibitions or at all general exhibitions of the Dominion of Canada;

5. To make rules and regulations for the establishment, management, administration, and carrying on of a system for the teaching of drawing in all its branches in the schools under the control of school commissioners and trustees, in conformity with the provisions of the law respecting public instruction;

6. Generally, to adopt every means in its power to promote improvement in the mechanical arts and manufactures in this Province.

2482. The Council may, with the consent and approval of the Minister, establish, in connection with its museums, model-rooms or libraries, schools of design furnished and equipped as completely and suitably as the funds at its disposal permit, regard being had to the claims thereon of the objects for which it is established.

2483. The Council may also found schools or colleges for mechanics, and employ competent persons to deliver lectures on subjects connected with arts, mechanical sciences and manufactures.

2484. The Council shall keep records of its transactions and shall, from time to time, publish in such manner and form as to secure the widest circulation among mechanics' institutes and mechanics, artisans and manufacturers generally, all such reports, essays, lectures and other literary compositions conveying useful information, as the Council may judge suitable for publication.

Industrial Disputes—Arbitration and Conciliation.

2489. This section may be cited as the "Quebec Trade Disputes' Act."

2490. In this section the word "employer" means any person or body of persons, incorporated or unincorporated, employing not less than ten workmen in the same business; the word "employee" means any person in the employment of an employer, as defined by this article.

2491. A claim or dispute under this section shall include any of the following matters as to which there is a disagreement between any employer and his employees:

(a) The price to be paid for work done, or in course of being done, whether such disagreement has arisen with respect to wages, or to the hours or times of working;

(b) Damage done to work, delay in finishing the same, not finishing the same in a good and workmanlike manner or according to agreement, or the nature and quality of materials supplied to employees;

(c) The price to be paid for extracting any mineral or other substance from a mine or quarry, or the allowances, if any, to be made for bands, refuse, faults or other causes whereby the extraction thereof is impeded;

(d) The performance or non-performance of any written or verbal stipulation or agreement;

(e) Insufficient or unwholesome food or stores supplied to employees, where there is an agreement to victual them or to supply them with provisions or stores of any kind;

(f) Ill-ventilated or dangerous places in mines, or insanitary rooms in which work is being performed, or want of necessary conveniences in connection with such rooms or places;

(g) The dismissal or employment under agreement of any employee or number of employees;

(h) The dismissal of an employee or employees for his or their connection with any trade or labour organization;

2492. No claim or dispute shall be referred to councils of conciliation or arbitration in any case in which there are less than ten employees interested in such claim or dispute.

2493. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a Registrar of Councils of Conciliation and of Arbitration for the settlement of industrial disputes, chosen from among the persons performing other duties in the public service.

2494. The registrar shall:

1. Receive and register all applications by employers or employees or on their behalf for reference to a council of conciliation, or to a council of arbitration, of any dispute or claim within the meaning of this section;

2. Convene such councils for the purpose of taking into consideration and deciding any dispute or claim;

3. Keep a register in which shall be entered the particulars of all disputes and claims made to either of such councils, a summary of their proceedings and the original of their decisions;

4. Issue all notices in connection with the sittings of each such council;

5. Do all such other things as may be required to carry out this section, and perform all other duties prescribed by the Minister of Public Works and Labour.

2495. The registrar may issue all summonses to compel witnesses to attend to give evidence before a council of conciliation or a council of arbitration, or to produce any document in their possession or to do both.

2496. 1. Where a dispute exists or is apprehended between an employer or any class of employers and employees, or between different classes of employees, and the employees threaten to strike, or strike, or when an employer closes down or threatens to close down his works, the registrar shall, if thereto requested in writing by at least five employees or by the employer, or by the mayor of the municipality in which the dispute has arisen, visit the locality in which such dispute exists, and earnestly endeavour to act as mediator between the parties.

2. When it comes to the knowledge of the registrar, either from the newspapers or otherwise, that a dispute such as described in paragraph 1 of this article has arisen, he shall visit the locality in which such dispute has arisen, without awaiting a request in writing.

3. In the cases provided for in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this article the registrar shall:

(a) Inquire into the causes and circumstances of the dispute;

(b) Take such steps, as he thinks fit, to induce the parties to meet and settle their disputes themselves;

(c) Promote agreements between employers and employees to induce them to submit their disputes to a council of conciliation or arbitration, before having recourse to strikes or lock-outs.

4. The registrar shall report his proceedings under this article to the Minister within the shortest possible delay.

Councils of Conciliation.

2497. A council of conciliation for the purposes of any dispute or claim shall consist of four conciliators, two to be appointed by each of the parties to the dispute.

The appointment shall be in writing lodged with the registrar.

Either party may lodge such writing with the registrar at any time after the dispute has arisen; and, if only one of the parties has notified the registrar of the appointment of his conciliators, the registrar shall give notice to the other party of the notification which he has received.

Any vacancy in a council shall be filled by a person appointed by the party who appointed the conciliator to be replaced.

2498. The dispute or claim may be referred to a council of conciliation in the two following cases:—

1. If the parties to the dispute lodge an application therefor with the registrar. (Form B.)

2. If only one of the parties lodges the application. (Form C.)

2500. Either party to the dispute or claim may be represented by one or more persons not exceeding three. Such party shall be bound by the acts of such representative or representatives. (Form D.)

2501. Where the party numbers less than twenty, the manager or managers must be authorized to act by a writing signed by all such persons and handed to the registrar.

Where the party numbers twenty or more, the manager or managers may be appointed or elected in such manner as such persons think proper.

A copy of the resolution (if any) electing the managers, together with a declaration by the chairman of the meeting (if any) stating it to have been carried, shall be given to the registrar and be kept as a record of the election.

2502. The parties to the dispute shall, if possible, draw up a joint written statement of their case; but if they do not agree thereupon, a statement in writing from each party shall be made.

The statement or statements shall be forwarded to the registrar before the meeting of the council.

2503. When the parties have appointed their conciliators, the registrar shall, by notice in writing call a meeting of the conciliators at such time and place as he determines. (Form E.)

2504. After taking cognizance of the dispute and of the facts, hearing the parties and endeavouring to conciliate them, the council of conciliation shall forward to the registrar a report setting forth the result of its operations. (Forms F. and G.)

If such report is to the effect that the council has failed to bring about any settlement of the dispute, the registrar, on receipt of the report, shall forward a copy, certified by him, to each party to the dispute; whereupon either party may require the registrar to refer the dispute to a council of arbitration for settlement. (Forms H. and I.)

Councils of Arbitration.

2505. 1. Every council of arbitration, whose duty it is to take cognizance of a dispute, in virtue of this section, shall consist of three members, British subjects, appointed by the Minister.

2. One member shall be appointed on the recommendation of the employees, parties to the dispute, and another on the recommendation of the employer who is a party to the dispute (Form L.); such two members may, within ten days after their appointment, submit to the Minister the name of some impartial person to be the third member and president of the council. (Form A.);

3. In case of the said two members failing so to do, the Minister shall appoint as president an experienced impartial person not personally connected with or interested in any trade or industry, or likely by reason of his occupation, business vocation, or other influence, to be biased in favour of or against employers or employees.

2518. Witnesses before councils of conciliation and of arbitration shall be entitled to the same fees as in the Superior Court, payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the Province.

2519. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations for fixing the place where the councils of conciliation and arbitration shall sit, and for giving effect to any of the provisions of this section.

Such regulations shall come into force on publication in the Quebec Official Gazette.

Such regulations shall be laid before the Legislative Council and before the Legislative Assembly within fourteen days after being published in the Quebec Official Gazette, if the Legislature is then in session; and if not, within fourteen days from the date of the first day of the ensuing session.

2520. No proceeding under this section shall be deemed invalid by reason of any defect of form or irregularity.

(Forms omitted.)

Employment Bureaus.

2520a. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may establish and maintain in cities and towns employment bureaus for workmen. 1910, c. 19, s. 1.

2520b. Such bureaus shall be under the control of the Minister of Public Works and Labour, to whom the superintendents hereinafter mentioned shall report annually on the first day of July whenever required so to do. 1910, c. 19, s. 1.

2520c. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint for each employment bureau a superintendent and all other subordinate employees necessary for the good administration of each bureau. 1910, c. 19, s. 1. Amended 1919, c. 33, s. 1.

2520d. The salaries of the superintendents and other employees, office rent and other necessary expenses shall be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the Province. 1910, c. 19, s. 1.

2520e. All workmen may, for the purpose of obtaining employment, have their names registered, free of charge, at any employment bureau, upon such conditions as may be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. Amended, 1919, c. 33, s. 2.

The superintendent and other employees, his assistants, shall receive and register free of charge, all applications made to them by employers who require the services of workmen. 1910, c. 19, s. 1.

2520f. Any person who wishes to open or control an employment bureau for workmen, must first make application for permission to the Minister of Public Works and Labour, or to the chief inspector of industrial establishments and public buildings appointed under the fifth section of the second chapter of the seventh title (articles 3829-3866).

The Minister, on a favourable report from the inspector who has visited the premises where it is proposed to open such bureau, may grant a non-transferable permit to the person mentioned therein to open or control an employment bureau.

Every permit shall be granted for one year or a fraction of a year only, and shall expire on the first day of May following its issue. 1914, c. 21, s. 1.

But the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may at any time order the closing of all employment bureaus kept or controlled by individuals, companies or other persons, in such places as he shall determine; and any individual or other person, and, in the case of a company, its president and its manager or secretary, shall be liable, in case of refusal or neglect to obey such order, to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, recoverable before any magistrate, having jurisdiction, in the ordinary manner, and, on failure to pay the fine and costs, to imprisonment for not more than three months. 1919, c. 33, s. 3.

2520g. The word "workman" in this section means and includes every person who does manual labour and who in the Order in Council creating each employment bureau, is included in the class of persons whom the said Order in Council declares qualified to take advantage of this section. 1910, c. 19, s. 1.

2520h. Every person controlling an employment bureau, other than an employment bureau for women only, shall be responsible for conducting such bureau as required by law; and more particularly he must:

a. Keep a register in French or English for the purposes of this section; the form and manner of keeping such register may be prescribed by the inspector;

b. Make a monthly return to the inspector, setting out the number of workmen registered, their country of origin, the name of the person with whom such workmen have been placed, and the total amount of fees received by the person in charge of the bureau, or by his agents;

c. Furnish each year, to the inspector a certificate from the local board of health, to the effect that the sanitary condition of the bureau is satisfactory. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520i. The forms of receipts to be given by the person in charge of the bureau, or by his agents, to workmen who pay into the bureau a certain sum of money, must be approved by the inspector before being made use of. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520j. No employment bureau shall be kept in or in the immediate proximity of a building where intoxicating liquors are sold. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520k. The registration fee payable to an employment bureau by a workman, or domestic servant, either male or female, shall not be more than three dollars. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520l. The holder of a permit granted under article 2520f may not, however, open, keep, or control an employment bureau other than an employment bureau for women only, without having first obtained a license from the revenue collector of the district to which he belongs.

Such license shall be issued on payment of an annual duty of two hundred dollars for cities and towns in which there are one or more free employment bureaus, organized under this section and an annual duty of twenty-five dollars in other localities where there is no such free employment bureau.

The provisions of the second and third divisions of the Quebec License Act (articles 1176-1315) shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to the license required under this section. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520m. Every person within the scope of this section, and keeping and controlling an employment bureau without being the holder of a permit from the Minister and of the license required by this section, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, and costs, for each contravention. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520n. The Minister may, at any time, revoke a permit granted under this section.

The revocation of the permit shall operate as a revocation of the license. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

2520o. The license mentioned in this section shall not be required in the case of benevolent societies or workmen's associations which endeavour to find employment for their members. 1914, c. 21, s. 2.

Prison Labour.

3526. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint in each of the districts of Quebec, Montreal and Three Rivers, respectively, three justices of the peace for the said districts, as a committee to superintend the house of correction in such district; the said committees shall provide stock and materials for the use and employment of the persons confined in the houses of correction in the said districts, and shall also make orders for the regulation of the said houses of correction and of the masters of such houses of correction, and of the persons therein confined, in all cases not provided for by law.

3527. Until separate houses of correction are erected in the said districts, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, out of any unappropriated moneys in the hands of the Provincial Treasurer, advance annually to the committees aforesaid in the said districts, a sum not exceeding eight hundred dollars for the district of Quebec, a sum not exceeding eight hundred dollars for the district of Montreal, and a sum not exceeding four hundred dollars for the district of Three Rivers, for the purpose of enabling the said committees to hire or provide a building fit to serve as a temporary house of correction, and also such accommodation for the performance of labour as may be requisite and also to provide stock and materials for the employment of the persons confined in the house of correction, as well as for the purpose of allowing reasonable salaries to the superintendent and keepers thereof, in each district.

Gambling by Workmen in Hotels Prohibited.

3591. If any journeyman, day labourer, servant or apprentice plays at any game of cards, dice, skittles or any other game, for money, liquor or otherwise, in any house, outhouse, apartment or ground in the occupation of or belonging to any person licensed to sell spirituous liquors by retail, or to keep a house of public entertainment in the Province, and such journeyman, day labourer, servant or apprentice is convicted thereof before a justice of the peace in the villages or local municipalities, or before the justices of the peace in their sittings in the cities of Quebec or Montreal, by the oath of one credible witness, or by confession, he shall incur and pay for every such offence, a fine not exceeding four dollars, and not less than one dollar; and, in default of payment of such fine within six days, such journeyman, labourer, servant or apprentice shall be committed to the house of correction for a space of time not exceeding eight days.

3592. The justices of the peace, before whom any such case is heard and determined, may award the costs which either of the parties shall have to pay the other, as they judge fit; and in case any person against whom any such costs are so awarded, does not pay the same within seven days next after they have been so awarded, any such justice of the peace, whether in or out of sessions, may issue a warrant of distress for levying the same, by the seizure and sale of the offender's goods and chattels.

3594. An appeal shall lie from every judgment under article 3591 to the justices of the peace in the court of general sessions of the peace for the district where the judgment was rendered.

Before the allowance of any appeal as aforesaid, the appellant shall give good and sufficient security to pay the amount of the judgment appealed from and costs, both on the original complaint and on the appeal.

Inspection and Regulation of Offices and Shops—Fire Escapes, Etc.

3749. The words "public buildings" in this section mean and include . . . . . charity workrooms (ouvroirs) . . . . . buildings of three stories or more over the ground floor occupied as offices, stores employing at least ten clerks, and court houses.

3750. The words "proprietors of public buildings" in this section include persons, companies and corporations, who are proprietors, tenants or occupants under any title, of any building mentioned in article 3749, and their agents.

3751. Saving the restrictions which the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make in the regulations which he may enact in virtue of article 3786, all public buildings mentioned in article 3749, are subject to the provisions of this section.

Safety in Public Buildings.

3752. 1. The public buildings mentioned in article 3749 shall afford all the security required by this section and the regulations made under its authority.

2. Public buildings open to the public, on the twenty-fifth day of April, 1908, and which require too heavy an expense to be made conformable to the prescribed requirements, shall, however, be made to conform thereto, as far as possible, to the satisfaction of the inspector.

3. No public building shall be built or altered, and no work affecting the solidity of a building or of part of a building or changing the conditions of a building or part of a building, shall be done, without a permit from the inspector. Such permit shall not be issued until after examination of the plans and specifications for the building.

4. When extensive alterations are made to a public building, an architect's certificate as to the solidity and safety of such building shall be given by the proprietor to the inspector.

5. If the destination of a public building is so altered that greater solidity is required, an architect's certificate establishing such solidity, shall be given by the proprietor to the inspector.

6. Whenever proprietors and tenants cannot agree upon an architect, the choice thereof shall be made by the inspector, who shall appoint an architect recognized by the Province of Quebec Association of Architects, and the certificate of such architect shall be valid.

Duties of Proprietors of Public Buildings.

3753. Every proprietor of a public building shall:

1. Send to the inspector a written notice giving his name, the name of the building and its destination, as well as the name of the place where it is situated, within thirty days previous to the opening of such building to the public;

2. Send a written notification to the said inspector, of every fire or accident which occurs in such building, within forty-eight hours from the occurrence of such fire or accident;

3. Provide such inspector with everything necessary to facilitate an effective inspection of the building and its dependencies.

4. If the building is a theatre or a hall for lectures or public amusements, or a hotel, have a certificate of inspection, signed by the inspector, posted up, and keep it there continuously whole and legible;

5. Place a sufficient number of seats at the disposal of the girls or women employed in their stores, in order that they may rest when the nature of their work requires it, or service upon customers permits.

Duties and Powers of Inspectors.

3754. The inspectors of industrial establishments appointed in virtue of the fifth section of this chapter (3829 to 3866) shall see to the observance of this section and the regulations made under its authority.

3755. The said inspectors have, mutatis mutandis the powers and are subject to the obligations, as regards safety and health in public buildings, indicated in the said fifth section and in the regulations made by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, respecting the safety and health of employees in industrial establishments, in so far as the same may be applicable thereto.

3756. They have the right to be present at inquiries held by the fire commissioners of Quebec and Montreal, and at inquests held by coroners, in all cases of fire or accident in a public building, and to question the witnesses, in order to ascertain the cause of such fire or accident.

3757. They have the right to make to the proper authorities, any suggestion they may consider advisable in the interest of safety in public buildings.

2. They have the right, in the performance of their duties of free entrance into public buildings at any hour of the day or night; and shall be admitted therein without delay, on presenting a card identifying them, bearing the seal of the inspection department and the signature of the Minister of Public Works and Labour or that of the chief inspector.

3. They may require the production of the certificates or other documents required by law and the regulations passed in virtue thereof, as well as all information they may think necessary.

4. If they have reason to fear being molested in the performance of their duties, they may in any case require one or more constables to accompany them.

5. If an inspector ascertains that by reason of insufficient resistance or solidity in a building or part of a building, there is danger of a collapse, he shall forthwith order that such building or part of a building, as the case may be, shall be immediately and completely vacated, and or such purpose may require the services of any member of the municipal or provincial police force, or of a peace officer!

The Minister of Public Works and Labour may suspend or reverse any such decision of the inspector.

3758. They shall publish, in the Quebec Official Gazette, such provisions of the law and the regulations as they consider should be more especially made known to the public; and also publish their addresses therein.

How Public Buildings to be Kept

3759. 1. Public buildings, and all accessories thereof, movable or immovable, shall be so erected and kept that the lives of all persons residing therein or having access thereto shall be effectually protected against accidents.

2. They shall be provided with all means necessary to permit a prompt and easy exit therefrom of the occupants or of the public in case of an alarm of fire or a panic.

3. Every building of at least three stories, and every school building, shall be provided with safety appliances on the outside, such as iron stairs, safety tubes of canvas or metal, or other means of safety in case of fire, approved or prescribed by the inspector. This provision shall not apply to any public building that is fire-proof to the satisfaction of the inspector.

3760. Any system or device for safe exit may be adopted if it is approved by the inspector. If there are no means of safety apart from the ordinary exits, or if the safety system in use is not approved by the inspector, the latter may, by an order given to the proprietor, tenant, agent or superintendent of the building, require one or more safety devices. Such safety devices shall be installed at the places directed by the inspector, and built in the manner specified in the order. The exit or safety devices shall be built within thirty days after the order has been given, and each of them shall comply with the specifications contained in the order or with those contained in the following paragraphs:—

(a) Safety stair-cases shall be built of iron, with sufficient side railings, and shall be connected with the inside of the building by means of doors or windows; and shall also have sufficient landings at each story above the first, including the attic when it is used as a workshop, and shall be kept in good condition and unobstructed.

(b) Canvas tubes shall consist of tubes made of strong canvas, treated chemically and so as to offer sufficient resistance to fire. Such tubes shall be solidly fixed to an iron frame and shall be supplied with brakes to check the descent.

(c) Metal tubes shall consist of tubes of steel or sheet iron, of spiral form, and connected to each story by galleries.

(d) All balconies, galleries and stair-cases shall be put up at the places and in the manner determined by the inspector. Canvas tubes shall be placed in portable chests, and installed in the places determined by the inspector.

3761. When the windows or other outlets opening upon the safety stair-cases are more than two feet above the floor, steps shall be placed so as to enable the occupants of the building to easily reach such outlets.

3762. The said safety exits shall always be kept in good condition, and free from all hindrance and obstruction.

3763. The principal doors from which exit is had, and all doors at the lower part of a staircase shall open outwards and be kept free throughout meetings, classes, performances and religious services. In the case of hotels and boarding houses, boarding schools, and other buildings occupied at night, the doors shall never be locked with a key, but shall be supplied with a lock which opens automatically by pressure from within the building, and in the case of churches, theatres, amusement halls and places of public meeting, shall be closed by means of weights or springs and not by latches.

3781. The proprietor of any building, destroyed or partially destroyed, or rendered dangerous by fire or otherwise, shall demolish such building, and if the proprietor refuses or neglects so to do, after being ordered so to do by the inspector, the building shall be demolished at the expense of such proprietor, and the cost of such demolition shall be a privileged claim upon the land where the building is situated.

Protection of Public Buildings against Fire.

3781a. The words "public buildings" used in this subsection mean and include the public buildings defined in article 3749 [charity workrooms, buildings of three stories or more over the ground floor occupied as offices, and stores employing at least ten clerks], and the words "proprietors of public buildings" mean and include the persons defined in article 3750. 1918, c. 51, s. 1.

3781b. No electric installation in a public building in the Province for the transmission of light, motive power or heat shall be put in or altered except by a person or under the immediate supervision of a person duly authorized and holding a license to that effect. 1918, c. 51, s. 1.

The salary of such officers and the expenses incurred for the carrying out of this subsection 6a, shall be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. 1920, c. 54, s. 1.

3781c. Every heating apparatus already installed in a building or to be so in future, must be approved by one of the inspectors of public buildings, who shall give the proprietor of the building a certificate to that effect. This certificate must be always posted up at the place indicated by the inspector. 1918, c. 51, s. 1.

3781d. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may prescribe the conditions on which the license provided for in article 3781b shall be issued, its duration and the fee chargeable thereon. He may likewise prescribe such conditions as he may deem fair and reasonable respecting the installation of a heating system in a public building, as well as the conditions on which the certificate provided for in article 3781c shall be issued, its duration and the fees chargeable thereon. 1918, c. 51, s. 1.

3781e. The chief inspector of public buildings may, with the approval of the Minister of Public Works and Labour, declare any electric installation or heating apparatus now in any public building defective, and may order the necessary alterations to be made, and, if the proprietor does not comply with the said inspector's orders to that effect, he shall be liable to the penalties provided for in articles 3782 and 3783. 1918, c. 51, s. 1.

3781f. Articles 3782 to 3789 inclusive, shall apply to this subsection, mutatis mutandis. 1918, c. 51, s. 1.

2. This Act [articles 3781a, b, c, d, e and f] shall come into force on a proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council after its publication on the "Quebec Official Gazette."

[These articles are not yet in force. Article 3781bb came into force on the day of its sanction.]

Offences and Penalties.

3782. 1. Proprietors of public buildings who infringe the provisions of this section and of the regulations made under the authority thereof, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars and costs, for each day while the offence lasts.

3786. 1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations, with respect to the buildings mentioned in article 3749, upon the following, amongst other matters:—

(a) The construction of public buildings and their solidity, so as to ensure the safety of those who reside in or who frequent the same;

(b) The precautions to be taken against fire, and more particularly as respects: doors and windows, staircases, escapes, apparatus for extinguishing fire and saving life, and elevators and their safety appliances;

(c) The safety and health of the guardians, workmen, workwomen, clerks, or other persons employed in public buildings.

2. Nothing in this article shall affect the powers possessed by municipal councils of making by-laws respecting public safety, nor the powers of the commissioners appointed under the law respecting the erection and division of parishes, to make regulations on the same subject, with respect to churches and other buildings for divine worship; provided such by-laws or regulations be not inconsistent with those made in virtue of this section.

3787. This section shall not affect any rules and regulations, matters or things done or made under the law in force before the twenty-fifth day of April, 1908, which law, regulations, matters or things shall remain in force and have effect until the contrary be decided under this section; nor shall it affect the rules and regulations adopted therein by the Board of Health of the province of Quebec.

3788. 1. The inspector, after having pointed out to the proprietor of any building the defects which may exist, whether in the construction of the building or in the installation and maintenance thereof, or any other defects resulting from the absence of anything required for the protection of human life, shall suggest the work which he thinks necessary, leaving, however, to the proprietor the choice of the changes to be made so that his establishment shall be kept according to the law and regulations.

2. Upon receipt of the regulations adopted in virtue of this section, every person interested may call upon the inspector for the district to visit his establishment. The inspector shall point out whatever faults he may find.

3. If the application of the regulations necessitates a considerable change in the arrangements of the building, a delay shall be granted, proportioned to the importance of the changes deemed necessary. When this delay has elapsed, the regulations adopted in virtue of this section, shall be given full effect.

4. The delay granted to the proprietor to perform his obligations shall be left to the discretion of the inspector.

3789. If the proprietor of a public building fails to comply with this section, the Minister of Public Works and Labour may cause to be made, at the expense of such proprietor, the works necessary to ensure the security of such building, or may order that such building be vacated and closed until the proprietor complies with the law.

Any such order shall be carried out by the proper inspector who may require all assistance necessary for such purpose.

Protection of Employees on Buildings.

3790. The council of every city or town may appoint one or more inspectors of scaffolding and provide for their remuneration.

3791. Every contractor or builder who makes use of scaffolding at least fifteen feet high, shall obtain and exhibit when required by any workman in his employ, or by an inspector, a certificate of inspection, signed by a municipal inspector, or by an architect, or by a licensed engineer of this Province or by an inspector of public buildings of this Province.

3792. Every contractor or builder who refuses or neglects to comply with the requirements of article 3791, is guilty of an offence, and upon summary conviction thereof before a police magistrate or a justice of the peace having jurisdiction where the offence was committed, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than ten dollars and costs.

3793. Any person may prosecute or lay a complaint under this section, and the half of every penalty imposed, when collected, shall belong to His Majesty for the uses of the Province and the other half to the prosecutor or complainant.

3794. Every prosecution in virtue of the provisions of this section shall be brought, tried and decided in accordance with Part XV of the Criminal Code.

3795. The inspectors of industrial establishments of the Province are authorized to inspect scaffolding, to condemn such as they think dangerous, and to prosecute offenders against this section.

3796. This section shall apply to cities and towns, but nothing therein contained shall be deemed to take away from municipalities their right to regulate and provide for the inspection of scaffolding.

Inspection and Regulation of Factories—Inspection of Steam Boilers.

Declaratory and Interpretative.

3829. This section may be cited as the "Quebec Industrial Establishments' Act," and, unless the context otherwise requires, the following words, terms and expressions have, for the purposes of this section, the following meanings:—

1. The words "domestic workshop" mean every establishment in which only the members of the family are employed, either under the authority of the father or mother, or of the tutor or guardian, provided such establishment be not classed as dangerous, unhealthy, or inconvenient, or that the work be not done by a steam-boiler or other motor;

2. The word "employer" means any person who, in his own behalf, or as manager, superintendent, overseer or agent for any person, firm, company, or corporation, has charge of any industrial establishment and employs persons therein;

3. The words "industrial establishment" or "establishment" mean manufactories, works, workshops, work-yards, mills of all kinds and their dependencies.

No part of such industrial establishment used as a dwelling shall be deemed to form part of the establishment governed by this subsection.

No premises or place shall be excluded from the definition of an industrial establishment by reason only that such place or premises is or are in the open air.

4. The words "inspectors" and "sanitary physicians" mean the inspectors and sanitary physicians appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, under the authority of this section, for enforcing the provisions thereof;

5. The word "week," unless otherwise defined in this section, means the period between midnight on Sunday night and the same time on the following Saturday night;

6. The words "Minister of Public Works and Labour," or "Assistant Minister of Public Works and Labour," or "Minister" or "Assistant Minister" mean the Minister or Assistant Minister of Public Works and Labour of the Province;

7. (Repealed by 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 1.)

8. The words "young girl" mean a girl over fourteen and under eighteen years of age;

9. The word "woman" means a woman of eighteen years and upwards.

Application of the Section.

3830. With the exception of mines, which are governed by the Quebec Mining Act, and to which this section applies only when the same is formally enacted herein, all manufactories, works, workshops, work-yards, and mills of every kind and their dependencies, are subject to the provisions of this section.

Domestic workshops in which no strange workman is employed, are excepted, unless such workshops be classified by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council as dangerous, unwholesome or inconvenient, or unless work be done therein by means of steam boilers or other motors.

Such other premises as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may indicate in the regulations made by him under this section are also excepted.

Safety of Employees in Factories and Sanitary Condition of Such Establishments.

1.—General Provisions.

3831. The industrial establishments mentioned in article 3830 shall be built and kept in such manner as to secure the safety of all employed in them; and, in those which contain mechanical apparatus, the machinery, mechanism, gearing, tools and engines shall be so placed and kept as to afford every possible security for the employees.

They shall also be kept in the cleanest possible manner; be sufficiently lighted and have a sufficient quantity of air for the number of persons employed; be provided with effective means for expelling the dust produced during the work, and also the gases and vapours which escape and the refuse which results from it; in a word, fulfil all sanitary conditions necessary for the health of the persons employed, as required by and in conformity with the regulations made by the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

2.—Special Provisions.

3832. Regulations may be made by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to determine the special precautions necessary for the safety, health and morality of employees in industrial establishments.

Such regulations may be modified and may be applied, either wholly or in part, to all industries or to certain methods of working.

Employment of Boys, Girls or Women and Duration and Other Conditions of Such Employment.

1.—Age and Other Conditions as to Employment.

3833. 1. In establishments classified by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council as dangerous, unwholesome or inconvenient, the ages of the employees shall not be under sixteen years for boys and eighteen years for girls or women.

2. In all establishments other than those indicated in paragraph 1 of this article, the ages of employees, whether boys or young girls, shall not be less than fourteen years.

3. The employer of the boy or young girl shall, if required, exhibit to the inspector a certificate of age signed by the parents, tutor or other persons having the lawful custody or control over such boy or young girl or the written opinion of a physician on the subject.

The inspector may require that such certificate be verified by affidavit. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 3.

3834. A new examination of the boys or girls, allowed to work in a factory, may, at the request of the inspector, be made by one of the sanitary physicians or by any other physician and upon the advice of such physician, the employee examined may be discharged for being under age or physically unfit. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 4.

3835. It is forbidden for any employer in any industrial establishment, for any person carrying on any industry, trade or business, or practising a profession, for any owner, tenant or manager of a theatre, moving-picture hall, hotel or restaurant, for any telegraph company employing messengers, or in the case of printers or agents who distribute advertisements or hand-bills, and for owners of department stores who employ boys or girls as messengers to employ any boy or girl less than sixteen years of age, who is unable to read and write fluently and easily. 1919, c. 50, s. 1.

3835a. It is likewise forbidden for any boy or girl less than sixteen years of age to sell papers or carry on any business in the streets or public places, unless able to read and write fluently and easily.

Such various occupations may not, however, be continued after eight o'clock in the evening. 1919, c. 50, s. 2.

3835b. Every boy or girl less than sixteen years of age, employed as aforesaid, in addition to the examination to which he or she may be submitted by the inspector, must have a certificate of study to the inspector's satisfaction, and produce it whenever called upon so to do.

Parents and tutors of boys and young girls must, as far as possible, come before the inspector to have the age certificates or certificates of study required by law, verified.

The form of certificates of study shall be drawn up by the chief inspector and be uniform in all parts of the Province. 1919, c. 50, s. 2.

3835c. Boys and girls under sixteen years of age, enrolled as pupils of a night school, and who assiduously attend the classes of such school, may be authorized by the inspector to follow or continue their occupation. 1919, c. 50, s. 2.

3835d. If an employer employs a boy or a girl who has not complied with the provisions of this Act, he cannot, in case of accident, plead contributory negligence on the part of the victim. 1919, c. 50, s. 2.

3835e. Employers must carefully keep the copies of age certificates furnished by apprentices and put them at the disposal of the male and female inspectors for the purposes of the service. 1919, c. 50, s. 2.

3836. Every person failing to comply with the requirements of articles 3835 to 3835e inclusive, shall incur for each offence the penalty imposed by article 3849. 1910, c. 27, s. 2. Amended 1919, c. 50, s. 3.

2.—Duration of Employment.

3837. Except in the case mentioned in article 3838, no boy under eighteen years of age, and no girl or woman shall be employed in any of the establishments mentioned in article 3830 for more than ten hours in one day or for more than sixty hours in any one week. Any employer may, however, apportion the hours of labour per day for the sole purpose of giving a shorter day's work on Saturday.

One hour shall be allowed at noon each day for meals, if the inspector so directs, but such hour shall not be counted as part of the time herein limited as respects their employment.

The day of ten hours mentioned in this article shall not commence before six o'clock in the morning nor end after nine o'clock at night. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 5.

3837a. In cotton or woollen factories, no boy less than eighteen years old, and no girl or woman shall be employed more than ten hours in any one day, or more than fifty-five hours in any one week.

One hour shall be allowed at noon each day for meals but such hour shall not be counted as part of the working hours hereinabove mentioned:

The day mentioned in this article shall not begin before seven o'clock in the morning, nor end after half-past six o'clock in the evening. 1912, first session, c. 36, s. 1. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 6.

3838. The inspector, for sufficient reasons given to him, and in order to make up lost time or to satisfy the exigencies of trade, may, for a period not exceeding six weeks, extend the time of employment of boys less than eighteen years of age, girls and women to twelve hours a day, or seventy-two hours in a week, provided that the day shall not commence before six o'clock in the morning nor end after nine o'clock in the evening, in the following cases: Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 7.

(a) When any accident, which prevents the working of any industrial establishment, happens to the motive power or machinery; or

(b) When, from any occurrence beyond the control of the employer, the machinery or any part of the machinery of any industrial establishment cannot be regularly worked; or

(c) When any stoppage occurs from any cause whatsoever.

General Duties of Employers.

3839. Each employer or head of any establishment mentioned in article 3830 shall comply with all the provisions concerning him and more particularly shall:

1. Forward to the inspector a written notice containing his name and address, the name of the factory, the place where it is situated, the nature of the work, and the nature and amount of the motive power therein.

Such notice shall be given within thirty days from the opening of an establishment;

2. Send, within forty-eight hours of the accident, a written notice to the inspector, informing him of any accident whereby any workman has been killed or has suffered serious bodily injury, whereby he has been prevented from working.

Such notice shall state the place of residence of the person injured or killed, or the place to which he has been removed, so as to enable the inspector to hold the inquiry required by law;

3. Keep a register, in which shall be entered:

(a) The names, ages and places of abode of the boys, girls or women whom he employs, and, whenever the place of abode is in a municipality in which houses are numbered, the street and number. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 8.

(b) The period of each day and week during which such boys, girls or women were employed, and the hour at which they commenced and finished working. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 8.

4. Afford the inspector every means necessary for facilitating the thorough inspection of the establishment and its dependencies;

5. Keep hung up, in the most conspicuous places in the establishment, the notices and provisions of the law and regulations supplied to him by the inspector, and keep them entire and legible until the latter orders them to be altered or removed;

6. Furnish the inspector with a certificate from a health officer, that his establishment fulfils the conditions as to health and sanitary conditions required by this section and the regulations of the Board of Health of the province of Quebec, approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council;

7. Furnish the inspector every year with a certificate of the inspection of the boilers and other motors in the establishment, as well as of the steam-pipes

Inspection of Steam-Boilers, etc.

3840. The inspection of steam-boilers and motors in the establishment and also of steam-pipes, shall be made, in accordance with the regulations made on the subject by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, by an inspector holding a certificate from the examiners appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and to whom an inspection district has been assigned by the Minister or by the chief inspector. The fees of each such inspector shall be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Such inspection may also be made by any inspector of a lawfully incorporated accident insurance company, doing business in the Province, provided such boilers or motors are then insured by such company and provided that such inspector holds a certificate as above provided for.

Employers shall afford every facility and means for a thorough inspection.

Boilers shall be made so as to give every possible security, and so that their mode of construction may afford all necessary means of inspecting them.

Duties of Owners, etc., of Property on which Industrial Establishments are Built.

3841. 1. The owner, tenant and occupant of the property on which the industrial establishment is built, are jointly and severally responsible for the construction and repair of fire-escapes, as well as for the changes made in such industrial establishment.

2. The dimensions and form of the fire-escapes, as well as the changes made to them, shall be approved by the inspector.

Inspection of Industrial Establishments.

1.—Appointment of Inspectors and Sanitary Physicians.

3842. For the purpose of carrying out this section and the regulations made under its authority, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall appoint inspectors, one of whom shall be chief inspector.

The sanitary condition of industrial establishments is under the control of the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec.

One or more sanitary physicians may, on the recommendation of the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec, be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, with special authority to supervise, under the direction of the said Board of Health, the sanitary condition of the industrial establishments, as well as the execution of the sanitary regulations made by the said Board of Health.

The remuneration of such sanitary physicians and their necessary expenses shall be paid out of the sums voted by the Legislature for the carrying out of this section.

3843. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall determine the salaries of the inspectors and of the sanitary physicians, and define their powers and duties which are not formally defined by this section.

3844. Such officers are under the general control and direction of the Minister; they shall report to him every year and whenever called upon to do so with respect to the observance of the law.

The sanitary physicians shall also make reports of a similar nature and in the same manner to the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec.

2.—Duties of Such Officers.

3845. On entering into office, the said officers shall take the following oath before the Minister or Deputy Minister:

"I swear that I will faithfully and conscientiously fulfil the duties of my office of (as the case may be), and that I will not in any manner reveal the secrets of manufacture nor generally the processes followed in manufactures which may come to my knowledge in the performance of my duties. So help me God."

A. B.,
Inspector. 19

Sworn before me, at , this day of
C. D.,
Minister of Public Works and Labour, or Deputy Minister."

3.—Powers of Officers.

3846. 1. The inspectors and sanitary physicians may enter at all reasonable times, by day or night, the establishments mentioned in article 3830.

2. They may require the production of the registers, certificates, notices or documents prescribed by this section and the regulations, examine the same and take copies of or extracts from them, make any suggestions and put any questions which they may consider pertinent.

3. For the purposes of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this article, they may get a constable to accompany them when they have reason to fear that they will be molested in the execution of their duty.

4. They have concurrent powers with the authorities charged with the execution of the law and of the regulations respecting safety and health in industrial establishments, including mines.

5. The inspectors may hold inquiries whenever they deem proper, and for such purpose examine any person employed in the establishment, summon witnesses, administer the oath to them, and exercise all the powers which may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section and of the regulations.

No person examined by the inspector shall, however, be required to answer any questions or give any evidence tending to incriminate himself.

The costs of the inquiry shall be paid by the employers, whenever it is established that they are in default, and are recoverable by action brought by the inspector before any competent court.

6. They may be present at inquests held by the coroners and at inquiries held by the fire commissioners of Quebec and Montreal, in cases of fire or accident in an industrial establishment, and examine the witnesses with a view of ascertaining the cause of such fire or accident.

7. They may make any suggestions they think advisable to the proper authorities in the interest of health and safety in industrial establishments.

3847. Every person who wilfully delays one of these officers in the exercise of the powers conferred on them by article 3846, or who fails to comply with an order or summons received, or who conceals or attempts to conceal a boy, young girl or woman to prevent any one of them appearing and being examined, shall be deemed to obstruct the officer in the performance of his duty and be liable to the fine or imprisonment enacted by article 3851. Amended 1912, second session, c. 37, s. 9.

Notices and Services.

3848. 1. All notices required by this section to be given, shall be valid if received by the person for whom they are intended, or if left at his domicile or place of business within the delay fixed herein, irrespective of the mode by which such notice was conveyed.

2. All notices, orders, requisitions, summonses and documents required or authorized to be served for the purposes of this section, may be served by delivering the same to or at the domicile of the person himself, or by leaving a true copy with a reasonable person of his family or at the establishment where the person is employed, or by leaving a true copy with one of the employees or by a prepaid letter sent through the post.

When such documents are required to be served on an employer, they shall be deemed to be properly addressed if addressed to him at the establishment in respect of which he is employer, with the addition of the proper posted address, but without naming the employer.

3. The inspector shall cause to be prepared such notices of the provisions of this section and of the regulations made thereunder as he deems necessary to enable the employers and employees in any establishment to become acquainted with their responsibilities and duties.

Such notices shall also give the name and address of the inspector.

4. The notices to be given by the employers, and the registers they have to keep under article 3839, shall be made and drawn up in the form prescribed by the inspector.

Offences and Penalties.

3849. Whoever keeps an establishment contrary to the provisions of this section and of the regulations, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars and costs and to imprisonment not exceeding twelve months in default of payment.

3851. Every person obstructing the inspector or sanitary physician in the execution of his duties under the provisions of this section shall, if such obstruction be in the day time, be liable to a fine not exceeding thirty dollars and costs, and to imprisonment not exceeding three months in default of payment, and if it be in the night time, to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs, and to imprisonment not exceeding six months in default of payment.

3852. Every employer who neglects to have the boilers and steam-pipes in his industrial establishment inspected according to law and to the regulations on that subject, or who opposes such inspection or does not provide the necessary means and facilities for a thorough inspection, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and to imprisonment not exceeding six months in default of payment.

3853. Every engineer or employer who at any time allows the pressure of steam to which the boiler is subjected to exceed the degree allowed by his certificate, or alters, hides or disposes of the steam-gauge so as to prevent the real pressure from being seen and established, shall incur a penalty of two hundred dollars for each offence, and imprisonment for six months in default of payment.

3854. If an establishment be not kept in conformity with the provisions of this section and of the regulations made thereunder, the court, in addition to the penalties to which the employer is liable, may order such employer to comply therewith, within the time named in the order, under a penalty of a fine not exceeding six dollars for each day after the expiration of the period during which the order is not complied with.

The court may, however, upon application, and for valid reasons, enlarge the delays, either by the same or by a subsequent order.

3855. Every person who wilfully makes a false entry in any register, notice, certificate or document required by this section, or who makes or signs any false declaration, or who makes use of such false entry or declaration knowing it to be false, shall, on conviction thereof, be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs, and to imprisonment not exceeding six months in default of payment.

3856. Every employer who refuses to keep a register of the persons employed in his establishment in accordance with article 3839, or to enter their hours of work therein, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding thirty dollars and costs, and to imprisonment not exceeding three months in default of payment.

3857. If no penalty is prescribed for a contravention of the provisions of this section or of the regulations, rules or orders made thereunder by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, or by the inspector, the employer who is guilty of such contravention shall be liable, upon summary conviction thereof, to a fine of not more than fifty dollars and costs, and to imprisonment not exceeding three months in default of payment.

3858. If any offence is committed against this section or the regulations, for which an employer is legally responsible, and it appears to the satisfaction of the court before whom the same is tried, that the offence has been committed without the personal consent, concurrence or knowledge of such employer, but by some other person, such court may summon such other person to answer for such offence, and such other person shall be liable to the penalty herein provided for such offence, and on due proof shall be convicted thereof, instead of the employer.

3859. Where it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the inspector, at the time of discovering an offence, that the employer had used all due diligence to enforce the execution of this section or of the regulations, and to ascertain by whom the offence was committed, and also that it had been committed without the knowledge, consent or connivance of the employer and in contravention of his orders, then the inspector shall proceed against the person whom he believes to be the actual offender, without first proceeding against the employer.

3860. When an offence for which an employer is responsible under this section or the regulations, has in fact been committed by some agent, servant, workman or other person, such agent, servant, workman or other person shall be liable to the same fine, penalty and punishment for such offence as if he were the employer.

Jurisdiction of Certain Courts, and Procedure.

3861. All prosecutions under this section shall be instituted by the inspector, and may be brought and heard before a judge of the sessions or a police magistrate in the cities of Montreal and Quebec, or before the district magistrate, or before any justice of the peace of the place where the offence was committed or wrong done, in any other part of the Province, who shall have jurisdiction in such manner, whatever be the amount of the penalty claimed.

Such prosecutions may also be instituted by any other person, but in such case the prosecutor must previously deposit, with the person who issues the summons, the sum of twenty dollars as security for the payment of the costs of such prosecution.

3862. Save where otherwise provided by this section, the procedure to be followed is that prescribed by part XV of the Criminal Code, respecting summary convictions.

3863. No fine or imprisonment shall be imposed under this section, unless proceedings are commenced against the offender within three months after the offence has come to the knowledge of the inspector, or within thirty days after written notice of said offence given at any time by the inspector to the party in default.

Application of Penalties.

3864. All fines imposed under this section shall be collected by the inspector and paid to the Provincial Treasurer for the uses of the Province.

Regulations.

3865. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by regulation:

1. Exempt from the operation of this section, in accordance with article 3830, all such industrial establishments as he may deem proper;

2. Classify as dangerous, unhealthy or incommodious, such establishments as he considers dangerous to the health of the operatives, especially children, young girls and women;

3. Determine the duties of employers and managers of establishments which are not formally determined in this section;

4. Determine the powers and duties, not formally determined by this section, of the officers appointed to see to the execution of this section and of the regulations;

5. Determine the method of inspection of steam-boilers and steam-pipes in industrial establishments, including mines; create, and from time to time change, inspection districts for the purposes of such inspection; and fix, and, from time to time, change and modify tariffs of the charges for such inspection.

6. Prescribe all the special precautions which may be necessary in connection with the matters indicated in article 3832.

This subsection shall not, however, affect the right possessed by municipal councils of passing and enforcing by-laws on the subject.

Nor shall anything therein affect the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec on the same subject.

Final Provisions.

3866. The civil laws of this Province, concerning the responsibility of the employer towards his employees, are not affected by this section.

REGULATIONS RESPECTING INDUSTRIAL ESTABLISHMENTS.

Installation and Maintenance.

No. 1. Installation and maintenance.—Industrial establishments, with all movables and immovables belonging to them, must be so installed and maintained that the health and lives of the workmen shall be protected as efficiently and to as great an extent as possible against the risks of trade.

No. 2. In the erection of buildings, as well as in alterations or modifications to the same, care must be taken to avoid, at the very outset, all defects in connection with their laying out, their safety and their salubrity, which it would be difficult to remedy later on. For that purpose, the architects' plans should be first submitted to the inspector.

No. 3. The establishments already in existence, which it would require too heavy an outlay to alter so as to make them conformable to the law, and regulations made under its authority must, however, be made as far as possible, conformable to the same to the satisfaction of the inspector.

No. 4. If the destination of the building of an establishment is altered so as to require greater solidity, a certificate from an architect establishing such solidity must be delivered to the inspector.

No. 5. If the inspector has any reason to suspect the solidity of a building, he may require an architect's certificate.

Working Places outside of Buildings.

Passage-ways.

No. 6. Passage-ways used by the workmen, outside of buildings, must be kept free from snow and clear of all material not required in working operations.

No. 7. Privies situated outside must be substantially built, furnished with a proper seat, and ventilated to the satisfaction of the inspector.

No. 8. Excavations, wells, basins, millraces (flumes), must be fenced in or covered.

No. 9. Hoists.—The platform of hoists situated outside of buildings shall be furnished with a strong wire grating or a fence.

No. 10.—Cranes and derricks.—Cranes and derricks worked by hand must be provided with pawls. If the load is to descend by its own weight, they will be provided with a brake and covers for the gears.

No. 11. The several parts of these apparatus must be frequently inspected by some competent person.

Interior of Buildings.

Doors and Exits.

No. 12. If the exits are insufficient the inspector may give orders to build others inside, and, in the event of this being too difficult, arrangements must be made on the outside to facilitate egress.

No. 13. The main doors of egress must open outwards, and be left free during the entire working time.

No. 14. The width of these doors must not be less than 48 inches and their length not less than 7 feet.

No. 15. Doors serving as means of egress for corridors, passages, alleys or stair-cases, shall not be of less width than such passages; and, if they serve as exits in case of panic, they must swing both ways, be kept closed by weights or springs.

No. 16. The width of main passages must be at least 48 inches and that of side passages at least 24 inches. These passages must be kept clear.

No. 17. Elevated passage-ways, platforms.—Elevated passage-ways, platforms, sloping gang-ways, flying or stationary bridges, crossing planks, scaffoldings, must be provided with guards consisting of a handrail and a cross piece to prevent objects from falling. This prescription applies only to platforms whose level above the ground exceeds six feet.

Staircases.

No. 18. The main staircases must not be more than twelve feet between the landing places nor less than four feet wide, and there must be a sufficient number of such staircases to allow of the buildings being immediately and easily cleared.

No. 19. Staircases must be kept in good order, provided with suitable railings and balusters and a ceiling.

Light.

No. 20. The workrooms, staircases, passages, elevators, exits, and all places where the apparatus for signalling to stop machinery, or set it in motion, are placed, must be properly lighted.

No. 21. Boiler room.—The room generally, the steam gauge and water gauge must be specially lighted.

No. 22. Privies.—They must be constantly lighted during working hours if so required by the inspector.

Hoists.

No. 23. At each story to which the hoist shall pass, there shall be provided substantial trap-doors disposed so that they shall open and shut automatically every time that the car shall pass up and down.

No. 24. Elevators and hoists shall be provided with safety catches, destined to hold the car in the event of the breaking of the cable.

No. 25. Employers will see that the different parts of their hoists or elevators receive a periodical inspection by the engineer of the establishment.

No. 26. In cities where a municipal inspection service exists, the employer, when requested by the inspector of industrial establishments, shall furnish a certificate of inspection of his hoist or elevator.

No. 27. The working of any hoist or elevator may be stopped by the inspector, if the necessary conditions of safety required are not observed.

Dangerous Spots.

No. 28. Pits for fly-wheels and other movable pieces of machinery, openings in the floors, walls, wells, traps, vats, basins, tanks of corrosive or heated liquids, and other dangerous spots or subjects, must be fenced in to the satisfaction of the inspector.

Safety Measures Respecting Stationary Boilers.

No. 29. In new establishments, unless specially authorized by the inspector, steam boilers must be located outside of the main building.

No. 30. In existing industrial establishments, the steam boiler and other motors must, if necessary, be put in separate places closed in on the side where the work is done.

Safety-valves.

No. 31. Every boiler must be provided with one safety-valve so loaded as to allow the steam to escape as soon as its effective pressure attains the maximum limit specified in the certificate of the last inspection.

No. 32. The opening of each valve must be sufficient to maintain the steam in the boiler at a degree of pressure not exceeding the above limit in any case.

No. 33. Every boiler must be provided with a check-valve, or apparatus working automatically and placed at the point of intersection of the feed pipe to which it belongs.

No. 34. The load of the safety-valve must be of one weight and never altered.

Steam-gauges.

No. 35. Every boiler must be provided with a steam-gauge in good order placed in full view of the stoker, and so graduated as to indicate, in pounds, the working pressure of the steam in the boiler.

Water-gauges.

No. 36. The water-gauge shall consist of a glass tube placed conspicuously and of easy access, so that it may be cleaned or changed when required.

No. 37. For boilers of great height the glass tube is replaced by an apparatus so arranged as to show the workman in charge of the feeding the level of the water in the boiler.

No. 38. Try-cocks.—Cocks shall be placed on boilers at different heights. The water level must always be between those cocks.

Boiler Inspection.

No. 39. All new boilers and apparatus whose steam pressure exceeds 6 pounds shall, before being used, but after being put up, be inspected and approved according to law and to the regulations.

No. 40. The same formality will be required after any important repairs have been made.

Inspectors.

No. 41. No one can perform the duties of boiler inspector unless he fulfils the following conditions, viz.: 1. He must be of the full age of twenty-one years; 2. He must prove that his conduct is good; 3. He must speak French and English, and write at least one of these languages in a satisfactory manner; 4. He must hold a certificate of competency from the examiners appointed for that purpose.

No. 42. There shall be five examiners of inspectors of boilers for the province of Quebec.

No. 43. Examinations for the diploma of boiler inspectors shall be held in the presence of at least three of the examiners.

No. 44. The diplomas awarded to boiler inspectors can be cancelled at any time by the Minister of Public Works and Labour.

No. 45. No inspector can give a certificate if he is directly or indirectly interested in the construction or sale of the boiler to be examined, or in the establishment in which such boilers are placed.

No. 46. If the boiler inspector is satisfied, he will deliver a certificate in duplicate.
(Form omitted.)

[Nos. 47 to 49 inclusive respecting engineers, stokers and their duties have been superseded by the Stationary Engineers Act.]

No. 50. A card of instructions for the guidance of the stoker shall be posted in the boiler room.

Apparatus under Pressure.

No. 51. All apparatus under pressure must be provided with a steam-gauge and safety-valves, and be subjected to periodical inspection.

No. 52. Accessories of wheels and turbines.—The sluice-gates must be water-proof. The shaft must be provided with brakes, to stop the machinery as soon as the water is turned off.

Management of Driving Machinery and Transmissions.

No. 53. When the same motor drives several transmissions in different places, each transmission must be provided either with a disconnecting apparatus or with a signal for stopping the machinery, or for putting it in motion.

No. 54. The putting in motion or stopping of the machine must always be preceded by a signal agreed upon.

No. 55. Starting and stopping fly-wheels.—When the fly-wheel of an engine at dead centre is being moved by hand, care must be taken that the steam-valve has been securely closed beforehand.

Protective Provisions with Reference to Transmissions, Machines, etc.

No. 56. Transmissions of power by belting, cables, shafting, gearing or cog-wheels in a place through which workmen have to pass, must be closed up in boxes or encased to a height of five feet above the ground.

No. 57. Vertical shafting, belting or cables, running from one storey to another must be enclosed in a box fastened to the ground and of a height of five feet.

No. 58. Gears, bolts, nuts, keys, feed-rolls, offering danger to workmen charged with the care of oiling the machinery or shafting, or of the repairing of belts, must be securely guarded to the satisfaction of the inspector.

No. 59. Protective provisions respecting machinery in motion.—Fly-wheels, cranks, connecting-rods, guiding rods, etc., must be provided with protective apparatus.

Machine Tools in General.

No. 60. All machine tools driven by shafting, unless controlled by a pedal or friction clutch, shall be provided with a fast and loose pulley and belt shifter easily worked from the spot occupied by the workmen.

No. 61. In drilling machines, the drill stock must be smooth, free from projections, and kept in good order.

Wood-working Machinery.

No. 62. Employers shall adopt the best means for the protection of their employees against accidents on their wood-working machines; buzz-saws and others, buzz-planers, shapers, etc., must be guarded to the satisfaction of the inspector.

Emery Wheels, Grindstones, and Buffing Wheels.

No. 63. Before fitting on a new stone upon the machine, the foreman or overseer shall first verify the speed of the machine by means of an indicator. The maximum speed of the machine shall not exceed the number of revolutions marked on the label that the makers have affixed on each stone.

No. 64. When the stones become uneven or cease to run true, they should be immediately dressed.

No. 65. The flanges must be of suitable size and the tool-rest should be well adjusted and kept as close to the cutting face of the stone as possible.

No. 66. The inspector can order the installation of protective appliances against the bursting of stones, as well as the most efficient means of removing the dust generated.

Large Grindstones.

No. 67. Before putting a new grindstone in use, the same should be first hung up, and sounded with a hammer and be carefully examined.

No. 68. It is forbidden to allow stones to soak. The troughs must be emptied after work each day.

The grinders' bench must be securely held to the frame of the machine by a strong anchor chain.

No. 69. The leather covering of buffing-wheels must be securely fixed to the wheel, leaving no open joints on the buffing face.

Handling Belts.

No. 70. The inspector may order that belt-shifters, belt-mounters, and other apparatus be put up for handling belts on shafts, and the foreman must explain the working of these to the workman charged with handling the belts. It is strictly forbidden to connect by hand a belt more than three inches wide unless the power has been slowed.

Signals.

No. 71. Signals to be established between the machine and the boiler.—Such signals must be established when the machine is at a distance from the boiler.

No. 72. Signals for the interior of engine or motor rooms.—Such signals are intended to convey a notice of the starting or stopping of the motion of transmissions.

Signals Between the Different Places Where the Power is Conveyed to a Distance.

No. 73. Such signals enabling the workmen in the places containing machinery driven to order the stoppage or starting of the motive power to the engineer who controls the machine generating power, consist either in striking a bell, blowing a whistle or sounding an electric bell, except in cases where the apparatus allows of stopping the motors or transmissions at a distance.

Oiling, Cleaning and Repairs.

No. 74. Workmen shall not undertake to oil, inspect, clean or repair machines in motion or moving parts of machinery, unless previously authorized to do so by the foreman or overseer.

No. 75. Parts of machinery in motion must be provided with automatic lubricators; otherwise the oiling of such parts, when in motion, will be permitted only if they are provided with protective apparatus, keeping the workmen safe from all danger. All the pillow-blocks and bearings must be provided with automatic lubricators.

No. 76. Cleaning of shafts and the pulleys for cables or belting when the machine is in motion must be done only while standing on the floor of the workshop or on a solid platform. In either case brooms, brushes, hooks, etc., with handles should be used. It is expressly forbidden to wear gloves or mittens or to clean machinery in motion by hand with tow waste or emery cloth.

Precautions Against Fire.

No. 77. The inspector may order the employer to make all interior arrangements and to provide all apparatus necessary for preventing fires.

No. 78. Keeping of inflammable materials.—Waste and rags saturated with oil must be kept in boxes with self-closing covers, and notices with the printed word "Inflammables" shall be posted on materials of a highly combustible nature.

Precautions in Case of Fire or Panic.

No. 79. In establishments three stories high or over, where the operatives work above the second story, the inspector may require the construction of additional exits and even of fire-escape stairs on the outside, if the ordinary exits at each end of the establishment are insufficient.

No. 80. These exits shall consist of openings, doors or windows opening outwards, leading to balconies or galleries of the establishment, a portion at least of which must not be built immediately over an opening in the lower story.

No. 81. A notice with the words "Exit in case of panic," must indicate the way to such exits.

No. 82. The angle of the stairs should barely exceed 45 degrees.

No. 83. The balconies, galleries, ladders and stairs must be made of iron and these latter must go down to the ground. The lower end of the stairs, however, may be movable.

No. 84. These balconies, galleries and stairs shall be built at the places and in the manner indicated by the inspector.

No. 85. When the windows or other exits leading to the fire-escape stairs are more than two feet above the floor, steps must be placed to enable the inmates to easily reach such exits.

No. 86. The safety exits must always be kept in good order and clear of all impediments or obstructions whatsoever.

No. 87. In case of buildings with flat roofs, a ladder 24 inches wide must give communication from the highest balcony to the top of the building and exceed the roof by at least 24 inches.

No. 88. The inspector may insist upon special safety appliances being adopted, when the particular situation of the premises or the number of persons renders the same necessary.

No. 89. Nevertheless, when the inspector considers that the situation and installation of the usual exits are sufficient, he may dispense the employer from observing the above prescriptions.

Sanitary Measures.

No. 90. Ventilation.—All work rooms must be well aired, especially such as contain forges, foundries, grindstones, paints and varnishes, and those in which acids are handled, or in which deleterious gases are generated.

No. 91. Thermometers.—Thermometers to indicate the degree of temperature shall be placed in sufficient number at the spots indicated by the inspector.

No. 92. Dangerous work.—Work in gas-mains, smoke-flues, and apparatus containing deleterious gases, must not be undertaken without the authorization of a person placed in charge of the same. The air contained in them must first be tested, and the workmen who have to work in them must be secured by means of a safety-belt.

Comfort of Employees.

No. 93. In order to relieve their employees as much as possible of their fatigue, and provide in an adequate manner for their personal comfort, employers will conform with the following prescriptions, viz.:

(a) Give their employees facilities for securing individual cleanliness and water of good quality;

(b) Employees of both sexes, whose occupations permit of their sitting down, shall be provided with chairs furnished with a suitable back;

(c) Taking into account the number of employees, inspectors may require employers to provide suitable places where employees can take their meals and change their clothing;

(d) Provide a sufficient number of spittoons and place the same in the different parts of the factory designated by the inspector;

(e) When working operations are carried on after six o'clock in the evening, according to the overtime permit, granted under provisions of article 3838 of the Act, an interval of at least thirty minutes shall be granted to the employees for their evening meal. A notice informing the employees of the change in the hours of work, signed by the inspector, shall be posted up.

(Form omitted.)

No. 94. Workmen must not take their meals in the workshop, or in any place where work is carried on, when forbidden by the inspector. They shall, however, in all cases, have a place where they can warm their food, and in bad weather take their meals sheltered from cold, rain or snow.

Closets.

No. 95. Each establishment must be provided with urinals in the proportion of at least one to every twenty-five persons therein employed.

No. 96. Water-closets with lifting seats.—In establishments provided with water-closets with lifting seats, the latter must be in proportion of one to every twenty-five persons. In this case, urinals are not necessary.

No. 97. Dimensions of closets.—These closets must not be less than 30 inches in width by 45 in depth.

No. 98. The inspector may prescribe the form of such urinals and closets, their location, dimensions and materials of which they are to be built, and give all such directions as he may deem necessary.

No. 99. The inspector has the right to condemn the urinals and closets if they are not built in accordance with his instructions and with the requirements of the regulations, or if he finds that the closets of each sex have not a separate and suitable access or entrance.

No. 100. The door giving access to the closets for the use of male and female employees shall be screened by a partition or in a manner prescribed by the inspector.

Personal Equipment of Employees.

No. 101. Clothing.—The clothing of employees having to work around moving parts of machinery and particularly those whose duty it is to oil up and repair machines, must be buttoned and close fitting.

No. 102. Gloves and mittens.—It is forbidden to wear gloves or mittens when working at saws or handling belts.

No. 103. Girls and women employed in industrial establishments shall wear their hair plaited and fastened to their heads, so that it will not come in contact either with the moving shafting or machines or with the substances or material which they are handling.

No. 104. Spectacles.—Workmen employed at machines emitting sparks or splinters, must be provided with spectacles, and in establishments where deleterious gases or dust are generated, the employees shall be provided with respirator masks approved by the inspector.

Care of Sick and Wounded.

No. 105. When an accident happens, the doctor must be called in at once.

No. 106. In large establishments, the inspector may require that some persons shall have acquired the necessary instructions to be able to give the first care as hereinafter mentioned.

(Directions respecting First Aid omitted.)

No. 107. Placards indicating the care to be given to the wounded.—Placards indicating the care to be given to the wounded, as above stated, must be posted up in the workshop.

No. 108. Medicines, etc.—The medicines, bandages, etc., as indicated above, must, if the inspector requires, be kept in the workshop to enable the first care to be given. The notice to be sent to the inspector, according to law, after an accident, will be in the following form:

To Mr. ....

Inspector of Industrial Establishments.

You are hereby notified, pursuant to Art. 3839, Par. 2, of the Industrial Establishments' Act, of the happening of an accident in the establishment hereunder mentioned, whereof the following are the particulars:

- 1.—Name and age of person injured.....
- 2.—Residing on.....Street.....City.....
County.....Village.....
- 3.—Location and name of establishment.....
- 4.—Date of accident.....
- 5.—Cause of accident.....
- 6.—Injuries resulting therefrom.....
- 7.—Where injured person sent.....
- 8.—Remarks.....

Dated at .....this.....day of....., 19 ..

.....
Signature of Employee or Agent.

Various Precautions.

No. 109. All workmen in the shop must be taught how to make use of the system or signal by which all the machines can be stopped, in case of accident.

No. 110. When a belt is not in use, it must be hung up in a place where it cannot be caught by the pulley or shafts.

No. 111. Women, girls and children must be forbidden to do any operation connected with belting or other modes of transmission. This should be done by adult workmen.

No. 112. Moving of heavy objects.—An experienced person must superintend the operation which shall not be undertaken until after the cables, chains, chain blocks, winches and other lifting apparatus have been examined.

No. 113. Handling of belts.—Employees shall conform with inspector's requests and adopt the best system possible of handling belts; they should provide fixed and hand belt-mounters and see that the employees charged with this work are instructed in the use of the same.

Special Provisions.

No. 114. The inspector, after pointing out to the employer, any defect that may exist in the construction or the maintenance of the buildings, or in the installation and maintenance of the establishments, or other defects resulting from the absence of what is necessary for protecting the lives and health of workmen, must suggest the works he may consider necessary leaving, however, the employer to choose the alteration to be made in order that his establishment may in everything be conformable to law and regulations.

No. 115. On receipt of the present regulations, every person interested shall have the right to apply to the inspector of the district to visit his establishment and have him point out the arrangements which might be considered as not complying with the conditions as to safety and salubrity required by the regulations.

No. 116. If the application of the prescriptions of the regulations necessitate a considerable alteration in the arrangements of the establishment, a first respite shall be granted calculated according to the extent of the alterations, considered necessary. When the delay fixed by this respite has expired, the present regulations shall be fully and completely carried out.

No. 117. The delay granted to the employer to comply with the regulations shall be at the discretion of the inspector.

(Form of certificate of age of children and young girls employed in the establishment omitted.)

Schedule of Dangerous Establishments.

According to the provisions of the article 3833 R. S. P. Q., 1909, the age of the employees of the establishments enumerated in the above list shall not be under sixteen years for boys, and eighteen years for girls or women.

Regulations Relating to Foundries.

Under article 3832 of the Revised Statutes of the Province of Quebec, 1909, it is ordered that the following regulations relating to foundries be approved and declared obligatory throughout the Province of Quebec:

Art. 1.—In future all entrances to foundries shall be constructed so as to minimize drafts.

Art. 2.—All passageways in foundries shall not be obstructed during the hours of casting.

Art. 3.—Whenever the ordinary means of ventilation in a foundry shall be deemed insufficient by the inspector, the latter may order the installation of suction fans in sufficient number to expel the noxious gas, dust or smoke arising from the work.

Art. 4.—The installation in foundries of furnaces, forges or heaters, shall be prohibited unless ventilation or suction pipes be installed, or any other means suggested by the inspector to expel smoke from the establishment.

Art. 5.—Ventilators shall in future be placed in sufficient number in the roofs of foundries, which must be lighted and heated to the satisfaction of the inspector. Hot water shall be supplied to the employees for washing purposes throughout the period that artificial heating is necessary.

Art. 6.—All open pits around furnaces or any other openings in the floors of foundries shall be surrounded by a railing or covered by a grating to the satisfaction of the inspector. This applies to permanent openings. The stairs leading to furnaces or platforms shall be constructed of iron.

Art. 7.—The placing of medicine-chests for first aid to the wounded prescribed by article 106 of the regulations of industrial establishments shall in future be compulsory in all the foundries in the Province.

Art. 8.—All establishments wherein cores are made, foundries, blast-furnaces, and where metals are refined, shall be deemed foundries, within the meaning of this regulation.

Art. 9.—The proprietors or agents of all foundries employing more than 50 persons shall have installed a shower-bath room supplied with hot and cold water. The floors of such rooms shall be of cement or other substance suggested by the inspector, and shall be provided with adequate drainage.

Inspection of Steam Boilers.

[Regulations have been issued under the Industrial Establishments Act concerning the inspection of steam boilers, safety-valves, steam gauges, etc., but the text of these regulations is omitted from the present volume.]

Examination and Licensing of Stationary Engineers.

3866g. This section may be cited as "The Quebec Stationary Engineers Act," and, unless the context imply a different meaning, the following words, terms and expressions shall, for the purposes of this section, have the signification and meaning as follows:

1. The words "Board of Examiners" or "Examiners," mean the Examiners appointed under this section;

2. The words "installation of motive power" include all steam boilers and steam pipes, for producing motive power, for the heating of any establishment, or for producing steam in any establishment, of which the heating surface exceeds fifteen square feet;

3. The word "Minister" means the Minister of Public Works and Labour;

4. The words "chief inspector" mean the chief inspector of industrial establishments and public buildings in the Province.

5. The words "stationary engineers" mean engineers in charge of an installation of motive power. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

3866h. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint Examiners, not more than three in number, with such salaries as he may be pleased to fix.

Such salary or salaries and their travelling expenses shall be payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

The Examiners so appointed shall constitute the Board of Examiners. Such Board shall be under the control of the Minister. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

3866i. The special duties of the Examiners shall be to hold examinations as to the efficiency of those who are or wish to become stationary engineers, and grant diplomas of efficiency. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

3866j. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations determining such special provisions as may be necessary for the proper working of the Board, and particularly for the following purposes:

(a) To fix the method of examining candidates.

(b) To fix the tariff of fees to be paid, and a grading of diplomas;

(c) To enact any other provisions to facilitate the work of the Examiners, and increase the efficiency of the service;

(d) To regulate the installation of motive power.

Such regulations shall come into force on the date of their publication in the Quebec Official Gazette, and may be altered from time to time, as necessity requires, and applied, wholly or in part, to certain industries, upon the orders of the Minister<sup>1</sup>. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

3866k. Any person who infringes the provisions of any regulation enacted under this section, shall be liable to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, and costs, and in default of payment thereof, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

<sup>1</sup> Regulations have been issued under this article respecting the examination of candidates, the scale of examination fees, and the granting, renewal and cancellation of certificates. A programme of examination has also been approved by the Minister.

3866l. The examiners shall make an annual report to the Minister, and keep registers in which shall be entered the names of engineers who have passed the examinations, and also of the candidates and the amount of the fees collected. They shall preserve in their archives a copy of the answers of each candidate to the examination papers. 1914, c. 42

3866m. 1. The programme of examination shall be approved by the Minister.

2. The chief inspector may call upon the services of the boiler inspectors, whenever he deems necessary in the interests of the service. 1914, c. 42, s. 1.

3866n. 1. Notwithstanding any law to the contrary, whether general or special, or any order or resolution, or any by-law passed thereunder by a municipality, no stationary engineer who has complied with this section, who has passed his examination before the Board of Examiners or the examiners, and has obtained a certificate of competence, shall be bound to pass any other Examination or to obtain any license or certificate of competence from any municipal authority.

2. All provisions incompatible with this article shall have no force or effect, and are hereby repealed; and no municipality may avail itself thereof, in any manner whatsoever, to require an examination, a license or a certificate of competence, in order to qualify a person to take charge of any installation of motive power. 1916, first session, c. 27, s. 1.

Medical Attendance for Employees in Camps, etc.

3894a. The Superior Board of Health may, by by-law, require the employment of duly qualified practising physicians by the proprietors or contractors in charge of shanties, mining camps, railroad construction camps, or others.

Such by-laws shall, however, apply only to such industries, proprietors or contractors of shanties, mining camps, and railroad construction and other works, as employ at least twenty-five men at the same place.

Such by-laws, after having been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, shall come into force fifteen days after their publication in the Quebec Official Gazette. 1915, c. 59, s. 6.

Sanitation of Factories.

3934. The Board of Health of the Province of Quebec called in this section "the Board of Health" may, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, make and amend the by-laws which it deems necessary for securing health in industrial establishments, prescribed by section fifth of chapter second of title seventh of these Revised Statutes, (art. 3829 to 3866 both inclusive), and relating to:

- a. The supply of drinking water;
- b. Lighting;
- c. The distance to be left between certain establishments and dwelling-houses, as well as the arrangement and details of the construction of rooms,
- d. Cubic space,
- e. Aeration and ventilation;
- f. Cleanliness and cleansing;
- g. The removal and manner of disposing of dust, gas, vapor and waste produced in the course of work;
- h. The system of drainage, including sinks, lavatories, urinals, privies or closets, and the method of disposing of waste liquids;
- i. The temperature of the premises;
- j. All other sanitary conditions which may arise in industrial establishments.

The Board of Health may declare that one or more of its by-laws shall not apply to one or more classes of establishments designated by it.

The said by-laws shall be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and come into force fifteen days after their publication, with the notice of their approval by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council in the Quebec Official Gazette.<sup>1</sup>

3935. Every infraction of the provisions of this section or of the by-laws made thereunder, shall make the offender liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, and another fine of six dollars per day for every day during which the infraction lasts, after notice given by the sanitary physician or the municipal sanitary authority.

3936. Whenever the by-laws of the municipal sanitary authority are contrary to those of the Board of Health made in virtue of this section, the latter alone shall be in force.

If the manner of doing anything prescribed by the municipal by-law is, in the opinion of the Board of Health as efficient as that ordered by the by-laws of the Board of Health, the municipal by-law shall continue in force.

3937. The sanitary physicians appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, in virtue of section fifth of chapter second of title seventh of these Revised Statutes, (articles 3829 to 3866 both inclusive), and the municipal sanitary authority, must, under the direction of the Board of Health, see to the carrying out of the above-mentioned by-laws.

3938. The procedure to be followed for notices, services, suits and other measures rendered necessary in carrying out such by-laws, shall be that indicated for notices, services, prosecutions and other measures provided for by section fifth of chapter second of title seventh of these Revised Statutes, (art. 3829 to 3866 both inclusive).

Nevertheless, the prosecutor, if an officer who is employed by the Board of Health or by the municipal sanitary authority need not make the deposit required by article 3861.

BY-LAWS OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

1. The definition of the several terms employed in these by-laws is given in the law relating to industrial establishments.

2. No industrial establishment can be put into operation without first obtaining permission from the municipal council.

Supply of Drinking Water.

3. The supply of drinking water must be of good quality and satisfactory to the sanitary physician.

It is absolutely forbidden to use for drinking purposes:—

(a) Water from wells dug in cellars;
(b) Water from wells located less than twenty feet from a dwelling and at less than forty feet from a stable or pig-sty;

(c) Water from wells dug at less than one hundred feet from an abattoir, a privy pit, a cesspool;

(d) Water from wells situated at a distance less than four hundred feet from a cemetery, unless the bottom of these wells is above the level of the cemetery, or unless there be, between such wells and the cemetery, a ravine, gully, stream or river, the bottom of which is below the bottom of the wells. In any case, the distance must never be less than fifty feet.

The above restrictions do not apply to artesian or tubed wells, except in cases where the sanitary physician might have cause for suspecting their pollution.

Lighting.

4. When, in the opinion of the sanitary physician, the natural or artificial light is insufficient for the requirements of a workshop or manufactory, the said physician may require that the area of windows or the power of the artificial light in such workshop or manufactory, be increased to the proportion he believes necessary.

Cubic Space.

5. From the first of October to the first of May, each workman must have at least 400 cubic feet of air.

Aeration and Ventilation.

6. During the interruption of work for meals, the workroom must be vacated and the air therein completely renewed by the opening of the windows. The air is also to be entirely renewed after the work is over at night, or in the morning before the opening of the workshop.

7. When he believes it necessary, the sanitary physician may, on his own accord, prescribe any artificial ventilation, by propulsion or by extraction, capable of furnishing at least one thousand cubic feet of fresh air per hour for each workman. The air thus introduced must not be of a temperature of less than sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Cleanliness and Cleaning.

8. No employer, shall tolerate, either inside or outside his workshop, factory or dependencies, any accumulation of vegetable or animal refuse either in a state of decomposition or not.

9. In places where organic matters liable to putrefaction are dealt with, the floor must be rendered impervious, to the satisfaction of the sanitary physician. The walls are to be covered with an impermeable coating of silicate, stucco or zinc paint.

10. The putrescible wastes which are not used must never be left in the workrooms; they must be removed as soon as produced and deposited in closed vessels until ultimately burned or buried.

11. The interior walls and ceilings of every workshop or factory must be entirely white-washed with lime once a year unless they are painted. The painted walls and ceilings must be washed all over with soap and water at least once a year.

12. The floor of every workshop must at least be swept after the day's work is over and the rubbish and waste taken out. In places where putrescible matters are handled, a complete cleansing by washing must take place at least once every week, if the work is continuous, and during the twenty-four hours following the work, if the latter be intermittent.

Dusts, Gases, Vapors, Waste.

13. All dust, gases and offensive, unhealthy and toxic vapors must be conducted directly out of the workshop as soon as they are produced, and this to the satisfaction of the sanitary physician.

14. In order to provide against reeks, vapors, gases, light dusts, funnels must be constructed connected with draught-flues or any other apparatus for an efficacious elimination.

15. Millstones, threshers, crushers and other mechanical apparatus must be enclosed in drums put in direct communication with a strong aspirator in order that dust be removed.

16. For heavy gases such as vapors of mercury and of sulphide of carbon, the ventilation must be made per descensum and the working tables and other working apparatus must be in direct communication with the ventilators.

17. The pulverization of irritating or toxic matters or other operations, such as sifting and packing, must be done mechanically in closed apparatus.

18. When there is but a part of industrial operations that causes dusts, gases or vapors, the sanitary physician may require that such operations which he is to designate, are to be carried on in rooms entirely separate from the rest of the establishment.

19. The solid waste of a putrifying nature which is not to be used in the trade, must be burned or buried two feet under ground and in a place approved of by the municipal council or its board of health, but never less than two hundred feet from a well or other source of drinking water.

Drainage.

20. In municipalities where there is a sewerage system, industrial establishments must be connected with the public sewer unless the waste waters, in the opinion of the sanitary physician, may deteriorate the sewers, and in this last case, articles 24, 25, 26, of these by-laws apply to these industrial establishments already constructed or to be constructed just as if there were no municipal sewerage system.

21. In establishments that run off their waste or washing waters in a public or private sewer;

(a) The collecting pipes of the building must be of iron, cast iron or vitrified earthenware.

(b) The soil-pipe must be of iron, cast iron or at least of lead and carried above the roof of the building.

(c) The pipes connecting water-closets, basins, sinks or other receptacles into the soil-pipe must be of iron or lead, and there must be a trap (waterseal) close to each water-closet, basin, sink or receptacle.

(d) Every joint must be so made as to prevent the escape of water or gas.

(e) It is forbidden to use zinc or galvanized sheet-iron for ventilation pipes in connection with the trap of water-closet, basin, sink or other receptacle.

(f) The water-closets must be placed in an apartment separate from the rooms in which the men are at work and they must communicate with the outside by a ventilator.

(g) The floor of the water-closet must be made impermeable to the satisfaction of the sanitary physician.

(h) The only water-closet allowed in factories that will be built in the future is the one known as the washout closet.

(i) The pipes and other plumbing done in future are to be uncovered.

22. The sanitary physician can have the number of water-closets increased when he considers it necessary.

23. Wooden drains ending in the interior of the building are forbidden.

24. In the municipalities where no sewerage system exists, the municipal council must, before permitting the construction of an industrial establishment, submit the drainage plans of the said industrial establishment to the sanitary physician in charge of the factories of the district, who, after having consulted with the executive of the Board of Health of the Province, determines which of the following methods: land irrigation, decantation, mechanical filtering, evaporation in boilers followed by the incineration of the solid residue, or chemical decomposition, must be employed for the waste water and what kind of latrines to employ.

25. Every industrial establishment is forbidden to make use of cesspools communicating with or extending beyond underground water.

26. When the sanitary physician is of the opinion that a privy pit is dangerous to the public health, he may order its suppression and decide as to the kind of latrines to be used in its stead.

Temperature.

27. From the first of May to the first of October, boilers used in factories must be placed in an entirely separate apartment and only the engineer and fireman can remain therein.

28. Unless it may be necessary to the kind of work carried on in the factory, and even then the authorization of the sanitary physician has to be obtained, the temperature of the workrooms must never be less than sixty nor more than seventy-two degrees Fahrenheit.

29. In establishments where the work necessitates the introduction of steam, the temperature of the apartment must be raised according to the degree of moisture to be reached, in the proportions indicated by the following scale:

(Scale omitted.)

30. The above by-laws annul municipal by-laws only in cases where the latter are contradictory to the former.

31. All previous by-laws of the Board of Health of the Province, contradictory to the present, are repealed in so far as they relate to industrial establishments.

32. When there is a conflict of opinion between the sanitary physician and the employer on a point left to the discretion of the former, it is the duty of the said sanitary physician to refer the matter to the president or secretary of the Board of Health of the Province, before taking action.

33. The procedure to be followed for notices, services, lawsuits and other measures necessary to the enforcing of these by-laws, is that indicated for notices, services, lawsuits and other measures covered by section fifth, chapter two, of the seventh title of the Revised Statutes of 1909, articles 3829-3866.

34. Every infraction of the above by-laws renders the guilty party liable to a fine of two hundred dollars at most, and of another fine not exceeding six dollars per day, as long as the infraction lasts, after the notice has been given by the sanitary physician.

35. The articles 21a and 21b of these by-laws only apply to industrial establishments to be built in the future; and the industrial establishments now in operation are accorded, from the promulgation of the said by-laws, a delay of one year in order to conform to article 5, and a delay of six months for articles 9, 14, 16, 17, 20, 21f, 29, and a delay of three months for articles 21e, 21g and 25.

The Work of the Inmates of Reformatory and Industrial Schools.

4079a. Every contract made or entered into between the manager or proprietor of any reformatory or industrial school and any person or corporation, with respect to the work of the children kept and maintained in such reformatory or industrial school, must be submitted to the Provincial Secretary for his approval. 1920, c. 57, s. 1.

4079b. The manager or proprietor of every reformatory or industrial school shall keep, or cause to be kept by an employee under his control, a book of account showing the amount produced by the work of each child kept and maintained in such institution. 1920, c. 57, s. 1.

4079c. Such manager or proprietor shall, at the time and in the manner fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, account to the Provincial Secretary for the money so collected. 1920, c. 57, s. 1.

4079d. The money so earned by each child be shall applied in payment of the cost of his maintenance, and the balance, if any, shall be placed to his credit and paid over to him when he leaves the institution. 1920, c. 57, s. 1.

4079e. The Provincial Secretary is authorized to retain the amount due for the cost of maintenance of any child kept or maintained in any such institution until the person liable under the above provisions has complied therewith, or until judgment is rendered by a competent court in case of a contestation of the account rendered. 1920, c. 57, s. 1.

[The above sections do not affect any contract existing at the time of their enactment.]

Sunday Labour.

4466. The laws of this Legislature, whether general or special, respecting the observance of Sunday and in force on the twenty-eighth day of February, 1907, shall continue in force until amended, replaced or repealed; and every person shall be and remain entitled to do on Sunday, any act not forbidden by the acts of this Legislature, in force on the said date, and, subject to the restrictions contained in this section, to enjoy on Sunday all such liberties as are recognized by the customs of this Province.

4467. No person shall, on Sunday, for gain, except in cases of necessity or urgency, do or cause to be done any industrial work, or pursue any business or calling. . . .

4468. Every offence against this section shall be punishable by a fine of not less than one dollar and not more than forty dollars, with costs, and, in default of payment thereof, by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days for a first offence and for every subsequent offence to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, and in default of payment, to imprisonment for not more than sixty days.

4470. Nothing in this section shall repeal the acts of this Legislature in force on the twenty-eighth day of February, 1907, concerning the observance of Sunday, nor any by-laws passed thereunder, which laws and by-laws shall continue in full force and effect until amended, replaced or repealed according to law.

4471. Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, whosoever conscientiously and habitually observes the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath day and actually abstains from work on that day, shall not be punishable for having worked on the first day of the week, if such work does not disturb other persons in the observance of the first day of the week as a holy day, and if the place where such work is done is not open for trade on that day.

4472. Nothing contained in this section shall restrict the privileges granted or recognized by Chapter 153 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906.

Early Closing in Shops.

5885. In every city and town, the municipal council may make, amend and repeal by-laws ordering that, during the whole or any part of the year, stores of one or more categories in the municipality be closed and remain closed every day or any day of the week, after the times and hours, fixed and determined for that purpose by the said by-law, but the times and hours so fixed and determined by such by-law, shall not be sooner than seven o'clock in the evening nor later than seven o'clock in the morning.

Every infringement of a by-law made in virtue of this section shall render the person found guilty thereof before two justices of the peace, liable to a fine not exceeding forty dollars for each offence, and in default of payment to imprisonment not exceeding two months.

Prosecutions for infringements of the by-laws made in virtue of this section, shall be governed by part XV of the Criminal Code, respecting summary convictions.

Vocational Training—Encouragement of Vocational Education.

5934. 1. The council of any city, town or village municipality may, by by-law, provide for the encouragement of technical education for the benefit of mechanics and the working classes generally:—

(a) By establishing technical schools in the municipality and giving bonuses and prizes to be competed for by the pupils thereof;

(b) By granting money to the schools established under article 2483, and by giving bonuses and prizes to be competed for by the pupils thereof;

(c) By granting exemptions from taxation to the successful pupils in any such schools;

(d) By otherwise assisting the progress and efficiency of such school in any manner that may be deemed advisable.

2. All by-laws passed for such purpose shall, however, before coming into force be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

3. All such schools shall be under the control of the Council of Arts and Manufactures.

Liability of Directors of Joint Stock Companies for Employees' Wages.

6023. The directors of the company shall be jointly liable to the clerks, labourers, servants and apprentices thereof, for all debts not exceeding six months' wages due for service performed for the company whilst they are such directors respectively; but no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company is sued therefor within one year after the debt becomes due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor unless an execution against the company in respect of such debt is returned unsatisfied wholly or in part; and the amount unsatisfied on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs from the directors. 1920, c. 72, s. 1.

Railways—Application of Articles.

6467. Articles 6470 to 6669, both inclusive, apply to every railway constructed or to be hereafter constructed, whether operated or to be operated by steam, electricity or other power and, in so far as they are applicable to such undertaking, and unless they are expressly varied or excepted by the charter, shall be incorporated with the charter, form part thereof, and be construed accordingly.

6468. Any of the said articles 6470 to 6669 both inclusive, shall be sufficiently excluded from the charter by enacting in such charter that such articles, designating them by their numbers, shall not be incorporated therewith, and the charter or special act shall be construed accordingly.

6469. Articles 6670 to 6731, both inclusive, apply to all railways in course of construction by the Government of the Province, and the property of the Province, in so far as they are not inconsistent with the charter; to all railways which have been or which may be constructed, under the authority of any charter granted by the Legislature of the Government of Quebec; and to all companies incorporated for their construction and working; subject always to any provisions hereinafter made as to the application of any provision of this section to any railway or as to the time from which it is to be held as so applying.

Railways—Definition of Terms.

6470. 1. The words "the charter" or "the special Act," used in this section shall mean any act, statute, or law authorizing the construction of a railway with which this section or the Quebec Consolidated Railway Act, 1880, or the act respecting railways, as contained in the Revised Statutes of Quebec, 1888, is incorporated.

2. The word "prescribed" used in this section in reference to any matter herein stated, shall be deemed to refer to the matter prescribed or governed by the charter; and the sentence in which such word occurs shall be construed as if, instead of the word "prescribed," the phrase "prescribed for that purpose in the charter," had been used.

6471. 6. The word "highway" means all public roads, streets, lanes, and other public ways of communication.

10. The words "the company" mean the company or person authorized by the charter to construct the railway.

11. The words "the railway" mean the railway and the works authorized by the charter to be constructed or executed.

6472. In interpreting the provisions of this section, from article 6670 to 6731, both inclusive, the words "railway company" or "company" shall include every proprietor, lessee or contractor working a railway built or worked under any act of the Legislature.

Rules for Railway Employees.

6513. Every railway company shall make such by-laws, rules and regulations, to be observed by the conductors, engine-drivers, motormen and other officers and servants of the company, and by all other companies and persons using the railway of such company, and such regulations, with regard to the construction of the carriages and other vehicles to be used in the trains of the railway of the company, as are requisite for ensuring the complete carrying out of the provisions of this section, and the orders and regulations of the railway committee.

6514. The company may, from time to time, repeal or alter such by-laws and make others, provided that such by-laws be not repugnant to the provisions of this section or of the charter, or of any act amending the same.

6515. Such by-laws shall be reduced to writing and shall have affixed thereto the seal of the company.

6516. Any of the conductors, engine-drivers, motormen and other officers and servants of the company, or other railway companies using any railway, offending against any such by-law, shall forfeit, for every such offence, a sum not exceeding forty dollars; such forfeiture to be imposed by the company in such by-law, as a penalty for every such offence.

6517. If the infraction or non-observance of any such by-law, by any person mentioned in article 6516, be attended with danger or annoyance to the public, or hindrance to the company in the lawful use of the railway, the company may summarily interfere, using no violence or unnecessary force, to obviate or remove such danger, annoyance, or hindrance, the whole without prejudice to any penalty incurred by the infraction of any such by-law.

6518. No such by-law shall have force or effect unless and until it has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

6519. 1. The substance of any such by-law, when approved as aforesaid, if it affects any officer or servant of the company, may be proved by proving the delivery of a copy to or its receipt by such officer or servant.

3. No penalty, imposed by any such by-laws, shall be recoverable, unless the same shall have been published and kept published as aforesaid.

6520. 1. Such by-laws, when so confirmed, shall be binding upon and be observed by all persons mentioned in article 6516, and shall be sufficient to justify all persons acting under the same.

6521. Any railway company may, by by-law, impose upon any officer, servant, or person who, before contravening such by-law, has had notice thereof, and is employed by the company, a penalty in favour of the company of not less than thirty days' pay of such officer or servant, for any contravention of such by-law, and may retain the amount of any such penalty out of the salary or wages of the offender.

6522. The notice of the by-law or of any order or notice of the Railway Committee, or of the inspecting engineers, may be proved by proving the delivery of a copy thereof to the officer, servant or person, or that he signed a copy thereof, or that a copy thereof was posted in some place where his work or duties, or some of them, were to be performed.

6523. Such proof, with proof of the offence, shall be a good defence for the company in any suit for the recovery of the amount so retained, and such penalty shall be over and above any penalty under this section.

Operation of Trains—Safety Appliances.

6529. Every railway company, which runs trains upon the railway for the conveyance of passengers, shall provide and cause to be used in and upon such trains, such apparatus as best affords good and sufficient means of immediate communication between the conductors and the engine-drivers, or the conductors or motormen of such trains while the trains are in motion, and good and sufficient means of applying, by the power of the steam engine or otherwise at the will of the engine-driver or other person appointed to such duty, the brakes to the wheels of the locomotive, or tender, or both, or of all or any of the cars or carriages composing the trains, and of disconnecting the locomotive, tender, and carriages from each other by any such power or means, and also such apparatus as will best and most securely place and fix the seats or chairs in the cars or carriages, and shall alter such apparatus or supply new apparatus as the Railway Committee may, from time to time, order.

6530. Every railway company, failing to comply with any of the provisions of article 6529, shall forfeit to His Majesty a sum not exceeding two hundred dollars for every day during which such default continues.

Railway Bridges, Etc.

6601. 1. Whenever an overhead bridge or any other erection or structure is constructed for the passage of a highway over a railway, or, whenever it shall become necessary to rebuild any highway-bridge, or other erection or structure already built over a railway, or to make large repairs to the same, the lower beams or parts of the superstructure of any such bridge, or of any other structure, and the approaches thereto, shall be built or rebuilt at the cost of the railway company or of the municipality or other owner of the bridge, erection or structure, as the case may be, and shall, at all times, be maintained at a sufficient height, from the surface of the rails of the railway, to admit of an open and clear headway of not less than seven feet between the top of the highest freight cars, then running on the railway, and the lower beams or parts of such bridge or other erection.

2. Any railway company, before using higher freight cars than those running on their railway at the time of the construction or reconstruction of, or large repairs to such bridge or other erection or structure, shall, after having first obtained the consent of the municipality or of the owners of such highway bridge or other erection or structure, raise the said bridge, or other erection or structure, and the approaches thereto, if necessary, at the cost and charges of the railway company, so as to admit a clear height of not less than seven feet over the top of the highest freight cars thereafter to be used on the railway.

Railway Employees to wear Badges.

6624. 1. Every servant of the company, employed on a passenger train, car or carriage, or at a station for passengers, shall wear, upon his hat or cap, a badge, which shall indicate his office.

2. Without such badge, he shall not be entitled to demand or receive from any passenger any fare or ticket, or to exercise any of the powers of his office, or to interfere in any manner, with any passenger, or his baggage or property.

Negligence of Railway Employees.

6631. Every locomotive engine shall be furnished with a bell of at least thirty pounds weight, and with a steam whistle.

6632. 1. The bell shall be rung, or the whistle sounded, at least eighty rods from every place where the railway crosses any highway, and be kept ringing or be sounded at short intervals, until the engine has crossed such highway, under a penalty of eight dollars for every neglect thereof, to be paid by the company, which shall also be liable for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such neglect.

2. One-half of such penalty and damages shall be chargeable to and collected by the company from the engineer having charge of such engine and neglecting to sound the whistle or ring the bell as aforesaid.

6633. Every car which contains a motor, or which runs at the head of a train on an electric railway, shall be furnished with a gong of at least ten inches in diameter.

6634. The gong on the first or only car forming a train on an electric railway, shall be sounded at least eighty perches from every place where the railway crosses any highway, and be kept ringing or be sounded at short intervals until the car has crossed such highway, under a penalty of eight dollars for every neglect thereof, to be paid by the company, and the company shall further be liable for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such neglect; one-half of which penalty and damages shall be collected by the company from the motorman or other person having charge of such car and neglecting to sound the gong as aforesaid.

Protection of Electric Railway Employees—Closed Vestibules for Motormen.

6635. Every electric railway company shall provide proper and sufficiently closed vestibules upon its cars, for the protection of the motormen operating the same, from exposure to cold, snow, rain and sleet, during November, December, January, February, March and April under a penalty payable to the municipality of ten dollars per day for each day upon which any motor car is operated without such vestibules.

Intoxication of Railway Employees.

6636. Any person, in charge of a locomotive engine or acting as the conductor of a car or train of cars, who is intoxicated when on duty on the railway shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars.

Transportation of Explosives.

[Articles 6639 and 6640 deal with the transportation of explosives on railways.]

Railways—Suits for Damages.

6642. 1. All suits for indemnity for any damage or injury sustained by reason of the railway, shall be instituted within twelve months next after the time such supposed damage was sustained, and not afterwards.

The defendants may plead the general issue, and give this section and the charter and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon, and may prove that the same was done in pursuance of and by authority of this section or the charter.

2. All fines or forfeitures imposed by articles 6470 to 6653, both inclusive, or by the charter, or by any by-law, except those for the levying and recovering of which special provision is herein made, shall be recovered, in a summary manner, before any one or more justices of the peace for the district or place where the offence was committed.

3. All the fines, forfeitures and penalties recovered under paragraph 2 of this Article, the application whereof is not hereinbefore particularly directed, shall be paid into the hands of the treasurer of the company, to be applied to the use thereof.

4. No contravention of this section or of the charter by the company, although considered to be an offence, and punishable accordingly, shall exempt the company, if it be the offending party, from the forfeiture by this section or the charter, of the privileges conferred on it by the said section or charter, if, by the provisions thereof or by law, the same be forfeited by such contravention.

Protection of Wages on Subsidized Railways.

6654. Every railway company, receiving subsidies from the Government of this Province, and every contractor or sub-contractor of such railway, who employs foremen, workmen or labourers, by the job or for a specified time, to fulfil the contract, must keep a list according to form C showing the names and wages or price allowed for the work of such foremen, workmen and labourers; and every payment made to them must be attested by the signature or the mark of the foreman, workman or labourer, affixed before a witness who signs said list.

6655. Any foreman, workman or labourer, or any person who has supplied to such company, contractor or sub-contractor, or to any person for them, labour or materials employed or to be employed in the construction of such railway, or who has given or sold one or more rights of way, may file in the office of the Minister of Public Works and Labour a claim under oath, made according to form D.

So soon as such claim is filed, the Minister of Public Works and Labour may, in his discretion, retain out of the subsidy granted by the Legislature to the company an amount sufficient to cover the claim until satisfied, unless the company or persons entitled to such subsidies consent to the payment of the claim by the said Minister out of the amount of such subsidies.

When the claim is contested, the said Minister shall keep an amount sufficient to pay the contested claim or claims until the matter is finally settled by the courts or settled by private agreement.

6656. Several unpaid foremen, workmen, labourers, suppliers of materials, or persons who have sold one or more rights of way, may join in the same claim.

6657. The assignment of the subsidies made by the company, or the assignment by a contractor or sub-contractor of the prices of work, shall in no wise affect the right conferred upon the persons mentioned in article 6655 to be paid out of the subsidies.

Protection of Wages in Railway Construction.

6658. Any railway company, incorporated by any act of the Legislature, may stipulate and provide, in any contract between the company and any person or persons contracting with the company for the construction of the whole, or any part or section of the railway of the company, or for the reconstruction or repair thereof, in whole or in part, that the labourers and workmen employed in such construction or reconstruction or repair, shall be paid daily, weekly or monthly, according to the terms of hire or agreement made with them.

6659. Any such railway company, contracting with any person or persons as aforesaid, for the construction or reconstruction, or repair of their railway or any part thereof, may, in default of any stipulation or provision for the payment of labourers or workmen in such contract, withhold payment to their contractors, until all moneys then due and owing to labourers and workmen have been paid.

The sums so withheld, however, shall not be greater than the sums due and owing to the labourers and workmen and of which notice shall have been given to the company.

6660. Every such railway company, contracting as aforesaid, shall ascertain, from time to time, by agent or otherwise, that all arrears due to labourers and workmen have been paid by their contractors, before making final payment to or settlement with them.

6661. If any such railway company, whose contractors or sub-contractors are in arrears with their labourers or workmen, do or shall, after notice thereof, by letter addressed to the secretary or president, at the principal office of the company, pay over moneys then due or payable to their contractors without providing for the payment of the arrears, the railway company shall thereupon become and be liable to pay the same as a debt due from the company to the said labourers, and workmen.

6662. If the amount claimed to be due by the labourers and workmen from the contractors or sub-contractors, is disputed or denied by the latter and notice thereof is given to the company, it shall withhold payment until the dispute is decided by a competent court; and the company shall thereupon pay over to the labourers and workmen the amount declared to be payable to them by the judgment.

Inspection of Railways.

6678. The Railway Committee, whenever it receives information to the effect that any bridge, culvert, viaduct, tunnel or any other portion of any railway, or any engine, car, or carriage used or for use on any railway, is dangerous to the public using the same, from want of repair, insufficient or faulty construction, or from any other cause, or whenever circumstances may arise which in its opinion, render it expedient, may direct the engineer, as aforesaid, to examine and inspect the railway or any portion thereof, or the works connected therewith, or the engines and other rolling-stock in use thereon or on any portion thereof.

Upon the report of the engineer, the Committee may condemn the railway, or any portion thereof, or any of the rolling-stock or other works connected therewith, and, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may require any change or alteration therein, or in any part thereof, or the substitution of any new bridge, culvert, viaduct, or tunnel, or of any material for the said railway; and, thereupon, the company to which such railway belongs or the company using, running or controlling the same, shall, after notice thereof in writing signed by the chairman of the Committee, and countersigned by the secretary thereof, proceed to remedy the defects in the said portions of the railway, or in the locomotive, car or carriage which have been so condemned, or shall make such change, alteration or substitution hereinbefore referred to, as has been required, in manner, aforesaid, by the Committee.

6679. If, in the opinion of any such engineer, it be dangerous for trains or cars to pass over any railway or any portion thereof, until alterations, substitutions or repairs have been made thereon, or for any particular car, carriage, or locomotive, to be run or used, the said engineer may forthwith forbid the running of any train or cars over such railway or portion of railway, or the running or using of any such car, carriage or locomotive, by delivering or causing to be delivered to the president, managing director, or secretary or superintendent of the company owning, running or using such railway, or to any officer having the management or control of the running of trains on such railway, a notice in writing to that effect, with his reasons therefor, in which he shall distinctly point out the defects or the danger to be apprehended.

6680. The inspecting engineer shall forthwith report the same to the Railway Committee, who, with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may confirm, modify, or disallow the act or order of the inspecting engineer.

Such confirmation, modification or disallowance shall be notified to the railway company interested.

6681. Any engineer appointed as aforesaid to inspect any railway or works may, at all reasonable times, upon producing his authority, if required, enter upon and examine the said railway and the stations, fences or gates, road-crossings, cattle-guards, works and buildings, and the engines, cars and carriages belonging thereto.

Accidents on Railways.

[Article 6687 provides for the reporting of accidents].

Liability of Railway Companies not relieved by Inspection.

6688. No inspection had under this section, nor anything in this section contained, nor anything done, or ordered or omitted to be done or ordered, under or by virtue of this section, shall relieve any railway company of or from any liability or responsibility, resting upon it by law, either towards His Majesty, or towards any person, or the wife or husband, parent or child, executor or administrator, tutor or curator, heir or other personal representative of any person, for anything done or omitted to be done by such company, or for any wrongful act, neglect or default of such company, or in any manner or way to lessen such liability or responsibility, or in any way to weaken or diminish the liability or responsibility of any such company under the laws in force in this Province.

Negligence of Railway Employees.

6726. If any officer or servant of, or person employed by any railway company, wilfully or negligently contravenes any by-law or regulation of the company, lawfully made and in force, or any order or notice of the Railway Committee, or of the inspecting engineer, of which a copy has been delivered to him or has been posted up or open to his inspection in some place where his work or his duties, or any of them are to be performed, then, if such contravention causes injury to any property or to any person or exposes any property or any person to the risk of injury, or renders such risk greater than it would have been without such contravention, although no actual injury occurs, the person convicted of such contravention shall, in the discretion of the court before whom the conviction is had, be punished by fine or imprisonment, such fine not to exceed four hundred dollars, or such imprisonment five years.

6727. If such contravention do not cause injury to any property or person, nor expose any person or property to the risk of injury, nor make such risk greater than it would have been without such contravention, then the officer, servant or other person guilty thereof, shall thereby incur a penalty not exceeding the amount of thirty days' pay, nor less than fifteen days' pay of the offender from the company, in the discretion of the justice of the peace before whom the conviction is had.

Such penalty shall be recoverable with costs, on the oath of one credible witness other than the informer, before any justice of the peace having jurisdiction where the offence has been committed, or where the offender is found.

6728. One-half of such penalty shall belong to His Majesty for the public uses of the Province, and the other half to the informer, unless he be an officer or servant of, or person in the employ of the company, in which case he shall be a competent witness and the whole penalty shall belong to His Majesty, for the uses aforesaid.

6729. The company may, in all cases under articles 6726, 6727, and 6728, pay the amount of the penalty and costs, and recover the same from the offender, or deduct it from his salary or wages.

Liability of Directors of Mining Companies for Employees' Wages.

6751. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the labourers, servants and apprentices of the company for all debts, not exceeding one year's salary, due for services performed for the company whilst they are such directors, respectively; but no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company has been sued therefor within one year after the debt became due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part.

The amount due on such execution shall be the amount recoverable, with costs, against the directors.

Co-operative Associations.

[Articles 6762-6811 deal with the formation of Co-operative Associations.]

Workmen's Compensation.

7321. Accidents happening by reason of or in the course of their work, to workmen apprentices and employees engaged in the work of building; or in factories, manufactories or workshops; or in stone, wood and coal yards; or in any transportation business by land or by water; or in loading or unloading; or in any gas or electrical business; or in any business having for its object the building, repairing, or maintenance of railways or tramways, water-works, drains, sewers, dams, wharves, elevators or bridges; or in mines, or quarries; or in any industrial enterprise, in which explosives are manufactured or prepared, or in which machinery is used, moved by power other than that of men or of animals, shall entitle the person injured or his representatives to compensation ascertained in accordance with the following provisions.

This subsection may be cited under the name of "Workmen's Compensation Act of the Province of Quebec," and it shall not apply to agricultural industries nor to navigation by means of sails. 1918, c. 71, s. 1.

Whenever a municipal corporation undertakes or executes public works itself, under such conditions as would render a contractor liable under the provisions of this Act, it shall become liable itself. 1920, c. 75, s. 1.

7322. (1) In cases to which article 7321 applies, the person injured is entitled.

(a) In case of absolute and permanent incapacity, to a rent equal to fifty per cent of his yearly wages, reckoning from the day the accident took place, or from that upon which, by agreement of the parties or by final judgment, it is established that the incapacity has shown itself to be permanent;

(b) In the case of permanent and partial incapacity, to a rent equal to half the sum by which his wages have been reduced in consequence of the accident;

(c) For temporary incapacity, to compensation equal to one-half of the daily wages received at the time of the accident, if the inability to work has lasted more than seven days, and beginning on the eighth day, the said compensation not to be less than four dollars per week. Amended 1918, c. 71, s. 2 (a).

2. The capital of the rents, shall not, however, in any case except in the case mentioned in article 7325, exceed three thousand dollars. Amended 1920, c. 75, s. 2.

3. In case the person injured has already suffered partial and permanent incapacity by reason of a previous accident, the compensation to which he shall be entitled, if he sustains another accident, shall be calculated after deducting the incapacity previously suffered. 1918, c. 71, s. 20.

7323. When the accident causes death, the compensation shall consist of a sum equal to four times the average yearly wages of the deceased at the time of the accident, and shall in no case, except in the case mentioned in article 7325, be less than fifteen hundred dollars or more than three thousand dollars. Amended 1920, c. 75, s. 3 (a).

There shall further be paid a sum of not more than fifty dollars for medical and funeral expenses. Amended 1920, c. 75, s. 3, ss. (b) and (c).

The compensation shall be payable as follows:—

(a) To the surviving consort not divorced nor separated from bed and board at the time of the death, provided the accident took place after the marriage;

(b) To the legitimate children, or to the illegitimate children acknowledged before the accident, to assist them to provide for themselves until they reach the full age of sixteen years, or more if they are invalids. Amended 1918, c. 71, s. 3 b.

(c) To ascendants to whom the deceased was the principal support at the time of the accident. 1919, c. 69, s. 1.

If the parties do not agree upon the apportionment of the compensation, it shall be apportioned by the proper court. Nevertheless every sum paid under article 7322 in respect of the same accident shall be deducted from the total compensation.

7234. A foreign workman or his representatives shall not be entitled to the compensation provided by this subsection, unless at the time of the accident he or they reside in Canada, nor after he or they cease to reside there while the rent is being paid; but if he or they cannot take advantage of this subsection the common law remedy shall exist in his or their favour.

7325. No compensation shall be granted if the accident was brought about intentionally by the person injured.

The court may reduce the compensation if the accident was due to the inexcusable fault of the workman, or increase it if it is due to the inexcusable fault of the employer.

7326. If the yearly remuneration of the workman exceeds one thousand dollars, no more than such sum shall be taken into account. The surplus up to fifteen hundred dollars shall give a right only to one-fourth of the compensation aforesaid.

This subsection shall not apply in cases where the yearly remuneration exceeds fifteen hundred dollars. 1920, c. 75, s. 4.

7327. Apprentices are assimilated to the workmen in the business who are paid the lowest wages.

7328. The wages upon which the rent is based, shall be, in the case of a workman engaged in the business during the twelve months next before the accident, the actual remuneration allowed him during such time, whether in money or in kind.

In the case of workmen employed less than twelve months before the accident, such wages shall be the actual remuneration which they have received since they were employed in the business, plus the average remuneration received by workmen of the same class during the time necessary to complete the twelve months.

If the work is not continuous the year's wages shall be calculated both according to the remuneration received while the work went on, and according to the workman's earnings during the rest of the year.

In the case where the workman receives a fixed wage, he shall not be bound, in calculating the year's wages, to take into account any remuneration he may have received for overtime work. 1919, c. 69, s. 2.

7329. As soon as the permanent incapacity to work is ascertained, or in case of death of the person injured within one month from the date of the agreement between the employer and the parties interested, or, if there be no agreement, within one month from the date of the final judgment condemning him to pay the same, the employer shall pay the amount of the compensation to the person injured or his representatives, or, as the case may be, and at the option of the person injured or of his representatives, shall pay the capital of the rent to an insurance company designated for that purpose by Order in Council.

The person injured or his representatives may, at their option, demand the payment to themselves of the amount of the compensation, or of the capital of the rent, which in no case of death, or incapacity, saving the case provided for in article 7325, shall amount to more than two thousand five hundred dollars. 1918, c. 71, s. 5.

The rent itself, saving the above exemption, may not be calculated upon a capital of more than two thousand five hundred dollars. 1918, c. 71, s. 5.

7330. The rents payable under this subsection, shall be paid monthly. Amended 1918, c. 71, s. 6.

The compensation in case of temporary incapacity is payable at the same time as the wages of the other employees, and at intervals in no case to exceed sixteen days.

Section 7 of Chapter 71 of the Acts of 1918 provides that said Chapter shall not apply to accidents, happening before the 9th of February 1918 nor, affect cases pending at that date.

7331. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may prescribe the conditions upon which the insurance companies applying by petition to be authorized to pay the said rents in virtue of this subsection, shall be authorized to do so, but no company that has not made a deposit with the Government of Canada or of this Province, in conformity with the laws of Canada, or of this Province, of an amount deemed sufficient to ensure the performance of its obligation, shall be so authorized.

7332. All compensation to which this subsection applies, shall be inalienable and exempt from seizure, but the employer may deduct from the amount of the indemnity any sum due to him by the workman.

7333. The compensation prescribed by the preceding articles shall be entirely at the charge of the employer, and the employer shall not, for this purpose, deduct any part of the employee's wages, even with the consent of the latter.

Liability for Accidents.

7334. The person injured or his representatives, shall continue to have, in addition to the recourse given by this subsection, the right to claim compensation under the common law from the persons responsible for the accident other than the employer, his servants or agents.

The compensation so awarded to them shall, to the extent thereof, discharge the employer from his liability and the action against third persons responsible for the accident, may be taken by the employer at his own risk, in place of the person injured or his representatives, if he or they refuse to take such action after having been put in default so to do.

7335. In cases to which this subsection applies, the employer shall be liable to the person injured or to his representatives mentioned in article 7323, for injuries resulting from accidents caused by or in the course of the work of such person, only for the compensation prescribed by this subsection.

7336. All moneys paid by any insurance company or mutual benefit society, shall be applied, to the extent thereof, on account of the sums and rents payable in virtue of this subsection, if the employer proves that he has assumed the assessments or premiums demanded therefor. But the employer's liability shall continue if the company or society neglects to pay or becomes unable to pay the compensation for which it is liable.

7337. Workmen who usually work alone shall not be subject to this subsection from the fact of their casually working with one or more other workmen.

7338. The person injured shall be bound, if the employer requires him so to do, in writing, to submit to an examination by a practising physician chosen and paid by the employer, and if he refuses to submit to such examination or opposes the same in any way, his right to compensation as well as any remedy to enforce the same shall be suspended until the examination takes place.

The person injured, shall, in such case, always be entitled to demand that the examination shall take place in the presence of a physician chosen by him.

7339. Every agreement contrary to the provisions of this subsection shall be absolutely null.

Security.

7340. The claim of the person injured or of his representatives, for medical and funeral expenses, as well as for compensation allowed for temporary incapacity to work, shall be secured by privilege on the movable and immovable property of the employer, ranking concurrently with the claim mentioned in paragraph 9 of article 1994 of the Civil Code.

Payment of compensation for permanent incapacity to work, or in respect of an accident followed by death, shall so long as the compensation has not been paid, or so long as the sum necessary to procure the required rent has not been paid to an insurance company or otherwise paid in virtue of this subsection, be secured by a privilege of the same nature and rank upon movable property, and by a privilege upon immovable property, ranking after other privileges, and after hypothecs.

Procedure.

7341. The Superior Court and the Circuit Court shall have jurisdiction of every action or contestation in virtue of this subsection, in accordance with the jurisdiction given to them respectively, by the Code of Civil Procedure.

7342. Review and appeal of or from judgments susceptible thereof, shall be taken within fifteen days from the rendering of such judgments, and if not so taken the right thereto shall lapse. Such appeals shall have precedence.

7343. The Court or judge may, upon petition, at any stage of the case, whether before judgment or while an appeal is pending, grant a provisional daily allowance to the person injured or to his representatives.

7344. There shall be no trial by jury in any action taken in virtue of this subsection, but the proceedings shall be summary, and shall be subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure respecting such matters.

7345. The action to recover any compensation to which this subsection applies shall run against all persons, be subject to a prescription of one year.

7346. An action to revise the amount of the compensation, based on the alleged aggravation or diminution of the disability of the person injured, may be taken during the four years next after the date of the agreement of the parties as to such compensation, or next after that of the final judgment.

7347. Before having recourse to the provisions of this subsection, the workman must be authorized thereto by a judge of the Superior Court upon petition, served upon the employer. The judge shall grant such petition without the hearing of evidence or the taking of affidavits, but may before granting the same use such means as he may think useful to bring about an understanding between the parties. If they agree, he may render judgment in accordance with such agreement, upon the petition, and such judgment shall have the same effect as a final judgment of a competent court.

7347a. Nothing contained in this subsection (articles 7321 to 7347a), shall be interpreted as doing away with any of the common law rights of action belonging to any persons who cannot avail themselves of the said subsection. 1914, c. 57, s. 2.

Employment of Labour—General Provisions.

7415. This section applies to all parts of the Province, except the cities of Quebec and Montreal (except as herein otherwise provided), and all other incorporated cities, towns and villages which have passed or may hereafter pass by-laws regulating the relations between master and servant.

7416. Every domestic, servant, journeyman or labourer, engaged by the week, month or year, and not by the piece or job, or for a fixed period, who intends to quit the service on which he is engaged at the expiration of his engagement, shall give at least one week's notice of such intention, if his engagement be by the week, two weeks' notice if it be by the month, and one month's notice if it be by the year; and if any such person quit the service without giving such notice, he shall be considered as having deserted from the said service and be punished accordingly.

7417. Every master, mistress or employer, shall give a like notice to any servant, journeyman or labourer, engaged by the week, month or year, whose service are no longer required; but any domestic, servant, journeyman or labourer, so engaged, may be discharged at or before the expiration of his engagement without notice, upon the full payment of the wages to which he would have been entitled had the term of service expired and had the required notice been given.

Penalties.

7418. Every apprentice, servant, journeyman, or labourer, bound by act of indenture or written contract or agreement, or verbally before one or more witnesses, for one month or for any longer or shorter time.

who refuses or neglects to enter the service of his master, at the time agreed upon; or who is guilty of misbehaviour, refractory conduct or idleness, or of desertion; or who absents himself by day or night, without leave, from the said service, or from the house or residence of his employer; or who refuses or neglects to perform his just duties, or to obey the lawful commands which may be given him by his master or mistress; or who is guilty of dissipating his master's or mistress' property or effects; or who is guilty of any unlawful act that may affect the interest of his master or mistress, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

7419. Every domestic, servant, journeyman or labourer, engaged by the month, or longer period, or by the piece or job, who deserts or abandons the service or job for which he was engaged, before the time agreed upon, shall, for each offence of such nature, be liable to the penalty provided in article 7418.

7420. For every offence against the preceding articles on the part of any servant or labourer engaged to work or serve in the woods and forests of this Province, for the making of saw-logs or the manufacture of square or other commercial timber, or firewood of any kind, the offender may be prosecuted and convicted before any justice of the peace of the district wherein he contracted his engagement, or wherein he is apprehended, notwithstanding that the territory where the offence was committed may be without such district.

7421. Any person, knowingly harbouring or concealing any apprentice or servant engaged by written agreement or verbally before witnesses, who has abandoned the service of his master or mistress; or instigating or engaging or inducing any apprentice or servant to abandon such service; or keeping such servant in his or her service, after being informed of the fact, shall, for such offence, be liable to the penalty provided in article 7418.

7422. Every master or mistress, who discharges his or her servant, without paying his wages as stated in article 7417, shall incur the penalty provided in article 7418.

7423. (1) Every master, mistress or employer, against whom any just cause of complaint exists on the part of his or her apprentice, domestic, servant, journeyman or labourer, bound or engaged as aforesaid, for any misusage, neglect to supply sufficient wholesome food, or for cruelty or illtreatment of any kind, shall, upon conviction, for each offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars.

(2) In the cities of Quebec and Montreal, and in cities, towns and villages which have passed or may pass by-laws in that behalf, the penalty incurred by a master or by an apprentice, domestic, servant, journeyman or labourer for any infringement of the laws and by-laws governing the relations between masters and servants, shall be a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, any special law or by-law to the contrary notwithstanding, and, in default of the payment thereof, imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

7424. The provisions of subsection 1 of this section apply to professional singers and actors in the city of Montreal, engaged by the day, week or month or for the season.

Prosecutions.

7425. Any complaint, founded upon an offence against any of the provisions of this section, may be heard, and determined before any one justice of the peace, resident in the district where such offence was committed, who may, by warrant or summons, require the attendance of the offender before him, and upon the offender being brought up under warrant, or if summoned, upon proof, of the service of such summons, may, either in the absence or presence of the offender, determine such complaint in a summary manner, on the oath of any one or more credible witnesses, to be sworn before him, and may, if the offender be convicted, condemn him to the penalty imposed for the offence, and in default of payment of the said penalty, with costs of suit, with or without delay, to imprisonment in the common gaol of the district for not more than two months, unless the said penalty and costs of suit, together with the costs of apprehension and conveyance of the offender to the gaol, be sooner paid.

On a suit by a servant for wages, the defendant may plead the fact of such desertion, misconduct or disobedience hereinbefore mentioned, and on proof thereof and of the damages incurred in consequence by the defendant, it may be declared that the plaintiff has lost all recourse for his wages wholly or in part, in the discretion of the court, according to the circumstances.

7426. Upon complaint by any master, mistress or employer against his or her apprentice, servant or journeyman, or by any apprentice, servant or journeyman against his master, mistress or employer, of continued misconduct or misuse, and of repeated violations of the ordinary and established duties of the parties towards each other, or of incapacity to perform the services for which he is hired, two justices of the peace, resident in the district where the master or mistress lives, may, at a special session, upon due proof of the facts, annul the contract or agreement, whether written or verbal, by which such master, mistress or employer, and such apprentice, servant or journeyman, were bound to each other.

7427. All fines imposed by this section, when paid, shall be handed over to the sheriff of the district within which the offence was committed, to form part of the building and jury fund.

7428. The prosecution for any offence against the provisions of this section, shall be commenced within three months after the offence has been committed, and not thereafter.

Employment of Labour—Engagement of Voyageurs and Fishermen.

7429. 1. Every person who engages as a guide, conductor, canoe-man, bateau-man or winterer, or in any other quality or capacity, to perform a voyage to or from the province of Ontario, or to or from the Indian country, or to winter or to remain there for any time whatsoever, (save as hereinafter excepted), shall enter into an agreement for such purpose with the person with whom such person engages or his agent.

2. Such agreement shall not be valid unless made in writing and executed before a notary, or, where there is no notary, before at least two credible witnesses who can read and write, and who shall sign their names thereto; and every such agreement shall, besides such other particulars as the parties may agree upon, specify in what quality or capacity the person engages, what wages he is to receive for his services, and when and where payable, and the voyage or service he is to perform.

3. It shall not be necessary for the conductor of any bateau, or any bateau-man, to enter into any other than a verbal agreement for any voyage within the Province or into Ontario, unless such voyage, if into Ontario, is to extend beyond the Bay of Quinte.

7430. If any person, so engaged under a written agreement, refuses or neglects to appear at the place agreed upon for the voyage or service for which he is engaged, after being duly notified for that purpose, or, appearing at such place, refuses or neglects to proceed upon the voyage or service for which he has been engaged, then on complaint and proof of any such refusal or neglect being made by the oath of any person or the agent of any person to whom such offender is engaged, before any justice of the peace, and such agreement, or an authentic copy thereof, being produced, such justice of the peace shall issue his warrant to any constable or other peace officer to apprehend and bring before him or any other justice of the peace for the district, the person so neglecting or refusing as aforesaid.

If such offender do not forthwith, on the order which may be then made by such justice, proceed upon the voyage or service agreed upon, or if the canoe or bateau in which such person was intended to proceed, have departed, then, unless such person was prevented from appearing or from proceeding by sickness or other unavoidable necessity, proved before such justice, either by the certificate of a licensed surgeon or of a curé, or by the oath of at least one credible witness before such justice of the peace, such offender shall, by such justice of the peace, be committed to the common gaol of the district, there to remain for at least fifteen days, unless the person to whom such offender is engaged, or his agent, sooner applies for such offender being discharged, in which case such justice of the peace, or any other justice of the peace for the district, to whom such application may be made, may, by order under his hand and seal, directed to the gaoler, cause such offender to be discharged; but no such discharge shall release any such offender from any claim against him by reason of any advances made to him in money or otherwise, on the faith of the agreement entered into by him.

Desertion of Voyageurs.

7431. 1. If any person as aforesaid engaged under a written or verbal agreement, who, having entered upon the voyage or service for which he is engaged, afterwards absents himself from such voyage or service, without lawful cause, or deserts therefrom then, on complaint thereof being made upon oath, by the person to whom such offender was engaged, or by his agent, or by the person who had charge of such offender, or by any other person who may have knowledge of the fact, and the agreement for the voyage or service, or an authentic copy thereof being produced to such justice of the peace, the said justice of the peace shall issue his warrant directed to any constable or other peace officer of the district, to apprehend and bring the offender before him or any other justice of the peace of the district.

2. Such justice of the peace, with the assistance of some other justice of the peace, or any two justices of the peace, for the district, shall inquire into the cause of such offender so absenting himself or deserting, and, if no lawful cause be proved, to the satisfaction of such justices of the peace, for such absence or desertion, then they shall, by warrant under their hands and seals, commit the offender to the common jail of the district, there to remain for not less than one month, and not more than three months, without bail.

3. No such offender so committed to jail, shall be liable to any action, or suit for the pecuniary damages suffered in consequence of his so absenting himself or deserting from the voyage or service he had engaged to perform, except only for the amount of the advances in money or goods made to such offender on the faith of the agreement entered into by him.

Fines for Desertion, Etc.

7432. Any person who, having been engaged by any written agreement to fish on any conditions, or to assist in any fishery, or in the dressing of fish, refuses to fulfil any such engagement, or abandons his employer's service during his engagement, shall thereby incur a fine not exceeding forty dollars, over and above all costs, or imprisonment for not more than three months.

7433. Whoever engages or endeavours to engage any person then engaged as aforesaid, in any way to fish or to assist in any fishery or in the dressing of fish, shall thereby incur a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, over and above all costs, or imprisonment for not more than one month.

The owner or master of a vessel who receives on board, as a hand or passenger, any person so engaged in fishing or the dressing of fish, (unless in possession of a certificate of discharge from his employer), shall incur a fine of not more than twenty dollars, over and above all costs, or imprisonment for not more than one month.

Fishermen's Liens.

7434. Each person engaged to fish, or assist at any fishery, or in the dressing of fish, either by written agreement or otherwise, shall, for securing his wages or share, have a first privilege preferable to any other creditor, upon the produce of his employer's fishery, and may recover the sum or share due to him before the nearest competent court.

7435. Except only for the recovery of penalties imposed under this section, no one shall, between the first of May and the first of November, seize or attach any boat or vessel, tackle, net, seine or other fishing utensils, or any provisions belonging to any fisherman and necessary for his subsistence or his fishing operations.

7436. Any person taking away, without the owner's consent, any boat belonging to another, shall, in addition to all damages, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, over and above all costs, or imprisonment for not more than one month.

Workmen's Compensation—Accident Insurance.

7436a. It is forbidden for any employer to make any retention of any part of the salary or wages of his workmen or employees for purposes of insurance against accidents or sickness happening by reason of or in the course of their work, even with the consent of such workmen or employees. 1915, c. 71, s. 1.

7436b. Any agreement under which such a retention is made or authorized shall be null and of no effect. 1915, c. 71, s. 1.

7436c. In any case where such retention is made, the workman or employee, in the three months following the end of his contract of work, may recover, before any court of competent jurisdiction, the amount so irregularly withheld from his salary or wages. 1915, c. 71, s. 1.

[Section 3 of chapter 71, 1915, provides that articles 7436a, 7436b and 7436c "shall not apply to railway employees who individually, and in good faith, take out policies of insurance, and give written orders to their employers to pay the premiums out of their wages or salaries."]

STATUTES OF 1914.

Vocational Training—Establishment of Technical Schools.

Chapter 25 with amendment.—1. In the interpretation of this Act, unless it be otherwise provided therein or the context otherwise indicates :—

(a) The words "public body" mean a corporation whose object is one of public interest, such as municipalities, religious bodies and school boards;

(b) The words "private body" mean a corporation whose objects are of a private nature, such as financial, commercial and industrial companies;

(c) The word "director" means the Director of Technical Education in the Province, who may be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council or, in his absence, any competent person designated by the Provincial Secretary. Amended 1920. c. 43, s. 1.

Incorporation.

2. Any public or private body, acting by its council and its board of commissioners, if one there be, or by its board of directors, as the case may be, or any persons, may, by observing the formalities hereinafter set forth, apply to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and obtain from him a charter authorizing them and their successors to establish on such conditions as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may be pleased to fix, a technical school or vocational course for the local needs of a specified district.

The provisions of article 5934 of the Revised Statutes, 1909, shall nevertheless continue to apply to any city, town or village council which avails itself of this Act to become a member of the corporation.

3. Notwithstanding any general or special law to the contrary, public or private bodies are vested with all the necessary powers for carrying out this Act, and are authorized to take from their general funds not otherwise appropriated the moneys required for the instalments of the amounts called for by their subscriptions.

4. (1) The applications for incorporation shall be made by petition to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, be signed by at least five petitioners and filed with the Provincial Secretary.

(2) Such petition shall contain :

(a) The names, surnames, calling and domicile of the petitioners, who must be of the full age of 21 years and, if the petitioners are public or private bodies, the names of such corporations and a certified copy of the documents authorizing them to avail themselves of this Act;

(b) The object for which the incorporation is sought;

(c) The proposed name of the corporation, which shall not be that of any known corporation or company, incorporated or unincorporated, or any name liable to be confounded with any other corporate name, or otherwise, on public grounds, objectionable;

(d) The place within the Province which is to be the corporate seat of the corporation;

(e) The amount subscribed and the amount paid in by each petitioner and the manner in which the instalments have been paid, and are held by or for the corporation;

(f) The names, surnames, calling and domicile of the persons who are to be the first provisional directors of the corporation, the number whereof shall not be less than three nor more than eleven.

(5) The petition shall be accompanied by the memorandum of agreement between the petitioners and a copy of the first by-laws of the corporation.

6. The petition and memorandum of agreement may be drawn up similar to, and shall in their essential features conform to the forms A and B.

7. (1) The memorandum of agreement shall be made out in duplicate and shall state, among other things;

(a) The measures taken to secure the success of the school;

(b) The amount to be subscribed and that to be paid into the general funds of the corporation by each member, and also the qualifications required of persons who may be elected directors;

(c) The manner in which the public or private bodies may vote by delegates;

(d) All other provisions which the petitioners may deem advisable or necessary to enter in their memorandum of agreement ;

(2) The first by-laws shall, among other things:

(a) Specify the manner in which subscriptions shall be paid;

(b) Specify the amount to be subscribed and that to be paid in to entitle the subscriber to one or more votes, without distinction beyond that based on the amount subscribed and paid in;

(c) Direct the manner in which the first meeting shall be called, and how the first election of directors shall be held.

(d) Enact such other provisions as may be deemed advisable or necessary by the petitioners or by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

(8) The petition may ask for the insertion in the letters patent of any provisions which under this act or the general law may be stated in the memorandum of agreement or in the by-laws of the corporation; and the provisions so enacted shall not be repealed or amended by by-law, unless there be a proviso to that effect in the letters patent.

9. The letters patent shall set forth such allegations of the petition and of the memorandum of agreement, mention whereof may be deemed necessary by the Provincial Secretary.

10. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may give the corporation a name different from the one proposed by the petitioners if the latter be objectionable.

11. After the formalities specified in this Act are complied with, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may grant the petitioners by letters patent under the great seal, a charter incorporating them and their successors, for the purposes mentioned in the petition.

The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may refuse to grant letters patent under this Act for any reason he may think proper in the public interest:

12. Notice of the granting of the letters patent shall be forthwith given by the Provincial Secretary, by two insertions in the "Quebec Official Gazette," in the form C; and thereupon from the date of the letters patent, the persons therein named, and such persons as have become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement or who thereafter become members of the corporation, and their successors, shall be a corporation, under the name mentioned in the letters patent.

13. The corporation may, at any time, by resolution adopted by the members representing at least two-thirds in value of the subscriptions, authorize the directors to apply for supplementary letters patent, extending or amending the powers, the granting whereof is authorized by this Act, or changing the name of the corporation.

14. (1) Unless another delay be specified in the letters patent or in an act of the Legislature, the charter of the corporation shall ipso facto become null and void, if it have not availed itself of the charter during three consecutive years.

(2) The corporation shall not commence its operations until an amount of money has been subscribed and paid in which the Provincial Secretary shall deem sufficient to secure the success of the proposed school.

15. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, if he deem it expedient, fix and amend the tariff of dues payable on the application for letters patent and supplementary letters patent, and prescribe the method of registration, to be observed with respect to such letters, and every thing that may be necessary within the meaning of this Act.

16. No letters patent or supplementary letters patent shall be granted under this Act until all the dues that may be exigible thereon have been duly paid.

Powers of the Corporation.

17. The corporation shall have all the power with which corporations created by the legislative authority of this Province are generally vested.

It shall, in particular, have all powers which may be necessary to enable it to attain the end for which it was incorporated.

The liabilities of the members of the corporation shall be limited to the interest which each one may have therein. They shall be exempt from all personal recourse for the performance of the obligations which the corporation has contracted within the limits of its powers and with the necessary formalities.

18. The corporation shall be governed by a board of directors, elected annually consisting of persons who may be elected directors in accordance with the by-laws of the corporation, and of the memorandum of agreement, if any.

19. Public or private bodies may be represented, on such conditions as they may determine, at the meetings of the members of the corporation, by one or more delegates, as the case may be, whose appointment they may revoke at will.

Such delegate or delegates shall exercise the right or rights of voting to which the amount subscribed or paid by each public or private body may entitle such body under the by-laws or memorandum of agreement.

20. The provisional board of directors appointed by letters patent shall remain in office until the expiration of the six months following the issue of the letters patent. The Provincial Secretary may, however, extend such delay for a period not exceeding three additional months; but in such case he must fix the date at which the meeting of the members for the election of directors shall be called.

21. Every public or private body, or every person who subscribes a sum of at least one thousand dollars to the general funds of the corporation, or any person whom such subscriber may designate in his place, shall be a life member of the corporation.

22. Every public or private body, or every person who subscribes the yearly sum fixed by the memorandum of agreement or by-laws, to the general funds of the corporation, shall be a member of the corporation; but such member may, by the vote of the directors, be declared to have forfeited his membership if he neglects to pay his contribution within the period of one year.

23. The by-laws of the corporation shall specify the number of directors to be elected by life members, and the number to be elected by the ordinary members.

24. Every public or private body, or every individual who establishes or founds, to the satisfaction of the directors, a vocational course or a chair, or gives the corporation furniture to an amount equivalent, in the opinion of the directors, to the contribution required for becoming a life member, or ordinary member, may be declared by the directors, in the case of a private individual, or may designate a person who shall be declared by the directors, in the case of a public or private body or of an individual, a life member or an ordinary member, as the case may be.

Every person who, by deed or gift or by will, or any public or private body which by deed of gift, makes a gift equivalent, in the opinion of the directors, to the amount of the contribution required for becoming a life member or an ordinary member, shall have the right to designate a person who may be declared by the corporation to be a life member or an ordinary member, as the case may be.

25. (1) The corporation shall each year at a general meeting choose from among the elected members of the board of directors a president, a vice-president and a secretary-treasurer. These officers shall remain in office at least one year unless it be otherwise specified by the by-laws. The president, in addition to his vote as director, shall have a casting vote on all questions when the votes are equally divided.

In the event of a vacancy, the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer shall be replaced, but their successors shall be elected only for the unexpired terms of the officers whom they respectively replace.

(2) The signatures of the president or vice-president and secretary-treasurer shall in every case be sufficient to legally bind the corporation.

26. The principal of the school shall be appointed by the Provincial Secretary on the recommendation of the corporation. He shall be ex-officio a member of the corporation, and be specially charged, under the control of the administrative committee, and of the corporation, with the direction of the studies, the maintenance of order and discipline and, generally, with everything concerning the internal management of the school.

27. The corporation shall have the right to acquire movable and immovable property, by donation, legacy and purchase, and to perform all acts of ownership in connection therewith.

28. The corporation may also sue and be sued, borrow, sign, endorse, accept and negotiate promissory notes, bills of exchange and other commercial instruments, and become a party thereto under any title whatsoever, and shall, moreover, possess all the rights and powers belonging generally to corporations in so far as the present act does not derogate therefrom.

29. All property to be acquired and all revenues arising therefrom, shall be the exclusive property of the corporation, and shall be used solely for the purposes of the said corporation.

30. The net annual revenue of the immovable property belonging to the corporation held for purposes of revenue, shall not exceed fifteen thousand dollars.

31. The corporation shall have power to make by-laws:

(1) To define the duties and functions of the professors and employees, and to fix their salaries;

(2) For the administration of the school, the conduct of the students, and the school fees payable by them;

(3) To establish a course of study in conformity with the spirit of this Act;

(4) To determine the number of years of study;

(5) To determine the conditions of admission and examination;

(6) For the proper management of the affairs of the corporation generally, and for the proper working of the school. Such by-laws shall not, however, go into operation until sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

32. Professors of theoretical and practical instruction shall be appointed or replaced by the board of directors, and be chosen, in preference, from the heads of industrial enterprises, foremen, employees and mechanics of the district.

33. The quorum for meetings of the corporations, and of the board of directors, shall be fixed by the by-laws.

34. The carrying out of the by-laws respecting the school adopted by the corporation, shall be entrusted to an administrative committee consisting of the principal and of two members appointed by the corporation.

The administrative committee shall render an account of its administration to the corporation.

35. A council of improvement, presided over by the Director, assisted by the principal, two professors and by delegates, the number whereof shall be fixed by the corporation and chosen from amongst the members of the corporation and the employers and mechanics of the district, shall consider the measures to be taken in the interest of technical studies and professional education, and submit propositions to the administrative committee. It shall meet at least twice a year. Amended 1920, c. 43, s. 2.

36. The schools under the control of the corporation may be affiliated with existing technical, commercial or agricultural schools.

A school may also be annexed to any other school or college when an agreement has been arrived at between the corporations or individuals interested to utilize available premises or suitable plant.

37. The technical and practical instruction which shall be given in a technical school or vocational course shall be of an exclusively vocational nature.

The course of study shall be drawn up especially with a view to local needs, and be submitted on the Director's report for approval to the Provincial Secretary. Amended, 1920, c. 43, s. 3.

38. The corporation shall deliver diplomas to the students according to the special course followed by each.

Mention shall be made in the diploma that the student has passed his examinations during the course in a satisfactory manner, or with distinction, or with great distinction, or with the greatest distinction, according to the disciplinary rules of the school.

Such diploma shall be signed by the principal of the school and be countersigned by the Director. Amended, 1920, c. 43, s. 4.

39. The by-laws of the corporation shall provide for the appointment of a jury to examine students who wish to obtain a diploma at the conclusion of their studies.

The principal shall be ex-officio president of such jury, the members whereof shall, as far as possible, be chosen from among the expert mechanics and the employers of the district.

The Director shall ex-officio be a member of the jury. Amended, 1920, c. 43, s. 5.

40. The corporation shall, whenever thereunto required by the Provincial Secretary, transmit to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council the names of its officers and members, copy of its by-laws and courses of study, and a statement of its immovable property, and of the property it holds for revenue purposes.

41. Every year, before the 1st of September, the corporation shall send to the Provincial Secretary and to the Director a detailed report of the working of its courses, the efficiency of the school and the results obtained. Amended, 1920, c. 43, s. 6.

Appointment of an Inspector General of Technical Education.

42. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a Director of Technical Education in the Province, with a salary of not more than five thousand dollars per annum. 1920, c. 43 s. 7 a.

The salary of this officer and his travelling expenses shall be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

The Director of Technical Education shall perform the duties assigned him from time to time by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. Amended 1920, c. 43, s. 7 b.

Name and coming into force of Act.

43. This Act may be cited under the title of "The Quebec Technical Schools Act, 1914," and shall come into force on the day of its sanction.
(Schedules omitted.)

Housing Accommodation for Workmen.

[Chapter 47, provides for assistance to companies incorporated for the purpose of erecting moderately-priced houses.]

STATUTES OF 1918.

Weekly Rest Day for Hotel Employees.

Chapter 53.—1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may order that every person who keeps, directs, runs or manages a hotel, restaurant or club as proprietor, tenant or occupant, shall be bound to give his employees one day of rest each week.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may also make regulations for carrying out this Act and determine to what establishments it shall apply, what persons may benefit by it and in what manner it shall apply.*

3. Notice shall be given in the "Quebec Official Gazette" of the coming into force of the above provisions, and, from and after the date of the said notice, all persons interested must comply with the same.

4. Any person infringing the provisions of this Act or the regulations which the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may enact, shall be liable to a fine of not more than fifty dollars and costs, and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for not more than one month.

5. Every prosecution under this Act or the regulations made thereunder, shall be taken by one of the inspectors before a judge of the sessions or a police magistrate, in the city of Montreal or Quebec, or before the district magistrate or any justice of the peace of the place where the offence was committed.

Such prosecution may also be taken by any other person, provided the prosecutor deposits beforehand with the person issuing the summons, the sum of twenty dollars as security for the costs of the prosecution.

6. The procedure to be followed shall be that prescribed by Part XV of the Criminal Code respecting summary convictions.

7. Any inspector of industrial establishments is authorized to enter, at any hour, any of the buildings referred to in this Act, for the purpose of ascertaining how it is observed.

8. This Act shall come into force on the day of its sanction.

STATUTES OF 1919.

Housing.

[Chapter 10 enables the Province of Quebec, to take advantage of the Federal Government's Housing Loan.]

Minimum Wage.

Chapter 11.—1. This Act shall be known as "The Women's Minimum Wage Act."

2. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint under the direction of the Minister of Public Works and Labour, a Commission consisting of three members, one of whom shall be the Deputy Minister of Labour or any other person designated by the Minister and who shall be the chairman thereof, and the two others shall be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council during good pleasure. One of such members may be a woman. Two members of the Commission shall be a quorum.

*Regulations have been issued under this section.

3. No member of the Commission shall receive any remuneration for his services, but the Commission may with the Minister's approval, employ a secretary and incur such other expenses as may be necessary, the amount whereof shall be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the Province.

4. The jurisdiction of the Commission shall extend to all the industrial establishments of the Province as defined in articles 3829 and 3830 of the Revised Statutes, 1909. The Commission is empowered, either itself through one of its members or by any other person authorized by it, to investigate the conditions of the work done by women in industrial establishments and of the wages paid them.

It may also examine the employers' books and pay-lists and exact from them all information it may judge necessary in connection with the work done by the women employed by them.

5. The Commission may hold its sittings at such places and times as it may fix, and summon to appear before it such persons as it deems to be in a position to give information either verbally or by producing books or documents.

The summons shall be given in writing signed by the Commissioners or one of them, or by the secretary if the Commission so order, summoning the person whose presence is required to appear before the Commission at the place and time specified, and if need be, to produce before it all books, documents, papers and writings it deems of a nature to give it information. Such summons shall be served in the usual manner either upon the witness personally or by leaving a copy at his usual residence.

Every person who has been duly summoned and who refuses to appear to reply to any question, or to produce any document, asked for, shall be liable to the penalties enacted by section 12 of this Act.

6. If the Commission is of opinion that the wages or salaries paid in an industrial establishment coming within the purview of this Act, are insufficient, it may convene in a conference a number of persons who shall be selected one-half by the employers, and one-half by the employees, and add a number of disinterested persons to it. One of the members of the Commission shall form part of such conference and preside at the same.

After hearing the employers and employees, such conference shall, by the vote of the majority of the members constituting it, determine the minimum wage to be paid to the women employed in the special industry in question.

The Commission may enact such rules as it may deem necessary regarding the selection of the members of the conference, and may determine the procedure to be followed thereat.

7. The decision of the conference shall be submitted to the Commission, which may approve, reject or amend the same. It may order the holding of a new conference.

The decision of the Commission fixing a minimum wage shall be binding upon employers and employees. It shall come into force sixty days after its publication in the Quebec Official Gazette, but the Commission may extend such delay if circumstances so require.

The decision shall be sent by registered letter to the employer, who shall post up a copy of it in a place in his establishment where the women affected thereby are working.

8. The Commission may on the application of the employer or employees, revise its decision at any time by observing the same formalities.

9. The Commission may issue special permits in favour of apprentices or of women whose physical condition does not allow of their doing the work of an ordinary work-woman, in order that they may be employed at lower wages than those fixed by any order.

10. The Commission may fix a special scale of wages for girls under eighteen years of age.

11. When an employer pays an employee wages lower than those fixed by the Commission such employee may recover the difference by a suit before any court of competent jurisdiction, either during the course of her engagement or after the same has ended.

12. Every employer who employs a woman at wages lower than those fixed under the provisions of this Act, after the decision of the Commission has come into force, shall incur a penalty of not more than fifty dollars, recoverable on summary conviction before any court of competent jurisdiction.

This Act shall come into force on the day of its sanction.

Early Closing of Shops.

Chapter 85.—1. Article 403 of the Quebec Municipal Code is amended by adding thereto, at the end thereof, the following paragraph :—

[Every local corporation may make, amend or repeal by-laws.]

"(5). To order, that throughout the whole or part of the year, every store, shop, stall or other place of one or the other class, where any local business is carried on shall be closed and remain closed, on each day or any day of the week, after the times and hours fixed and determined therefore by the by-laws; but the times and hours so fixed and determined shall never be later than seven o'clock in the morning nor earlier than seven o'clock in the evening."

ONTARIO.

REVISED STATUTES OF 1914.

Protection of Employees as Voters—Time to Vote.

Chapter 8, with amendment.—112. A voter entitled to vote within a city or town shall on the day of polling be entitled to absent himself for the purpose of voting from any service or employment in which he is then engaged or employed, from the hour of noon until the hour or two of the clock next thereafter or from the hour of four o'clock in the afternoon until the hour of six o'clock next thereafter, and a voter shall not, because of his so absenting himself, be liable to any penalty, or suffer or incur any reduction from the wages or compensation to which but for his absence he would have been entitled, but this section shall not apply where a voter is by his employer permitted or allowed at any other period during the hours of polling, reasonable and sufficient time and opportunity to vote. Amended 1920, c. 2, s. 16. (4).

173. (1) Every person who, directly or indirectly, himself, or by any other person on his behalf, uses or threatens to use force, violence, or restraint, or inflicts or threatens to inflict injury, damage, harm or loss, or in any manner practices intimidation upon or against a voter in order to induce or compel him to vote, or refrain from voting, or on account of his having voted or refrained from voting, or who, by abduction, duress, or false or fraudulent pretence, device or contrivance, impedes, prevents, or otherwise interferes with the free exercise of the franchise of a voter or thereby compels, induces or prevails upon a voter to vote or refrain from voting shall be guilty of a corrupt practice and shall incur a penalty of $200, and shall also upon conviction be imprisoned for one year.

(2) It shall be a false pretence within the meaning of this section to represent to a voter, directly or indirectly, that the ballot to be used, or the mode of voting at an election, is not secret.

Inspection and Regulation of Mines.

Chapter 32 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as The Mining Act of Ontario.

2. In this Act,

(a) "Agent" where it occurs in Parts IX. and X. shall mean any person having on behalf of the owner, the care or direction of a mine, or of any part thereof.

(b) "Commissioner" shall mean the Mining Commissioner.

(d) "Department" shall mean the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines.

(e) "Deputy Minister" shall mean the Deputy Minister of Mines.

(g) "Inspector" shall include an inspector appointed under this Act, for a Mining Division or any part thereof, or for Ontario, and any officer having the powers of an inspector.

(h) "Licensee" shall mean a person, mining partnership or company holding a miner's license issued under this Act or any renewal thereof.

(i) "Machinery" shall include steam and other engines, boilers, furnaces, stamps and other crushing apparatus, winding and pumping gear, chains, trucks, tramways, tackle blocks, ropes and tools, and all appliances used in or about or in connection with a mine.

(j) The noun "mine" shall include any opening or excavation in, or working of, the ground for the purpose of winning, opening up or proving any mineral or mineral-bearing substance, and any ore body, mineral deposit, stratum, soil, rock, bed of earth, clay gravel, or cement, or place where mining is or may be carried on, and all ways, works, machinery, plant, buildings, and premises below or above ground, belonging to, or used in connection with, the mine, and also for the purposes of Parts IX and X, any excavation or opening in the ground made for the purpose of searching for mineral, and any roast yard, smelting furnace, mill, work or place used for or in connection with crushing, reducing, smelting, refining or treating ore, mineral or mineral bearing substance.

(k) The verb "mine" and the word "mining" shall include any mode or method of working whereby the soil or earth or any rock, stone or quartz may be disturbed, removed, washed, sifted, roasted, smelted, refined, crushed or dealt with for the purpose of obtaining any mineral therefrom, whether the same may have been previously disturbed or not, and also for the purposes of Parts IX and X of this Act all operations and workings mentioned in paragraph (j) of this section.

(l) "Mineral" shall include coal, gas, oil and salt.

(o) "Minister" shall mean the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines.

(p) "Owner" when used in Parts IX and X of this Act shall include every person, mining partnership, and company being the immediate proprietor or lessee or occupier of a mine, or of any part thereof, or of any land located, patented or leased as mining lands but shall not include a person, or a mining partnership or company receiving merely a royalty, rent or fine from a mine or mining lands, or being merely the proprietor of a mine or mining lands subject to a lease, grant or other authority for the working thereof, or the owner of the surface rights and not of the ore or minerals.

(s) "Prescribed" shall mean prescribed by this Act or by Order in Council or by rule or regulation made under the authority of this Act.

(u) "Regulation" shall mean a regulation made by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council under the authority of this Act.

(v) "Shaft" shall include a pit.

Bureau of Mines.

4. The Bureau of Mines established in connection with the Department, to aid in promoting the mining interests of Ontario, shall be continued, and the Deputy Minister shall have charge thereof under the direction of the Minister.

5. The Deputy Minister shall have all the powers, rights and authority of an inspector, and such other powers, rights and authority for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act as may be assigned to him by regulation.

Sections 156a-171 were amended and consolidated by Section 13 of Chapter 12 of the Acts of 1919].

PART IX.—OPERATION OF MINES.

REGULATIONS.

156a. In this Part "qualified" or "authorized" means properly qualified or authorized to perform specified duties under conditions existing.

Responsibility for the authorization and decision as to the qualifications of the employees shall rest with the employer or his agent.

157. No male person under the age of sixteen years shall be employed in or about any mine or under the age of eighteen years below ground in any mine.

158. Except as a stenographer, book-keeper or in some similar capacity, no girl or woman shall be employed at mining work or allowed to be for the purpose of employment at mining work in or about any mine.

159. (1). No workman shall remain or be allowed to remain underground in any mine for more than eight hours in any consecutive twenty-four hours, which eight hours shall be reckoned from the time he arrives at his place of work in the mine until the time he leaves such place provided, however, that

(a) a Saturday shift may work longer hours for the purpose of avoiding work on Sunday or changing shift at the end of the week or giving any of the men a part holiday;

(b) the said limit of time shall not apply to a shift boss, pump man, cage-tender, hoistman, or any person engaged solely in surveying or measuring, nor shall it apply in cases of emergency where life or property is in imminent danger, or in any case of repair work or to any mine where the number of men working in a shift does not exceed six.

(2) In this section—

"Workman" means any person employed underground in a mine who is not the owner or agent or an official of the mine;

"Shift" means any body of workmen whose hours for beginning and terminating work in the mine are the same or approximately the same.

(3) Where any question or dispute arises as to the meaning or application of clause (b) of subsection (1), or as to the meaning of "workman", "shift", or "underground", the certificate of the inspector shall be conclusive.

(4) For greater certainty it is hereby declared that sections 174, 175, 179, 180 and 181 of this Act shall apply to contraventions of this section; provided, however, that a workman shall not be guilty of an offence for failure to return to the surface within the time limited by this section if he proves that without fault on his part he was prevented from returning owing to means not being available for the purpose.

(5) In the event of great emergency or grave economic disturbance, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may suspend the operation of this section to such an extent and for such period as he deems fit; or as regards any iron mine, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may upon the recommendation of the Minister, in like manner suspend the operation of this section in so far as such mine is concerned.

(6) This section shall come into effect on the first day of January, 1914, in all those parts of the Province without county organization, and in the remaining parts of the Province at such time as may be named by the Lieutenant-Governor by his proclamation.

160. (1) No person under the age of twenty years and no person who has not had at least one month's experience on a reversing hoist shall be allowed to have charge of any hoisting engine by means of which persons are hoisted, lowered or handled in a shaft, or winze at any mine.

(2) No person under the age of eighteen years shall be allowed to have charge of any hoisting engine or hoisting apparatus of any kind at a mine.

(3) No person whose sight or hearing is deficient or who is subject to any other infirmity, mental or bodily, likely to interfere with the efficient discharge of his duties, shall have charge of any hoist.

161. Where a contravention of any of the next preceding four sections takes place, the owner or agent of the mine, or both of them, may be proceeded against, jointly or separately, and may be convicted of such offence, but neither the owner or the agent shall be so convicted if he proves that the offence was committed without his knowledge or consent, and that he had caused notices of the said sections to be posted up, and to be kept posted up, at some conspicuous place, at or near the entrance to the mining work.

162. (1) Where a mine has been abandoned or the work therein has been discontinued, the owner or lessee thereof, or any other person interested in the mineral of the mine, shall cause the top of the shaft and all entrances from the surface, as well as all other pits and openings dangerous by reason of their depth, to be and to be kept securely fenced to the satisfaction of the inspector.

(2) Every such person who, after notice in writing from the inspector, fails to comply with his directions as to such fencing within the time named in the notice shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

(3) Where the inspector finds that any such fencing is required in order to avoid danger to health or property, he may cause the work to be done and may pay the costs incurred out of any moneys provided for the purposes of this Act, and the amount of such costs, with interest thereon, shall be a lien and charge upon the mine or mining work, and no further transfer or other dealings with the mine or mining work shall take place until such amount is paid.

(4) The amount of such costs with interest thereon shall be due from the owner or lessee to the Crown and recoverable at the suit of the inspector in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Inquest to be held in Case of Fatality.

163. (1) The coroner who resides nearest to a mine wherein or in connection wherewith any fatal accident has occurred, shall forthwith conduct an inquest, but if he is in any way in the employment of the owner or lessee of the mine he shall be ineligible to act as coroner, and any other coroner shall, upon application by any person interested, forthwith issue his warrant and conduct such inquest, and this section shall be his authority for so doing, whether his commission extends to such territory or not.

(2) The inspector and any person authorized to act on his behalf shall be entitled to be present and to examine or cross-examine any witness at every inquest held concerning a death caused by an accident at a mine, and if the inspector or some one on his behalf is not present, the coroner shall, before proceeding with the evidence, adjourn the inquest and give the Deputy Minister not less than four days' notice of the time and place at which the evidence is to be taken.

Rules for Protection of Miners.

164. The following rules shall be observed and carried out at every mine except in so far as the inspector of mines may deem the same not reasonably applicable.

(1) Mining operations on claims which are not patented, and mines where less than six men are employed shall be exempted from rules 3, 13, 63, 66, 67, 68.

Sanitation.

(2) There shall be a sufficient amount of ventilation so that the shafts, adits, tunnels, winzes, raises, sumps, levels, stopes, cross-cuts, underground stables and other working places of the mine and the travelling roads to and from such working places shall be in a fit state for working and passing therein, and in all portions of a mine where the natural ventilating current is insufficient, suitable mechanical appliances shall be provided and operated.

(3) The manager of a mine shall provide or cause to be provided on the surface and in the underground workings sufficient and suitable sanitary conveniences in accordance with the following rules:—

(a) Where the number of persons employed on any shift does not exceed one hundred there shall be one sanitary convenience for every twenty-five persons or proportion thereof;

(b) Where the number of persons so employed exceeds one hundred there shall be one additional sanitary convenience for every fifty persons or proportion thereof over the first hundred;

(c) These sanitary conveniences must be kept in a cleanly manner; must be adequately supplied with chloride of lime, sawdust, fine ash or other suitable absorbent; must be removed and cleaned regularly; must be conveniently placed with reference to the number of men employed on the different levels; and must be placed in a well ventilated part of the mine;

(d) Any person or persons depositing faeces in any place underground other than in the sanitary conveniences provided, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Care and Use of Explosives.

(4) No magazine for explosives shall be maintained on any mining property except with the written permission of the inspector of mines. The site of this magazine and the style of structure shall be subject to the approval of the inspector. Where possible, the site of the magazine must be distant at least four hundred feet from the mine and works or any public highway. The magazine shall be constructed of materials and in a manner to insure safety against explosion from any cause, and shall be either so situated as to interpose a hill or rise of ground higher than the magazine between it and the mine and works, or an artificial mound of earth as high as the magazine and situate not more than thirty feet from it shall be so interposed.

(5) Cases containing explosives shall not be opened in the magazine, and only implements of wood, brass or copper shall be used in opening the cases.

(6) After the first ten feet of advance has been made in any shaft or winze, all blasting shall be done by means of an electric current.

(7) No explosives in excess of a supply for twenty-four hours shall be stored underground in a working mine, and no such storage place or underground place for thawing explosives shall be established without the approval in writing of the inspector of mines, who shall prescribe such conditions in connection therewith as he may deem necessary.

(8) Fuses, blasting-caps and electric detonators shall be kept in a place of safety and shall not, nor shall any article containing iron or steel, except fixtures, be kept or stored in the same magazine or thawing house with explosives or nearer than 50 feet therefrom.

(9) No naked light shall be taken into any magazine or place where explosives are kept. No person shall smoke in a magazine or place where explosives are kept or while handling explosives.

(10) The manager, captain, or other officer in charge of a mine shall make a thorough daily inspection of the condition of the explosives in or about the same, and shall make a immediate investigation when an act of careless placing or handling of explosives is discovered by or reported to him;

(a) Any employee who commits a careless act with an explosive or where explosives are stored, or who, having discovered it, omits or neglects to report immediately such act to an officer in charge of the mine, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and the officer in charge of the mine shall immediately report such offence to the inspector or to the crown attorney of the county or district in which the mine is situate.

(11) No building for thawing explosives above ground shall be maintained in connection with any mine except with the written permission of the inspector of mines. The site of this building and the style of structure and equipment shall be subject to the approval of the inspector. The building shall be under the direction of the manager or some person authorized by him. The quantity of explosives brought into any thawing house at any one time shall not exceed the requirements of the mine for a period of twenty-four hours, plus the amount that it may be necessary to have thawing to maintain that supply.

(12) In no case shall powder be thawed near an open fire or steam boiler or by direct contact with steam or hot water, nor shall any electrical device for generating heat be allowed in the same compartment with explosives.

(13) A reliable recording thermometer shall be kept in the room in which explosives are thawed and the record thereof kept, but where the amount of explosives in such thawing room does not exceed 200 pounds at any one time the inspector of mines may give permission, in writing, to use a maximum and minimum registering thermometer on condition that a daily record of high and low temperature be made and kept on file.

(14) In charging holes for blasting, no iron or steel tool or rod shall be used, and no iron or steel shall be used in any hole containing explosives, and no drilling shall be done in any hole that has been charged or blasted.

(15) When a workman fires a round of holes he shall, where possible, count the number of shots exploding. If there is any report missing, he shall report the same to the mine captain or shift boss. If a missed hole has not been fired at the end of a shift, that fact, together with the location of the hole, shall be reported by the mine captain or shift boss to the mine captain or shift boss in charge of the next relay of workmen before work is commenced by them.

(16) In no case shall a person return to the place where blasting has been done within four minutes of the time of lighting the fuse. Except in chute-blasting, no fuse shorter than three feet shall be used in any blasting operation. In case of a supposedly missed hole, where the fuse did not exceed four feet in length, no person shall return within five minutes of lighting the same; where the fuse is between four and eight feet in length, no person shall return within fifteen minutes; where the fuse is longer than eight feet, no person shall return within the number of minutes which are equal to twice the number of feet in the fuse.

(17) In no case shall the workman light the fuse without having a second light placed conveniently close.

(18) Every workman shall, before blasting, give or cause to be given due warning in every direction by shouting "Fire," and shall satisfy himself that all persons have left the working place except those required to assist him in blasting.

(19) Every workman shall, before blasting, cause all entrances to the place or places where such blasting is to be done or where the safety of persons may be endangered by such blasting, to be effectively guarded, so as to prevent inadvertent access to such place or places while such charges are being blasted.

(20) A workman shall not, where blasting takes place by electricity, enter or allow other persons to enter the place or places where the charges have been fired until he has disconnected the cables from the blasting battery, or has pulled out and locked the switches of the blasting circuit.

(21) Immediately before any person conveys explosives in a shaft by means of machinery he shall give or cause to be given notice to the hoistman, deckman and cage tender.

(22) The hoistman shall gently lower or raise the cage or other conveyance containing explosives. No person shall place in or take out of the shaft conveyance any explosives except under the immediate supervision of the person authorized by the manager, mine captain or shift boss.

(23) No person authorized to travel with explosives on any shaft conveyance and to distribute same shall leave any explosive at a station or stopping place, unless in a place provided for storage of explosives, but he shall personally deliver the same to another authorized person.

(24) No person shall take away from a mine any explosive without the written permission of the manager or of such person as may be authorized by the manager to give such permission.

(25) A charge which has missed fire shall not be withdrawn, but shall be blasted, and no drilling shall be done within a distance of ten feet of a missed hole or a cut-off hole containing explosive until it has been blasted.

(26) All drill holes, whether sunk by hand or machine drills, shall be of sufficient size to admit of the free insertion to the bottom of the hole of a stick or cartridge of powder, dynamite or other explosive, without ramming, pounding or pressure. No explosive shall be removed from its original paper container.

(27) No explosive shall be used to blast or break up ore, salamander or other material where by reason of its heated condition there is any danger or risk or premature explosion of the charge.

(28) No explosive shall be used at any mine, unless there is plainly printed or marked on every original package containing such explosive the name and place of business of the manufacturer, and the strength, and the date of its manufacture. Every case of supposed defective fuse, detonator or powder shall be reported to the inspector of mines, with the name of the manufacturer and the serial number of the package from which such fuse, detonator or powder was taken.

(29) Where parties working contiguous or adjacent claims or mines, disagree as to the time of setting off blasts, either party may appeal to the inspector, who shall decide upon the time at which blasting operations thereon may be performed, and the decision of the inspector shall be final and conclusive and shall be observed by them in future blasting operations.

Protection in Working Places, Shafts, Winzes, Raises, etc.

(30) Where a drift extends from a shaft in any direction on a level, a safe passage way and standing room for workmen shall be made on one or both sides of the shaft to afford protection against falling material.

(31) During shaft-sinking operations no work in any other place in the shaft shall be done, nor shall any material or tools be hoisted or lowered from or to any other place in the shaft while men are at work in the bottom of the shaft unless the men so at work be protected from the danger of falling material by a securely constructed covering extending over the whole area of the shaft, sufficient closable openings being left in the covering for the passage of men and the bucket or other conveyance used in the sinking operations, or by a substantial rock pentice.

(32) The top of every shaft shall be securely fenced or protected by a gate or guard rail, and every pit or opening dangerous by reason of its depth shall be securely fenced or otherwise protected.

(33) At all shaft and winze openings on every level, a gate or guard rail, not less than three feet or more than four feet above the floor, shall be provided and kept in place except when the cage, skip or bucket is being loaded or unloaded at such level.

(34) Where the enclosing rocks are not safe, every adit, tunnel, stope or other working in which work is being carried on, or persons passing, shall be securely cased, lined or timbered, or otherwise made secure.

(35) Every shaft shall be properly timbered, and such timbering shall be maintained within a reasonable distance of the bottom of the shaft.

(36) All vertical raises which are to be carried more than fifty feet from the floor of the level shall be divided into at least two compartments, one of which shall be maintained as a ladderway and equipped with suitable ladders. The timbering shall be maintained within a reasonable distance of the back of the raise.

(37) The top of every mill hole in a stope shall, as far as practicable, be kept covered.

(38) Underground workings, especially shafts, sumps and winzes, which have been in disuse for some time shall be examined before being again used, in order to ascertain whether foul air or other dangerous gases have accumulated there, and only such workmen as may be necessary to make such examination shall be allowed to proceed to such places until such places are in a fit state to work or travel in.

(39) Every working mine shall be provided with suitable and efficient machinery and appliances for keeping the mine free from water, the accumulation or flowing of which might injuriously affect any other mine.

(40) Where there is or may be an accumulation of water any working approaching the same shall have bore holes kept in advance, and such additional precautionary measures shall be taken as may be deemed necessary to obviate the danger of a sudden breaking through of the water.

(41) Every dam or bulkhead shall be designed to resist at least five times the estimated maximum pressure at the point of erection, and its location shall be clearly shown on the mine plan filed with the Bureau of Mines annually.

Ladderways.

(42) The ladder or passage-way on a shaft or winze shall be separated by a closely boarded partition from the compartment or division of the shaft or winze on which the material is hoisted.

(43) A suitable footway or ladderway shall be provided in every shaft.

(44) In a shaft inclined at over seventy degrees from the horizontal, a substantial platform shall be built at intervals not exceeding twenty feet in the ladderway, and the same shall be closely covered except for an opening large enough to permit the passage of a man's body, and the ladders shall be so placed as to cover this opening in the platform.

(45) In a shaft inclined at less than seventy degrees or more than fifty degrees from the horizontal, the ladders may be continuous, but platforms shall be built at intervals not exceeding twenty feet, and so covered that only an opening large enough for the passage of a man's body is provided. Stairways may be used in a shaft inclined at less than fifty degrees from the horizontal.

(46) No ladder, except an auxiliary ladder used in sinking operations, may be fixed in vertical position.

(47) Every ladder shall project at least three feet above its platform, except where strong hand rails are provided.

(48) Every ladder used shall be of strong construction; shall be securely fastened to the timbering or wall of shaft, winze, raise, or stope, and shall be maintained in good repair.

(a) The distance between centres of rungs of ladders shall not be greater than twelve inches or less than ten inches, and the spacing of rungs shall not vary more than one-half inch in any particular ladderway;

(b) In order to give a proper foothold, the rungs shall in no case be closer than four inches from the wall of a shaft, winze or raise, or any timber, underneath the ladder.

(49) Wire ropes or strands of wire rope shall not be used or allowed to be used for climbing purposes in any mine if they are frayed or have projecting broken wires.

Raising or Lowering Persons.

(50) No person shall be lowered or hoisted, or allow himself to be lowered or hoisted, in a shaft, winze or other underground opening of a mine:—

(a) In a bucket or skip, except that men employed in shaft sinking shall be allowed to ascend or descend to and from the nearest level, or other place of safety by means of the bucket or skip used for hoisting material, but there shall always be a suitable ladder in the shaft to provide an auxiliary means of escape;

(b) In a cage or skip, except as provided in clause (a), which is not provided with hood, dogs and other safety appliances approved by the inspector;

(c) In a cage, skip or bucket that is loaded with tools, powder, or other material, except for the purpose of handling the same.

(51) Whenever a mine shaft exceeds four hundred feet in vertical depth, a safety cage shall be provided, kept and used for lowering and raising men in the shaft, unless otherwise permitted in writing by the inspector.

(52) After any stoppage of hoisting for repairs, and after stoppage for any other purpose, which shall exceed two hours' duration, no person shall be raised or lowered until the cage or skip has made one complete trip up and down the working portion of the shaft.

(53) All cages or skips used for lowering or raising men shall be constructed as follows:—

(a) The hood shall be made of steel plate not less than three-sixteenths of an inch in thickness;

(b) The cage shall be provided with sheet iron or steel side casing not less than one-eighth of an inch in thickness, or with a netting composed of wire not less than one-eighth of an inch in diameter, and with doors made of suitable material;

(c) The doors shall extend at least five feet above the bottom of the cage, and shall be closed when lowering or hoisting men;

(d) The cage shall have overhead bars so arranged as to give every man an easy and secure handhold;

(e) The safety appliances shall be of sufficient strength to hold the cage or skip with its maximum load at any point in the shaft, as provided in subsection 61 (b) of this section; but the inspector of mines may give permission, in writing, for hoisting, without safety appliances in an inclined shaft, if he is satisfied that the equipment is such that a maximum of safety is provided;

(f) The cage shall not have chairs attached thereto which are operated by a lever through or from the floor of the cage.

Shaft Equipment, Etc.

(54) All crossheads shall be provided with a safety appliance so constructed that the crossheads cannot stick in the shaft without also stopping the bucket. Such safety appliance shall be subject to the approval of the inspector of mines.

(55) Where steel, timber or other material, being raised or lowered in a shaft or winze, projects above the top of the bucket, cage or skip, it shall be securely fastened to the top of the conveyance or to the hoisting rope.

(56) No bucket shall be allowed to leave the top or bottom of any shaft or winze until the workman in charge thereof has steadied it or caused it to be steadied.

(57) In a shaft or winze, in the course of sinking, the bucket or skip shall not be filled with loose rock or ground above the level of the brim.

(58) In a shaft or winze, in the course of sinking, the bucket or skip shall not be lowered directly to the bottom of the shaft if there are men working there, but shall be held at least fifteen feet above the bottom, and shall remain there until the signal to lower same has been given by the men on the bottom.

(59) In handling material other than in a bucket, cage or skip, care shall be taken that such material is securely and safely fastened to the hoisting rope. A chain sling fastened by means of a grab hook shall not be used. A timber hitch around a stick of timber shall not be used unless accompanied by an additional half hitch, or other suitable means, to prevent timber slipping.

Hoisting.

(60) The owner or manager of a mine, where a hoisting engine is in use, shall depute some competent person or persons whose duty it shall be to examine at least once in each week the sheave wheels, the hoisting rope and the attachments thereof to the drums and to the buckets, cages or skips, the brakes and depth indicators and the buckets, cages and skips and any safety catches attached thereto; and the guides and hoisting compartments generally and the signalling arrangements; and the external parts of the hoisting engine.

(61) Such owner or manager shall also depute a competent person who shall examine:—

(a) at least once in each month the structure of the hoisting ropes with a view to ascertaining the deterioration thereof. For the purposes of this examination the rope must be thoroughly cleansed at points to be selected by said person, who shall note any reduction in the circumference of, and the proportion of wear in, the rope;

(b) at least once a month the safety appliances of the cages or other shaft conveyances, so equipped, by testing same under load conditions. Such test shall consist of releasing the cage suddenly, in some suitable manner, so that the safety catches shall have opportunity to grip the guides. In case the safety catches do not act satisfactorily the cage or other shaft conveyance shall not be used further for hoisting men until the safety catches have been repaired and been proved to act satisfactorily.

(62) If, on any examination, as is hereinbefore required there is discovered any weakness or defect by which the safety of persons may be endangered, any such weakness or defect shall be immediately reported to the owner or manager or person in charge and until such weakness or defect is remedied the hoisting plant shall not be used.

(63) Such owner or manager shall keep or cause to be kept at the mine a book to be termed the Machinery Record Book, in which shall be recorded a true report of every such examination as is hereinbefore referred to, signed by the person making the examination.

(64) In case of hoisting engines there shall be not less than three rounds of rope upon the drum when the bucket, cage or skip is at the lowest point in the shaft or winze from which hoisting is effected. The end of the rope shall be properly fastened around the shaft or an arm of the drum.

(65) In case a hoisting rope is used both for the raising and lowering of men and materials the weight attached to the rope in the former case, when the bucket, cage or skip is bearing its authorized load shall not exceed eighty-five per cent of the maximum allowable weight when the rope is in use for other purposes.

(66) No new hoisting rope shall be used which is not accompanied by a certificate from the manufacturer giving the following information: Name and address of manufacturer—coil or reel number—date of manufacture—diameter and circumference of rope in inches—weight per foot in pounds—number of strands—class of core—number of wires in strand—diameter of wires, decimals of an inch—breaking stress of steel of which wire is made, in tons per square inch—estimated breaking load of rope. This certificate or a copy of the same shall be recorded in a book known as the Rope Record Book, which shall always be open for inspection by the inspector of mines, and which shall contain in addition the following information: Date of purchase—length of rope in feet—name of shaft and compartment in which rope is used—date on which put on—date of shortening—date of recapping—date of turning end for end—dates of tests after shortening—breaking load of rope at these tests—date when rope was taken off.

(67) A hoisting rope newly put on shall have the connecting attachments, between the bucket, cage or skip and the rope carefully examined by some competent and reliable person authorized by the owner, manager or department head, and shall not be used for ordinary transport of persons in any shaft or winze until two complete trips up and down the working portions of such shaft or winze have been made, the bucket, cage or skip bearing its authorized load. The result of such examination shall be recorded in the Rope Receipt Book.

(68) At least once in every six months the hoisting rope shall have a portion not less than six feet in length cut off the lower-end. With the exception of the cutting at the end of the first six months the length so cut off shall have the ends adequately fastened with binding wire to prevent the disturbance of the strands and shall be sent to a reliable testing laboratory for a breaking test. The certificate of such test shall be kept on file. This rule shall not come into effect until proclaimed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

(69) At the periodical cutting of the rope the connection between the rope and the bucket cage or skip shall be annealed.

(70) Every hoisting rope shall be treated with a suitable rope compound as often as necessary and at least once in every month.

(71) In no case shall a hoisting rope be used from which a defective portion has been cut out and the ends spliced.

(72) No hoisting rope which has previously been in use in any place beyond the control of the owner or manager shall be put on anew except with the permission of the inspector of mines.

(73) The factor of safety of all hoisting rope when newly installed in shafts less than 2,000 feet in depth shall in no case be less than six, and in shafts over 2,000 feet in depth and less than 3,000 feet in depth shall not be less than five. The factor of safety shall be calculated by dividing the breaking strength of the rope as given in the manufacturer's published tables by the sum of the maximum load to be hoisted plus the total weight of the rope in the shaft when fully let out.

No hoisting rope shall be used for the raising or lowering of men when its factor of safety based on its existing strength and dead load shall have fallen below 4.5.

No hoisting rope shall be used for the raising or lowering of men when the number of broken wires in one lay of said rope exceeds six, or when marked corrosion appears.

(74) Head sheaves shall be of such diameter as shall be suited to the rope in use.

(75) No person shall travel or be permitted to travel in a bucket, cage or skip operated by an engine which is being simultaneously used for the hoisting of mineral or material, except as provided for in rule 51 clause (c).

(76) Hoisting from mine workings with horse and pulley-block is forbidden.

(77) The connection between the hoisting rope and the bucket, cage, skip or other means of conveyance shall be of such a nature that the risk of accidental disconnection is reduced to a minimum.

(78) On the drum of every machine used for lowering or raising persons there shall be such flanges or horns, and also, if the drum is conical, such other appliances as may be sufficient to prevent the rope or cable from slipping off.

(79) Where counterweights are used in shafts, the compartment in which they operate shall be securely enclosed.

(80) Where hoisting is done by means of an engine an adequate brake or brakes shall be attached to the drum of the hoist and kept in proper working order.

(81) Such brakes shall be so arranged that, whether the engine is at work or at rest, they can be easily and safely manipulated by the hoistman when standing at the levers controlling the engine. No hoist used for the raising or lowering of persons, or used in shaft sinking, shall be equipped with a brake or brakes operated by means of a hoistman's foot unless such brake is an auxiliary electrical device. The adjustments of brake or brakes shall be maintained in such condition that when the normal power of the brake or brakes is applied the brake lever will still have a clearance between itself and the end of the quadrant in which it works.

(82) The operating gear of the clutch of the drum shall be provided with locking gear to prevent inadvertent withdrawal of the clutch.

(83) Such bolts and other fittings of the drums, brakes and clutches as might be a source of danger in the event of their becoming loosened shall be rendered secure by means of suitable locking devices.

(84) The operator of a hoisting engine shall not, after going on shift, unclutch a drum of his engine until he has assured himself immediately beforehand, by testing the brake of the drum against the normal starting power of the engine, or in case of an electric hoist against the normal starting current, that the brake is in proper condition to hold the load suspended from said drum.

(85) When the hoisting engines are fitted with friction clutches, the operator, after going on shift, shall, when clutching in, test the holding power of the clutch before releasing the brake of the corresponding drum, the brake of other drum being kept off. In case of a steam or air hoist, the test shall be made against the normal starting power of the engine, and in case of an electric hoist against the normal starting current.

(86) In case of non-reversible steam or air hoists and single-drum electric hoists, not used in balanced hoisting, an adequate auxiliary brake shall be installed on the drum of the hoist before the same shall be used for hoisting or lowering men, but non-reversible steam or air hoists with throttle-controlled exhaust shall not require such auxiliary brake.

(87) Every hoisting engine shall, in addition to any marks on the rope, be provided with a reliable depth indicator, which will clearly and accurately show to the operator at all times:—

(1) the position of the bucket, cage or skip; and

(2) at what positions in the shaft a change of gradient necessitates reduction in speed; but this rule shall not apply to hoisting engines used in sinking operations when the hoistman has an unobstructed view of the landing station and the distance from the landing station to the bottom of the shaft does not exceed 300 feet.

(88) In every shaft exceeding 600 feet in depth adequate provision shall be made whereby the hoistman is warned of the arrival of the bucket, cage or skip at a point in the shaft, the distance of which from the top landing place is not less than the equivalent of three revolutions of the drum of the hoisting engine. Such device shall be operated independently of the hoist indicator.

Haulage.

(89) No person shall ride upon or against any loaded car in any level, drift or tunnel in or about any mine. In mechanical haulage this shall not apply to train crews.

(90) On every level on which mechanical haulage is employed, a clearance of at least eighteen inches shall be maintained between the sides of the level and the cars.

Scaling, Escapement Shafts, Etc.

(91) The owner, manager, or other authorized person shall examine daily all parts of the mine where drilling and blasting is being carried on; shall examine at least once a week the other portions of a mine in which operations are being carried on, such as shafts, winzes, levels, stopes, drifts, crosseuts and raises, in order to ascertain that they are in a safe working condition; shall inspect and scale or cause to be inspected and scaled the roofs of all stopes or other working places as often as the nature of the ground and of the work performed necessitates; shall provide a scaling record book, to be kept in the mine office, in which shall be entered daily all major scaling operations.

(92) The owner or manager shall provide and maintain an adequate supply of scaling bars, gads and other equipment necessary for scaling.

The owner or manager shall when necessary provide life lines for the workmen and it shall be the duty of the workman to continually wear such life lines while working in dangerous places.

(93) Every person who has sunk in any mine a vertical or inclined shaft to a greater depth than 100 feet, and who has drifted a distance of 200 feet or more from the shaft and has commenced to stope, shall provide and maintain, in addition to the hoisting shaft or the opening through which men are let into or out of the mine and the ore is extracted, a separate escapement shaft or opening. Such auxiliary exit shall not be less than 50 feet from the main hoisting shaft and shall not be covered by any inflammable structure. If such an escapement shaft or opening is not in existence at the time that stoping is commenced, work upon it shall be begun as soon as stoping is commenced and shall be diligently prosecuted until the same is completed and means of escapement other than the main shaft shall be provided to and connected with the lowest workings in the mine. The escapement shaft or opening shall be of sufficient size to afford an easy passageway, and shall be provided with good and substantial ladders from the deepest workings to the surface. With the exception of any erection used solely as a shaft-house, no permanent building, for any purpose, shall be erected within fifty feet of the mouth of a mine, unless there is such an auxiliary exit. No boiler shall be installed within one hundred feet of the collar of any shaft except with the written permission of the inspector of mines;

Provided that where the timber and wood in the hoisting shaft of a mine are constantly wet, and in the opinion of the inspector it is not necessary for the safety of the workmen that the escapement shaft or opening be continued to and connected with the lowest workings, he may in writing so certify, and thereupon such requirement shall not apply to such mine, but the inspector may require any other precautions to be taken which he may deem necessary.

(94) All timber not in use in a mine shall, as soon as practicable, be taken from the mine and shall not be piled up and permitted to decay therein.

(95) All oil and other inflammable material shall be stored in a suitable manner and at a safe distance from any powder magazine, thaw house or shaft house.

(96) Calcium carbide shall be stored on the surface only, in a suitable dry place and in its original container. It shall only be taken into a change house or shaft house in sufficient quantity for the day's use, and such precautions shall be taken as will ensure its being safely handled. No carbide shall be taken underground except in watertight containers.

Signals.

(97) Every working shaft which exceeds fifty feet in depth, unless otherwise permitted in writing by the inspector, shall be provided with some suitable means of communicating by distinct and definite signals from the bottom of the shaft, and from every level for the time being in work between the surface and the bottom of the shaft, to the hoist room.

(98) All methods of signalling in a mine shall be printed and posted up in the engine house or hoist house and also at the top of the shaft and at the entrance of each level.

The following code of mine signals shall be used at every mine:—

Code of Mine Signals.

| 2 bells..... | Lower.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 3 bells..... | Men about to ascend or descend. The 3-bell signal must be given before men enter the cage. When the hoistman receives this signal, he must not move cage for ten seconds after he has received the balance of the signal. In case he is unable to act within one minute of the time he has received the signal, he shall not move hoist until he receives fresh signal. When the hoist-man receives a 3-bell signal he shall remain at his levers until the full signal has been received and the act of hoisting or lowering completed. |
| 4 bells..... | Blasting signal. Engineer must answer by raising bucket, skip or cage a few feet and letting it back slowly, then one bell, hoist men away from blast.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 9 bells..... | Danger signal in case of fire or other danger. Then ring number of station where danger exists.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |

Special signals may be used at any mine, if they have been approved by the inspector.

(99) No person, unless duly authorized, shall give any signal for moving or stopping bucket, cage or skip. No signal shall be given unless the bucket, cage or skip is at the level from which the signal is to be given. No unauthorized person shall give any signal, other than the danger signal, or in any way whatsoever interfere with the signalling arrangements.

(100) A notice showing clearly the number of persons allowed to ride on, and the weight of materials allowed to be loaded on the cage or skip shall be posted at the collar of the shaft. The person authorized to give signals will be held responsible for observance of such notice. No person shall offer obstruction to the enforcement of such notice.

Protection from Machinery.

(101) Every fly-wheel, geared wheel, bull-wheel, pulley or belt, and every opening through which any wheel or belt operates, shall be enclosed with a substantial railing or casing.

(102) Every key, bolt, set-screw, and every part of any wheel or other revolving machinery which projects unevenly from the surface shall be covered.

(103) Every runway and staging used for oiling or other purposes more than five feet from the floor shall be provided with hand-railing.

(104) Every entrance to any elevator, hatchway or well-hole shall be provided with a suitable trap-door, guard-rail, or automatically closing gate.

(105) Persons engaged in dangerous proximity to moving machinery shall not wear or be allowed to wear loose outer clothing.

(106) Every frog in a track, either above or below ground, on which cars are moved by mechanical power shall have a guard block of wood or iron.

(107) Every locomotive engine, trolley or motor car used for hauling material, either above or below ground shall be equipped with a gong, bell or whistle, which shall be sounded when starting and at such other times as warning of danger may be required.

(108) Power-driven grinding wheels shall be provided with a hooded guard of sufficient strength to withstand the shock of a bursting wheel. This guard shall be adjusted close to the wheel and extend forward, over top of the wheel, to a point at least thirty degrees beyond a vertical line drawn through the centre of the wheel.

(109) Every counterweight shall be so situated or guarded that injury to any person would not be probable should it become detached from its fastenings.

(110) No stair, exceeding five feet in height, shall be built at a greater inclination than fifty degrees from the horizontal. All stairs exceeding five feet in height, shall be provided with a substantial hand-rail.

(111) Guard rails shall be placed at the approach to railway tracks, where the view of such tracks is obstructed in one or both directions.

Boilers.

(112) (1) Every steam boiler used for generating steam in or about a mine shall, whether separate or one of a range—

(a) have attached to it a proper safety-valve, and also a proper steam-gauge and water gauge, to show respectively the pressure of steam and the height of water in each boiler.

(b) be inspected by an Ontario Government boiler inspector or by an inspector of a boiler insurance company at least once in every twelve months; and a certified copy of the report of the inspection shall be forwarded to the inspector within seven days;

(2) Every such boiler, safety-valve, steam-gauge and water-gauge shall be maintained in proper working condition.

Dressing Rooms.

(113) If more than ten persons to each shift are ordinarily employed in the mine below ground, sufficient accommodation, including supplies of clean cold and warm water for washing, shall be provided above ground near the principal entrance of the mine, and not in the engine room, boiler room, or nearer than fifty feet to the shaft house, for enabling the persons employed in the mine to conveniently dry and change their clothes.

Aid to injured.

(114) At every mine a properly constructed stretcher shall be kept for the purpose of conveying to his place of abode any person who may be injured while in the discharge of his duties at the mine.

(115) A supply of articles suitable for first aid shall be kept accessible at every mine for the treatment of anyone injured, including the following:—antiseptic gauze, carbolated vaseline, sponges, soap, carbolic acid, tablets of bichloride of mercury, linseed oil, bandages, towels and a wash basin, or such first-aid service as is required by the Workman's Compensation Board of Ontario.

(116) At every mine or works where poisonous or dangerous compounds, solutions or gases are used or produced there shall be kept in a conspicuous place as near the same as practicable a sufficient supply of satisfactory antidotes and washes for treating injuries received from such compounds, solutions or gases. Such antidotes and washes shall be properly labelled, and explicit directions for their use affixed to the boxes containing them.

Prevention of Dust.

(117) In every mill or plant where, by reason of dry crushing or otherwise, there is in the air of the building dust in quantity to be injurious to health, suitable apparatus shall be installed for its removal.

(118) Every dusty place where work is being carried on in a mine shall be adequately supplied at all times with clean water under pressure or other approved appliances for laying the dust caused by drilling or blasting operations.

(119) The times for blasting shall be so fixed that the workmen shall be exposed as little as practicable to dust and smoke.

(120) Workmen employed at metallurgical works shall be supplied with suitable shields and appliances to protect them as far as possible from being burned with molten material.

Sand and Gravel Pits.

(121) In open-pit workings of sand and gravel the method of removing material by undermining shall not be allowed. No vertical working place shall have a height of more than ten feet; where the thickness of material to be excavated exceeds ten feet in depth, the work shall be done in terraces, or at an angle of safety. This rule shall not apply to pits where the material is excavated solely by mechanical means.

(122) All hoisting ropes used on cranes shall be subject to the same rules as are laid down for hoisting ropes at mines.

(123) The owner or manager shall depute some qualified person or persons to examine daily such parts of the cranes or apparatus pertaining thereto upon the proper working of which the safety of persons depends. A record of such examinations shall be kept.

(124) Every crane shall be equipped with suitable devices to prevent overwinding.

(125) No person under the age of eighteen years shall be allowed to operate an elevator.

(126) No person under the age of eighteen years shall be allowed to operate a crane.

(127) When a hoistway is not enclosed in walls, access to the hoistway by means of an adjacent stairway, platform or floor, which is not an authorized landing, shall be prevented by means of a partition to a height of at least six feet.

(128) Every entrance to a hoistway shall be provided with a substantial door or doors or gate or gates at least six feet in height. All folding gates over three feet wide shall have top and bottom centre braces.

(129) All guide rails for cars and counterweights shall be of substantial construction, and shall be securely fastened to the sides of hoistway, and the bottom ends shall rest on a secure foundation, and be firmly fixed in that position.

(130) On every elevator hereafter installed a clear space of not less than three feet shall be provided between the bottom of the hoistway and the lowest point of the car when the car is at its lowest landing, and between the top of the car and the sheave when the car is at its top landing, and also between the top of the counterweight and the sheave when the car is at its lowest landing.

(131) Every hoistway landing and place where machinery is erected shall be well lighted.

(132) Every elevator on which any person travels shall be provided with side casing, and shall have a door or doors extending at least five feet above the bottom of elevator, and the top shall be covered with suitable protective roofing.

(133) Every elevator on which any person travels shall be provided with efficient safety catches capable of holding the elevator and twice the maximum load in any position in the hoistway. When the safety catches are operated through shafts, all the levers and safety catches shall be keyed to the shafts.

(134) Every elevator shall be provided with automatic devices at the top and bottom of the travel of a car in the hoistway, so arranged that the car will be stopped before it has travelled two feet above the top landing, or two feet below the bottom landing, and all drum hoists shall, in addition, be fitted with automatic stop motions to prevent over-winding.

(135) All counterweights shall have their sections strongly bolted together, and shall be so situated that they cannot fall upon any part of the elevator or machinery, and shall be suspended in their guides in such a manner that they will run freely without danger of being detached. Where counterweights run in the same hoistway as the car they shall be protected with a substantial screen of iron or steel from top of guides to a point fifteen feet below.

Blast Furnaces.

(136) At all furnaces of the hand-filled type the room at the furnace top where workmen are engaged shall be adequately ventilated, and there shall be provided and maintained in good order a stairway equipped with hand-rail, from the top of the furnace to the ground level below, affording a safe means of exit in case of danger from any cause.

(137) Whenever it is necessary for a workman to go up on the bustle pipe for any purpose, he shall first notify the furnace keeper or some other responsible person, whose duty it shall be to remain on watch during the period the workman is engaged on the bustle pipe.

(138) All bustle pipes shall be provided with safe working platforms, equipped with hand-rails, at least three feet six inches in height, and wherever practicable the platform shall not rest directly on the bustle pipe, but be supported on angle bars, so that the floor plate will not become sufficiently hot to cause burns to a workman falling on it. Access to the platform shall be by stairway provided with hand-rails.

(139) Whenever it becomes necessary for a workman to go on top of the furnace for oiling, cleaning or other duty, he shall notify the foreman or other responsible person, who shall see that not less than two men go on top for any purpose. It shall be the duty of one workman to act as watcher and to give the alarm to the stock house, cast house, or bell operator, and render every possible assistance in case of danger from gassing or other causes.

(140) Life lines and belts in good order, shall be provided and kept in some secure and readily accessible place for immediate use in case it becomes necessary to rescue a workman from the top rigging, and also for use by any workman whose duties require him to work in an atmosphere which is liable to become gaseous.

(141) A proper and adequate line of communication by telephone, gong or other mechanical means shall be maintained between the furnace top and all other dangerous places, and the cast house, skip operator's room, or other place where workmen are continuously on duty.

(142) All stairways shall be inclined at an angle not greater than 50 degrees from the horizontal and provided with landings or turn-outs, at intervals of 25 feet, so that it will not be possible for a workman to fall from the top to the foundation landing below.

(143) Every foreman shall personally supervise or appoint a competent assistant to supervise any work around the furnace involving unusual accident hazard, such as work in gas mains or cleaners, tearing out linings, work in the cast house, about the stoves when blowing in or blowing out, and any work about the bells or stock line. He shall also when the furnace is known to be hanging and liable to slip, see that no workman is allowed on top for any purpose.

(144) Stock piles of ore, limestone, coke or other material shall be inspected daily by some authorized person whose duty it shall be to see that they are in a safe working condition.

(145) Whenever ore becomes frozen in the hopper and workmen are required to bar the same into the furnace, a proper guard-rail shall be provided to prevent workmen slipping on to the bell, and all workmen so engaged shall be equipped with belt and life line.

(146) There shall be maintained at all blast furnaces in a readily accessible place breathing apparatus and portable resuscitating apparatus of approved type, with an adequate supply of oxygen and absorbent material. There shall always be on duty in each working shift a workman or workmen appointed by the superintendent and trained in the use of the breathing and resuscitating apparatus.

RULES GOVERNING USE OF ELECTRICITY.

Definitions.

"Electrical Supply Station" means any building, room, or separate space within which is located electrical supply equipment and which is accessible as a rule, only to properly qualified persons. This includes generating stations and substations, and generator, storage battery and transformer rooms.

"Utilization Equipment" means equipment, devices, and connected wiring, which utilize electrical energy for mechanical, chemical, lighting, testing or similar purposes and are not a part of supply equipment.

"Voltage or Volts" means the highest effective voltage between the conductors of the circuit concerned, except that in grounded multiwire circuits, not exceeding 750 volts between outer conductors, it means the highest effective voltage between any wire of the circuit and the ground.

In ungrounded, low-voltage circuits, voltage to ground means the voltage of the circuit. "Grounded" means connected to earth or to some extended conducting body which serves instead of earth. This ground connection may be at one or more points.

"Cut-out" means any device, such as a fuse or circuit-breaker, by which the electrical continuity of a conductor may be automatically broken by changes in current or voltage.

"Switch" means a device for opening or closing or changing the connections of a circuit manually. In these rules a switch is always to be understood as operated manually, unless otherwise stated.

"Disconnecter" means a switch which is intended to open a circuit only after the load has been thrown off by some other means.

"Re-construction" means replacement of any portion of an existing installation by new equipment or construction, but does not include ordinary maintenance replacements.

"Wire Gauge," Brown and Sharpe (B. & S.) is the standard.

"Switchboard" means a large single panel or assembly of panels on which are mounted switches, fuses, busses, and usually instruments, and accessible both in front and in rear. Circuits and machinery of relatively large capacity are controlled from such boards.

"Panelboard" means a single panel containing busses, fuses and switches to control lights, and devices of small individual as well as aggregate capacity, placed in or against a wall or partition and accessible only from the front.

General Rules.

(147) Where electrical apparatus or machinery is used at any mine it shall be in charge of an authorized person, who shall be qualified by experience to handle such apparatus or machinery. Every person operating or having charge of electrical apparatus shall have been instructed in his duty and shall be competent for the work that he is set to do. Repairs, extensions and changes shall be made to existing electrical equipment and conductors only by authorized persons.

(148) No person, other than the person authorized by the owner, manager, or superintendent, shall enter an electrical supply station or interfere with the workings of any machine, transformer, motor, or apparatus connected therewith, and when the authorized person is not present the door of such room shall be kept securely locked.

(149) All electrical equipment shall be of such construction and so installed and maintained as to reduce the life and fire hazard as far as practicable.

(150) Electrical equipment shall comply with these rules when placed in service, and shall thereafter be periodically inspected and, when necessary, cleaned. Defective equipment shall be put in good order or permanently disconnected. Defective wiring shall be repaired or removed.

(151) Electrical utilization equipment as well as generating equipment, if enclosed in a separate room which is inaccessible to unauthorized persons, and when in service is under the control of a qualified electrical operator whose attention is not distracted by other processes, shall be considered as electrical supply station equipment, and such exceptions as are made to the general rules for supply stations shall apply to these installations.

(152) All electrical equipment shall be suitably identified where necessary for safety. The voltage and intended use shall be shown, where important.

General Grounding Rules.

(153) All circuits not over 150 volts shall be grounded if exposed to leakage from higher voltage circuits either through overhead construction or through transformers having primary voltage exceeding 750 volts. Three-wire single-phase circuits and three wire direct-current circuits not exceeding 300 volts between outer conductor shall have the neutral grounded.

(154) Electrical equipment shall, when practicable, have the exposed non-current-carrying parts such as frames of motors, generators, switchboards, cases of transformers, oil switches and instruments and casings or wiring and conductors permanently grounded:—

(1) For all equipment over 150 volts;

(2) For all equipment where metal parts are within reach of exposed grounded surfaces, such as metal frames of other machines, plumbing fixtures, conducting floors or walls (such as damp wood, concrete or rock underground). Grounded surfaces within 5 feet horizontally of the parts considered, or within 8 feet vertically of the floor shall be considered within reach.

(155) The point at which ground conductor is attached to the equipment or wire runways shall, if practicable, be readily accessible.

(156) The ground conductor shall be of copper or other metal which will not corrode excessively under the existing conditions and, if practicable, shall be continuous. Ground connections from circuits shall not be made to jointed piping within buildings, except that water or air piping beyond any point which is liable to disconnection may be used.

(157)—(a) For grounding circuits the ground conductors must have a carrying capacity equal to that of the circuit and must never be less than No. 6 B. and S.

(b) For electrical equipment the current-carrying capacity of a ground conductor shall not be less than that provided by a copper wire of the size indicated in the following table. When there is no cut-out protecting the equipment, the size of the ground wire will be determined by the design and the operating conditions of the circuit.

| Capacity of nearest automatic cut-out | Required size ground conductorB. & S. gauge |
|---------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------|
| 200 to 500 amperes.....               | 4                                               |
| 100 to 200 ".....                     | 6                                               |
| 30 to 100 ".....                      | 10                                              |
| 10 to 30 ".....                       | 14                                              |

In portable cord to portable equipment protected by fuses not greater than 10-ampere capacity, No. 16 ground wire may be used.

(158) Ground conductors shall have mechanical protection and insulating guards extending for a distance of not less than 8 feet above any ground, platform or floor. If attached to buildings ground conductors shall be supported on insulators and must be protected by porcelain bushings through floors, partitions or walls.

(159) Main water or air lines may be used for grounds provided that connection is made at a point where pipe is not liable to disconnection for alteration or repairs. Main water or air lines may be substantially bound together for this purpose, but shall, unless connected to a buried piping system of considerable extent, be connected to an artificial ground.

(160) The ground connection to metallic piping systems shall be made by sweating a ground wire into a lug attached to a suitable clamp and firmly bolting the clamp to the pipe, after all rust and scale have been removed, or by any other equivalent method.

(161) Artificial grounds shall be located, where practicable, below the permanent moisture level, or failing this at least six feet deep. Each ground shall present not less than four square feet of surface to the exterior soil. Areas where ground water level is close to the surface shall be used where available.

(162) Ground conductors shall be run separately to the ground (or to a sufficiently heavy grounding bus or system ground cable which is connected to ground at more than one place) from equipment and circuits of each of the following classes: (1) lightning arresters; (2) secondaries connected to low-voltage lighting or power circuits; (3) secondaries of current and potential transformers and cases of instruments on these secondaries; (4) equipment operating in excess of 750 volts; (5) frames of utilization equipment or wire runways other than covered by item (4).

(163) Lightning arrester ground connections shall not be made to the same artificial ground (driven pipe or buried plate) as circuits or equipment, but shall be well spaced and, where practicable, at least twenty feet from other artificial grounds.

Working Space About Electrical Equipment.

(164)—(a) Suitable working space shall be provided and maintained about all electrical equipment. Where adjacent to exposed live parts such working spaces shall be so arranged that they will not be used as passageways. The working spaces shall, where practicable, have minimum horizontal dimensions, where adjacent to exposed live parts within 8 feet of the floor, as follows: (1) Parts above 150 volts to ground, if on one side, 2.5 feet; if on two sides, 4 feet; (2) parts below 150 volts to ground, if on one side, 1.5 feet; if on two sides, 2.5 feet.

(b) In supply station equipment the following clearances only need be maintained (1) Parts from 300 up to 750 volts, if on one side, not less than 2.5 feet; if on two sides, not less than 3 feet; (2) parts above 750 volts, if on one side, not less than 3 feet; if on two sides, not less than 5 feet.

Guarding or Isolating Live Parts.

(165) In supply station equipment current-carrying parts shall be guarded unless they are maintained at the following distances above floors which may be occupied by persons:—

| Voltage of Conductors  | Elevation in Feet |
|------------------------|-------------------|
| 300 to 750.....        | 7                 |
| 750 to 2,500.....      | 7.5               |
| 2,500 to 7,500.....    | 8                 |
| 7,500 to 30,000.....   | 9                 |
| 30,000 to 70,000.....  | 10                |
| 70,000 to 100,000..... | 12                |

(166)—(a) All exposed current-carrying parts of electrical equipment such as bus bars, conductors and terminals operating at over 150 volts and not isolated by elevation at least eight feet shall, where practicable, be provided with suitable permanent enclosures or other guards arranged so as to prevent persons or conducting objects from inadvertently coming (or being brought) in contact with the parts in question.

(b) Where the current-carrying parts at over 150 volts or in supply stations at over 300 volts, to ground must necessarily be exposed (unguarded) within 8 feet, or in supply stations within the limits called for in rule 165, from the floor line all surrounding conducting floors shall be covered with suitable insulating platforms, mats or other insulating devices.

(c) Where the current-carrying parts operate at over 7,500 volts, inclosing or barrier guards shall always be provided, even when insulating mats are also provided.

Storage Batteries.

(167) Storage batteries in rooms used also for other purposes shall be adequately guarded or enclosed. Means shall be provided, if necessary, to prevent dangerous accumulation of inflammable gas. Batteries whose operating voltage exceeds 50 volts shall be installed in conformity with the general rules covering equipment.

Transformer Rules.

(168)—(a) Secondary circuits of current transformers shall be provided with means for short-circuiting them which can be readily connected while the primary is energized, and which are so arranged as to permit the removal of any instrument or other device from such circuits without opening the circuits.

(b) When primaries are above 7,500 volts secondary circuits of current and potential transformers, unless otherwise adequately protected from injury or contact of persons, shall be in permanently grounded conduit.

(c) The low-voltage circuit of all instrument transformers shall be permanently grounded unless the circuits are installed and guarded as required for the high-voltage circuits of the transformers.

(169) Oil immersed transformers must not be attached to any building other than a transformer house not of fireproof construction or mounted on or above combustible roofs, and if within a building other than a transformer house must be in a fireproof compartment suitably drained and ventilated to outdoors, the door openings to be provided with not less than six-inch non-combustible sills.

(170) Transformer stations must be at least fifty feet distant from other buildings if not entirely of fireproof construction, or if containing over fifty imperial gallons of oil.

Lightning Arrester Rules.

(171) If the operating voltage of the circuit exceeds 750, the lightning arresters shall be made inaccessible to unauthorized persons.

(172) Lightning arresters, when installed inside of buildings, shall be located, as far as practicable from all other equipment and from combustible parts of the building.

(173) Lightning arresters on circuits over 7,500 volts and all lightning arresters which may require work to be done upon them from time to time, shall be so arranged, isolated, and equipped that they may be readily disconnected from conductors to which they are connected by air-brake manual disconnectors.

(174) Ground wires shall be run as directly as possible and be of low resistance and ample capacity. In no case shall ground wires be less than No. 6 copper wire. Ground conductors for lightning arresters shall not pass through iron or steel conduits unless electrically connected to both ends of such conduits.

(175) All non-current carrying parts of the arresters shall be grounded, unless effectively isolated by elevation, or guarded as required for live parts of the voltage of the circuit to which the arrester is connected, and suitably identified as to that voltage.

(176) All current-carrying parts of arresters on circuits above 750 volts, unless effectively isolated by elevation, shall be adequately guarded to protect persons from inadvertent contact with them, or from injury by arcing. Guarding shall comply with rules 166 and 179.

Conductors.

(177)—(a) Conductors shall be suitable for the location, use and voltage and each conductor (except neutral conductors, ground wires, and conductors of circuits, the opening of which may cause special hazard by interruption of service or removal of protection) be protected against excessive current by suitable automatic cut-out or by the design of the system.

(b) All conductors normally grounded for the protection of persons shall be arranged without automatic cut-outs interrupting their continuity between the sources of electrical supply and the point at which the ground wire is attached, unless the cut-out opens all the conductors of the system with one operation.

(178) All conductors where not protected by conduit or armouring must have approved insulation and must be mounted on cleats, porcelain knobs or insulators and must be separated from contact with floors, walls or partitions by tubes of incombustible insulating material.

(179) All fixed conductors operating at over 300 volts or in supply stations at over 750 volts unless isolated by an elevation of at least eight feet shall be enclosed in grounded metal conduit, grounded metal sheathing or shall be guarded by permanent screens or enclosures.

(180) Bare conductors shall be used only for switchboard, panel board storage-battery connections or for open wiring at voltages exceeding 2,400 volts in supply stations or for electrolytic low-voltage furnaces and similar connections, or for trolley wires and other contact conductors. Except at points where permanent ground connections are made such conductors within buildings shall be kept insulated from the ground.

(181) Temporary wiring and equipment, which is not in compliance with these rules, may be used, but only when under competent supervision, or protected by suitable barriers or warning signs while it or neighbouring wiring is alive and accessible to unauthorized persons.

Fuses, Cut-outs, Switches and Controllers.

(182) All switches, automatic cut-outs, controllers, starting rheostats, auto starters and other control devices shall be readily and safely accessible to authorized persons; they shall be so located, labelled or marked as to afford means of identifying circuits or equipment supplied through them, or whether they are open or closed. They shall be so installed, where practicable, that they cannot be closed by gravity and such switches as close by gravity shall be provided with a proper stopblock or latch to prevent accidental closing.

(183)—(a) Suitable switches shall be inserted in all circuit leads to generators, motors, transformers, storage batteries, electric furnaces and similar equipment except between parts or pieces of apparatus intended to operate as a unit.

(b) Suitable switches shall be inserted in all feeder conductors connecting utilization installations to service connections from either overhead or underground lines. These switches shall be readily accessible, and as close as practicable to the point of connection with the overhead or underground lines.

(c) Switches or plug connections shall be placed in all circuit leads at the point where temporary wiring or portable conductors are connected to the permanent wiring.

(184)—(a) Switches used otherwise than as disconnectors shall have a rated capacity such as to insure safe interruption, at the working voltage, of the greatest current which they will be required to carry continuously, and shall be marked with the current they can safely interrupt.

(b) All cut-outs, switches, circuit breakers and other apparatus used for opening or closing an electric circuit shall be of such design as to operate safely on the system from which the circuit is energized.

(c) Disconnectors shall be of suitable voltage and ampere rating for the circuit in which they are installed and shall be accessible only to qualified persons. They shall also be protected by signs warning against opening the switch while carrying current in excess of the safe opening limit.

(d) Means shall be provided so that switches controlling apparatus can be locked or blocked in the open position or plainly tagged to prevent careless closing while work is being done on the equipment unless all live and moving parts of the equipment are in plain sight of the switch.

(e) Switches, controllers and rheostats shall be so constructed as to make and maintain good contact. Knife switches shall maintain such alignment under service conditions that they may be closed with a single unhesitating motion.

(f) Unless a switch, operating on a circuit above 750 volts, makes an air break there shall, if equipment controlled by such switch requires adjustment or repairs while the conductors leading to such switch are still alive, be installed between it and the source of energy supply a suitable air-break disconnector.

(185)—(a) All manual switches over 150 volts to ground or in supply stations over 300 volts to ground shall have suitable casings or guards protecting the operator from danger of contact with current-carrying parts or being burned by arcing at the switch.

(b) All switches interrupting circuits over 750 volts shall be operated by means of remote control mechanism or be provided with suitable casings protecting the operator from danger of contact with current-carrying parts, except as provided in clause (d) of this rule. The control device for switches shall indicate whether the switches are open or closed.

(c) Switches shall, if practicable, be so connected that switch blades will not be alive when in the open position.

(d) Where switches, disconnectors, and fuses above 750 volts are ordinarily guarded by covers or enclosed in separate rooms, but must occasionally be operated without such protection either by removal of the covers or by entrance into the rooms, adequate working space shall be provided above the live parts, so that the operator will not be required to bring any part of his body within the following horizontal distances:—

| Voltage of parts.      | Distance in feet. |
|------------------------|-------------------|
| 750 to 7,500.....      | 1                 |
| 7,500 to 30,000.....   | 2                 |
| 30,000 to 50,000.....  | 3                 |
| 50,000 to 70,000.....  | 4                 |
| 70,000 to 100,000..... | 5                 |

(186)—(a) On circuits up to 300 volts to ground, where fusible cut-outs are not so arranged that they are necessarily disconnected from all sources of electrical energy before the ungrounded current-carrying parts can be touched, switches shall always be so placed or arranged that opening them will disconnect the fuses from all sources of electrical energy.

(b) Fusible cut-outs above 300 volts to ground shall be in a cabinet or otherwise made inaccessible to all but authorized persons and switches shall be so placed and arranged that opening them will disconnect the fuses from all sources of electrical energy.

(c) All fusible cut-outs shall be installed in approved fireproof cabinets.

(d) The rated capacity of the fuses shall not exceed the allowable carrying capacity of the conductor.

Switchboards.

(187)—(a) Switchboards and panelboards shall have all switches arranged so that the means of control are readily accessible to the operator.

(b) Instruments, relays, or other devices requiring reading or adjustment shall be so placed that the work can be readily performed from the working space provided.

(188) Switchboards shall, where practicable, be so placed that the person operating them will not be endangered by machinery or equipment located near the board. Means for adequate illumination shall be provided.

(189) Exposed bare parts of different potentials on any switchboard or panelboard shall be as few as practicable and these shall be effectively separated.

(190)—(a) All switchboards and panelboards having exposed current-carrying parts operating at over 150 volts to ground shall, when practicable, be suitably encased in locked cabinets, screens, or rooms, or other enclosures to make them inaccessible to other than authorized operators. Conducting floors about such boards, and in supply stations about boards having equipment operating at over 300 volts to ground, shall be provided with suitable insulating platforms or mats so placed that no person can inadvertently touch live parts unless standing on the insulating platform or mats.

(b) Where switchboards or panelboards at voltages below 150 to ground are accessible to other than authorized operators, they shall, where practicable, be enclosed in cabinets or screens as an effective precaution against accidental short circuit at times when no operation of the board necessitates the opening of the cabinet or screen.

Motor Control Devices.

(191)—(a) Manually controlled starters for all D.C. motors and for all A.C. motors over five horse-power shall be so designed and the circuits so arranged that they return automatically to the "off" position upon the failure of the energy supply, except where the motors and their starting devices are, during operation, under the supervision of qualified persons and equivalent protection is otherwise provided.

(b) Each motor must be protected against excessive overload current by cut-out or automatic circuit breaker, and overload device should interrupt the circuit at 50 per cent over normal motor-current rating. An auto starter which disconnects all wires of the circuit automatically under overload when in the running position may be used as circuit breaker.

Illuminating Supply Stations.

(192)—(a) Rooms and spaces shall have good artificial illumination. Arrangement of permanent fixtures and plug receptacles shall be such that the portable cords need not be brought into dangerous proximity of live electrical apparatus. All lamps shall be arranged to be controlled, replaced, or trimmed from readily accessible places.

(b) A separate emergency source of illumination, from an independent generator, storage battery, lanterns or other suitable source, shall be provided in every station where an attendant is located.

Fire Fighting Appliances.

(193) Each room or space where an operator is in attendance shall be provided with an adequate approved fire extinguishing appliance, conveniently located and conspicuously marked. Any such appliance which has not been approved for use on live parts shall be plainly and conspicuously marked with a warning to that effect whenever placed in rooms containing exposed live parts over 300 volts to ground.

Powder Magazines and Thaws.

(194)—(a) All electric wiring in powder magazines and thaws shall be installed in rigid conduit with screwed, waterproof joints, and such conduit shall be permanently grounded.

(b) The switches and fuses for lighting, heating or telephone circuits for powder magazines or thaws shall be installed in a locked fireproof cabinet on the outside of the building. The fuses for power used shall be such that they will interrupt the current at 25 per cent, over the normal load. Fuses for lighting circuits shall not exceed 10-ampere capacity.

(c) Where water is the medium used for distribution of electrically generated heat for powder thaws the radiation pipes must be permanently grounded. If wire or grid type heaters are used they shall be installed in a fireproof compartment or box, separate from the room in which explosives are thawed.

Lighting Fixtures.

(195)—(a) Electric fixtures, such as lamp sockets and lamp bases, plugs, receptacles, etc., shall be so installed that no current-carrying parts will normally be exposed externally when these parts are within reach of grounded surfaces (see rule 166). The high-temperature current-carrying parts of radiant heaters are exempted.

(b) Portable lamps shall not be connected to circuits operating at over 300 volts to ground.

(196)—(a) In locations where exposed to dampness or mechanical injury, portable conductors shall be of reinforced weatherproof cord, and, when necessary, armoured.

(b) In locations where exposed to dampness or mechanical injury, portable lamps shall have their sockets enclosed in wood or composition handles, through which the conductor shall be carried, and shall have a substantial wire cage which encloses the lamp. A hook for hanging lamp shall be attached either to the cage or to the handle.

Trolleys and Portable Apparatus.

(197)—(a) Trolley or crane collector wires, whether indoors or out, shall, where practicable, be elevated at least eight feet above the rail level and be provided with suitable guards so arranged that persons cannot inadvertently touch the current-carrying parts while in contact with the ground or with conducting material connected to the ground.

(b) In tunnels or under bins or in similar locations where trolley wires are necessarily less than eight feet above the rail level, the operating voltage shall not exceed 300 and the wires shall be efficiently guarded to prevent accidental contact of person.

(198) Portable and pendant conductors shall not be installed or used on circuits operating at over 300 volts to ground, unless they are accessible only to persons authorized to approach them. In such cases they shall be of a type suitable to the voltage and conditions.

Cranes and Elevators.

(199)—(a) Readily accessible means shall be provided whereby all conductors and equipment located in or on cars or cranes can be disconnected entirely from the source of energy at a point as near as possible to the trolley or other current collector.

(b) A circuit breaker or switch, capable of interrupting the circuit under heavy loads, shall be used unless the current collector can be safely removed, under heavy loads, from the trolley wire.

Telephone Exposed by Supply Lines.

(200) Telephone or other signal apparatus which must be handled by persons and which is connected to overhead signal circuits exposed by supply lines over 400 volts to ground must be protected as follows:—

(1) By fuses and arresters;

(2) All exposed non-current-carrying metal parts must be permanently grounded;

(3) The apparatus shall be installed in such a way that a person using it will be obliged to stand on a suitably insulated platform, in a suitably insulated booth or on other insulating surfaces.

(201) Telephone or signal apparatus which is connected to a line which parallels a supply circuit of high voltage in such a manner as to be exposed to induced voltage shall be protected by transformers and shall comply with the requirements of Rule 200.

Transmission Lines.

(202) All electrical supply lines and equipment shall be of suitable design and construction for the service and the conditions under which they are to be operated, and all lines shall be so installed and maintained as to reduce the life hazard as far as practicable.

(203) Conductors and other current-carrying parts of supply lines shall be so arranged as to provide adequate clearance from the ground or other space generally accessible, or shall be provided with guards so as to effectively isolate them from accidental contact by such persons.

(204) Where supply lines over 300 volts to ground are attached to any buildings for entrance they must be permanently guarded if accessible.

(205) Supply lines carried over railways operated by steam, electric or other motive power and on which standard equipment, such as freight cars, is used shall have the style of construction and clearances overhead as called for in the rules of the Board of Railway Commissioners of the Dominion of Canada. Supply lines crossing over railways on which standard equipment is not used and lines crossing over roadway shall have ample clearance for the operating conditions and shall be substantially supported.

Underground.

(206) Except with the written permission of the chief inspector of mines, who shall prescribe such conditions as he may deem fit:—

(a) No motor over 750 volts to ground shall be used underground;

(b) The voltage supply for electrical traction underground shall not exceed 300;

(c) No electrical energy higher than 750 volts to ground shall be transmitted underground.

(207) Where electrical energy is taken underground provision shall be made that the current can be cut off, on the surface, close to the point where it is led underground. The cut-off switch or switches shall be situated in a separate locked building or compartment, and same shall be accessible only to an authorized person or persons.

(208) All cables over 300 volts transmitting power under ground shall be armoured or enclosed in standard conduit and substantially supported.

(209) Wires carrying not over 300 volts to ground for lighting and signal circuits shall either be in standard conduits or casings, or suspended from and securely tied to porcelain or glass insulators, so that they do not touch any timbering or metal. On no account shall staples be used.

(210) The armouring or casing of cables, mentioned in the two next preceeding rules shall be bonded together so as to be electrically continuous, and shall be connected at some point or or points to a satisfactory ground.

(211) All rules governing grounding of electrical apparatus in general work shall apply equally to underground work.

(212) All proper precautions shall be taken to prevent electric signal or telephone wires, whether insulated or not, coming into contact with other electrical conductors.

(213)—(a) Electricity from lighting or power cables shall not be used for firing shots, except when a special firing plug or switch is provided, which plug or switch shall be placed in a fixed locked box, and shall only be accessible to the authorized shot firer.

(b) The firing cables or wires shall not be connected to this box until immediately before they are required for the firing of shots, and shall be disconnected immediately after the shots are fired.

(c) The firing cables or wires used for firing shots at one working place shall not be used for firing shots in another working place until all proper precautions have been taken to insure that such firing cables or wires have not any electrical connection with the leads from the first working place.

(214) When shot-firing cables or wires are used in the vicinity of power or lighting cables, sufficient precautions shall be taken to prevent the shot-firing cables or wires coming in contact with the lighting or power cables.

Rules Governing Electric Hoists.

(215) All electric hoists fitted with mechanically operated brakes shall be so installed that:—

(a) The mechanically operated brakes will be applied automatically the moment the power supply fails;

(b) In case of a heavy overload, such as would be caused by the shaft conveyance leaving the rails or becoming jammed in the shaft, a circuit breaker will cut off the power and thus allow the mechanically operated brakes to come into play;

(c) A suitable overwind device, which can be set to engage shaft conveyance at any point in the head-frame, will cut off the current, in case of an overwind past this point, and thus allow the mechanically operated brakes to come into play. In default of a device of this nature the hoist shall be equipped with some other form of satisfactory and dependable overwind device. Such devices shall be tested out by the hoist man at least once a shift.

(d) The brakes shall, on failure of the power supply, be put into play by mechanical means, preferably gravity, and shall in no case be operated by an auxiliary electric current.

(216) When the inspector has cause to believe that the shaft conveyance operated by any electric hoist is being overloaded he shall have the power to order a test to be made.

Exemptions.

(217) Notwithstanding anything contained in these rules, any electrical plant or apparatus installed or in use, on or before the first day of January, 1920, may be continued in use, unless the chief inspector shall otherwise direct.

Damage to Property.

(218) No person shall wilfully damage, or without proper authority remove or render useless, any fencing, casing, lining, guide, means of signalling, signal, cover, chain, flange, horn, brake, indicator, ladder, platform, steam-gauge, water-gauge, safety-valve, electrical equipment or other appliance or thing provided in any mine in compliance with this Act.

General.

(219) No person under the influence of or carrying intoxicating liquor shall enter any mine or be in the proximity of any working place on the surface or near any machinery in motion,

(220) It shall be the duty of every manager, superintendent, mine captain, shift boss and every person in charge of workmen, explosives, machinery or electrical apparatus in or about a mine to know such of these rules as affect the work in which he is engaged.

(221) There shall always be enforced and observed by the owner and the agent of a mine, and by every manager, superintendent, contractor, captain, foreman, workman and other person engaged in or about the mine, such care and precaution for the avoidance of accident or injury to any person in or about the mine as the particular circumstances of the case require; and the machinery, plant, appliances and equipment, and the manner of carrying on operations shall always, so far as can be foreseen, conform to the strictest considerations of safety.

(222) An abstract of the rules and regulations contained in this Act, authorized by the chief inspector of mines, shall be posted up in suitable places at the mine or works where the same can be conveniently read and the owner or agent of the mine shall maintain such abstract, duly posted, and the removal or destruction of the same shall be an offence against this Act.

Payment of Wages.

165. (1) No wages shall be paid to any person employed in or about any mine to which this Part applies at or within any tavern, shop or place where spirits, wine, beer or other spirituous or fermented liquors are sold or kept for sale, or within any office, garden, or place belonging or contiguous thereto or occupied therewith.

(2) Every person who contravenes or permits any person to contravene this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and in the event of any such contravention by any person whomsoever the owner or agent of the mine in respect of which the wages were paid shall also each be guilty of an offence against this Act, unless he proves that he had taken all reasonable means to prevent such contravention by publishing and to the best of his power enforcing the provisions of this section.

166. In mining operations no person or company shall, without right or authority, cause damage or injury to the holder of any other mining property by throwing earth, clay, stones, or mining material thereon, or by causing or allowing water which may be pumped or bailed or which may flow from a mining claim or other mining property of such person, to flow into or upon such other mining property, and the offender in addition to any civil liability shall incur a penalty of not more than $10 for every day such damage or injury continues, and in default of payment of the penalty and costs, may be imprisoned for any period not exceeding one month.

167. (1) Unless the owners agree to dispense therewith, in all mining operations there shall be left between all adjoining properties a party wall at least fifteen feet thick (being seven and one-half feet on each property), to the use of which the adjoining owners shall be entitled in common.

(2) The owners shall be entitled to use such party wall in common as roadway for all purposes, and such roadway shall be not obstructed by the throwing of soil, rock, or other material thereon, or in any other way, and any person obstructing the same in addition to any civil liability shall incur a penalty of not more than $10 for every day such obstruction continues.

(3) Any such adjoining owners may, in any case, apply to the Commissioner, who may make an order dispensing with such party wall or roadway, or providing for the working of any material therein, or otherwise, as he may deem just.

Notice of Accidents.

168. (1) Where, in or about any mine, whether above or below ground, any accident occurs which causes loss of life to any person employed in or about the mine, the owner, agent, manager or superintendent of the mine shall immediately notify, by telephone or telegraph, the Deputy Minister of Mines.

(2) Where, in or about any mine, whether above or below ground, any accident occurs which causes fracture or dislocation of any bones of the body or any other serious personal injury, to any person employed in or about the mine, the owner, agent, manager or superintendent of the mine shall within three days next after the accident send notice in writing to the inspector of mines resident in that district on the form prescribed for such purpose.

"Serious personal injury" shall mean such an injury as in the opinion of the attending physician may result in the injured person being incapacitated for work for at least seven days.

(3) Where, in or about any mine:

- (a) Any case of overwinding a skip or cage;
- (b) Any breakage of a rope or cable used for hoisting;
- (c) Any inrush of water from old workings or otherwise;
- (d) Any outbreak of fire below ground; or
- (e) Any premature or unexpected explosion occurs,

whether or not loss of life or personal injury is caused thereby, the owner, agent, manager, or superintendent shall, within twenty-four hours next after the occurrence, send notice in writing to the inspector resident in the district and shall furnish such particulars in respect thereof as may assist the inspector in making inquiry into the circumstances.

169. Where mining operations have been commenced upon any mine, claim, location or works or where such operations have been discontinued, or where such operations have been recommenced after an abandonment or discontinuance for a period exceeding two months, or where any change is made in the name of a mine or in the name of the owner or agent thereof, or in the officers of any incorporated company which is the owner thereof, the owner or agent of such mine, claim, location or works shall give notice thereof to the Deputy Minister within two months after such abandonment, discontinuance, recommencement or change, and if such notice is not given the owner or agent shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Statistical Returns.

170. (1) For the purpose of their tabulation under the instructions of the Minister, the owner or agent of every mine, quarry or other works to which this Act applies, shall, on or before the 15th day of January in every year, send to the Bureau of Mines a correct return for the year which ended on the 31st day of December next preceding, showing the number of persons ordinarily employed below and above ground respectively, and distinguishing the different classes and ages of the persons so employed whose hours of labour are regulated by this Act, the average rate of wages of each class, and the total amount of wages paid during the year the quantity in standard weight of the mineral dressed, and of the undressed mineral which has been sold, treated or used during such year, and the value or estimated value thereof, and such other particulars as the Minister may by regulation prescribe.

(2) The owner or agent of every metalliferous mine shall, if required, make a similar return for the month or quarter at the end of each month or quarter of the calendar year.

(3) Every owner or agent of a mine, quarry or other works who fails to comply with this section, or makes any return which is to his knowledge false in any particular, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

Plans of Working.

171. (1) On any examination or inspection of a mine the owner shall, if required, produce to the inspector, or to any other person authorized by the Minister or Deputy Minister an accurate plan and sections of the workings of the same.

(2) The plan and sections shall show the workings of the mine up to within six months of the time of the examination or inspection, and the owner shall, if required by the inspector or other authorized person, cause to be marked on the plan the progress of the workings of the mine up to the time of the examination or inspection, and shall also permit him to take a copy or tracing thereof.

(3) An accurate plan on a scale of not more than fifty feet to the inch of every working mine in which levels, crosscuts or other openings have been driven from any shaft adit or tunnel, and of every mine consisting of a tunnel or shaft fifty feet or more in length, shall be made and a certified copy filed in the Bureau of Mines on or before the 31st day of January in each year, showing the workings of the mine up to and including the 31st day of December next preceding.

(4) Before a mine or any part of a mine is abandoned, closed down or otherwise rendered inaccessible, all underground plans and sections shall be brought up to date and a certified copy filed in the Bureau of Mines.

(5) Failure on the part of the owner or agent of the mine to comply with any provision of this section shall be an offence against this Act.

(6) Every such plan shall be treated as confidential information for the use of the officers of the Bureau of Mines, and shall not be exhibited, nor shall any information contained therein be imparted to any person except with the written permission of the owner or agent of the mine.

(7) Every owner or agent of a mine, quarry or other works who fails to comply with this section, or makes any return which is to his knowledge false in any particular, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.<sup>1</sup>

Powers and Duties of Inspector.

172. (1) It shall be the duty of every inspector, and he shall have power,

(a) To make such examination and inquiry as he may deem necessary to ascertain whether the provisions of this Act are complied with;

(b) To enter, inspect, and examine any mine and every portion thereof at all reasonable times by day or night, but so as not to unnecessarily impede or obstruct the working of the mine;

(c) To examine into and make inquiry respecting the state and condition of any mine, or any portion thereof, and the ventilation of the mine, and all matters and things connected with or relating to the safety of the persons employed in or about the mine, or any mine contiguous thereto, and to give notice to the owner or agent in writing of any particulars in which he considers such mine or any portion thereof, or any matter, thing or practice to be dangerous or defective or contrary to the provisions of this Act, and to require the same to be remedied within the time named in such notice;

(d) To order the immediate cessation of work in and the departure of all persons from any mine or portion thereof which he considers unsafe, or to allow persons to continue to work therein on such precautions being taken as he deems necessary;

(e) To exercise such other powers as may be necessary for ensuring the health and safety of miners and all other persons employed in or about mines, smelters, metallurgical and mining works.

(2) It shall be the duty of every inspector to make an annual report of his proceedings during the preceding year to the Deputy Minister.

(3) The annual report shall be laid before the Assembly.

173. (1) The Minister may direct an inspector to make a special report with respect to any accident in or about any mine which has caused loss of life or personal injury to any person.

(2) In conducting the inquiry the inspector shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, documents and things, and to take evidence upon oath.

174. Non-compliance with any rule contained in section 164 or with any other provision of Part IX shall be an offence against Part IX of this Act, of which the owner and the agent of the mine, and every manager, superintendent, captain, foreman, workman and other person engaged in or about the mine shall each be guilty.

175. Where work in or about a mine is let to a contractor or sub-contractor, he shall comply and enforce compliance with all the rules and provisions of Part IX and shall in any case of non-compliance therewith be guilty of an offence and punishable in like manner as if he were owner or agent.

PART X.—OFFENCES, PENALTIES AND PROSECUTIONS.

176. Every person who

(b) wilfully defaces, alters, removes or disturbs any post, stake, picket, boundary line, figure, writing or other mark lawfully placed, standing or made under this Act, or

(c) Wilfully pulls down, injures or defaces any rules or notice posted up by the owner or agent of a mine, or

(d) Wilfully obstructs the Commissioner or any officer appointed under this Act in the execution of his duty, or

(e) Being the owner or agent of a mine refuses or neglects to furnish to the Commissioner or to any person appointed by him or to any officer appointed under this Act the means necessary for making an entry, inspection, examination or inquiry in relation to any mine, under the provisions of this Act other than Part IX, or

(h) Wilfully contravenes any provisions of this Act or any rule or regulation made thereunder for the contravention of which no other penalty is provided, or

(i) Attempts to do any of the acts mentioned in the foregoing clauses, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and shall incur a penalty not exceeding $20 for every day upon which such offence occurs or continues

177. Every person who wilfully neglects or refuses to obey any order or award of the Commissioner except for the payment of money, shall, in addition to any other liability, incur a penalty not exceeding $250, and upon conviction thereof shall be liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months unless such penalty and costs are sooner paid.

179. (1) Every owner, agent, manager, superintendent or captain, who is guilty of an offence against Part IX shall incur a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000.

(2) Every person other than an owner, agent, manager, superintendent or captain engaged or employed in or about a mine who is guilty of an offence against Part IX shall incur a penalty of not less than $10 nor more than $100.

(3) Where the Deputy Minister or an inspector has given written notice to an owner or agent or any person engaged or employed in or about a mine that an offence has been committed against Part IX, such owner or agent or other person shall incur a further penalty not exceeding $100 for every day upon which the offence continues after such notice.

(4) Every such owner or agent shall upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months unless the penalty and costs are sooner paid, and every person other than an owner or agent so employed shall upon conviction be liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month unless the penalty and costs are sooner paid.

(5) Where the offence is one which might have endangered the safety of those employed in or about the mine or caused serious personal injury or dangerous accident and was committed wilfully by the personal act, default or negligence of the accused, every person who is guilty of an offence against Part IX shall, in addition to or in substitution for any pecuniary penalty that may be imposed, be liable to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a period not exceeding three months.

180. (1) No prosecution shall be instituted for an offence against Part IX or any regulation made in pursuance thereof, except

(a) By an inspector, or

(b) By the direction of the County or District Crown Attorney, or

(c) By the leave in writing of the Attorney General; or for an offence against any other of the provisions of this Act or of any rule or regulation made in pursuance thereof, except

(a) By or by leave of the Commissioner or a Recorder.

(b) By leave of the Attorney General, or

(c) By direction of the County or District Crown Attorney;

No person not being the actual offender shall be liable in respect of such offence if he proves that he did not participate in the contravention of the rule or provisions for a breach of which he is charged and that he was not to blame for such breach and that according to his position and authority he took all reasonable means in his power to prevent such breach and to secure compliance with the rules and provisions of Part IX.

(2) The burden of showing that the observance or carrying out of any rule contained in section 164 was not deemed by the inspector to be reasonably practicable shall be upon the accused, but it may be proved by a certificate from the inspector or by his evidence given at the hearing.

181. (1) Except as to offences against section 12, every prosecution for an offence against or for the recovery of a penalty imposed by or under the authority of this Act shall take place before a police magistrate or a justice of the peace having jurisdiction in the county or district in which the offence is committed, or before the commissioner or a recorder, and, save as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act" shall apply to every such prosecution.

(2) The prosecution shall be commenced within six months after the commission of the offence.

PART XI.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Lien for Wages

182. The provisions of "The Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act" shall apply to mines, mining claims, mining lands or works connected therewith, except that in the case of unpatented land and mining rights the registration provided for by the said Act shall be in the office of the recorder.

183. (1) Every person who performs labour for wages in connection with any mine, mining claim, mining lands or works connected therewith shall have a lien thereon and upon any other property of the owner therein or thereon for such wages, not exceeding the wages for thirty days, or a sum equal to his wages for thirty days, and such lien may be enforced in the manner provided by section 182.

(2) Where satisfied that any claim for lien recorded under or by reason of this or the next preceding section is made or recorded improperly or for the purpose of embarrassment, the Commissioner may cancel and remove the same.

183a. Notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, every person who performs labour for wages in connection with any mine, mining claim, mining lands, or works connected therewith, shall be paid such wages at intervals of not more than two weeks. 1916, c. 12, s. 4.

[Section 184, forbidding the issuing of liquor licenses within six miles of certain mines, became inoperative on the repeal of the Liquor License Act by the Ontario Temperance Act 1916, chapter 5.]

Preservation of Peace.

185. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may declare by proclamation that The Public Works Peace Preservation Act shall be in force in any Mining Division or in any defined locality therein, and upon and after the date named in any such proclamation section 1 and sections 3 to 11 inclusive of that Act, shall take effect within the Mining Division or locality designated in the proclamation, and the provisions of the said Act shall apply to all persons employed in any mine or in mining within the limits of such Mining Division or locality in the same manner and to the same extent as nearly as may be as if the persons so employed had been specially mentioned and referred to in such Act.

Regulations by Order in Council.

188. (1) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary for carrying out the provisions of this Act or to meet cases which may arise for which no provision is made in the Act, or when he deems the provision made to be ambiguous or doubtful, and may impose penalties not exceeding $200 or not exceeding three months' imprisonment for the violation of any such rule or regulation.

(3) Rules and regulations made under the provisions of this section shall have force and effect only after the same shall have been published in the Ontario Gazette, and if made when the Assembly is sitting shall be laid before the Assembly during the then Session, and if made at any other time shall be laid before the Assembly within the first fifteen days of the Session next after the date thereof, and in case the Assembly at such Session, or if the Session does not continue for three weeks after such rules or regulations are laid before the Assembly, at the ensuing Session, disapproves by resolution of such rule or regulation either wholly or in part, the rule or regulation, so far as the same is disapproved, shall have no effect from the time such resolution is passed. (Forms omitted.)

Peace Preservation on Public Works.

Chapter 36.—1. This Act may be cited as The Public Works Peace Preservation Act.

2. In this Act "Weapon" shall include any gun or other firearm, or air-gun, or any part thereof, or any sword, sword blade, bayonet, pike, pike-head, spear, spear-head, dirk, dagger, knife or other instrument intended for cutting or stabbing, or any metal knuckles, or other deadly or dangerous weapon, and any instrument or thing intended to be used as a weapon, and all ammunition which may be used with or for any weapon.

3. (1) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may by proclamation declare that on and after a day to be named therein, this Act shall be in force in any place in Ontario in which or in the vicinity of which any public Dominion or Provincial work, or a canal, railway or other work undertaken or carried on by an incorporated company is in process of construction, and the same shall take effect accordingly.

(2) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, in like manner, declare this Act to be no longer in force in such place; but this shall not prevent the Lieutenant-Governor in Council from again declaring the same to be in force in such place.

(3) No such proclamation shall have effect within the limits of a city.

4. (1) Upon and after the day so named in the proclamation, no person employed in or upon any such work within the limits specified in the proclamation, shall keep or have in his possession or under his care or control, within such limits, any weapon, under a penalty of not less than $2 nor more than $10 for every such weapon found in his possession, unless such person is a justice of the peace or a public officer, a soldier, sailor or volunteer in His Majesty's service, on duty, or a constable or other peace officer, or has a certificate of exemption from the operation of this section as hereinafter provided, or has at the time reasonable cause to fear an assault or other injury to his person, family or property.

(2) If sufficient cause is shown upon oath to the satisfaction of any justice of the peace, he may grant to an applicant therefor not under the age of sixteen years, and as to whose discretion and good character he is satisfied by evidence upon oath, a certificate of exemption from the operation of this section for such period not exceeding twelve months, as he deems fit.

(3) Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of its contents and of the signature and official character of the person by whom it purports to be granted.

5. Before the day so named in the proclamation, every person employed in or upon any such work, who is not exempted under the next preceding section, shall bring and deliver up to a justice of the peace or to a commissioner appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor for the purposes of this Act every weapon in his possession, and shall be entitled to obtain from him a receipt for the same.

6. When this Act ceases to be in force within the place where any weapon has been delivered up and detained in pursuance thereof, or when the owner or person lawfully entitled to such weapon satisfies the justice or commissioner that he is about to remove immediately from the limits within which this Act is at the time in force, the justice or commissioner may deliver up to the owner or person authorized to receive the same, such weapon, on production of the receipt so given for it.

7. Every weapon found in the possession of a person so employed after the day so named in the proclamation, and within the limits set forth in the proclamation, may be seized by any justice, commissioner, constable or other peace officer, and thereupon shall be forfeited to the use of His Majesty.

8. If a person, for the purpose of defeating this Act, receives or conceals, or aids in receiving or concealing, or procures to be received or concealed, within the limits within which this Act is at the time in force, any weapon belonging to or in the custody of a person employed on any such work, he shall incur a penalty of not less than $40 nor more than $100.

9. (1) A justice of the peace or commissioner having authority within the place where this Act is at the time in force, upon the oath of a credible witness that he believes that a weapon is in the possession of any person or in any house or place, contrary to the provisions of this Act, may issue his warrant to a constable or peace officer, to search for and seize the same, and he or any person in his aid may search for and seize the same in possession of any person, or in such house or place.

(2) If admission to such house or place cannot otherwise be obtained after demand, the constable or peace officer, and person in his aid, may enter the same by force, by day or by night, and seize such weapon; and unless the person within whose possession or in whose house or place the same is found, within four days next after the seizure, proves to the satisfaction of the justice or commissioner that the weapon so seized was not in his possession or in his house or place contrary to the provisions of this Act, such weapons shall be forfeited for the use of His Majesty.

10. Every justice or commissioner shall make to the Provincial Secretary a monthly return of all weapons delivered to or seized by him, and detained under this Act.

11. Weapons forfeited under this Act shall be sold under the direction of the justice or commissioner by whom or by whose authority the same were seized, and the proceeds of the sale after deducting necessary expenses, shall be received by the justice or commissioner and paid over by him to the Treasurer of Ontario.

12. The penalties imposed by this Act shall be recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act."

Mounted Police Force.

13. For the better carrying this Act into effect, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may cause a body of men not exceeding one hundred, inclusive of officers, and to be called "The Ontario Mounted Police Force," to be raised, mounted, armed and equipped, and to be placed under the command of such officers as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council deems necessary, and may cause such police force, or any part thereof to be employed, in any place in which this Act is in force, under such regulations as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall from time to time prescribe.

14. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint the chief officers and such of the subordinate officers of the police force, and such other persons as he deems necessary, to be justices of the peace for the purposes of this Act for any place in which this Act is in force; and such officers and persons may act as justices of the peace, although they may not have the qualifications in property required of others or may not reside in the county or district.

15. The men in the police force shall be constables and peace officers for the purposes of this Act, for the county or district in which they are employed.

Expenses.

16. The expenses of carrying this Act into effect upon or near a provincial public work shall be paid through the Minister of Public Works out of the money appropriated for the work on which the expenses are incurred, and shall be charged as part of the cost of the work; but the sum expended in any one year shall not exceed $40,000.

17. The expenses attending the employment of such police force in any place in or in the vicinity whereof a railway, canal or work, undertaken and carried on by an incorporated company is in course of construction, shall in the first instance be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, and shall, on demand, be repaid to the treasurer of Ontario by the incorporated Company, or, if not so repaid, may be recovered by the company as a debt due to the Crown; and, when recovered, shall form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Bureau of Labour.

Chapter 37.—1. This Act may be cited as The Bureau of Labour Act.

2. There shall be attached to the Department of Public Works a Bureau, to be styled "The Bureau of Labour."

3. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a secretary of the said Bureau, and may also appoint such other officers as may be deemed necessary for the proper conduct of the Bureau.

4. It shall be the duty of the Bureau to collect, assort, systematise and publish information and statistics relating to employment, wages and hours of labour, co-operation, strikes, lockouts, or other labour difficulties, trades unions, labour organizations, the relations between labour and capital, and other subjects of interest to workmen throughout Ontario, with such information relating to the commercial, industrial and sanitary condition of workmen, and the permanent prosperity of the industries of Ontario, as the Bureau may be able to gather.

Employees' Pensions.

Chapter 39 with amendment.—6cc. The [Hydro-Electric Power] Commission, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may establish a fund for the payment to permanent employees of the Commission, of superannuation and retiring allowances, or of a gratuity or annual allowance to the dependants of employees dying while in the service of the Commission, and a fund for providing sick benefits for permanent employees, and may provide for contributions to such fund by the Commission and by its employees, or for the establishment and support of such fund entirely at the cost of the Commission. 1919, c. 16, s. 2.

6ccc. The Commission, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may enter into an agreement with the corporation of any municipality receiving power from the Commission for including permanent employees of any commission established under The Public Utilities Act, or under this Act, for the management and control of works for the distribution of electrical power or energy in the municipality, upon such terms as to the contribution by a municipal corporation and otherwise as may be deemed expedient. 1919, c. 16, s. 2.

Protection of Employees—Inspection and Regulation of Electrical Works.

Chapter 39 with amendments.—37. (1) The [Hydro-Electric Power] Commission may, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, make regulations as to design, construction, installation, protection, operation, maintenance and inspection of works, plant, machinery, apparatus, appliances, devices, material and equipment for the generation, transmission, distribution, connection and use of electrical power or energy by any municipal corporation or commission and by any railway, street railway, electric light, power or transmission company, or by any other company or individual generating, transmitting, distributing or using electric power or energy, or whose undertaking works or premises are electrically connected with any plant for the generation, transmission or distribution of electric power or energy, and the Commission may impose penalties for the breach of any such regulations. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(2) The Commission may, at any time, order such work to be done in the installation, removal, alteration or protection of any of the works mentioned in subsection 1, as the Commission may deem necessary for the safety of the public, or of workmen, or for the protection of the property damaged by fire or otherwise, and pending the performance of such work, or in case of non-compliance with the regulations or with any order of the Commission, may order the supply of electrical power or energy to be cut off from such works. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(3) The Commission may appoint inspectors for the purpose of seeing that the regulations and orders of the Commission, made under the authority of this section, or any other provision of this Act, are carried out and may collect the fees to be paid by any municipal corporation or commission, or by any company, firm, or individual under the regulations or by order of the Commission, and may provide for the payment of the remuneration, travelling and other expenses of the inspector out of the fines and fees so collected or out of the funds appropriated for carrying on the work of the Commission. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(4) Every inspector so appointed may, during any reasonable hour, enter upon, pass over or through any land, buildings or premises for the purpose of carrying out the regulations and orders of the Commission, and perform the duties assigned to him; and every municipal corporation or commission, company, firm, or individual, molesting, hindering, disturbing or interfering with an inspector in the performance of his duty, shall be guilty of an offence, and shall incur the penalty provided by subsection 7. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(5) Every municipal corporation or commission, and every company, firm, or individual, upon receiving notice in writing by the Commission to remedy any defect or to make any alteration, or carry out any work, or comply with such notice within the time thereby prescribed, and in default, shall incur the penalty provided by subsection 9. 1916, c. 19, s. 10. Amended 1917, c. 20, s. 12.

(6) Every municipal corporation or commission, and every company, firm or individual, supplying electrical power or energy for use in any electric works, plant, machinery, apparatus appliance or equipment before the same have been inspected and such supply authorized by the certificate of the Commission, and after notice from the Commission of the unauthorized supply or use, shall incur a penalty of not less than $300 nor more than $500. 1916, c. 19, s. 10

(7) Every municipal corporation or commission, and every company, firm and individual, refusing or neglecting to disconnect or discontinue the supply of electricity to any electric works, plant, machinery, apparatus, appliance or equipment, upon due notice in writing from the commissioner so to do, shall incur a penalty of not less than $300 nor more than $500. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(8) Nothing in this Act shall affect the liability of any municipal corporation or commission, or of any company, firm or individual, for damages caused to any person or property by reason of any defect in any electric works, plant, machinery, apparatus, appliance, device, material, or equipment, or in the installation or protection thereof, nor shall the Commission or any inspector incur any liability by reason of any inspection or the issue of any certificate or on account of any loss occasioned by the cutting off of the supply of electrical power or energy in accordance with the orders of the Commission. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(9) Every municipal corporation or commission, and every company, firm or individual, disobeying the provisions of this Act, or of the regulations, or any order of the Commission, shall incur a penalty of not less than $10 nor more than $50, and in the event of continuing the offence, of not less than $10 nor more than $50 for every day during which such offence continues. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(10) The penalties imposed by or under the authority of this section shall be recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act" and shall be paid over to the Commission. 1916, c. 19, s. 10.

(11) This section shall not apply to any mine as defined in The Mining Act of Ontario, save only as regards any dwelling-house or other building not connected with or required for mining operations or purposes or used for the treatment of ore or mineral. 1918, c. 14, s. 15.

40. A municipal corporation or municipal commission and any company or individual neglecting or refusing to obey and carry out any order or direction of the Commission or of a member thereof made under section 36, or of the Commission made under sections 37, 38 or 39, in addition to any other liability, shall forfeit to His Majesty for the use of Ontario the sum of $100 for every day during which such neglect or refusal shall continue.

Earnings of Minors—Suits for Wages.

Chapter 63.—66. A minor may sue for any sum not exceeding $100 due to him for wages, or for work or services, as if he were of full age.

Earnings of Woodmen—Suits for Wages.

Chapter 63.—72. (1) An action may be entered and tried

(a) In the court for the division in which the cause of action arose or in which the defendant, or any one of several defendants, resides or carries on business at the time the action is brought; or

(b) In the court the place of sitting whereof is the nearest to the residence of the defendant.

Provided, that any action for wages of a woodman may be entered and tried in the court holden for the division in which the contract of hiring was made, notwithstanding any stipulation in the contract of employment or otherwise. In this section "woodman" shall mean a person performing labour or services in connection with any logs or timber, and shall include cooks, blacksmiths, artisans and all others usually employed in connection with such labour or services.

(2) In the cases provided for by clause (b) of subsection 1 and by subsection 2 of section 80, the summons may be served by a bailiff of the court out of which it issues, and upon judgment being recovered execution against the goods and chattels of the debtor, and all other process and proceedings to enforce payment of the judgment, may be issued to the bailiff of such court, and be executed and enforced by him in the county in which the debtor resides, as well as in the county in which the judgment was recovered.

Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Liens.

Chapter 140 with amendments.—1. This Act may be cited as The Mechanics' and Wage-Earners' Lien Act.

2. In this Act,

(a) "Contractor" shall mean a person contracting with or employed directly by the owner or his agent for the doing of any work or service or placing or furnishing materials for any of the purposes mentioned in this Act;

(b) "Material" or "materials" shall include every kind of movable property;

(c) "Owner" shall extend to any person, body corporate or politic, including a municipal corporation and a railway company, having any estate or interest in the land upon or in respect of which the work or service is done, or materials are placed or furnished, at whose request and

(i) upon whose credit or

(ii) on whose behalf or

(iii) with whose privity and consent or

(iv) for whose direct benefit

work or service is performed or materials are placed or furnished, and all persons claiming under him or them whose rights are acquired after the work or service in respect of which the lien is claimed is commenced or the materials furnished have been commenced to be furnished;

(d) "Registrar" shall include Master of Titles and Local Master of Titles;

(e) "Registry Office" shall include Land Titles Office;

(f) "Sub-contractor" shall mean a person not contracting with or employed directly by the owner or his agent for the purposes aforesaid, but contracting with or employed by a contractor, or under him by another sub-contractor.

(g) "Wages" shall mean money earned by a mechanic or labourer for work done, whether by the day or other time or as piece work.

3. Nothing in this Act shall extend to any public street or highway, or to any work or improvement done or caused to be done by a municipal corporation thereon.

4. (1) Every agreement, verbal or written, express or implied, on the part of any workman, servant, labourer, mechanic or other person employed in any kind of manual labour intended to be dealt with in this Act, that this Act shall not apply, or that the remedies provided by it shall not be available for the benefit of such person, shall be null and void.

(2) This section shall not apply to a manager, officer or foreman, or to any other person whose wages are more than $5 a day.

5. No agreement shall deprive any person otherwise entitled to a lien under this Act who is not a party to the agreement, of the benefit of the lien, but it shall attach, notwithstanding such agreement.

6. Unless he signs an express agreement to the contrary, and in that case subject to the provisions of section 4, any person who performs any work or service upon or in respect of, or places or furnishes any materials to be used in the making, constructing, erecting, fitting, altering, improving, or repairing of any erection, building, railway, land, wharf, pier, bulkhead, bridge, trestlework, vault, mine, well, excavation, fence, sidewalk, pavement, fountain, fishpond, drain, sewer, aqueduct, roadbed, way, fruit or ornamental trees, or the appurtenances to any of them, for any owner, contractor, or sub-contractor, shall by virtue thereof have a lien for the price of such work, service or materials upon the erection, building, railway, land, wharf, pier, bulkhead, bridge, trestlework, vault, mine, well, excavation, fence, sidewalk, paving, fountain, fishpond, drain, sewer, aqueduct, roadbed, way, fruit or ornamental trees, and appurtenances, and the land occupied thereby or enjoyed therewith, or upon or in respect of which such work or service is performed, or upon or adjacent to which such materials are placed or furnished to be used, limited, however, in amount to the sum justly due to the person entitled to the lien and to the sum justly owing, except as herein provided, by the owner. Amended 1918, c. 29, s. 1.

7. Where work or service is done or materials are furnished upon or in respect of the land of a married woman with the privity and consent of her husband, he shall be conclusively presumed to be acting as well for himself so as to bind his own interest, and also as her agent for the purposes of this Act, unless before doing such work or service or furnishing such materials the person doing or furnishing the same shall have had actual notice to the contrary.

8. (1) Save as herein otherwise provided, the lien shall attach upon the estate or interest of the owner in the property mentioned in section 6. Amended 1918, c. 29, s. 3.

(2) Where the estate or interest upon which the lien attaches is leasehold, the fee simple may also, with the consent of the owner thereof, be subject to the lien, provided that such consent is testified by the signature of the owner upon the claim of lien at the time of the registering thereof, verified by affidavit.

(3) Where the land upon or in respect of which any work or service is performed, or materials are placed or furnished to be used, is encumbered by a prior mortgage or other charge, and the selling value of the land is increased by the work or service, or by the furnishing or placing of the materials, the lien shall attach upon such increased value in priority to the mortgage or other charge.

(4) The selling value of land encumbered by a prior mortgage or other charge, shall be deemed to be increased by the value of the work or service performed upon and of the material furnished or placed thereon or adjacent thereto. 1918, c. 29, s. 4.

9. Where any of the property upon which a lien attaches is wholly or partly destroyed by fire any money received by reason of any insurance thereon by an owner or prior mortgagee or chargee shall take the place of the property so destroyed, and shall be subject to the claims of all persons for liens to the same extent as if such money was realized by the sale of such property in an action to enforce the lien.

10. Save as herein otherwise provided the lien shall not attach so as to make the owner liable for a greater sum than the sum payable by the owner to the contractor.

11. Save as herein otherwise provided, where the lien is claimed by any person other than the contractor the amount which may be claimed in respect thereof shall be limited to the amount owing to the contractor or sub-contractor or other person for whom the work or service has been done or the materials placed or furnished.

12. (1) In all cases the person primarily liable upon any contract under or by virtue of which a lien may arise shall, as the work is done or materials are furnished under the contract, deduct from any payments to be made by him in respect of the contract, and retain for a period of thirty days after the completion or abandonment of the contract twenty per cent of the value of the work, service and materials actually done, placed or furnished as mentioned in section 6, and such value shall be calculated on the basis of the contract price, or if there is no specific contract price, then on the basis of the actual value of the work, service or materials.

(2) Where the contract price or actual value exceeds $15,000, the amount to be retained shall be fifteen per cent instead of twenty per cent.

(3) The lien shall be a charge upon the amount directed to be retained by this section in favour of sub-contractors whose liens are derived under persons to whom such moneys so required to be retained are respectively payable.

(4) All payments up to eighty per cent, or eighty-five per cent where the contract price or actual value exceeds $15,000, of such price or value made in good faith by an owner to a contractor, or by a contractor to a sub-contractor or by one sub-contractor to another sub-contractor, before notice in writing of such lien given by the person claiming the lien to him, shall operate as a discharge pro tanto of the lien.

(5) Payment of the percentage required to be retained under sub-sections 1 and 2 may be validly made so as to discharge all liens or charges in respect thereof after the expiration of the period of thirty days mentioned in subsection 1 unless in the meantime proceedings have been commenced to enforce any lien or charge against any such percentage as provided by sections 23 and 24.

13. If an owner, contractor, or sub-contractor makes a payment to any person entitled to a lien under section 6 for or on account of any debt justly due to him for work or service done or for materials placed or furnished to be used as therein mentioned, for which he is not primarily liable, and within three days afterwards gives, by letter or otherwise, written notice of such payment to the person primarily liable, or his agent, such payment shall be deemed to be a payment on his contract generally to the contractor or sub-contractor primarily liable, but not so as to affect the percentage to be retained by the owner as provided by section 12.

14. (1) The lien shall have priority over all judgments, executions, assignments, attachments, garnishments, and receiving orders recovered, issued or made after such lien arises, and over all payments or advances made on account of any conveyance or mortgage after notice in writing of such lien to the person making such payments or after registration of a claim for such lien as hereinafter provided

(2) Save as herein otherwise provided, where there is an agreement for the purchase of land, and the purchase money or part thereof is unpaid, and no conveyance has been made to the purchaser, he shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed a mortgagor and the seller a mortgagee. Amended 1918, c. 29, s. 5.

(3) Except where it is otherwise provided by this Act, no person entitled to a lien on any property or money shall be entitled to any priority or preference over another person of the same class entitled to a lien on such property or money, and each class of lien holders shall rank pari passu for their several amounts, and the proceeds of any sale shall be distributed among them pro rata according to their several classes and rights.

15. (1) Every mechanic or labourer whose lien is for wages shall, to the extent of thirty days' wages, have priority over all other liens derived through the same contractor or sub-contractor to the extent of and on the twenty per cent or fifteen per cent, as the case may be, directed to be retained by section 12, to which the contractor or sub-contractor through whom such lien is derived is entitled, and all such mechanics and labourers shall rank thereon pari passu.

(2) Every wage-earner shall be entitled to enforce a lien in respect of a contract not completely fulfilled.

(3) If the contract has not been completed when the lien is claimed by a wage-earner, the percentage shall be calculated on the value of the work done or materials furnished by the contractor or sub-contractor by whom such wage-earner is employed, having regard to the contract price, if any.

(4) Where the contractor or sub-contractor makes default in completing his contract the percentage shall not, as against a wage-earner claiming a lien, be applied by the owner or contractor to the completion of the contract or for any other purpose, nor to the payment of damages for the non-completion of the contract by the contractor or sub-contractor, nor in payment or satisfaction of any claim against the contractor or sub-contractor.

(5) Every device by an owner, contractor or sub-contractor to defeat the priority given to a wage-earner for his wages, and every payment made for the purpose of defeating or impairing a lien shall be null and void.

Material.

16. (1) During the continuance of a lien no part of the material affected thereby shall be removed to the prejudice of the lien.

(2) Material actually brought upon or adjacent to any land to be used in connection with such land for any of the purposes enumerated in section 6, shall be subject to a lien in favour of the person furnishing it until placed in the building, erection or work, and shall not be subject to execution or other process to enforce any debt other than for the purchase thereof, due by the person furnishing the same. Amended 1918, c. 29, s. 2.

Registration of Lien.

(As to registration of liens against mining claims and mining lands, see R.S.O. c. 32, s. 182.)

17. (1) A claim for a lien, Forms 1, 2 and 3, may be registered in the registry office of the registry division, or where the land is registered under The Land Titles Act in the land titles office of the locality in which the land is situate, and shall set out:—

(a) the name and residence of the person claiming the lien and of the owner, or of the person whom the person claiming the lien, or his agent, believes to be the owner of the land, and of the person for whom the work or service was or is to be done, or materials furnished or placed, and the time within which the same was or was to be done or furnished or placed;

(b) a short description of the work or service done or to be done, or materials furnished or placed or to be furnished or placed;

(c) the sum claimed as due or to become due;

(d) a description of the land sufficient for the purpose of registration and, where the land is registered under The Land Titles Act, also a reference to the number of the parcel of the land and to the register in which such land is registered in the Land Titles Office;

(e) the date of expiry of the period of credit when credit has been given.

(2) The claim shall be verified by the affidavit, Form 4, of the person claiming the lien, or of his agent or assignee having a personal knowledge of the matters required to be verified, and the affidavit of the agent or assignee shall state that he has such knowledge.

(3) When it is desired to register a claim for lien against a railway it shall be a sufficient description of the land of the railway company to describe it as the land of the railway company, and every such claim shall be registered in the general registry in the registry office for the registry division within which such lien is claimed to have arisen.

18. A claim for lien may include claims against any number of properties, and any number of persons claiming liens upon the same property may unite therein, but where more than one lien is included in one claim each lien shall be verified by affidavit as provided in section 17.

19. (1) A substantial compliance with sections 17, 18 and 31 shall be sufficient, and no lien shall be invalidated by reason of failure to comply with any of the requisites of those sections unless, in the opinion of the court, judge or officer who tries an action under this Act, the owner, contractor or sub-contractor, mortgagee or other person, is prejudiced thereby, and then only to the extent to which he is thereby prejudiced. Amended 1916, c. 30, s. 4.

(2) Nothing in this section shall dispense with registration of the claim for lien.

20. (1) The registrar, upon payment of the proper fee, shall register the claim, describing it as "Mechanic's Lien," against the land therein described in like manner as if it were a mortgage, but he shall not copy the claim or affidavit in any registry book.

(2) The fee for registration of a claim for lien shall be twenty-five cents, and if several persons join in one claim the registrar shall be entitled to a further fee of ten cents for each person after the first.

21. Where a claim is so registered the person entitled to the lien shall be deemed a purchaser pro tanto and within the provisions of The Registry Act and The Land Titles Act, but except as herein otherwise provided those Acts shall not apply to any lien arising under this Act.

22. (1) A claim for lien by a contractor or sub-contractor in cases not otherwise provided for, may be registered before or during the performance of the contract, or within thirty days after the completion or abandonment thereof.

(2) A claim for lien for materials may be registered before or during the furnishing or placing thereof, or within thirty days after the furnishing or placing of the last material so furnished or placed.

(3) A claim for lien for services may be registered at any time during the performance of the service or within thirty days after the completion of the service.

(4) A claim for lien for wages may be registered at any time during the performance of the work for which such wages are claimed, or within thirty days after the last work is done for which the lien is claimed.

(5) In the case of a contract which is under the supervision of an architect, engineer or other person upon whose certificate payments are to be made, the claim for lien by a contractor may be registered within the time mentioned in subsection (1), or within seven days after the architect, engineer or other person has given, or has, upon application to him by the contractor, refused to give a final certificate.

Expiry and Discharge of Lien.

23. Every lien for which a claim is not registered shall absolutely cease to exist on the expiration of the time hereinbefore limited for the registration thereof unless in the meantime an action is commenced to realize the claim, or in which the claim may be realized under the provisions of this Act, and a certificate thereof is registered in the registry office in which the claim for lien might have been registered.

24. (1) Every lien for which a claim has been registered shall absolutely cease to exist on the expiration of ninety days after the work or service has been completed or materials have been furnished or placed, or after the expiry of the period of credit, where such period is mentioned in the claim for lien registered, or in the cases provided for by subsection 5 of section 22, on the expiration of thirty days from the registration of the claim, unless in the meantime an action is commenced to realize the claim or in which the claim may be realized under the provisions of this Act, and a certificate is registered as provided by the next preceding section.

(2) Where the period of credit mentioned in the claim for lien registered has not expired it shall nevertheless cease to have any effect on the expiration of six months from the registration or any re-registration thereof if the claim is not again registered within that period, unless in the meantime an action is commenced and a certificate thereof has been registered as provided by subsection (1).

25. If there is no period of credit, or if the date of the expiry of the period of credit is not stated in the claim so registered, the lien shall cease to exist upon the expiration of ninety days after the work or service has been completed or materials furnished or placed, unless in the meantime an action is commenced and a certificate thereof registered as provided by section 23.

26. The right of a lien holder may be assigned by an instrument in writing and, if not assigned, upon his death shall pass to his personal representative.

27. (1) A lien may be discharged by a receipt signed by the claimant, or his agent duly authorized in writing, acknowledging payment, and verified by affidavit and registered.

(2) The receipt shall be numbered and entered like other instruments, but shall not be copied in any registry book, and there shall be entered against the entry of the lien to which the discharge relates the word, "discharged" and the registration number of such discharge.

(3) The fee shall be the same as for registering a claim.

(4) Upon application the court, judge or officer having jurisdiction to try an action to realize a lien, may allow security for or payment into court of the amount of the claim, and may thereupon order that the registration of the lien be vacated or may vacate the registration upon any other proper ground and a certificate of the order may be registered.

(5) Where the certificate required by sections 23 or 24 has not been registered within the prescribed time, and an application is made to vacate the registration of a claim for lien after the time for registration of the certificate required by sections 23, 24 or 25, the order vacating the lien may be made ex parte upon production of the certificate of the proper registrar certifying the facts entitling the applicant to such order.

Effect of Taking Security or Extending Time.

28. (1) The taking of any security for, or the acceptance of any promissory note or bill of exchange for, or the taking of any acknowledgment of the claim, or the giving of time for the payment thereof, or the taking of any proceedings for the recovery, or the recovery of a personal judgment for the claim, shall not merge, waive, pay, satisfy, prejudice or destroy the lien unless the claimant agrees in writing that it shall have that effect.

(2) Where any such promissory note or bill of exchange has been negotiated the lien holder shall not thereby lose his lien if, at the time of bringing his action to enforce it, or where an action is brought by another lien holder, he is, at the time of proving his claim in such action, the holder of such promissory note or bill of exchange.

(3) Nothing in subsection 2 shall extend the time limited by this Act for bringing the action to enforce the lien.

(4) A person who has extended the time for payment of a claim for which he has a lien, to obtain the benefit of this section, shall commence an action to enforce such lien within the time prescribed by this Act, and shall register a certificate as required by sections 23, 24 or 25, but no further proceedings shall be taken in the action until the expiration of such extension of time.

29. When the period of credit in respect of a claim has not expired, or where there has been an extension of time for the payment of the claim, the lien holder may nevertheless, if an action is commenced by any other person to enforce a lien against the same property, prove and obtain payment of his claim in such action as if the period of credit or the extended time had expired.

Lien Holder's Right to Information.

30. (1) Any lien holder may at any time demand of the owner or his agent the terms of the contract or agreement with the contractor for and in respect of which the work, service or material is or is to be performed or furnished or placed, and if such owner or his agent does not, at the time of such demand or within a reasonable time thereafter, inform the person making such demand of the terms of such contract or agreement, and the amount due and unpaid upon such contract or agreement, or if he knowingly falsely states the terms of the contract or agreement, or the amount due or unpaid thereon, and if the person claiming the lien sustains loss by reason of such refusal or neglect or false statement, the owner shall be liable to him in an action therefor for the amount of such loss.

(2) The court, judge or officer having jurisdiction to try an action to realize a lien may, on a summary application at any time before or after an action is commenced for the enforcement of such lien, make an order requiring the owner or his agent to produce and allow any lien holder to inspect any such contract or agreement upon such terms as to costs as he may deem just.

Action to Realize Claim.

31. (1) A lien may be realized by action in the Supreme Court, according to the ordinary procedure of that Court, excepting where the same is varied by this Act.

(2) Without issuing a writ of summons an action shall be commenced by filing in the proper office a statement of claim, verified by affidavit, Form 5, which affidavit may be made by any of the persons named in subsection 2 of section 17. Amended 1916, c. 30, s. 5.

(3) The statement of claim shall be served within one month after it is filed, but a judge or officer having jurisdiction to try the action may extend the time for service thereof, and the time for delivering the statement of defence shall be the same as for entering an appearance in an action in the Supreme Court.

(4) It shall not be necessary to make any lien holders parties defendant to the action, but all lien holders served with the notice of trial shall for all purposes be deemed parties to the action.

32. Any number of lien holders claiming liens on the same land may join in an action, and an action brought by a lien holder shall be taken to be brought on behalf of the other lien holders.

33. The action shall be tried in the county of York before the Master in Ordinary or the Assistant Master in Ordinary, and outside of the county of York, before a judge of the county or district court of the county or district in which the land is situate. 1916, c. 30, s. 1.

34. The Master in Ordinary, Assistant Master in Ordinary and the county or district judge in addition to their ordinary powers shall have all the jurisdiction, powers and authority of the Supreme Court to try and completely dispose of the action and questions arising therein. 1916, c. 30, s. 2.

35. Where more actions than one are brought to realize liens in respect of the same land a judge or officer having jurisdiction to try such actions may, on the application of any party to any one of them, or on the application of any other person interested, consolidate all such actions into one action, and may give the conduct of the consolidated action to any plaintiff as he may see fit.

36. Any lien holder entitled to the benefit of an action may apply for the carriage of the proceedings, and the judge or officer may make an order giving such lien holder the carriage of the proceedings.

37. (1) After the delivery of the statement of defence where the plaintiff's claim is disputed, or after the time for delivery of defence in all other cases, where it is desired to try the action otherwise than before a judge of the Supreme Court, either party may apply ex-parte to a judge or officer who has jurisdiction to try the action to fix a day for the trial thereof, and the judge or officer shall appoint the day and place of trial. Amended 1914, c. 21, s. 30 (1).

(2) The party obtaining an appointment for the trial shall, at least eight clear days before the day appointed, serve notice of trial, Form 6, upon the solicitors for the defendants who appear by solicitors, and upon defendants who appear in person, and on all lien holders who have registered their claims as required by this Act, or who are known to him, and on all other persons having any charge, incumbrance or claim on the land subsequent in priority to the lien, who are not parties, and such service shall be personal unless otherwise directed by the judge or officer who may direct in what manner the notice of trial may be served.

(3) The judge or officer shall try the action and all questions which arise therein or which are necessary to be tried in order to completely dispose of the action and to adjust the rights and liabilities of the persons appearing before him or upon whom the notice has been served, and shall take all accounts, make all inquiries, give all directions, and do all other things necessary to finally dispose of the action and of all matters, questions, and accounts arising therein or at the trial, and to adjust the rights and liabilities of and give all necessary relief to all parties to the action and all persons who have been served with the notice of trial, and shall embody the results in a judgment, Form 7.

(4) The judge or officer may order that the estate or interest on which the lien attaches be sold, and where, by the judgment, a sale is directed he may direct the sale to take place at any time after the judgment, allowing a reasonable time for advertising such sale.

(5) The judge or officer may also direct the sale of any materials and authorize the removal thereof.

(6) A lien holder who has not proved his claim at the trial, on application to the judge or officer before whom the action was tried, may be let in to prove his claim on such terms as to costs and otherwise as may be deemed just at any time before the amount realized in the action for the satisfaction of liens has been distributed, and where such a claim is allowed the judgment shall be amended so as to include such claim.

(7) Every lien holder for an amount not exceeding $100 may be represented by a solicitor or by an agent who is not a solicitor.

38. Where a sale is had the judge or officer with whose approbation the sale takes place shall make a report thereon and therein direct to whom the money realized shall be paid, and may add to the claim of the person conducting the sale his fees and actual disbursements in connection therewith, and where enough to satisfy the judgment and costs is not realized he shall certify the amount of the deficiency and the names of the persons, with their amounts, who are entitled to recover the same, and the persons by the judgment adjudged to pay the same, and the persons entitled may enforce payment by execution or otherwise as on a judgment. 1914, c. 21, s. 30 (2).

39. Where property subject to a lien is sold in an action to enforce a lien, every lien holder shall be entitled to share in the proceeds of the sale in respect of the amount then owing to him although the same or part thereof was not payable at the time of the commencement of the action or is not then presently payable.

New Trial and Appeal.

40. (1) Where the aggregate amount of the claims of the plaintiff and all other persons claiming liens is not more than $100 the judgment shall be final and without appeal, but the Judge or officer who tried the action may, upon application within fourteen days after judgment is pronounced, grant a new trial.

(2) Where the aggregate amount of the claims of the plaintiff and all other persons claiming liens is more than $100 and not more than $500, any person affected by the judgment may appeal therefrom to a divisional court, whose judgment shall be final and without appeal.

(3) In all other cases an appeal shall lie and may be had in like manner and to the same extent as from the decision of a judge trying an action in the Supreme Court without a jury.

Fees and Costs.

41. No fees in stamps or money shall be payable to any judge or other officer in any action brought to realize a lien under this Act, nor on any filing, order, record or judgment or other proceeding in such action excepting that every person other than a wage earner shall on filing his statement of claim where he is plaintiff, or on filing his claim where he is not a plaintiff, pay in stamps $1 on every $100 or fraction of $100 of the amount of his claim up to $1,000, and $1 on every $1,000 or fraction of $1,000 of the amount of his claim over $1,000. 1916, c. 30, s. 3.

42. The costs of the action, exclusive of actual disbursements awarded to the plaintiffs and successful lien holders, shall not exceed in the aggregate twenty-five per cent of the total amount awarded to them by the judgment, and shall be apportioned and borne in such proportion as the judge or officer who tries the action may direct.

43. Where costs are awarded against the plaintiff or other persons claiming liens they shall not exceed twenty-five per cent of the claim of the plaintiff and the other claimants, besides actual disbursements, and shall be apportioned and borne as the judge or officer may direct.

44. Where the least expensive course is not taken by a plaintiff the costs allowed to him shall in no case exceed what would have been incurred if the least expensive course had been taken.

45. Where a lien is discharged or vacated under section 27, or where judgment is given in favour of or against a claim for a lien, in addition to the costs of the action, the Judge or officer may allow a reasonable amount for the costs of drawing and registering the claim for lien or of vacating the registration thereof.

46. The costs of and incidental to all applications and orders not otherwise provided for shall be in the discretion of the judge or officer.

Payment Out of Court.

47. (1) Subject to the provisions of subsection 1a, except in actions tried by a judge of the Supreme Court, the judge or officer who tries the action, where money has been paid into court and the time for payment out has arrived, shall forward a requisition for cheques with a certified copy of his judgment and of the report on sale, if any, to the Accountant of the Supreme Court, who shall, upon receiving the same, make out and return to the judge or officer cheques for the amounts payable to the persons mentioned in the requisition, and the judge or officer, on receipt of cheques, shall distribute them to the persons entitled. Amended 1914, c. 21, s. 31 (1).

1a. In the city of Toronto the cheques shall be delivered by the accountant to the persons entitled or their solicitors without any requisition from such judge or officer in accordance with the usual practice in the accountant's office. 1914, c. 2, s. 31 (2).

(2) No fees or stamps shall be payable on any cheques or on proceedings to pay money into court or to obtain money out of court, in respect of a claim for lien, but sufficient postage stamps to prepay a return registered letter shall be enclosed with every requisition for cheques.

Judgment in Actions.

48. All judgments in favour of lien holders shall adjudge that the party personally liable for the amount of the judgment shall pay so much of any deficiency which may remain after sale of the property directed to be sold as might have been recovered in an ordinary action against him, and where on the sale enough to satisfy the judgment and costs is not realized such part of the deficiency may be recovered by execution against the property of such party.

49. Where a claimant fails to establish a valid lien he may nevertheless recover a personal judgment against any party to the action for such sum as may appear to be due to him and which he might recover in an action against such party.

Liens on Chattels.

50. (1) Every mechanic or other person who has bestowed money or skill and materials upon any chattel or thing in the alteration and improvement of its properties, or for the purpose of imparting an additional value to it, so as thereby to be entitled to a lien upon such chattel or thing for the amount or value of the money or skill and materials bestowed shall, while such lien exists but not afterwards, in case the amount to which he is entitled remains unpaid for three months after the same ought to have been paid, have the right, in addition to any other remedy to which he may be entitled, to sell by auction the chattel or thing, on giving one week's notice by advertisement in a newspaper published in the municipality in which the work was done, or in case there is no newspaper published in such municipality then in a newspaper published nearest thereto, setting forth the name of the person indebted, the amount of the debt, a description of the chattel or thing to be sold, the time and place of sale, and the name of the auctioneer, and leaving a like notice in writing at the last known place of residence, if any, of the owner, if he is a resident of such municipality.

(2) Such mechanic or other person shall apply the proceeds of the sale in payment of the amount due to him and the costs of advertising and sale, and shall, upon application, pay over any surplus to the person entitled thereto.

(Forms and schedules omitted.)

Woodmen's Liens.

Chapter 141.—1. This Act may be cited as the Woodman's Lien for Wages Act.

2. This Act shall apply only to the Provisional County of Haliburton and to the Provisional Judicial Districts.

3. In this Act,

(a) "Bailiff" shall include a constable who under "The Division Courts Act" may execute an attachment or perform other service.

(b) "Labour" shall mean and include cutting, skidding, felling, hauling, scaling, banking, driving, running, rafting or booming any logs or timber, and any work done by cooks, blacksmiths, artisans and others usually employed in connection therewith;

(c) "Logs or timber" shall mean and include logs, cordwood, timber, cedar posts, telegraph poles, railroad ties, bark, pulpwood, shingle bolts and staves or any of them.

4. Wherever in this Act any act is required to be done by, or any paper to be filed or proceedings taken in the office of the clerk of the district court of a district, or jurisdiction is conferred upon a district court or the judge thereof, the like acts may be done, papers filed and proceedings taken by and in the office of the clerk of the County Court of the County of Victoria, and the like jurisdiction may be exercised by that court or a judge thereof in respect of matters arising in the Provisional County of Haliburton.

5. (1) Every agreement, verbal or written, express or implied, on the part of any person employed in labour that this Act shall not apply, or that the remedies provided by it shall not be available for the benefit of such person, shall be null and void.

(2) This section shall not apply to any manager, officer or foreman, or to any person whose wages are more than $3 a day.

6 (1) A person performing labour shall have lien a upon the logs or timber in connection with which the labour is performed for the amount due for such labour, and the same shall have precedence over all other claims or liens thereon, except a claim or lien of the Crown for any dues or charges or which a timber slide company or any owner of a slide or boom may have thereon for tolls.

(2) A contractor who has entered into any agreement under the terms of which he himself or by others in his employ has cut, removed, taken out or driven logs or timber, shall be deemed to be a person performing labour upon logs or timber within the meaning of this section, and such cutting, removal, taking out and driving shall be deemed to be the performance of labour within the meaning of this section.

7. The lien shall cease unless the claim therefor is filed and proceedings are taken to enforce the same as hereinafter provided.

8. (1) The person claiming the lien shall state his claim in writing, Form 1, setting out briefly the nature of the claim, the amount claimed to be due and a description of the logs or timber upon which the lien is claimed.

(2) The claim shall be verified by the affidavit of the claimant, his solicitor or agent.

(3) In the case of a contractor coming within the provisions of subsection 2 of section 6 the claim and affidavit shall be filed on or before the first day of September next following the performing of the labour.

(4) In other cases, if the labour was performed between the first day of October and the first day of April next thereafter, the claim shall be filed on or before the 30th day of the same month of April, but if the labour was performed on or after the 1st day of April and before the 1st day of October in any year the claim shall be filed within thirty days after the last day on which such labour or any part thereof was performed.

9. (1) Except as hereinafter provided the claim and affidavit shall be filed in the office of the district court of the provisional judicial district in which the labour or some part thereof was performed.

(2) Where the labour was performed upon logs or timber got out to be run down or which have been run down any of the rivers or streams flowing into the Georgian Bay, Lake Huron, Lake Superior, Lake of the Woods, Rainy Lake or Rainy River or Pigeon River, the claim may, at the option of the claimant, be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the district in which the labour was performed or in the office of the clerk of the district court of the district in which the drive terminates or reaches the waters of such bay, lake or river.

(3) Where the labour or some part of it was performed in the Provisional County of Haliburton the claim may be filed in the office of the Clerk of the County Court of the County of Victoria.

10. No sale or transfer of the logs or timber during the time limited for the filing of the claim and previous to the filing thereof, or after the filing thereof and during the time limited for the enforcement thereof, shall affect the lien but the same shall remain in force against such logs and timber in whosoever possession the same shall be found.

11. (1) Any person having a lien upon logs or timber may enforce the same by suit, where the claim does not exceed $200, in the division court within whose jurisdiction the logs or timber or any part thereof may be at the time of the commencement of the suit, or, where the claim exceeds $200, in the proper district court where the claim is filed, and such suit may be commenced to enforce such lien, if the claim is then payable, immediately after the filing of the claim, or, if credit has been given, immediately after the expiry of the period of credit, and such lien shall cease unless the proceedings to enforce the same are commenced within thirty days after the filing of the claim or after the expiry of the period of credit.

(2) In all such suits the person liable for the payment of the claim shall be made the party defendant.

(3) Where the defendant is not the owner of the logs a copy of the writ shall be served on the owner as well as the defendant, or the person or agent in whose possession, custody or control they may be found, or the person in charge of the operations in respect of which the claim of lien arose.

(4) The owner may, on his own application, or by direction of the judge, be made a party defendant.

12. (1) There shall be attached to or endorsed upon the writ or summons a copy of the claim filed, and no statement of claim shall be necessary unless ordered, and no pleading or notice of dispute or defence other than such as is required in a suit or proceeding in a division court shall be necessary whether the suit is brought in a district or in a division court.

(2) Where no dispute or defence is filed judgment may be signed and execution issued.

(3) The court or judge may order particulars to be given or amendments to be made, or may add or strike out the names of parties and may set aside judgment and permit a dispute or defence to be filed, on such terms as may appear just.

(4) The writ or summons shall be in the form, as nearly as may be, of that in use in the court in which it is issued, but the practice thereafter shall follow as nearly as may be that of the division court.

(5) A writ or summons may be served anywhere in Ontario in the same manner as in other cases.

(6) The judgment shall declare that the same is for wages, the amount thereof and costs, and that the plaintiff has a lien therefor on the property described when such is the case.

13. Where an execution has been placed in the hands of a sheriff or bailiff for execution, and no attachment has been issued, the proceedings for the enforcement of the lien shall be by sale under the execution, and the proceedings relating to proof of other claims and the payment of money into court and the distribution of the money and otherwise shall, as far as practicable, be the same as is hereinafter provided for proceedings upon and subsequent to an attachment.

14. (1) Where an attachment issues in the first instance the statement of claim and defence and proceedings to judgment shall be the same as where a suit has been begun by writ or summons.

(2) Where an attachment issues after proceedings have been commenced by writ or summons the proceedings, except such as are necessary to be taken under the attachment, shall be carried to judgment under the writ of summons.

15. The forms of attachment shall be as nearly as may be the same as are in use in the district courts or in the division courts.

16. (1) Whether the proceedings are commenced by writ or summons or attachment the judge may direct that the same shall be disposed of summarily by him without waiting for the regular sittings of the court, upon such terms as to notice and otherwise as he may deem proper and the same may be so disposed of.

(2) The judge may set aside an attachment or seizure or direct the release of logs or timber that have been seized on such terms as he may deem proper.

17. Where the amount of the claim does not exceed $200, and is not less than $10, upon the production and filing of a copy of the claim and affidavit and an affidavit of the claimant verifying the claim, and showing that the same has been filed and stating that

(a) he has good reason to believe and does believe that the logs or timber are about to be removed out of Ontario, or

(b) that the person indebted has absconded from Ontario with intent to defraud or defeat his creditors, or

(c) that the logs or timber are about to be cut into lumber or other timber so that the same cannot be identified, and

(d) that he is in danger of losing his claim if attachment does not issue, and if affidavits of two persons corroborating the affidavit of the plaintiff in respect to clauses (a), (b) or (c) are also filed the clerk of the proper division court shall issue a warrant, as in the case of an attachment under section 199 of "The Division Courts Act," directed to the bailiff of the division court commanding such bailiff to attach, seize, take and safely keep such logs or timber or a sufficient part thereof to satisfy the amount claimed and the costs of the suit and of the proceedings to enforce the lien, and to return the warrant forthwith to the court out of which the same issued.

18. (1) Where the amount claimed exceeds $200, upon the filing of a copy of the claim, and affidavit, the clerk of the district court of the district where the action may be brought, upon the filing of an affidavit made by the claimant showing such facts as would authorize the issue of an attachment under the next preceding section and such affidavit in corroboration as is provided in the next preceding section, shall issue a writ of attachment directed to the sheriff of the district commanding him to attach, seize and take and safely keep the logs or timber or a sufficient part thereof to satisfy the amount claimed and the costs of the suit and of the proceedings to enforce the lien.

(2) Where additional claims are made, or the amount of the claim is increased or a sufficient seizure has not been made, a second or subsequent seizure may be made either under the execution or attachment.

19. (1) The warrant or writ of attachment shall also, where no writ or summons has issued, summon the defendant to appear before the district court or division court out of which the attachment issued, and a copy of the writ of attachment shall be served upon the defendant, and, if the defendant is not the owner of the logs or timber described in the warrant or writ, a copy of the warrant or writ of attachment shall also be served upon the owner of the logs or timber or upon the person or agent in whose possession, custody or control they may be found.

(2) When a warrant or writ is served upon a person in possession an order of the Judge allowing the service shall be necessary.

(3) Where the defendant or the owner of the logs or timber cannot be found within the district, and there is no one in possession of the logs or timber, a copy of the warrant or writ may be forwarded to the sheriff of any county or district or the bailiff of any division court within whose jurisdiction the defendant or the owner resides or may be found, and such copy may be served by the sheriff or the bailiff upon the defendant or the owner.

(4) The owner may, on his own application or by direction of the judge, be made a party defendant.

(5) If the defendant or the owner cannot be found within Ontario or the owner cannot be ascertained, and no person is in possession of the logs or timber, the warrant or writ may be served in such manner as the judge directs.

(6) Notwithstanding that a defence has not been entered the judge may admit the defendant and the owner or either of them to make full defence upon such terms as he may deem just.

20. A sheriff or bailiff shall not seize or detain under a warrant or writ of attachment any logs or timber when in transit from the place where cut to the place of destination when such place of destination is within the district in which the proceedings were commenced, but if such logs or timber are so in transit, or are in the possession of any person for the purpose of being driven or sorted and delivered to the owner, or to satisfy any statutory lien, attachment of the logs or timber may be made by serving a copy of the warrant or writ upon the person in whose possession, custody or control they are, who shall from the time of such service hold the same, both on his own behalf and for the sheriff or bailiff to the extent of the lien, until the logs or timber have reached their place of destination or are driven or sorted, as the case may be, and when they have reached their place of destination or are driven or sorted the sheriff or bailiff may receive the logs or timber from such person, and the statutory lien of such person shall be released by the holding of such sheriff or bailiff.

21. The claimant or the plaintiff, and the sheriff or bailiff may, by leave of the judge, take any proceedings which the owner of any logs or timber may take under "The Saw Logs Driving Act", for the purpose of procuring the separation of any logs or timber so seized by the sheriff or bailiff under this Act from other logs or timber with which they have become intermixed, or a sale may be made without such separation if the judge so directs.

22. In case of an attachment, if the owner of the logs or timber or any person on his behalf executes and files with the clerk of the court out of which the attachment issued a good and sufficient bond to the person claiming the lien, executed by two sureties and approved by the clerk conditioned for the payment of the claim and of all damages, costs, charges, disbursements and expenses that may be recovered by the claimant in such proceedings, together with the amount for which a lien is claimed in any other suit, the clerk shall issue an order to the sheriff or bailiff having in charge the logs or timber directing their release, and upon service of such order upon the sheriff or bailiff he shall release the same.

23 (1) Any person who has been served with a copy of the warrant or writ of attachment and who desires to dispute the claim shall, within fourteen days after such service, enter in the court in which proceedings are pending a notice that he disputes the claim in whole or in part.

(2) If no notice of dispute is entered judgment may be entered as in the case of default, and the practice and procedure shall be the same as in a suit begun by writ or summons.

24 (1) The defendant, may at any time before the sale of the logs or timber, pay into court the amount for which the lien is claimed, together with the amount for which a lien is claimed in any other suit, and also the costs of the proceedings to date of such payment to be taxed by the clerk of the court if required, and shall thereupon be entitled to a certificate vacating the liens.

(2) Upon such certificate being filed with the clerk of the court in which the claim was filed the liens shall be vacated and all further proceedings thereon shall cease, and the defendant shall be entitled to an order directing the delivery up of the logs or timber seized under the attachment, or the cancellation of any bond given under section 22.

25. (1) After the expiration of the time within which a notice of dispute may be entered the judge shall, upon the application of the plaintiff, appoint a day upon which all persons claiming a lien on the logs or timber shall appear before him for the adjustment of their claims and the settlement of accounts.

(2) The appointment shall be served upon the defendants and upon the owner, if the judge so directs, and shall also, if the judge so directs, be published once a week for two weeks before the day appointed in a newspaper having a general circulation in the district in which proceedings are pending.

(3) A copy of the appointment shall also be sent by registered post to every claimant known to the plaintiff and to the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, at least two weeks before the day appointed, directed to the post office address of such claimant where the same is known, and if not known then to his last known address.

26. (1) Upon the day named in the appointment the persons served with a copy thereof and all other persons claiming a lien on the logs or timber who have prior to that date filed with the clerk a notice claiming a lien on the logs or timber and stating the nature and amount of their claims, shall attend before the judge.

(2) Where a claim is brought in pursuant to the notice it may be established prima facie by affidavit, but any person interested may cross-examine a deponent, and may require that the claim be established as in other cases.

(3) The judge shall hear all parties and take all accounts necessary to determine the amounts due to the claimants, and shall tax costs, and determine by whom the same shall be paid, and settle priorities and generally determine all such matters as may be necessary for the adjustment of the rights of all parties.

27. (1) At the conclusion of the inquiry the judge shall make his report and order which shall state his findings and direct the payment into court within ten days thereafter of the amounts found due and the costs, and, in default of payment, that the logs or timber shall be sold by the sheriff or bailiff for the satisfaction thereof.

(2) In default of payment into court within the time named in the order the logs or timber shall, within twenty days thereafter, be sold by the sheriff or bailiff in the same manner and subject to the same provisions of law as goods seized or taken in execution, or after such additional publicity has been given to the sale as the judge may direct.

(3) The amount realized by the sale shall, after deducting the expenses thereof, and the fees and poundage of the sheriff or bailiff, be paid into court and shall be paid out by the clerk to the parties entitled thereto under the order of the judge.

(4) Where the amount realized upon the sale is not sufficient to pay the claims and costs in full the judge shall apportion the amount realized pro rata among the claimants.

(5) Where after sale and distribution any balance remains due to any person under the order of the judge the clerk shall, upon application of such person, give to him a certificate that such amount remains due, and such certificate may be entered as a judgment in the district court or division court having jurisdiction against the person by whom the claim is directed to be paid, and execution may be issued thereupon.

28. Where nothing is found due upon the several claims filed or upon the lien with respect to which proceedings have been taken the judge may order that the lien be discharged and the logs or timber released or the security given therefor delivered up and cancelled, and may order payment of any costs which may be found due to the defendant or the owner of the logs or timber.

29. (1) Where the taxed costs, exclusive of necessary disbursements, which are payable out of the amount realized for the satisfaction of the lien exceed twenty-five per cent of the amount realized such costs, upon application by any party, may be reduced by the judge so that the same shall not in the aggregate exceed twenty-five per cent and no more costs than such reduced amount shall be recovered between party and party or solicitor and client.

(2) The cost in addition to actual and necessary disbursements which may be taxed to any claimant proving an uncontested claim shall not exceed $5 if a solicitor is employed, and where the amount claimed is within the jurisdiction of the division court shall not exceed $2 where a solicitor is employed.

(3) In case of a contest, where a solicitor is employed, the judge may allow such costs not exceeding in any case $10 when taxed on the district court scale or $5 when taxed on the division court scale, in addition to actual and necessary disbursements, but where the claim does not exceed $50 then such costs shall not exceed $3.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this section the costs to be taxed to any party shall, as far as possible, be according to the tariff of costs in force as to other proceedings in the court in which proceedings under this Act have been taken.

30. (1) Where money paid into court as the proceeds of the sale of logs or timber is more than sufficient to satisfy the claims which have been proved with interest and costs the judge, upon the application of any creditor within thirty days from the day fixed by the order for payment, shall order that such remaining money be paid over to the sheriff who shall hold and distribute the same as provided by "The Creditors' Relief Act" in the case of money levied under execution, and all parties having claims may take the like proceedings as those provided by "The Creditors' Relief Act" for proving claims and obtaining certificates or executions.

(2) If no such application is made to the judge within such period of thirty days the judge may order payment out of court of any remaining money to the person entitled thereto.

31. Any person affected by proceedings taken under this Act may apply to the judge to dismiss the same for want of prosecution, and the judge may make such order upon the application as he may deem just.

32. (1) Nothing in this Act shall deprive any person of any other remedy to which he may be entitled for the recovery of any amount due in respect of labour performed upon or in connection with any logs or timber.

(2) Where an action is brought to enforce a lien, but no lien is found to exist in respect of the claim, judgment may be given for any amount found due as in an ordinary action.

33. Any number of lien holders may join in taking proceedings under this Act, or may assign their claims to any one or more persons, but the claim to be filed under section 8 shall include particular statements of the several claims joined which shall be verified by the affidavits of the persons so joining, or separate claims may be filed and one writ, summons or attachment issued on behalf of all the persons so joining.

34. Where proceedings have been commenced in the district court and proceedings are brought or are thereafter pending in respect of the same logs or timber, or any part of them, in a division court the judge may order the proceedings in the division court to be adjourned before him, and shall in his inquiry include the claims in respect of which proceedings are pending in the division court, and thereafter all persons who have filed claims in the division court shall be entitled to prove their claims and to share in the benefit of the proceedings in the district court.

35. Where suits are brought in several district courts, or in several division courts, the procedure under sections 25 to 27 shall be had in the district or division court out of which an execution or attachment first issued, unless the judge of such court shall otherwise order.

36. The practice and procedure in actions brought in the district courts or in division courts, shall, so far as they are not inconsistent with this Act, apply to proceedings taken under this Act.

37. Any person who unlawfully and maliciously, and without reasonable and probable cause, takes, or causes to be taken, proceedings under this Act by which logs or timber are seized, detained or sold shall be liable therefor in an action at the suit of any person aggrieved thereby, and shall also be liable for all loss and damage occasioned by such seizure by reason of such logs or timber breaking away or being scattered or lost, or otherwise.

38. (1) No payment of wages shall be made or offered to any person for any labour performed upon or in connection with any logs or timber by any cheque, order, I.O.U., bill of exchange, promissory note, or other undertaking, other than a bank note or bill, drawn upon or payable at or within any place out of Ontario.

(2) Any person violating, or who shall direct or knowingly suffer his agent or servant to violate, the provisions of this section shall incur a penalty of not less than $5 and not more than $20, to be recovered under the provisions of The Ontario Summary Convictions Act.

39. No payment made or offered to be made in violation of section 38 shall be a defence to an action or proceeding for the recovery of wages, or be receivable in evidence therein, nor shall any such payment or offer of payment in any way affect any claim of lien for labour on logs or timber under this Act, but in case of the sale, or transfer of any instrument mentioned in section 38 in whole or in part, by the payee the consideration received by him shall be treated as payment on account.

40. The judges of the district courts, or a majority of them, may prepare and adopt forms of writs, summonses, attachments and other forms for the more convenient carrying out of the provisions of this Act, and thereafter the same shall be used instead of the forms prescribed by this Act.

(Forms omitted.)

Protection of Wages on Public and Subsidized Works and on Works by Chartered Companies.

Chapter 142.—1. This Act may be cited as The Public and other Works Wages Act.

2. If any contractor with His Majesty, or any sub-contractor in the construction of any public work let under contract by His Majesty, makes default in the payment of the wages of any foreman, workman, or labourer employed on such work, or in the payment of any sum due by him for the labour of any such foreman, workman or labourer or of any team employed on such work, and if a claim therefor is filed in the office of the Minister entering into such contract on behalf of His Majesty, not later than two months after the same becomes due, and satisfactory proof thereof is furnished, His Majesty may pay such claim to the extent of all moneys or securities in the hands of His Majesty for securing the performance of the contract at the time of the filing of the claim.

3. The Minister may, in writing, require any such contractor or sub-contractor to file in the office of the Minister, not later than the fifteenth day of each month, a list showing the names, rates of wages, amounts paid and amounts due and unpaid for wages or labour done by any foreman, workman, labourer or team employed by the contractor or sub-contractor during the previous month, and such list shall be attested upon the oath of the contractor or sub-contractor or his authorized agent.

4. (1) Every contractor or sub-contractor who makes default in forwarding such list shall incur a penalty of not less than $10 or more than $100 for every day during which default continues.

(2) The amount of such penalty, within the above limits, shall be determined by the Minister under whom the work is being executed, and may be deducted out of the money in the hands of the Crown deposited by or owing to such contractor and shall be vested in His Majesty.

5. Where default is made by a sub-contractor in furnishing such list the penalty for such default, hereinbefore provided, may also be recovered, with costs, at the suit of the Crown in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Subsidized Works.

6. (1) Where any subsidy, advance, loan or bonus of money is authorized by this Legislature to be granted to any company or person towards the construction of any railway or other work, it shall, in the absence of special provision by this Legislature to the contrary, be a condition of the grant that so much of the money may be retained as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may think proper to secure the payment of claims for wages of persons employed on such railway or work, whether by such company or by any contractor or sub-contractor, or for sums due or to become due for labour of persons or teams so employed.

(2) If any such claim remains unpaid for thirty days after notice thereof has been served upon the Minister charged with the duty of seeing that the conditions upon which such aid is granted are duly carried out the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on being satisfied that such claim is due and unpaid, direct that it be paid together with all proper costs and charges in connection therewith out of any moneys so retained.

Works by Chartered Companies.

7. (1) Every company incorporated under any Act of this Legislature shall be liable for the payment of the wages of the foremen, workmen, labourers or teams employed in the construction of any work in Ontario done by or for the company, whether directly under the company or through the intervention of any contractor or sub-contractor.

(2) Nothing herein shall prejudice or affect the right of any person against any contractor or sub-contractor with whom he has contracted under any other Act or law in force in Ontario.

8. (1) Where any such foreman, workman or labourer is not paid his wages for himself or his team by any contractor or sub-contractor by whom he has been employed a notice stating the name of the claimant and the amount of wages claimed, the rate of such wages, the nature and amount of work done, the time when, the place where, and the name of the contractor or sub-contractor, superintendent or foreman under whom such work was done, may be served upon the company not later than two months after such wages are earned.

(2) The notice shall be followed up by the commencement of a suit in a court of competent jurisdiction for the collection of such wages within thirty days after the service of such notice, otherwise the liability mentioned in the last preceding section shall cease.

(3) The notice mentioned in subsection (1), and any summons, notice, order or other process required to be served upon the company for the prosecution of such claim, may be served upon the president, vice-president, secretary, managing director, superintendent, or engineer, or any recognized officer representing the company, or by leaving it with any adult person at the office or residence of any of them.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Assignments, Executions, etc.—Exemption of Wages from Attachment.

Chapter 143, with amendment.—1. This Act may be cited as The Wages Act.

2. In this Act,

"Wages" shall mean and include wages and salary whether the employment in respect of which the same is payable is by time or by the job or piece or otherwise.

3. Where an assignment is made for the general benefit of creditors of any real or personal property the assignee shall pay, in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the assignor, the wages of all persons in the employment of the assignor at the time of the making of the assignment or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages, and such persons shall rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims.

(As to wages in case of winding up a company, see The Ontario Companies Act, R.S.O., c. 178.)

4. All persons who, at the time of the seizure by the sheriff or who within one month previous thereto, have been in the employment of the execution debtor, and who shall become entitled to share in the distribution of money levied out of the property of a debtor within the meaning of "The Creditors' Relief Act," shall be entitled to be paid out of such money the wages due to them by the execution debtor, not exceeding three months' wages, in priority to the claims of the other creditors of the execution debtor, and shall be entitled to share pro rata with such other creditors as to the residue, if any, of their claims.

5. All persons in the employment of an absconding debtor at the time of a seizure by the sheriff under "The Absconding Debtors' Act" or within one month previous thereto, shall be entitled to be paid by the sheriff, out of any moneys realized out of the property of the debtor, the wages due to them by the debtor, not exceeding three months' wages, in priority to the claims of the other creditors of the debtor, and shall be entitled to share pro rata with such other creditors as to the residue, if any, of their claims.

6. In the administration of the estate of any person dying on or after the 13th day of April, 1897, any person in the employment of the deceased at the time of his death, or within one month previous thereto, who is entitled to share in the distribution of the estate, shall be entitled to his wages, not exceeding three months thereof, in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the deceased, and such person shall be entitled to rank as an ordinary or general creditor of the deceased for the residue, if any, of his claim.

7. —(a) Seventy per centum of any debt due or accruing due to any mechanic, workman, labourer, servant, clerk or employee for or in respect of his wages, shall be exempt from seizure or attachment, provided, however, that if a creditor of any such mechanic, workman, labourer, servant, clerk or employee who has initiated proceedings by way of seizure or attachment of the wages of any such mechanic, workman, labourer, servant, clerk, or employee, desires to contend that having regard to the nature of the debt and the circumstances of the debtor, it is unreasonable that as much as seventy per centum of such debtor's wages should be exempt, the judge may, upon a hearing of the matter, reduce the percentage of exemption therein allowed in any particular case;

(b) If the debtor desires to contend that in the circumstances of any particular case, having regard to the size of the debtor's family, the wages he is earning and any other matter or thing which the judge may deem it proper to take into account, the exemption hereby allowed should in any case be increased, the judge shall have power to increase and to make any order providing for an increase of exemption which he may consider just and reasonable under all the circumstances;

(c) In case of garnishment or attachment of wages either the debtor or creditor may, without awaiting the regular sittings of the court, apply to the judge upon at least five days' notice in writing to the other party or his solicitor for an order, finally disposing of the matter and upon the making of such order and the fixing thereby of the amount of the debtor's exemption, there shall, if the employer of the debtor has paid the whole or any part of the debtor's wages into court, be forthwith paid out of court to the debtor whatever sum shall have been allowed to the debtor by the judge by way of exemption in case the amount paid in equals or exceeds the amount so allowed, and in case the amount paid in is less than the amount so allowed the whole amount paid in shall be paid out to the debtor. 1920, c. 42, s. 2.

8. (1) Wages in respect of which priority is herein conferred shall become due and be payable by the assignee, liquidator, sheriff, executor, administrator or other person charged with the duty of winding up or distributing the estate within one month from the time when the estate has been received by him or placed under his control, unless it appears to him that the estate is not of sufficient value to pay the claims or charges thereon having by law priority over the claims for wages and the ordinary expenses and disbursements of winding up and distributing the estate.

(2) Ordinary expenses shall not include the cost of litigation or other unusual expenses concerning the estate or any part thereof unless the same were incurred with the consent in writing of the person entitled to the wages or are afterwards adopted or ratified by him in writing.

(3) Any such assignee, liquidator, sheriff, executor, administrator or other person may forthwith, upon such estate coming to his hands, pay the prior claims for wages without being chargeable in case it shall in the end appear that the estate was insufficient to have justified such payment, provided he has acted in good faith and has reasonable grounds to believe that the estate would prove sufficient.

(4) Any number of claimants in respect of such prior claims for wages upon the same estate may join in any action, suit or other proceeding for the enforcement of their claims.

(As to wages payable to employees of contractors for public works, see The Public and other Works Wages Act, R.S.O., c. 142.)

Employment of Labour—General Provisions.

Chapter 144 with amendment.—1. This Act may be cited as The Master and Servant Act.

Limit of Duration of Contract.

2. No voluntary contract of service or indenture entered into by any persons shall be binding on them, or either of them, for a longer time than a term of nine years from the date thereof.

Profit-sharing Agreement.

3. (1) An agreement entered into by a workman, servant or employee and his master or employer under which a share of the profits of any trade, calling, business or employment is to be paid to the workman, servant or employee in lieu of or in addition to salary, wages or other remuneration unless the agreement otherwise provides or a contrary intention may be reasonably inferred therefrom shall not

► (a) create any relation in the nature of a partnership or the rights or liabilities of partners, or

(b) give to the workman, servant or employee the right to examine into the accounts or interfere in the management or affairs of the trade, calling or business.

(2) Any statement or return by the employer of the net profits of the trade, calling, business or employment on which he declares and appropriates the share of profits payable under such agreement shall be final and conclusive between the parties and all persons claiming under them, and shall not be impeachable upon any ground whatever, except fraud.

Complaints for Non-payment of Wages.

4. (1) Upon the complaint upon oath of a servant or labourer against his master or employer concerning any non-payment of wages a justice of the peace may summon the master or employer to appear before him at a reasonable time to be stated in the summons, and he or some other justice upon proof on oath of the personal service of the summons, or of its service as hereinafter authorized, shall examine into the matter of the complaint, whether or not the master or employer appears, and upon due proof of the cause of complaint the justice may discharge the servant or labourer from the service or employment of the master or employer, and may direct the payment to him of any wages found to be due, not exceeding in the provisional judicial districts the sum of $80 and in counties the sum of $40, and the justice shall make such order as to him seems just and reasonable for the payment of such wages, with costs, and in case of the non-payment of the same, together with the costs, for the space of eight days after the order has been made the justice shall issue his warrant of distress for the levying of the wages, together with the costs of the order and of the distress. Amended 1914, c. 21, s. 32.

(2) A complaint may be prosecuted and determined in any county or district in which the person complained against is found, or in any county or district in which the person complained against carries on business.

(3) Proceedings may be taken under this Act, within one month after the engagement or employment has ceased, or within one month after the last instalment of wages under the agreement of hiring has become due, whichever shall last happen.

(4) Proceedings may be had for non-payment of wages in respect of service or labour performed in Ontario upon a verbal or written agreement or bargain made out of Ontario.

(5) Where the master or employer claims a set-off or makes a claim for unliquidated damages the justice of the peace shall investigate the same and give judgment for the balance of wages, if any, due to the claimant after deducting such set-off or claim.

(6) The justice of the peace shall not have jurisdiction to adjudicate upon a set-off or claim exceeding the claim for wages except to the extent of the wages.

5. Where the proceedings are taken before a police magistrate, and payment of wages is ordered by him to be made by the master or employer to the servant or labourer, and the same are not paid within the time limited by the order, the same proceedings may be taken by the person claiming the benefit of the order as may be taken by a party having an unsatisfied judgment or order in a division court for the payment of any debt, damages or costs, as respects the examination of the judgment debtor touching his estate and effects, the means he has of discharging his liability, and the disposal he had made of any property, and the police magistrate shall have the like power and authority to enforce payment of the debt as are possessed by a judge of a division court in like cases; and the practice and proceedings thereon shall be the same as nearly as may be and have the same effect as provided in The Division Courts Act with respect to judgment debtors.

6. Subject to the provisions of section 7 the police magistrate may name in the order for payment of wages such time, not exceeding 21 days, as to him may seem just and reasonable for the payment of the same and costs, and in case of non-payment within such time the complainant shall be entitled to take forthwith the proceedings for enforcing payment herein provided.

7. (1) In the case of wages due to any mechanic, labourer or other person in respect of work of the character mentioned in section 6 of "The Mechanics and Wage Earners' Lien Act" the jurisdiction of a police magistrate of a city under this Act shall extend to wages for thirty days, or for a balance equal to the wages for thirty days, though the same or the balance thereof exceed the sum of $40.

(2) Where no specific rate of wages has been expressly agreed to between the parties the police magistrate of a city may order payment of the wages, reckoning the amount thereof according to the current rate of wages in the city in like cases, or according to what may appear to be a just and reasonable allowance.

(3) The order shall direct payment of the wages to be made forthwith, and a warrant of distress shall be issued accordingly, unless the master makes oath, and the police magistrate believes, that the master is unable to make the payment forthwith, and expects to be able to pay and intends to pay the same within the time given, and unless also the police magistrate considers the proposed delay to be under the circumstances reasonable, and the magistrate, if he sees fit, may order security to be given as a condition of delay.

(4) In case of an adjournment at the instance of the master the same shall be on payment for the claimant's time in attending the court, the amount to be fixed by the police magistrate, and such payment shall be made forthwith unless the police magistrate sees reason for dispensing with immediate payment.

(5) The order for payment may be filed in that division court which would be the proper court for bringing an action for wages, and on such filing the order shall become a judgment of such division court and may be enforced as a judgment of that court.

Service of Summons.

8. (1) Every summons issued under this Act against an individual, firm or corporation, and every subsequent paper or proceeding in the action or proceeding in which the summons has been issued may be served, except in the cases provided for by subsection (2), upon the person to whom it is directed either by delivering it to him personally or, if he cannot conveniently be found, by leaving the same for him at any place where such individual, firm or corporation carries on business, within the county or district in which the justice of the peace issuing the summons has jurisdiction, with some adult person employed in the office or place of business of such person.

(2) In cases against railway, telegraph, telephone or express companies every such summons and other papers may be served on any agent of the company whose office or place of business as such agent is within such county or district; and for the purposes of this section the word "agent" shall include—

(a) in the case of a railway company, a station master having charge of a station belonging to the company;

(b) in the case of a telegraph company, a person having charge of a telegraph office belonging to the company;

(c) in the case of a telephone company, a person having charge of a telephone office belonging to the company; and

(d) in the case of an express company, a person having charge of an express office belonging to the company.

(3) Service as authorized by this section shall have the same effect as personal service.

Appeals.

9. (1) An appeal from an order for the payment of wages, or order of dismissal from service or employment, or against any decision of any justice of the peace or police magistrate under this Act shall be made to the division court, of the division in which the cause of action arose or in which the party or parties complained against, or one of them, resided at the time of the making of the complaint, or to the division court holden in the division in which the party or parties complained against or one of them carried on business, and in case of dismissal of the appeal or affirmation of the order of decision, the court appealed to shall enforce the order for payment of wages or of dismissal, and for the payment of the costs awarded, and shall, if necessary issue process for carrying such judgment into effect.

(2) The appeal shall be taken within the time and in the manner provided by "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act" as to appeals to a division court, and the proceedings upon and incidental to the appeal and subsequent thereto shall, except as provided by subsection 1 and by section 10, be the same as in the case of an appeal under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act."

10. (1) The appeal may be tried with a jury if the appellant files with the clerk of the court within ten days after the order or decision a notice requiring a jury, or if the respondent within four days after the service of the notice of appeal upon him files a notice with the clerk requiring a jury, and if the proper fees are in either case deposited with the clerk; otherwise the judge may try the appeal without a jury or may summon a jury from the body of the court as to him seems meet.

(2) Upon the application of either party when a jury is not required the judge may try the appeal at such time and place, as he may appoint, and upon such notice as to him seems reasonable.

Agreements Waiving Act.

11. (1) Every agreement or bargain, verbal or written, expressed or implied, on the part of any workman, servant, labourer, mechanic, or other person employed in any kind of manual labour intended to be dealt with in this Act whereby it is agreed that this Act shall not apply, or that the remedies hereby provided shall not be available for the benefit of any person entering into such agreement, is hereby declared to be null and void and of no effect as against any such workman, servant, labourer, mechanic, or other person.

(2) This section shall not apply to any manager, officer or foreman or to any other person whose wages are more than $5 a day.

Industrial Disputes—Arbitration and Conciliation.

Chapter 145.—1. This Act may be cited as The Trade Disputes Act.

2. In this Act.

(a) "Employer" shall mean and include any person or body of persons, incorporated or unincorporated, employing not less than ten workmen in the business in which the trade dispute has arisen ;—

(b) "Employees" shall mean and include a person or persons in the employment of an employer.

3. (1) A claim or dispute under this Act shall include any disagreement between an employer and his employees in respect of—

(a) the price to be paid for work done, or in course of being done, whether such disagreement shall have arisen with respect to wages, or to the hours or times of working ;

(b) damage alleged to have been done to work, delay in finishing the same, not finishing the same in a good and workmanlike manner or according to agreement ;

(c) materials supplied to employees and alleged to be bad, or unfit, or unsuitable ;

(d) the price to be paid for mining any mineral or substance mined, or obtained by mining hewing, quarrying or other process; or the allowances, if any, to be made for bands, refuse, faults or other causes whereby the mining of the mineral substance is impeded ;

(e) the performance or non-performance of any stipulation or matter alleged to have been in an agreement, whether in writing or not ;

(f) insufficient or unwholesome food supplied to employees where there is an agreement to victual them, or to supply them with provisions or stores of any kind ;

(g) ill-ventilated or dangerous workings or places in mines or unwholesome or insanitary rooms or other places of accommodation in which work is being performed, or want of necessary conveniences in connection with such rooms or places ;

(h) the dismissal or employment under agreement of employees ; or,

(i) the dismissal of employees for their connection with any trade or labour organization.

(2) No claim or dispute shall be the subject of conciliation or arbitration in any case in which the employees affected by such claim or dispute are fewer in number than ten.

4. (1) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a Registrar of Councils of Conciliation and of Arbitration for the settlement of industrial disputes.

(2) Such office shall be assigned to some person performing other duties in the public service, unless and until the duties are so onerous as to require a separate appointment.

(3) It shall be the duty of the Registrar to receive and register and, subject to the provisions of this Act, to deal with all applications by employers or employees for reference to a Council of Conciliation or to the Council of Arbitration of any claim or dispute within the meaning of this Act; to convene such councils for the purpose of dealing with any claim or dispute, to keep a register in which shall be entered the particulars of all references and settlements of claims and disputes made to and by a Council of Conciliation, and of all references and awards made to and by the Council of Arbitration; and generally to do all such things and take all such proceedings as may be required in the performance of his duties under this Act or the regulations made in pursuance thereof.

(4) The Registrar shall issue all summonses, Form 15, to witnesses to attend to give evidence, with or without the production of papers and documents, and shall issue all notices and perform all other acts in connection with the sittings of each such council in the prescribed manner.

(5) If any difference shall arise between any employer and his employees likely to result or resulting in a strike on the part of such employees, or a lockout on the part of the employer, if shall be the duty of the Registrar, when requested in writing to do so by five or more of the employees, or by the employer, or by the head of the municipality in which the industry is situated, to visit the place of such disturbance and diligently seek to mediate between the employer and employees.

(6) It shall be the duty of the Registrar to promote conditions favourable to a settlement by endeavouring to allay distrust, to remove causes of friction, to promote good feeling, to restore confidence, and to encourage the parties to come together and themselves effect a settlement, and also to promote agreements between employers and employees with a view to the submission of differences to conciliation or arbitration before resorting to a strike or lock-out.

Council of Conciliation.

5. (1) A Council of Conciliation for the purpose of any dispute or claim shall consist of four conciliators, two to be nominated by each of the parties to the dispute.

(2) The nomination shall be by writing lodged with the Registrar.

(3) Either party may lodge the nomination papers with the Registrar at any time after the dispute has arisen; and if the Registrar has not already received a nomination of two conciliators on behalf of the other party he shall give notice to such other party of the nomination which he has received.

(4) Any vacancy in a Council of Conciliation arising through the death, resignation, or otherwise of any member thereof shall be filled in the same way as the appointment was first made, namely, on the nomination of the party whose conciliator has ceased to be a member of the Council.

Procedure for Conciliation.

6. A claim or dispute within the meaning of this Act may be referred for settlement to a Council of Conciliation where—

(a) the parties to the claim or dispute jointly agree in the prescribed manner, Form 2, to refer such claim or dispute for settlement to a Council of Conciliation, or,

(b) either party to the claim or dispute, in the prescribed manner, lodges an application, Form 3, with the Registrar requesting that the claim or dispute be referred for settlement to a Council of Conciliation.

7. The Registrar, on receipt of any such agreement or application for a reference to a Council of Conciliation, shall forthwith lay the same before the Council; and subject to the provisions of this Act and the regulations, shall carry out all directions of the said Council given in the endeavour of the Council to effect a settlement of the claim or dispute.

8. Either party to the claim or dispute may, for the purposes of this Act, be represented by one or more persons, not exceeding three, authorized by such party as managers in that behalf; and such party shall be bound by the acts of such managers.

9. Where the party numbers fewer than twenty the managers must be authorized in writing, Form 4, signed by the members of the party to act for and on their behalf.

10. (1) Where the party numbers twenty or more the managers may be appointed or elected in such manner as the members of the party think proper.

(2) A copy of the resolution electing the managers, together with a declaration by the chairman or president of the meeting stating it to have been carried, shall be kept as a record of the election.

11. (1) The parties to the claim or dispute shall, if possible, agree to a joint written statement of their case; but if they do not so agree a statement in writing from each party shall be made.

(2) The statement or statements shall be forwarded to the Registrar before the meeting of the Council.

12. When the parties to a claim or dispute have named their conciliators the Registrar shall by notice in writing, Form 5, convene a meeting of the conciliators at a time and place mentioned in the notice, the same being selected with due regard to the general convenience of the conciliators and the parties.

13. (1) The Council shall transmit to the Registrar a report, Forms 6 and 7, setting forth the result of the reference.

(2) In case such report is to the effect that the Council has failed to bring about any settlement or adjustment of the claim or dispute the Registrar, on the receipt of the report, shall transmit a certified copy to each party to the claim or dispute; whereupon either party may, by notice in writing, Forms 8 and 9, require the Registrar to refer the claim or dispute to the Council of Arbitration for settlement, Form 10.

The Councils of Arbitration.

14. (1) There shall be two Councils of Arbitration.

(a) A Council of Arbitration for the settlement by award in respect of claims and disputes between railway companies, including street railway companies, and wage-earners employed in respect of railway construction or traffic on railways; and

(b) A Council of Arbitration in respect of other claims and disputes.

(2) Each council shall consist of three members, one to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor on the recommendation of the employees, and one to be appointed by him on the recommendation of the employer.

(3) The third member of each Council shall be the president of the Council and shall be appointed in manner following, namely: The two members appointed shall within twenty-one days after their appointment submit, Form 1, to the Lieutenant-Governor the name of some impartial person to be appointed by him to the position of President.

(4) In case of the said two members failing so to do the Lieutenant-Governor may appoint as President an impartial person not personally connected with or interested in any trade or industry, or in the judgment of the Lieutenant-Governor likely, by reason of his former occupation, business vocation or other influence, to be biased in favour of or against employers or employees.

(5) The same person may be President of both Councils.

(6) As soon as practicable after a full Council has been appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor notice of the appointment and the names of the members of the Council shall be published by the Registrar in the Ontario Gazette.

(7) The Lieutenant-Governor may cancel the appointment of any member on the recommendation of the authority by which his appointment was recommended.

(8) The term of office of a member shall be two years; and at the end of every term of two years a fresh appointment of members shall be made in manner aforesaid.

(9) Every member after the expiry or other termination of his term of office shall be eligible for reappointment for a like term.

(10) If the President of a Council shall be declared a bankrupt or insolvent, or shall make a composition with his creditors, or shall make an assignment of his property or salary for the benefit of his creditors, or if any member of either Council shall be convicted of any criminal offence, such President or member respectively shall thereby vacate his office of member.

(11) Any vacancy in a Council arising from death, resignation or other cause shall be filled by the Lieutenant-Governor for the term of office, or the residue of such term, as the case may be, in accordance with the respective methods prescribed by this Act.

(12) In case the President of a Council is unable to act as such from illness, absence from the Province, or other temporary cause the Lieutenant-Governor may appoint a person to be acting President of the Council in his place; and such acting President shall have all the powers and perform all the duties conferred by this Act upon the President.

(13) If any member of a Council, other than the President, is, from illness or from any other disability howsoever arising, unable to perform the duties of his office in respect to any claim or dispute then pending the parties thereto may consent, in writing under their respective hands, to the appointment by the Lieutenant-Governor of a member named in such writing to act for and in the place of the member during such disability; and if either of the parties refuse such consent the judge of the county or district court of the county or district in which the matter is situate with respect to which the claim or dispute has arisen may, on notice to the parties of the application to him, make the nomination; and the Lieutenant-Governor may appoint the person so nominated, who shall thereupon be deemed a member of such Council for all the purposes relating to such claim or dispute and to the hearing and determination thereof.

(14) Where a dispute has been referred to either Council of Arbitration the members of the Council of Conciliation may, with the consent in writing, Form 13, of both parties to the claim or dispute, sit as assessors upon the reference to the Council of Arbitration; but no such assessor shall take any part in the reference except as an assessor sitting to inform the Council of Arbitration when called upon to do so.

(15) The members of each Council of Arbitration shall be remunerated for their services in such manner and according to such rate of payment as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall appoint, but subject to legislative provision being made therefor.

15. The following may be the method of ascertaining the recommendation of employer and employees as to the persons to be appointed on their recommendation respectively as members of the Council of Arbitration.

(a) For the person to be recommended by the employer every employer in Ontario shall be entitled to one vote; every organization in Ontario, whether incorporated or unincorporated, representing the interests of employers, each member of which has at least ten persons in his employment, shall be entitled to one vote;

(b) Every Board of Trade in Ontario legally constituted shall be entitled to one vote for a representative of the employer in each Council;

(c) For the person to be recommended by employees as a member of the Council in matters not relating to railway companies, every trades and labour council, every district assembly of the Knights of Labour, every federated council of building trades, every lawfully incorporated trades union, every organization of wage-earners of an industrial calling primarily constituted for, and actually and bona fide operated for the regulation of the wages and hours of labour as between employers and employed, shall be entitled to one vote; but this shall not be deemed to include co-operative associations or societies formed under chapter 202 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897;

(d) For choosing the person to be recommended by employees of railway companies as a member of the Council in matters relating to railways, every organization in Ontario, whether incorporated or unincorporated, exclusively representing the interest of wage-earners employed in respect of railway construction or traffic on railways shall be entitled to one vote; but this shall not be deemed to include co-operative associations or societies;

(e) The Registrar shall give notice in the Ontario Gazette calling on all organizations and persons entitled to vote for a member to be recommended to either Council, or claiming to be so entitled, to communicate with him on or before the 1st day of August, of every second year reckoned from 1910; and such notice shall be inserted for at least four weeks before that day in every such year;

(f) The Registrar shall forthwith, after such first day of August, prepare a list of the persons and organizations appearing to be entitled to vote for a person to be recommended for appointment to each of the said Councils respectively, and may refer any doubtful claim to the Minister of Public Works for his advice or direction;

(g) Each list so to be prepared shall give the last known post office address of every person and organization entitled to vote as employers and employees respectively, for the said Councils respectively, and shall be published in the Ontario Gazette, and shall be open to inspection at any time by any person without fee, in the office of the Registrar during office hours;

(h) Between the 1st and 30th days of September of every second year reckoned from 1910 the Registrar shall transmit by registered post to the address of each person and organization entitled to vote a voting paper, Form 16.

(i) The voting paper of any person entitled to vote under this Act as an employer shall be signed by himself or some person duly authorized in writing in that behalf, and the voting paper of any organization entitled to vote shall be signed by the president or vice-president of the organization, or, in the absence of such president or vice-president, by any office bearer of the organization other than the secretary thereof, and shall be countersigned by the secretary or acting secretary, or, in the absence of such secretary or acting secretary, by any two members not being office bearers; and the voting papers of a Board of Trade shall be under the corporate seal of the Board;

(j) The voting paper shall be forwarded in a stamped envelope, addressed to the Registrar of Councils of Conciliation and Arbitration, Toronto, and endorsed, "Voting paper under The Trade Disputes Act;"

(k) Every voting paper shall be forwarded by mail or otherwise to the Registrar so as to be received by him on or before the 15th day of October of the year in which the voting is to be held, and any voting paper received by the Registrar after the said date shall have no effect or validity;

(l) The Registrar shall forthwith, after the said 15th day of October, count the recommendations as well by or on behalf of employees, as by or on behalf of employers for each Council, and shall forward the same to the Minister of Public Works, together with the Registrar's report thereon; and the Minister of Public Works, upon being satisfied of the accuracy of such report, shall publish in the Ontario Gazette the result of such recommendations, and the names of the persons appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor upon such recommendations to be members of the Councils of Arbitration; and also the names of, and number of votes given for the five persons who have received the greater number of votes for each Council on behalf of employers and employees respectively;

(m) In case either employers or employees, or both, fail to recommend any person to represent them on either or both the Councils, as provided for in this section, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint a person or persons to fill the vacancy or vacancies.

Procedure for Arbitration.

16. (1) Any dispute or claim within the meaning of this Act may be referred to the appropriate Council of Arbitration for its hearing and determination in any of the following cases:—

(a) On application, Form 9, to the Registrar by either party to a claim or dispute which, having been referred to a Council of Conciliation, has not been settled or adjusted by such Council;

(b) On application, Form 8, to the Registrar by both parties to a claim or dispute, which has not been so referred to a Council of Conciliation.

Provided that if in either case the award of the Council of Arbitration is not complied with or carried out by the parties, or for any reason proves abortive, the parties to the reference, or either of them, shall not thereby be precluded from referring the dispute to a Council of Conciliation or from making a second reference to the Council of Conciliation where a former reference has already been made to it.

(2) If in case of a claim or dispute, within the meaning of this Act, one party has lodged an application with the Registrar requesting that the dispute or claim be referred to a Council of Conciliation, and appointing two conciliators for the purpose, and notice of the application and of the appointment of conciliators has been duly given to the other party, and such other party has not within a reasonable period appointed conciliators, and the party lodging the application has not proceeded to a strike or lock-out, as the case may be, the Council of Arbitration, if it thinks fit, may proceed as in case of an abortive reference to a Council of Conciliation, and such Council may report their decision as to the proper settlement of the dispute in question and also in case the Council thinks proper, a concise statement as to the origin of the dispute, and the causes inducing the same, and what parties, if any, are in the opinion of the Council mainly responsible for the same.

(3) The mayor of any city or town, upon being notified that a strike or lock-out is threatened or has actually occurred within the municipality, shall at once notify the Registrar thereof by writing, stating the name of the employer, the nature of the dispute, and the number of employees involved as far as his information will enable him so to do.

(4) It shall be the duty of each of the Councils of Arbitration, upon being notified, or on being otherwise made aware, that a strike or a lock-out has occurred or is threatened, to place itself, as soon as practicable, in communication with the parties concerned and to endeavour by mediation to effect an amicable settlement, and if in the judgment of the Council it is deemed best to enquire into the cause or causes of the controversy it shall proceed as in the case of a reference.

17. In every case referred to a Council of Arbitration, or in which the Council has determined to act under the preceding section of this Act, the Council shall have power to require either or each party to the claim or dispute to name not more than three persons, who, upon their consent in writing, Form 14, shall for all purposes of the reference be taken to represent such party.

18. (1) The Council shall sit and conduct its proceedings as in open court, and in making its decision shall be governed by the principles of equity and good conscience.

(2) The President shall, for the purpose of preserving order during any sitting of the Council, have all the powers of a Judge of the Supreme Court, except the power of committing for contempt.

19. Any two members of the Council of Arbitration shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and may hold meetings at any time and any place within Ontario.

20. The Council of Arbitration may order that an examination or investigation shall be held before any one member of the Council, but such member shall report upon such examination or investigation to the Council, and the decision of such member shall not be considered binding until approved by the Council or a majority thereof.

21. (1) The report or award, Form 11, of the Council of Arbitration shall be made within one month after the Council has completed its sittings for the hearing of the reference, and shall be by and under the hands of a majority of the members of the Council.

(2) At the request of either party, and if the Council approves, a copy of the report or award shall be published by the Registrar in The Ontario Gazette.

(3) The report or award, or a copy, certified under the hand of the President of the Council, shall be deposited in the office of the Registrar and shall be open to inspection without charge during office hours.

22. (1) Either party to a reference to either Council of Arbitration, at any time before award made, may by writing under the hands of such party, Form 12, agree to be bound by the award of the Council upon the reference in the same manner as parties are bound upon an award made pursuant to an ordinary submission in writing to arbitration under The Arbitration Act.

(2) Every such agreement made by one party shall be communicated by the Registrar to the other party, and if such other party also agrees in like manner to be bound then the award may, on the application of either party, be enforced in the same manner as an award on ordinary submission in writing to arbitration may be enforced under the said Act.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

23. The Councils of Conciliation and Arbitration shall have power—

(a) to visit the locality where the trade dispute has arisen and to hear all persons interested who may come before them;

(b) to summon, Form 15, any person to attend as a witness before the Council, and in the case of any person so summoned refusing to attend after payment or tender of his proper fees application may be made in a summary way to a justice of the peace having jurisdiction in the city, town or county wherein the council may be sitting for an order compelling such attendance; and such justice of the peace may make such order as might be made in any case wherein such justice has power to compel appearance before him in pursuance of The Ontario Summary Convictions Act, and

(c) to administer an oath to any person attending as a witness before the Council and to examine any such person on oath or affirmation.

24. No party to any proceeding either before a Council of Conciliation or a Council of Arbitration shall be represented by counsel or solicitor or by any paid agent other than one or more of the persons between whom the claim or dispute has arisen.

25. No fees shall be paid to the Registrar by any party in respect of any proceeding under this Act.

26. Every member of a Council of Conciliation, while engaged in adjustment of any dispute, shall be remunerated for his services as follows:—

|                           |        |
|---------------------------|--------|
| Preliminary meetings..... | $3.00 |
| Wholeday sittings.....    | $4.00 |
| Half-day sittings.....    | $2.00 |

out of any funds which may be appropriated by this Legislature for that purpose.

27. Witnesses shall be entitled to the same fees as in a division court.

28. (1) The Lieutenant-Governor may make regulations for the purpose of giving effect to any of the provisions or requirements of this Act, and all such regulations not being inconsistent with this Act shall have the full effect of law on publication in the Ontario Gazette.

(2) Such regulations shall be laid before the Assembly within fourteen days after being published in the Ontario Gazette if the Legislature is in session, and if it is not in session then within the first fifteen days of the ensuing session.

29. No proceeding under this Act shall be deemed invalid by reason of any defect of form, or any technical irregularity.

(Forms omitted.)

Apprenticeship.

Chapter 147.—1. This Act may be cited as The Apprentices and Minors Act.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act,

(a) "County" shall include district.

(b) "County Court" shall include district court.

(c) "Master" shall include any person or number of persons, male or female, carrying on business, singly or in partnership, and a body corporate.

5. Where a minor over the age of sixteen years who has no parent or guardian, or who does not reside with him, enters into an engagement, written or verbal, to perform any service or work he shall be liable upon, and shall have the benefit of the same, as if he had been of full age.

6. A parent, guardian or other person having the care or charge of a minor, or any charitable society authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to exercise the powers conferred by this Act, and having the care or charge of a minor, who is a male and not under the age of fourteen years, may with his consent bind him as an apprentice by agreement in writing to any respectable and trustworthy master-mechanic, farmer, or other person carrying on a trade or calling, for a term not to extend beyond the minority of the apprentice; or in the case of a female not under the age of twelve years, may, with her consent, bind her to any respectable and trustworthy person carrying on any trade or calling, or to domestic service with any respectable and trustworthy person for any term not to extend beyond the time when she attains the age of eighteen years.

7. Where the father of a minor abandons and leaves him with the mother, the mother, with the approbation of two justices of the peace of the county or city in which she resides, may bind the child as an apprentice to any of the persons mentioned in the next preceding section, until the minor attains the age of twenty-one years in the case of a male and eighteen years in the case of a female; and an agreement in writing to that effect under the hand and seal of the mother and countersigned by such justices shall be valid; but no minor who has attained the age of fourteen years shall be so apprenticed unless he or she consents.

8. In a city or town the mayor, a judge of the county court, or a police magistrate, and in a county a judge of the county court may bind for the like period to any of the persons referred to in section 6, with the consent of such person and of the minor, or if the minor is a male under the age of fourteen years or a female under the age of twelve years, then without the consent of the minor, any minor who is an orphan or has been deserted by his parents or guardian, or whose parents or guardian have been committed to and are confined in a common gaol or house of correction, or any minor who is dependent upon public charity for support; and such apprentice and his master shall be held in the same manner as if the apprentice had been bound by his parent.

9. All wages agreed by an indenture or otherwise to be paid for the services of a minor, shall, if not payable to the parent, be either payable to the minor or to some person for his benefit.

10. If the master of an apprentice dies, the apprentice, if a male, shall by operation of law be transferred to the person, if any, who continues the establishment or business of the deceased master; and such person shall hold the apprentice upon the same terms as the master, if alive, would have done.

11. A master may, with the consent of his apprentice, transfer him to any person who is competent to receive or take an apprentice and who carries on the same kind of business.

12. Every master shall provide his apprentice during the term of his apprenticeship with suitable board, lodging, and clothing, or such equivalent therefor as is mentioned in the agreement, and with medical attendance, and shall also properly teach and instruct him, or cause him to be taught and instructed in his trade or calling.

13. Every apprentice shall, during the term of his apprenticeship, faithfully serve his master and obey all his lawful and reasonable commands, and shall not absent himself from his service, day or night without his consent.

Complaints.

14. (1) A judge of the county court or a police magistrate having jurisdiction within the county or city in which the master resides, upon complaint made by a minor bound under the provisions of this Act, or by any person on his behalf, or by the person to whom an apprentice is bound, may alter the mode in which payment of wages is to be made, by directing payment to the apprentice or to some other person, in lieu of the manner provided in the agreement; or may upon proof of gross misconduct or neglect of duty annul the agreement of apprenticeship or of service, and may compel the person in whose possession, power, custody or control the agreement is, to produce and deliver the same in court in order to have it cancelled, or to have the order varying it endorsed thereon, as the case may require.

(2) The judge or police magistrate may, after allowing a reasonable time for production and delivery of the agreement, issue a warrant for the imprisonment of the person in default for any term not exceeding six months unless it is sooner produced and delivered.

15. A judge of the county court or a police magistrate having jurisdiction in the county or city in which the guardian resides, upon complaint of any minor over whom a person has been appointed guardian under section 3, or of any person on behalf of the minor, and upon proof of gross misconduct or neglect of duty on the part of the guardian may emancipate the minor from his authority.

16. A judge of the county court in any case, and a police magistrate in case the apprenticing of a minor or the appointment of a guardian under this Act has not been by the parent of the minor, such judge or police magistrate having jurisdiction in the county or city in which the master or guardian resides, may, on the application of either the parent or the minor, cancel the agreement of apprenticeship or service if satisfied that the same was injudiciously or improperly entered into; or cancel the appointment of the guardian and restore the minor to the parent, if satisfied that the parent is a fit and proper person to take charge of him; and when such cancellation of the guardianship is on the application of the parent his authority shall revive.

17. Where an apprentice absents himself from his master's service or employment before the expiration of his apprenticeship, he may at any time, if found in Ontario, be compelled to serve his master for so long a time as he so absented himself unless he makes satisfaction to his master for the loss sustained by his absence.

18. (1) If the apprentice refuses to serve or to make satisfaction to his master as provided by the next preceding section, or to obey the lawful commands of his master, or in any other way refuses or neglects to perform his duty to his master, and if the master, or his overseer or agent, complains on oath to a justice of the peace, either in the county, city or town where the master resides, or in any county, city or town where the apprentice is found, the justice may cause the apprentice to be summoned to appear or to be apprehended and brought before him, or before some other justice of the peace, and the justice, upon hearing the complaint, shall determine what satisfaction shall be made by the apprentice to the master.

(2) If the apprentice does not give or make such satisfaction immediately, or, where the satisfaction is of such a nature as not to admit of immediate performance, if he does not give sufficient security to make such satisfaction, the justice may commit the apprentice to the common gaol or house of correction of the county, city or town for any period not exceeding three months; and such imprisonment shall not release the apprentice from the obligation to make up the lost time to the master.

19. Where the apprentice has not left Ontario or, having left Ontario, has returned thereto, the master shall not proceed against the apprentice under this Act after one year next from the expiration of the term for which the apprentice contracted to serve, or from his return, as the case may be.

20. Any person who knowingly harbours or employs an absconding apprentice shall pay to his master the full value of the apprentice's labour; and such value shall be what the master would have received from the labour and service of the apprentice if he had continued faithfully in his master's service; and the master may recover the same in any court having jurisdiction where the apprentice has been employed or where the master resides.

21. Where an apprentice becomes insane, or is convicted of an indictable offence, or is sentenced to the Ontario Reformatory, a reformatory or the penitentiary, or is sent to an industrial school, or absconds, his master may, within one month thereafter, but not afterwards, avoid the agreement of apprenticeship or service from the time he gives notice in writing of his intention to do so to the other parties to the agreement, either by serving them with the notice or by inserting it in the Ontario Gazette or in a newspaper published in the county or city where the master resides.

22. The Court of General Sessions of the Peace shall have concurrent primary jurisdiction over offences against this Act, and shall also have authority to make any order which under this Act may be made by a judge of a county court.

23. The Court of General Sessions of the Peace, judge, police magistrate or justice may, on any complaint or other proceeding under this Act, make such order as to payment of costs as may appear just.

24. All fines imposed and collected under this Act shall be paid to the treasurer of the county or city in which the offence was committed.

Appeals.

25. Either party may, except as to matters provided for in the next following section, appeal from any decision of a justice or police magistrate, under this Act, as is provided by The Ontario Summary Convictions Act in the case of a summary conviction.

26. (1) An appeal shall lie to a Judge of the Supreme Court in Chambers from any order or decision of a Court of General Sessions of the Peace or of a judge of the county court or of a police magistrate, cancelling or varying or refusing to cancel or vary an agreement of apprenticeship or service, or cancelling or refusing to cancel the appointment of a guardian.

(2) The appeal shall be by notice of motion, which shall be served upon the opposite party within ten days from the day upon which the order or decision was made, unless a Judge of the Supreme Court or the Master in Chambers allows further time; and the motion shall be returnable upon the first chamber day after the tenth day from the day of service of the notice.

(3) The Judge or Master in Chambers in granting further time may impose such terms as to further evidence, costs and otherwise as he sees fit.

(4) The Judge, upon consideration of the evidence taken upon the hearing, a certified copy whereof shall be produced before him, and such further evidence, if any, may make such order in the premises, and as to costs and otherwise, as he may deem just, and before adjudicating upon the appeal, he may, upon such terms as he may deem just, permit further evidence, either written or oral, to be adduced.

Powers of Charitable Societies.

27. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may authorize any charitable society, incorporated or unincorporated, to exercise for a limited time or otherwise the powers conferred by this Act, and may revoke or suspend any Order in Council made for that purpose.

Earnings of Married Women.

Chapter 149.—7. (1) Every married woman, whether married before or after the passing of this Act, shall have and hold as her separate property, and may dispose of as such, the wages, earnings, money and property gained or acquired by her in any employment, trade or occupation in which she is engaged or which she carries on and in which her husband has no proprietary interest, or gained or acquired by her by the exercise of any literary, artistic or scientific skill.

(2) Every woman married on or after the first day of July, 1884, shall also be entitled to have and hold and to dispose of as her separate property all other real and personal property belonging to her at the time of marriage or acquired by devolving upon her after marriage.

8. Every woman married before the first day of July, 1884, shall be entitled to have and hold and to dispose of in manner aforesaid as her separate property all real and personal property her title to which, whether vested or contingent, and whether in possession, reversion or remainder, shall accrue on or after the said first day of July, including any wages, earnings, money and property so gained or acquired by her as aforesaid.

Wages as Preferred Claims—In Liquidations.

Chapter 178.—174. Upon a voluntary winding up:

(b) In distributing the assets of the corporation, the salary or wages of all clerks and wage-earners in the employment of the corporation due at the date of the commencement of the winding up or within one month before, not exceeding three months' salary or wages, shall be paid in priority to the claims of the ordinary general creditors, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue of their claims.

Railways—Definition of Terms.

Chapter 185, with amendment.—2. In this Act and in any special Act, in so far as this Act applies thereto:—

(a) "Board" shall mean The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board;

(c) "Company" shall mean a railway, street railway or incline railway company, and shall include every such company and any person or municipal corporation having authority to construct or operate a railway or street railway or incline railway;

(h) "Highway" shall include a public road, street, lane, or other public way or communication;

(i) "Inspecting engineer" shall mean an engineer who is directed by the Board to examine a railway or works, and shall include two or more engineers when two or more are so directed;

(o) "Railway" shall mean any railway which the company has authority to construct or operate, and shall include all branches, sidings, stations, depots, wharfs, rolling stock, equipment, stores, property, real or personal, and works connected therewith, and also any railway bridge, tunnel, or other structure which the company is authorized to construct;

(t) "Special Act" shall mean any Act authorizing the construction of or otherwise specially relating to a railway or street railway, whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, and with which this Act is incorporated.

(u) "Street railway" shall mean a railway constructed or operated along and upon a highway under an agreement with or by-law of a city or town, although it may at some point or points deviate from the highway to a right of way owned by the company, under the powers conferred by section 243, and shall include all portions of the railway within the city or town and for a distance of not more than one and one-half miles beyond the limits thereof, although such one and a half miles may be constructed under a by-law of or agreement with a municipal corporation other than that of such city or town, and shall also include any part of an electric railway which lies within the limits of a city or town and is constructed or operated along and upon a highway;

(x) "Train" shall include any engine, motor car or other rolling stock.

Railways—Application of Act.

Chapter 185.—3. This Act shall, unless otherwise expressed, apply to all railways, other than Government railways, and when so expressed, and not otherwise, to street railways and incline railways howsoever incorporated, and whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power and whether constructed on highways or on lands owned by the company or partly on highways and partly on such lands, and shall be deemed to be incorporated and shall be construed, as one Act, with the special Act, subject as herein provided.

5. Any section of this Act may, by the special Act, be excepted from incorporation therewith, and may thereby be extended, limited or qualified, and it shall be sufficient, for the purposes of this section, to refer to any section of this Act by its number merely.

6. If in any special Act heretofore passed, it is enacted that any provision of The Railway Act of Ontario, The Electric Railway Act, The Street Railway Act, The Ontario Railway Act, 1906, in force at the time of the passing of such special Act, is excepted from incorporation therewith, or if the application of any such provision is, by such special Act, extended, limited or qualified, the corresponding provision of this Act shall be taken to be excepted, extended, limited or qualified in like manner; and, unless otherwise expressly provided in this Act or the Special Act, this Act shall apply to every railway company incorporated under a special Act or any general Act, and the sections expressly made applicable shall apply to every street railway company so incorporated, but where the provisions of the special Act and the provisions of this Act are inconsistent the special Act shall be taken to over-ride the provisions of this Act so far as is necessary to give effect to such special Act.

7. (1) Sections 8 to 52, 54 to 59, 66 to 68, 98, 104, 106, 110, 111, 129, 143, 147, 148, 154, 156, 162, 163 to 172, 175, 176, 210, 226, 227, 264 to 266, 272 to 280, 284 to 299, 301, 302, shall apply to street railway companies.

(2) Sections 8 to 52, 54 to 59, 98, 104, 110, 111, 129, 143, 147, 162, 177, 219, 236 to 238, 240, 257, 264 to 266, 272 to 280, 284 to 299 and 302, shall apply to incline railways.

Operation of Trains—Safety Appliances.

Chapter 185.—99. (1) Every company shall provide and cause to be used on all trains modern and efficient apparatus, appliances and means—

(a) to provide immediate communication between the conductor, while in any car of any passenger train, and the engine driver or motorman;

(b) to check at will the speed of the train, and bring the same safely to a standstill, as quickly as possible, and, except under circumstances of sudden danger or emergency, without causing undue discomfort to passengers, if any, on the train; and

(c) to securely couple and connect the cars composing the train, and to attach the engine to such train, with couplers which couple automatically by impact and which can be uncoupled without the necessity of men going in between the ends of the cars.

(2) Such apparatus, appliances and means for the checking of speed or the stopping of any train shall include a power drive wheel brake and appliances for operating the train brake system upon the locomotive.

(3) There shall also be such a number of cars in every train equipped with power or train brakes that the engineer or motorman on the locomotive drawing such train can control its speed, or bring the train to a stop in the quickest and best manner possible, without requiring brakemen to use the common hand brake for that purpose.

(4) Upon all trains carrying passengers such system of brakes shall be continuous, instantaneous in action, and capable of being applied at will by the engine-driver, motorman or any brakemen, and the brakes must be self-applying in the event of any failure in the continuity of their action.

(5) All box freight cars of the company shall, for the security of railway employees, be equipped with—

(a) outside ladders, on two of the diagonally opposite ends and sides of each car, projecting below the frame of the car, with one step or rung of each ladder below the frame, the ladders being placed close to the ends and sides to which they are attached; and

(b) hand grips placed anglewise over the ladders of each box car and so arranged as to assist persons in climbing on the roof by means of the ladders; and if there is at any time any other improved side attachment which, in the opinion of the Board, is better calculated to promote the safety of the train than the Board may require any of such cars, not already fitted with the side attachments by this section required, to be fitted with such improved attachment.

(6) The running-board on the roof of each box freight car of the company shall, at all times, be of sufficient thickness and strength, and not less than thirty inches in width, and shall, with proper and safe supports, extend the whole length of the car and beyond each end thereof to a point not more than two inches less than that to which the deadwood or bumpers at each end of such car likewise extend.

(7) Every company shall adopt and use upon all its rolling stock such height of draw-bars as the Board determines, in accordance with any standard from time to time adopted by competent railway authorities.

(8) The Board may upon good cause shown, by general regulation, or in any particular case, from time to time grant delay for complying with the provisions of this section.

(9) The Board may, subject to the requirements of the preceding provisions of this section, upon application, order that any apparatus or appliance specified in such order shall, when used upon the train in the manner and under circumstances in such order specified, be deemed sufficient compliance with such provisions, but the Board shall not by such order allow any exception to or modification of the requirements of this section.

(10) The oil cups or other appliances used for oiling valves of every locomotive in use upon any railway shall be such that no employee shall be required to go outside the cab of the locomotive, while the same is in motion, for the purpose of oiling such valves.

(11) Every passenger, baggage, mail and express car, which is owned or regularly used on any railway in Ontario, in which heating apparatus is placed, shall be provided with such safeguards against fire as the Board shall in writing from time to time approve.

(12) Every company which fails to comply with any of the provisions of this section shall forfeit to His Majesty a sum not exceeding $200 for every day during which such default continues, and shall as well be liable to pay to all such persons as are injured by reason of the non-compliance with these provisions, or to their representatives, such damages as they are legally entitled to notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary.

100. Every locomotive, engine and electric locomotive shall be furnished with a bell of at least thirty pounds weight or with a steam or air whistle.

101. Every car which contains a motor or which runs at the head of a train shall be furnished with a gong, to be approved by regulation of the Board, or with an air whistle.

Protection of Employees on Street Railways—Enclosed Platforms, etc.

Chapter 185.—102. (1) Every car in use for the transportation of passengers in November, December, January, February, March, and April in each year, which while in motion requires the constant care or service of a motorman upon the platforms of the car or upon one of them, shall have its platforms so enclosed as to protect the motorman from exposure to wind and weather in such manner as the Board shall approve.

(2) Every company operating its cars without rear end vestibules shall allow the conductors employed on such cars to stand inside the cars during such period so far as is consistent with the proper performance of their duties.

(3) Every motor car built after the passing of this Act, designed for carrying passengers upon a railway operated by electricity, shall be so constructed that the motorman having the control of the motive power shall be stationed in a compartment into which no person shall be admitted save the officers or employees of the company on duty; and no person other than such officers or employees shall be permitted to occupy any portion of such compartment or vestibule.

(4) Any company offending against the provisions of this section shall incur a penalty of $100 for each offence and any person offending against the provisions of this section shall incur a penalty of not less than $2 or more than $50 recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act."

(5) This section shall apply only to railways operated by electricity, street railways and incline railways.

103. The Board may, by order applicable either generally or in one or more particular cases, alter or modify any of the requirements of section 102.

Protection of Employees on Railways—Power of Board to make Regulations.

Chapter 185.—104. (1) The Board may make orders and regulations—

(c) with respect to the method and means of passing from one car to another, either inside or overhead, and for the safety of employees while passing from one car to another;

(d) for the coupling of cars;

(e) requiring proper shelter to be provided for all employees when on duty;

(f) with respect to the rolling stock, apparatus, cattle-guards, fenders, brakes, sanders, and vestibules, steps, seats, heating, lighting, open or closed cars, appliances, signals, methods, devices, structures and works to be used upon the railway, so as to provide means for the due protection of property, the employees of the company, and the public;

(g) with respect to any matter, act or thing which, by this Act or the special Act is sanctioned, required to be done, or prohibited;

(1) generally for carrying this Act into effect.

(2) Any such orders or regulations may be made to apply to any particular locality, to any railway or section, or portion thereof, and the Board may exempt any railway or section or portion thereof, from the operation of any such order or regulation, for such time or during such period as the Board deems expedient.

(3) The Board may, by regulation, provide penalties, when not already provided in this Act, to which every company, person or municipal corporation offending against any regulation made under this section shall be liable, but no such penalty shall exceed $100 for each offence and every such penalty shall be recoverable under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act, or by action at the suit of the Attorney General as the Board may, by regulation, determine.

(4) The imposition of any such penalty shall not lessen or affect any other liability which any company, person or municipal corporation may have incurred.

(5) All orders or regulations under this section may be made to apply to any railways, whether operated by steam, electricity or other motive power, but no such order or regulation shall increase or extend, lessen or impair any obligation or duty resting upon, or any privilege or franchise enjoyed by the company under the special Act or under any agreement.<sup>1</sup>

105. (1) Whenever the Board is of opinion after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that the regulations, practices, equipment, appliances or service of any railway company, street railway company, or incline railway company in respect to the transportation of persons, freight or property are unjust, unreasonable, unsafe, improper or inadequate, it shall determine the just, reasonable, safe, proper and adequate regulations, practices, equipment, appliances or service thereafter to be in force, to be observed and to be used in such transportation of persons, freight, and property, and fix and prescribe the same by order to be served upon the company to be bound thereby; and it shall be the duty of the company to observe and obey every requirement of every such order and to do everything necessary or proper in order to secure absolute compliance with and observance of every such order by its officers, agents and employees.

(2) Whenever, in the opinion of the Board, repairs or improvements to or changes in any tracks, road-beds, switches, terminals or terminal facilities, motive power or any other property or device used by any railway company or street railway company, or incline railway company, in or in connection with the transportation of passengers, freight or property, ought reasonably to be made thereto in order to promote the security or convenience of the public or of the employees of the company or to secure adequate service or facilities for the transportation of passengers, freight or property, the Board, upon a hearing had either upon its own motion or after complaint, shall make and serve an order directing such repairs, improvements, changes or additions to be made within a reasonable time and in a manner to be specified therein, and every company shall make all repairs, improvements, changes, and additions required of it by any such order within the time and in the manner specified in the order.

Safety Provisions—Packing.

Chapter 185.—108. (1) The spaces behind and in front of every railway frog or crossing, and between the fixed rails of every switch, where such spaces are less than four inches in width, shall be filled with packing up to the under side of the head of the rail.

(2) The spaces between any wing rail and any railway frog, and between any guard rail and the track rail alongside of it, shall be filled with packing at their splayed ends, so that the whole splay shall be so filled where the width of the space between the rails is less than four inches.

(3) Such packing shall not reach higher than to the underside of the head of the rail.

(4) Such packing shall consist of wood or metal, or some equally substantial and solid material, of not less than two inches in thickness, and, where by this section any space is required to be filled in on any railway, shall extend to within one and a half inch of the crown of the rails in use, shall be neatly fitted so as to come against the web of such rails, and shall be well and solidly fastened to the ties on which such rails are laid.

(5) The Board may, notwithstanding the requirements of this section, allow the filling and packing therein mentioned to be left out from the month of December to the month of April in each year, both months included, or between any such dates as the Board, by regulation or in any particular case, determines.

Railway Bridges, Tunnels, etc.

Chapter 185.—116. (1) Every bridge, tunnel or other erection or structure, over, through or under which any railway passes, shall be so constructed and maintained as to afford, at all times, an open and clear headway of at least seven feet between the top of the highest freight car used on the railway and the lowest beam, member, or portion of that part of such bridge, tunnel, erection or structure, which is directly over the space liable to be traversed by such car in passing thereunder.

(2) The Board may, if necessary, require any existing bridge, tunnel or other erection or structure to be reconstructed or altered, within such time as it may order, so as to comply with the requirements mentioned in the last preceding subsection; and any such bridge, tunnel, or other erection or structure when so reconstructed or altered shall thereafter be maintained accordingly.

(3) Except by leave of the Board the space between the rail level and such beams, members or portions of any such structure, constructed after the 14th day of May, 1906, shall in no case be less than twenty-two feet six inches.

(4) If, in any case, it is necessary to raise, reconstruct or alter any bridge, tunnel, erection or structure not owned by the company, the Board, upon application of the company, and upon notice to all parties interested, or without any application, may make such order, allowing or requiring such raising, reconstruction or alteration, and upon such terms and conditions as to the Board shall appear just and proper and in the public interest.

(5) The Board may exempt from the operation of this section any bridge, tunnel, erection or structure, over, through or under which no trains, except such as are equipped with air brakes are run.

(6) Every company or owner shall incur a penalty not exceeding $50 for each day of wilful neglect, omission or refusal to obey the provisions of this section.

Railway Employees to wear Badges.

Chapter 185.—147. Every employee of the company employed in a passenger train or at a passenger station shall wear upon his hat or cap a badge which shall indicate his office, and he shall not, without such badge, be entitled to demand or receive from any passenger any fare or ticket, or to exercise any of the powers of his office, or to interfere with any passenger or his baggage or property.

Transportation of Explosives.

[Chapter 185, sections 152 and 153, deals with the transportation of explosives.]

Negligence of Railway Employees.

Chapter 185.—154. (1) When any railway passes over any navigable water or canal by means of a draw or swing bridge which is subject to be opened for navigation every train shall, before coming or crossing over such bridge, be brought to a full stop and shall not thereafter proceed until a proper signal has been given for that purpose.

(2) In default the company shall incur a penalty not exceeding $400.

(3) Any employee who fails to comply with the rules of the company made for carrying into effect the provisions of this section shall incur a penalty not exceeding $400, recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act," and upon conviction shall also be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months or both.

(4) Wherever there is in use on any railway at any such bridge an interlocking switch and signal system, or other device which, in the opinion of the Board, renders it safe to permit engines and trains to pass over such bridge without being brought to a stop the Board may, by order, permit engines and trains to pass over such bridge without stopping under such regulations as to speed and other matters as the Board deems proper.

155. (1) When any train is approaching a highway crossing at rail-level the engine whistle shall be sounded at least eighty rods before reaching such crossing, and the bell shall be rung continuously from the time of sounding the whistle until the engine has crossed such highway.

(2) In the case of a car or locomotive operated by electricity an air whistle shall be blown or the gong be sounded continuously for eighty yards before reaching such crossing.

(3) The company shall for each neglect to comply with provisions of this section incur a penalty of $8, recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Conviction Act," and shall also be liable for all damage sustained by any person by reason of such neglect.

(4) Every employee of the company who neglects to comply with this section shall for each offence incur a like penalty.

(5) This section shall not apply to trains approaching such a crossing within the limits of a city or town where a municipal by-law is in force prohibiting the sounding of the whistle or gong or the ringing of the bell.

159. (1) Whenever any railway crosses any highway at rail-level the company shall not, nor shall its officers, agents or employees, wilfully permit any engine, tender or car, or any portion thereof, to stand on any part of such highway for a longer period than five minutes at one time, or in shunting to obstruct public traffic for a longer period than five minutes at any one time, or for any less period which the Board may prescribe.

(2) For every contravention of this section every such officer, agent or employee who has directly under or subject to his control, management or direction any engine, tender or car, which, or any portion of which, is allowed to stand on such highway longer than the time specified in this section shall incur a penalty not exceeding $50, recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act," and the company shall also for each such violation incur a like penalty, but if such alleged violation is, in the opinion of the justice, excusable the prosecution for the penalty may be dismissed, and the costs shall be in his discretion.

Rules for Railway Employees.

Chapter 185.—163. The company may, subject to the provisions and restrictions in this and in the special Act, make by-laws, rules or regulations respecting—

(g) the employment and conduct of the officers and employees of the company.

164. The company may, for the better enforcing the observance of any such by-law, rule or regulation, prescribe a penalty not exceeding $25 for any contravention thereof by an officer or employee of the company, but no such penalty shall be recoverable except under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act" which shall apply to proceedings for the recovery thereof.

165. All by-laws, rules and regulations, whether made by the directors or the company, shall be reduced to writing, be signed by the chairman or person presiding at the meeting at which they are adopted, have affixed thereto the common seal of the company and be kept in the office of the company.

166. All such by-laws, rules and regulations, except such as are of a private or domestic nature and do not affect the public generally or impose penalties, shall be submitted to the Board for approval, and the Board may approve of them or any of them, or any part thereof, and may, from time to time, rescind its approval, and until so approved, or after such approval has been rescinded, no such by-law, rule or regulation shall have any force or effect.

167. Such by-laws, rules and regulations while so approved shall be binding upon, and observed by, all persons, and shall be sufficient to justify all persons acting thereunder.

168. (2) A printed copy of so much of any by-law, rule or regulation as relates to the conduct of or affects the officers or employees of the company shall be given to every officer and employee of the company thereby affected.

169. If the contravention or non-observance of any by-law, rule or regulation is attended with danger or annoyance to the public, or hindrance to the company in the lawful use of the railway, the company may summarily interfere, using reasonable force, if necessary, to prevent such violation, or to enforce observance, without prejudice to any penalty incurred in respect of such violation or non-observance.

170. A copy of any by-law, rule or regulation, certified as correct by the president, secretary or other executive officer of the company and bearing the seal of the company, shall be evidence thereof in any court.

171. Every written or printed document purporting to have been issued or authorized by a company, or any officer, agent or employee of a company, or any other person or company for or on its behalf, shall, as against the company, be received as prima facie evidence of the issue of such document by the company, and of the contents thereof, without any further proof than the mere production of such document.

172. All by-laws, rules and regulations of a company operating its railway by electricity partly or wholly on a highway or of a street railway company shall be subject to any agreement between such company and the municipal corporation owning or maintaining such highway.

Inspection of Railways.

Chapter 185.—175. (1) Whenever any complaint is made to the Board, or the Board receives information, that any railway or any portion thereof is dangerous to the public using the same from want of renewal or repair, or insufficient or erroneous construction, or from any other cause, or whenever circumstances arise which, in its opinion, render it expedient the Board may direct an inspecting engineer to examine the railway or any portion thereof.

(2) The Board may, upon the report of the inspecting engineer, order any repairs, renewal, reconstruction, alteration or new work, materials or equipment to be made, done or furnished by the company upon, in addition to or substitution for any portion of the railway which may, from such report, appear to the Board necessary or proper, and may order that until such repairs, renewals, reconstruction, alteration, and work, materials or equipment are made, done and furnished to its satisfaction no portion of the railway, in respect of which such order is made, shall be used, or used otherwise than subject to such restrictions, conditions and terms as the Board may in such order impose.

(3) The Board may, by such order, condemn and thereby forbid further use of any rolling stock which, from such report, it may consider unfit to repair or use.

(4) If, after notice of any such order, made by the Board, the company uses any rolling stock which has been so condemned by the Board, or disobeys, or fails to comply with any order of the Board made under this section, the company shall incur a penalty of $2,000.

(5) Any person wilfully and knowingly aiding or abetting any such contravention shall incur a penalty of not less than $20 nor more than $200, recoverable under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act.

176. (1) If, in the opinion of any inspecting engineer, it is dangerous for trains to pass over any railway or any portion thereof until alterations, substitutions or repairs are made thereon, or that any of the rolling stock should be run or used, he may, by notice in writing,

(a) forthwith forbid the running of any train over such railway or portion of railway; or,
(b) require that the same be run only at such times, under such conditions and with such precautions as he by such notice specifies; and

(c) forbid the running or using of any such rolling stock.

(2) Such notice shall state the reasons for such opinions of the inspecting engineer, and distinctly point out the defects or the nature of the danger to be apprehended.

(3) The notice may be served upon the company owning or running, or using such railway or rolling stock, or upon any officer having the management or control of the running of trains upon the railway, or the management or control of the rolling stock.

(4) The inspecting engineer shall forthwith report such notice to the Board, which may either confirm, modify or disallow the act or order of such engineer.

(5) Notice of such confirmation, modification or disallowance shall be duly given to the company.

(6) If any company refuses or neglects to comply with any order of the Board, made under this section, the company shall for each such refusal or neglect, forfeit to His Majesty the sum of $2,000.

(7) Any person wilfully and knowingly aiding or abetting any such disobedience or non-compliance shall incur a penalty of not less than $20 or more than $200, recoverable under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act.

(8) No prosecution for any penalty under this section shall be instituted without the authority of the Board.

Sunday Street Cars.

Chapter 185 with amendment.—234. (1) Subject to section 235 no company or municipal corporation operating a street railway, tramway or electric railway shall operate the same or employ any person thereon on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, except for the purpose of keeping the track clear of snow or ice, or for the purpose of doing other work of necessity.

(2) This section shall not apply to any railway company or municipal corporation which now has the right to operate its street railway, tramway or electric railway on Sunday, or to the corporation of the city of London, or the London Railway Commission, in the operation of the London and Port Stanley railway, or to the London Street Railway Company in the operation of that part of its existing line lying in the township of London between the north limits of the city of London and Broughs Bridge, or, subject to subsection 2a, to the London Street Railway Company in the operation of that part of its existing line lying in the township of Westminster, west of the west limit of the city of London. 1914, c. 21, s. 40. Amended 1917, c. 27, s. 31; 1919, c. 44, s. 1.

(2a) Nothing in subsection 2 of this section shall entitle the London Street Railway Company to run any of their cars on any Sunday in the township of Westminster, unless and until the said Company has received permission from the Council of the Corporation of the city of London and from the Public Utilities Commission of the city of London by by-laws to run their cars on Sunday, and then only and subject to such terms and conditions as may be contained in such by-laws, and unless and until the said Company has also entered into an agreement or agreements with the said Corporation, and the said Public Utilities Commission of the city of London, to observe the terms and conditions of the by-laws. 1919, c. 44, s. 2.

(3) For every train run or operated in violation of this section the company shall incur a penalty of $400, recoverable by any person suing for the same under this section and for the purpose thereof.

(4) All money recovered under this section shall be appropriated as follows: One moiety to the plaintiff and the other to the corporation of the local municipality from which the train or car started; but if the train or car is operated by the corporation of the municipality from within the limits of which the same started the plaintiff shall receive the whole amount so recovered.

(5) The conductor or other person in charge of any train run or operated in contravention of this section shall, for every such offence, incur a penalty not less than $1 nor more than $40, recoverable under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act.

(6) This section shall apply to all electric and street railways, whether operated on a highway or on a right of way owned by the company.

235. (1) Subject to subsections 2 and 3, and notwithstanding anything in this Act or any other Act, street railways may be operated on Sunday within a city having a population of over 15,000 after a majority of those voting of the electors qualified to vote at municipal elections have voted in the affirmative in answer to the question: "Are you in favour of operating street railways on Sunday?" but no person shall be entitled to vote more than once on such question. Amended 1920, c. 56, s. 1.

(2) The question shall not be submitted until the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has declared that the population of the city is over 15,000, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may require a census to be taken and may prescribe the nature of the census and the time and manner of taking the same. Amended 1920, c. 56, s. 1.

(3) When the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has declared that the population of the city is over 15,000, the question may be submitted at the annual municipal election, if the municipal council shall have decided on or before the 1st of December preceding the date of such election to submit the question, and shall not later than the 15th of December have given notice of such decision by public advertisement, for at least one week in each issue of some daily newspaper published in the municipality. Amended 1920, c. 56, s. 1.

(4) The provisions of "The Municipal Act" as to the submission of questions to the electors and the voting thereon and the imposition of penalties and the prevention of corrupt practices in connection with elections shall apply to a vote taken under the provisions of this section, but no person shall be entitled to vote more than once on the question.

(5) Nothing in this section shall entitle a street railway company, which has entered into an agreement with a municipal corporation not to run cars on Sunday, to run any of their cars on any Sunday unless and until the company has received permission from the council of such corporation by by-law to run their cars on Sunday, and then only under and subject to such terms and conditions as may be contained in such by-law, and unless and until the company has also entered into an agreement with the corporation to observe the terms and conditions of the by-law.

Hours of Labour for Railway Employees.

Chapter 185.—236. No employee shall be required or permitted to work for more than six days of ten hours each in any one week.

237. When a railway is operated on Sunday no employee shall be required or permitted to work on any Sunday when he has worked on the previous Sunday.

238. For each day on which a breach of either of the two next preceding sections is committed the corporation or company offending shall incur a penalty of not less than $25 or more than $100.

Conveniences for Street Railway Employees.

Chapter 185.—254. (1) Every street railway company and incline railway company shall, within six months after being so ordered by the Board, provide, furnish and thereafter maintain suitable and sanitary urinals and other conveniences for the use of the employees of the company operating its cars.

(2) Such urinals and other conveniences may be located upon land owned or provided by the company and reasonably accessible to each of the lines of railway operated by the company and at such points as the Board may direct, within the limits of the city or town, and the employees of the company shall be allowed reasonable opportunity of access thereto.

(3) The company shall incur a penalty of $10 per day for each day upon which it neglects to provide such urinals or other conveniences.

(4) The Board shall determine whether the cost of such urinals and conveniences shall be borne by the company or by the city or town within the limits of which the company's lines are operated, or by both, and if by both the proportions in which the same shall be borne by them respectively, in case the parties are unable to agree, as may be determined by the Board.

(5) The Board may order the city or town to provide the site for such urinals or other conveniences, upon such terms as to cost and otherwise as the Board may determine.

Examination of Railway Employees—Colour Blindness.

Chapter 185.—263. (1) No person shall be employed as a motorman on any railway or street railway operated by electricity until he has been subjected to a thorough examination by an examiner or examiners, to be approved by the Board, as to his habits, physical ability and intelligence, and has undergone such training as may be prescribed by the Board, by regulation applicable generally or to the particular railway, and the examiner has reported to the Board that such person is competent to fill the position of motorman.

(2) He shall then be placed on a car with an instructor, and when the examiner is satisfied as to his capability for the position of motorman he shall so certify to the Board, and, if such person is employed, he shall, as far as reasonably possible, first serve on the lines of least travel.

(3) The company shall pay for the services of the examiner.

264. (1) No company shall employ any person in a position which requires him to distinguish form or colour signals unless, within two years next preceding his appointment, he has been examined for colour blindness on the distinct colours in actual use as signals on the company's line of railway, and also as to his eyesight generally, by some competent person employed for the purpose by the company and approved by the Board, and has received a certificate that he is not disqualified for such position by reason of colour blindness or otherwise in respect of his eyesight.

(2) The company shall cause such employees to be re-examined for colour blindness, and otherwise in respect of their eyesight, at least once in every two years.

(3) Nothing in this section shall prevent the company from continuing in its employment any person having defective sight in cases where the same can be fully remedied by the use of glasses or by other means satisfactory to the person making the examination.

(4) For every contravention of this or the next preceding section the company shall, for each offence, incur a penalty of $100.

Railways—Actions for Damages.

Chapter 185.—265. (1) Subject to subsection 4 of section 139 all actions for indemnity, or for any damages or injury sustained by reason of the construction or operation of the railway, shall be commenced within one year next after the time when such supposed damage is sustained, or, if there is continuation of damage, within one year next after the doing or committing of such damage ceases, and not afterwards.

(3) No inspection had under this Act, and nothing in this Act and nothing done or ordered or omitted, to be done, or ordered under or by virtue of the provisions of this Act, shall relieve, or be construed to relieve, any company of or from or in any wise diminish or affect any liability or responsibility resting upon it by law, either towards His Majesty or towards any person, or the wife or husband, parent or child, executor or administrator, heir or personal representative, of any person, for anything done or omitted to be done by such company, or for any wrongful act, neglect or default, misfeasance, malfeasance or non-feasance, of such company.

266. (1) No company owning or operating a railway whole or in part in Ontario shall adopt or promulgate any rule or regulation for the government of its servants or employees or make or enter into any contract or agreement with any person engaged in or about to engage in its service, in which such employee directly or indirectly promises or agrees to hold such company harmless, on account of any injury he may receive by reason of any accident to, breakage, defect or insufficiency in the cars, motors, locomotives or machinery or attachments thereto belonging, and any such rule, regulation, contract or agreement shall be void and of no effect.

(2) No such company shall demand, accept, require, or enter into any contract or agreement with any person about to enter or in the employ of the company whereby such person agrees to surrender or waive any right to damages for personal injury or death against any such company thereafter arising; and all such contracts and agreements shall be void.

(3) Every company contravening or aiding in the contravention of this section shall, for each offence, incur a penalty of five hundred dollars, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction by any person suing therefor.

(4) No such company shall knowingly or negligently use or operate any car, motor or locomotive that is defective, or any car, motor or locomotive upon which the machinery or attachments thereto belonging are in any manner defective.

Fair Wages for Employees on Subsidized Railways—Alien Labour.

Chapter 185.—267. (1) Where this Legislature has heretofore granted or hereafter grants financial aid by way of subsidy or guarantee towards the cost of railway construction, all mechanics, labourers or other persons, who perform labour in such construction shall be paid such wages as are generally accepted as current for competent workmen in the locality in which the work is being performed; and if there is no current rate in such locality, then a fair and reasonable rate.

(2) If a dispute arises as to what is such current rate, or a fair and reasonable rate, it shall be determined by the Board whose decision shall be final.

268. (2) Every subsidy heretofore granted out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund in aid of any railway, as to any part thereof which is still unearned, and every such subsidy hereafter granted, in addition to all other lawful requirements, shall be subject to any conditions which may be imposed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council respecting the tolls to be charged to "Settlers" or "Prospectors" using any such subsidized railway or any part thereof in connection with their prospecting and settling in any district through which the railway runs, either for freight or passenger service.

(4) Every such subsidy shall further be subject to the condition that the workmen, labourers or servants employed in or about the construction and operation of the railway shall be paid such rate of wages as may be currently payable to workmen, labourers and servants engaged in similar occupations in the district in which such railway is constructed and operated, and upon breach of such condition by the railway company there may be deducted and retained from any money payable in respect of such unearned subsidy such amount as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may deem proper, and if the subsidy has been paid over before such breach such part thereof as may be determined by Order in Council may be recovered back from such railway company at the suit of the Attorney General in any court of competent jurisdiction.

(6) No person shall be employed in the construction of any railway receiving a subsidy either in money or in land who is a citizen or subject of any country having an alien labour law which has the effect of excluding Canadians from employment upon the public works of such country or on other works therein.

(7) For every contravention of subsection 6 the company shall incur a penalty of $20 per day for each person so employed during the whole period of such employment.

Hours of Labour for Railway Employees.

Chapter 185.—270. No company operating a line of railway, of twenty miles in length or over, shall require or permit a conductor, engineer, motorman, fireman, trainman, despatcher or signal man who has worked in any capacity for sixteen consecutive hours to go again on duty to perform any kind of work unless he has had at least six hours' rest.

271. (1) The Board may regulate the hours during which conductors and motormen, employees of a street railway company, may be required or permitted to work, but in no case shall an employee be permitted to work more than six days in a week or ten hours per day, and, whenever practicable and reasonable, such ten hours' work shall be performed within twelve consecutive hours.

(2) The power conferred by subsection 1 may be exercised notwithstanding the provisions of any agreement between a municipal corporation and a railway company as to hours of labour.

(3) Every company which, and every director, superintendent, manager or officer of a company who contravenes the provisions of any order of the Board, made under the authority of subsection 1, or contravenes any of the provisions of this section, shall, for each contravention, incur a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $250, recoverable under "The Ontario Summary Convictions Act."

Returns of Railway Accidents—Investigations.

[Sections 273-279 provide for the reporting and the registration of accidents.]

Intoxication of Railway Employees.

Chapter 185.—289. Every person who sells, gives or barter any spirituous or intoxicating liquor to or with any servant or employee of any company while on duty shall incur a penalty not exceeding $25 recoverable under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act.

290. Every conductor, locomotive engineer, motorman, train despatcher, telegraph operator, station agent, switchman, signal man, bridge tender, or any other person who is intoxicated or under the influence of liquor while on duty, in charge of or in any employment having to do with the movement of trains upon any railway, shall incur a penalty not exceeding $400, recoverable under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act, and shall, upon conviction, also be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court before which the conviction is had and according as such court considers the offence proved to be more or less grave as causing injury to any person or property, or as exposing or likely to expose any person or property to injury, although no actual injury occurs.

Industrial Disputes on Public Utilities—Arbitration and Mediation.

Chapter 186.—60. (1) A dispute between a railway, street railway or public utility company and its employees may be submitted to the Board for its determination and settlement.

(2) The submission shall be in writing and shall contain a statement of the matters in dispute, and also an agreement to abide by the determination of the Board and to continue in business or at work without a lockout or strike during the investigation.

(3) Upon such submission the Board shall investigate and determine the matters in dispute and shall render its decision within ten days after the completion of the investigation.

(4) The proceedings shall, as nearly as may be, be the same as in the case of any other enquiry which the Board is authorized to make, but the Board may regulate the proceedings and the manner of conducting them as to the Board may seem meet.

Mediation in Case of Strike or Lockout.

61. (1) Whenever a strike or lockout of the employees of any railway, street railway, or public utility company occurs, or is threatened; the Board shall proceed as soon as practicable to the locality thereof and endeavour by mediation to effect an amicable settlement of the controversy.

(2) Wherever there exists any such strike or lockout by reason of which, in the opinion of the Board, the general public is likely to suffer injury or inconvenience with respect to food, fuel or light, power, the means of communication or transportation, or in any other respect, and the parties to such strike or lockout will not consent to submit the matters in controversy to the Board, the Board, after having first endeavoured to effect a settlement by conciliatory means and having failed, may proceed of its own motion to make an investigation of all facts bearing upon such strike or lockout, and shall make public its findings with such recommendations to the parties as, in its judgment will contribute to a fair and equitable settlement of their differences, and in the prosecution of such enquiry the Board shall have all the powers conferred upon it by section 53.

Licensing of Chauffeurs.

Chapter 207 with amendments.—4. (1) No person shall, for hire, pay or gain, drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless he is licensed to do so, and no person shall employ anyone so to drive a motor vehicle who is not so licensed.

(2) The license for such purpose may be issued by the Minister of Public Works and Highways to such person for such time and upon such terms and subject to such regulations and restrictions as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may prescribe.<sup>1</sup>

(3) A license shall not be issued to a person who drives a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain unless he files in the office of the Minister of Public Works and Highways certificates that he is a fit and proper person to be so licensed, having regard to his character, physical fitness, ability to drive and knowledge of the rules of the road. One of such certificates touching the applicant's character shall be furnished by the chief constable of the municipality in which the applicant resides, and one other certificate touching the applicant's physical fitness, ability to drive and knowledge of the rules of the road shall be furnished by a member of the Ontario Motor League appointed for that purpose by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council and residing in the municipality in which the applicant resides. 1919, c. 57, s. 1.

(4) If there is not one appointed member residing in the municipality, the certificate may be signed by one such appointed member residing in the municipality, nearest to that in which the applicant resides. 1916, c. 47, s. 5.

4a. Any person who knowingly makes any false statement of fact in any application, declaration, affidavit or paper-writing required by this Act or by the regulations in order to procure the issue to him of a license, permit or certificate of registration shall in addition to any other penalty or punishment to which he may be liable, incur a penalty not exceeding $50. 1918, c. 37, s. 3.

5. A license must be produced by any person driving a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain when demanded by a peace officer.

13. No person under the age of 16 years shall drive a motor vehicle, and no person over the age of 16 years and under the age of 18 years shall drive a motor vehicle on the highway unless and until such person has passed an examination and obtained a license as provided in this Act for a person who drives a motor vehicle for hire, pay or gain. 1917, c. 49, s. 10.

14. No intoxicated person shall drive a motor vehicle.

18a. No person shall hire or let for hire a motor vehicle unless the person by whom such motor vehicle is to be driven is a person licensed to drive a motor vehicle as required by this Act, or is a person to whom a permit has been issued pursuant to section 3 of this Act, or is a person to whom a certificate of competency has been issued by the Minister of Public Works and Highways. 1919, c. 57, s. 4.

21. The Minister of Public Works and Highways may at any time, for misconduct or infraction of the provisions of this Act or of any regulation thereunder by an owner or driver of a motor vehicle, suspend or revoke any permit or license and during such suspension and until any such revocation shall be cancelled by the Minister of Public Works and Highways no further or other license shall be issued to such owner or driver, and the Minister may also, for such misconduct or infraction prohibit any person from driving a motor vehicle for a period not exceeding two years and any such person who drives a motor vehicle during the prohibited period shall incur a penalty not exceeding $500. Amended 1917, c. 49, s. 15. 1918, c. 37, s. 9.

Inspection and Regulation of Factories—Plumbing—Ventilation.

[Chapter 218, The Public Health Act, section 8, empowers the Provincial Board of Health to make regulations regarding the construction and inspection of plumbing in any building and in any structure or place, whether permanent or temporary.]

Section 73 enumerates particular nuisances, among which are the following:—]

(g) Any work, manufactory trade or business so situated as to be injurious or dangerous to health;

(i) Any . . . . . factory, shop or other building, which is not in a cleanly state or free from effluvia arising from any drain, privy, water or earth closet, urinal or other nuisance; or is not ventilated in such a manner as to render harmless so far as practicable any gases, vapours, dust or other impurities generated therein which are injurious or dangerous to health, or is so overcrowded as to be injurious or dangerous to the health of those employed or being therein.

Inspection and Regulation of Construction Camps, etc.—Medical Attendance for Employees.

Chapter 218.—117. Sections 118 to 124 shall apply only to territory without municipal organization.

118. (1) The Provincial Board of Health may, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, make regulations:

(a) Respecting any industry and the conditions under which the same may be carried on, for the purpose of preventing nuisances and the outbreak or spread of disease;

(b) For the cleansing, regulating and inspection of lumbering camps and of mining camps and railway construction works and of other places where labour is employed;

(c) For providing for the inspection of houses and premises;

(d) For providing for the employment of duly qualified medical practitioners by employers of labour in lumbering camps and in mining camps and on railway construction works and other works where labour is employed, and for the erection of permanent or temporary hospitals for the accommodation of persons so employed.

(2) The regulations may be general in their application or may be made applicable specially to any particular locality or industry.

(3) The expenses of carrying out the regulations shall be paid to the person entitled thereto by the persons, firms or corporations whose duty it may be to carry out such regulations and the amount so to be paid shall be apportioned by the Minister among them as he may deem proper, and every amount so apportioned shall be deemed to be a debt due from the person, firm or corporation, and may be recovered by the person entitled thereto by action in any court of competent jurisdiction.
